Yes, replied the beautiful daughter, he said the next time he called he was going to bring you some cough-drops.

OPERATION FOR PILES FAILED

Zam-Buk Was Then Tried and Worked a Cure

Writing from Poplar, B.C., Mrs. C. Hanson, wife of the proprietor of the Commercial Hotel, says: "I suffered for years with bleeding piles. The pain was so bad at times that I could hardly walk, and ordinary remedies seemed utterly unable to give me any ease. Finally I decided to undergo an operation, and went to the Sacred Heart Hospital in Spokane. There they performed an operation and did all they could for me. For a time I was certainly better, but within 12 months the trouble started again and the piles became as painful as ever. I tried liniments, hot poultices, various 'pile cures', and indeed everything I could think would be likely to do any good, but still I continued to suffer, and the shooting, burning, stinging pains, the dull, aching and wretched 'worn-out' feeling that the disease causes continued as bad as ever.

"One day I read about Zam-Buk and thought I would try it. The first one or two boxes gave me more ease than anything else I had tried, so I went on with the treatment. In a short time I began to feel altogether different and better, and I saw that Zam-Buk was going to cure me. Well, I went on using it, and by the time I had used six boxes I was delighted to find myself entirely cured. That was three years ago, and from then to the present time there has been no return of the trouble."

Zam-Buk is a sure cure for piles, eczema, ulcers, abscesses, cold sores, chapped hands, varicose sores, burns, scalds, bruises, inflamed patches, and all skin injuries and diseases. Druggists and stores everywhere, 50c. box, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse harmful substitutes.

A DIFFERENCE

It Paid This Man to Change Food

What is called good living eventually brought me to a condition quite the reverse of good health," writes an Eastern merchant.

"Improper eating told on me till my stomach became so weak that food nauseated me, even the lightest and simplest lunch, and I was much depressed after a night of uneasy slumber, unfitting me for business.

"This condition was discouraging as I could find no way to [illegible] Then I saw the advertisement of Grape-Nuts food, and [illegible] and became delighted with the results.

"For the past three years I have used Grape-Nuts and nothing else for my breakfast and for lunch before retiring. It speedily set my stomach right and I congratulate myself that I have regained my health. There is no greater comfort for a tired man than a lunch of Grape-Nuts. It insures restful sleep, and an awakening in the morning with a feeling of buoyant courage and hopefulness.

"Grape-Nuts has been a boon to my whole family. It has made of our 2-year-old boy, who used to be unable to digest much of anything, a robust, healthy, little rascal weighing 32 pounds. Mankind certainly owes a debt of gratitude to the expert who invented this perfect food." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont. "There's a reason."

His Avenger

A Story of the Cuban Revolution

By CHRISTOPHER ARNOLD

When I was in college I formed the acquaintance of a young Cuban, with whom I became chummy. His name was Enrique Molina. He was a member of the class ahead of mine, but this did not make any difference in our intimacy. There was a manliness about Enrique (or Henry) Molina that I admired and a gentleness that drew me to him. At that time Cuba was in a state of discontent with Spanish rule which had become chronic, and my chum was greatly interested in the cause of the coming revolution. It seemed to me that if his countrymen should make an effort to throw off the yoke of Spain he would be an active participant. When we parted after graduation Molina exacted a promise from me to visit him, and the next winter I determined to do so. I had some property and thought I might find in Cuba an opportunity to invest in a way to increase it. This idea was vague, but my desire to see my old chum was real.

I found Molina living on his father's plantation. The premonitions of a serious conflict between the revolutionists and the Spanish government were much more clearly defined than when we were in college, and Henry's interest in it had also become intensified. But I was surprised to find that he was not openly advocating the Cuban cause. Whether the interest of his family, fearing destruction or confiscation of the estate, prevented him from doing so, I did not know. I judged that the daughter of a neighboring sugar planter had something to do with his failure to come out as an advocate of throwing off Spanish rule. This young lady, Concia Sierra, was the gentlest little body in the world. She must have carried northern blood in her veins, for she had not the dark complexion of a Cuban. Indeed, she was a veritable blond, with light hair and blue eyes. It occurred to me that she would restrain the man she loved from taking risks, and that she loved Molina was evident to me the moment I saw them together.

I soon found that there was another force drawing Henry in the opposite direction. This was Inez de la Barra, one of a family whose members, all except herself, supported the Spanish cause. Inez was bitter in her advocacy of the Cuban cause. Unlike the Molinas, the La Barras had little or nothing to lose by Spanish antagonism, for they lived on a small estate and were poor, though in Spain they had formerly been grandees. It was this latter fact that kept them loyal to Spain. Why Inez sympathized with the Cuban cause I could not understand.

Notwithstanding our intimacy Henry Molina did not give me his confidence in these matters. Evidently there was a rivalry for him between the two girls. The one drew him by silken cords, the other by glistening chains. Inez de la Barra was entirely Spanish. Her complexion was olive, her hair jet black, while over her dark eyes waved the long lashes of a Spanish woman.

While I was in Cuba General Weyler began his efforts to strangle the revolution by a vigorous prosecution of those who aided and abetted it. Though I knew that Henry Molina was one of its advocates, outwardly he remained neutral. Whether his family or Concia Sierra restrained him I did not know, though I fancied that Senorita Sierra was the chief cause of his remaining inactive. Nevertheless he was much with her rival, and whenever I saw him and Inez together I noticed that they conversed with a great deal of intensity and usually in a low tone.

