ALMOST UNANIMOUS FOR GOVERNMENT

Only One Liberal Elected in the Province, and that in Alberni District---Four Socialists Will Form the Opposition, While Mr. Brewster Will Be a Third Party.

Fighting, shorthanded, the strongest forces that were ever arrayed against his administration Hon. Richard McBride made almost a clean sweep of the province at the polls on Thursday of this week.

Of the 42 seats in the house he and his staunch followers will occupy 38. The Socialists will probably occupy four, and the Liberals one.

Hawthornthwaite, Nanaimo; Williams, Newcastle, and Cartwright, Comox, are straight Socialists elected, while Jardine, Esquimalt, who was supported by the Liberals, is also a Socialist, and will likely take his seat in the Hawthornthwaite bunch.

H. C. Brewster, whose election for Alberni district is practically assured, is the only straight party Liberal to be returned.

The forthcoming parliament of British Columbia will be unique among the provinces of the Dominion. It will be composed of a Conservative government and a Socialist opposition, the Liberals, by virtue of their numbers, being reduced to the standing of third party.

While it is practically conceded that H. C. Brewster, the Liberal candidate, has won out in the Alberni electoral district there are still three polling subdivisions to be heard from. These are Van Anda, Quatsino and Holberg. The former, it is expected, will break about even, while the two latter are expected to reduce Mr. Brewster's majority a trifle. The results in the sub-divisions heard from up to the hour of going to press were as follows:

Alberni—Brewster, 84; Morgan, 67.
New Alberni—Brewster, 20; Morgan, 33.
Clayoquot—Brewster, 40; Morgan, 14.
Bamfield—Brewster, 14; Morgan, 2.
Ucluelet—Brewster, 10; Morgan, 4.
Kyuquot—Brewster, 2; Morgan, 2.
Parksville—Brewster, 24; Morgan, 30.
Nanoose—Brewster, 7; Morgan, 11.
Wellington—Brewster, 36; Morgan, 35.

From the above it will be seen that Mr. Brewster's main strength was on the West Coast. From New Alberni to Wellington, which may be classed as the inland portion of the constituency, Morgan had a majority of five votes. Brewster's majority, up to date, is 39.

The Pioneer News received, this morning, the following telegram from Premier McBride:

"I am deeply, very deeply, grateful to the people of British Columbia for the recognition which the government and my policy have received at the polls.

"The result did not come wholly as a surprise, for I was convinced from the indications that the attorney-general and myself met with all over the province during our tour, that it would be virtually a clean sweep for the Conservative policy in British Columbia.

"The people of the province have shown, unreservedly, their confidence in the proposal to bring the Canadian Northern railway line and to extend the Kettle River Valley railway.

"Between now and the session of the legislature, which it is expected will open on the 20th of January, no time will be lost in concluding the final agreement to be submitted to parliament, containing specially all of the tolls I have promised to the people. The railway legislation will have first place in the sessional programme, and will be passed as expeditiously as possible. This may be taken as the commencement by my government of a very substantial and progressive policy of development by railway building.

"I want specially to thank the Conservative press throughout the province, all the speakers who have assisted upon the platform, and the workers whose unremittent energy has so largely contributed to our success.

"Lastly I want to acknowledge to the country the efficient and invaluable services rendered me by my colleague, the Hon. W. J. Bowser. No leader could have a more faithful lieutenant than I possess in the attorney-general.

"Encouraged and supported by the strongly expressed confidence of the people, I hope to so carry on the affairs of British Columbia as to secure for the province the fullest and largest measure of substantial progress and prosperity."

Dr. A. D. Morgan is in receipt of a telegram from Premier McBride congratulating him upon the fight he made in the chief Liberal stronghold of the province.

Later News.

Returns received this afternoon from Van Anda give Dr. Morgan a majority of seven in that sub-division reducing Mr. Brewster's majority to 32.

Dr. Kerr, dentist will be in Alberni on and after December 2. Appointments may be made with C. M. Pineo at the drug store.

NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that all persons having accounts or claims against the government of British Columbia in connection with the Electoral District of Alberni, in regard to the Provincial elections held on Thursday, November 25, 1909, are required to forward the same to me in writing, on or before Friday, the 10th day of December, 1909, after which date no claims will be recognized by me.

Charles A. Moorhead,

Long Beach --- Vancouver Island

By Ernest McGaffey.

Where the surge of the rolling Pacific uprears and advances
And levels its Watery shafts at the shimmering beach;
Where the crests of the billows flash past like a shaking of lances
Borne high by the gathering squadrons that follow, and each after each;
In the grey of the dawn, with the morning unfolding the faster
Where deep major-chords sound below through the roar of the tides,
As a thunder-harp echoes when struck by the hands of The Master.
Here, carved like a cameo; lone in the wilderness; steadfast abides;

Long Beach; where the grass by the shingle grows hardy and wiry,
And the crescented sand at the edge weaves its net-work of lines;
And aloft in the pine-top the eagle has builded his eyrie
And over the eagle the sun like a diamond shines,
While a myriad gulls in the sallowy distance are flying
With the sail of an out-going vessel seen faintly to lee,
And over the shadowy crags on the coast-line are crying
The storm-birds, black heralds of death and disaster at sea.

