NEW DEPARTURE.

A French-Canadian Journal of Quebec Comes Out in Favor of Imperial Federation.

A Great Earthquake at St. Louis Shakes up the City Considerably.

Mexican Soldiers Mutiny and Kill an Officer. The Ringleaders Arrested and Jailed.

WILLIAMS IDENTIFIED.

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—A telegram was received this morning from E. Spellman, district member of the Clan-na-Gael, saying that he will leave Peoria Sunday evening and be here to testify in the Cronin case on Monday morning. The first witness on the Cronin case to-day was Charles Carlson. His testimony related to the renting of the Carlson cottage to Frank Williams about March 20th. He said Williams called again on the 26th to pay the rent. The next he saw of him was in jail at Winnipeg. When asked if he saw Williams in the court, he raised his hand and pointed out Burke as the man he had formerly known as Frank Williams.

REAL ESTATE MOVING.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 2.—This city was visited by a very terrible shock of earthquake at 1:53 this morning. Tall buildings were shaken and considerable consternation was caused among the occupants. The shock came from the north and east, passing away in a westerly direction. It lasted only two seconds. The female hospital, insane asylum, and courthouse were severely shaken, and the police at First Park station report a similar experience.

AN OLD TICKET.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 2.—Secretary Proctor will renew the recommendation of his forthcoming annual report, that congress provide for the appointment of secretary of war.

PASSENGER LIST.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 1. — The steamer City of Puebla sailed for Victoria and Puget Sound ports to-day with the following passengers: Victoria—J. H. Thain and wife, Mrs. Joslyn, Rev. J. W. Green, R. H. Renebomo, A. H. Symonds, B. F. Stone, W. A. Warren, Dr. W. T. Lecraig, J. F. Peck.

MORE OF THE BEAUTIFUL.

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 2.—Snow has been falling heavily here since early morning. The storm played havoc with the railway telegraph wires, and the overland trains. A fall of about six inches of snow was reported at the Union Pacific headquarters from several towns in Western Nebraska, while in Wyoming a blizzard is prevailing and it is feared that trains will be blockaded. Telegraph wires on the Burlington are broken at several points west of Omaha.

THE NEW STATES.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 2.—It is now believed that proclamation admitting as states the two Dakotas, Washington and Montana, will not be issued before the assemblying of congress, because of the legal complications in Montana. It is a question also, whether or not the president could issue his proclamation for three of the new states without including the fourth. Secretary Noble thinks that under the provisions of the act they must be admitted together.

PURE ROT.

OTTAWA, Nov. 2.—The Dominion government is evidently becoming alarmed at the bold agitation in favor of closer trade relations and in some quarters of political union with the United States. Their chief organ in Quebec, Le Canadien, yesterday came out strongly favoring imperial federation as deserving of serious attention by all who are anxious to maintain existing institutions, and to erect an effectual barrier to the Americanizing and revolutionary tendencies of the Liberal party, which are gravely threatening the stability of the confederation and gradually sending Canada toward annexation.

SOLDIERS MUTINY.

CITY OF MEXICO, Nov. 2.—A serious mutiny occurred among the escort to the train from Vera Cruz a few mornings ago. A corporal and four privates attacked their superior officers, severely wounding the lieutenant and killing the sergeant. The object of the mutineers, who were forced recruits, seemed to have been to stop the train and escape. When the train was almost due at Saltepec, the mutineers climbed on the engine with the view of forcing the engineer to halt. The engineer and fireman were heavily armed, and seeing that they would probably fail, the five ringleaders jumped from the train, and one was run over and cut in two. The other four were more or less injured, but escaped. On arriving at Saltepec a detachment of rural guards surrounded the car and disarmed the remaining mutineers. Two were taken to the City of Mexico. It is understood that the men who escaped have since been captured and brought to this city. It is probable that the whole party will be shot.

SACCHARINE TRIBULATIONS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—The drop of the sugar trust certificates to 69½ yesterday, has only tended to again excite the holders in their suspicion that some calamity is about to befall the trust. Everything indicates that the trust is in a bad way. They have lost nearly all their surplus through bad judgment in buying raw sugar, as they have been obliged to sell the refined for less than the raw cost them. The fact that the Havemeyers have disposed of $5,000,000 of their stock has also made the outlook very discouraging for the certificate holders.

PRINCIPAL GRANT'S SPEECH

MONTREAL, Nov. 1.—Rev. Principal Grant made a long speech here last evening in connection with the annual concert of the Caledonian Society. Speaking of Canada's relations with the United States, he said with regard to the union of the two countries "they must take all or nothing. Our Queen and all that is involved as well as us, and what a significant confederacy is here presented to our union." He made an eloquent reference to the part the French-Canadians played in the making of Canada, remarking that "all Canada, from Halifax to Vancouver, hocors judges like Dorion, poets like Frechette, orators like Laurier and Chapleau: patriots of the stamp of Joly, and writers like Cheauveau and Casgrain."

OTTAWA NOTES.

OTTAWA, Nov. 1.—The government has been requested to call no attention to the changes in the imperial statute relating to the flags in the British merchant service.

A fish hatchery will be established here in connection with the fisheries department.

The Ontario fishery overseers have received instructions to prosecute lumber men violating the law by depositing saw dust in unexempted streams.

The Canada Gazette to-morrow will publish a notice of the Orange brotherhood's intention to apply for incorporation next session.

FROM VICTORIA.

Regret at Ex-Mayor Dickinson's Death. Jocky Club Races.---Quarrel Between Father and Son.

Special to the Columbian.

VICTORIA, Nov. 2.—Great surprise and regret were expressed here at the sudden death of Ex-Mayor Dickinson.

The naval ball at Esquimalt last night was largely attended, and a grand success.

To-day the races at the grounds of the Victoria Jocky Club took place, in which a large number of horses participated. One of the attractions was the Indian races, in which forty Indians in war costumes participated.

Liberati's concert last night was a dream of instrumental music. Nothing like such music was ever heard in the province. Liberati's cornet solo was particularly fine.

A quarrel that nearly resulted in a fearful tragedy occurred in one of the city hotels on Wednesday morning. The quarrel was between father and son. The son drew a revolver and fired two shots both missing the mark. The young would-be-murderer has since left the city.

The board of trade have had a conference with and presented an address to the governor-general this afternoon.

The body of a young half-breed boy named Patterson was found in the harbor this morning.

In a runaway this afternoon a lady and gentleman were pitched out of a buggy onto the sidewalk on Broughton street. The gentleman was badly cut about the head. Their names are unknown at present.

An injunction was granted to-day restraining the captains of the sealer Mollie Adams, from selling his cargo of sealskins.

Puts on Style.

An Indian chief of the Tsimpshean tribe, named "Shakes," from Kitkatlah, came down on the Boscowitz Thursday. "Shakes" has $3,600 which he is to expend in buying presents for a great potlach to be soon given by him. His dignity as a chief is enhanced by the fact that with him travels a body guard of four braves dressed in a gaudy uniform, whose whole duty it is to see that "Shakes" doesn't get shook.—Times.