These were dangerous times in Cuba. General Weyler had carte blanche from the Spanish government to imprison or execute as he liked, and I felt uneasy for a Cuban who possessed my friendship. Though protected by my United States citizenship, I would have left Cuba had it not been for this little drama in which my chum was playing the principal part. Many on both sides were looking to see for which cause he would declare, and both sides claimed him.

One night as I was going to bed Henry followed me into my room, shut the door and said:

"I must leave you here to be entertained by others of my family, for at daylight in the morning I go to put in operation a scheme for which I have been preparing. I have secret information of a force of Spanish troops who are about to make a descent upon a number of prominent Cuban patriots and gather them in for the bloodthirsty Weyler. Joined by some of my neighbors and those they control, we are to oppose the passage of this Spanish force till our friends can arrange either to get away or prepare for defense."

While he spoke I was thinking of the two influences that had been drawing him, the gentle Concia and the aggressive Inez.

"Where did you get your information as to this move of the Spaniards?" I asked.

A singular look came over his face, a look in which I fancied I saw something of doubt, of pain, as he replied:

"I have the right to tell you anything that concerns only myself. I have no right to implicate another."

"Well," I added, "you have taken sides at last. I hope you have decided for the best."

"That remains to be seen."

We parted with a firm hand grip. I went to bed, but not to sleep.

There was a faint glimmer of dawn at the windows when I heard sounds without—the tread of horses' hoofs, men talking. Then there was a loud rap on the main door below. It was not answered and was followed by a kick. Then a window was shattered.

I arose, threw on a double gown and went downstairs. The hall was lighted and filled with Spanish soldiers. Henry Molina was in their midst, dressed, and as I looked was marched away. It was plain to me what had happened. The wily governor had through his spies learned of his contemplated move, nipped it in the bud and possessed himself of its leader.

My view of Henry Molina passing out of his home to go to prison ended my immediate cognizance of what was leading up to a tragedy. If I could have got my friend out of the clutches of General Weyler I would have taken some chances to do so. It seemed wiser for me to depart and leave the struggle going on in Cuba to those directly interested. So I sailed away from Havana and felt that I could draw a free breath as soon as I was out of the harbor.

But the blowing up of the Maine gave our people an interest in the Cuban struggle for independence that led to its attainment, and I was one of those who went to the island for the purpose. It was not till it was all over and I had been mustered out of the United States service that I returned to Cuba with a view to learning what had become of Henry Molina.

I gathered the story gradually. The first part of it I heard was that Henry had been taken to Morro castle at Havana and had been condemned to death, but had escaped the day before he was to have been executed. How he escaped I did not learn, but it was reported that a boy some seventeen or eighteen years old had visited his prison and managed to convey to him saws with which to remove a bar in his window. He had joined the revolutionary forces, but had done more for the cause in other ways than as a commander. This I could understand, remembering his education at an American university.

The next chapter in the story was that Inez de la Barra had been found on the grounds of her home with a bullet hole in her left breast and in a dying condition. She had been assassinated, but could not or would not tell who had been her assassin. It was well known, however, that she had been a spy of General Weyler, and, the Molina plantation having been confiscated by the Spanish government, she had received a large sum of money. Lastly, I heard that my chum had regained possession of his estate, his father having died, and the son had just been married to Concia Sierra.

Naturally I put these facts together and filled out the story in my own way, but I could not tell how far I was right or how far wrong. I lost no time in going to the Molina plantation, where I found its owner recovering from the privations he had endured since I had parted with him. He was rejoiced to see me, and, after I had been received by his wife, he took me apart and told me that Inez de la Barra had entrapped him and caused his arrest. He gave me a surprise when he said that Concia had been the means of his escape from Morro castle, having gone there disguised and bribed a guard to give her secret access to her lover.

All this interested me, but the climax to the drama, the assassination of Senorita de la Barra, was what I wished to have explained.

"Who killed the woman who betrayed you?" I asked.

A singular expression came over Henry's face in which I fancied there was something of pain. He turned his eyes away from me and did not reply.

"One question," I added, "and I will ask no more. Surely you did not do this deed?"

"No," he replied. "I did not."

I made my own inference as to who had avenged him; but, since I may be mistaken and do not wish to name the wrong person, I leave my reader to make his or her own inference.

Why Tears Flow.

All human emotions, however slight they may be, either decrease or increase the circulation of the blood. Those emotions that bring tears cause the blood vessels around the eyes to expand, thus flooding the lachrymal or tear glands with blood. The tear glands always secrete a little to keep the eyes cool and moist and carry off specks of dust through the nasal passages, but the extra supply of blood increases this secretion to such an extent that it cannot go off in the usual way, so overflows.

FEARS THE FRIGATE BIRD.

The Booby Even Catches Fish to Feed His Merciless Master.

The booby bird never leaves the broad seas, where his harsh cry is heard from the Hebrides to the Faroes and from the cliffs of Scotland to the coast of Norway. He revels in the storms and screams above the roar of the sea. The booby has green feet, yellow eyes and a defiant head covered with a yellow cap. Each of its wings is three feet long and its beak is so stiff and so strong that it fears no enemy but the frigate bird.

The frigate bird is the terror of the birds of the sea, though he ignores all but the booby. Owing to the breadth of his wings, the frigate cannot fish; he is forced to remain in the air. But as he cannot get fish in the air and as he requires fish for his nourishment he presses the booby into his service. When hungry he swoops down upon the booby and gives it a vigorous thrust in the throat. Then the booby's mouth opens and the fish caught in it drops out. The frigate has only to give one peck at the booby's throat to get his dinner.

It happens occasionally that the booby attacked by the frigate has nothing in its mouth. When the frigate pecks in vain he belabors his slave with his beak and drives him, bruised and terrified, into the sea to catch fish.—Harper's Weekly.

