Creston on the Financial Map

Last week, Inspector Campbell, representing large eastern capital, arrived in Creston and passed on several loans submitted to him by Messrs Johnson and Scruton, local agents for his company which loans were on fruit lands at Creston. Mr. Campbell, who is a shrewd Scottish financier, stated that he had every confidence in the future of the fruit industry at Creston as a permanent and lucrative business. During his stay here, he in company with C. O. Rodgers, and President Briggs, of the Canyon City Lumber Company, toured the valley and made a personal inspection of the various choice fruit sections immediately tributary to Creston. Mr. Campbell, in speaking of the probability of the reciprocity agreement becoming law, stated that should that event happen he could not see how it would injure the fruit industry in Canada. Should the reciprocity agreement go through, his company would still be ready to advance money on the security of fruit lands in B.C. His company which represents a going concern with money loaned to the extent of over three millions in Canada, may now be considered as identifying themselves with the Creston District. Such a connection cannot fail to be of the greatest benefit to this valley and must be counted on as one of the most important events from a financial point of view in the history of the district.

The fact that this great company holds interests here, and thereby set their stamp of approval upon the land values of the district, is an event of the greatest importance, and puts Creston property on the financial map, so to speak, as a first class permanent proposition.

The loans negotiated through Messrs Johnson and Scruton aggregated $17,000, the smallest amount being $1,500, and most, if not all of this sum will be spent locally in labor and materials, making improvements to Creston Valley property, and thus adding to the prosperity and appearance of the district.

POLICE COURT

In the Police Court at an evening session last Tuesday, Peter Deer, a lumberjack appeared to answer a charge of drunk and disorderly. Peter had been misbahaving himself considerably at the Creston Hotel. In Court he pleaded guilty and after receiving some good advice as to his future conduct, Magistrate Johnson imposed a fine of $5 on the accused.

RECIPROCITY

Old Jonathan sang (as the chords he struck
Of "Over the Water to Charlie"):
"I'll cross the border to Johnnie Cannuck
And fool him over his barley.

"I'll grab up his wheat and wood and steel,
And herd up his heeves unruly—
Why, in course of time, I am sure he'll feel
That I am a neighbor truly.

"For Johnnie Cannuck is a peaceable lad,
And his goods are mine for the taking.
What is worth having is there to be had,
And I'll set young Johnnie awaking."

And, "What in return?" (He closed one eye.)
I'll offer him my protection;
If anything hostile comes why I—
I can look in the other direction.

"I'll give him my trusts and my combines fine,
And his food and his clothes shall be dearer;
And I'll see that he filches nothing of mine—
That's friendship. What could be clearer?"

But Johnnie said—(or he's going to say)——
And some of his words are——s, sir;
"I'm no longer a kid to be fooled this way,
By tariff agreement's sham, sir.

"I've a perfect right to protect my own,
And I'm husky enough to do it.
I'll frame a tariff, if not let alone,
That will make old Jonathan rue it."—Ex.

Rifle Association Holds Meeting

J. STOCKS ACCEPTS POSITION OF CAPTAIN-PRESIDENT. VICE A. S. FITZGERALD RESIGNED. NEW MARK 3 RIFLES.

By courtesy of the Mercantile Co, the Erickson-Creston Rifle Association held their meeting in their store, and there was gathered around the stove, a good number of members when the meeting opened at 8:45 p.m. Mr. J Stocks took the chair and balanced on the edge of a soap box, he brought the meeting to attention and business was proceeded with.

A letter from Captain A. S. Fitzgerald, resigning the position owing to his being unable to attend regularly at the range this season, was read. On a motion the resignation was accepted.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read by Secretary King and on a motion by R. G. Scruton, seconded by J. H. Hyde, were unanimously adopted.

A general discussion then followed, when Mr. Dickson proposed and Mr. Hyde seconded that Mr J. Stocks be offered the position of Captain-President, vacated by the resignation, and after some hesitation, and in view of the fact that the request was unanimous, Mr. Stocks decided to accept the post, amid applause. The discussion was then resumed. Mr. Stocks was of the opinion that the practice which had grown up during the past year, of all the shooting being done on Sundays, was detrimental to the Club and that if some arrangements could be made to guarantee a marker on Saturdays, some very desirable members would be secured for the Association. At present, it was, he said, optional on which day, Saturday or Sunday, members shot, but the practice had resulted in the Saturday shooting being dropped, and the range being crowded on Sunday.

Mr. J. H. Hyde moved, and R. G. Scruton seconded, that the committee arrange for a marker to be present on Saturday and Sunday during the season, to be paid at a rate of 50 cents per day from the club funds in addition to 10 cents per member shooting. Thus by guaranteeing a marker on Saturdays, would give all members who wished to shoot on that day an opportunity to do so. Carried unanimously.

Mr. T. Crawford was elected committeeman, vice, Mr. Stocks. The committee was instructed to draw up a program and were given power to act, and also to see to the dispatching of the service roll and the securing of the new rifles.

The service roll, which has now been signed by 31 members, will positively be closed on the 15th of March. All intending members are requested to give their names to Secretary King before that date. The meeting adjourned at 10:15 p.m.

FARMERS INSTITUTE IN SPECIAL MEETING

Large Attendance--Incorporation Affirmed, Capital Fixed at $10,000, in $10 Shares--Many Shares Subscribed--Boy Scouts Get Marching Orders.

The biggest crowd that ever gathered at any meeting of the Association, was present in the old schoolhouse on Saturday night, the 4th of March, when the Creston Farmers Institute met in special meeting.

A little preliminary exercise in the shape of some bag punching, including exhibitions by expert Andy Miller and others, put all in good shape, and the meeting was ready for business when President Rose called the meeting to order at 8:45 p.m.

After the minutes of the previous meeting had been read by Secretary W. K. Brown, and duly passed, the communications were dealt with, among these being a letter from W. E Scott, of the Agricultural Department, Victoria, asking for particulars of the stumping powder likely to be required during the present year, as arrangements were to be made for securing same at cost price, and enclosing forms to be filled up with the necessary particulars. The President then passed on to the subject of "Incorporation" which was the matter for which this special meeting had been called. He read the communication from W. E. Scott, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, and in a brief speech covered the ground gone over at the previous meeting of the Institute and fully reported in the last issue of the REVIEW. The meeting was then thrown open for discussion. Mr. Watson drew attention to the fact that it would be well for the word "Creston" to be included in the name of the proposed Corporation and the title was accordingly amended on resolution to "The Creston Farmers Incorporated Co-operative Corporation." This lengthy title was too much of a mouthful for some of those present, and a motion that the title be again amended to read "Creston Ranchers and Farmers, etc., etc., etc., etc," found no seconder. A series of questions bearing on the subject were fired at the President from all sides; Mr. McMurtry, Mr. Hockley, J. Heath, A. Lindley, P. Mann, A. D. Pochin, S. S. Fairhead, W. V. Jackson, W. A. Pease, J. Hayden, J. Blinco, and others asking for information, which was given by the President, or supplied by reading extracts from the Act. Mr. W. S. Watson moved that the nominal capital be fixed at $5,000. Seconded by Mr. McMurtry. Mr. S. S. Fairhead moved an amendment that the share capital be $20,000. Seconded by W. V. Jackson. After some discussion, Mr. W. A. Pease moved a further amendment that the nominal capital be $10,000 in $10 shares. The original motion and Mr. Fairhead's amendment were withdrawn, and the proposal to capitalise at $10,000, was unanimously carried.

Mr. Hayden asked that the Secretary please read the name of the Corporation once again, and without as much as winking an eye Secretary Brown rolled the imposing title off his chest, adding the words "Capital $10,000" amid a chorus of cheers.

President Rose then made a neat speech, complementing the members upon the progressive step about to be taken, and pointing out the necessity of every rancher and farmer in the valley taking a share in the undertaking, and so obtaining the benefits to be derived from membership in such a corporation. Mr. Rose intimated, that as soon as the shares had been allotted, the building of the warehouse would be prosecuted with vigor, and that there was evidence of sufficient support being forthcoming to insure the incorporation being a great success.

Just before the meeting closed, the matter of the Boy Scouts having the use of the schoolhouse, was brought up by several members of the Institute. In the discussion it was disclosed that the opinion of the members was that the Boy Scouts had not lived up to their agreement to leave the hall in ship shape after using same, and it was decided on a motion, to rent the hall and to use same exclusively for the Farmers Institute and Fruit Growers Association meetings.

THAT CONSCIENCE CLAUSE

Victoria, Feb 28.—A conscience clause was added to the Health Act in the legislature today. By this amendment, persons who object to vaccination will be afforded a means of avoiding it. The clause reads as follows:

"Any regulation heretofore made and in force, or hereafter to be made by the provincial board of health, requiring the vaccination or revaccination of all persons resident within the jurisdiction of any health officer, shall be deemed not to apply to any person who makes an affidavit or a statutory declaration before a magistrate or any other person authorized to take oaths, to the effect that the person conscientiously believes that vaccination would be prejudicial to his health (or to the health of his child, as the case may be) or for conscientious reasons objects to vaccination; and such person shall deliver or transmit by registered mail to the health officer of the district in which he resides a certificate by such magistrate or other official person before whom the oath was taken of such conscientious objection."

With this amendment the bill was given its third reading.

YAHK NEWS NOTES

Work is progressing rapidly on the store building of M. McLoed, the merchant.

The King Lumber Company started up their saw mill at Yahk on March 1st. This company has just brought in six more teams for hauling logs which makes 19 teams in all.

The strong sun shining on the hill sides is melting the snow very fast.

Contractors Smith and Hutchinson are doing good work in their pole camp, and will make a stake before they quit Yahk, if they have good luck.

We have received several communications regarding those English Sparrows; the REVIEW has done its best, at the request of the ranchers, to call the attention of those interested to this evil in the early stages and when it could easily be dealt with and suppressed. Our columns are not at the disposal of correspondents who write in acrimonous terms or from purely personal motives, and these communications, which have no practical bearing on the subject and can do nothing but harm, have been consigned to the waste paper basket.—Editor.

