Somebody called the girl, and she went away. Barbara did not ask any more about rooms. She went out into the damp, cold London street. The lamps were burning. Between the lamps there seemed to be a sort of impenetrable fog. People were hurrying faster and faster towards their comfortable homes. Barbara did not dare to stand still. If she did so, some one might speak to her. She had a horror of anyone addressing her. The only people she felt sure she could trust were the police. There was a good-natured policeman standing at a corner. Already one had directed her to Pimlico. Perhaps this man could tell her of a lodging. She went up to him.

"Yes, miss; where did you say you wanted to go?"

"Oh, it isn't that—I—I beg your pardon," said Barbara, "I wanted to—get a room—a clean room where I could sleep tonight."

The man looked at her suspiciously.

"I don't keep lodgings," he said. He felt angry for a minute; Barbara's next words, however, mollified him.

"I am a girl quite fresh from the country, and—my father—was a clergyman. He has just died. I don't know anybody. I want a room for perhaps two nights. I—I can pay for it."

"You seem a decent sort of lass," said the man. "There's a woman I know, a Mrs. Russell. She lives in Vauxhall Bridge Road, number 124b. You go there, and say that Police-Sergeant X asked you to call. She's full up most times, but maybe she'll take you in; be sure you mention my name."

"Oh, thank you so very much!" said Barbara, with a smile.

That wonderful smile of hers was like the brighest sunshine. Police-Sergeant X felt his heart glow; he had not met anything like that for years and years and years, not since, ages ago, he had courted a little girl in the country, a little girl who had died. He watched Barbara as she went down Vauxhall Bridge Road, he hoped his friend, Mrs. Russell, would be good to the little girl with the smile.

Vauxhall Bridge Road, compared to Chesney street, seemed to Barbara to be almost a road out of Paradise. She stopped at 124b and went up the steps. She rang the bell. A neatly dressed, stout woman opened the door.

"Please, I want a room, just a bedroom, for a night or two," said Barbara. "Are you full up?"

"No, miss, I ain't full up. Will you step inside?"

Barbara did so. There was a broad hall, with rooms opening to the right and to the left: the rooms were lofty, and were heavily and well furnished. The hall was covered with thick linoleum, over which one or two rugs were placed, there were also a couple of chairs in the hall and an umbrella-stand. A gas lamp swung from the ceiling.

"What sort of rooms do you want, miss? Bedroom and sitting room? I have some vacant on the dining-room floor—very convenient is the dining-room floor, miss, sitting-room-room to the front and bedroom at the back. My terms are two guineas a week—well, there are extras, of course, such as fires, and lights, and the cruet. But I ain't, so to speak, expensive, and I cooks well. Have you brought your luggage along with you, miss?"

"I haven't brought any luggage."

"What, no luggage, miss?"

"No. I left the Rectory early this morning, and—and I did not—did not think—about luggage."

"I'm afraid, then, you won't suit me," said the woman, her manner changing. "My rooms is always occupied by respectable young females, by them and by steady gentlemen of the best sort, that stays for years and years."

"But please, please," said Barbara, "indeed, I am quite respectable. I am the daughter of a country Rector in Devonshire, who has just died, and I am in sad, great sorrow, and I came to London to see my solicitors. I can pay you well. I left home in such a hurry that I had not time to pack. Police-Sergeant X sent me to you. Perhaps you have a tiny bedroom at the top of the house. I can pay you in advance; won't that do instead of the luggage?"

"Ah, he sent you? 'Faithful Tim?' Well, now, I wonder? To be sure! There's the front attic, t'ain't very smart, miss, but, though I say it as shouldn't, it's clean and I can let you have it at eight shillings a week, and, so to speak, all found. I means by that, you can buy your own bit of food and bring it in and cook it yourself."

"Oh, yes," said Barbara, "that will do splendidly. Thank you very much! I will pay you for the first week now; please wait a mintue."

Barbara took out her little purse; she extracted eight shillings from her tiny store. The landlady saw the purse. She had a quick eye and she noticed its quality. It was a purse with a heavy gold ring round it, and the girl's initials were worked in a gold monogram on the front, her little cambric handkerchief had also appeared out of some pocket. It was tiny of the tiny and beautifully embroidered. The landlady further caught a glimpse of a heavy, a very heavy, gold chain, and yet another glimpse of a gold watch, and above and beyond all these things there was something in the make of the girl's clothes, her whole carriage, the sweetness in her eyes, and the smile which came and went round her lips, which softened Mrs. Russell's heart.

"My dear, my dear!" she said, "we landladies is often took in, we has to be particular like, but I believed in you, you're a right, good sort. You mustn't take the hattic unelss you wishes it. Come along with me this minute, and you shall see it."

Barbara went upstairs with the woman. Try as she would, she could not think tihs attic a luxurious bedroom, with its sloping roof and broken-down, shabby, iron bedstead, its rag of a carpet in front of the bedstead, its old deal table draped with dingy and dirty muslin which was to take the place of a dressing table, its wash-stand from which the paint had long debarred, and its jug without a handle, and basin with a crack in it, anything was mut repulsive. Neverheless, the woman said that the room was clean, and there was a little fire-place which might be filled with coal and in which a fire could burn.

"I will take the room," said Barbara, "and will you light the fire here, and will you, perhaps, just on this occasion get me what I want in the way of food until the morning? then I will tell you how long I am likely to stay; and, please, don't forget the fire, and may I have a pair of candles, and—I think that is all."

"Yes, my dear; certainly. It seems a pity you didn't bring a bit o' luggage along; but mayhap you'll send for it to the Rectory. It don't take long now to get luggage from any part of England."

"I will send for it—perhaps," answered the woman, "that you'd like to set downstairs in my back-parlour while I'm getting the hattic ready."

"Thank you," replied Barbara. "I should very much."

"And anything that you'd fancy to heat, miss—a hegg, or hanythink o' that sort?"

"No, thank you; I have had some food."

"Very well; then I'll send Sue up to tidy the room. You won't know it, with the fire burnin' brightly and the curtains drawed at the winders, and the candles alight; you'll be as snug as snug can be. It's a clean room, miss. It's only the dust and the smuts and the fogs off London as make it look so yeller like."

Barbara responded in pleasant tones.

"You are kind," she said. "I am greatly obliged to you. I am sure the room will suit me. And—don't forget—here are the eight shillings."