COLORS IN FLAMES.

There is a relation between the color of flame and the energy of the combustion causing it. The more vigorous and complete the combustion the higher the refrangibility of the light. A flame burning in a tardy and restricted way emits rays that are red. When burning in a more complete and effective manner the emitted rays change to violet.

The flame of a candle or a lamp consists of a series of eccentric luminous shells surrounding a central dark core. These shells of flame emit light of different colors, the innermost one—that in direct contact with the dark core—being red and having a temperature of exactly 977 degrees F. Upon this and in their proper order of rafrangibility are shells of light which are orange, yellow, green, blue, indigo and violet.

The reason that such a flame does not appear to us as a nest of cones of different colored light is this: When we look upon such a flame all of the rays issuing from the different layers or strata of concentric luminous shells are received by the retina of the eye at one and the same time. This can only impress with the sensation of neutral or white light.

An Error.

"I tell you, Edgely," said Mr. Todd as they sat in the park, "the way women dress these days is absurd. And nine times out of ten it is the fault of men. Just, for instance, take that woman coming down the path. Some fool husband has told her she looks perfectly charming in that outrageous get up, lacking the stamina to come right out bluntly and tell her that she looks positively ridiculous."

Since this remark Mr. Todd has never been seen in public without his glasses. The woman was Mrs. Todd.—Magazine of Fun.

WIRELESS TELEPHONE NOW.

An Italian Scientist Says He Has Solved the Great Problem.

Dr. Riccardo Moretti of Rome claims to have solved the problem of wireless telephony owing to a special generator of electric oscillations of his invention, which has been successfully experimented with between Rome and Tripoli. This apparatus consists of two poles fixed vertically a small distance apart and through one of which a thin continuous jet of water flows.

The water is evaporated by an electric spark between the ends of the poles, and an alternating current of extraordinary rapidity is consequently generated since the oscillations thus produced are calculated at several hundred thousands every second. As the oscillations exceed in number and rapidity the vocal vibrations by means of this generator it is possible to transmit the voice over long distances.

Dr. Moretti has experimented with his invention in connection with the naval wireless installations with the addition of ordinary telephone receivers and transmitters, but he is now working on a hydraulic transmitter, particulars of which are still undivulged, as it has not yet been patented abroad. Dr. Moretti is the nephew of Professor Marchiafava, the pope's physician.

He admits that he owes his invention to Marconi and insists that it is nothing else but an application of wireless telegraphy to the telephone. Dr. Moretti has granted the prior rights of his invention to the government, and, in fact, a wireless telephone station is already being installed between Tripoli and Rome. Meanwhile an Italian syndicate has been formed for the exploitation of the Moretti generator of electric oscillations.—Rome Cor. New York Sun.

PENNIES ARE LIKE PINS.

Millions of Them Are Lost Every Year, Nobody Knows How.

That Americans are careless of their small change is evidenced by the fact that of the 150,000,000 pennies annually sent out from the Philadelphia mint only a small percentage are ever accounted for afterward.

It is thought that but a very small percentage of pennies lost in the streets are ever found, since they lack luster and fail to catch the eye as does a silver coin. The chances are that they are swept up with rubbish and so, for the most part, lost as coins.

When the new Lincoln pennies were first placed in circulation thousands were used as souvenirs, never again to find their way into general circulation. Hundreds were gold plated and silvered to be used as cuff links and stickpins.

County fairs and shows of various kinds mutilate thousands of pennies every year. At the fairs one may see a machine that will flatten a cent and at the same time emboss a souvenir view of the event.

Hundreds of thousands of pennies are carried out of the United States by tourists, who leave them abroad. A year or two ago 100,000 of them were shipped to Cuban bankers and placed in circulation among the laboring classes in Cuba. The American copper runs a close second to the pin, of which millions are lost every year.

Prisoners Keep Their Names.

No more ridiculous statement appeared in the press than that a man in prison is known by his number and not by his name. The numbers are serial; those at Sing Sing are now over 60,000 and those at Auburn over 31,000 and those at Clinton over 10,000. Imagine how cumbersome it would be to employ such numbers as names. The guards would be candidates for a madhouse if such a task were theirs. John Jones remains John Jones throughout his prison experience and only knows he has a number when he has business with the administration officers, when the number is used, in addition to the name, as a further means of identification.—Outlook.

"I understand that a number of women have learned to smoke cigars," said the frivolous observer.

"I don't believe it," replied Mr. Meekton. "The kind of cigars that women buy nobody could smoke."—Washington Star.

Sarcastic.

Softly—I'd have you to understand, sir, that I'm not such a fool as I look. Sarcast—Well, then, you have much to be thankful for.

A Queen's Telephone.

The queen of Spain possesses what is said to be the most remarkable telephone in the world. It is of solid silver with a gold transmitter and is supported by four bronze figures, among which a boy leaning against a Spanish coat of arms is conversing by telephone—a golden wire—with an English girl in close proximity to a British lion. Above the mouthpiece are two goddesses. This work of art stands on her majesty's writing table and connects with the royal nursery only.

SPIDERS AID SCIENCE.

His Delicate Web Is Invaluable to Instrument Makers.

When surveyors prepare to plot off sections of land into squares, circles, parallelograms, and irregular areas, they find it necessary to place something in their instruments whereby a point may be fixed definitely, precisely, and within a fraction of an inch, even though the point at which the instrument is directed be a mile distant. If one observe the theodolites employed by surveyors, he will see across the round field of vision two or more lines running from one side to the other of the field of view.

Now these lines do not "look large" even in the theodolite. A careful examination of the diaphragm will show that these "cross wires" are nothing more or less than spiders' threads.