The National Policy.

A news paragraph that a shipment of machinery has just been made from an Ontario town to a lumbering firm in British Columbia is one of the constant evidences of the success of the fiscal policy which the people of Canada have wisely adopted and steadily maintained at one general election after another. But for the National Policy, not only as regards manufactures, but also as regards railway construction, a Peterboro' foundry would be little likely thus to find a customer in British Columbia. The inter-provincial trade of Canada is steadily growing, to the great advantage of its people.—Empire.

Masonic Funeral.

The funeral of the late L. L. Doane took place yesterday afternoon from Masonic Temple, under the directon of Vancouver-Quadra Lodge, A. F. & A. M., of which the deceased was a member. The services at the Temple and at the cemetery were impressively performed by W. M. Munro Miller, and at Christ Church Cathedral by Rev. Arthur Beaulands, the choir singing "When our Heads are Bowed with Woe." The casket was covered with a variety of beautiful floral offerings, some of the prettiest having been sent from Portland, where deceased had many friends. The pallbearers were: Messrs Northcote, Becker, Cox, Dodd, Wilson, Cowper, Stearski and Montgomery.—Colonist.

Interior Mines.

Dr. G. M. Dawson, assistant director of the geological survey of Canada, is at the Driard, and will leave for Ottawa in the course of a day or two. Dr. Dawson has been engaged during the greater part of the year in examining the country in the neighborhood of Kamloops for the purpose of securing data for a geological map of that region. The map will include a district eighty miles square. In the early part of the season Dr. Dawson spent several weeks in the Kootenay lake region. The mines of this district he found to be remarkably rich, and there can be no question that rapid progress in mineral developement will ensue. All that was needed at the present time was convenient and cheaper transportation facilities for shipping ore. Only the richest kind of ores can now be sent out to the American smelters. The Northern Pacific was pushing a line north to Bonner's Ferry, and the Canadian Pacific, in order to secure the trade, would be compelled to build a spur southward from Revelstoke. A smelter was being built at the latter point, and when the facilities necessary to develop the region were provided there would be a large amount of ore produced.—Friday's Colonist.

The Bangor News publishes a pointed paragraph. Here it is: One-third of the fools in the country think they can beat the lawyer in expounding the law. One-half think they can beat the doctor healing the sick. Two-thirds of them think they can beat the minister in preaching the gospel, and all of them think think they can beat the editor in running a newspaper.

Thirty Men Killed in a Carpet Factory Accident in Glasgow.

THIRTY LIVES LOST.

GLASGOW, Nov. 2.—It has been definitely ascertained that thirty persons lost their lives in Templeton's carpet factory disaster. Twenty-nine bodies were taken from the ruins.

CULPABLE NEGLIGENCE.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—The captain of the Cunard steamer Malta, which went ashore during a fog, October 16th, while en route to Italy with a pleasure party consisting of 18 persons, was found guilty of culpable negligence by the court of inquiry and suspended for three months. The passengers and crew of the Malta succeeded in reaching shore in safety with the exception of one of the stokers, who was drowned.

PARLIAMENTARY BILLS.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—The cabinet has been convened for next Thursday to arrange the programme for the coming session of parliament. Bills which the ministers are likely to propose will include an amendment to the Allotment act; a measure for the improvement of dwellings of workmen; the appointment of a royal commission to enquire into the exaction of mineral royalties with a view to their abolition. A committee headed by Lord Selborne, which has in hand the preparation of tithes, is unable to agree upon a report. Lord Salisbury insists that they shall arrive at some compromise as he is determined not to postpone an attempt to settle this vexed question.

DILLON'S CRUSADE.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Nov. 2.—John Dillon and his companions having completed a successful campaign in Australia, sailed yesterday for New Zealand, where they will continue their crusade for the Irish cause. They had received pressing invitations and expect to reap a rich harvest.

ANOTHER AFRICAN COMPANY.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—The London newspapers are unanimous in congratulating the British South African Company, otherwise the Prince of Wales' son-in-law the Duke of Fife, the Duke of Abercorn, Lord Gifford and others, upon their success in obtaining the blanket charter issued to them, under which they absolutely control an immense and highly fruitful region in South Africa, and they also congratulate the government that the powers granted the company have fallen into such excellent hands. All the papers are moved to the prediction that the exercise of the charter will result in the establishment in South Africa of a vast empire similar to that of India, but none of them seem anxious to call attention to the ambiguous terms of the concession which virtually empowered the company to exercise control over a territory not heretofore included in the countries in England's possessions. The Pall Mall Gazette in its article on the subject says that England and not Germany will colonise the territory, and just here the difficulty of the company, and consequently of England, begins. So long as the privileges of the company are moderately exercised there will be no trouble, but the moment the elasticity of the charter is tested, a temptation to which the charterers will be most likely to yield, sooner or later, a protest against the territorial encroachment will be lodged and then England will not find it prudent to ignore the company.

Too Much Steam.

As the steamer Delaware was getting ready to start for a trial trip from the Vancouver Foundry wharf last night, she very nearly pulled the whole structure away with her. It is said to have happened in this way: Just as the signal for starting had been given the engineer turned on the steam and the valve working rather stiffly, as is often the case in a new vessel, opened to the full, letting on so great a pressure of steam to start with, that before the ropes were well off she went like a shot, breaking some pins and ropes and pulling out some of the piles, but fortunately doing no serious damage. Her trial trip showed her to be a fine vessel, well built and in every way a success. Her engines will be after a little use all that could be desired. As a river steamer the people of the Royal City, and her owner, Capt. Insley, have reason to be proud of the staunch new vessel.—World.

Canada and its Resources.

Mr. Douglas Sladen, the Australian poet, who has been making a tour of Canada from Halifax to the Pacific, arrived in Victoria last night from Vancouver, where he has spent the past week. Mr. Sladen is collecting information for a book which he intends writing on Canada. The volume will contain his personal impression of the Dominion, statistics of her trade, her relations with the mother country and reciprocal benefits derived from the connection, besides the advantages offered by Canada as a trade route between England and the colonies of the Pacific. Mr. Sladen spent considerable time on the transcontinental trip in examining into the resources of the various provinces, and in learning the opinions of the people. On his return east it is his intention to make a careful collection of statistics at Ottawa. The book will be amply illustrated by cuts prepared specially for the work, and promises to be one of great interest to Canadians, and although it may deal largely with facts commercial and political, yet when these are presented in the author's attractive style, they are sure to be perused with pleasure and profit. Mr. Sladen will remain several days in Victoria.—Friday's Colonist.

A serial and illustrated magazine is to be started in Toronto to cut out Harper's and Scribner's. It will be called The National. The contributors will be well known Canadians.

POLICE COURT.

(Before Capt. Pittendrigh, J. P.)

John Bradley stood this morning in the police court charged with larceny of goods from the store of Ellard & Co. on Thursday night last. Mr. Moresby, who prosecuted, asked that if the evidence bore out the charge, that the prisoner be sent up for trial. His honor said he certainly should.

