The annual meeting of the Comox Co-operative Society will be held on Tuesday May 6. The management request a full attendance of members.

One of H. B. Dawley's valuable fox terriers was run over and killed by an automobile belonging to the manager of the Acadia Trust Co., one day last week.

Courtenay's new chemical engine was tried out again on Monday evening And whether or not the chemicals were at fault, it is certain that the pressure did not come up to the warranty, and the citizens would be very unwise in accepting the machine until it is demonstrated that it will do so.

Gamewarden Dawley has received a supply of firearm licenses. Local nimrods who want to carry a gun can secure one now. There are three classes, prospector and settlers, these are free. There are also licenses for local shooters and for big game.

Mr. D. Kilpatrick has agreed to sell his rights to the water, now coming down the creek, to the Water Company.

The Acadia Trust has just erected a handsome new sign. It was made by J. Sutton and painted by Colin Campbell, local men, who are both artists in their respective lines.

F. J. Morran was taken into custody at Comox, by J. Hannay, on a charge of forging R. Morran's name to a cheque for $40.25. He was taken to Nanaimo on Thursday last by the constable.

Messrs. Hardy & Biscoe conducted an auction sale of heavy horses for Fieldhouse Bros., on Saturday last. Owing to the inclement weather there was not a very large attendance of buyers.

Bert Whipple had another automobile accident on Saturday last. While returning from Comox, something went wrong with the steering gear and the machine ran into the ditch. She negotiated several logs, but baulked at a stump.

All Out of Town

Full of hope and energy, the young reporter was sent to the surburbs to write an account of a fire that was alleged to be raging there.

As a matter of fact the fire was so small that it had been put out in three and a quarter minutes, and the fire brigade had gone home long ago.

Still, the reporter was as persevering as he was inexperienced, so he approached the house cheerily and knocked upon the door.

Mr. Yaights in? he asked hopefully of the handmaiden who answered his summons.

No, came the reply; he's out.

Mrs. Yaights?

No, she's out also.

Well, said the cub reporter, we were informed that you have a fire here, and I've come to report—

Oh, that's out too! snapped the maiden, as she gently closed the door.

'Tis a Marvellous Thing.—When the cures effected by Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil are considered, the speedy and permanent relief it has brought to the suffering wherever it has been used, it must be regarded as a marvellous thing that so potent a medicine should result from the six ingredients which enter into its composition. A trial will convince the most skeptical of its healing virtues.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS PROVING THEIR VALUE AS A FAMILY MEDICINE

Quebec Man Tells How They Helped Him and Cured His Nephew of Kidney Disease.

South Ham, Wolfe Co., Que. (Special).—There is fresh proof every day that as a family medicine Dodd's Kidney Pills are growing in favor with the people of Quebec. Just to quote an example, Amable Pinard of this place says, in an interview:

"Dodd's Kidney Pills helped my rheumatism, backache, gravel, and heart disease, from which I suffered for twenty years.

"They have not yet cured me completely, but they did completely cure my nephew, who suffered from kidney disease."

Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure kidney disease. They will complete Amable Pinard's cure, because all the diseases mentioned are the results of kidney disease. They cured the young man's kidney disease quickly, because it was taken in its early stages. Amable Pinard's troubles are of twenty years' standing and take a longer treatment.

The moral is, that if you cure your kidney disease early with Dodd's Kidney Pills, you will never be troubled with rheumatism, gravel, and other diseases that are caused by sick kidneys failing to do their work.

YOUR BABY'S SKIN

Is the most delicate fabric in the world. You may cause it permanent harm by using poisonous mineral ointments for the little rashes and eruptions that every baby suffers from occasionally. Don't take any chances. Use Zam-Buk, the baby's best balm.

Zam-Buk is made from fine herbal extracts, and is free from any harmful poisonous coloring matter. Like the grasses and the flowers, nature has colored it green. It is nature's own healer!

Most ointments and salves have, as their foundation, various animal oils and fats. Zam-Buk does not contain one atom of animal substance. Most ointments and salves are too coarse to be absorbed by the tender delicate skin of a baby, and remain on the skin an irritating mass. Just put a little Zam-Buk on baby's skin, and see how soon it is absorbed, showing conclusively that the pores of the skin are greedy for it.

Use nothing but Zam-Buk for baby's skin troubles and wash with Zam-Buk Soap.

Zam-Buk should also be used for cuts, burns, scalds, eczema, piles, ulcers, etc. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse harmful substitutes and imitations.

Reduced in Flesh Sleepless Nights

Kidney Disease and Gravel Caused Keenest Suffering—Cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Mr. W. Smith.

That diseases of the kidneys cause the greatest suffering is well known, and when stone or gravel is formed in the bladder the torture is almost beyond human endurance.

The disease should never be allowed to reach this dangerous stage. Pains in the small of the back, pain or smarting when passing water, frequent urination, loss of flesh and weight tell of the need of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to regulate and invigorate the kidneys and restore these organs to health.

Mr. W. Smith, Port Dalhousie, Ont., writes:—"For some years I was afflicted with kidney disease and gravel in its most severe form, having often a stoppage of water, accompanied by the most dreadful agony. As the disease wore on me I became reduced in flesh and passed sleepless nights. No doctor was able to do much for me, and I used many medicines without obtaining more than temporary relief. My attention was directed to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and by using this treatment the disease was eradicated from my system in less than six months. I have gained in weight, sleep well, and feel better than I have for twenty years."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25c. a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Up to Date

Of course you know the story of the Irishman who was painting a fence and who worked for all he was worth in order that he might get his job finished before the paint gave out.

It was one of those jokes our grandmothers laughed at before our grandfathers bought razors.

The hero again, is an Irishman, but this time not a painter. Oh, no, a chauffeur driving his master home from the country late one evening.

The nearer the car approached the town the faster it went until, when about ten miles out, it was travelling at something like fifty miles an hour.

Steady, man, steady! cried the master to his servant. If you go on like this we shall get held up by the police.

But the Irishman set his lips firmly, made the car go faster still, then hissed:

We're still nine miles from home, sir, and I've only enough petrol for three. If we hurry we may just do it.

Well Put

Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish at one of her beautiful dinners in New York, said of a woman whose daughters had all married well:

A woman like that hates to lose her daughters—and yet—well, I suppose her feelings are pretty well expressed by the homely story of the washer-woman.

A washerwoman whose five girls had married well was left all alone with her old husband, but she said philosophically about the girls' loss:

UPS AND DOWNS.

Pilgrim Joe, Striving to Do Good, Is Unappreciated.