It has been said that but for the presence of these fine filaments of the insect the surveyor's instrument would be worth little more than scrap metal, so far as its utility in surveying is concerned. Thus does the spider aid the work of man.

The quantity of thread of the finest sort which a spider can produce at one spinning is most extraordinary. It is of record that more than four hundred feet has been spun by one spider in its patient endeavors to reach the ground from the frame on which it has been placed by the dealer.

When the web has been taken from the spider it is wound on a frame and kept for the use of the instrument maker. It is said that the filaments of the brown spider are the finest and most uniform of all. This thread shows no kinks, such as may be readily discovered in the thread of the larger spiders and the silkworm.

Spiders' webs have been used for instruments of precision for a great many generations; and no one has ever discovered another filament so well adapted to this purpose. Platinum wire may be drawn out to the requisite fineness, but it is too easily affected by heat or cold.

In the past makers of instruments of the sort mentioned have endeavored to rule fine lines on the surface of the lens with a diamond point. It is said that about once in one hundred trials they would be able to procure a sharp point of diamond sufficiently fine for the purpose, but that when the lines were cut across the face of the lens it was found that they were ragged and uneven. Even the best grade of glass will flake a little in front of the point, and these irregularities become greatly magnified by the powerful lens. Sharpness of location with such an instrument, therefore, becomes impossible.

The spider filaments are about one one-hundred-and-twenty-fifth of an inch in diameter. The best threads are those from which the spider builds its nest. Less than an inch of the fine opaque thread is needed to fit up a considerable number of instruments. The fitting of an instrument is a delicate task, since it is not sufficient that the lines be got approximately in the right positions—they must be true to the smallest fraction of an inch. Machines capable of marking space to the fifty-thousandth part of an inch are employed to place the filaments so that the surveyor may not go wrong. The instruments used by the geodetic survey and in the observatories are crossed and recrossed by a multitude of fine lines. By these are measured the distances of headlands, capes, and mountains. Railway tracks are surveyed and laid, tunnels are planned and bored, and the distances of the stars are ascertained by means of the bit of thread supplied by the humble spider. In short, without the aid of the spider the great engineering feats of the world, to say nothing of many discoveries of astronomers, would be impossible.

Roman Sausages.

The Romans are very much addicted to sausages made at Lucania. The meat used was pork and a good quantity of bacon, pounded in a mortar, with pepper, cumin, winter savory and moistened with garum, to which were added a few pine nuts. It has been pointed out that the Romans when they used breadcrumbs took care that the bread should be of the very finest kind and that before it was mingled with the sausage meat it should be soaked in wine. This was a precaution against the contingency of the bread passing through a sour stage of fermentation, in which case it would be undeniably unwholesome.

The Corinthian Canal.

The four centuries between the Panama canal's first conception and its completion are by no means a record in the annals of canal construction. The completion in 1893 of the canal across the isthmus of Corinth was the finish of a scheme for which the first survey was made in the year 600 B.C., when Periander employed Egyptian engineers to carry out the work. Nero actually commenced work along the site of the present canal, but at his death it was abandoned, and the project was not revived until 1882, and this though the total length of the canal is under four miles.—London Graphic.

Alex. McNeil has been on the sick list for the past few days.

Messrs. John and Jabe Day, of Hornby Island are in town this week.

Sam Lee's laundry on Mill street is about ready to commence operations. Sam will call for and deliver your laundry.

The Clansman came into port last Saturday morning with one hundred tons of freight for the Builders' Supply Co.

A wrestling tournament will be pulled off in the opera house here on Tuesday evening. The main event will be between Sam Martin of Nanaimo and Andy Thompson of Cumberland. A preliminary bout between two Cumberland lads will be given.

On and after Wednesday, April 2, the stores in Courtenay will be closed at 6 p. m., until further notice. Signed, McPhee & Morrison, W. G. McKean, Parkin Bros., B. F. Krause, W. J. Hornby, Loggie Bros., G. Willard and The Builders' Supply. The post office will also be closed.

Messrs. Scoville and Osborne are here again this week in the interest of the Acadia Trust Company. They expect to establish a branch here in the near future. There's plenty of room for a trust and loan company in this district. As a rule they are safe institutions to do business with, and should prove a boon to the community.

A large number from Courtenay journeyed to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Krause on Monday evening, where a most enjoyable evening was spent in music, cards and tripping the "light fantastic." Mr. and Mrs. Krause are excellent hosts and their at homes are eagerly looked forward to by the young people of the district.

While returning from Comox on Tuesday afternoon Geo. Willard's automobile came to grief at the foot of the Siwash hill. They were coming down the hill at a high rate of speed and when pulling back into the road after passing a rig, the front wheels struck some fresh gravel and the machine skidded and rolled over, breaking off all the doors and top, bending the front axle, completely demolishing the steering wheel and wind shield, and the near hind wheel was broken up. Fred Fabre and Buster Brown were also in the car at the time. They were badly shaken up and scratched by sliding along the gravel.

Recital and Dance

Another full house greeted Prof. Harvey on the occasion of his second appearance at the Opera House last Friday evening. He had this time a full orchestra of seven pieces, whose music delighted the large audience. Miss Jean Patterson was again in excellent voice, and was listened to with marked attention.

The full orchestra furnished the music for dancing, after the conclusion of the concert; and a large number stayed to take part in the festivities, including a goodly number of lads and lassies from Cumberland.