"Oh, my dear, I trust you, I do so. But there, if it will make you happy-like, I'll take them. We poor landladies have to be specially particular, we's often took in, often and often, and I've had, on the whole, my share, but 'Faithful Tim,' he never yet sent me one who deceived him or who led a low-down life. Tim has a wonderful heye, that's what I say about him, he'll know at a glance whether a girl's good or bad, honest or dishonest. I'd take his recommend sooner than many a fine lady's or gent's, that I would. Now, then, here you be, and there's a cat who'll keep you company; he's a good-natured beast, Tim be. Now be friendly with the young lidy, show your manners, Tim, and let the young lidy feel that she's at home and happy with good Mrs. Russell."

Tim, an enormous English tabby, arched his back, purred, and presently rubbed himself on Barbara's dress. She took the cat on her knee, and, tired out by her adventures of the day and completely worn out by her sleepless night, dropped by and by into the land of dreams, with Tim asleep in her lap. She was lying back in a shabby old chair, her hat had tumbled to the floor, her soft hair was fluffed round her pretty forehead, her long, thick lashes lay on her smooth, young checks, when Mrs. Russell came in.

"Now, missy—well, I do declare she's asleep, pretty lamb!"

The woman looked long and earnestly at the girl. She was for a London landlady, quite superior; but she had the cautious sort of face which comes from much acquaintance with the seamy side of life. Her struggle for existence was hard and unceasing. Many and many a time had her acts of kindness proved unavailing; many and many a man and woman had palmed themselves on her good nature, and left her without paying their rent. But when she saw Barbara, Mrs. Russell was troubled in her soul, for Barbara's little face reminded her of another face which, years and years ago, had been hidden away between coffin boards—the face of her only child, who had died when she was ten years of age.

Blended to Suit Hard Water

Hard water spoils most teas but not Red Rose. It is distinctive in this respect, being specially selected and blended to suit the hard water of the Prairie Provinces. No matter how hard the water it cannot destroy the rich strength and flavor of Red Rose Tea. This is one of the main reasons, perhaps, why Red Rose is such a favorite.

EYE STRAIN

Relieved by Quitting Tea and Coffee

Many cases of defective vision are caused by the habitual use of tea or coffee.

It is said that in Arabia where coffee is used in large quantities, many lose their eyesight at about fifty. Tea contains the same drug, caffeine, as coffee.

An Eastern woman writes to the point concerning eye trouble and coffee. She says:

"My son was for years troubled with his eyes. He tried several kinds of glasses without relief. The optician said there was a defect in his eyes which was hard to reach.

"He used to drink coffee, as we all did, and finally quit it and began to use Postum. That was three years ago and he has not had to wear glasses and has had no trouble with his eyes since.

"I was always fond of tea and coffee and finally became so nervous I could hardly sit still long enough to eat a meal. My heart was in such a conditions I thought I might die at any time.

"Medicine did not give me relief and I was almost desperate. It was about this time we decided to quit coffee and use Postum, and have used it ever since. I am in perfect health. No trouble now with my heart and never felt better in my life.

"Postum has been a great blessing to us all, particularly to my son and myself."

Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Postum now comes in two forms:

Regular Postum—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—is a soluble powder. A teaspoonful dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water, and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

The cost per cup of both kinds is about the same.

"There's a Reason" for Postum.

Plain John Smith

In Latin it is Johannes Smithus; the Italian smooths it off into Giovanni Smithi; the Spaniards render it Juan Smithus; the Dutchman adopts it as Hans Schmidt; the French flatten it out into Jean Smeet, and the Russian sneezes and barks Jonloff Smittoski. When John Smith gets into the tea trade in Canton he becomes Jovan Shimmit; he clambers about Mount Hecla the Icelanders say he is Jahne Smithson; if he trades among the Tuscarorars he becomes Ton Qa Smithia; in Poland he is known as Ivan Schmittiweiski; should he wander among the Welsh mountains they talk of Jilion Shhmidd; when he goes to Mexico he is booked as Jentli F'Smitti; if of classic turn and he lingers among Greek ruins he turns to Ion Smikton, and in Turkey he is utterly disguised as Yoe Seef.

A Chinese View of American Women

"The intellect of the American woman is equal, if not superior, to that of men," says Dr. Wu Ting Fang, late Chinese minister to the United States, in "America Through the Spectacles of an Oriental Diplomat." "American women are good conversationalists, and many of them are eloquent and endowed with the gift of gab. One of the cleverest and wittiest speeches I have ever heard was from a woman who spoke at a public meeting on a public question. They are also good writers, and their work shows profound insight and wide culture. Naturally such women cannot be expected to play second fiddle. They exercise great influence, and when married they 'rule the roost.' It should be mentioned that their husbands submit willing to their tactful rule and gladly obey their commands without feeling that they are servants. I would advise any married woman who complains of her husband being unruly and unpleasant to take a lesson from the ladies of America."

Minard's Liniment Lumberman's Friend.

His Labor Saving Device

The late Charles H. Britting, proprietor of the New York actors' restaurant known as the "Little Hall of Fame," took a keen interest in popular trends and movements of all kinds. Mr. Britting thought little of scientific management and efficiency engineering. He said one day of an efficiency engineer:

"Blank is a fool, and I thought he'd go broke, but, by jingo, the fellow has deceived me. He has discovered a labor saving device, and his address will be Easy street from now on."

"Good boy, Blank!" said the actor. "And what labor saving device has he discovered?"

"An elderly widow," Mr. Britting answered—"an elderly widow with a million who has consented to marry him."—New York Tribune.

Strange Race of Ancient Britons

Among the races of human kind which away back of history's records passed like clouds over various parts of the earth one of the most puzzling to ethnologists is that of the early bronze age men who dwelt in Aberdeenshire, Scotland, and are supposed to have constructed the special forms of stone circles whose remains are now found there. These men differed significantly from all the prehistoric racial types previously determined in Britain. They were remarkably broadheaded, and their average stature was only five feet three inches, as shown by skeletons. The British neolithic race was markedly long headed, and the bronze age race, which built the round tumull, was also long headed and tall.

Will The MERCHANTS BANK OF CANADA Increase Its Dividend

The statement which the General Manager of the Merchants Bank of Canada has just issued to its Shareholders, shows that the Bank's reserve now stands at $7,000,000, which is also the amount of its paid up capital.

Will the Shareholders now come in for a share of the profits, earned on this accumulation?

Bank Managers, in Canada, have very rightly aimed at accumulating in good times a reserve which would enable them to weather any ordinary business stress without having to curtail dividends, but the present strong position of the Merchants Bank of Canada, its good percentage of quick assets; its high standing among the community, would seem to justify at least a bonus distribution.