HE FINDS HIMSELF IN WRONG.

And Is Escorted From the Town of Get Away Quick by the Hilarious Populace—The Snow Is a Frost, and He Is Out $60.

By M. QUAD.

[Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press.]

LISTEN for my band on the highways.

Look for my gayly painted wagon.

Come out to the gate to see me.

Have your money ready.

Ask for medical advice if you think you need it.

There is but one Pilgrim Joe.

As I abided in the town of Last Chance for a few days while suffering the affliction of a carbuncle on my neck I received a letter from the mayor of the town of Get Away Quick, asking me to come over there as soon as able and show my show of moving pictures and bring along a large stock of Pilgrim pain alleviator. The aforesaid alleviator has now been before the public for many years, and its certain

"HE SAID I WAS A FRAUD."

and marvelous virtues are known to all, but I cannot let this opportunity pass without saying that:

It is a remedy for despondency.

Two doses cure the earache.

It acts like magic on disappointed love.

One bottle will assuage the deepest sorrow.

If your wife has eloped the alleviator will make you glad of it.

It cures ingrowing toe nails and palpitation of the heart.

Thousands of people who were standing on the verge of the grave have been yanked back and come to weigh 200 pounds by investing in a single bottle.

The Joy Returns.

Whenever and wherever you find a druggist selling my alleviator you need ask no further references. He is respectable and honest and can be trusted with the Fourth of July contributions.

The carbuncle having busted and a song of joy come back to my heart, I set out for the town mentioned, and after a long day's drive I reached the same. On the way and without any seeming cause for it the song was hushed on my lips, my joyous soul clouded over, and I found myself taking a despondent view of life. I wrestled with the feeling for a time and finally succeeded in throwing it off, but later on I came to understand that it was a warning that I would have done well to heed. I had skeerce entered the town of Get Away Quick when I was struck by a certain air of general levity and recklessness. The mayor came forward to shake hands with me, and while doing so he whispered in my ear:

"Old top, I've got it all fixed for you and me to be pards in a game of poker and clean up the town."

I replied that I never indulged in poker except when I felt that the heathen of Africa were short of small change, and the mayor seemed to freeze up on me. He had skeercely left me when an alderman suggested that I go in with him on a horse race and scoop the town. I gave him a discouraging reply, and he left me with a threat on his lips. Then a third citizen approached me. He was a deputy sheriff, and he wanted me to ring in a tooth paste with my alleviator and beat the public and whack up with him. When I referred him to my spotless reputation for honesty he shook his fist under my nose and said I was an old hypocrite and a fraud. The landlord of the tavern inquired if I had brought along any loaded dice, and when I replied that I never dealt in such things he also called me names and hinted that I was a cuss who needed taking down a peg or two.

He Starts Something.

As the shades of evening gathered over the rooftrees and tumbled down into the streets I went forth from the tavern, and I set up my stand in the public square and announced the virtues of my Pilgrim pain alleviator. There wasn't a man in the crowd who could say that I was not honest and sincere, and I stood ready to produce any number of certificates, but it was no use. I never struck a town where they needed the alleviator worse, but not a bottle would they buy. Among other things I assured them:

That if a man hadn't been left hanging too long the alleviator would restore him to life.

That heart disease gave way before it, and consumption took to flight as soon as it saw the yaller label.

That there never was a divorce case in a family using it.

That it had five times the enthusiasm of brandy at one-fifth the cost.

That a whole barrel of whisky don't contain the warwhoops of a single bottle.

But talk was useless, and when I found it so I asked the crowd to follow me to the hall where I was to exhibit my moving pictures. Desiring to let them understand that I was not in the business for gain and thereby rebuke them, I announced that the show would be free to all, including cross eyed men. This put some life into them, and they tagged on behind. I opened the show by exhibiting a picture of the beef trust raising the price of liver 400 per cent. Wherever else this picture has been exhibited it has been greeted with dismal groans, as showing the feelings of the masses. But in this instance a man stood up and swung his hat and shouted:

"Hurrah for the beef trust! Long may it wave! Let's have another 400 per cent raise!"

He was cheered for five minutes, during which several products of the vegetable kingdom were thrown my way. I then followed with a picture of Washington crossing the Delaware. When this spirited picture was exhibited in the town of Come Off over 100 free American citizens sprang to their feet and cheered until five lengths of stovepipe fell clattering to the floor. During the excitement that followed some one picked my pocket of $7, but I did not lay it up against him. I long ago discovered that when an American citizen's patriotism is appealed to he'll do most anything to show his desire to die for his country.

He Is a Frost.

In this instance the picture did not receive one single cheer, though I kept it in front of the audience for five minutes. When my looks expressed the astonishment I felt the mayor got up and said:

"Move him along! G. Wash. is a back number! Give us something up to date!"

I did. I gave them the picture of the congressman found guilty on two trials of stealing government land not 100 miles from their town, and was about to deliver a brief lecture on the enormity of his offense, when the crowd rose up and began to cheer and hurrah. They said the congressman was a bully boy, with a glass eye, and that they would sign a petition for his pardon. I choked off my remarks and exhibited a picture of an orphan girl starving on the streets of New York. Not one sympathetic sigh did I hear from the audience. I showed the same girl dead on the sidewalks, and several persons broke into laughter. I showed her entering the gates of heaven after her trials here on earth, and the mayor rose up and said:

"This 'ere show seems to be a good deal of a fraud, and if it don't improve I shall treat it as a fraud!"

He Leaves Town.

I then exhibited a picture of a trust buying up all the butter, eggs and vegetables in the country and holding them for a rise, while workingmen and their wives and children were eating burdocks to keep life in them. Wherever that picture has been exhibited it has been received with wildest enthusiasm, and in two cases men have gone out of the halls with shotguns to pepper members of the trust, and here it was a dead failure. Nobody cheered and nobody groaned. After a painful period of silence a red headed man rose and said he had a duty to perform. It was a duty he owed to himself, to his town and to his country at large.

While I was wondering what he was getting at he came over and hit me a swat on the jaw that rendered me unconscious. When I recovered I was being escorted out of town by a band of hilarious citizens, and before turning back they made it plain that if I ever entered the town of Get Away Quick again I might lose my valuable life.

Upon casting up the damages I found they had injured me to the extent of $60, to say nothing of the humiliation to my feelings. I was cast down for an hour or two, but finally charged it up to profit and loss, and the songs of gladness came back to my soul again. A pilgrim is one of the fellers who can't keep on the grass long.

The safest way of not being very miserable is not to expect to be very happy.—Schopenhauer.