Father Beck was in town on Monday last, having come up from Cranbrook to visit a sick Indian girl who was in a very low condition. In conversation with the Review reporter, Father Beck stated that the Indians at St. Jean Mission who numbered about 200 were in a fairly prosperous state enjoying pretty good health. He however thought that at Creston the Indians should have a local doctor as Cranbrook was too long a distance for them to have to send for a doctor. In the case he had just visited, the Indian girl was dying and no medical treatment had been provided for her, she was simply being treated by the Indians.

The slaughter house in the course of erection by P. Burns and Co., is taking shape rapidly. The enterprising proprietor of the Creston Meat Market is certainly sparing no expense to have the valuable property held by the firm here put into first class condition for the increasing trade. The provision of the modern and well equipped ice house at the Canyon Street Store, and the erection of this new slaughter house, have involved a large outlay in material and labor, and are a proof of the faith shown by the P. Burns Co. in the business future of the town and district.

THE MAN AND THE HOUR

And the Sin of Omission Alice Charged Against Herself.

By KEITH GORDON.

Elinor for the first time in her life was looking the future squarely in the eye. Hitherto she had been content to nibble at life, munching away contentedly enough, satisfied with the joy of the moment. And she might have gone on so for an indefinite time had it not been for the occurrence of the 3d of June.

New Year's day is significant only because then, by common consent, time moves up a number. This particular June 3 made an indelible impression on Elinor's mind because on that day she began to be thirty-two—began at the very beginning, of course, but still she began.

"I shall say I'm thirty-one all this year anyway," she announced defiantly to that other self that receives our dearest confidences. "It's such bad form to say you're thirty-one years and two months old, or whatever it may happen to be. And if I have to write it I'll make it thirty-one in round numbers—not even thirty-one plus." All of which, as the reader can see, was very unscrupulous.

However, as she found, by far the worst thing about beginning to be thirty-two was the fact that you couldn't forget it. The harder you tried the better you remembered it.

"Well, what if I am?"

This was the remark that our heroine slung into space when, after a week of torment, she sat down with her chin resting on her hands to have the thing out. "What if I am? So are plenty of other gir—women, I mean. Alice is thirty, Mary thirty-one, Mabel twenty-eight."

She paused in her enumeration, struck by the thought that all these friends were married. Matrimony was a subject to which she had given the minimum of thought. She supposed she'd come to it some time, but she was in no hurry to enter that narrow pasture so long as there was pleasant browsing to be had outside.

When she had thought of it at all it had seemed to mean chiefly a tiresome round of housekeeping that resulted in three perpendicular lines just over the nose, a memorandum of worry that she secretly determined to avoid as long as possible. But now that she was beginning to be thirty-two the thing was different.

Could it be, she asked herself, that she had made a mistake after all and that those three incisive lines were as much of an honor as an officer's bars? Could it be that there was a point when one began to be thirty-two, for instance, when becomingness demanded that one should lay aside "Miss" just as it required that one should stop wearing pink?

She faced her plight with a stiff upper lip, realizing that she had no one but herself to blame. There had been a number of men—the mischievous dimple at the corner of her mouth danced into sight for a second at the thought of how many—who had done their best to stop her in what she now recognized for the first time her mad career. She had declined their offers kindly, but with a certain royal carelessness that recked not of possible dark hours to come. When did any woman born to the belief in the divine right of queens ever foresee dethronement?

She had inadvertently "lived over," as she had once heard it quaintly phrased. There was no doubt about it, she was an old maid! She repeated it aloud in all its brutal truth, scorning such euphemisms as "spinster" and "bachelor woman."

"You're an old maid—just a plain old maid!" she said audibly. But it sounded like a joke—like one of those things too bad to be true. She would probably wake up after a bit to find that she had been married since her eighteenth year and had a son ready to enter college and a daughter about to make her debut.

No such happy awakening came, however, and with desperate philosophy she decided that since she was an old maid she would enter into the role for all it was worth. At least she would avoid the error of being kittenish.

Little by little her plainest gowns were brought into requisition. Certain little graces and frivolities of the toilet were one by one abandoned. She timidly asked Alice, her closest friend, to teach the children to call her "auntie," a thing which she had hitherto forbidden under the penalty of a sudden death to the cherub that should first be guilty of it.

"What is the matter with you?" gasped Alice, with a stare of amazement. "And what have you been doing with your hair, and why are you wearing that ugly old dress, with all the handsome things that you have?"

"I'm just wearing the things suitable to my age before the dear friends have a chance to point them out to me," was the answer. And that night her friend confided to her husband, with thoughtful regret, that Elinor was becoming a regular old maid.

Another of her friends and comrades, Max Anderson, also noticed the subtle change. Theirs had been a sort of brother and sister friendship of long standing. For years he had scolded and criticised and bullied her. The one thing that he hadn't done was to make love, and Elinor had long since given up trying to make him.

"Haven't you ever been in love, Max?" she had asked him once, with genuine curiosity in the gray eyes that had been more than one man's undoing. A dull flush came up into his face, and he looked at her strangely.

"Yes," he answered shortly. "I have. Beautiful night, isn't it?" she went on after a moment, and there was a touch of mockery in his voice that made the questioner wince. After that she asked him no more.

"What's up?" he demanded, surveying her cynically as she came down to receive him one evening, with renunciation speaking from every line of her plain gown and her smooth, parted hair. "Is it some sort of lay sackcloth and ashes? What particular sin are you mourning?"

"The great sin of omission!" she answered demurely as they sat down opposite each other. But he looked incredulous. He had not known her fifteen years for nothing.

"Commission, you mean," he said dryly, with an air of remembering things.

"No; omission! I'd tell you about it, only you're never any comfort to a person. You're just like a stone, Max. I don't know how I've endured you so long."

He turned his eyes lazily upon her with a look long, steady, inscrutable. Neither spoke, but after a moment Elinor, with a beautifully assumed air of perfect ease, sought refuge in a study of the pattern of the carpet.

"Possibly I may tell you some time," he said, with a nonchalant laugh, "but go on; let me hear what's the trouble. You always tell me eventually."

And so, in fact, she did. It was the beauty of Max that he made you like and hate him simultaneously. But no matter what you felt you wanted him, and you usually confided in him. That at least had been Elinor's experience, and it was being repeated for the hundredth time now. She wanted to tell him; she always wanted to tell him everything. She leaned forward suddenly, with a childish bid for sympathy in her eyes.

"You see, Max, I've omitted to get married. And now I'm thirty-one"—

"Plus," he corrected gravely.

"Thirty-one," she continued firmly, "and, though it's been great fun—well, all at once I realized that I'm an old maid. It's so unexpected. Why haven't I married? That's what I don't understand."

There was a pause in which it seemed to her that she suddenly heard the beating of her own heart. Before she fully realized what had happened her hands were held close and Max was saying:

"Look at me, Elinor, and see if you can't find out. I've waited years for you to finish sowing your wild oats."

Part of the Game.

The best kind of wit is not the broad joke or quip, but the remark which summarizes the truth of a situation in a striking and, if possible, humorous fashion. President Lowell of Harvard is credited with a reply which meets these conditions. It was at a dinner in England where John Burns, the labor leader, was present. Mr. Burns was talking about some bygone custom of government.

"That is as obsolete," he said, "as the constitution of the United States. Am I not right, Mr. Lowell?"

"I am reminded," returned the other, "of a remark which I overheard at a tennis tournament. Two old ladies were watching the game. One of them said, 'How much easier it would be for the players if that net were not in the way!' The constitution is our net."

Forests of the Philippines.

After several years' investigation of the forests of the Philippine Islands Dr. H. N. Whitford is enabled to make some statements concerning their extent and richness which will be likely to surprise many readers. He says, for instance, that the virgin forest area of the islands, covering 25,000,000 acres, contains 200,000,000,000 board feet of lumber, and he contrasts this with the 400,000,000,000 feet of timber growing on the 200,000,000 acres contained in the forest reserves of the United States. In other words, the Philippine forests are, acre for acre, four times as rich as those of this country. Other authorities agree with Dr. Whitford in the opinion that when the world's eyes are opened to the value of the tropical forests a great asset will have been added to the common wealth of mankind.

Dickens and Marshalsea Prison.

A very interesting relic of one of the London prisons demolished in the course of the Victorian era is about to figure in an auction room in the west end. This is the actual iron and oak grill from the old Marshalsea prison in Southwark, behind which, it is said, the father of Charles Dickens was confined for debt. Readers of the immortal works of the son will not need to be reminded of the fact that the best description of the interior of the famous prison and the life led therein is given in "Little Dorrit." Like more than one other in the London area, the prison was finally razed to the ground in 1890. It was used almost entirely for persons committed for debt and contempt of court and for admiralty prisoners.—London News.

Corn Mills.

Corn mills are often mentioned in the Bible. The original corn mill much resembled the modern druggist's pestle. Moses forbade corn mills to be taken in pawn, for that, he thought, was something like taking a man's life in pledge.

A CHRISTMAS VAMPIRE.

A fool there was, and he made a gift
(Even as you or I).
He bought it with taste and care and thrift
(For a lady his friends thought rather swift),
And when he gave it the lady sniffed
(Even as you or I).

Oh, the judgment and taste and time we waste
On the gifts at Christmastide,
Which we give to the lady who isn't pleased
(And now we know she could never be pleased
And never be satisfied)!

A fool there was, and he gave his check
(Even as you or I)
For a necklace of pearls without a fleck
(And it didn't the least suit the lady's neck),
And she never thanked him a single speck
(Even as you or I).

Oh, the chink we lose and the think we lose
On the things we buy with pride
To give to the lady who never is pleased
(And now we know she can never be pleased
And never be satisfied)!

The fool was fleeced to his last red cent
(Even as you or I)
She threw him aside when his gold was spent
(And nobody cared where the lady went).
And the fool gave way to loud lament
(Even as you or I).

And it wasn't the loss, and it wasn't the dross,
The reason that same fool cried.
It was coming to know that she never was pleased
(Seeing at last she could never be pleased
And never be satisfied).

Mollie Knew.

Little Mollie, the daughter of a popular physician, has a most vigorous imagination. Indeed, it is such a very vigorous imagination that it runs away with Mollie's honesty, to her parents' great dismay.

