Census.

The official city returns taken in 1895, 17,862.

VANCOUVER is the Pacific Coast terminus of Canada's great transcontinental railway, and practically owes its existence and much of its present importance to that fact, although for some years prior to 1886, when a beginning of the present city was made, there had been built and occupied on a part of its present site the houses of a small lumbering and fishing settlement known as "Granville." For this the name "Vancouver" was substituted and statutorily recognized in commemoration of the discoveries made, late in the last century, on the British Columbia coast by England's famous naval officer, Captain Vancouver. The city has since, during an existence of less than a decade, grown steadily and surely year by year, until at present its settled population may be conservatively estimated at 20,000, to which should be added—to ascertain the actual number of inhabitants always to be found within the city limits—a floating population of at least 1,000 more. Other statistical details, illustrative of Vancouver's progress, will be found hereto appended, but as an instance of the energy with which the work of improving the youngest of Canada's great cities has been conducted under succeeding administrations of Mayors and Boards of Aldermen, the amount expended on waterworks and other civic requirements, including the making and permanent improvement of a multitude of streets, has approached $3,000,000, expenditure of a permanent nature only being included in the above estimate. The total, large as it is, excludes a very considerable expenditure—largely made by the Provincial Government—on the building of the city's High School and many Public Schools; nor does it include further considerable public expenditures, from Government sources, on the Vancouver Court of Justice, in which assizes are held at regular intervals, in addition to sessions of the County Court, whilst in the same Government building are the Land Registry and other public offices. Vancouver fronts on an extension of Burrard Inlet into a famous bay, originally known as Coal Harbor, a designation that is now little used, being practically replaced by the term "Vancouver Harbor." This picturesquely situated, mountain-sheltered haven affords one of the finest anchorages in the world, access thereto being available at all times for vessels of the largest draught and tonnage, and in part of it might easily ride the whole of the Empire's naval forces, regular and reserve. English Bay and its extension, False Creek, also intersect the city, and, being shallower, afford shipping facilities to many minor craft. These inlets may, however, by dredging and otherwise, be easily so deepened as to provide dock accommodation for large numbers of vessels of great size, should such extension of natural shipping facilities, already exceptional, become necessary by the growth of the city. Vancouver, although yet in its earliest stage, already in some departments of shipping competes successfully with San Francisco, which as a great Pacific seaport and commercial city, all Canada confidently expects her great Pacific port in time to rival and surpass. Hence Vancouver has advantages natural and acquired, almost equally great, and rightly claims, in addition to unusual commercial facilities, the charm of picturesqueness of site and every opportunity for healthful living. The city is, as a result of these encouragments to growth and population, already well provided with the churches, schools and other public institutions of a great town, including an excellent and improving Free Library. Vancouver, moreover, possesses in Stanley Park—a grand reserve of well-afforested headland, intersected by fine drives and walks, but otherwise wisely suffered to remain largely in a state of nature—an area of nearly 640 acres of the finest parkland in the world. This, in addition to other but small park areas and open spaces. Chartered companies also supply the city in the one case with excellent public and private lighting by electricity, and in the other offer generally to merchants, storekeepers, institutions and householders, excellent facilities for lighting and heating by gas. Company enterprise provides the town with an excellent electric railway street service and also by a line twelve miles in length connects Vancouver with the neighbor City of New Westminster, giving access by the way to South Vancouver and Burnaby, pleasantly situated interurban districts that are gradually being occupied for residential, fruitgrowing, market gardening and general farming purposes.

Vancouver's shipping services are already world-wide in range and afford, amongst other things, links in great inter-imperial lines of communication between the United Kingdom and British colonies in the Pacific isles, Hong Kong and Australasia. The shipping services include regular communications with China, Japan, Hawaii, Suva Fiji and Australia, also with Puget Sound ports, San Francisco, and to the north with Alaska, in addition to coasting services connecting the city with Victoria, Nanaimo, Fraser river points and ports also on the northern coast. Vancouver is, in addition, the greatest center of the Province's lumber shipping trade with all parts of the world, and is, moreover, a place of extensive lumber working at large and well-appointed mills. It is also increasing in importance as an entrepot and point of shipment for the salmon and other great fisheries of British Columbia, in addition to being—as already indicated by its rail and shipping connections—a constantly increasing center of import, export and wholesale trade.