A MITE OF A REPUBLIC.

Moresnet Is Only One and a Quarter Square Miles in Extent.

The smallest state in Europe, the autonomous republic of Moresnet, is on the boundary between Germany and Belgium.

Moresnet has an area of barely one and a quarter square miles and a population of 3,500. It owes its existence to a boundary controversy for the control of a once important zinc mine. A boundary commission settling the frontiers of Holland and Prussia after the fall of Napoleon in 1814 was unable to agree upon the ownership of this tiny piece of land, with its valuable mining rights, and finally left the question for future settlement. Neither power was to occupy it, and it was administered jointly by the two states.

In practice the joint administration soon resulted in an administration by neither state, and the community became autonomous under the protection and tutelage of Prussia and Holland and later of Prussia and Belgium. In 1841 the two guaranteeing countries regularized this and formally gave the district its own independent administration. It has no courts, but litigants can choose between the Belgium and Prussian tribunals in beginning litigation, which is subject to the laws neither of Germany nor of Belgium, but of the ancient Code Napoleon.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

PRIMITIVE ARAB LIFE.

Desert People Still Have the Customs of Abraham's Time.

In the wild deserts Arab life is as primitive as in Abraham's time. Sheep are still slain to seal a vow. The salt or bread covenant is observed, and when a man dies his tent is torn down and destroyed.

Old names such as Joseph, Moses and Alexander are still in common use among Arabs, though pronounced "Yusuf," "Musa" and "Skandar."

To divorce his wife a man may repeat the formula Ent telek three times. Usually saying it once makes the woman behave, and its repetition is not necessary.

The "evil eye" superstition is common, and the first injunction given a visiting foreigner by experienced Arabian travelers is that he must not point at animals or persons in Arab settlements.

Arabs say a man gifted with this malign power can look at a bird flying in the air and that it will drop dead; that if he chooses to cast his wicked spell on a camel it may go lame or a child so selected will be struck blind.

None of the lower class can read or write, but the Arab is noted for his ready wit and his habit of speaking in allegory.—Christian Herald.

The Human Brain.

In estimating the size of the human brain in comparison with the brain of other animals we must figure on not only the positive size, but the relative. Were this not the case man would stand below the elephant and whale, as the brains of those creatures far exceed man's in positive size, while as regards relative size they stand so far below him that, while the brain of the elephant amounts to about the five-hundredth and that of the whale to three-thousandth part of the bodily weight of these animals respectively, the brain of man varies from one-thirty-fifth to one-thirty-seventh of his entire weight. This shows the immense superiority of the human brain as compared with the brains of the lower animals.—New York American.

Dogs That Hunt Crabs.

A collector for the London zoo has succeeded in capturing several crab hunting and crab eating dogs in Brazil. The dogs are half fox, but they do not seem to care very much for poultry. They have been known to turn up their noses at nice, fat pullets and go fishing for crabs instead. The dogs hunt in packs along the banks of the rivers in the Amazon valley, and the crawfish and land crabs of that region are their especial prey. The crabs often put up a vigorous fight, but the dogs have a way of turning them over and biting them in a vital spot just as the thoroughbred terrier polishes off a rat.—New York Herald.

Unfair Advantage.

A school inspector, examining a class in Bible history, asked, "Can any boy tell me what bird Noah let out of the ark?" There was a long silence, and then the smallest boy in the class put up his hand and answered, "Please, sir, a dove!" The inspector expressed his surprise that only the smallest boy in the class knew the answer to the question. "But, please, sir," replied one of the boys, evidently touched by this reproach, "his father keeps a bird shop!"—London Telegraph.

CAREFUL OF THEIR COWS.

Isle of Jersey Sees to It That the Breed Is Kept Absolutely Pure.

Undoubtedly the little island of Jersey has been enriched by the profit of its cows. In modern days potato raising and fruit culture have helped, but it is the solid, continual profit of the cattle that has made the island rich.

So carefully do they tend them there and so frugal are they of waste in trodden pastures, says Our Dumb Animals, that they actually tether their animals, and the children or indoor servants shift them at morn, noon and night.

Gentleness is their cue in handling the calf, which, after a dose of mother's milk, has to be content with skimmilk, or skillegalee. She is haltered and fed by hand and becomes docile and gentle and when two years old yields indoors or out her bountiful bucketful of frothy, rich milk to the quiet women folk who milk her.

The Jersey breed is kept pure by stringent laws against the importation of foreign stock. The summer pasturage is very rich, and cattle remain out from May till October, but during the winter they are always comfortably housed.

The milk is used almost exclusively in making butter. A good Jersey will make an average of a pound of butter every day in the year. The Jersey is beautiful in form, and her abounding dairy products make her a favorite with the household, an ornament to any farm or estate and a source of great profit to her owner.

CURIOUS CUSTOMS IN INDIA.

Dancing Girls Are Married to Idols Representing Gods.

Parrots are taught in India to spend a large portion of their time in repeating the names of gods, and such a spokesman brings a great price, especially among business men, who imagine that by owning such a parrot their spiritual treasures are accumulating while they attend to their usual occupations.

Many of the dancing girls in India belonging to the temples are called the wives of the gods. At an early age they are united in wedlock to the images worshiped in the temples. This strange matrimonial connection is formed in compliance with the wishes of the parents, who believe it to be a highly meritorious act to present a beautiful daughter in marriage to a senseless idol.

The only foreigner who ever saw the inside of the great Temple of Juggernaut was an English officer, who succeeded in gaining admission by painting and dressing himself like a native.

When the Brahmins discovered that their holy place had been thus defiled they became so enraged that all the English residing at the station were obliged to flee for their lives.

Suspecting their pursuers to be more desirous of gratifying their avarice than their revenge, they strewed silver money by the way, and while the natives stopped to pick it up they gained time and succeeded in reaching a place of safety.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Winter.

I have never doubted the fact that winter was really at heart a jolly good fellow, brusque, but sincere. His bark is worse than his bite. If you expect smooth phrases or flatteries from his lips you will be disappointed. His language is vigorous, direct and effective. His reign as "ruler of the inverted year" is absolute. His qualities are distinctly masculine. We think of spring as a shy maiden coquetting with the breezes, summer as the perfect flower of gracious womanhood. Autumn reminds us of a widow, to whom bereavement has brought a chastened melancholy. But winter is the vigorous gentleman with the wisdom and judgment of age, strong and unyielding where great issues are at stake, yet withal revealing at times a winning beneficence in both looks and actions.—Suburban Life.

The Vatican's Precious Manuscripts.

