SUGAR BEET MEETING

The meeting on the 24th in the interest of the Sugar Beet Factory was held in the Maple Leaf Hall Dr. Schumacher gave a very interesting and instructive address on the growing of sugar beets, manufacturing of sugar and the canning of fruits in connection with the proposed factory. He urged the co-operation of the residents of the Fraser Valley in the interests of the scheme and, asking the people to urge the government to assist in the matter, by guaranteeing the interest on a loan towards the establishment of a plant for the making of beet sugar. He showed how the growing of beets would help the new settler. He could raise beets the first year after the land was cleared and thus secure ready cash to go on with his work of improving his farm, whereas if he planted his land in small fruits the returns the first year would be but small. He gave a number of other interesting facts that are well worthy the consideration of the farmer and fruit grower.

Mr. Hill-Tout addressed the meeting stating that the scheme impressed him favorably and if properly managed should be a great benefit to the district. He also stated he was willing to take some shares in it and help in any way he could. He moved a resolution that the meeting ask the government to guarantee the interest on a loan toward putting in the plant.

The motion was seconded by Mr. J. W. McCallum and carried unanimously.

The meeting also elected Professor Hill-Tout as a delegate to accompany Dr. Schumacher and other delegates to Victoria to solicit aid from the government, toward the completion of the Beet Sugar and Fruit canning factory.

OPENS THE SEASON

The dance held in the Maple Leaf Hall on Tuesday was a grand success. It was the opening dance of the season and was very well attended by lovers of the light fantastic who enjoyed themselves in a way highly complimentary to those having the evening's amusement in hand. Most excellent music had been provided for the occasion, which was much appreciated by all present. The happy dancers dispersed at an early hour feeling it was good to dance away the tired feeling of the hot summer months, and wishing that the date for the next dance had been set.

Mr. Lindsay Russell is in receipt of claim cheque for $64.30 from the Ocean Accident and Guarantee Corporation to Angus B. Snedden of the Great Northern construction through their agents the Canadian Financiers of Vancouver. The proof of claim having only been sent through a few days ago. The cheque arrived Thursday morning goes to show how quickly these claims are settled in full.

Mr. Thomas Aidair of Vancouver and Mr. Dewsimbery of Fairbanks Alaska, visited Mr. J. W. McCallum this week and invested in several pieces of choice property. They were very much pleased with the prospects of Abbotsford's future.

Miss Blair of Westminster is visiting her brother Mr. J. Blair.

PRESENTATION TO CHURCH ORGANIST.

At the close of the weekly choir practice on Thursday evening of last week, Mrs. Bedlow was the recipient of a handsome silver cake basket and several volumes of music from the members of the choir and their friends. Mr. J. A. McGowan in the unavoidable absence of the Rev. J. L. Campbell, made the presentation and referred in laudatory terms to the faithful and efficient services rendered to the church and choir by the organist. Mrs. Bedlow suitably replied.

RETURNS FROM CONVENTION
(From Fraser Valley Record.)

Rev. C. Wellesley Whittaker returned from Winnipeg on Saturday evening after attending the sessions of the International Order of Good Templars where he was elected N. G. E. Supt.

He reports a good crop north of Calgary, though Southern Alberta is a failure while the prairie will strike an average crop.

Everywhere people are enquiring about B. C. and the trend of immigration is towards the Pacific province. Most of those who intend coming west are in fair circumstances and of the industrial class

He says, it is almost impossible to get out of touch of civilization as one travels along the main line of the C. P. R.. Towns and villages are growing up all the time and at present there is a continuous line of dwellings; and when the census is taken the increase of population will surprise the most optimistic There is a good natured rivalry all along the line and every place is bidding for supremacy.

In matters of temperance reform the tide is running strongly and every province is having a general clean-up.

Delegates attended the convention from the Atlantic to the Pacific and Washington state sent their strongest temperance man in the person of Senator, the Hon. G. F. Cotterhill of Seattle.

A movement set on foot to unite all the temperance forces that greater efficiency may result was inaugurated. Reports showed about 16,000 members of I. O. G. T. in Canada and increasing all the time

A communication was read from the Education Department re the Abbotsford school district.

The board was pleased to know that their request had been granted and hoped the change would be beneficial for the Abbotsford school

The letter also stated that $2,500 had been granted to the board for the building of the Mt Lehman school, and leaving the matter of building the school in the hands of the trustees. The increased grant was highly appreciated by the board and a vote of thanks was tendered the department.

The secretary reported having arranged with Mr. Israel for the purchase of the disputed Mt. Lehman school site with an additional strip along the south side for sum of $120 and if approved by the board would enable the work of erecting the new school to proceed as soon as possible.

On motion this was agreed to and a cheque of $120 was ordered to be paid for a conveyance of the proposed site and that the secretary was empowered to engage a competent foreman to oversee the erection of the new school and the board decided to do the work by day labor.

New maps are to be purchased for the schools and also some other necessary apparatus.