Canada has a right to be proud of its Banks, and under the present Management, the Merchants Bank of Canada, has increased its right to be considered one of the leaders, of the foremost financial institutions of the country.

New to the man who has never known the pain of a sore corn is suffering he endures until he gets relief and cure by using Putnam's Painless Corn and Wart Extractor. It acts like magic, eases, heals, cures, does it all in twenty-four hours. There's a whole power of merit in Putnam's Painless Corn and Wart Extractor. Try a 25c bottle.

The famous Etruscan vases were wrongly named, for, though made in Etruria, they were the productions of Greek genius. They are elegant in form and enriched with bands of beautiful foliage and other ornaments, figures and simialr objects of a highly artistic character. One class has black figures and ornaments on a red ground—the natural color of the clay; another has the figures of the natural color and the ground painted black. The former class belong to a date about 600 B.C., the latter date about a century later and extend over a period of some 300 or 350 years.

"You may cackle, my son," said Smithy, "about our big fleet, our efficient army, and our wonderful resources, but you must, in spite of our so-called flying corps, admit we are miles behind in the air-ship biz. America, France and Germany are all before us in the flying game."

Why She Left

With some families a flitting, if not quite an everyday affair, is at any rate at annual event, but it is different in the country, where most folks give up their houses only when leaving the village (or the earth). It was, therefore, a surprise to a country house owner whose house was to let to receive an application from a woman who had had another house in the same village for some years. Terms were considered suitable and the bargain was being fixed up when the landlord asked her what was wrong with her present home. "Oh, well," was the reply, "I've nae fan't to fin' wi' the hoose at a'. It's rale comfortable, an' I'm sweer to leave it, but ye kén I've never paid any rent." She is still house hunting.—Glasgow News.

The Servant Question

More women would keep two servants if it wasn't that they are not strong enough to do the work for more than one at a time.—Florida Times-Union.

SAVE THE CHILDREN

Mothers who keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets in the house may feel that the lives of their little ones are reasonably safe during the hot weather. Stomach troubles, cholera infantum and diarrhoea carry off thousands of little ones every summer, in most cases because the mother does not have a safe medicine at hand to give promptly. Baby's Own Tablets cure these troubles, or if given occasionally to the well child will prevent their coming on. The Tablets are guaranteed by a government analyst to be absolutely harmless even to the new-born babe. They are especially good in the summer because they regulate the bowels and keep the stomach sweet and pure. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

It is not at all uncommon to consider a child stupid, blame him for lack of interest in his studies, or even to punish him for outbursts of temper, when defective vision is the only cause. Medical inspection of school children has shown that 15 per cent. are suffering from bad eyesight, undiscovered until the school doctor calls it to the attention of the parents.—Woman's Home Companion.

Inadvisable

During a snowstorm on the Highland railway a train was held up for an hour or so. The guard, a cheery Scot, passed along the carriages trying to keep up the spirits of the passengers. An old gentleman angrily complained that if the train didn't go on he would "die of cold."

"Tak' my advice an' no' doe that," replied the guard. "Min' y', we chairge a shillin' a mile for corpses."—Dundee Advertiser.

It Is Well

It is well to carefully cultivate tastes. Ruskin says, "Tell what you like and I will tell you what you are."

It is well to study human character. Bodensedt says: "In the face of every human being his history stands plainly written; his innermost nature steps forth to the light. Yet they are the fewest who can read and understand."

It is well to be never cast down. Elizabeth Barrett Browning says:

Let no one till his death
Be called unhappy. Measure not the work
Until the day's out and the labor done.

Mr. Post Left $20,000,000

An estate valued at $20,000,000 is to be disposed of by the will of Charles W. Post, the cereal magnate of Battle Creek, Mich.

Mr. Post died May 9, at Santa Barbara, Cal. He claimed residence in the District of Columbia, and so recites in his will, which was executed at Battle Creek, November 3, 1913. The estate is left to his family and business associates.

An Always Ready Pill.—To those of regular habit medicine is of little concern, but the great majority of men are not of regular habit. The worry and cares of business prevent it, and out of the irregularity of life comes dyspepsia, indigestion, liver and kidney troubles as a protest. The run-down system demands a corrective and there is none better than Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. They are simple in their composition and can be taken by the most delicately constituted.

She—I suppose this bread is not the kind your mother used to make.

No, indeed, it is not. When I eat yours it makes me pity my poor father.—Baltimore American.

Note Your Increase In Weight

While Building up the System with

GAINED 30 POUNDS

Was thin, pale and weak. Had frequent headaches and stomach troubles. Cured by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Mrs. H. Laich, Cannington Manor, Sask., writes—"You will remember me writing you last spring. Well, I gave up my doctor and began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This treatment cured me rapidly and I was soon myself again. I was pale, thin and weak, suffered from stomach troubles and liver complaint and frequently had sick, nervous headaches.

I was surprised to find that in a few weeks time I had gained 30 pounds in weight. I never felt so strong and well in all my life. Headaches never bother me any more and I am grateful for the cure. If people would only give this medicine a fair trial they would certainly be cured."

You can feel yourself gaining in strength and vitality while using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. You sleep better, eat your meals with more relish, and digest them without discomfort. But it is also interesting to note your increase in weight for this is proof positive that your system is obtaining additional nourishment from this food cure and that new, firm flesh and tissue is being added to the body. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

The War Cloud

Nothing of importance has developed in the war situation in Europe. The British fleet is in the North Sea, and should she be successful in bottling the German fleet, Britain will be master of the situation, and will have the say as to whether or not there shall be war. The French fleet is in the Mediterranean Sea, hence Italy's neutrality. In the meantime France, Germany and Russia are mobolizing their forces and putting themselves on a war footing. Many of the despatches being sent out by enterprizing news agencies are altogether misleading and silly in the extreme.

At the political meeting on Monday night, Mr. Clements announced that it was too late to make any change in the Post Office site, and that it was the most centrally situated, and was where it would be easiest reached by the largest number of citizens.

The Clansman is in with a load of cans and shooks for the Courtenay Condensed Milk Co.

A number of young men about town have sent away their application for enlistment to the authorities at Vancouver, should the occasion arise.

The electric light poles are erected as far as the Builders' Supply corner. They are fine large poles, with the tops painted. The construction work will be completed in the course of 5 or 6 weeks, and the juice will be turned on shortly after.