The Vatican library is probably the most sumptuously housed in the world. This, of course, is only as it should be, for the collection contains some of the most precious manuscripts in existence, including the Biblical "Codex Vaticanus" of the fourth century, the fifth century Vergil and the palimpsest "De Republica" of Cicero. The printed books include over 2,500 fifteenth century editions, many of them vellum copies. The total library has been estimated to comprise over 220,000 volumes and 30,000 manuscripts, but it has never been adequately catalogued.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Learning, like money, may be of so base a coin as to be utterly void of use or, if sterling, may require good management to make it serve the purpose of sense and happiness.—Shenstone.

Enduring.

"I suppose you and your wife can remember your first quarrel," said the meddlesome person.

"Remember it!" returned Mr. Growcher. "I should say so! It isn't over yet."

GREEK FIRE.

Secret of a Great War-like Invention of the Middle Ages.

The composition of the Greek fire used by the ancients has been a subject of much controversy and while it has been pretty generally settled as to what constituted it, yet there is still a discussed question as to all the ingredients contained.

The name Greek fire was applied to the inflammable and destructive compositions that were used in warfare in the middle ages and especially by the Byzantine Greeks at the sieges of Constantinople.

What distinguished Greek fire from the other fires used at this period was the presence of quicklime, which was well known to give rise to a large development of heat when brought into contact with water. The mixture was composed of such materials as sulphur and naphtha with quicklime and took fire spontaneously when moistened—whence the name of wet fire or sea fire.

From this mixture, which produced a thick smoke and a loud explosion, proceeded a fierce and obstinate flame. Instead of being extinguished it was nourished and quickened by the element of water; and sand or vinegar were the only remedies that could check the fury of this powerful agent. It was poured from the ramparts of a besieged town in large boilers or launched in red-hot balls of stone and iron, or darted in arrows and javelins, twisted round with flax and tow, which had deeply imbibed the inflammable oil. Some times it was deposited in fireships and was most commonly emited through long tubes of copper, which were planted on the prow of galley, and fanciffully shaped into the mouths of savage monsters that seemed to vomit a stream of liquid and consuming fire.

The important secret of compounding and directing this artificial flame was imparted in the latter part of the seventh century to the Greeks, or Byzantines, at Constantinople, in Syria, who deserted from the service of the caliph to that of the emperor. The skill of a chemist and engineer was equivalent to the succor of the fleets and armies, and this discovery or improvement of the military art was fortunately reserved for the distressful period when the degenerate Romans of the east were incapable of contending with the warlike enthusiasm and youthful vigor of the Saracens.

The important art was confined about 400 years to the Romans of the east. It was at length either discovered or stolen by the Mohammedans and in the holy wars of Syria and Egypt they retorted an invention, contrived against themselves, on the heads of the Christians. The use of the Greek, or, as it might now be called, the Saracen fire, was continued to the middle of the 14th century.

Origin of the Heel.

It is said that the heels now worn on shoes had their origin in Persia, where they took the form of flat wood on sandals to raise the feet and protect them from the hot sand. It was many years afterward that this fashion was introduced into Venice, but the reason for its adoption in this case is said to have been quite different. Here the originators of the fashion were jealous husbands who reasoned that the ladies thus equipped would not venture far outside the precincts of their dwelling. Those heels were called "clogs," and in order to satisfy the vanity of the wearers and perhaps to sweeten the pill—that is, the discomfort of appearing in them—they were elaborately adorned, sometimes being incrusted with gold and silver. The height of the clogs determined the rank of the wearer.

Michelangelo.

Michelangelo while painting "The Last Judgment" fell from his scaffold and received a painful injury in the leg. He shut himself up and would not see any one. Bacio Rontani, a celebrated physician, came by accident to see him. He found all the doors closed. No one responding, he went into the cellar and came upstairs. He found Michelangelo in his room, resolved to die. His friend the physician would not leave him. He brought him out of the peculiar frame of mind into which he had fallen.

Cook two pounds of sugar, one cup and a fourth of water and one-fourth teaspoonful of cream of tartar to 340 degrees F.; remove from the fire, add half a cupful (one-fourth pound of) butter cut into small pieces, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt and half a teaspoonful of coffee extract and mix well, but with as little stirring as possible. Pour on to an oiled platter of marble, spread evenly with a palette knife and mark or cut with a knife into squares of about one inch and a half.

The Artist and the Girl.

Into his studio she floats
To see his masterpieces,
And as she views them one by one
Her interest increases.

Then suddenly she comes across
A frame turned to the wall.
She seeks with curiosity
The meaning of it all.

"The picture that you've hidden here—
A sweetheart, I suppose,
Which, were it real, I have no doubt
To her you would propose."

"I would," quoth he. "I'll turn it round
Now, won't you please step nearer?
The light is very poor today.
You see, it's but a mirror."

Notes and Comments

Commercial prosperity seems to follow Mr. Borden's stately lead as faithfully as it did the white plume of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. As our trade increased by leaps and bounds during Sir Wilfrid's long term, so it is continuing to increase, and Canada never had such a year as the last.---Montreal Witness.

Buy at home, Invest at home, and believe in your home town. If you don't how under the sun are you going to get anyone interested to come here? This is undoubtedly the best and largest valley in B. C., and we would like to see it develop rapidly by the efforts of our own people.

The retailer who thinks it unnecessary to charge up a salary for himself and who is only netting $1,000 a year out of his business, is really—if his services are worth more than $20 a week---working for himself for less than others would pay him and making no profit on the investment.--Canadian Grocer.

One of the Commissioners here last week made the statement that there seemed to be more money in the Comox District than in any other place they had visited. The right thing to do is keep it here. Loosen up and invest it here. There's plenty of opportunities right at home for all the money in sight.

There are some things that a prudent man should never do. Among these is to kindle a fire with kerosene oil, to walk on a railroad, to attempt to get on a moving train, to point a gun or revolver at another, to put his name to another man's note, to keep his savings in an old stocking under his bed, to play a game of chance with a prepossessing stranger, to run for office when he has a paying position in private life, or to call a bigger man than himself a liar.

A bill has been introduced into the Tennessee Legislature making it unlawful for "any acknowledged, self-confessed or convicted liar or thief to publish his own, or control any newspaper in that state." This is a good idea. Liars, thieves etc., should not publish newspapers Perhaps if the gentlemen answering to this description were weeded out of journalism there would be some editorial chairs vacant—in Tennessee. But if the same rule applied to the legislatures there would be some, and perhaps more, vacancies there.---Montreal Herald.