Mr. Moresby deposed that on Friday he had received information that a white man was trying to sell some dress goods to the Indians in the swamp. On going down to investigate the matter he had met and accosted prisoner, who was coming from the swamp. Mr. Moresby asked the prisoner where the cloth was which he had been offering for sale; the prisoner gave an evasive reply and told witness he could go and look for it. Witness had observed some fragments of rotten wood on prisoner's coat and suspected that the cloth might be hidden in some stump. This surmise proved correct and the cloth produced in court was found in the centre of a rotten stump in the swamp.

Chief of Police, sworn, said he had seen prisoner loitering around Ellard & Co.'s store and acting in a manner to excite suspicion. He was walking up and down in front of the store looking intently at the goods at the door. A little later in the evening Officer Carty informed him that some goods had been stolen from Ellard & Co.'s store. Witness had at once instructed his men to arrest the man on sight. At this juncture Mr. Moresby asked that the information be amended to read that the prisoner had been found with stolen goods in his possession, knowing them to be such.

Officer Carty, sworn, deposed that Mr. Harvey had informed him some goods were missing from his store, supposedly stolen. Witness had noticed a stranger the same evening going up Carnarvon street carrying a heavy bundle under his arm. He arrested this stranger, the prisoner, at 1 a.m. on Friday on Columbia st.

C. Gordon, clerk in Ellard & Co.'s store said he had noticed three pieces of goods missing when taking in those at the door. He identified the piece produced in court as one of the missing pieces.

James Harvey, manager of Ellard & Co.'s, also identified the piece and said that the value of the goods stolen amounted to about $60.

Mary Ellen Monterey was sworn and her father, the celebrated and only Monterey, interpreted. She said the prisoner had come to her residence in the swamp and offered some dress goods for sale. He offered the lot for $15. Witness offered him a dollar for four yards which she agreed to take, but she "backed out," being suspicious that the goods were stolen property

Mary, another Indian woman, gave the same evidence.

The prisoner, who was very defiant throughout the hearing of the case and contemptuously declined Mr Moresby's offer to interpret for the Indian witnesses, asked if this wasn't a court for petty cases; his honor informed him that it was, but the present was by no means a petty case, and sent him up for trial. Prisoner said he didn't care whether he was tried by the speedy trials process or went up for trial at the assizes.

An amusing scene was witnessed when the three female Indian witnesses were brought forward to be bound over to appear at the trial when wanted. Mr. Monterey questioned Mr. Moresby as to giving the witnesses five days' warning. Mr. Moresby quickly enlightened his darkened intellect by saying, "Never mind about the warning; you just tell them what I say." The witnesses, although they didn't understand a word of the harangue, laughed more loudly than anybody in court, and Mr. Monterey looked abashed.

LATE CANADIAN NEWS.

The last batch of candidates who went up for the Ontario medical examination were "plucked" by wholesale, only forty per cent. having passed.

The Ontario booksellers convention at Toronto passed a resolution endorsing the Canadian copyright act and pledging themselves to use every effort to prevent it being shelved by the imperial government.

John L. Vaughan, alias Walter H. Melbourne, was arrested in Montreal yesterday on a charge of bigamy, at the instance of his second wife, Miss M. A. McDonnell, daughter of a wealthy resident of Alexandria.

Gillette, the Boston forger, was interviewed in the Manitoba penitentiary Thursday by Chicago attorneys. Gillette says Burke told him he committed the Cronin murder with three others and described the tragedy in detail.

The funeral of the late Hon. Alexander Morris at Toronto on Thursday afternoon was largely attended. Services were held in the old St. Andrew's Church, where addresses appropriate to to the occasion were delivered by Rev. G. M. Milligan, pastor, and Prof. Ross, of Queen's University.

The ceremony of the inauguration of Sir Donald Smith as chancellor of McGill University took place in Montreal Thursday evening, in the Wm. Molson Hall, in the presence of a brilliant audience. J. H. R. Molson, acting chancellor, presided. In his inaugural address, Sir Donald urged McGill to bestir herself.

A Canadian Pacific line of six steel freight and passenger steamers, the finest craft on the great lakes, will, it is said, be running between Chicago, Milwaukee, Gladstone and Owen Sound, before the season of 1890 is over. The idea is to force as low an export rate by way of Montreal as is now obtained by way of Baltimore, the rate by Baltimore being 17 cents and by Montreal 23 cents.

There will likely be a demand made upon the Dominion government, says a late Toronto dispatch, to alter the tariff so as to admit of establishing an iron shipbuilding industry in Canada. At present ships constructed in England or Scotland are admitted free while the materials for constructing such ships in Canada are subject to duties. It is said that the new shipyard of Palsons, on Owen Sound, and the proposed yard at Collingwood, would grow to great industries by the readjustment of the duties.

Daily British Columbian

Saturday Evening, Nov. 2, 1889.

DEATH has been holding high carnival in the land of late, and neither youth, beauty nor honors are spared. Westminster has been saddened by two recent deaths of former well known residents, and now her citizens are called upon, without a moment's warning, to mourn the sudden cutting off of one who has gone in and out amongst them for years—one of her oldest pioneers, who has oft sat in her councils and who has been intimately identified with all the earlier and later struggles of the city since the inception of its municipal existence. Mr. Dickinson's exit from this sublunary sphere last night was peculiarly sad, almost tragic, in its suddenness and the circumstances surrounding it. Certainly, no one of his fellow-citizens who was present at the meeting in the Oddfellows' Hall last night, over which Mr. Dickinson presided with his usual urbanity and cheerfulness, had the remotest premonition that the terrible Damocles' sword which may be said to overhang every human life was to fall so soon and so suddenly in Mr. Dickinson's case. The frail tenure that poor mortals have upon life is vividly illustrated by the sad occurrence. The deceased gentleman had numerous virtues of a public and private nature, and it is not strange that he should number among his friends nearly every citizen of his adopted city and many throughout the province as well. Mr. Dickinson's long and faithful services for this city cannot soon be forgotten, nor his amiability and kindness as a private citizen, and profound is the regret at his sudden and unexpected demise and all but universal the feeling of sympathy with the bereaved family and relatives.