A STRONG STROKE

In a north Dakota town the merchants became tired of selling goods on credit, while their customers or many of them were sending their cash away to catalogue houses. After consideration they decided to adopt radical means to enforce cash payments. A man was sent to the railway station to make a list each day of the names of those receiving goods from the catalogue houses. A copy of this list was placed in each store and when one of these customers attempted to procure goods on time he was courteously refused.

Again, any of such customers bringing produce to town were directed to ship it to the catalogue houses with which the dealt. The customers finding they could no longer get credit at home, were thus forced to keep their money at home in order to be able to purchase the articles for which it would not pay to send them away.—Ex.

PRACTICAL CHRISTIANITY

"On behalf of the sewing circle of this church," said the pastor at the conclusion of the morning service, "I desire to thank the congregation for 57 buttons placed in the contribution box during the past month. If now the philanthropically inclined donors of these objects will put half a dozen undershirts and three pairs of other strictly secular garments on the plate next Sunday morning, so we may have something to sew these buttons on, we shall be additionally grateful."—Harper's Weekly

DEMAND EXCEEDS SUPPLY

The natural question is asked, will there not be an over-production of oil since all these California oil fields are producing so heavily with so much new territory coming in. Men who have carefully studied the oil situation state positively that there will be no overproduction. While there might be a congestion in one field for a few weeks' time on account of the pipe lines not being able to take care of the oil temporarily, yet there is such a demand for oil for refining and fuel purposes that an overproduction seems impossible.

The Santa Fe and Southern Pacific railroads are already using oil on their California lines. They would gladly use oil over the whole of their systems if they could be assured of a supply. Two barrels of oil at a cost of about $3 to the consumer will produce as much heat as one ton of coal at a cost of about $4.50, and, since it is much more easily handled and leaves no cinders or ashes, it is not only a cheaper fuel but an easier and more satisfactory fuel to use.

MY UNKNOWN LOVE

I used to meet her in the park
Behind a prancing pair,
While this poor heart went pitapat
To see a form so fair.

I grew to know her lovely eyes,
Her cheeks that flush and pale.
But who can see a maiden's blush
Beneath an auto veil?

In winter she's an Eskimo
In heavy furs arrayed,
In summer she is nothing but
A bogged mummy maid.

And so my heart has ceased to throb
At sound of horn or bell.
It might be Angelina.
If it were I could not tell.

A BACHELOR'S TROUBLES

I should think it must be nice
To be a married man,
And have a woman in the house
To keep it spic and span.

Then I wouldn't have to cook
My breakfast, lunch and tea,
My clothes I wouldn't wash or mend
She'd do it all for me.

I washed my bedclothes yesterday
But didn't do it right,
I boiled them together, and
They were an awaful sight.

My comforter, you know, is red:
My sheets and blankets white,
Well, when I hung them out to dry
They really looked a fright.

And that is not the worst of it,
My mending's simply fierce,
Try as I will the needle's still
My clumsy hands will pierce.

And after all is said and done,
I lead a lonely life,
I think it would be just great fun
To have a darling wife.

CULTIVATING THE ROSE

Among all the flowering shrubs that grace the garden or add to the beauty of hall or conservatory none can compare to the rose. Of diverse color, and character of foliage of endless design and color of blooms, it lends itself to a wider range of decoration than any other single group of plants, being equally desirable as pot plants, for garden culture, and for cut flowers When to these qualifications are added ease and culture and quick and ample responses in flowers, it is explained why the rose has been aptly termed "The Queen of Flowers." In our collection of ornamental and flowering shrubs it occupies first place, hence we have been careful always to have on hand a large stock of only the most vigorous plants and only those sorts which produce freely of blooms possessing good substance and striking individual characteristes. All our roses are field grown, thus insuring plans of strong constitution and robust growth. Some objections have been expressed to budded roses, owing to the fact that the plants are apt to sucker. This is readily overcome by setting the junction of the bud with the stock under ground. If planters will observe to do this, much of this difficulty will be removed These shoots or suckers are easily distinguished by their rampant growth and thorny and coarse like appearance. They should be removed as fast as they appear. Budded roses grow far more vigorously than those on their own roots and are longer lived, so that the slight additional expense incurred to begin with is more than compensated for in having superior plants.

The aim has been in giving descriptions of the different varietes to be conservative in statement and clear in expression, preferring at the same time to be modest in opinion rather than to over praise. In habit of growth, blooming qualities vigorous root development our plants are the delight of rose lovers and home gardens. The inexperienced are advised to study cultural directions, which are based on California conditions, and hence will be quite sure to afford satisfactory results if carfully followed

The best season of the year for planting roses is from December 1 to March the 15, with the recommendation in favor of early planting. In planting the same care should be observed as with any other tree or plant, the ground should be spaded thoroughly, and if any well-rotted manure is available, it should be worked into the soil. Dig the hole large enough to receive the roots. Prune the top, cutting back the branches at least one-half and all bruised roots removed, After planting settle the soil around the plant by watering freely.