It is very amusing nowadays to stand on some of our busy throughfares and listen to some noted local anglers describing how they made their big catches. Walt Mason aptly describes a good many of those heard: "He came home with a string of fish; his wife soon had them fried, and as he ate the fragrant dish, he lied my friends, he lied. "The fish I brought were pretty fine," his children heard him say· "but oh! I had a rotten line, and the biggest got away!" He goes down town among his friends and wears their patience out; he talks and talks till night descends about his string of trout. "My heart," he says, "will know regret until my dying day, alas! that fish so large and wet—the one that got away!" All people know the tale he springs is made of mist and smoke, and heated air and dragon wings, and prehistoric joke. But he will tell his weary tale till he is bent and gray: "The mem'ry makes my spirit wail—the fish that got away!" And you, perhaps, have some old yarn, as tiresome old and vain, that Adam told behind the barn, his sons to entertain. Though it may seem to you quite fine, it grates on others ears; oh! put it down my friends, in brine, and let it soak ten years.

The Water Works Company want all the citizns to take stock in the Water Company and then in a few years when Courtenay is incorporated, hand over the waterworks to the city. This is all right as far as it goes, but it must be remembered that the only persons opposed to incorporation are the promoters of the Water Company. Better incorporate first, then all hands join in and build the water works, or do both simultaneously.

Water and Electric Light Question Discussed

LARGE GATHERING OF INTERESTED CITIZENS

On Thursday evening last a largely attended meeting was convened in the opera house by the Courtenay Water Company, for the purpose of discussing the question of supplying water and electric light for Courtenay.

Mr. Bruce Towler was appointed chairman, and Dr. Millard briefly outlined the proposals of the company, and their reasons why the citizens should not oppose the company laying the mains and getting the water record.

Dr. Grompton spoke for the objecting citizens, stating that the franchises should be held by the citizens as they were anxious to incorporate. He quoted the Cumberland situation, where the company collects $10,700 annually from the citizens, and the cost was $2,500, leaving a profit of $8,200, The Electric Light Company was capitalized at $50,000 and paid a dividend of 17 per cent. If Courtenay owned these utilties the rate of taxation would be very low.

Colin Campbell said we should incorporate at once, as there was about 1000 acres of land to be taken in which was worth an average of $1,000 per acre. Some laughed at this, but it is true nevertheless. Several corners have been sold lately at $1,250, two are held at $5,000, and, there isn't a lot inside the proposed district that can be bought for less than $250, and there is an average of 8 lots to the acre.

Mr. McPhee said Cumberland was poor, and had large schools to keep up and could not buy the companies out. Wouldn't it be better for all to join hands and incorporote at once, and build the Water and Electric Light works for Courtenay. He was prepared to lend money and would be a large user of water, but would oppose to the utmost the efforts of any private company to secure control of these franchises.

Dr. Millard said Mr. McPhee and others in the lower part of the town were opposed to the company because they had plenty of water for their lawns and baths, while those higher up had none, except what they got out of their wells.

Mr. McPhee said he sympathized with those higher up as they doubtless did not have as much water as those on the lower level. Had a lot of property here and would be willing to take water and pay for it, and wanted to know what about the chemical engine.

Dr Millard said there would be no dividends for two or three years and that the company would be obliged to sell to the town at an advance of 30 per cent on cost, as fixed by arbitration, and that they had a supply of 5 cubic feet per second, which would supply a city of 15,000.

Mr. Harrison said that arbitrators usually placed the very highst value possible on anything they could.

Mr Hodson corroborated him, and said the stream which the company proposed taking passed through his farm, and through his neighbors' as well, and they needed the water just as badly as did Courtenay, and didn't intend to let the company have it if at all possible.

A motion was passed to the effect that this meeting was opposed to allowing the company to get the water record, and supplying Courtenay with water and light.

Mr. Fechner was very sorry to see the people putting them down as a lot of crooks and grafters; said they wanted everyone to take stock in the company.

Dr. Millard said nothing would hurt Courtenay more than an outbreak of fever, which might occur if we did not secure a supply of pure water,

Mr. McPhee said he was still of the opinion that we should incorporate at once and build our own water works and electric light plant. We only had to have 100 male citizens who owned 50 per cent of the value of the taxable property in order to do so.

At this stage the company got together and Mr. Fechner said that all they wanted was water, and proposed that all citizens take stock and sell it at par to the city when incorporated.

This seemed to meet with general approval, and a committee was appointed to confer with the company and report at a meeting to be called shortly.

The committee is composed of Mr. McPhee, Dr. Grompton and Mr. W. S. McPhee annouuced that the chemical engine was here, and that while the demonstration was not satisfactory, the agent had blamed the chemicals. A further test will be made. A smoker will be held shortly at which a fire brigade would be organized. He asked all to attend.

CUMBERLAND

The wrestling match in Cumberland Hall on Tuesday night, April 22nd, between Gill Hart, of San Francisco, and Victor Bonora, of this city, was won by Hart, he taking first and third falls, in best two out of three. Hart took first fall in thirteen minutes; Bonora took second fall in one minute, and Hart the third fall in seven minutes. A fairly large crowd witnessed the match. If Bonora had have had more training, it is a question if Hart would have downed him.

The first meeting of the Cumberland and Courtenay Automobile Association was held in B. C. Garage on the 19th inst., and was attended by some fifteen members. The attendance was small on account of the dance and banquet at Courtenay. The following officers were appointed:

H. Creech.....President
O. H. Fechner.....Vice-Pres.
P. P. Harrison.....Secretary
P. L. Anderton ....Treasurer
Executive:—Chas. Grant, F. D. Cameron, Dr. H. P. Millard.

It was decided that the entrance fee be $5.00, and that the secretary communicate with the Victoria Automobile Association regarding by-laws etc. The association will meet in the near future and will doubtless discuss ways and means of having a celebration ball. As the association propose giving a formal ball, and one which will eclipse any social function of the kind ever given in this city or district, an orchestra will be provided from Victoria or Vancouver, and on the night of the ball, all members of the association will place their cars at the disposal of those invited.—News.

There will be evening service in Holy Trinity church at 7 p. m. on Sunday next, May 4th.

A Good Booster

If every citizen would boost for Courtenay the way Jeff Hannay does we would soon be known as the most progressive place in B. C. The Nanaimo Herald has the following:

"Mr. Jeff Hannay, provincial constable, of Courtenay, is in the city, bringing prisoner T. J. Moran down to the jail where he will serve a sentence given by Judge Barker, of three months for forgery.