Where the ebb of the drowsy Pacific slips out and to seaward
As a child that has fallen asleep shall unloosen her hands;
When the wings of the noon-day have widened and shifted to leeward,
And a dazzle of jewels gleams bright on the glittering sands;
There, stretching to northward and southward in tawny seclusion
The shaggy-maned forest beyond her, the tide at her gates,
Remote as the desert; unconquered; and free of intrusion
Save only by foot of the wandering Indian waits, waits:

Long Beach; with her diadem radient onyx and jasper;
Where the shells at her feet like a garment of lace-work are spun.
So she stands in her splendor, and bending to kiss her and clasp her
Comes close like a courtier and lover the cavalier sun;
And a breeze from the heart of the wood-land creeps out and goes sandward.
Down flung from the heights of an ancient and whispering tree,
While the mists from the islands far distant steal beach-ward and land-ward
And the pulse of the mid-day beats faint in the veins of the sea.

Where the murmering voices of twilight re-echo and mingle
And the howl of a wolf breaks the infinite calm of the shore;
When darknes, black-hooded, broods low on the slippery shingle
And a star of the south shows its gleam like a light at a door;
Then hard by the temple of night and by shadows surrounded
With a finger of silence held close at the lips of her streams,
In the heart of a solitude locked and unsolved; and unsounded,
Sphinx-like in her marvel and mystery crouches and dreams:

Long Beach; where the hand of no man has left tracing or token;
Where the waters hiss sharp at her turreted bulwarks of stone.
Unchanged by the march of the seasons, eternal, unbroken,
In strength as the strength of a Titan, in grandeur alone.
For the Nations have passed, and still pass, to oblivion faring,
While she in her beauty immortal has been and will be,
As a picture that flashes and rises and fades, ever-sharing
The glamor and wonder and miracle-charm of the sea.

Just Quit Grumblin'.

Well, what if it is rainin'?
Don't you think the sun sometimes
Is glad to be a restin'
An' a-savin' of his shines?

An' don't you ever surmise
That the earth is just like you,
With the same old 'nicious habit
Of gettin' thirsty, too?

So, just quit awhile your grumblin',
Or seek some other clime,
Where there's nothin' got a thirst on
An' the sun he never shine.
—Margaret Erskin, in the Pall Mall Magazine.

Fred Wade, K. C., of Vancouver, is now relieved of any political engagements that would stand in the way of his accepting the lieutenant-govenorship of British Columbia.

John Oliver will, no doubt, be consoled by the information that the people of the Alberni electoral district decided to allow Dr. Morgan all of his time to attend to the practice of his profession.

Let us now hope that the people of the Dominion as a whole will not be too hasty in forcing Hon. Richard McBride to assume the leadership of the Conservative party in the federal parliament.

Now that the election campaign is over, and political orators have decided to rest their lungs for a time, we will have a better chance to hear the sounds of rock blasting on the Alberni extension of the E. and N. railway.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's "old friend and colleague Bill Templeman" should now arrange for a redistribution of the solid forces. He has really more than he needs on the West Coast, while there are other parts of the province where Liberals of unalterable minds are not so many.

That Mr. Brewster may resign his seat in Alberni in order to give John Oliver a chance to continue an active leadership of the Liberal party in the Provincial House is not outside the range of political possibilities, and we venture the opinion that even John Oliver could be elected in this Liberal stronghold.

Mr. Brewster is to be congratulated on having attained a position that many an aspiring politician will envy. He has a unique opportunity to demonstrate his ability as a party leader. When he presides in party caucus he should be able to hold undisputed sway, while during legislative sittings he should be able to control the party vote without the assistance of a whip.

Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper, of Vancouver, who joined the Liberal forces, and started out to destroy the political power of Premier McBride, must have convinced himself that the temper of the people has changed since the days when he was the budding son of an illustrious father. The people are also entitled to their own opinion as to the ascendancy of Tupperism.

SERMONS BOILED DOWN.

No one dies of spiritual indigestion from swallowing his spite.

The larger the heart, the more it feels the power of little hands.

The surest way to an empty heart is to nurse an envious mind.

Flattery is simply a way of boasting of our power to fool others.

The more a man knows the less he is ashamed of his ignorance.

The religious life is the only way into the knowledge of religious truth.

The people who are going nowhere are always in a rush to get there.

Some who talk with unction on working for sinners are but working the saints.