WHO has not heard of Michael Davitt, and yet who really knows anything of him except the comparatively few people, outside his own countrymen, who have made Irish history a study? This best beloved champion of his race was born in the village of Staid County, Mayo, forty-three years ago, and when only four years of age was evicted from his home, and with his father and mother came to England, where the parents had to beg their bread in the streets. Eventually the poor Davitts settled at Hastingden, in Lancashire, and the mother, like many another of her ill-used race, never tired of telling her boy with simple eloquence the story of the cruel and memorable episodes of his early years. Those words burned into the Irish boy's heart, as anyone who has heard Davitt speak can testify. When still a child he was set to work at a mill, and it was whilst at this place he lost his right arm by an accident. This seeming calamity proved a blessing, for young Davitt had to leave the mill and work in a post office. The postmaster was also a stationer, and the Irish boy thus obtained a peep at books, which privilege he availed himself of. And so he grew to youth, mixing with young and fiery Irishmen. One night he heard a lecture delivered by an unusually eloquent tongue. The moment of decision had come, and Davitt was an ardent Nationalist from that hour. He soon became an active member of the Fenian organization and took part in the attempted seizure of Chester Castle. "Unable to carry a rifle with his single arm, he carried a small store of cartridges in a bag made from a pocket handkerchief." The attempt proved abortive, but Davitt's restless young blood would not allow him to keep quiet, and on May 14, 1870, he was arrested in London, and on the information of an informer named Conydon was sentenced to 15 years' penal servitude. Those who have read his book on what he suffered whilst in gaol find it difficult to realize that this man was undergoing punishment at the hands of a Christian government. Whatever Davitt's crime may have been, at least he is the soul of truth, and never has his own record of that time been refuted by his bitterest foes. After seven years and eight months he was released on ticket of leave, together with three others, and was received in Ireland with enthusiasm. Within 48 hours of that release Sergeat McCarthy, one of his fellow prisoners, died from the effects of his prison treatment. Mr. Davitt proceeded on a lecturing tour, first through the United Kingdom and then in the States. It is well to remember that in the early days of the revolutionary movement "a fundamental doctrine was that not only was constitutional agitation futile, but so prejudicial that all true Nationalist were bound to make war against it." Many of the leaders of the Irish people had already seen the folly of this course, and Davitt was of the number. Upon his return to Ireland he met with opposition from the extremists, who hated the constitutional methods of Mr. Parnell. Politics became his absorbing passion and he set himself to fight Irish landlordism with an eager, enthusiastic and vehement purpose. His childish recollections were of cruel and relentless evictions, and his hot youthful blood, cooled by his advancing years, yet flowed only in the hope of helping his countrymen. Thus it was that the name of Davitt became a word to charm with in the Emerald Isle, and when the Land League was formed he was the man who mainly contributed to its popularity. The new crusade against tyrany prospered, and the government cancelled Davitt's ticket of leave. Eventually, however, he was released and his name has never ceased to be identified with the Parnell movement. The enemies of Ireland, much as they hate and fear Davitt, have never dared impeach his personal honor. He is to-day the one man who carries with him, above all others in the cause of Ireland, as unyielding a spirit as in the days of the Fenian agitation. He has, however, learned wisdom, and is convinced that Ireland's cause can only be served by constitutional methods. Experience has taught him this, and to-day, as twenty years ago, it may be said of him, what Seneca said of old, that "a virtuous man struggling against misfortune is such a spectacle as gods might look upon with pleasure!"

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

A Vienna millionaire, who died a short time ago, had such an antipathy to darkness, that he provided by will for an electric light to be burning in the vault during an entire year, the interior of his coffin also to be electrically lighted.

It has often been reported that the British army is largely composed of undersized boys instead of stalwart men, but the returns do not bear out these statements. Of 202,761 only 11,596 are under 19 years of age, while 34 per cent. are over 5 feet 8 inches in height.

As evidence that it is becoming quite common for New York society girls to lay plans for capturing sprigs of English nobility, the booksellers of that city report Burke's "Peerage" as having the largest circulation of any expensive book on their shelves. Although it costs $15, nearly every fashionable family has a copy.

A young male giraffe was born in the Cincinnati zoological graden Oct. 20, which is the only one ever born in captivity except one in London in 1877. The youngster was nearly five and a half feet high and weigh-150 pounds. The mother was bewildered, did not know what to do with it, and consequently it had to to be fed from a bottle.

A new and apparently very effectual remedy for hydrophobia has been discovered in Spain. It is called "pita," and is the flower-stock of an aloe, very common in that country. Like many other remedies its discovery was accidental. The story goes that a man in a fit of hydrophobia fell upon an aloe plant and bit one of the flower-stocks, after which he rapidly recovered, since which it has been tried in many cases and has never failed to effect a cure. Simpler, if not better than Pasteur's system of inoculation.

The indications are that the time is not far distant when the Indian may become an important factor in American politics, says an American exchange. During the last decade, for the first time in the history of the country, the Indian population has increased. The latest official statistics fix their number at 262,620. The births have exceeded the deaths by a considerable percentage. Under the new policy recently adopted, all who give up tribal relations and accept land in severalty are made citizens and voters. It is estimated that those who fall within that category, and those who will be added within the next two years will add twenty thousand Indians to the voting population by the time of the next presidential election. If properly distributed, that number would settle the business in two or three pivotal states and decide the election.

Twenty years ago there roamed over the plains and mountains of the far West nearly 18,000,000 buffaloes. To-day there are less than 500 head of the animals in existence. There are but eighty-five herd of wild buffaloes, 304 alive in captivity, and about 200 under the protection of the government in Yellowstone Park. There is also said to be about 550 head in our North-west. Of the eighty-five herd of wild buffaloes which are known to exist, twenty-five are in Texas, twenty in Colroado, twenty-six in Wyoming, ten in Montana and four in Dakota. The statistics have been carefully gathered by the officials of the Smithsonian Institute and it is absolutely known that the number stated comprises all the wild buffaloes of the world. The skeletons of the numerous herds of a score of years ago are bleaching on the Western plains, a tribute to the prowess of the American Nimrod.

California Saw Works.

Mr. J. W. Speck, formerly representing the Spaulding Saw Co., is now in the city. Mr. Speck represents Messrs. Bird & Haughy, of the California Saw Works. He states that their new patent bits are now running in the Puget Sound mills with great success. Mr. Speck formerly introduced the Spaulding patent chisel bit on Puget Sound, and claims that his new tooth is a great improvement. He expects in the course of a few months to have a number of these saws in operation in some of our mills, when they can be inspected by any one interested.

OPIUM AND ANTIPYRIN.

Women Who Are Slaves to Habits Which Ruin Body and Mind.

"It is strange," said a popular pharmacist of Park row to a New York correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, "to see how many women are 'fiends.' Of course, when I say fiends, I do not mean any thing peculiarly demoniac or suggestive of that sulphurous realm of which so much is said. I am only using an old term in the pharmaceutical trade for people who get into the habit of using some pernicious drug.

"The commonest vice in this regard is the opium habit. The number of victims of this habit is far up in the thousands. Some buy the crude gum, and eat it as regularly as they take their daily meals. Others buy laudanum, and drink it in quarter ounce, half ounce and even ounce portions, according to the extent to which they are controlled by the narcotic. Some, who have keen palates and tender stomachs, can not take laudanum, and use instead paregoric. This ancient midwife's favorite is simply a sweet preparation of opium flavored chiefly with aniseseed and tastes somewhat like the anisette or kummel used in French and German restaurants. Still others of the same sort use the infant's soothing sirups, which quacks put upon the market for the apparent benefit but the eventual ruin of babies, and which are so heavily spiced and flavored as to suggest French mixed candies rather than any medicine. Outside of these are the people who use Dover's powders and morphine pills. Both of these, and especially the latter, act rapidly and are very popular with opium fiends who wake up in the early morning with large and painful heads. All of these opium fiends are objects of pity. The habit seems more a disease than a vice. As it progresses, their whole nature, physical, mental and moral, seems to undergo a complete revolution. At the first they slowly lose their appetites, and then the eyes become preternaturally bright. Soon the flesh begins to fall away, and the space around the eyes becomes dark from being surcharged with blood. Next the skin loses its normal color and changes to a sodden gray, a blotched brown or an unhealthy yellow. After this come the strangest symptoms imaginable. In the coldest day the victim perspires copiously and shivers at the same time. On the other hand he complains of being frozen in mid August, when the thermometer is in the nineties. Without the slightest cause he suddenly weeps and betrays all the emotions of intense distress. When this stage is reached he or she is a 'fiend.'