Following was the programme:—

Overture Bohemian Girl Balfe
Orchestra
Song The Rosary
Miss Jean Patterson
Trombone solo Death of Nelson
Mr. C. Raines
Overture Morning, Noon and Night in Vienna Soupee
Orchestra
Song Good Bye Tosti

DENMAN ISLAND

The death occured on Sunday morning, the 16th instant, of Louisa Stewart, third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stewart, of this place. Death was due to consumption, from which disease Miss Stewart had been suffering for several months. Deceased was 21 years of age and was born in Wisconsin. Besides her parents, five sisters and four brothers, are left to mourn her loss. The funeral took place on Tuesday, at 2.30 p. m., from the family residence, the Rev. Mr. Mertins officiating at the house and at the graveside.

Mrs. J. Kilian, of Wilton, N.D., who has been visiting her daughter Mrs. R. G. Smith for the past few months, left for her home on Thursday morning.

HEADQUARTERS

Last week a gentleman, who shall be nameless, but who, it may be mentioned is a well known luminary in some of the best dishwashing circles of the pacific coast, came up to Headquarters to flunky He stayed at the hotel over night and in the morning was drafted up to camp 2.

He might have been seen within an hour after breakfast, starting off boldly with his bundle on his shoulder, and his face towards the rising sun; albeit with a cast of countenance of the most abysmal solemnity. And right here all trace of him has been lost.

Various theories are rampant among the local sleuths to account for his mysterious disappearance.

Some incline to the view that a carnivore, possibly a solitary survivor from some supposedly long extint species of an earlier geological period, has pounced upon and devoured him. Others argue that he has been kidnapped by wild Indians, to feature in the premier role in some cannibalistic rituals. It is true one or two of the blase gumshoes flount both this hypothesis as being ultra-romantic and Mid-Victorian, and cynically assert their own conviction that the gentleman got chilled in his nether extremities and beat an undignified retreat back to the white lights.

One lady, with theosophical tendencies, is obsessed with the idea that the intent, faraway expression on the face of the would be flunky on the fatal morning of his premature eclipse, was evidential of some glimpse into the ghastly gloom of futurity which had been miracuously vouchsafed. However this may be, we can only await dispatches from Vancouver for further developments.

The Cowichan leaves Comox wharf at 11 a. m. on Tuesdays and 4 p. m. on Sunday's. Arrives on Tuesday and Sunday mornings at 8 o'clock.

The Charmer arrives at Comox wharf on Tuesdays at 4 p. m., and leaves at 9 p. m., arrives on Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock, and leaves on Thursday morning at 7.15, arrives Friday evening at 7 o'clock, and leaves at 7.15 Saturday morning.

The concert to be given by the Courtenay Philharmonic Society in aid of the new Presbyterian church will be held on Friday, April 4th, in the Agricultural Hall. A good programme of vocal and instrumental music is being arranged. The society is sparing no pains to make this one of the best concerts ever given at Courtenay, and is being assisted by some of the best local talent. Watch for posters..

Persons wishing to get their names on the voters' list must have their names registered with the government agent, at Cumberland, on or before the 7th day of April. British subjects or foreigners who have been naturalized and have resided in the Comox Electoral District for the last six months are eligible for registration.

COMOX

Too late for last week
Spring has come!

"The Canadian Band" is out in full force, and the dust is flying on the roads.

A school site has at last been decided upon. A meeting of the ratepayers of Comox was held on March 14, and they decided to purchase eight lots belonging to Mr. Eustace Smith. This land is quite central, high and dry, has a good view, good water, and is just the right distance from the main road. The building, a two-roomed school, is to be erected by the government shortly.

Mrs. Dr. Foote and daughter left on Saturday's boat for Kamloops, where they intend visiting Mrs. Foote's daughter, Mrs. and Miss Foote will return in two weeks.

Miss McCann has gone to Point Holmes, where she intends staying for a few weeks.

Mrs. Kirkwood's little daughter, Lena has been quite ill for the past week.

A new store is to be built by Eustace Smith on the lot adjoining the new post office. Mr. Percy Smith, who is also interested in the building, is in charge, and Percy is certainly a hustler,

The Canadian Bank of Commerce has opened a new branch offce in Comox. This is to be opened every Tuesday, and is very convenient for Comox people.

HORNBY ISLAND

While towing logs from Tribune Bay, in his motor boat "The Rupert," G. C. South got badly bruised and was rendered unconcious by being rapidly wound up in the propellor shaft of the boat, but for the quick work of G. Burgland in stopping the engine the accident might have been fatal. He was quickly taken to the physician at Denman, and is now slowly recovering.

A crew of men for Day's logging camp arrived on the last Charmer, and the camp is now running in full blast.

Plowing is well advanced on some of the farms, especially those of Thos. Smith and Jas. Strachan.

The "Progress Club" held its monthly entertainment and dance, at the school building, on the 15th inst. Local talent furnished the music, and our singers, J. H. Carmichael, R. Solan and J. LaForest did credit to the occasion. John Day's rendering of Uncle Josh, comic speech, was thoroughly enjoyed by all. A dialogue by Miss Miller's pupils was especially pleasing. The ladies provided the refreshments, after which the light fantastic was kept up till late.

SANDWICK

At the recent meeting of the Victoria Presbytery, and on the motion of Mr. William Duncan, of Sandwick, seconded by the Rev. W. Kidd, of Union Bay, the Rev. Thos. Menzies was nominated as a commissioner to the general assembly, which meets at Toronto in June. The Rev. W. M. Reid, M. A., lote of Haney and now a C. & F. B. S. agent will officiate during Mr. Menzies' absence.

Mrs. Anley is staying with Mrs. Turnbull, and Mrs. Etherington with Mrs. George Robinson, at Sandwick.