A market hall and open space belonging to the city also affords good facilities to the farmers, dairymen, fruit growers and market gardeners of a wide surrounding district and extend considerably what is already an important local industry—the wholesale and retail distribution of general farm produce.

The postoffice, banks, clubs, leading warehouses, offices and stores of the city are already, in regard to cost, beauty, size and appointments, well in excess of the present dimensions and requirements of the city, and thus attest the abundant faith in the greatness of its future that is generally held by public and private investors. The leading buildings of the city are, indeed, like the finely asphalted principal streets in general, sufficient in scope for a busy town of nearly 100,000 people.

Nor must there be forgotten a pure and abundant public water service, owned by the city, and easily capable of sufficient extension to serve a town of almost any size and population.

Other local industries include iron-working and engineering on an extensive scale, sugar refining, fruit canning, furniture manufacture, soap making, Portland cement manufacturing, tanning, boot and shoe making, creamery working and fish curing, smoking and freezing, this last with extensive aid from cold storage systems. There are also barrel making, jute manufacturing, and boat and shipbuilding. As, moreover, constant discoveries are being made of precious and other mineral deposits within a radius of about fifty miles of Vancouver, with which other great and already developed mine districts further distant are well connected by rail and water facilities, there is good reason to expect the city to become, in the early future, a mining center of importance, especially in connection with ore smelting and refining. These and many other circumstances forbidden mention by necessary limitations of space, assure Vancouver's early future as a city that shall be, beyond peradventure and for all time, the greatest commercial city and seaport of British Columbia, as also one of the largest and most important cities, certainly, in all Canada, most probably also in the whole of this continent.

Schools.

There are eight school houses located throughout the City, embracing 47 class rooms, all built most substantially, having extensive grounds surrounding each building.

Extract from the last report of C. W. Murray, Secretary to the Board of Trustees:

"The work throughout all our schools has been of a very satisfactory character. Total expenditure on schools for twelve months, $53,463 53."

Board of Works.

"The maintenance of the sewers during the year has been carried out very economically, considering the extent and the large area they cover, the work being attended to both thoroughly and well and without complaint from any quarter."

The following is a summary of the amounts of money spent in the different Wards:

Ward 1.....	$ 6,424 33
Ward 2.....	7,356 56
Ward 3.....	5,684 32
Ward 4.....	5,388 00
Ward 5.....	7,539 48
	$32,392 69

In addition, $30,505.40 was spent in bituminous rock pavement, making a total amount expended by the Board $62,898.09.

Health Inspector (Extract) — "There is an abundant supply of pure water maintained, taken from the mountain elevation of the coast range, and distributed by gravity pressure of an average of 70 pounds, supplied by pipe to nearly every house in the city. There are twenty-two miles of sewers, having 147 man-holes, with 65 automatic flushing tanks, one at the head of each branch line of sewers, thereby giving a frequent flow of water throughout the entire system, keeping the sewers free from the foulness of deposit."

Medical Health (Extract)—"The total number of deaths occurring within the City during the year were 161, giving a death rate of barely 9 per thousand, reckoning the population at 18,000."

Chief of Police (Extract) — "During the year there were a total of 818 cases brought before the Court. Of these 185 were summonses, 313 were dismissed and 505 convicted."

Vancouver Free Library and Reading Room.

The Board consists of seven members, elected annually by each Council, and meet once a month. The total number of books in Library is about 3,200 and in the "reference" section about 300, comprising Encyclopœdias, etc. The number of books issued during the twelve months was 29,594, being largely in excess of any previous year, thus showing the increasing popularity of the institution.

In the Reading Room are to be found the leading magazines, periodicals and newspapers—English, Canadian and American. During the past year $3,600 was appropriated by the Council, $1,000 especially for new books.

Tramways.

The consolidated Railway & Light Co, which controls the car services and electric light of this City, as well as the inter-urban Electric Tram Line between Vancouver and New Westminster, has put down 11 miles of track within the City of Vancouver and 16½ miles between Vancouver and New Westminster. The electric lighting portion of the company's operations supplied about 180 arc lights and 6,000 incandescent lights.

The company at present operates two power houses, one in Vancouver and one on the inter-urban line, but intends shortly to utilize water power from Seymour Creek, and will then build one joint power house. An hourly service is given between Vancouver and New Westminster and a twelve minutes service within the City of Vancouver.