"Another habit," continued Dr. Perry, "which comes under the druggist's eyes is the 'bromide habit,' which includes the excessive use of bromide of potassium, bromide of ammonium and bromide of lithium.

"The bromide fiend gradually develops an abnormal condition of the nerves, under which sleep, or even comfort, is impossible without a constant use of the anodyne salts. Muscular and intellectual exertion grow more and more difficult, until the habitue gets into a semi-sleepy state, in which she simply moves and vegetates rather than lives.

"The new coal-tar product, antipyrin, has already started a vice of its own. This single coal-tar compound was discovered by a German chemist, and on account of its remarkable qualities, is now used the world over. It has the power of reducing the temperature of the body by several degrees, and so is of vast utility it treating fevers and feverish stages of many diseases. It does its work by depressing the action of the heart, and generally when employed by physicians it is accompanied with digitalis to neutralize its influence in the latter regard. Women use it partly because it is a sedative and partly because it makes the complexion beautifully clear and pale by keeping the blood away from the surface of the body. The habit, like all others, grows upon the person who practices it. It does harm, however, from the first. With women who are weak, it increases their weakness; with those having a predisposition toward heart disease of any sort, it increases the tendency to a terrible extent. Besides these results, antipyrin exerts a peculiar influence upon the blood, which is not thoroughly understood by the faculty. It seems to undergo some decomposition or breaking down when absorbed by the system, developing unknown compounds which either attack the blood itself or else powerfully influence the nerves and ganglia which control the vital functions

"Two other habits," said Dr. Perry, "are much more common than is generally believed, the use of chloral and of cocaine preparations. Both are terrific vices, while the latter means physical and mental ruin. Chloral acts in a peculiar way. It decomposes in the blood and changes to chloroform, which in turn acts as an esthetic within the body just the same as when inhaled. The 'chloral fiend' can be detected at a glance. Her face assumes a yellowish or greenish hue that is unmistakable; the eyes become saffire or blood shot; the orbits grow discolored; the breath assumes a horrible flavor; the appetite vanishes and the nerves become disordered to the worst degree. The cocaine fiend is beyond redemption. She lives in a world of dreams that are shattered only when health departs and reason vanishes. She is irresponsible and deaf and blind to conscience and even decency.

"There is one thing more which ought to be said, and that is a protest against the senseless outcry of how physicians start these habits by careless prescriptions. Out of one hundred alleged cases which I have examined every one arose from the curiosity, folly or intrinsic viciousness of the victim, and not one from a habit contracted while under medical treatment. The outcry probably results from the fact that the fiends obtain supplies of their favorite drugs upon physicians' orders. To get these recipes they adopt every expediency. They pretend to have neuralgia or insomnia and deceive the ablest doctors; they borrow prescriptions which contain their particular poison and make dozens of copies; they consult chemists and obtain orders upon wholesale druggists. In fact, they exhaust human ingenuity in pandering to their depravity."

SOME QUEER WILLS.

Extraordinary Documents Copied from South Carolina Court Records.

In overhauling some of the old books in the records of the probate court, Judge Gleason has, according to the Charleston News and Courier, come across some queer documents. Here are some of them:

A man, who has been dead so long that he shall be nameless, was hanged in Charleston for murder. He protested his innocence to the last, and the day before his execution made a will leaving his personal property, valued at $480 in money, and a silver watch and chain to his relative. The last clause of the will is as follows:

"As I am to be hung to-morrow for the murder of ——, of which crime I am innocent, and firmly believing that I was found guilty by a packed jury, I bequeath to this jury eternal damnation, and in order that their names may be known to posterity I herein insert their names, ——, foreman, and eleven others. I order and direct that my executor hereinafter named shall deliver my body to the medical students of Charleston, S. C., and they are requested to have my bones properly cleaned, my skeleton properly mounted, so that it will pass down as a proof of the bribery and corruption used in the conviction of an innocent man."

Another man, long since deceased, and who was evidently a wealthy Frenchman, after disposing of his estate, provides for an erring daughter as follows:

"It is to me a great cause of mortification and regret to mention the name of Clotilde, my daughter, now twenty-three years old. To protect this instrument I bequeath to her one barleycorn. I pray she will repent and prepare for the Lord's forgiveness."

Another man, who was a widower, and had an only daughter who seems to have been the cause of much trouble to her father, disposes of his estate and gives to his daughter "My blood horse, Jim, feeling satisfied that if she will either ride or drive him it is likely she will be brought home a corpse, in which satisfactory event then let the horse be sold and the proceeds given to the poor."

BYRON AT VENICE.

Interesting Reminiscences of the Author of Don Juan and Tom Moore.

The scene is Venice, the time the forenoon of an early autumn day in 1817, and the light sea-fog which has drifted in from the lagoons lies gently on the oily swirls of the canals, and throws a golden veil over the carven fronts of the marble palaces, which line the sides of the Grand canal. Under the influence of the mist, permeated by the rays of the morning sun, which had risen in a cloudless sky, Venice seemed like to that fabled golden city of the Incas, the lode star which drew many a brave gentleman to ultimate death and destruction. Carelessly reclining on a pile of cushions in a large, well-appointed gondola, which was gliding quickly down the Grand canal, was a young man of singular appearance.

Sitting opposite to him, writes Horace Townsend in Once a Week, was a plump, dapper little man, commonplace in feature, but dressed in the height of the prevalent fashion. He sat stiffly in his seat, occasionally glancing at his companion as though longing for him to speak, and yet not daring himself to begin the conversation.

At length, when the gondola had left the canal, and was cleaving the blue waters of the lagoon in its path toward the Lido, a low, long island which, the sun having by this time dispersed the morning mist, was visible at no great distance.

Mr. Moore, for this was his name, could not longer restrain himself and burst into a rhapsody over the beauty of the scene. His efforts to arouse his companion were not wildly successful, Lord Byron—for he it was whom the minor poet addressed—merely turning over with an ungracious movement and snarling out: "Don't be a fool, Tommy. Keep your poetry for women's albums, and talk common sense, if you can."

So far from offending the little man, this snub had the effect Lord Byron desired, and during the remainder of the voyage across the lagoon Mr. Moore chatted away to his noble companion, displaying not a little shrewdness and wit in his chatter, which dealt principally with the current London scandals of the day.

When the Lido was reached and the two men had landed they found awaiting them on the strip of sandy beach a couple of thoroughbred Arabian horses, in charge of an Italian groom.

It was in fact for his daily ride that Byron visited this spot, for here he kept his small but well-selected stable of saddle-horses.