Among the Easter festivities worthy of mention must be chronicled a musical evening and dance, at Harmston's ranch, on Easter Monday, when Mr. and Mrs. Bruno Krause entertained a large company of guests. Everybody had a splendid time and universal regret was expressed at the inexorable march of time.

A very enjoyable barn dance was given at the Wood's ranch on Wednesday the 18th instant.

Mr. H. W. Smedley arrived by Wednesday's boat from Nanaimo. He hails from the old country and has gone to the Grandview ranch.

Mr. W. Duncan was unfortunate enough, on Thursday to break his leg, necessitating his being taken to Cumberland hospital, where he is going on well.

By the efforts of Messrs. Duncan and Craig, Sandwick, and through the courteous co-operation of Mr. Herbert Killan, of the Provincial Library, Victoria, a free circulating library, principally for the benefit of loggers, has been established at Headquarters. It is the intention of the Home Mission Board, of the Presbyterian church, to establish these libraries in all B. C. logging camps, and Mr. J. N. Craig has been commissioned to interview Colonel A. D. McRae, president of the Canadian Western Lumber Co., Limited, with a view to having a branch established at each camp in this neighborhood.

Mrs. Wm. Duncan, who has recently undergone an operation in Vancouver, is expected home this week.

Mr. John Duncan returned to Sandwick, from Vancouver, on Tuesday.

Arthur Puttonen, head rigger at camp 5, was hurt on Thursday last a limb falling and causing injuries to his head. He was taken to Cumberland on Saturday.

Mr. Issac Parkin left for Nanaimo on Sunday, the 16th instant.

Mr. James Aitken has rented Mr. Berkley Grieves' ranch.

Seating accomodation was inadequate on Easter Suhday at St. Andrew's church. which was tastefully decorated for the festival. The Rev. J. X. Willemar preached on the significance of Easter.

Unless a miracle happens the good people using telephones in the Comox valley are to pay more dearly for the privilege, unless Dame Rumor is sadly astray, but to quote actual fact some Grantham farmers, anxious to be in touch with the outside world sent in a petetion to Victoria asking for the telephone to be installed The reply came in the form of a blank request which if signed by the would-be-subscriber would bind him to pay $5.50 per mont', less $1 if the account was paid by the 18th of each month. In view of the fact that the whole district is filling up with residents the price seems a heavy one to pay. Perhaps the farmers can talk over the scheme of having a farmers' telephone and so hold what will became a powerful monoply in check.

The farmers of the valley are, to use an expression, "finding themselves", even if slowly, to judge by the meeting, held under the auspices of the Farmer's Institute at Grantham school, last Saturday when Mr. Alexander Ledingham was the principal, and be it said also, an exponent of the way such an address should be given. The room was crowded and no one went away who was not highly delighted. The subject chosen was "The Care and Cultivation of the soil" and the speaker readily answered all questions put. Refreshments were dispensed by the ladies' and music was represented by selections from Mr. Janes' gramaphone and solos on the trombone from Mr. A. w. Blight.

GRANTHAM

A very interesting meeting of the Farmers' Institute was held on Saturday evening in the Grantham school house. A large number being present. Mr. Ledingham gave a very good address on "Care and Management of the Soil," including also general management of the farm, embracing the whole of this subject from clearing the land to making use of the products of the soil, the address being made very interesting by the audience putting questions and entering into the discussion. Mr. Ledingham gave many bits of good advice, one he particularly emphasized strongly by advising the young men, of the audience to get married, a good wife he considered being a most important factor in the management of a farm. The meeting was further enlivened by some very choice cornet solos from Mr. A. W. Blight, also selections on the gramaphone by Mr. Janes, which were very much appreciated.

Road work is proceeding apace in the Grantham district. We would feel grateful to the road foreman if he would have the stones taken off that part of the Campbell River road which crosess the Machin farm, as they are a great nuisance both to pedestrians and vehichular traffic, and as for bicycles they are almost out of the question.

HAPPY VALLEY

Sunday, March 23rd, was quite a red-letter day for church goers in the Minto district. At a large young people's meeting in the morning Mr. Craig spoke on "The Life and work of David Livingstone," christian missionary and explorer. It is just exactly one hundred years since Livingstone was born. Mr. John Mundell, J.P. and an elder of Sandwick Presbyterian congregation, addressed the Sunday school in the afternoon, taking as his subject "The Message of Easter," while in the evening Mr. Craig preached to a crowded and enthusiastic congregation, on "Hold fast that which is good.

The people, and especially the young folks, of Happy Valley, are indeed sorry to part with their missionary at this time, for Mr. Craig has been an inspiration to all. His plain, straightforward preaching has been appreciated, and his blackboard diagrams and illustrations of Old Testament scenes and characters have made the study of the Bible so interesting and instructive. Mr. Craig can teach as well as preach, and he has the art of adaptibility, so necessary in the making of a successful preacher. Happy Valley folks expect him to take a high place in church circles some day. They all wish him much success.

YOUNG VIOLINIST TO MAKE LONDON DEBUT

Pole of Twenty Years Acclaimed by Critics as Marvelous Player

Daniel Melsa, an exceedingly clever young violinist, who is acclaimed by competent critics as possessing supreme talent, has arrived in London, and will make his appearance at Steinway Hall.

There is nothing of the conventional musical genius about Melsa. He looks older than his years, which are not yet 20, but that is usual with his race. His black hair is close cropped, his eyes have a rather dreamy expression, but he is interested in everything and quite devoid of affectation. Of a singularly modest demeanor, he does not care to talk about himself and career, though he is full of gratitude toward those who have befriended him.