May Find Bison Still in Wild State

A number of United States government naturalists will spend the summer in this province, engaged in classifying the animals of British Columbia in preparation for a bulletin, which will be issued at an early period. Considerable interest attaches to the work of this party, as there is reason to believe that the Bison, commonly known to be extinct, in a wild state, still exists in small numbers in the Peace River District, north of the Peace river. Recently a herd of fourteen is said to have been seen. The Indians also constantly report having seen bison in a wild state

A Chinese View of American Women

"The intellect of the American woman is equal, if not superior, to that of men," says Dr. Wu Ting Fang, late Chinese minister to the United States, in "America Through the Spectacles of an Oriental Diplomat." "American women are good conversationalists, and many of them are eloquent and endowed with the gift of gab.' One of the cleverest and wittiest speeches I have ever heard was from a woman who spoke at a public meeting on a public question. They are also good writers, and their work shows profound insight and wide culture. Naturally such women cannot be expected to play second fiddle. They exercise great influence, and when married they 'rule the roost.' It should be mentioned that their husbands submit willing to their tactful rule and gladly obey their commands without feeling that they are servants. I would advise any married woman who complains of her husband being unruly and unpleasant to take a lesson from the ladies of America."

Minard's Liniment Lumberman's Friend.

His Labor Saving Device

The late Charles H. Britting, proprietor of the New York actors' restaurant known as the "Little Hall of Fame," took a keen interest in popular trends and movements of all kinds. Mr. Britting thought little of scientific management and efficiency engineering. He said one day of an efficiency engineer:

"Blank is a fool, and I thought he'd go broke, but, by jingo, the fellow has deceived me. He has discovered a labor saving device, and his address will be Easy street from now on."

"Good boy, Blank!" said the actor. "And what labor saving device has he discovered?"

"An elderly widow," Mr. Britting answered—"an elderly widow with a million who has consented to marry him."—New York Tribune.

Recognized as the leading specific for the destruction of worms, Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator has proved a boon to suffering children everywhere. It seldom fails.

Strange Race of Ancient Britons

Among the races of human kind which away back of history's records passed like clouds over various parts of the earth one of the most puzzling to ethnologists is that of the early bronze age men who dwelt in Aberdeenshire, Scotland, and are supposed to have constructed the special forms of stone circles whose remains are now found there. These men differed significantly from all the prehistoric racial types previously determined in Britain. They were remarkably broadheaded, and their average stature was only five feet three inches, as shown by skeletons. The British neolithic race was markedly long headed, and the bronze age race, which built the round tumuli, was also long headed and tall.

Will The MERCHANTS BANK OF CANADA Increase Its Dividend

The statement which the General Manager of the Merchants Bank of Canada has just issued to its Shareholders, shows that the Bank's reserve now stands at $7,000,000, which is also the amount of its paid up capital.

Will the Shareholders now come in for a share of the profits, earned on this accumulation?

Bank Managers, in Canada, have very rightly aimed at accumulating in good times a reserve which would enable them to weather any ordinary business stress without having to curtail dividends, but the present strong position of the Merchants Bank of Canada, its good percentage of quick assets; its high standing among the community, would seem to justify at least a bonus distribution.

Canada has a right to be proud of its Banks, and under the present Management, the Merchants Bank of Canada, has increased its right to be considered one of the leaders, of the foremost financial institutions of the country.

Letter to The Editor

Editor Review

Sir:—The slurs cast from time to time by our Socialist friends has has prompted me to air my views in the columns of the Review.

These gentlemen keep howling the needs of the country, I am apt to stray from some of their ideas.

The greatest need in this locality is the spirit of tolerance, the need of recognition that we have a right to think and form opinions of our own and get in accordance with those opinions.

It is very remarkable in this glorious twentieth century which we are so fond of calling the century of progress and enlightenment, that we should meet so many people with no breadth of vision, their outlook seems narrowed and their horizon limited.

They imagine the bit of world within their circumscribed vision is the whole earth, and the little poor they see themselves is the whole ocean of truth.

Anything ontside their veiw they deride, or condemn, foolishly fancying the grain of knowledge they possess is the whole.

Thus is born the spirit of intolerence and bigotry, which has sent men to the stake, crippled progress, and closed the shutters against enlightenment. It is the spirit of intoleration that has stood in the way of all reforms, and hindered the spread of knowledge, and bound liberty with red tape.

men are not allowed to think for themselves but must accept certain man made creeds, follow certain rules, and move in thought, word, and deed within a small circumference marked out for them by the narrow sources.

We find this spirit everywhere and in every department of life. There are certain types of homes where parents imagine their children must think along exactly the same lines as themselves' making no allowance for the changing of times and changing of thought.

If parents are allowed to have all their own way, which they have sometimes, what is the result? in many cases disaster

Alas, their children grow up with no ideas of their own, weak witted, and weak minded. They lack the power to think for themselves and become rudderless vessels on the stormy sea of life, a menace to others and a grave danger to themselves.

In the world of polotics we find this spirit of intolerence and bigotry rampant there have been many instances of the length men will go spurned on by political bigotry, it is not necessay or advisable for me to particularise. We can see cases every day if we keep our eyes open. Why not give other people credit for possessing as much sincerity of purpose and honesty of notion as we ourselves possess.

If we were to cultivate a little more of the spirit of tolerance, and took the trouble to clear the mist of bigotry and prejudice from our eyes, we should be able to take a more wide and comprehensive view, and many and much needed refo-ms would be carried through to the lasting benefit of all concerned.

The man that would be a man must assidiously cultivate a spirit of tolearation. He must, while observing his own individuality recognize the individuality of others and respect their opinions.

True progress will never consort with intolerance and bigotry scotches the wheel of reform.

Yours Truly

VICTORIA NOTES

The war bulletins posted up each day at the newspaper offices in Victoria command the keenest attention, and from the tangle of reports it is evident that the whole of Europe is face to face with the prospect of a long and disastrous struggle, the tension alone being little worse than war itself in its commercial effects. The fact that foodstuffs are already rising in price here in B. C. should convince those who delight to read accounts of battles at the breakfast table that the effects of war are widespread and that the whole of humanity suffers; "Man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn"

Incidentally, although the B. C. coast is far removed from the scene of likely hostilities and not liable to immediate attack, it is worthy of notice the "Rainbow," gallant little ship and manned by the best, the Pacific Coast of the great Dominion is defenceless.