For the first time that day, when he caught sight of the beautiful animals snuffing in the sea-breezes through their delicate nostrils, his face softened, and he caressed their velvety muzzles with all the tenderness of a lover smoothing his mistress' hair.

"Aren't they beauties, Tommy!" he said. "They have the endurance of steel, and the speed of thought in their limbs. Which, by the way," he added, laughing, "would make a good line in a poem, would it not?"

Soon the two friends were mounted and galloping along the hard sands, Byron a trifle ahead of Moore, who seemed to have not a little difficulty in the management of his steed. Suddenly Byron heard a cry of alarm, and the next instant the little Irishman's horse shot past, with the rider clinging for dear life to his neck. The horse had taken the bit in his teeth and had fairly run away. The sight seemed to tickle Byron immensely, and he fell into a fit of laughter so immoderate that he with difficulty kept control of his own steed. Finally he gave chase to his friend, who was now a mere speck in the distance, and in the course of twenty minutes' hard ride had come abreast of him. The runaway was soon secured, for he recognized his master's voice, but poor little Moore was almost dead from fright and the violent shaking he had undergone

* * * * * * *

Some hours later Byron and Moore were sitting in a large room in the Palazzo Mocenigo, while on the table before them lay the remains of a frugal meal.

"A few grapes and a little claret and water are all I care for," Byron had said, when they returned from their trip to the Lido, somewhat to the disgust of Moore, who, still sore from his jolting, was yet not a little hungry, and who would have preferred something more substantial.

"Now, Tom," said Byron, when the Barmecide feast was over, "I am going to leave you to your own devices. I have an idea and can not rest until I have it on paper," and he left the room.

It was midnight, and in an upper room of the Palazzo Byron sat before a table almost covered with sheets of paper, scrawled over in a hand which it would have puzzled an Egyptian hieroglyphist to decipher. By his side was a tall Venetian glass half filled with a drink which a plebeian nostril would have diagnosed as humble gin-and-water, and as he rapidly wrote the poet solaced himself with sips of this beverage. At length the task was completed, the scratching sound of the pen ceased, the scattered sheets were hastily shuffled together, and holding them in his hand, Lord Byron hastened with a scarcely perceptible limp out of the room and down the broad marble staircase to the room in which he left his little friend. He found Moore sitting before a desk, an open book, evidently a diary, into which he had been transcribing the notes of the day, before him, and he himself fast asleep.

"Wake up, Tommy," cried Byron, in an excited manner. "Wake up. I want to read something to you," and as the little man yawned and rubbed his eyelids sleepily the poet continued: "Your mishap this morning suggested a subject to me and here it is," and began to read from the manuscript, which was headed "Mazeppa," but before he had finished a strange sound caused him to look up. Mr. Moore was fast asleep again, and with a peevish curse Byron left him there and made his way to his own room, there to lie awake till morning.

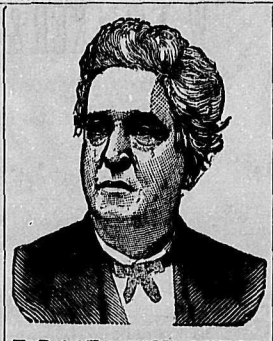
FEMALE SNUFF-DIPPERS.

Southern Women Who Use Tobacco in a Peculiar Manner.

A popular vice among the ladies of this part of the State is the use of tobacco, writes an Ozark (Ark.) correspondent of the Omaha Bee. Some will chew it like veterans, while others are content to smoke. But by far the most common way of deriving enjoyment from its use is to take it in the form of snuff. When a number of women get together the snuff-box is nearly always produced, with the instruction to "take a dip" as it goes around the circle. Then they will sit and gossip, interrupting the flow of conversation with frequent expectorations into a big spittoon or the fireplace. A snuff-dipper's outfit consists of a small tin canister, about an inch thick by two inches long, and a wooden brush. The latter is about three inches in length, and in size resembles a slate pencil. It is usually cut from black gum or some other tough wood. One end is chewed and splintered by the teeth, till it looks like a small paint-brush. The splintered end is dipped into the snuff and worked around till a little ball has been collected. The snuff thus secured is rubbed over the teeth and gums. Usually the stick is held between the teeth till the snuff has all been absorbed, when another dip is taken. For ladies who object to using a canister and brush a small snuff-wafer has been invented which can be concealed between the lips and teeth. A grocer's clerk asserted emphatically that fully ninety per cent. of the women used either tobacco or snuff, or both. By thinking men the tobacco habit among women is considered one of the worst evils with which Arkansas is obliged to contend.

A Unique Recommendation.

The famous Lord Elden had occasion to discharge a coachman whom he suspected of purloining his corn. In a few days after he received a letter from a merchant inquiring into the man's character, and his Lordship replied that he was sober and a good coachman, but he entertained suspicions that he had cheated him. The man came next morning to return thanks to his Lordship for procuring him so excellent a place. "My master," said he, "was contented to find I was sober and a good coachman, but as to cheating your Lordship, he thought the devil himself could not



THE LATE PROF. PHELPS.

The above is a portrait of the late Prof. Edward E. Phelps, M. D., L. L. D., of Dartmouth college. He was a strong, able man, who stood high in the literary and scientific worlds. It is not generally known, but it is, nevertheless, the truth, that Prof. Phelps was the discoverer of what is known to the medical profession and chemists universally as Paine's Celery Compound, unquestionably one of the most valuable discoveries of this century. This remarkable compound is not a nervine, an essence, a sarsaparilla or any devised article, but a discovery, and it marks a distinct step in medical practice and the treatment of nervous complications. It has been freely admitted by the best medical talent in the land, and also by the leading chemists and scientists, that for nerve troubles, nervous exhaustion, insomnia, debility, senility and even the dreaded and terrible Paresis, nothing has ever been discovered which reaches the disorder and restores health equal to this discovery of Prof. Phelps.

Paine's Celery Compound is now being prepared in quantities, and can be procured at any reputable druggist. An attractive bunch of celery is to be found on every wrapper. It has become specially popular among professional men, mind workers, ladies burdened with exciting social duties and frequenters of the leading clubs.

Flags were flying at half mast all over the city to day as a mark of respect to the memory of the late ex-Mayor Dickinson.

The mayor requests that all places of business be closed on Monday afternoon out of respect to the late Ex-Mayor Dickinson.

Yesterday was the tenth anniversary of the consecration of Bishop Sillitoe, and of the foundation of the diocese of New Westminster.

W. H. Vianen will ship 100 barrels of salt salmon to Hunt, Barnes & Co., Montreal, next week. This will be his last large shipment for the season.

The members of Hyack Company No. 1 are asked to meet at their hall at 1 p. m. on Monday, in uniform, to attend Ex-Mayor Dickinson's funeral.

The funerals conducted by Bishop Sillitoe and Rev. H. Irwin this week took place to the church of England cemetery, not the Masonic cemetery, as announced.

