By a most remarkable coincidence, on Wednesday 2 Indian children in separate families at the lake, sustained fracture of the arm. One is only about 3 years old, the other 6.

One of our bright boys had scarcely got over a fel-on a hand, when something fel-on a foot, namely,—the school flag pole, which came down the other day, without killing any pupils.

D. Hurley's fine residence has made remarkable progress in a week under a force of six men. It will be a very well-built and comfortable home. Mr. Mooney, the Ashcroft mason, is engaged.

Lovers of music enjoyed the wonderful violin-playing of Mr. Fred Richardson, of Vancouver, accompanied by Miss Kathryn Spellman.

J. B. Uren is with us again for a short time. He will leave shortly for his ranch, near Savonas, where he will place a number of sheep. He has 320 acres of meadow, on any part of which a mower is in sight of the house, and a large creek runs thro' it.

Tyee Jimmy returned to-day, with a large pack train and a successful hunting party.

A sturgeon six feet long was captured at the mouth of Bridge River, and it was certainly prime muk-a-muk.

CLINTON.

A. C. Knight, formerly manager for the Cariboo Trading Co'y has accepted a similar position with McDonald & McGillivray, general merchants, of this place. Mr. Knight is well and favorably known throughout the districts of Lillooet and Cariboo, and he will therefore prove a valuable acquisition to this enterprising firm.

Post Office Inspector Greenfield of Vancouver passed through here on his annual inspection tour.

C. Miller of Toronto, a heavy stockholder in the B. C. Express Co'y paid a flying visit to the various stations along the route accompanied by J. B. Leighton, the company's superintendent.

James Haddock and his son Arthur, accompanied by Mr. H. Hendrie of Vancouver, are on a hunting tour at Beaver Dam.

Dr. Geo. Sanson, H. P. Horan, and Frank Darling are out on their annual hunt, through the Beaver Dam country. They report game as scarce, so far.

M. R. Eagleson left on the 7th for Ashcroft.

M. S. Pope and H. H. Bate, of Baltimore, M. D., are outfitting here for a hunting trip to Snow Mountains, Chilcotin. Mr. J. W. Pearson, the well-known guide, is in charge of the party.

Geo. McNeil, of Big Bar, was a visitor to town this week. He reports his company have now completed their ditch, and will shortly be piping on their claim.

Mrs. West of Ashcroft, who has been visiting friends in Clinton, returned home on the 8th.

The $75 00 road roller is now in successful operation on the main trunk road.

The heavy rains of the last few days have done considerable damage to the grain in the immediate neighborhood of Clinton.

TRUTHFUL JAMES.

Clinton is soon to have a saw-mill, which is expected to reduce the price of lumber from $53 to about $23. New houses will be more common in Clinton. Some years ago a saw mill was set up and cut 100,000 feet, and taken elsewhere, as it was thought no more than that amount could be sold around Clinton. However, it was soon taken, and since then all lumber had to be brought a distance which is almost prohibitive. There is plenty of timber to be had within 4 miles, and a down-hill haul. Rough lumber at Lillooet is $18 at the mill. Wood is $6.50 sawn and split,—nearly twice the Clinton figure.

The appointment is gazetted of William Saul, Esquire, to be a Stipendiary Magistrate and a Magistrate under the "Small Debts Act," in and for Cariboo County. He will reside and officiate at Clinton.

Also, Samuel Evans Mostyn Hoops, of 150-Mile House, L. R. C. S. I., Esquire, to be Justice of the Peace.

A sitting of the county court will be held at Clinton, Tuesday, September 19.

D. A. Rowlands, Deputy Sheriff, of Ashcroft, has just driven into town as we go to press.

Fishery Commissioner Babcock declares that one or two years cessation of sockeye fishing, in both British Columbia and Puget Sound waters, is absolutely essential, to avoid progressive diminution of the salmon, and ultimate extinguishment.

Lytton, B. C. Sept. 5. While Constable D. McGillivray was attempting to arrest J. McKnight, he pulled a revolver and threatened the policeman's life.