Jeff reports courtenay on the boom --- banks, restaurants and stores, including bakeries and warehouses are springing up everywhere.

A new Provincial Court House and jail is to be erected which, from an architectural viewpoint, will be a fine acquisition to the town and district. Water mains will be laid into Courtenay about the end of August. A lot bought six months ago for $600 sold for $1,400 cash.

In the main street practically every site has been sold at a tremendious figure. and still the demand from outsiders for land continues at fever height."

TOWNS BOUGHT TO BURN

Some Costly Experiments Made by the Producers of Picture Plays

Few patrons of picture plays have any idea of the trouble and expense involved in producing the various battle pieces, now so popular.

In order to film: The Siege of Petersburg, for instance, the Khan Company built a bridge across an arm of the Mississippi, and set fire to it. The structure cost several thousand dollars, and took many weeks to construct, yet it was destroyed, for the purposes of the play, in a few minutes.

The fort that is mined and blown up in the same piece was built by contract in just under one week, but then the contractor had over eight hundred workmen employed at the job day and night. Nearly a quarter of a ton of dynamite was used in the explosion which destroyed it.

Besides the dynamite, considerable quantities of gunpowder were used in the preliminary bombardment, and this was kept stored in barrels till wanted. One day, during the rehearsal, a super was discovered seated upon a barrel, puffing contentedly at his pipe!

Put out your pipe, Bill! somebody shouted. You'll blow us all up.

Bill grinned, and to everyone's horror, slowly knocked the ashes from his pipe on to the top of the barrel.

It's all right! he said cheerfully. It's a cask of beer!

Fifteen hundred supers, of whom one thousand were Indians, took part in that popular film: The Massacre, and The American Biograph Company, which produced it, had to give each of the redskins a horse apiece in order to retain their services during the long series of preliminary rehearsals.

They thoroughly enjoyed their work—so much so, indeed, that of those who were told off to die early in the play, the majority preferred to stay alive and fire off their blank cartridges, so that the first rehearsal only resulted in three fatalities, instead of about three hundred.

In another film of the kind, the principal scene was the destruction of a settlement of whites by a band of Indian raiders and so that the sacking of the houses might lack nothing in realism, a small frontier town containing some sixty dwellings of the usual Western wooden-frame type, was purchased and fired.

In 'War's Havoc,' another famous Kalem film, two locomotive engines meet in a spectacular collision on a high bridge, both being reduced to scrap-iron. That one episode cost the company over $20,000, yet it occupies less than four minutes in the showing.

Perhaps, however, the most realistic thing ever done in the way of battle scenes was recently undertaken on the spur of the moment by Mr. Wilbert Melville, managing director of one of the Lubin Film Company's travelling organizations.

This gentleman was with his company near El Paso, Texas, when a band of revolutionists, several hundreds strong, suddenly appeared on the Mexican side of the Rio Grande. The opportunity was thought too good to be missed. Mr. Melville hurried across the river, and bargained for a fight—a sham one—to take place then and there.

The Mexican army, nothing loth, promptly got to work, while the members of the Lubin stock company, who had been hurried to the field of action enacted the part of a federal patrol.

But the revolutionists, in their excitement, started firing off ball ammunition, and several bullets fell amongst the spectators on the United States side of the river.

As a result the Chief of Police at El Paso had the Lubin people arrested directly they recrossed the river, at the same time despatching a messenger with explanations and apologies to the neighboring Mexican town of Juarez, where the authorities and the populace alike had been greatly perturbed by the heavy firing, which they took to herald a determined attack upon them on the part of one of the many large guerilla bands known to be in the neighborhood.

The show folk were afterwards arraigned before the Mayor of El Paso.

Why, it might have led to international complications, you know! he exclaimed, when Melville put forward the plea that he did not think he was doing any harm.

Eventually a fine of ten shillings and costs was imposed upon each member of the company.

And cheap at the price, too, chuckled the enterprising director as he handed over the money.

The Unexpected Happened

Mrs. Mulligatawny needed a change of air. The doctor was emphatic on this point. Her husband, however, being unable to go with her, she went alone, retiring as usual to her favorite holiday haunt.

On the morning after her arrival she suddenly discovered that she had come away without her watch. Thinking, therefore, that she must have dropped it on the thick carpet in the dining-room, she forthwith wired to the maid at home:

Let me know if you find anything on the carpet in the dining-room.

In due course she received a letter in reply:

Dear Madam—I was to let you know if I found anything on the dining-room carpet. This is what I found this morning—three champagne corks, eighteen cigar ends, five cigarette ends, thirty-six burnt matches, and—

But Mrs. Mulligatawny did not read further. And when her husband returned home from the office that evening he found his faithful spouse awaiting him.

A Matter of Tact

Gloom prevailed in the domestic circle—a gloom horrible and depressing. Mr. Brown, in fact, was in a bad temper, and as Mrs. Brown knew, there was only one way of curing it—to rouse him thoroughly, for when miserable himself, he always accused other people of being miserable. He did on this occasion.

Jane, he grumped at last, you're as dull as an old owl! Sulking, I suppose because I refused to buy you that new hat.

No, sighed his wife; I wasn't thinking about it. As a matter of fact, I have been turning out some old letters and—oh, it's nothing of importance. Only a fit of the blues.

What letters?

Love-letters.

Some I wrote to you, I suppose.

No, said his wife calmly. Some I received before I met you. It's of no consequence. None at all. How is your cold?

Irene Flew the Track

Irene is a highly valued cook in a north side family. She is not excitable nor given to hysterics. She impresses one as being calm and serene. But on her way to work she momentarily lost all such qualities.

Suddenly she rushed into the middle of the street screaming and shrieking. She threw her coat from her and continued to scream.

She must be crazy! exclaimed a woman who came out of her house to see what the trouble was.

She's having a fit, said another.

But neither was right. The cause of the commotion was a mouse which had crawled into Irene's coat pocket for a little snooze.

BUREAU OF BRAINS

Business Posts for Men From British Universities

London, England.—A bureau of brains, or, as it is formerally styled a 'Business Appointments Bureau,' is now being formed to conduct a campaign in favor of a more bracing and vigorous life on the part of our educated young men.

H. E. Morgan, of Messrs. W. H. Smith & Son, whose article on The Dignity of Business, was recently quoted in the Daily Mail, supports the scheme in an article in the Review of Reviews. The bureau, he points out, will bring home to educated young men the specific place in business that they are fitted to fill; it will convince business men of the necessity for fresh brains as well as fresh methods; and it will act in co-operation with existing appointments, boards and similar organizations to bring qualified applicants for business posts into touch with suitable business houses.