During the month of October 37 coal-laden vessels cleared from Nanaimo, carrying 39,537 tons of coal, the shipments from the different collieries being: Vancouver Coal Co., 12,702 tons; Wellington Colliery, 17,933; East Wellington, 1,858; Union Colliery, Comox, 7,044.

It is understood that the case of the Chinaman charged with attempted murder at Ladner's Landing, and the case of Ah Foo, for many years interpreter at the assizes and other courts, charged with wilful perjury, will be tried before his honor Judge Bole at an early date. Mr. McColl will defend both prisoners.

Lots 4 and 29, block 7 (Clarkson property), Montreal, Melbourne, Clement and St. Patrick streets, subdivided into 33 lots, are now on the market at prices within the reach of all. Parties desiring fine residence lots will do well to call at once, before the choice ones are sold. The lots are mostly cleared. For sale by MAJOR & PEARSON. *tc

A joint meeting of the supporters of Mr. Corbould and Mr. Jenns was held at the Oddfellows Hall last night. About 35 voters were present. After a short discussion Mr. Jenns announced that he would retire from the field in favor of Mr. Corbould, and backed this up by signing the latter's requisition. He then asked his supporters to transfer their influence and votes to Mr. Corbould, and the meeting adjourned.

Exchange of Pulpits.

On Sunday morning, November 3, the following exchange of pulpits will take place in this city: Rev. T. Scouler, Baptist church in the morning, St. Andrew's Presbyterian church in the evening; Rev. J. H. White, Presbyterian church in the morning; Rev. R. Jamieson, Reformed Episcopal church in the morning; Rev. T. Haddon, Methodist church in the morning.

Ripe Raspberries.

Mr. W. Howay brought to this office to day eight branches of raspberry bushes gathered in his garden on Fortescue street, literally loaded with beautiful ripe fruit. As many as twenty-five berries were counted on one small branch picked up at random from the heap. Ripe raspberries in November may sound paradoxical, but, considering the June weather which we are at present experiencing, it is not so wonderful after all. The branches with the fruit are at this office and may be seen by anyone interested in the productions of the country.

The Naval Ball.

The naval ball, in honor of Lord Stanley, at Esquimalt last night, was a brilliant affair and the most successful social event of the season. The decorations were upon a scale of magnificence never before attempted in the province, and reflected the highest credit on the ingenuity of the decorators whose skill and taste converted the once barren sail loft into a veritable palace of light and beauty. Over 300 invitations were issued and about 150 couples were present. Dancing commenced at 9 o'clock and was maintained, with an intermission for supper, till 4 o'clock this morning.

Y. M. C. A. Classes.

Dr. A. J. Holmes conducted the class in arithmetic last night at the Y. M. C. A., and had eleven attentive pupils to listen to the opening lecture. Dr. Holmes is acting as teacher until the return of Dr. C. E. C. Brown. Mr. A. W. King had twelve pupils in the drawing class and a satisfactory start was made. This class it is said will be a very drawing card with the Y. M. C. A. this winter, and last night's attendance warranted the assertion. Mr. Duncan begins business with the phonography class this evening, when a good number are expected to enter their names. Another addition has been made to the Y. M. C. A. string band in the shape of a clarionet. The band meets for practice on Tuesday evenings, under the able leadership of Mr. Yeomans.

Music, Art and the Drama.

The city is being profusely "billed" for three sterling entertainments. Music, the drama, art and literature are represented by three masters in those departments. Liberati, New York's famous Italian orchestra conductor; McKee-Rankin, whose name is a household word in the States, and Frederick Villiers, who is known throughout the civilized world in his own peculiar line. So, Westminsterites are going to have their pick of choice game, and the winter season never opened under such auspicious circumstances as the present does. The enterprise of some private citizens has induced the appearance of one of those artists, and they are to be commended for catering with such good taste for the people's amusement, and deserve to succeed in their venture.

Skeena River Fishery Regulations.

Mr. Thos. Mowat, inspector of fisheries, informs us that the following regulations have just been forwarded to his office by the minister of fisheries, Ottawa, affecting the Skeena River fisheries: Next year the fishing season will open on June 15th, and close on the 30th October, and during the close season fishing for local consumption only will be allowed. These regulations will be embodied in the licenses to be granted next year. The number of licenses allowed for the Skeena has been limited to 300, which will be divided among the packing establishments and the independent fishermen. The Indians are not to be exempted from paying license fees, for which exemption they petitioned. They are given the privilege, however, of catching all the fish they require for their own consumption all the year round, with drift nets, which is a concession from previous regulations, limiting them to aboriginal appliances in catching fish during the close season. The new regulations go into force on the 1st of January.

Fraser Salmon in New York.

E. H. Gammans, commission merchant, Fulton Market, New York, has ordered a quantity of fresh salmon from Mr. W. H. Vianen, as a sample order, and if it gives satisfaction and the rates are not too high he promises to buy steadily throughout the winter. Mr. Gammans also offers to take 100 dozen ducks, geese and grouse daily from Mr. Vianen, providing the prices are not exorbitant, and for which he will pay cash. This will give an idea of the immense business that may be done in British Columbia fish and game with far away New York. Twelve hundred birds daily is a large order, and would be difficult to supply at present, but with game so very plentiful there is no reason why these shipments cannot be secured. The small local demand has kept down prices, and consequently there has been no object to hunters to kill a large number of game, but with a large foreign demand the case will be different, and it is probable there will be no trouble in securing the desired quantity should the contract be closed.

The last issue of the Dominion Illustrated contains a fine engraving of the grand new building of the New York Life Insurance Company, one of the finest structures of its kind in Canada, if not on the continent. In portraits the number is rich—those of Governor Bulkeley and Col. Cone being memorials of the late visit to Montreal of the Connecticut regiment; those of the late Hon. Sir Sydney Smith, Father Tabaret and Judge Olivier being associated with our political, educational and judicial systems. The lovely scenery of Lake Memphremagog is well illustrated and graphically described by Mrs. Clarke Murray. The Dominion Illustrated is published by the Dominion Illustrated Publishing Company, Mr. G. E. Desbarats, managing director. Subscription, $4. Address: 73 St. James street, Montreal.

ROBERT DICKINSON DEAD.

Our Worthy Ex-Mayor Dies Suddenly at His Residence of Heart Disease.