The other day her mother overheard her telling a story to Bobby Davis, a neighbor. It was a very interesting story. It related, with every appearance of truth, the adventures of Mollie on an airship. Now, Mollie's mother knew very well that the child had never seen an airship in her life, so she called her away from Bobby Davis and began to talk to her.

"Mollie, don't you know that you make mother very unhappy by telling such awful stories?" she asked. Mollie hung her head and said nothing.

"Don't you know what happened to Ananias and Sapphira?" the mother continued. And Mollie looked up brightly.

"Oh, yes," she said. "I know all about them. They were struck dead for lying. I saw them being carried into the corner drug store."—Chicago Journal.

"Ah, indeed! And you think there may be a chance that he'd come back tomorrow? I doubt it. Good night!" —Toledo Leader.

Woman's World

Miss Packer Runs Ship's Wireless.

MISS GRAYNELLA PACKER.

The chief object of interest to the 300 first cabin passengers who sailed recently from New York on the Clyde liner Mohawk for Jacksonville was a young woman wearing a blue serge uniform with short skirt and navy cap, who stood on the promenade deck forward on the starboard side waiting for the gangway to be taken down. She was the last improvement in wireless telegraphy, Captain Kemble said—a woman operator.

Miss Graynella Packer of Jacksonville will have charge of the Mohawk's wireless room on the trip to Jacksonville and back. She is the first woman to take this post on board ship, coastwise or otherwise. If the experiment proves a success the company will put women on their other vessels, the officials say.

Domestic Superstitions.

If when washing dishes you forget an article it is a sign you will hear of a wedding.

If you sing while making bread you will cry before it is eaten.

If your apron becomes untied it is an indication that somebody is speaking of you.

To forget to put coffee in the coffeepot is the sign of a coming gift.

To accidentally place the teakettle on the stove with the spout toward the back is a sign of company.

If a coal of fire falls on the floor it is a sign a stranger is coming to see you.

If after sweeping a room the broom is accidentally left in a corner strangers will visit the house that day.

MYSTERIOUS DREAMS.

Phantasms of the Night That Have Caused a Sensation.

The interest in the general election in the British Isles gave way to the sensation caused by the evidence given by Mr. Claude Sawyer in the Waratah case. Mr. John Dickinson, who conducted the Board of Trade inquiry into the mysterious disappearance of this liner between Durban and Cape Town last June, said at the close, "I heartily congratulate you, Mr. Sawyer, on being alive and being here to give evidence." Mr. Sawyer told that three or four days before the ill-fated vessel reached Durban, he had "a dream, which was most unusual." He had booked a first-class passage from Sydney to Cape Town by the Waratah, and he seems to have felt anxiety before leaving Australian waters. Three times he had a dreaming vision of a man in a peculiar dress, who was holding in his right hand a bloody sword. "The second time it came, I thought, 'I will know it again'; and the third time I looked at it so intently that I could almost design it, sword and all, even now. Next day I mentioned the dream to a gentleman, and he said, 'It's warning.' Then I began to think why I should be warned, and I was anxious to leave the ship." He left it at Durban.

Perhaps the strangest story of a dream at sea is that told by George Burrow in the opening pages of "The Bible in Spain." "I was bound for Lisbon. We passed Cape Finisterre, and, standing farther out to sea, speedily lost sight of land. On the morning of the 11th the sea was very rough, and a remarkable circumstance occurred. I was on the forecastle, discoursing with two of the sailors. One of them, who had but just left his hammock, said: 'I have had a strange dream, which I do not much like, for,' continued he, pointing to the mast, 'I dreamt that I fell into the sea from the cross-trees' He was heard to say this by several of the crew besides myself

A moment later the captain of the vessel, perceiving that the squall was increasing, ordered the top-sails to be taken in, whereupon this man, with several others, instantly ran aloft; the yard was in the act of being hauled down, when a sudden gust of wind whirled it round with violence, and a man was struck down from the cross-trees into the sea, which was working like yeast below. In a short time he emerged. I saw his head on the crest of a billow, and instantly recognized in the unfortunate man the sailor who a few moments before had related his dream. I shall never forget the look of agony he cast whilst the steamer hurried past him. . . . The poor fellow who perished in this singular manner was a fine young man of about twenty-seven, the only son of a widowed mother. He was the best sailor on board, and was beloved by all who were acquainted with him."

May Knight Women.

In olden days they were not so chary of recognizing feminine services. The abbesses of great nunneries used to be "knighted" and even now there is a charming young French woman, who, though, unmarried, is a countess in her own right by reason of being the Chanoinesse of a religious order.

At present in England there is something anomalous in the fact that man takes all the titles, stars, and ribands, as well as place, power, and money, and allows the women folk to toil all their lives at inferior salaries and with no hope even of those ornamental rewards, such as coronets and orders, to which human nature is so persistently attached.

It has been whispered, though, that the two ladies who have been elected Mayors of English towns, will be knighted during this coronation year, precisely as their masculine compeers will receive this honor at the hands of King George.

The idea should be persistently dwelt on, as the circulation of such a rumor may lead to the foundation of some order—with a title attached—which can be bestowed on eminent women, whether married, single or widows.

Reprobate's Disturbed Slumber.

Dr. Armstrong Robinson, Dean of Westminster, who has been transferred to the Deanery of Wells, Somerset, a position which will not entail such a strain upon his health as life in the Metropolis, was the last canon appointed by the late Lord Salisbury, and the first dean to gain preferment under Mr. Balfour's regime as Prime Minister.

Dr. Robinson is a scholar of the first rank, and is an impressive preacher. He does not mince his words when he wishes to drive home a point, and beneath a somewhat austere appearance there lurks a refreshing capacity for humor.

One of his best stories is about an old reprobate who had decided to repent, and announced to everyone that whatever wrong he had done should be made right. So one of the villagers to whom he owed a big sum of money, went round to his cottage at midnight to demand it. "But what did you come at this hour for and wake me up? Why not wait until tomorrow?" asked the old sinner. "I came early," said the other, "to avoid the crush!"

Irish M.P.'s Cheap Election.

With the exception of the returning officer's fee, Mr. J. McVeagh's election as Nationalist M.P. for South Down cost him nothing. At a meeting to celebrate his success, he told his supporters that they had achieved victory without expending a copper on the payment of agents, literature, postage, printing, or even on the issue of polling cards. They declined the offer of motor-cars and not a single elector was canvassed.

SAVED HER FINGER.

Mrs. R. E. Bedwell, of 337 Provencher Ave., St. Boniface, Winnipeg, says:—"Some time ago my children took diphtheria, and while attending them the poison entered a small scratch on the second finger of my left hand. This became very sore and blood-poisoning soon set in. For months after the children were quite well I was suffering from a shockingly bad finger. The scratch was caused originally by a pin, and in itself, was not at all serious. The consequences, however, of neglecting this scratch, were very serious to me.

"When the blood-poisoning set in I tried poultices and a salve I had in the house. These, however, did not have the desired effect. Quite on the contrary the finger became more and more swollen and discolored. It then began to fester, and I had to call in a doctor. He lanced the finger to let out the pus, and you can imagine how painful the finger was! Despite his care, however, it again festered and the ointments, liniments, and other preparations which the doctor gave me seemed absolutely unable to bring about any relief.

"The doctor thereupon advised me to go into the St. Boniface Hospital. I feared that if I went to the Hospital the finger would be amputated. We were told of a case similar to my own in which Zam-Buk had effected a cure when everything else had failed and the doctor had said that only amputation could save the person's hand.

"We, therefore, decided to give Zam-Buk a trial. A supply was procured, and we commenced the Zam-Buk treatment. It only needed a few days to show the wisdom of this step. The blood-poisoning and inflammation were reduced, the pain became less acute, and it was evident very shortly that the trouble was being reduced to a less and still less area. We persevered with the Zam-Buk and in the end the festering sore was thoroughly cleaned, then healed. In under three weeks from first commencing with Zam-Buk, the finger was entirely well; and had we applied Zam-Buk in the first place, instead of trying ordinary preparations, no doubt I should have saved myself hours and hours of acute agony."

All mothers should note this case. Zam-Buk is a sure cure for blood-poisoning, festering, cuts, scratches from barbed wire, bruises, eczema, rashes, tetter, salt rheum, face sores, ulcers, piles, bad leg, varicose veins, and all skin injuries and diseases. 50c a box, all druggists and stores or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Send 1c stamp for postage of free trial box. Refuse all imitations.

ASK YOURSELF THESE QUESTIONS

And find out if you have kidney disorders. Also make this test.

Have you pains in the back over the kidneys?

Have you urinary disorders?

Do you suffer from severe headaches, dizziness or defective eyesight?

Is the skin dry and harsh?

Are you failing in health and strength and suffering from rheumatic pains or swelling of the limbs?

These are a few of the symptoms of kidney disease, and here is the test.

If the urine, after standing for twenty-four hours is cloudy, milky or has particles floating about in it, or if there is a sediment in the bottom of the vessel, your kidneys are diseased.

There is no time to lose in beginning the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills. Delay means the development of Bright's Disease, and you do not want to take any chances with that. Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills will help you more quickly than any treatment you can obtain and that is one reason why they are so successful and popular.

Mr. W. H. Mosher, South Augusta, Grenville county, Ont., writes:—"I used Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills and firmly believe there is no medicine to equal them. I was troubled for years with kidney disease, and this treatment has cured me. When I began the use of these pills I could only walk from my bed to a chair. Now I can go to the field and work like any other man. Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills are an excellent medicine." This statement is certified to by the Rev. E. H. Emett, Baptist minister, of Brockville, Ont.

Success doesn't "happen." It is organized, pre-empted, captured by concentrated common sense.