Life is likely to lose all humor when you get into the habit of ridicule and cheap wit.

It is easy to plug your enemy full of holes when you make him out of mud and set him up before you in a sermon. —(Chicago Tribune.)

British Columbians will be particularly interested in the November issue of Westward Ho! as the leading story, "The Railway Over the Hill," by Arthur Hawkes, gives a concise history of the Canadian Northern railway from its beginning until today with its splendid system of 5,000 miles across from the Atlantic to the foothills of the Rockies, and now about to enter Canada's most westerly Province. Another article, by Louis M. Goldstone, is both timely and lucid as a contribution on the Local Option question—now so much before the public. There are several meritorious pieces of fiction and C. L. Armstrong's "Recollections of Commander Peary" are graphical and personal. Bonnycastle Dale's contribution this month is entitled "Nature's Thanksgiving Day." Percy F. Godenrath, the editor, has an interesting illustrated sketch of the promising Portland Canal camp, under the caption of "A Northern Treasure Chest," and William Blakemore writes of "Charles Lamb—His Life and a glimpse at his Works." From the cover design to the last pages of the advertisements this popular monthly shows a most progressive spirit in keeping with the west.

The Montreal Witness publishes some very interesting statistics with regard to the labor of women in Canada. Of course, it must be understood that the great body of women workers are those who as wives and mothers and daughters carry on the work in the homes, without which society would cease to exist, is not counted here. It is those who have left the home to work, and whose worth in the world of labor can be measured, who are spoken of as wage-earners. Women are only employed in a third of the occupations which are going on in Canada. Men are at work in all but eight per cent of the employments. On the farms there are eight men to every woman employed, there are a little more than twice as many men as women engaged in domestic or personal service, more than four times as many in the factories, and ten times as many in trade and transportation. The professional class which includes civil servants, school teachers, stenographers, and typewriters, as well as the doctors, lawyers, and ministers, is more equally divided, the proportion being 1.34 men to 1 woman. It is said that many more men than women earned money outside their regular employment. Here again every woman knows the statement is misleading. Who can tell how many of these teachers, typewriters and saleswomen work after hours as housekeepers, dressmakers, or milliners? It is safe to say that for one man who engages in any gainful occupation after working hours, there are ten women and more who save money in many ways by the work of their hands. The largest earnings for both men and women were in the professional class. The figures given are based on the census returns of ten years ago. It is perhaps doubtful if, so far as men are concerned, the highest earnings of men would be in the same class today. There is little indication that Canadian women are as yet unduly or injuriously influencing the labor market.

A Drink in Gothemburg.

From Gothenburg, Sweden, a correspondent writes: "The diffculties under which wine and spirit merchants labor may be judged from the following incident. When I went to buy a bottle of whiskey the other day, I was told: 'We are not allowed to sell wine or spirits over the counter.' What in the world do you mean?' I asked. 'No, it must be ordered in advance.' 'But I want the whiskey at once!'

"The assistant meditated and then said: 'If you go across the street and telephone to us from the cigar shop, we can supply you.' I telephoned, and five minutes later I had the whiskey. I went for another bottle the next day, and found that the regulations had became more stringent. Although I had ordered it by telephone, I was not allowed to take it home myself!

"I expostulated, and the wine merchant said: 'But if your son here with you will accept sixpence for delivering the bottle at your house, I could let you have the whiskey at once.' My son had no objection."

The Bad Boy again.

The new teacher called Tommy up to her desk.

"Tommy Brown, what have you under your coat?"

"Cigarettes, ma'am."

"Tommy Brown, give me those cigarettes at once and remain in after school."

Up went Tommy's hand.

"It's no use to keep me in after school, teacher."

"And why not, sir?"

"Because I couldn't teach a lady how to smoke; I had a hard time to teach my kid brother."

And Tommy escaped his punishment, for the the teacher was so shocked she sent him home.

Those Fifteen Years.

Louise—The Johnsons are so devoted and so happy anticipating their silver anniversary next week.

James—Are they? I wonder if they ever think of the time they went fifteen years without speaking a single word to each other.

Louise—Why, I didn't know there ever had been such a time!

James—Yes, it was before they met.

In Lapland a newborn baby is cradled in its mother's shoe, a big affair covered with skin and stuffed with soft moss. This the mother can hang up to a tree or cover with snow, while she is busy.

In India the baby rides in a basket which hangs from its mother's head, or from her hips in a hammock. Sometimes the baby's nose is adorned with a nosering; and in some parts its face is wrapped in a veil like its mother's.

The Chinese baby is tied to the back of an older child; while the Mongolian infants travel about in bags slung on a camel.

Strangest of all, the mother in Guinea buries her baby up to its waist in sand, and that's the only cradle the baby ever knows.