The whole city was startled last night about 9:30 o'clock by the news that ex-mayor Dickinson had died suddenly at his residence on Armstrong street. So sudden and unexpected was the sad event that people could not realize the truth of the report, and very many left their homes and called at the afflicted house to verify for themselves the sorrowful tidings. Although the hour was late, the news spread from one end of the city to the other in an incredibly short space of time, and by midnight few people were unaware of the sad event. Particularly to those who attended the political meeting last night at the Oddfellows' Hall did the news come like a thunderclap. Mr. Dickinson presided at the meeting and spoke with his old-time vigor, and seemed in the very best of spirits. Together with Mr. T. J. Trapp he walked up Columbia street and when they parted at the corner of Clement street he spoke as cheerfully as usual, bidding his companion a hearty "good night." Mr. Trapp noticed, however, that Mr. Dickinson appeared to gasp for breath now and again, which he wondered at as they walked very slowly, but the deceased did not complain of any pain or illness. When he reached home and entered the house he threw off his coat, complained of shortness of breath and asked that the windows be opened, which was done. He then walked about the room in an uneasy manner, gasping for breath at intervals and a few moments later he asked Miss Dickinson for a drink of water, and told her to run up stairs and get a lozenge. In the meantime Melvin Dickinson had been dispatched for Dr. De Wolf Smith. On Miss Dickinson's return to the room Mr. Dickinson was in his accustomed arm chair, and as she approached he said: "I am dying," and fell back. These were the last words he said. Thoroughly alarmed the young lady rushed from the house and called for help. Mr. George Warwick, who happened to be on his way home, heard the cries and ran to the house, where he found the deceased lying in the chair, gasping slightly and his beard flecked with foam. Hastily wiping the flecks from the dying man's beard, Mr. Warwick supported him in his arms. Twice Mr. Dickinson moved his lips as if attempting to speak, and a few moments later passed peacefully away, apparently dying a painless death. All this took place within eight minutes of the time the deceased reached home. Dr. DeWolf Smith arrived a few minutes later and after an examination announced that death had been caused by heart failure. Dr. Fagan, who reached the house a few minutes afterwards, concurred in Dr. Smith's opinion.

The members of the deceased's family, and relatives, were hastily made aware of the terrible event, and in a few minutes the house that an hour before had been full of happiness and peace was now grief stricken beyond description. Mr. C. E. Woods left for Vancouver at 11:30 to break the sorrowful news to Mrs. Dickinson and Miss Flossie, who were visiting there. The shock was a terrible one to both, and almost too great to bear. Mrs. and Miss Dickinson accompanied Mr. Woods back to Westminster, arriving home at 4 a. m.

The deceased gentleman leaves a wife and seven children to mourn his loss, and who have the heartfelt sympathy of the whole community in their great sorrow. He was a loving and indulgent husband and father, and was simply adored by his family. As a citizen he was respected and beloved by every person in the community, and his death at the early age of 53 is a blow that the city will long regret.

Mr. Dickinson was one of our earliest pioneers, and his biography is closely identified with the municipal history of the royal city. A native of Liverpool, England, Mr. Dickinson arrived at the then just budding city of New Westminster in 1859. His marriage to Miss Harris occurred shortly afterwards. Mr. Dickinson has been a citizen of this city without intermission for the last thirty years, and for most of that period has been engaged successfully in the butchering business. The first municipal council met in 1860, and in 1861 Mr. Dickinson was elected a councillor and again in 1862. In 1863 he was again elected councillor and chosen as president of the council, which office he filled for that year. He was elected and served as a member of the council thereafter for the years 1864, 1867, 1869, 1872 and 1873. In January of 1874 Mr. Dickinson was elected mayor of Westminster, being the second mayor of the city. In December of 1874 he was elected to represent the city in the legislative assembly of the province, and served for one term. Subsequently Mr. Dickinson was honored with the mayoralty of the city and filled that office acceptably for the years 1874, 1880, 1881, 1883, and for the five following years consecutively, until the election last January of Mr. John Hendry as mayor. For over a quarter of a century Mr. Dickinson has been a justice of the peace for this city. He was also connected with the New Westminster Rifles from 1865 to 1869, in the capacity of ensign, retiring retaining rank. In addition to his arduous services in connection with the city council, Mr. Dickinson has been a member of the board of trade since its organization, and a member of the council of that board for some time. The deceased has been for many years a member of Holy Trinity church in this city and has taken an active interest in its work. He was also a member at the time of his death of the Ancient Order of United Workmen, which association will probably be represented at the funeral.

The funeral will take place on Monday, Nov. 4th, leaving the family residence at 2 p. m., thence to Holy Trinity church, and from there to the Anglican burying ground at Sapperton. The city council, we have authority for stating, will attend the funeral in a body, which is an eminently fitting token of respect to the memory of the late Robert Dickinson.

Military Band Concerts.

The first of a proposed series of four concerts by Signor Liberati and his military band and vocal chorus, was given at the Star Theatre last evening. The introduction of several vocal features adds greatly to the pleasure of the entertainments, while the superb playing of the cornet soloists could not be excelled. Signor Liberati's band deservedly enjoys the reputation of being one of the finest aggregations of musical talent in the country, and the enthusiastic manner in which the Star audience received the members on last night's programme, proves that Buffalo thoroughly understands and appreciates the organization. Those who enjoy a rare musical treat should not miss these concerts.—Times Republic (Buffalo).

The Graphic Lecturer.

Last night Mr. Frederic Villiers, the artist of the London Graphic, who followed, or rather accompanied, the armies of Russia and Britain in some of the most exciting of recent campaigns, lectured in the Pavilion to a large audience, which caught the inspiration of his thrilling experiences. * * * "War on a White Sheet" is a lecture unique and altogether pleasing. The sang froid shown by the artist, the cool, unimpassioned manner with which he recounted hair-breadth escapes and stirring episodes, made all the more impression on his hearers. His pen pictures were strong and instinct with the atmosphere of the tented field or battle's crash, and his word paintings, depicting the trials and triumphs, sorrows and brightness of the soldier's life, were scarcely less vivid.—Toronto Globe.

Holds the City Responsible.

It does not need very much examination of the premises to find out that the proprietor of the Caledonia hotel, corner of Front street and Lytton square, has excellent grounds for complaint against the city, for the manner in which he has been treated by the board of works. The rubbish thrown aside when that famous up-hill flume was contructed was scattered with beautiful promiscuousness all over that part of the square, and the Caledonia hotel came in for a liberal supply of the debris. When the work was completed—that is, what the managers of the work called completed—the place was left in a most disgraceful mess. There was a natural channel hollowed by the passage of surface water from Columbia street and formerly this water used to flow past the hotel in its own channel, but since the manufacture of that monumental piece of flumery, it now gracefully meanders under the doors of the hotel and floods the premises. The rivulet is very much diverted, but the inhabitants of the hotel are by no means so. Mr. McIntosh, the proprietor, will notify the council that he holds the city responsible for the damage done to the Caledonia hotel through this means. The council was notified of the nuisance some time ago, but no action was taken.

Manager Shaughnessy, of the Canadian Pacific Railway, in speaking, at Montreal, of the reported withdrawal of the China and Japan steamers, said the Canadian Pacific Railway had received no such notification as alleged. It was probable there would be a change in the way in which the steamers were run. Heretofore they had been run by outside parties, the earnings being divided between the owners of the vessels and the railway company. He could not say, however, what the new arrangements were and when they would come into force. While in England he contracted for three steamers, intended to outsail anything on the Pacific ocean. The first one will be ready about December 15th, 1890. The three are to be loaded in England and proceed to Yokohama and Hong Kong direct via the Suez canal. The cost of the three boats will reach $3,000,000.

General Superintendent Whyte left Winnipeg Thursday for St. Paul to consult with the officials of the St. P., M. & M. in reference to the proposed change of time in through trains to and from the Pacific coast. The running time between Montreal and Vancouver is to be considerably lessened.