HEALTHY CHILDREN ARE A BLESSING

Healthy babies are good babies, and the good baby is a blessing in every home. Nothing can give the mother or father more pleasure than to see baby play. Every movement is watched with delight; every new word spoken brings pride to the fond parents. It is only the sickly baby that makes home wretched — and, mothers, it is not baby's fault when he is sick. You are the one to blame. Perhaps you give him candies, cakes and other food which his little stomach is unable to digest. Then when he is cross and ailing you give him some "soothing" mixtures to quiet him. That is wrong—remember his little stomach is not as strong as a grown persons, and also remember that every spoonful of "soothing" mixture you give him only does him more injury—it does not remove the cause of his fretfulness—it merely dopes him into an unnatural sleep. What is needed to make baby healthy and happy is Baby's Own Tablets—a medicine with a guarantee of safety. About them Mrs. Mathies McCormick, West St. Peters, P.E.I., writes: "We have used Baby's Own Tablets with good results. They are certainly a blessing for mothers that have cross sickly babies. They sweeten the stomach; give refreshing sleep and make baby fat and healthy." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

VERY SHORT AND RIGHT TO THE POINT

FRANK MILLER TELLS WHY HE RECOMMENDS DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

He used them for Rheumatism, Heart Disease and Lumbago, and they went right to the root of his troubles.

Elkmouth, B.C. (Special).—Frank Miller, section foreman on the railroad here, whose work exposes him to all kinds of weather, has discovered that Dodd's Kidney Pills are a sovereign remedy for those Kidney ills that almost invariably follow neglected colds.

"For four years I suffered from Lumbago, Heart Disease and Rheumatism, brought on from a cold," says Mr. Miller, "And I got the very best results from using Dodd's Kidney Pills. I freely recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to anyone suffering from these diseases."

Short and to the point, that statement, isn't it? But it is just like Dodd's Kidney Pills. They go right to the point. They cure the Kidneys. Healthy Kidneys strain all the impurities out of the blood. Pure blood means good circulation and renewed life and energy all over the body.

Thus Dodd's Kidney Pills not only cure disease. They tone up the whole body and make a man feel that he has been given a new lease of life. That's why people all over Canada are shouting the praises of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

A girl likes to have proposals, so she won't have to fib so much about having them anyhow.

Origin of Patents.

Patents (from patoe, I lie open) originated with the so-called nobility of France. Lest their superiority to other folks should be in doubt, the nobles got out titles of nobility, so that the fact that they were better than the rest of the people might "lie open" to all the world. It was in connection with the printing of books that the first real patents were issued, about 1550. By 1625 it began to be customary to issue patents protecting the rights of inventors in the arts and manufactures. Since that time the people in the various "patent offices" of the world have had a steadily increasing business.

The City of Paris.

The founders of Paris, emigrating from some Greek or Etruscan country on the shores of the Mediterranean Sea, rowed their galleys up the river Seine. They took possession of the island in that stream on which their city is built and, according to the legends that have come down to the present time, called it "Baris," which is Greek for a boat then used upon the river Nile, whence Paris. The island on which the adventurers landed was held to typify a boat, and to this day the coat of arms of that famous city is an ancient galley.

Relief for the Depressed.—Physical and mental depression usually have their origin in a disordered state of the stomach and liver, as when these organs are deranged in their action the whole system is affected. Try Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. They revive the digestive processes, act beneficially on the nerves and restore the spirits as no other pills will. They are cheap, simple and sure, and the effects are lasting.

Gladstone and the Heckler.

Mr. Gladstone was altogether intolerant of the heckler. During his last Midlothian campaign he was questioned by Sir (then Mr.) John Usher of Norton, who had once been Gladstone's chairman of committee, on the subject of the Irish proposals, which sundered so many political friendships. To one or two inquiries a curt reply was given. "Am I to understand"—Mr. Usher was beginning. "Understand!" The old statesman leaped to his feet. "I am responsible for the understanding that the Almighty has put in this skull of mine," tapping his forehead. "I am not responsible," pointing his finger at the questioner, "for the understanding that He has put in that skull of yours." The effect of this rebuke was overwhelming. Mr. Usher sank speechless into his seat.—Westminster Gazette.

What Carlyle Wrote of Tennyson.

Tennyson in his primo was thus described by Thomas Carlyle to Ralph Waldo Emerson on Aug. 5, 1844: "One of the finest looking men in the world. A great shock of rough, dusty dark hair; bright, laughing, hazel eyes; massive aquiline face — most massive, yet most delicate, of sallow brown complexion, almost Indian looking; clothes cynically loose, free and easy; smokes infinite tobacco. His voice is musically metallic, fit for loud laughter and piercing wail, and all that may lie between; speech, and speculation free and plentuous. I do not meet in these late decades such company over a pipe."

Bravery and Poverty.

To be able to look cheerfully and hopefully through clouds of poverty and distress is an accomplishment bestowed upon every true and brave woman, and, no matter how poor or humble her home may be, the magic power of smiles can brighten its shadows and lighten its cares. Upon the troubled mind of a feeling husband a wife's smile falls like a sunbeam on a flower, and how much more beautiful it makes the face that wears it than a frown? When a wife and mother, forgetting sorrows and hardships, smiles away her tears, there is a loveliness in the act that speaks to a man's heart more eloquently than words.

As It Goes

In the corner she's left the mechanical toy,
On a chair is her Teddy Bear fine,
The things that I thought she would really enjoy
Don't seem to be quite in her line.
There's the flaxen haired doll that is lovely to see
And really expensively dressed,
Left alone, all uncared for, and, strange though it be,
She likes her rag dolly the best.

Oh, the money we spent, and the plans that we laid
And the wonderful things that we bought!
There are toys that are cunningly, skillfully made
But she seems not to give them a thought,
She was pleased when she woke and discovered them there,
But never a one of us guessed
That it isn't the splendor that makes a gift rare—
She likes her rag dolly the best.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

TWO LIONS AT BAY.

Thrilling Experience of an English Music Hall Comedian.

Stage fright of the sort that afflicted Whit Cunliffe, at one time a prominent singer in English music halls, is not avoidable. Fortunately also it is not common. At a place where he was engaged in Binningham one of the attractions was a lion show, some of the beasts being really wild and untamed. Nearly the whole stage was taken up with the setting of the animal show.

"Just as I was going on," said Cunliffe in telling of the incident, "I heard a hurried rush and confused shouting, and some one slammed an iron gate. I heard a voice say: 'Just in time, he was nearly out.' My music was starting, so I had not time to enquire. I went on the stage.

"In a moment I heard ominous growls and savage snarls, mixed with much whip-cracking and strenuous breathing. I am never fond of a wild animal show, and I felt distinctly nervous that night. The cloth behind me sagged and swayed, and then to my horror suddenly in the wings I saw the huge head and front of a lion.

"I was singing a song called I Would, which had a lot of short verses. As I sang them, my blood running cold. I watched the lion. It seemed to advance slowly, and its baneful eyes glittered in a truly horrible way. I could not go off that side without passing it, so I prepared to make my exit with haste.

"Turning, I was horrified to see another lion on the other side.

"I was caught like a mouse in a trap, I dared not go off the stage; I dared not show my discomfiture to the audience. There was only one thing for me to do—sing. So I sang in desperation, hoping that some one would come and take the lions away. They told me afterwards that I sang ninety-eight verses, but I think that was unkind.

"I wondered how long it would take those two brutes to make up their mind to come into the full glare of the footlights, and I had just prepared to leap into the stalls, regardless of the consequences, when I heard the hoarse voice of one of the stage hands say, ''Ere, Bill, these two chaps are too far forward. Give a 'and with them, will yer?' And coming up between the two lions they lifted them bodily. They were papier mache."—Scraps.

Two Wordsworth Anecdotes.

A correspondent of The Spectator (London) contributes two anecdotes of Wordsworth. "The scornful pity felt by an old gardener for Darwin, who, as he toiled among the idle rich, reminds me of an anecdote which I have somewhere come across about the similarly unproductive Wordsworth":

An old laborer near Rydal, who had often seen the poet, had been struck by his odd way of spouting his verses out-of-doors. When he was thus "booing his pottery" he seemed to the peasant to be quite daft; but his malady was intermittent, for actually he could sometimes say "Good morrow, John," just like anyone else. This may be supplemented by one of the Wordsworthiana which came to me on good authority. Some thirty years ago an aged lady who in her girlhood had known the poet, told me that he once showed her a daisy besprinkled with dew and applied to it the lines which I quote from memory:

Small service is true service while it lasts;
Of friends, however humble, scorn not once;
The daisy by the shadow that it casts
Protects the lingering dewdrop from the sun.

I rather gathered that the stanza was composed on the spot; but it is possible that it had been written before, and was drawn from the poet by the object-illustration. This incident seems to me worth mentioning. It awakened a special interest in a grandson of Wordsworth, who told me that it was almost, if not quite, the only one of his great kinsman's poems the occasion of which had been unknown to him.

A Bust of Rolls.

The bust of the late Mr. C. S. Rolls, upon which the sculptor, Mr. W. C. May, has been engaged, under the supervision of Lady Llangattock, has now been finally approved. The bust, which is looked upon as a remarkably successful study of the distinguished aviator and motorist, is borne upon a four-side pedestal, each of the four sides being ornamented with a panel descriptive of a notable event in Mr. Roll's career. These represent: The Paris to Sherborne (Norfolk) balloon voyage; starting for Calais (aeroplane flight); Paris to Berlin (motor race); Dover to Calais and back (aeroplane flight). The rear of the bust itself, instead of being left in the rough, as is usual, is finished with a modelling of roses and inscribed with the name "Charles Stewart Rolls," together with a Latin phrase prophesying that the aviator will be renowned to posterity. Mr. May, it will be remembered, was the sculptor employed on the national Armada Memorial erected by the nation on Plymouth Hoe.

The Unionist Organizer.

At the Conservative Central Office, Westminster, sits the man, Mr. James Percival Hughes, who organizes and directs the British Tory forces. Mr. Hughes became chief agent of the Tory party in 1907, and the arduousness of the work may be gathered from the fact that he once confessed that he barely found time for a daily walk. Mr. Hughes has had a varied career. In the first place, he was private secretary to the late Col. Fred. Burnaby, gallant soldier and pioneer aeronaut, and after the latter's death was left trustee of his estates in Ireland on behalf of the colonel's only son, who has distinguished himself as the inventor of the Atalanta mono-rail high-speed system. Then Mr. Hughes was called to the Bar, but his high reputation as an organizer and his fondness for political work led him to his present responsible position.