McKnight had been drinking heavily of late, and while he was causing a disturbance in the bar of the Baillie Hotel, McGillivray arrived with a warrant for his arrest. McKnight bolted for his house and obtained his revolver. He was pursued from there to the river, where he stood at bay and warned the constable not to approach, who persisted, however, in advancing until he realized that McKnight was in earnest. He then returned to town, to obtain a weapon and some help. In the meantime the pursued had jumped into the river, and it was thought would escape as he is a strong swimmer. But evidently the cold water was too much for him, for he sank twice. The constable returned, and on hearing McKnight cry for help, he waded in waist deep, and by standing on some rocks was able to haul the terrified fellow to shore, where he was immediately made a prisoner. He objected strongly against having handcuffs placed upon his wrists, but the policeman persisted and thus conducted him to the lockup.

DREDGE NEWS.

The Vancouver World has the following report of the progress of affairs in connection with the litigation going on.

"The men who now have possession of the assets of the Iowa-Lillooet Gold Company have appeared on the scene to fight the winding-up order granted recently, on application of C. T. Hancock, this step being necessary in the first instance in order to attack the mortgages, —under which the present holders of the plant are acting. Mr. Senkler appeared for the interests which Hancock is seeking to oust, and Mr. Russell again acted for the petitioners who had obtained the order to wind up the Company. Mr. Senkler asked that the order might be set aside, taking the ground that the affidavits put in had stated what was not true, namely, that the Company had no registered office in British Columbia. Mr. Russell insisted that the affidavits were perfectly correct, but Mr. Justice Duff said he would give the other side an opportunity to show cause why the company should not be wound up. He therefore set aside the winding-up order, and appointed Thursday, 14th, for hearing the arguments for and against the petition.

MINING NOTES.

The arrastra boys are all done at the Lorne, and report a satisfactory season.

A promoter named Oliver Reece has been negotiating for the Anderson Lake mine.

Joseph Copeland has been doing a little prospecting over old ground, securing some grand rock.

John Marshall is interested in the coal oil belt near Horsefly, where petroleum was recently discovered.

Gold which is too fine for anything else, may be mixed with ashes, for chickens to dust in, as is being done in town at present. The mixture was invented by Hugh M'Coy, last winter. He obtained it by burning old sluice-blocks, and used it to put on the side-walk in front of his shop in slippery weather.

An Editor's Ambition.

We'd rather be a barefooted boy with a healthy appetite and a precarious way of satisfying it, and hunt squirrels and fish for chubs in the little creek, and have to chop the firewood and milk the cows and feed the stock and go to a bed of straw to sleep the sleep of security, exhaustion, and a clear conscience than be the Czar of Russia, feted and eorshiped by sycophants behind massed regiments of infantry, at every moment fearful that he may become the victim of a bullet or bomb, or that his august stomach may take in a dose of poison, or that the dagger of a Nihilist may tickle his ribs. Go it, Nicholas! Enjoy, if you can, those French cheers. Few healthy minded lads in this glorious free Canada envy you your lot.—Hamilton Times.

Salaries of Officials.

"Perhaps, I might be pardoned if, at the close of my career, when my remarks cannot have any reference to myself personally, I suggest for the consideration of the Ministry whether, seeing the opportunities of betterment that are now presented throughout Canada to men of intelligence, good judgment and industry by reason of the development of the resources of the Dominion, the conditions of the public service are such at present as to attract the best men. Men of this class are needed to undertake the increasing quantity of high class work that the Dominion demands. The employment of the best class of men for the best class of work, at generous rates of remuneration, is the truest economy in the end. Resignations from the service are now of frequent occur-

The Late Archbishop of Canterbury.