BURNABY

This interurban district, which lies in part between the cities of Vancouver and New Westminster, was incorporated in 1892 as a municipality governed by a Reeve and five Councillors. It is bounded on the more southerly and on part of its more easterly side by New Westminster, on other part of the more southerly side by the Fraser River, and at other points by the districts of South Vancouver and Hastings and by the waters of Burrard Inlet just beyond Port Moody. Burnaby has an area of nearly 23,000 acres, exclusive of the space occupied by its two very picturesque lakes, Deer and Burnaby, from the latter of which the district takes its name. The former lake is small, but very beautiful, and is about three-quarters of a mile in length and half a mile wide. Deer Lake has, moreover, on one side a fine, well-wooded hill, whereon will some day be built some of the most picturesquely situated residences in Southern British Columbia. Burnaby Lake is larger, and also beautiful, whilst capable of great improvement in its environments by embanking the low-lying land which lies around it and encircling the lake by a winding road, which, if made, would afford a most beautiful drive of about ten miles and provide sites for large numbers of pleasantly situated suburban dwellings. The lake stretches on its winding course over a length of some three miles, and varies in width from about half a mile to a quarter. Burnaby has at present a scattered population of rather over 450, which, however, is increasing steadily as a result of greater subdivision of the land into small holdings, sold on easy terms, and in consequence also of cheap fares judiciously offered to residents by the interurban electric railway. The settlers are in part composed of the families of persons whose daily work lies largely in one or other of the neighbor cities and who seek for themselves pleasant homes in Burnaby; in part composed of dairy and general farmers, fruit growers and market gardeners, whilst some of the residents are engaged on the electric railway, the power house and boarding house, of which are situated in Burnaby. Others, too, are engaged in lumbering in connection with somewhat extensive logging operations conducted by Messrs. Gilley Bros, although unfortunately the Ross-Maclaren Lumber Mill at Barnet, within the municipality, yet remains unused. The C. P. R. main line and the Vancouver & New Westminster Electric Railway run through parts of the district, which has also four important main roads, two of them leading to Vancouver and New Westminster, respectively, a third to New Westminster and Port Moody and a fourth to New Westminster and South Vancouver. A fifth, which will ultimately connect Burrard Inlet at Hastings with the Fraser River opposite Lulu Island, is in course of construction and already built for about three miles of an ultimate course of some nine miles. The municipality has, aided by loans amounting to $35,000—or with premiums over $37,000 and Government grants of $2,000—expended on road and other improvements, during an active course of about four years, nearly $50,000, though the taxation is kept low, and with a view to attract settlers of a working order improvements on land are exempted by the Council from taxation, save in the case of the Electric Railway and C.P.R., both of which have valuable franchises over the district. The net taxable value is consequently about $1,000,000, to which, were exempted improvements added, a further value would be given, conservatively estimated, of at least $350,000, represented in the worth of business premises and in clearing, draining, cultivating and planting of fruit land, farms and orchards, residences and buildings. The district is provided with a good public school, in which twice a month Anglican Church services are held, and a Presbyterian Church has lately been erected at Central Park, Burnaby, which is also being made the present Postoffice center of the district. At Central Park, midway between Vancouver and New Westminster, a fine Government reserve will some day be converted into a beautiful park, and here a large settlement is growing up, inhabited by settlers on small holdings granted by the Provincial Government to occupiers on the hire purchase principle. Here, too, is the Rifle Range of the New Westminster and Vancouver Companies of the British Columbia Brigade of Garrison Artillery. In view of all these things, it is certain that Burnaby's future as a largely suburban and residential, largely fruit growing, market gardening and dairy farming district is well assured in respect of numbers and general character of population, which is now likely, at least, to double in little more than a twelvemonth:

NORWEGIAN ✣ EMULSION
This is the only Emulsion containing 50 per cent. of Purest Norwegian Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda.
Every physician in Vancouver has endorsed Norwegian Emulsion. Why? (1) Because Norwegian Emulsion contains 18 per cent. more oil than any other emulsion made. (2) Because Norwegian Emulsion is made fresh daily, in Vancouver, and does not stand for months before you get it. (3) Because in Norwegian Emulsion, the oil globules show under the microscope only 1-5 the size of those in any other Emulsion, therefore it is the most easily digested. The children all like it. (4) Because Norwegian Emulsion is the most perfect, purest and most palatable Emulsion yet produced.