SPRAYS AND SPRAYING

LECTURE DELIVERED AT CRESTON ON 13TH FEBRUARY IN THE MERCANTILE HALL, BY PROVINCIAL FRUIT EXPERT J. F. CARPENTER.

Sprays and Spraying is what might be termed a new branch of fruit growing, machinery has only been used very recently in the control of orchard pests. The principal pest to be controlled is Aphis, but it is necessary to have sprays of two kinds for combatting the two different classes of insect pests, namely the biting and the sucking insects.

For the biting insects there are a large number of sprays of which the three chief are Arsnate of Lead, Paris Green and Arsnate of Lime, and these are reduced to one brand par excellence, namely Arsnate of Lead. This is considered the most superior insecticide for biting insects that is on the market. We recommend the paste form of "Arsnate of Lead." The mixture for summer spray should be two lbs. of paste to about forty gallons of water. The best way to mix is to mix first in a small quantity of water, and then to pour same into the remainder of the water.

For sucking insects there are various sprays, but they are narrowed down to one, namely "Black Leaf" This can be obtained in five gallon cans, and for summer spray should be diluted 1 6 There are also sprays used for the control of fungus diseases such as apple scab, etc., including Bordeaux Mixture, and Lime Sulpher, and I strongly advise the growers to stick to these two sprays, and Lime Sulpher is really the better of the two. Lime Sulpher will control apple scab, black spot canker, and it is an insecticide. It pays to buy the commercial mixture at present prices. It is tested as to quality by means of the Beaume Scale and can be ascertained to be up to standard or otherwise by using the Hydrometer. The Lime Sulphur should be at a strength of 32 on the Beaume Scale. I strongly advise your having a hydrometer to test the lime sulphur as it is important to get the mixture up to the standard strength.

Winter spray of lime sulphur tested at 32 Beaume should be used in a strength of one to nine, and for summer one to thirty. In case you add lime to the commercial lime-sulphur, use it within three or four hours. If the mixture as purchased is below 32 Beaume, use less or more water in proportion. The sprays can be obtained from the B. C. Fruit Growers Association at Victoria. The hydrometer costs 75 cents to $1 at the B. C. Assay Co., Vancouver.

There are five types of spray outfits on the market, including barrel hand pump, duplex sprayers, and the gasoline power outfits.

The barrel hand pump should put ten barrels per day in a full bearing orchard, this would be twenty days for a man and horse to put out 200 barrels.

The duplex pump does more work in much less time, and is more efficient than the barrel hand pump The time and labor is the consideration which tells in the cost, the initial cost of the outfits is the smallest consideration The gasoline power pump will deliver the same quantity of spray in five days, this saving of time is a saving of labor cost, and enables the pests to be controlled as soon as noticed. Get a three h. p. engine for all around work as well as running the outdit, the initial cost would be about $500.

Use brass pipes as they resist the action of the chemicals and will not clog. There are different types of nozzels, the Bean Jumbo is a very good nozzel for general purposes. The pump should be run at about 150 to 175 lbs. pressure.

Lime sulrbur has a tendency to burn the face and hands, overcome this by using grease and vaseline on the face and hands, and keep your horses covered, spray is hard on the harness and horses.

After answering various questions by Messrs Hockley, Heath, Compton, Mann and others, the lecturer took his seat having been speaking for forty minutes.

To our neighbors and friends of Creston, we tender our heartfelt thanks for their sympathy and many kindnesses towards us during our recent bereavement.

A climbing party of expert mountaineers made up of several local guides and some of the express men running on the Crows Nest Pass trains, is being formed for the purpose of climbing the high mountain on the east side of the valley, and taking a photograph of the sweep of country from the valley head to the Kootenay Landing, it being believed that from this heighth a splendid bird's eye view could be obtained, second to none in British Columbia. This seems rather a tall order, even for "Express Messengers" to tackle, and we give it for what it may be worth. From our personal knowledge of the "Local Sports" who are scheduled as guides, we may say that some of the party will be as near heaven when they hit that mountain top, as they are ever likely to get.

R. Lamont is drawing the plans for a storehouse, to be created on his twenty acres in Block 23, and in which he will store powder and tools to be used in the clearing of the land. The powder has already arrived, and active clearing operations will be commenced immediately. The building will be 12x24 feet and of the best construction to enable same to be moved bodily at any time in the future.

Packing of Apples

LECTURE DELIVERED BY J. E. BERKLEY, PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENT PACKING EXPERT, BEFORE THE CRESTON FRUIT GROWERS ASSOCIATION AND OTHERS.

The two and three pack is the foundation of all the modern systems of apple packing, once this mastered, the other packs can be easily obtained. Commence with the very largestsize of the 2 and 3 pack to commence with, meaning that four apples will sit in the end across of the box side by side snugly, meaning this is the largest size of the 2 and 3 pack. Place an apple at each end of the end of the box, and on in the middle, above or on top of these, in the spaces between the three apples, we place two apples, making 3 and 2, 3 and 2, always keeping the apples in a direct line. From this size down, until almost five apples will sit side by side along the end of the box, are all packed 2 and 3, in this pack we have ten different sizes ranging from 4x5 down to 9x9.

The two and two pack is the next. As soon as we get above the four apples mentioned in the 3x2 or 2x3, we have an apple placed at the end of the box, and another apple midway between that apple and the other side of the box, thus the 2 and 2 pack, which ranges from 3x4 to 8x8 from one end to another.

Where the apples are small, say the small 2x3, the apples are nearly always packed on the side. Never pack with the stem or blossom on the side of the box. In the bottom layer the stems should be up, top layer stems down. In the 3 tier straight, it is safe to say we will have only one size of apple, namely 3x3x6, making the only square pack now used. If the apple is too large to pack 3 square, it must be a 1x2, being two on the bottom row, and 1 in the space of the 2. These make up the only four packs necessary to use in the packing of our apples, 2x3, 2x2, 3 square and 2x1. The main thing is to grade your fruit, keeping the one size throughout each box.

In pear packing there are two packs, 2x3 and when smaller, 3x3. Pack the large end against the box and pack 2 and 3, 3 at the bottom and two in the spaces. At the end of the box, reverse the pears with the narrow end down. Pack smaller pears 3x3. The 3x2 is the basis of modern packing, the only other point is care in grading. In apple packing there should be a bulge at the top, ranging from 1½ inches at the centre, to almost nothing at the end of the box. Put the larger apples, altho the difference will be so minute as to be almost unnoticeable, in the center of the box. There is no bulge to peaches, plums and prunes.

The lecturer announced that the certificates for proficiency in packing, which were promised to those who qualified in actual practical packing of marketed shipments, would be issued through Mr. Winslow, who would take the necessary steps on request of the association, to have the pack of marketed apples inspected by some competent person, to judge on the merits of same.

A vote of thanks to Mr. Berkley, moved by Mr. J. Cooke, and supported by J. Heath, J. Compton and others, was tendered to the lecturer in a neat closing speech by President D. S. Timmons, amid loud applause, and the meeting terminated at 10 p.m.

A pleasing feature of this lecture was the fact that the audience included several ladies, in addition to those who had attended the school, who thus showed by their presence, that the wives and daughters of the Creston ranchers take a practical interest in the fine points of the fruit industry, which is the foundation of the homes of the glorious valley.

According to Government Estimates $100,000,000.00 Was Made in Western Town Property During the Year 1909

Did you participate in these huge profits or did you "pigeon-hole" the propositions submitted to you by your western friends for future consideration? In short, are you the man who made a profit or the unfortunate one who had the chance but did not possess sufficient judgment to recognize the opportunity or sufficient courage to close a deal? The man or woman entitled to sympathy is the one who says: "Five or ten years ago I had a chance to buy this or that property at $100 or $500, and now it is worth $10,000." The average person sneers at the person who makes such a statement and says: "I would have bought and made that money." Are you going to say five years from now that you had a chance to buy a lot in Poe, Alta., at from $50 to $100 each, or are you going to be the man who will have from $1,000 to $10,000 in cash as a result of having bought property in this town in this year of grace, 1911.

Poe a Coming Commercial Centre.

Poe is located on the main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway between Edmonton and Saskatoon. It is located in one of the finest farming districts in Western Canada. The surrounding country is settled by a progressive type of farmers and consequently will become the market centre for Northern Alberta. Poe district possesses rich coal mines, is close to rivers and lakes and large forests are easily accessible from this point. These natural resources insure for the residents of the town, first, low cost of living, and second, great commercial activity, two essentials in the upbuilding of a large town, thus creating valuable real estate.

Poe as a Manufacturing Centre

This townsite and contiguous territory has the requirements outlined by large manufacturing concerns for the location of large factories of large enterprises of any kind employing large numbers of people. The rivers and lakes furnish water, the coal fields and forests furnish fuel and cheap building material, the fine farming lands furnish farm products, enabling the residents to live at a low cost.

The town is located on the main line of a transcontinental railway, assuring the necessary transportation facilities. These combined conditions will furnish cheap labor, one of the most important features of a manufacturing centre.

Poe townsite was recently placed on the market and already over 200 lots have been sold, and many of these lots have already changed hands at a substantial increase in price. Most of these lots were purchased by representative business men throughout Canada, who are now profiting by their foresight.

The townsite is high and dry and very suitable for building purposes.

Opportunity

is useless unless you possess the courage to act. You might possess great wisdom, you might read a good deal or travel much and thus see all kinds of opportunities to make money, but unless you have the courage to act on your judgment and wisdom all of these desirable qualities are entirely useless.

Lots in Poe are a good investment at present prices. The town is bound to grow rapidly. Owing to the easy terms of payment you have the ability to buy and if you do not buy now it is because you are lacking in courage, and the chances are you will never be like the man you now admire most, rich, courageous and wise.

Torrens Title

Poe townsite is held by us under the Torrens system of title. Under this system the title is guaranteed by the Government, therefore absolutely safe.

Prices and Terms

Prices of lots range from $50 to $100 each, and they can be purchased on terms of one-tenth cash, balance in eighteen equal monthly payments; or quarter cash, balance in six, twelve and eighteen months.

Information

We have issued an attractive circular giving full information pertaining to the town and its prospects, together with map showing lots for sale. If you wish to receive this attractive circular cut out and fill in the attached coupon and mail it to us today.