The war is stimulating recruiting for the militia in Victoria, and the three regiments here, the Fifth, (Artillery,) the Eighty-eighth, (Fusiliers,) and most popular of all the Gordon Highlanders, are getting quite a number of men. It is likely that a detachment will be called for, should the situatio n change for the worst, to garrison the various centres of defence in the Dominion,

There cand be no doubt that the progress and development of our Dominion and Province will be seriously held back by the course of events in Europe A new country needs and must have large supplies of capital, at present the very money that should be feeding the development of Canada is being blazed away and used unproductively.

To turn to pleasanter topics, the Boy Scouts have from time to time rendered splendid service in fighting fire, in the States and on the mainland of B. C. especially, and in this connection it is interesting to record that the Minister of Lands the Hon. W. R, Ross has issued 1000 specially designed whetstones, bearing the Scout motto, "Be Prepared," and the legend "Help protect our forests: build camp fires in safe places; when you leave, put them out." This will serve to remind the scouts not only to be careful themselves, also to keep a lookout for fires, and aid the Forest Service.

Two years ago, when it was proposed to start a troop of Scouts in the town of Cumberland, opposition was raised to good effect that the movement would encourage militaryism. The foregoing paragraph will show that the movement has other things in view, ("Peace hath her victories not less renowned than war") and ranges from extending help to the old dame who wants a bucket of water, to standing by for sixteen hours protecting an up-country town from destruction from fire.

Too many of our lads "stand idle in the market place" and develop the habit of loafing. The Scout movement aims at making them into useful, courteous. self-reliant citizens. That the aim has been a success, is proved by reference to any newspaper almost one chooses to take up. It is Courtenay's loss that there is no troop of Scouts at present, although the Island generally has taken up the movement to good effect.

OYSTER RIVER

Mr. W. J, Carroll, of Courtenay visited our quarters on Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. Sutton is improving in health since coming to the seaside. He has gained three pounds on trout, and six pounds on fish "stories."

The bullheads are plentiful in the river. Sandy says if properly fried they make very good cat food and if necessary, can be used for human consumption.

Messrs. Lindon, Russel, and Sleeman with their wives and families, along with P. Saddler, J Hornby, and a few friends, visited the resort on Sunday,

On Saturday evening last Mr. W, J. Carroll and L. Dunham, while trolling for Salmon abou two and a half miles out in the Gulf of Georgia, they ran their boat up within a few yards of a whale having merry times among a school of salmon. The whale was close on thirty feet in length, they judged. But they turned their craft towards camp and on their way in, were fortunate enough to bag a couple of fine salmon, and a rock cod.

While enjoying their peaceful slumbers on towards the break of day, a large red (buffalo) or better known a common barn yard bull, visited the tents and created such a disturbance with his vocal voice, that a few of the lady folks were preparing to make a hasty flight to some place of safety, saying they were not used to any noise in the night louder than J. Sutton or Lloyd Dunham's snoring.

Conservative Meeting

On Monday evening a well attended meeting was held in the Opera House, at which Messrs. Clements M. P, and Manson M. P. P, and Mr. Williamson, Secretary of the B. C. Conservative Association were the chief speakers. They were on their way to take part in the Conservative reunion at Campbell River, and embraced the opportunity of paying Courtenay a visit, and incidently get the local differences straightened out. In Mr. Manson's remarks, he said that the Provincial revenue was now eleven million dollars per year. The railway which many have waited long for, now opens this district so that we can compete with the outside world, and also get good prices for our land. He had always stood for the Government opening roads for the settlers, and prophesied that the Government would pay much attention to this work in the future. Timber produces a revenue of three million dollars per year. Last year 170 miles of trails were cut, and this year 175 miles miles of telephone were built for the forestry branch. The new Forestry Act will shortly double the revenue from timber licenses etc. The heads of the various departments of the Government were good business men, and would keep up a good reputation. He also made brief mention of the European war situation, and regretted the fact that Canada had not a few battleships to offer to aid the Mother Country.

Mr. Williamson, Secretary of the B. C. Association, said this was his first appearence here, he was much taken with the beautiful country, was here only as an organizer, and advised that each one to see that the name of every live white man in the district got his name on the Voters' list.

Mr. Clements received an ovation when he rose to speak. He was glad to again meet the people of Comox, and was glad to represent the leader, Sir R. L. Borden. He was pleased to see so many Liberals present, as he did his best to represent the whole people of the district. Had done his best for the constituency which had been sadly neglected by the former administrations. He had great sympathy for the pioneers of any district and had at all times done his utmost to make their lot easier. He had succeeded in getting telegraph and improved mail services wherever possible. The new line from Campbell River north would cost $62,000. When other members had got barely $5000 for their Constituencies he had got about $150,000, and it took some work to do it. He believed in spending public money wisely, of course. Two millions would be spent by the Government on the coast this year. In one or two places where money was spent, he had been ill-advised, Comox district had got its share. The King Edward Drudge would likely be here by the end of this week to to clear out the river. He believed it better to build one public building in a small place where all the Government business could be done instead of renting a number of places. No one could truthfully say he had neglected his district or his duty. It takes a lot of work to get appropriations, he was on the job all the time at Ottawa, said Canada had not done her duty to the British Government. He was ashamed of the Senate for refusing to grant $35,000,000 for three dreadnoughts as requested.

In the matter of emigration a great deal of precaution should be observed, all Asiatics should be excluded. In the northern fisheries, where formerly none but Japs fished, he had already got 600 licenses set aside for white men, and would endeavor to have 1200 next year, and would try and have the number increased annually, until it was all white. Regarding the recent Hindu fracas at Vancouver, an order-in-council had been passed excluding all foreign laborers for twelve months, and that regulation could not be lightly set aside, especially when so many of our white laborers were idle. Other colonies keep them out, why not we?

He said the Agriculturalists should have every encouragement.

The Federal Govenment had set aside $65000 for B. C. to be spent by the local Government to the best advantage.

The Premier had settled the boundary question satisfactorily to everybody. The two great railways were very expensive propositions, especially when the late Government had allowed 47 milions to be grafted in the G. T. P. The C. N. R. had the best section of the whole to draw from. If any present among them had any ambition to become a senator, he warned them not to apply far three years

Regarding the local squabbles he had no time or inclination to try and settle them, was always inclined to say the kindest things about everybody.

Regarding the recommendation that Mr. Davis be appointed Fishery Inspector, regretted that he could not be appointed on account of physical disability, he having but 1 leg. In connection with the post office site he reviewed the whole situation and said that at this late hour he could not see his way to recommend the government to change the site; and that the building would be built on the Perez lots. These were perfectly satisfactory to the people when he was here last year, and in conversation with many now found that they are still in favor of it.