His early life was singularly sad and overshadowed by a great tragedy. Born at Warsaw in 1896, Melsa's parents removed to Lodz three years later. The boy, when quite small, had a passion for music, and his father bought him a violin, on which he taught himself to play melodies. He had no lessons until he was about 7 years of age, when a professor of Lodz happened to hear him play, and was so astonished at the talent he displayed that he advised his father to have the boy educated, and prophesied a great future for him.

After receiving instruction from minor musicians, the boy, at the age of 9, entered the conservatorium of Professor Grudzinski, where he remained two years.

Misfortune came in June 1905. One afternoon Melsa's father, accompanied by his little daughter, went out into the streets and never returned. This was the time of the Jewish massacres, and it was only after a week's search that the child's body was found riddled with bullets, in a deserted cemetery. Of the father no trace remained. During this awful period the boy and his mother were in imminent danger, but the Cossacks took pity on young Melsa, whom they remembered as having often delighted them with his violin playing, and thus his life and his mother's were spared.

When the last echoes of the Pogrom had died away sympathizing friends enabled the boy and his mother to go to Berlin, where his rare gifts soon won him a free course at the Klindworth-Scharwenka Conservatorium. The lad studied hard, and with such success, that in 1909, when but 16, he caused something of a sensation by winning the prize violin at a competition.

Mrs. Hill, wife of the American ambassador in Berlin, took a great interest in the boy, and it was chiefly through her influence that a fund was raised, to which many wealthy Germans and Americans contributed, to present Melsa with a violin and to place the family beyond want. A Bergonzi of 1727 was bought at a cost of $6250, and is now the cherished possession of the youthful virtuoso. He received further lessons from the well-known master, Prof. Karl Flesch, and on December 7 last Melsa made his debut in Berlin. His playing made a deep impression and met with a popular success quite out of the ordinary. Since then he has given two performances in Paris.

The young genius will make his home in this country until he goes to America in November, and will give some forty concerts.

The Golden Spur

A brewery concern began to build an extension to its premises. Many workmen were employed on the job, but the work of digging the foundations advanced very slowly, to the annoyance of the proprietor.

Suddenly it seemed as if new life had come into the men. From early dawn till late evening they worked with great industry, bidding defiance to wind and rain. When the ground had been excavated to the required depth the men had to be restrained from digging deeper still.

The brewer was delighted, but his curiosity was aroused as to how such remarkable energy was induced. He sought enlightment from a manager. That astute individual, under pressure confessed to a little subterfuge. He had placed in a worn-out earthern jar a slip of old parchment bearing the inscription: Great store of money lyeth buryed beneath thys spotte. He that fyndeth it may kepe it. Remember ye pore. He covered the jar with a piece of slate, and carefully buried it where the workmen were sure to find it.

I suppose that there are many problems which Polar explorers seek to solve? said the unscientific man.

Yes, replied the intrep'd traveller; a great many.

What is the most important one?

Getting back.

WARDEN'S APPEAL BREAKS CONVICT DOWN

Latter Hesitates to Use Gun and When Captured Bursts Into Tears

A daring attempt recently to escape from the Sante prison made by a 20-year-old convict, was frustrated owing to an appeal to his feelings.

Marcel Eckerlen is under sentence of five years' imprisonment for theft. His cell is next to the room of one of the jailers, and there is a spyhole between the two, so that the jailor may watch the convict.

Eckerlin can also watch the jailer, and on Wednesday he saw the jailer in the next room change into civilian clothes and go off for a day's lease. As soon as he had gone the convict broke away part of the wall round the spyhole and climbed through. He then dressed himself in the jailer's uniform and stole a revolver and $40 and started to leave the prison.

Fortunately his disappearance was noticed in time. The head warder, a man named Mailard, ordered a search for him in the prison, and found the convict in a workroom on the top floor.

When the chief warder opened the door of the workroom he was faced by the convict in warder's uniform and with a revolver. The warder in his hurry had not taken a weapon with him. He stood perfectly still, opened his arms wide and said: Surely you won't shoot the father of a family! The convict hesitated, the chief warder rushed at him, and he was overpowered, and burst into tears.

It was rumored in Paris that Eckerlen's attempt at escape had been followed by an attempt to set free a number of the ringleaders of the Bonnot-Garnier gang, who were consigned to the Sante prison, but this story is contradicted by the authorities.

Recognized Her

There were many good stories told about the late Mr. W. S. Penley, of "Charley's Aunt" fame. Perhaps one of the best was the tale he told himself about an old friend to whom he gave tickets for the theatre one evening. His friend came, accompanied by a daughter, and settled down in his stall with every intention of enjoying the play; but he had had a tremendously busy and tiring day, and during the first act he fell fast asleep.

His daughter, greatly concerned in case Mr. Penley might notice from the stage that her father had gone to sleep, reproached him bitterly for sleeping during his friend's performance.

It was disgraceful, she said; to which he retorted that she was mistaken, he hadn't been asleep at all, he declared positively. During the second act he sat bolt upright and did his best to keep awake; but just before the curtain fell he dozed off again, and his head dropped forward.

When the lights were turned up his daughter prodded him violently, at the same time hissing in his ear:

Papa, do remember where you are! Charley's Aunt!

Her father, still half asleep, only caught the last two words, but determined to show that he was wide awake he jumped to his feet and grasped the hand of an old lady who happened to be passing along the row of seats in front of him.

Charley's Aunt, he exclaimed, shaking hands warmly. Why, so it is! And how's Charley?

Henry Was Useful

Henry, said his father-in-law, as he called his daughter's spouse into the library and locked the door, you have lived with me now for over two years.

Yes, father.