The bureau, contends Mr. Morgan, should have command of all the talent available from public schools and universities.

Relative of High Prussian Official in Sore Trouble

Berlin, Germany. — The Berliner Tageblatt confirms a report that a Prussian officer, a relative of one of the highest officers in the Prussian army, has been arrested on suspicion of high treason, presumably in the form of espionage.

He was arrested on February 3 at the instance of the imperial department of public prosecutions at Leipzig. He was imprisoned in Berlin, but released on Friday on bail, said to amount to seven hundred thousand marks. During his five days of arrest the prisoner was allowed to receive his wife daily. The utmost secrecy is observed with regard to the nature of the charge.

STRENGTH

Without Overloading the Stomach

The business man, especially, needs food in the morning that will not overload the stomach but give mental vigor for the day.

Much depends on the start a man gets each day, as to how he may expect to accomplish the work on hand.

He can't be alert, with a heavy, fried-meat-and-potatoes breakfast requiring a lot of vital energy in digesting it.

A Western business man tried to find some food combination that would not overload the stomach in the morning, but that would produce energy. He writes:

"For years I was unable to find a breakfast food that had nutrition enough to sustain a business man without over-loading his stomach, causing indigestion and kindred ailments.

"Being a very busy and also a very nervous man, I decided to give up breakfast altogether. But luckily I was induced to try Grape Nuts.

"Since that morning I have been a new man; can work without tiring, my head is clear and my nerves strong and quiet.

I find four teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts with one of sugar and a small quantity of cold milk, is delicious as the cereal part of the morning meal, and invigorates me for the day's business." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

"There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

Father—You mean that is the beginning of all there is to it!

Forbidden Knowledge

Little Jack, aged five, had accompanied his mother on a trip to the City. They made the journey by tramcar.

Presently the conductor came round to collect the fares and on approaching little Jack, of course asked the usual question:

How old is the boy?

The mother informed him; then he passed on to the next passenger. But the lad who was the subject of the inquiry, sat quite still apparently pondering over something, until at last, concluding that full information had not been given, he called loudly to the conductor, now at the other end of the car:

And mother's thirty-five.

A sailor who had landed after a long voyage, and having been paid off, called a cab, threw his luggage inside and jumped on top himself.

Beg pardon, sir, said the astonished cabman, but you should get inside and put your boxes on top.

Steer the craft ahead, jarvey. Passengers always go on deck and luggage in the hold, was the reply from the top.

MOTHER AND BABY.

A mother's greatest care is the health of her baby—the prevention of constipation, colds, worms and other childhood ailments and the keeping of her baby happy and strong. Baby's Own Tablets are the mother's best friend in caring for the baby. They are absolutely the best medicine in the world for little ones. Concerning them Mrs. Jos. Poitras, Mont Louis, Que., says: "I am well satisfied with Baby's Own Tablets having used them for my baby with great benefit. They are the best medicine in the world for little ones." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

That Fellow Feeling

Outside a busy fishmonger's stood a large ice cart. The driver was inside the shop, but on a block of ice sat a small boy, with comfort writ large upon his face.

'Ere gitoutof'it! yelled he man, all in one word, as he suddenly appeared from the shop.

Then the small boy lifted his face, now charged with sadness.

Was you ever a boy? he asked ungrammatically.

Of course I was, came the reply, but—

And did you ever stop away from school?

Yes—

And when you got home did yer farver ever get his belt and—

Then it dawned on the big and burly ice-man.

You stop just where you are, my little man, he said genially. I quite understand.

SPARKLING WATER, cool and sweet, refreshes the farmer who builds a

Concrete Well or Tank

THE FARMER, above all others, appreciates good water. He drinks more water than the city man. The city-dweller is dependent upon the public water-supply for the purity of his water, while the farmer can have his own private source of water, and thus be sure that it is pure and healthful.

MAN hasn't found a better drink than cool water, properly collected and stored. But in order to keep water fresh and pure, a tank or well casing that will keep out every possible impurity must be used.

CONCRETE IS THE IDEAL MATERIAL FOR TANKS AND WELL-CASINGS.

IT is absolutely water-tight, protecting your water from seepage of all kinds. It cannot rot or crumble. It is easily cleaned inside. Time and water, instead of causing it to decay, actually make it stronger.

THERE are scores of other uses for concrete on your farm—on every farm. If you would like to know of them, write for our book, "What the Farmer Can Do With Concrete." The book is absolutely free.

OUR Farmers' Information Department will help you to decide how to build anything, from a porch-step to a silo. The service is free—you don't even have to promise to build. When in doubt ask the Information Department.

Past stall after stall went the rich merchant, followed by a footman in smart livery. It was the annual village bazaar, and the rich man had been roped in by force of circumstances.

Ah, Mr. Fitzbrendon, said a really sweet and charming lady at one of the stalls, and what are you going to buy? Dear old auntie and I are running this table, and we have home-made cakes, aprons, penwipers, and—

Yes, said F; and I'll buy just one of each. But do you sell kisses at your stall?

Oh, certainly! came the ready reply. One guinea each.

Right! replied the autocrat. Then I'll take a couple—and good measure please.

Aunt, remarked the fair and dainty damsel, forward, please. Two kisses for this gentleman!

For a moment the man of means and money was nonplussed, but only for a moment. Then he turned to his servitor:

James, he said coolly, just take this purchase, please.

Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are of this character and are the best of all pills. During the years that they have been in use they have established themselves as no other pill has done.

The case had reached a critical stage and even the judge seemed to awaken to a live interest in the proceedings, for the most important witness was about to be cross-examined.

So you are the lady's maid? began the relentless barrister.

Yes, sir.

And where were you at 7 o'clock on the evening in question?

I was in my lady's room, sir.

For what purpose?

I was dressing my lady's hair, sir.

The barrister leaned forward and spoke very slowly and impressively. Now think, he said. I want you to be very careful in answering this question: Was or was not your mistress in the room at the time?

His Opinion of Them

An heirloom, explained the farmer, is something that has been handed down from father to son and in some cases is greatly prized.

I'd prize these heirlooms I'm wearing, remarked the youngster, a good deal more if they wasn't so long in the legs.

Waiting for an Answer

We asked some months ago whether paper collars are still worn. No one vouchsafed to answer. It is our impression that the celluloid drove out the paper. We well remember the paper collar and the paper dicky. Cool Burgess used to sing of Hildebrand Montrose:

He parts his hair with extreme care
And chalks his paper collars.