Mr. Idiens made a few remarks and renewed his offer of the lots at the corner of Wallace street, saying that 9 out of 48 members of the Board of Trade had not signed his petition to have his lots considered. Mr. Clements read two sentences of Mr. Idiens circular, and hurled back the insinuation that he ever catered to the bar for any support whatever.

During the discussion Roy's Wharf and the manner of securing its construction came in for sundry remarks, Mr. Willard claiming that it would someday be useful for Cumberland merchants if the steamboat men would only call there, which, up to the present they have refused to do. Mr. Duncan also made a few congratulatory remarks.

At the close of the meeting the speakers were given a complimentary banquet at the ever popular hostelry, "Feck's" Riverside, the viands being served in his usual dainty and plentiful style. Afterwards the evening was spent in short speeches, annecdotes, merry jests, etc., by those present, the only fly in the ointment being one of the last speakers who persistently talked "shop."

Inhaling Spaghetti

There is a popular belief to the effect that the Neapolitan eats his spaghetti by a deft process of wrapping thirty or forty inches round the tines of his fork and then lifting it inboard, an eli at a time. This is not correct. The true Neapolitan does not eat his spaghetti at all; he inhales it. He gathers up a loose strand and starts it down his throat. He then respires from the diaphragm, and like a troupe of trained angleworms, that entire mass of spaghetti uncoils itself, gets up off the plate and disappears inside him—en masse, as it were—and makes him look like a man who is chinning himself over a set of bead portieres. I fear that we in America will never learn to siphon our spaghetti into us thus. It takes a nation that has practiced deep breathing for centuries.—Irvin S. Cobb, in Saturday Evening Post.

"No'm," Willie answered quickly.

Fiji Islanders' Sugar Cane Dance

A very curious and exceedingly clever dance may be witnessed in Fiji called by the natives "the sugar cane meke," or sugar cane dance. It represents the growth of the sugar cane. In the first figure the dancers squat low on the ground, shake their heads, shut their eyes and murmur slowly and softly an unintelligible sentence. Gradually they all stand up together, growing taller and taller, and as they "grow" they wave their arms and tremble all over from ankle to head, like the tall, tasseled cane waving in the wind, and still they keep on chanting louder and louder. The last figure represents a series of combats meant to symbolize the exactions of the chiefs, who compel the "kalsi," willing and unwilling, to come out and cut their crops.—London Standard.

Your Body a Match Factory

A Chicago chemist, by a recent analysis, found that every human body contains more than two pounds of phosphorus. This would be sufficient, could it be extracted, to make 5,000 packages of friction matches. This phosphorus, it is claimed by scientists, is an essential to health and vigor. Were it not for phosphorus our bones would be more liable to break. It is also believed by some authorities to be a valuable stimulant for the nerve cells.

Besides the phosphorus every body holds a number of ounces of sodium, and nearly three-fourths of an ounce of potassium—enough for the laboratory work of a good many university classes in experimental chemistry.

And the few grains of magnesium found in every human body would be play of the kind of fireworks known as "silver rain."

Poor Old Spender

"What happened to him?" asked the Boob.

"He got so far behind in his room rent that he had to marry his landlady," replied the Grouch.—From the Cincinnati Enquirer.

NERVOUS CHILDREN

The Trouble is Often Really St. Vitus Dance—Do Not Neglect It

Many a child has been called awkward, has been punished in school for not keeping still or for dropping things, when the trouble was really St. Vitus dance. This disease may appear at any age, but is most common between the ages of six and fourteen years. It is caused by thin blood which fails to carry sufficient nourishment to the nerves, and the child becomes restless and twitching of the muscles and jerking of the limbs and body follow. In severe cases the child is unable to hold anything or feed itself. St. Vitus dance is cured by building up the blood. The most successful treatment is to remove the child from all mental excitement, stop school work and give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These Pills renew the blood supply, strengthen the nerves, and restore the child to perfect health. Here is proof of their power to cure. Mrs. Geo. A. MacDonald, Harrington, N.S., says: "My son was attacked by St. Vitus dance; at the outset his muscles would twitch and his step was weak and jerky. We called in a doctor who treated him, but notwithstanding he continued to grow worse and at last grew so bad that he could not hold a cup in his hand, while his head constantly twitched, and his speech became rather indistinct. At this juncture I saw in a paper the cure of a boy from similar trouble through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. We at once sent for a supply, and in a few weeks after he began their use there was considerable improvement, and it was not long after this before he was completely cured, and has never had a symptom of the trouble since. I am convinced that there is no medicine like Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for the cure of St. Vitus dance.

If your dealer does not keep Dr. Williams' Pink Pills you can get them by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Boon For Jealous Wives

A small crowd had gathered outside the store window where an automatic typewriter was on exhibition. Two women stopped and peered in, interestedly watching the keys bob up and down apparently of themselves. Presently one of the women, turning to her companion, remarked:

"Jenny, that's the kind of a typewriter your husband should have in his office instead of that blonde-haired thing."

Mothers Value This Oil.—Mothers who know how suddenly croup may seize their children and how necessary prompt action is in applying relief, always keep at hand a supply of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, because experience has taught them that there is no better preparation to be had for the treatment of this ailment. And they are wise, for its various uses render it a valuable medicine.

Mr. James Baker, in his "Reminiscent Gossip," tells this story:

A Yankee who wanted reflected glory, once accosted the hero of the American Squadron, Admiral Dewey, with:

"Admiral, I bet you don't remember me."

Mrs. Browning had a new domestic named Agnes.

"Agnes," said the mistress, "did you put the clothes in soak?"

"Oi did not," answered the girl. "Did you want me to, mum?"

"Very well," said Agnes.

Concrete walks need no repairs

THEY are not only best at first but are cheaper in the end than any other kind of walk. They are clean, permanent and safe. There is nothing to become loose nor are they slippery. They improve the general appearance of a house and are a source of great satisfaction to every housewife because they keep children out of the mud, prevent colds from wet feet and prevent dirt from being "tracked in" on floors and carpets. Equally important is the fact that they never wear out and never need repairs.

This free book "What the Farmer can do with Concrete" tells all about concrete walks and how to build them, and a score of other things needed on every farm. Write for it to-day.