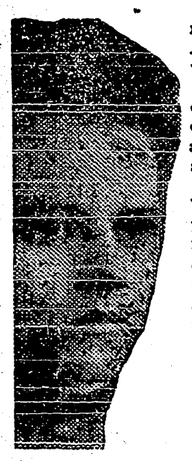
HAD THROAT TROUBLE SINCE CHILDHOOD

All Treatments Failed. Relieved by Peruna.



Mrs. Hohmann.

Mrs. Wm. Hohmann, 2764 Lincoln Ave., Chicago, Ill., writes:

"I suffered with catarrh of the bronchial tubes and had a terrible cough ever since a child.

"I would sit up in bed with pillows propped up behind me, but still the cough would not let me sleep. I thought and everybody else that I had consumption.

"So reading the papers about Peruna I decided to try, without the least bit of hope that it would do me any good. But after taking three bottles I noticed a change. My appetite got better, so I kept on, never discouraged. Finally I seemed not to cough so much and the pains in my chest got better and I could rest at night.

"I am well now and cured of a chronic cough and sore throat. I cannot tell you how grateful I am, and I cannot thank Peruna enough. It has cured where doctors have failed and I talk Peruna wherever I go, recommend it to everybody. People who think they have consumption better give it a trial."

Cured Awful Ringworm

"Well over four years ago my two little girls were taken with a dreadful scalp trouble that the doctors called ringworm. They attended the —— Hospital as out-patients for a year. I had to apply their ointment with a brush, giving the children frightful pain. I also had to have their heads shaved every two weeks, but they got no better under the treatment. They used to cry with the tormenting itching, and their heads were covered with a thick scurf and dandruff.

"About a year ago I determined to try the Cuticura Remedies. I used plenty of Cuticura Soap and applied the Cuticura Ointment. I used only about three cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment and they were cured. Their hair is growing long and nice again. They had become so ill after their three years of suffering that I had to send one away to a convalescents' home as soon as she was cured, but now she is home, well and strong. My younger girl was away from school nine months with the disease. I am very grateful to Cuticura and for their children's sake I hope other mothers will try it. The Cuticura Soap I will always use for it makes the hair so lovely."

MONKEY LAND.

Where Armies of Gibbering Apes Make Life Miserable.

If at any time you should happen to be in India, just remember to let the monkeys alone, for to kill one would mean to get yourself very cordially disliked by the Brahmans, whose religion forbids them to take the life of any creature. As a result the people of India are overrun by a great many animals against which they can make but a feeble resistance, the monkey in particular being a real tyrant.

The shops of the cities are without doors and windows, and whatever is offered for sale is exposed to the open air. The monkeys are always at hand watching their opportunity and if the merchant absent himself for a moment, instantly the nimble apes are helping themselves to anything they fancy.

On one occasion the streets of Benares, the sacred city of India, had become so overrun with these impudent little plunderers that the merchants held a meeting and decided that something must be done. Inasmuch as their religion forbade them to kill the monkeys, they decided to banish the pests.

The streets were surrounded and invaded, the monkeys were all captured and placed in cages. Then they were taken to a large forest at a considerable distance from the city and freed in the middle of the trees. The scampered into the branches as if they were having a very good time; and there the merchants left them and returned to their shops, rejoicing that now they could nod in peace. That evening there was a rare sight in Benares. Into the streets, just at dusk, there came a great capering army of apes. They were the monkeys of Benares, who had found their way home from the forest into which they had been banished, and, though they must have been very tired from traveling on foot so long a distance, their joy on reaching home again was so great that they gamboled like a troop of school children coming home from a picnic.

Being town bred monkeys, they had not enjoyed country life. Next day they were all at their old posts, raiding the food shops with renewed and eager appetites and greatly refreshed impudence.

The Effects of Arsenic.

"You no doubt have observed the lily white complexion of some women. These women are sacrificing years of their lives for that beautiful skin by the use of arsenic," said D. V. Duval, a chemist, of Manchester, Eng.

"It is a well-known fact that thousands of women in all countries of the world use the poison in small quantities to bleach their skin. It is an effective means of whitening and clearing the complexion, but the complexion given by its use has no permanency unless the absorption of the drug be continued.

"Arsenic, as science has long told us, is an accumulative poison. When one takes it either by prescription for the upbuilding of an appetite or for the bleaching of the skin he does not feel any ill effects for several years. The effect of the drug is bracing and makes a person feel like eating. It also aids the digestion. The average user of the poison takes it in such small quantities that he does not realize how much of it will accumulate in his system in the course of four or five years.

"Being an accumulative poison it often takes that length of time to see the results of the drug. Then the user may complain of not being able to control his fingers or toes. Subsequently he loses control of his hands and arms. Arsenical poisoning is the result.

"Five years ago in Manchester there was an epidemic of paralysis. Several thousands of persons were stricken. Several hundred died and the medical profession of England made a thorough investigation of the malady and traced it to beer. The investigators discovered that the brewers were using a glucose in the brewing of their product which was found to contain a small quantity of arsenic. This drug, imbibed in small quantities in beer, had gradually accumulated in the bodies of thousands of persons, had impoverished their blood and left a great percentage of them helpless."

Too Expensive to Eat.

Mr. George Graves, who is appearing with such success on the variety stage in "Koffo of Bond Street," in London," is an enthusiatsic sportsman, and recently had a day's shooting in Norfolk. Missing his train back he endeavored to catch it at Cambridge by motor-car, but failed, owing to the bursting of a tire. In order to appear at the theatre he was compelled to charter a special train from the University town. Mr. Graves' remark, as he alighted from his expensive conveyance at Liverpool street and handed his man a brace of partridges, was very characteristic of him, "Get these birds stuffed, they come too high to eat."

Ambassador as Mountaineer.

Mr. James Bryce, the British ambassador at Washington, who was recently granted an audience by the King, was born in Belfast seventy years ago. His father was Scotch and his mother Irish. He is credited with the ability to speak—or acquire—nearly every known language. He has talked with African kings at the councils; has banquetted with the Dyaks; has climbed some of the highest mountains in the United States; has stood on the top of Mount Ararat—the first man since Noah—has been in Russia, in India, and Japan, and knows nearly every part of the British Empire, even to the Fiji Islands.

Prevaricator.

The word prevaricator is from the Latin and originally meant a straddler with distorted or misshapen legs. In the Roman courts of law the expression was applied to one who in a suit was discovered to be in collusion with his opponent to compass some dishonesty. As falsehood was the necessary part of such a performance, the word by and by came to have the significance at present attached to it.

Minard's Liniment Cures Distemper

Probably no one had more ready wit than Sir Frank Lockwood, the lawyer. He was a tall man, and an unruly member of his audience once called out to him in the middle of a speech, "Go it telescope!"

"My friend is mistaken in applying that term to me," said Sir Frank, quietly. "He ought to claim it for himself, for, though he cannot draw me out, I think I can both see through him and shut him up."

GOOD HEALTH FOR RUN DOWN MEN

If You Are Weak and Easily Tired Try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

Anaemia is a state into which one falls because of lack of blood, or because the blood is poor, weak and watery. The man or woman who has not enough blood is pale, languid, easily tired and easily depressed. As the trouble progresses other symptoms show themselves, and the life of the sufferer is one of misery. Anaemia opens the door to consumption, and gives victims to all the epidemic maladies, because the whole body is weakened and unable to resist the inroads of disease. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the best remedy in the world for the cure of anaemia, and all its attendent miseries. They make the blood rich, red and pure, thus bringing health and strength to weak, despondent men and women. We do not know of a single case of anaemia where Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have failed to cure if given a fair trial. Mr. John Hastings, Venn., Sask., was a victim of this trouble and found new health through Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. He says: "I was working on a railway driving a team and found myself gradually running down. I did not pay much attention to it at first, but soon I began to lose my appetite and it was a trial to get through my day's work. I got medicine from the doctor on the works, but it did not help me, and finally I got so bad I told the foreman I would have to quit. He told me not to lose hope, that he would get some medicine that would soon make me all right. That night he went to town and bought me three boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I had not taken more than two boxes when I began to feel better, and after I had used five boxes I was as well and strong as ever, and could do a day's work with any man on the job. I may just add that before I began taking the Pills I was so run down that I weighed only 122 pounds, and while taking them I gained 22 pounds. I cannot say too much in favor of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and strongly recommend them to all run down men."

You can get these Pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

FILLING the ACHING VOID

"Vaulting over hydrants en route."

"A GROWING boy is hollow down to his heels!"

A dear woman made the above remark after seeing her 16-year-old nephew dispose of a breakfast consisting of an orange, a bowl of cereal and cream, two sausages and six hot biscuits, topped by a cup of cocoa. I wondered where he put it all, unless, as his relative suggested, his legs were hollow. Yet ten minutes later I came upon him munching a large red apple. At my exclamation of amused astonishment he flushed, then laughed.

"Oh," he said frankly, "I might as well acknowledge that I never get enough to eat. I read somewhere that one of those big doctors who write about diet and things like that said that everybody should leave the table a little hungry, or feeling as if he could eat just a little more. Well, I would satisfy that pill peddler, all right. I always get up from the table with an aching void."

My observation of other boys leads me to think that his experience is a common one with young human beings between the ages of 7 and 21. We older people are often rather impatient with them because of their hearty appetites, reminding them that we manage to keep up health and strength and do our work in the world on one-half of what they eat.

A fact which we are prone to forget is that while we have waste to make up for, young people have both waste and growth to repair. Moreover, the most strenuous of grown-ups, unless he be a professional athlete, seldom leads as active a life as does the boy. Watch your son through one day and see the amount of absolutely unnecessary and superfluous exercise he takes. He wants a book from upstairs, and takes the flight three steps at a time, coming down by way of the banister, or in leaps that would seem to endanger his neck. If he must go to the postoffice to mail a letter, the chances are that he will run all the way, vaulting over hydrants and hitching posts en route. He romps, he wrestles with his schoolmates, he indulges in what is known among lads as "rough house" whenever he meets a comrade who will aid and abet him in scuffling and feats of strength. And yet, all these things are over and above what he considers his legitimate sports—rowing, bicycling, walking, baseball and football playing, hunting, fishing. No wonder that he is hungry after hours spent in any one of these pursuits!