No definite rule can be laid down for pruning roses except that Teas and their allied families do not require as severe pruning as the hybrid perpetuals and others of equally as vigorous growth. There is one fast rule, however, on the Pacific Coast, and that is never to allow roses to go unpruned . The best time is from December 15 to aMrch 1. The first winter after planting thin to three main shoots and cut these back at least two-thirds In after years with the frame work branches established, the laterals should be thinned out to prevent overcrowding and those allowed to remain should be cut to spurs of about four buds each. If this method is followed regularly each season, a properly pruned plant will have the shape of a deer's antlers. With climbers the framework branches should be trained against the wall in the shape of a fan leaving not more than three or four, and these should be cut back quite severely the first two seasons to promote vigor and sturdiness of growth. In after years shorten in the laterals and thin out sufficiently to prevent overcrowding, otherwise the plant will be a mass of dead wood and twisted branches, and its vigor will become impaired. When the roses cease blooming in the early summer the faded buds should be cut and the plants should be given a light pruning, or more correctly a pinching back which will have the effect of making them respond with a bounteaous bloom in the summer and fall.

Standard roses, commonly known as tree roses are budded on a vigorous Manetti rose stock three and a half feet from the ground. They are very effective and if the head is shortened in and thinned out the plant becomes very symmetrical and responds with a wealth of bloom which is surprising. The first two seasons, wrap the stem with paper or burlap to prevent sunburn and cut away all suckers appearing beneath the crown.

Set the bush roses two to two and a half feet apart; standards four to six feet apart; for hedge purposes two feet apart except the Polyantha types, which are more dwarf in their habits and permit of being more closely planted.—Better Fruit

ABBOTSFORD DISTRICT MARKET

TO THE GENERAL PUBLIC

Special arrangements have been made by me to supply the public of Vancouver from the 1st day of September with hampers of

Farm Produce

Consisting of Chickens, Ducks, Geese, Fresh Fruit, Vegetables, Butter, Eggs.

What Could Be Better for the District?

Why not, therefore, patronize the man who studies the farmers' interest and is always working for them to obtain the highest price for their

PRODUCTS

I have established a market at your own doors where you can bring your stock and obtain the highest prices under competition,

WHY, THEREFORE

Sell to the individual who comes to your door and buys at his own prices.

BE WISE FARMERS

Bring your stock and chickens to the market, tell the man who visits your door that he can enter into competition with others there. As you will sure obtain their market value, the dealers value is the most he can make out of it for himself. You do the work and he takes the profits.

I established your Abbotsford Market. I asked you to bring stock, chickens, etc. I advertised for you but my requests were always met with the reply

BUY THEM YOURSELF

Now take this to heart and digest it well, because I know the farmers will not like to hear it, but never the less its true.

A Record of My Purchases and Resales at the Yards

And don't forget it was not more than 24 hours after I made the purchase either: Bought 13 steers for $300, sold them for $418, profit $118; bought 5 pigs for $12 each, sold them for 98, profit $38, bought 2 sows and a boar for $90, sold them for 120, profit 30; bought line of 22 head of cattle for 25 each, sold them at prices averaging 38, profit 286; bought 1 team of horses for 450, sold them for 735, profit 285, and sundry other things, Now look at my commission it would have been $110.35 and look at my profit $733. Now the wise farmers who thought they were gettiug good prices from the fool of an auctioneer just lost $646.45 by their want of knowledge of

RULING MARKET RATES

But still they say the farmer will never get out of his lax and slovenly ways, But he will find he will have to, if he desires to keep pace with the modern ways of the world.

Be Advised from Headquarters

Sell at the places where there must be competition. Be satisfied when you are getting a good price. And if you are not satisfied to sell at the Market Yards now, then I am still prepared to trade, deal or buy from you, and will probably give you better value than you can get from any one else, but mind this I am not out for the good of my health, but only for one purpose, and that is

TO MAKE MONEY

THE ABBOTSFORD MARKET YARDS will be re-opened on THURSDAY, SEPT. 13, 1910, when Cattle, Horses, Sheep, Hogs, Chickens, etc. will be offered, also a quantity of New Furniture, but the Market will be conducted on an entirely different principle in future, viz.:

It Will be a Sale Without Reserve

Because people have been in the habit of putting prices on their stock far and above the market value. Things will always bring their market value if advertised properly and to do this, entries for each sale will close at least 4 days before date of Auction. Then again I have decided to make my markets the same as a Fair and I have consequently decided

TO OFFER PRIZES AS FOLLOWS

Ten dollars for the best Milk Cow entered for sale
Five dollars for the best Steer or Dry Cow, Fat
Ten dollars for the best Horse, heavy weight over 1200 lbs.
Five dollars for the best Light Horse: weight under 1200 lbs.
Five dollars for the best Sow or Shoat, fat.
Five dollars for the best pen of 12 Chickens or Ducks, any age