But the paper collar, once worn, was an accomplished fact, something to be forgotten; while the celluloid like the enamelled steel collar of the civil war period can be cleansed. The steel collar was at regular intervals refreshed by use of a tooth brush.

An Inspiring Model

Little Johnnie, having in his possession a couple of bantam hens, which laid very small eggs, suddenly hit on a plan. Going the next morning to the fowl-run, Johnnie's father was surprised to find an ostrich egg tied to one end of the beams, and above it a card, with the words: Keep your eye on this and do your best.

Toasties are bits of hard, white Indian Corn, first carefully cooked, then rolled thin and crinkly, and toasted to a delicate, appetizing brown.

Not a hand touches the food in manufacture, and it is ready to serve direct from the package—to be eaten with cream or milk—and sugar, if desired.

Post Toasties taste deliciously good and are richly nourishing.

THE SECRET OF GIRLISH BEAUTY

The Blood Must be Kept Rich and Pure, and the Nerves Properly Nourished.

Every parent of a growing girl and every young woman who looks after herself, should be constantly on the watch for symptoms of impoverished blood. Girls in their teens should not be pale, languid and constantly fatigued. Nature intended them to be bright, energetic and active. The happiness of a lifetime depends upon giving the blood the help it needs at this time, when girls are too frequently allowed to overstudy, overwork or suffer from lack of exercise.

The symptoms of impoverished blood are unmistakable. They are languidness, pale, sallow complexion, shortness of breath, violent palpitation of the heart, particularly on going up stairs, poor appetite, dizziness and headaches, and a tendency to faint. These symptoms of course are not all found in every case, but the more the victim has of them the greater progress has the trouble made and the more imperative is the necessity to at once begin to check it, through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which bring bac kthe glo wof health and energy to every part of the body. The case of Miss Jeanie Fraser, Hamilton, Ont., offers proof of this. She says: "For about eighteen months I was in a very bad state of health and thoroughly run down. I had no appetite and suffered from most of the symptoms of anaemia. I went to a local doctor and received treatment from him for three months, and although I took bottle after bottle of medicine I was steadily growing worse, and I got so down-hearted and depressed that I felt I would never get better. At this time I read the case of a young lady whose symptoms were similar to my own, who had been cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I decided to try them. By the time I had used three boxes my appetite had improved and I was feeling more encouraged. I continued the use of the Pills for a time longer and my health was fully restored."

These Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or may be had by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

WINNIPEG DRUGGIST ENDORSES SANOL REMEDIES

SANOL AND SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES EFFECT WONDERFUL CURES

Below is given a copy of a letter from a prominent Winnipeg Druggist. This is but typical of the many we receive, advising of the great demand for SANOL and SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES, and the many cures these sterling remedies effect.

The Sanol Manufacturing Co.,
Winnipeg.

Dear Sirs,—

In regard to the sale of SANOL and SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES I might say I have been handling the goods for about three months. I was obliged to put in SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES to supply one of my customers, who now is completely cured and whom, I believe, has sent a testimonial to your office. Another customer ordered SANOL and I was obliged to stock it. This gentleman was so well satisfied that he has sent bottles to his friends. Up to this time I had never really taken much interest in the preparations, but when customer after customer would come in and tell us about what SANOL had done for them I came to the conclusion it would be worth my while getting behind SANOL and recommending it to my customers. This I have done, and I have heard nothing but words of praise for SANOL and recommending it to my customers. This I have done, and I have heard nothing but words of praise for SANOL and SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES. I am,

Yours truly,

The Link That Binds

Fifty clergymen of every denomination called at the State Department and urged Secretary Bryan to take the leadership of what they hope will prove the greatest interdenominational Bible Class in the world. Mr. Bryan has been much in demand by religious organizations since he took office, so far he has made no promises, but he, as well as the President and Vice-President, are active church members, and any of them can and will preach a sermon, lead a prayer meeting or teach a Bible class. Religion is not only the moral link that binds man closer with his God, but with his fellowman and it speaks well for any nation when it has such christian gentlemen at the head of its affirs. It has been said that one's personal value depends upon their possession of religion. One is worth to society what they are capable of imparting and the man whose aims are low who has in his heart no adoration of God, whose will is not subordinate to the supreme will, cannot be worth very much to himself or to society. There is every reason in a Christian country why all of our public servants should stand for Christianity, and we are glad these men are making their influence as potential for good as possible.

A Doggerel

There's a moaning in the woods
And some poor devil's down,
So hail a passing rig
And take him into town.

There's a groaning on the road,
And some good comrade crys
Oh, get a move on, friend,
Be quick, before he dies!

There's a gaping crowd in town,
The doctor's right on hand
To help the sufferer out
And make for Cumberland.

There's a swiftness in the speed,
And all the road's ahead,
There's fighting to be done,
My God! too late, he's dead.

There's a rich man here and there
With land, in lots, to sell,
He's waiting for his price,
And lots are cheap---in Hell! !

There's abundance in the land
And no one wants for bread
And shall the purse be held
Until the sufferer's dead?

There's a lurking death around
And who shall be his prey?
Young, old, or rich, or poor?
May help be near that day.

Who succors on earth My sheep,
Who helps without a fee,
But just for love---those are they
Who do it unto Me.

The eight hour law for women is a good thing. It should be extended to include wives, wuose wages (allowance) should in most cases be raised at the same time.

It Sounded Like It

A young girl from a country town went to a city boarding school, much against the wish of her father, who thought she would be spoiled by city ways.

Soon she wrote in one of her letters: "I am in love with ping-pong."

The mother read the letter aloud to her father, who turned angrily upon her, saying: "Well you see I was right. I knew no good would come of her going to the city. Now, you see she has got in with one af those danged Chinamen."

It All Depends

"John, how much money have we in the bank?"

"We? I have a few hundred dollars, Maria. Why?"

"Nothing, only I just got a letter from the lawyer who settled up my fathers estate. There was more property than anybody anticipated; a good deal more."

"That's fine! How much do we get out of it, Maria?"

"We? I get a few thousand dollars, John. Why?"—Chicago Tribune.

The west is still the place for the young, the ambitious and the enterprising. Nothing is further from the truth than the idea that opportunity went with the placer gold, The pioneers had only two chances, mining and merchandising while, to-day, we have a thousand. Too much population may be as bad as too little. Certainly the east is becoming more and more like the conjested parts of Europe where only genius or exceptional luck lifts a man out of the ruck. The average man stays where he was born, or perhaps drops a peg. The Pacific coast is the land of opportunity to-day.---San Francisco Post.