WEST INTERESTED IN SUBJECT OF IRRIGATION

USE OF WATER IN IRRIGATION OCCUPIED ATTENTION OF MEN IN AGES PAST

The Eighth Annual Convention of the Western Canada Irrigation Association to be Held in Penticton, B.C., This Year—Frominent Men Will Take Part in Proceedings.

On the tablets of clay at Babylon, many years ago, were engraved rules for the proper use of water in irrigation. Today, books, magazines, pamphlets and articles on the same subject are issued in countless numbers. In Egypt, in Mexico, in India and in South America are remains of old stone irrigation works and canals, evidence of the highest engineering ability, which were constructed for the same purposes as the British Columbia fruit-grower of today constructs a modern cement flume or syphon.

Words such as these have been used time and time again by students of irrigation when holding forth on the science of farming, and it would appear as if these advocates were rapidly gaining disciples, for the area under irrigation in the western provinces of Alberta and British Columbia is daily increasing.

The eighth annual convention of the Western Canada Irrigation association in the western provinces, will take place in Penticton, British Columbia, on August 17, 18 and 19. The programme is a very attractive one. On it figure the names of Hon. H. Bark of Boise, Idaho; G. M. Houston and S. G. Porter of the department of interior, Calgary, Alberta; H. C. McMullen, former general live stock agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway, Winnipeg; Dr. J. G. Rutherford, superintendent of agriculture and animal industry, department of natural resources, Canadian Pacific Railway, Calgary; Arthur Hooker, secretary of the International Irrigation congress, which is to meet in Calgary on Oct. 5, 6, 7, 8, 9 of this year; L. O. Armstrong, lecturer for the Canadian Pacific Railway, Montreal; Frank Adams, who is in charge of irrigation investigations in the University of California, Berkeley; C. L. Smith, agriculturist for the O. R. & N. railway, Portland, Oregon; J. W. Eastham, botanist to the Dominion government, Ottawa; J. T. Hinkle, secretary of the Oregon Irrigation congress, and many other men of the same calibre that are masters of the many phases of irrigation.

The Okanagan valley, through which the delegates must travel to reach Penticton, is not only one of the most fertile districts in British Columbia, but also the centre for many large large irrigation projects both under operation and construction. Unsurpassed in grandeur of scenery, it is also possessed of a most delightful climate. Towering snow-crowned mountains, rushing white-lipped streams and restful verdant fields and orchards mirror themselves in crystal lakes.

Penticton, the convention city, is situated in the heart of the district that has been aptly called the "California of Canada." Nestled between great mountains, it lies at the southern extremity of the Okanagan Lake on a strip of flat land that separates the Okanagan from its smaller, but less beautiful sister, Lake Skaha.

When the Kettle Valley Railway is completed through the Hope Mountains, Penticton will be only nine hours from Vancouver—at the present time it is twenty nine. On account of its strategic location with a tremendously productive area, much of it as yet undeveloped at its back, it is destined to be one of the most important and largest distributing points in the interior of British Columbia.

It is the produce of this territory which has carried off the premier honors at all the great horticultural shows and exhibition for the past dozen years. Although this district has had to compete at these shows against districts that are double and even treble its age, its produce has always made more than a creditable showing, as the prize record books of these various shows will prove. There are, in this wonderful valley, some 500,000 acres of land that will produce bountifully of fruit and other crops with the aid of irrigation. The valley is capable of supporting in comfort, and even luxury, a quarter of a million families, who would be living in ideal conditions under a perfect climate, with every facility of inter-communication education and social intercourse—all the material advantages of the city added to the immeasurably greater advantages of country life.

But there is one thing and one thing only, that makes this district capable of growing all this fruit, supporting these families giving hundreds of people a good living, and that thing is irrigation that word which for so long has meant so much to so many people in all parts of the province.

Royal Society of Canada

The late Duke of Argyll established one permanency in Canada—a "Royal Society," whose membership consists of men of literature, science, art, etc. When he started this body, a literateur, who has since become F.R.C., remarked in print that "it will never do anything for literature except furnish satirists with a subject." The prophecy was not realized. Of late, largely by the able guidance of the honorary secretary, this royal society has exhibited vigor, now contemplating useful plans for promoting its avowed purposes.

RAPID TRANSPORTATION

Flying Train at Eight Hundred Miles an Hour

The latest thing in engineering is a flying train, without wheels, wings or any kind of motor, capable, it is said, of travelling at anything between 300 and 500 miles an hour!

The inventor of this new "speeder" is Mr. Emile Bachelet, a French gentleman by birth, who told the Lord Mayor of London that, "we could bring your mails from Liverpool to London in less than an hour, and give you fifty deliveries a day."

The principle of the flying train is very simple. For many years it has been known that a magnetic coil of a certain type when charged by an alternating current repels, instead of attracting, current metals. Mr. Bachelet has succeeded in so increasing this power of repulsion as to be able to use it to counteract the force of gravity and keep solid bodies floating in the air—"levitated" as modern magicians would say.

He showed the Lord Mayor that a slab of aluminum weighing several pounds floats in the air above such a coil like a cork on water, and can only be pressed down into contact with it by the exercise of immense force. Yet the same streams of energy which support the aluminum slab passed through a similar plate of steel or through the human hand without any effect.

When the Lord Mayor held an aluminium disc on his palm over the magnetic field, the disc was tossed into the air, apparently by witchcraft, but the Lord Mayor felt not the slightest sensation. The application of this force to purposes of traction is obvious.

For his working model the inventor has built a car with aluminium plates underneath. Against these plates play streams of energy from a number of coils placed at short intervals; the car is thus lifted from the track and loses all apparent weight, the force of gravity being exactly counterbalanced. The car is, in fact, floating on the air, and can be moved laterally by the lightest touch.

Powerful magnets at much wider intervals than the "repulsion coils" draw the car swiftly along, as a needle can be drawn along the surface of the water by similar means, and as air resistance is the only opposing force, the speed attained might well be terrific.

One of the most astonishing things about Mr. Bachelet's repulsion coils is that a single one of them, costing about twenty-five cents, can keep something like 40 pounds of aluminium floating above it, entirely deprived of weight so long as the current continues.

The coils resemble cotton spools some three inches in diameter and the same in length, copper wire taking the place of the cotton, and the hole in the spool being filled with a bundle or "faggot" of iron wire. As the spool stands on end it is from this "faggoted iron core" that the stream of energy rushes upwards against the downward pull of gravity.