Lieutenant Shackelton, the explorer, says that his own small boy is dreadfully bored with expedition talk, and asked his father to tell him something with danger in it. "I don,t want to know anything more about papa," he declared, "tell me about the baby who was drowned in his bath."

Dr. Kerr, dentist will be in Alberni on and after December 2. Appointments may be made with C. M. Pineo at the drug store.

John Houston Is At It Again

The irrepressible John Houston of much frontier newspaper fame, has made another bow to the public. On November 6th he launched the Tribune at Fort George, a settlement at the junction of the Fraser and Nechaco rivers, in the Grand Trunk Pacific railway territory. Mr. Houston affers the following explanation of his conduct:

"The Fort George Tribune is printed for the purpose of making a living for a man who for over forty years has worked as a printer and journalist—one half of the time in British Columbia. In order that this selfish purpose be successful, the natural resources of the country adjoining and tributary to Fort George must be developed, for a newspaper cannot be a financial success without readers. There are but few people in the part of Cariboo district of which Fort George is the natural centre, but The Tribune, by printing facts respecting the productiveness of the land and the healthfulness of the climate, hopes to be a factor in populating what is one of the best portions of the Pacific Coast for men and women who are willing to work at that most independent of pursuits—mixed farming.

"The Tribune will not be a political newspaper in the sense of advocating the retention in office of men because of their party affiliations. Neither the Conservative or Liberal parties stand for distinct policies which mean anything. Neither of the parties lead public opinion on questions that stand for the welfare of the common people. Their leaders, when in office, do not consult with common people either in public or private. Instead, they are always found consulting and hob-nobbing with the men who control and manage the Canadian Pacific, the Canadian Northern, the Grand Trunk Pacific, and the Grand Trunk Railways, and corporations like the Bank of Montreal and the Canadian Bank of Commerce."

Notice of Meeting.

A general meeting of the Alberni Liberal association will be held in the Committee rooms on Tuesday evening next, commencing at 8 o'clock.

NEWS GENERAL AND PERSONAL

George H. Jalley, of Chehalis, Wash., is a guest at the Arlington.

An addition has been built to Anthony Watson's house, New Alberni.

Mrs. E. L. Gill returned from a visit to friends and relatives in Vancouver on Thursday.

Deer have been easy game in the woods around Alberni during the past two or three weeks.

Mrs. C. M. Pineo, who had been visiting her parents in Victoria, returned home on Sunday last.

Mrs. H. M. T. Hodgson returned last Saturday afternoon from Victoria where she had been visiting friends.

Dr. Stuart Ross, who formerly practised in Alberni, and Miss N. Power, of Ottawa, were married in Vancouver on Wednesday.

Livery men with four horse teams are doing a brisk passenger carrying business on the Nanaimo-Alberni wagon road these days.

Dr. Kerr, dentist will be in Alberni on and after December 2. Appointments may be made with C. M. Pineo at the drug store.

Preparations are being made for the opening of another railway construction camp. The site is close to Dry Creek, New Alberni.

Studebaker's big Oldsmobile has gone off the Nanaimo-Alberni run for the winter season. It made its last trip as far as the Summit last Wednesday morning.

C. H. Walker, of Vancouver, who is heavily interested in timber holdings in the Alberni district, arrived last night, and is registered at the Arlington. He will take a party of men down the canal on a cruising expedition.

The new three storey building being constructed for Harris and Roseborough, New Alberni, who will conduct a livery and freighting business, is nearing completion, and will be ready for occupancy in a couple of weeks.

The new restaurant and bakery, opened by Bannell and Welham, next door to the Somass hotel, New Alberni, is a credit to the owners and to the town. It is tastefully furnished, is scrupulously clean, and has the best of service conveniences. The proprietors are men who understand the business, and are sure to command a large trade.

Albernis Defeat Somass.

The Alberni and Somass football teams met on Redford's field on Wednesday afternoon and indulged in a struggle that was spectacular. The ground, in places, was better fitted for water polo than for football, and at times the casual spectator might have had his doubts as to which of these sports was in progress. In spite of the difficulties the Alberni team made a good showing of combination work and won by a score of five goals to nothing.

The teams were:

Alberni—Goal, F. Drinkwater; backs, E. M. Whyte, J. Mathison; half-backs, G. Ward, (captain) R. Erickson, H. Bishop; forwards, D. Loughnan, W. Green, W. Erickson, P. Bayne, A. Drinkwater.

Somass—Goal, W. Haipee; backs, Hamilton George, Cecil George; half-backs, Charlie Ross, John Dick, Alex Thomas; forwards, Otto Taylor, Frank Williams, James Santo, W. Youkom, Jacob Shewish.

Referee—A. Barfoot.

The next game of the series will be played on Wednesday, Dec. 1, the competing teams being New Alberni and Alberni.

TO LET—Five-roomed cottage. Apply James Hills.