Let us take all of these things into consideration in criticising the ravenous lad. Yet, after we have done this, we should be careful that he does not become a gourmand. A healthy, even a very great, appetite is to be expected; gorging and gluttony are not. Moreover, they are distinctly injurious. The body needs a generous amount of nourishment and will take good care of that which is required to assist in growth and to repair waste. All that is put in the stomach beyond these requirements is simply an additional and unnecessary load of matter to be disposed of, and to be thrown off as useless material. Violent exercise facilitates the disposal of this excess, causing the skin to act freely and encouraging the bowels and kidneys to functionate regularly. But it is a mistake to give all of these agents more than they can take care of. They may become overwearied and rebel, and then a case of auto-intoxication or toxic poisoning will result.

One of the things that should be considered with the growing boy or girl is the kind of food eaten. The mother should have some knowledge of the nourishing properties of various articles of diet, that she may consider quality rather than quantity. For instance, a soft-boiled egg, a slice of wholesome bread and good butter, and a glass of unskimmed milk will nourish more than would fried entrees, rich pastries and several kinds of sweets washed down with lemonade or soda water. Moreover, the indiscriminate use of such articles is undeniably harmful to the digestion.

We are too careless with excellent digestions—we parents. We may know that our children have what one girl claims is her fortunate portion—"a stomach that could digest a horseshoe"—but they will not be the happy possessors of such digestive faculties if they abuse them while young. Just because your 15-year-old son has fine muscles, and is a superb physical specimen, you do not allow him to strain those muscles, wrench his back and, perhaps, rupture delicate tissues, by putting upon them an unnatural strain. You should be as considerate of the stomach of your healthy girl or boy.

"This longing is perfectly legitimate."

"Put in each day a rosy apple."

A pernicious habit that is indulged in most families is that of eating between meals, and it is a habit that is so easily acquired that, once formed, it is difficult to break. If a lad has for his breakfast, at 7.30 or 8 o'clock, fruit of some kind, a cereal with milk or cream, an egg, or several slices of bacon, or a bit of fish, with milk or cocoa, he needs nothing more until the luncheon hour at half past 12 or 1 o'clock. At this time his food must be good and wholesome. And right here is where many mothers err with regard to the boys who take a luncheon to school with them. This is frequently something that "tastes good" or that "will do," rather than that which will nourish and strengthen. In many cases the "snack" carried in box or paper is the same thing day after day. The mother should tax her ingenuity to provide a different luncheon for each day of the week. This is not as hard as it sounds to her whose one idea of his repast is several thick meat sandwiches. Let her cut the bread thin and vary the filling by putting in on one day minced hard-boiled eggs; on another, grated American cheese; on a third, sardines, drained from their oil and flaked. On the fourth day thin strips of crisp broiled bacon may be laid between slices of brown bread on which have been spread baked and mashed beans. On the fifth morning the mother may spread the bread with cream cheese and lay on this a leaf of lettuce dipped in French dressing. With the sandwiches put each day a rosy apple or a ripe but firm banana, or some figs or dates. If your child is so fortunate as to attend a school where milk, cocoa and soup are provided at noon—as is the case in most of the schools in our large cities—insist that a cup of soup or a glass of milk shall be taken with the sandwiches. Or, if the child likes it, let his beverage at noon be hot cocoa. A warm drink is grateful in cold weather and assists digestion.

We parents should strive to consider this matter of eating from the child's point of view. Let us look back to our own youth and try to remember how very good things tasted then. They never will be as delicious again, we sigh, regretfully. This fact should make us patient with the child whose eyes light with ecstatic joy when the platter of ice cream is brought in, and who finds it hard to suppress his delight at its appearance even when there is "company" present. It vexes us sometimes that he does not conceal this joy, and yet we might rather have an amused sympathy for the youngster. Oh, if we could feel like that! But we can't.

Nor do we always sympathize with the love of sweets manifested by our children. Yet this longing is perfectly legitimate. Sweets supply the fuel to keep going the energy with which the young animal is overflowing. They form an important part of the diet; and it is the abuse of them, not the use of them, that is to be deplored. Constant munching of candy and eating bonbons much of the time between meals is a perversion of a natural appetite.

Young people will rush to extremes in diet if allowed to do so; and here the mother's curbing hand is needed. She should never allow her child to make an entire meal of one special article of food. The boy who declines meat and all vegetables except potatoes is showing a lack of self-control and an indulgence of an idiosyncrasy that will mean trouble all along the line for him if he be not restrained in youth. Insist on his taking other food. Potatoes are excellent in their way; they should not be the only food eaten. I know one family in which the indulgence of childish whims was carried to such an excess that one of the boys would have an entire dish of potatoes for himself at each meal, and the pretty daughter must have at her place a loaf of bread and a quart of milk, as that was "all she wanted." Another son ate no vegetables or bread, but would dispose of a half dozen slices of rare roast beef at a sitting. Needless to say, no servant was willing to cook for this family whose mother believed in allowing the children to "follow their own inclinations."

If a child has been properly trained, he will not have abnormal fancies. I remember one small boy whose liking for cereals and bread was so strong that he insisted that he did not like anything but porridge and toast. His mother demanded that he take upon his plate and eat a little of each wholesome article of food that was set before the other children. If he did not, he could have no cereal or bread. By the time the little fellow was 6 years old, he had learned to like everything that the other children ate.

One of the reasons so many young people eat so much and yet are not satisfied is because they take their food too rapidly. A quarter pound of meat slowly and thoroughly masticated will satisfy hunger more than would a half pound of meat "bolted" or swallowed unchewed. Insist that each child spend a reasonable length of time in disposing of the contents of his plate, and he will be better nourished, healthier and have a more normal appetite.

Start a Library

IN AMAZINGLY cheap form—for a few pennies, indeed—almost all the best books are to be had; and I think every one owes it as a sacred duty to his mind to start a little library of his own. How much do we not do for our bodies? How much thought and money do they not cost us? And shall we not think a little for the clothing and adorning of the imperishable mind? This private library may begin, perhaps, with a single volume, and grow at the rate of one or two a year; but these, well chosen and well mastered, will become such a fountain of strength and wisdom that each shall be eager to add to his store. A dozen books accumulated in this way may be better than a whole library.—Drummond.

THE HOUSEMOTHERS' EXCHANGE

IMPORTANT NOTICE

BECAUSE of the enormous number of letters sent to the Exchange, I must ask contributors to limit their communications to 100 words, except in cases of formulas or recipes which require greater space. I want all my correspondents to have a showing in the Corner, and if my request in this respect is complied with it will be possible to print many more letters.

Offers Danish Recipe

I AM delighted that you have come to the defense of what one constituent calls "a wretched mess," and what I proudly call "stew."

My husband said one evening after some one had been praising the despised dish:

"Yes; my wife certainly makes nice, tender gravy!"

In the absurd mistake lurks the whole secret of its success—the delicious brown gravy which should accompany and permeate the meat.

Last summer, while I was ill, a maid attempted to make our favorite stew. The result was a woeful disappointment, and we forbore ordering it again until I was well enough to attend to it.

Does that sound boastful? I don't intend to "brag," but so few women know how to cook cheap meats palatably.

Mrs. Todgers need not have worried over "gravy" if she had used a beef extract as a base. I am fain to fall back upon it sometimes to improve the quality and to increase the quantity of my sauces.

I make a very good veal stew by cooking small pieces of veal in beef stock until tender. I season with salt, pepper and a teaspoonful of curry powder. Then serve with rice cooked by your recipe.

Do you recollect my request for recipes for Danish cookery? One year ago we removed into a two-flat building. The upper floor was rented to a Danish family, and now I can get my coveted recipes.

Perhaps I may find time to send some to the "Corner," but I am so very busy! Last June another birdling flew into our nest, and now I am the proud mother of three dear little children. Some of my friends pity me, but I thank God daily for health and strength to work and for the power of loving and the peace and plenty of our quiet home.

I send for stamps to help out the editorial "postal fund." "JANE" (Chicago).

Welcome back to the Exchange Corner! Thrice welcome for having so glorious an excuse for your long silence! Send us the Danish recipes at your convenience—as, for instance, when the newest baby is asleep and the boy and the other girlie are playing in a far corner, and you feel that you have earned the right to sit quietly down and relax, physically, for half an hour. Never neglect this duty to yourself and to those to whom your health is precious. Cry "Halt!" before you break down.

If my cupboard (refrigerator) is bare of stock, I use a 10-cent can of beef soup, after straining it. A can of the same brand, marked "Chicken Broth," made up a delicious chicken and oyster pie last week, combined with a pint of oysters and the fragments of a roast fowl too scanty and desultory to appear again upon the table undisguised.

At another time the chicken broth was strained and cubes of veal cooked tender in it. The gravy was drained off and seasoned with paprika, salt, a dash of onion juice and chopped parsley, thickened with a tablespoonful of butter rolled in flour and cooked to a roux. A hard-boiled egg was cut into bits and added; the gravy was poured back over the veal and brought to a boil, and behold, an imitation chicken stew that deceived three hungry boys, when served upon buttered toast already softened with hot milk.

Try it as one cheap dish that will satisfy the eaters.

Pumpkin and Cranberry Pie

Please send me a good recipe for pumpkin pie. All I have tried seem so dry.

I noticed some time ago a request for wilted lettuce.

This was my mother's recipe, and we think it fine.

Have you also a recipe for cranberry pie?

Wilted Lettuce

Wash and break into small pieces two large heads of lettuce. Put into a large frying pan ¼ pound of salt pork cut into dice. Fry brown.

Beat 1 egg and 1 teaspoonful of flour together, add 1 pint of vinegar mixed with water and diluted to suit your taste. When the pork has browned, stir into the frying pan the rest of the ingredients, excepting the lettuce, and bring to a boil. Finally, put in the lettuce and cook, stirring with a fork, until the lettuce is wilted.

Mrs. E. H. (White Plains, N. Y.).

As we have told you by post, we do not mail recipes to correspondents. Were we to undertake this there would be no time left for other branches of our service.