In all that time I haven't asked you a penny for board.

No sir,—wonderingly.

In all your little family quarrels I have always taken your part and decided in your favor.

Always, sir.

I have even paid some of your bills.

A good many, father.

And in every way helped you to get along.

You have been very kind, sir.

I have tried to be, my boy, and I hope you appreciate it.

I do, sir.

Then the small favor I am about to ask of you will no doubt be granted?

Most certainly, sir.

Thanks. Then I want you to tell your mother-in-law that those tickets for the supper-club dance which she picked up in my room this morning must have accidentally fallen out of your pocket, and we'll call it square.

A Prior Claim

The lovely girl, having lingered a minute in her room to adjust her transformation, change the angles of her Grecian bend, and make sure that her skirt fitted like the skin of a plum, descended to the parlor to find the family pet ensconced upon the knee of the young man caller, her curly head nestled comfortably against his shoulder.

Why Mabel, the young lady exclaimed, aren't you ashamed of yourself? Get down this minute.

She—But how do I know you love me?

He—Why, I can't sleep at nights thinking of you.

She—That proves nothing. Pa can't sleep at nights thinking of you: but I hardly think it is love.

Doctors Said Incurable, But Now There is No Sign of Disease, Thanks to Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mde. N. Massey.

Psoriasis is one of the most dreaded of itching skin diseases. It is a sort of chronic eczema. The itching it causes is almost beyond human endurance, and doctors are accustomed to give it up as incurable.

But here is a case that was given up and pronounced incurable. The result proves that Dr. Chase's Ointment almost works miracles in curing the worst form of itching skin disease imaginable.

Mrs. Nettie Massey, Consecon, Ont., writes:—"For five years I suffered with what three doctors called psoriasis. They could not help me, and one of them told me if anyone offered to guarantee a cure for $50.00 to keep my money, as I could not be cured. The disease spread all over me, even on my face and head, and the itching and burning was hard to bear. I used eight boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and I am glad to say I am entirely cured, not a sign of a sore to be seen. I can hardly praise this ointment enough."

The soothing, healing influence of Dr. Chase's Ointment is truly wonderful. Eczema, salt rheum, barber's itch, ringworm and scores of such torturing ailments are relieved at once and as certainly cured if the Ointment is used persistently. Mothers find Dr. Chase's Ointment invaluable in preventing and curing the skin troubles of babies, such as chafing, irritations of the skin and baby eczema.

SHE USED ONLY THE NATURAL CURE

HOW NOVA SCOTIA WOMAN WAS RELIEVED OF HER HEART DISEASE

Made her Kidneys right with Dodd's Kidney Pills and all her troubles vanished speedily and completely.

Eel Creek, Cumberland Co., N.S.—Suffering from Female, Kidney and Heart Trouble, so run down, nervous and depressed that all the brightness had gone out of her life, and never expecting to be a healthy woman again, Mrs. J. W. Leadbetter of this place tried Dodd's Kidney Pills, and is once more in the best of health. Her simple statement is the best evidence that no case of Kidney disease is so bad that Dodd's Kidney Pills will not cure it.

"I was treated by five doctors," Mrs. Leadbetter states. "Four of them did me no good. The fifth operated on me and that gave me relief for a time. I had Female, Kidney and Heart trouble. I was so nervous and run down that my friends did not think I would ever get better.

"An advertisement led me to use Dodd's Kidney Pills and I found in them a cure for all my troubles. I cannot praise Dodd's Kidney Pills too highly."

Female Trouble and Heart Disease are caused by Kidney Disease. The natural way to cure them is to cure the Kidneys by using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Gertie—I wish you to know that I don't stand on trifles.

Helen (glancing at her feet)—No, dear; I see you don't.

It Testifies for Itself.—Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil needs no testimonial of its powers other than itself. Whoever tries it for coughs or colds, for cuts or contusions, for sprains or burns, for pains in the limbs or body, well know that the medicine proves itself and needs no guarantee. This shows why this Oil is in general use.

How Courtenay Strikes a Newcomer

In the first place let it be granted as Euclid would say, that the newcomer takes a broad and unprejudiced view of what he sees.

But before he investigates the commercial possibilities of the district he cannot fail to be most favourably impressed by the marvelous beauty of the scenery, and beauty of scenery is a very real asset to a growing town.

I know personally of a man and his wife who have traveled the world over and who know intimately the most lovely parts of the globe, who on their arrival at Comox harbor one bright and frosty morning decided forthwith that they had reached the promised land and need roam no further. Within a week they had bought their land and are prosperously settled.

But if Providence has been so lavish in giving Courtenay beautiful surroundings it is up to her inhabitants to make the town at least as attractive to look at as possible.

It does not give newcomers a favourable impression to see beside the main street and in the very heart of the town vacant lots which consist of half-burned logs, empty oil cans and every conceivable kind of rubbish.

If individual owners have not sufficient enterprise to clean up their own lots, then whatever public body has most influence in Courtenay should see to it that the stranger walking up the main street should be offended by no such eyesores as these rubbish heaps wedged in between up-to-date and prosperous looking stores.

A high limit is placed upon building permits in growing cities like Victoria, in order that residents who build fine $3000 houses may not have their property depreciated by a row of $500 shacks being put up next door.

We cannot all build expensive stores or houses on our property, but it is within our power to see that the main street is not lined with garbage heaps. If this is too candid it is that the Newcomer is not used to things as they have been for years; he sees a place as he finds it, and he finds that Nature has made it very beautiful, but up to now man does not seem to have done his share.

Of the further delights and more solid advantages of this district the Newcomer hopes to deal in subsequent issues of The Review.