A peculiarity of the late Archbishop of Canterbury, which I have not seen referred to in any of his obituaries, was the extraordinary harshness and rasping character of his voice, a peculiarity of which he was well aware and concerning which he was wont to tell all sorts of amusing stories, among others one to the effect that on a Sunday evening, having slipped into a back pew of a popular church in the east end of London, and joined in the singing of a Moody and Sankey hymn from a hymn book which had been extended to him friendly fashion by a laboring man, the latter, at the end of the first verse, drew away the hymn book from him, gave him a dig in the ribs with his elbow and remarked in a loud whisper:

"There, dry up, mister, you're spoilin' the show."

Nor have I seen it mentioned that the late archbishop was descended in a direct line from Lady Godiva, so famous in connection with her decol te ride through the streets of Coventry. The old archbishop was proud of this ancestry, as well as of the fact that he was entitled to bear the same coat of arms as her husband, Leofric, Earl of Mercia.—Marquise de Fontenoy.

Didn't Lose His Head.

A man hopelessly lost in the bush in South Australia, after wandering about for four days, came upon the telegraph line between Adelaide and Port Darwin. He hadn't strength to go farther, but he managed to climb a pole and cut the wire. Then he made himself as comfortable as possible and waited. The telegraph repairers were sent along the line, and they came to the wanderer in time to save his life.

A LAMB IN REPOSE. A LION IN ACTION.

Old-Fashioned Girl Made New.

People say the old-fashioned girl is coming into fashion. It may be so—it all depends. But we doubt if the latest form of feminity will take the shape of a revival. An adaptation, perhaps, of a modification, or a revised edition. But a mere replica—No! Women have their phases, like the moon and other creations of the gender, but, unlike the lunar planet, they never repeat themselves. The early Victorian girl was a simpering, giggling, blushing, fainting, ringleted, champagne-bottle shouldered, white-stockinged, cloth-booted, impeccable nonenity. The mid-Victorian Miss was a thing of bustles, chignons, sprightliness, archery meetings, and dawning emancipation. The later Victorian New Woman was composed of platform phrases, cropped hair, thick boots, formless arguments, affected animadversion of the tyrant man, and despair of the matrimonial estate. We to-day are full of "smart" ambitions, overflowing with smart slang, weighted down with smart bills for smart clothes, compelled to live in smart streets, to the great attenuation of our less smart incomes. Never, in fact, has there been such an Old Man of the Sea as this fetish of smartness that we have been hugging to our souls—or what represents them—for the last dozen years. Not to be smart is to be socially dead, and to be socially defunct it were better never to have been born. So says the modern Saga. With what result, one need not add. A glance at names gracing the Bankruptcy Court lists, or, say, a few side-lights by a tax-collector, and the plaints of unpaid tradespeople would afford some contemporary history full of thrilling situations and go far to explain to future generations the curious feverheat with which the desire to be smart has afflicted this Edwardian era. Meanwhile, as one swing of the pendulum inevitably induces another, we are promised a retrogression to Arcadian simplicity, which will dislodge made-dishes, banish "Bridge" after a.m., introduce the cult of mere muslin frocks' and leaven our erotic literature with the heavenly manna of Jane Austen and Alfred Austin. What is to be done with Ladies' Clubs and private telephones has not yet come up for discussion; but, doubtless, Phyllis and Corydon will appropriately re-appear attuned to the surroundings of their blue-ribboned era, as the painted fans and mouches noires of Pierrot and Pierrette recede on this overdone horizon.

Hanged and Buried, Yet Lived.

It is not given to many men to be hanged and buried, and yet be able to tell the tale, but such was the experience of one John Bartendale, who was executed at York in 1634 for felony. After his body had hung for nearly an hour, it was buried. A gentleman passing by the grave, which had not been filled up, thought he saw the earth move, and with the help of his servant, he disinterred the convict, who was still alive. It was the custom in those days to bury suicides and executed criminals without any coffin. The man was carefully treated, and entirely recovered. He became hostler at the coaching-house in York and lived a most exemplary life. When asked what he could tell in relation to hanging, as having experienced it, he replied: "That when I was turned off flashes of fire seemed to dart from my eyes, from which I fell into a state of darkness and insensibility."

The satisfaction of having the washing done early in the day, and well done, belongs to every user of Sunlight Soap. 10B