Below please find trustworthy formulas for the pies you wish to make:

Pumpkin Pie

Pare, seed and cut the pumpkin up. Stew, and run through the colander enough to fill two cups. Let it cool and stir into it the beaten yolks of 4 eggs, stirred light with a cupful of white sugar. Add gradually, keeping the egg-beater busy all the time, 1 quart of sweet milk, 1 teaspoonful of mixed ground cinnamon, mace and ginger, lastly the whites of the eggs whipped stiff. Line a deep pie dish with a good paste, cut slashes in it here and there, give a final stir to the custard as it is poured into the paste and bake in a steady oven.

Eat cold with powdered sugar strewed over the top.

Cranberry Pie

Chop fine 1 cupful of seeded raisins, halve 2 cupfuls of cranberries, mix with ½ cupful of cold water and 1 cupful of sugar. Stir 1 teaspoonful of flour into the sugar before adding the water. It will prevent the berries from settling to the bottom of the mixture in baking. Line pie plates with the combination and lay strips of pastry, criss-cross, upon the surface. Bake in a brisk, steady oven.

An Old Cake

Seeing that somebody asked for "Biblical cake," I inclose one which is very good. It will entertain and profit the children to look up the texts.

Bible Cake

Half a pound of Judges, v, 25; the same of Jeremiah, vi, 20; 1 tablespoonful of I Samuel, xiv, 25; 3 tablespoonfuls of Jeremiah, xvii, 11; ½ pound each of I Samuel, xxx, 12, and Nahum, iii, 12 (chopped); 2 ounces of Numbers, xvii, 8, blanched and chopped; 1 pound of I Kings, iv, 22. Season to taste with II Chronicles, ix, 9; a teaspoonful of Amos, iv, 5, and 3 tablespoonfuls of Judges, iv, 19.

Beat the first, second and third ingredients named to a cream; add the fourth, one at a time, still beating; then fifth, sixth and seventh, still beating. Next add eighth, ninth, tenth and eleventh, having previously mixed them together, and last of all add twelfth.

Bake in rather a slow oven and less than an hour and a half.

M. J. H. (Philadelphia).

The request for Biblical cake was responded to by no less than thirty-six correspondents. I select one of the briefest formulas as a "specimen article." Thanks are hereby awarded to the generous housemothers who swell the list of helpers.

A Word About Goiter

From an eight-page letter, well expressed and full of pathological facts, I extract all for which I can make room:

May I send a warning to the sufferer who asks for a cure for goiter? Let her beware of all so-called "cures," and of the quacks who practice them. There is absolutely no cure for a goiter but the knife. As one who was afflicted with the disease for twenty years, and in a peculiarly virulent form, I feel that I am qualified to give advice upon the subject.

After relating the various attempts to gain relief at the hands of allopath and osteopath, and the success of the operation that left her a well woman, our correspondent has a word of criticism of the methods of the Exchange, which it is but fair to her and to the Exchange to copy in part:

If you possibly can, I wish you would forfeit some of the space occupied by recipes and household matters to make room for as much of this letter as possible, that our sufferer may see it and communicate with me if she wishes to do so. I feel that the question of health is far more important than making pickles and preserves, or even the vexed servant question, which many of us "have always with us." It does not bother me, for I do all of my own work except washing. I have a five-room flat, two big boys and the best "John" in the world, and I have never felt the need of a servant.

One of my pet ideas is that if more women would do their own work there would not be so many chronic invalids.

C. H. C. (Louisville, Ky.).

(A new contributor.)

It is altogether natural that one who has been a prey to a haunting horror—a thorn in the flesh—for twenty years and has been freed from it by a certain treatment, should exaggerate the importance of the subject to those who have never suffered in like manner. Not one woman in 5000 has a goiter. Every woman, man and child in the country must eat and sleep, and in one form or another be a homekeeper or dweller. I am glad with and for the intelligent wife and mother that she "feels in her body that she is healed of that plague."

She is a practical housemother, as she tells us. She exhorts her sister-women to get rid of servants, if all the time they can give from eating and sleeping were devoted to reading and studying about diseases, how would meals be cooked properly, and floors swept, and beds made, and the pickles and preserves beloved of John and the big boys be made?

Novel and Simple Remedies

May I peep into the Corner for a minute? I have a lot of Chicago Magazines and some others which I should like to give to some one who loves reading and who cannot get it in any other way.

I have a few remedies that are tried, safe and sure. I offer them, hoping to be of service to somebody.

To Mrs. H. A., of Chicago: If she will get the herb sweet fern, steep it in water and drink freely of the tea, also make a pillow of the leaves and sleep upon it, she will have no more night sweats.

For hemorrhage of all kinds: Get the roots of the common yellow dock—as yellow as gold when green—bruise and break them; add cold water; mix and steep for a little while, then give a teaspoonful of the juice every hour until the bleeding is checked; then once in three hours. Hemorrhage should never be checked too suddenly.

I dig the roots in autumn to dry for winter use. When it is needed, steep slowly—not boil—and use as you would the green roots.

To bottle cider that it may keep sweet for any length of time: To 6 quarts of sweet cider add 1 heaping tablespoonful of ground mustard and a little less ground sassafras bark. Bring to a slow simmer—almost to boiling—stirring often. If a scum arises, skim. Bottle hot. Cork tight. It's fine! Try it!

To cure stammering in children: Get a real cannon ball; let them roll it around the floor when trying to talk. After a little they forget all about stammering and will be free from the infirmity.

For bleeding wounds or cuts: The little "puffball," sometimes called "snakeball," found by country roads or in the fields, cut in half and bound upon the cut will stop the bleeding at once.

Mrs. D. R. D. (Chicago).

Novel samples these—one and all! If I demur in reading the last "remedy," it is because the recollection of the germ theory is strong upon me. The first thing to do when one is cut, or torn, or bitten, is to make sure that the wound is perfectly free from aught that could harm the blood by absorption. Cleanse the wound thoroughly with clean, warm water and keep a vial of peroxide of hydrogen on hand with which to disinfect the gaping mouth of the wound. I should not dare to press upon the raw surface any wayside growth until it, too, had been well washed.

Pickled Beets

Some time ago an invalid asked for a recipe for sweet pickled beets. I sent it at once, but I have not seen it in print. It is asked for again. Please find it inclosed.

Canned Sweet Pickled Beets

Boil the beets tender; peel while they are hot; cut into quarters or use whole, as you like. Fill hot, sterilized glass jars and pour over the beets this mixture:

One cup each of sugar and of water to 2 cupfuls of vinegar. Fill the cans to overflowing with the boiling hot liquid and seal immediately.

Mrs. G. C. (Marquette, Mich.).

Two other recipes are inclosed—one for cucumber, the other for dill pickles. Both are marked "for summer use" and laid away. The beets may be procured throughout the winter.

Our much-valued correspondent offers likewise a cure for goiter which we cannot publish, inasmuch as it involves the use of a proprietary medicine. We neither name such in our Corner nor recommend them by mail. The responsibility of doing this is too serious to be lightly assumed.

We have printed eight or nine recipes for pickled sweet beets in reply to the invalid's request. It is not possible to make place for all the formulas for the composition of any one dish.

Witness the number supplied for the scripture cake.

Old-Time Recipes

I have some excellent recipes taken from a book compiled by an aunt of mine in the year 1828. Such, for instance, as charlotte russe, made without cooking; Belle Tate pie, crumb pudding, etc.

If any of the readers would like some of them I will send them to you.

"PERCY" (Louisville, Ky.).

Send the recipes, by all means—and soon.

A Profitable Return

It seems selfish in me to have had the benefit for so long of the Exchange and to make no return. So if you can use the inclosed recipes my conscience will be easier.

Wilted Lettuce

Cut 3 good-sized slices of bacon into dice and fry to a crisp brown. Cut ¼ an onion very small and fry in the pan with the bacon for 2 minutes. Next, pour into the pan a cup of weak vinegar. Salt to taste, and when it boils pour over a pan of lettuce that has been cleaned and torn into bits. Serve in about 2 minutes.

This is strictly a German dish and some persons do not like it. We think it delicious. You may use the outside leaves of lettuce for it, discarding the tough parts, and save the hearts for a salad with French dressing. The addition of a few celery stalks, cut up fine, improves this dish for those who like that flavoring.

Stuffed Peppers

Seed and cut the tops from 6 large bell peppers. Get 2-3 of a pound of round steak and put through a meat grinder; add 1-3 as much breadcrumbs. Mix thoroughly and fill the peppers with the forcemeat. Replace the caps of the peppers and pin them on with straws or toothpicks. Arrange in a baking pan, the caps uppermost. Cover the bottom of the pan with uncooked rice. Put in more if the pan be small. Strain into the rice a can of tomatoes, season with salt and a little sugar and bake at least one hour, adding hot water as the tomatoes cook dry and the rice absorbs the liquid.

One more recipe! This time a unique sauce for the luncheon table.

Plum Sauce

To a 2-quart basket of purple plums allow 3 oranges. Put the oranges—rind and pulp—through your meat grinder. Halve the plums and remove the stones. Make a thick syrup as you would for canning anything—only richer. Put in the fruit; boil until hot through, and seal at once. It is unusual and delicious.

Mrs. M. H. K. (Los Angeles, Cal.).

I have in reserve other and as good things from the hand of this correspondent for which we have not room today. They are something to look forward to with pleased expectation.

6 Year Old Girl

Hyomei
A Breatheable Remedy for Catarrh

The rational way to combat Catarrh is the Hyomei way, viz: by breathing. Scientists for years have been agreed on this point but failed to get an antiseptic strong enough to kill catarrh germs and not destroy the tissues of the membrane at the same time, until the discovery of Hyomei (pronounced High-o-me).

Hyomei is the most powerful yet healing antiseptic known. Breathe it through the inhaler over the inflamed and germ-ridden membrane four or five times a day, and in a few days the germs will disappear.

A complete Hyomei outfit, including the inhaler costs $1.00 and extra bottles, if afterwards needed, cost but 50 cents Obtainable from your druggist or post paid from The R. T. Booth Co, Ltd, Fort Erie, Ont. Hyomei is guaranteed to cure asthma, croup, sore throat, coughs, colds or grip or refund your money back. Sold and guaranteed by the Creston Drug & Book Co.