The invention is said to be so far perfected that a mile of line on which cars are capable of carrying 100 pounds of mail matter might be run at 300 miles an hour could be built within three months. It would cost less than $25,000 a mile, according to the inventor, to supply such a service.

Whether a service of heavy trams for passengers or goods would ever be commercially feasible is another question.

Efforts are already being made to secure the model railway for one of the summer exhibitions in London as a popular spectacle, but Mr. Bachelet is more keen on getting to commercial business.

He does not suggest that he has as yet made a "flying carpet" which will carry human beings round the world at 500 miles an hour. He fully realizes that there are various engineering difficulties to be met, but he believes that he has already demonstrated the practicability of a mail carrier that will go at least 300 miles an hour.

Reach Pole by Airship

The famous explorer, Captain Ronald Amundsen, has long been convinced of the practicability of an aeroplane expedition to the Pole. He has learned how to fly in France, and during the next few weeks he will be practising the art at the Johannisthal Aerodome. His companion, Captain Jacobsen, is also to take lessons in aviation. The machinery destined for the Polar journey is to be constructed by German engineers after plans drawn by Amundsen himself. It will be provided with floats resting on runners curved in such a way as to allow an ascent from the ice itself. Especial attention is being paid to the petrol reservoirs, since the spirit freezes at a temperature of 20 deg. (centigrade) below zero. The reservoirs will be surrounded by pipes through which the exhaust escapes No decision has as yet been come to as to the type of motor, and experiments will be made at Spitzbergen before the explorers make up their minds whether it shall be cooled by water or air.

Duke of Argyll Left Papers and Essays

The late Duke of Argyll left a great mass of papers of various descriptions and, it is believed, ample material will be found therein to compile the story of his life when the time comes for this work to be taken in hand.

He also left several unpublished essays, and these ultimately may be published in volume form.

An authorized biography, however, is not likely to make its appearance for two or three years.

UNCLE SAM PAYS A DEBT AFTER CENTURY

CROOKS FAMILY REAP REWARD AFTER A HUNDRDED YEARS OF PERSEVERANCE

Claim For the Illegal Seizure of a Canadian Vessel in 1812, Has Been Urged at Washington Perseveringly Ever Since the Close of the War.

Mark Twain s ludicrous sketch of a certain George Fisher, deceased, whose meagre worldly possessions were destroyed by United States troops in 1813 is well known; in 1848 the heirs filed a first claim, subsequently many subsidiary claims, so that when the humorist "let go his bolt," on the Fisher family fortunes the heirs had secured in damages and various accrued interests something in six figures of good American dollars.

The award of the American and British Claims Tribunal at Washington, the other day, for the illegal seizure of the Canadian vessel, Lord Nelson, in 1812, granting the owner's heirs $5,000, with 93 years' interest at 4 per cent., proves once again that fiction has to "go some" to beat out truth. Singularly enough, the motto of the Crooks family concerned is "Perseverando," and the family claim has been urged at Washington intermittently but perseveringly ever since the war, which really began with the illegal seizure aluded to. The belated judgment, which at last has been given, nets the Crooks' heirs $23,000. By the treaty of 1910 under which they secured it, they got only 4 per cent. though their claim was for six. The latter would entitle them to over a million dollars, but it is not known at present whether Barrister A. D. Crooks of Toronto, grandson of the Hon. James Crooks—one of the two brothers who owned the Lord Nelson—will elect to say: "I will persevere," or not. In 1817 a decree made by the court of the Northern District of New York pronounced the seizure of the boat, and is making over into a United States war vessel at Sackett's Harbor, illegal, and directing $5,000 to be paid the claimants. In the meantime, however, Theron Rudd, clerk of the court, has absconded with all the court funds; this was the first of a lengthy series of near-awards given, one being a decree of the Court of Claims in 1859, which held that the claimants were entitled to only $183.50, or their share of the monies recovered by the United States government from the defaulting court clerk.

Another of the family that vallantly "persevered" in this singular case was the father of A. D. Crooks mentioned—the late Hon. Adam Crooks, who was Egerton Ryerson's successor as minister of education for Ontario. There are many heirs besides A. D. Crooks, for Mrs. Louisa Burns, of Toronto; Willoughby Crooks of Montreal; J. Crooks, of Waterloo; and Mrs. Granville Cunningham, wife of the former Toronto assistant city engineer, are also grandchildren of Hon. James Crooks. Descendants of the one-time Bishop of Toronto, Aleaxnder Neil Bethune, are also interested in the award.

Prunes in the Santa Clara valley, which is the heaviest producing section of California, will run probably not more than 25 per cent. of normal, or only about 60,000,000 pounds this year, the state horticultural commissioner announces. Unfavorable weather hurt the crop.

WELL KEPT FARM RECCRDS

Prof. Gray of Saskatoon Speaks Before Agricultural Secretaries—Interesting Discussions

In an address before the Agricultural secretaries at Regina, Prof. Gray, of Saskatoon, laid strong emphasis on the value of well-kept farm records and farm accounts. That the farmer who wishes to get results from the application of his labor must practice business principles, and that he must be thoroughly conversant with the practical side of farming, was imperative. Haphazard methods must inevitably lead to loss.

Records were divided into three classes—first, record of miscellaneous facts and events; second, financial records designed to show profit and loss and external relationship of farmer; third, system of cost accounts. The old-time farmer kept these things in his head. Under modern conditions, such practice is not suitable.

Dean Rutherford addressed the convention on the "mission of the college graduate." He traced the history of agricultural education, and declared that the methods of most progressive farmers were really the outcome of experiments carried out at colleges.

Mr. Dunning developed the community idea in opening his address, dwelling on the necessity of instilling into growing manhood the love of farm and home. He enumearted many obstacles to successful co-operation among farmers, showing plainly that these obstacles are placed there by the farmer to a great extent. The best methods of overcoming these obstacles were pointed out in the success of co-operative societies which have sprung up in the province within the last five years and with the resultant benefits. The best example of such success in co-operaion is to be found in Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Co.

Waiting For Suffrage

A clergyman who addresse da Montreal suffrage league not long ago thought that a regrettable mistake of some of the workers for suffrage was overlooking other responsibilities in the meantime. A great deal could be done to better the conditions among the poor, without the vote. The speaker urged the enlistment of those who were idle in social work.

"Let women go upon the platform and speak upon political questions, saying no word of suffrage," said a speaker at the inaugural meeting of the Political Equality League in Toronto. It would prove, he said, the best suffrage argument they could offer. Let them take hold of every great public question, and make it a servant of suffrage, showing men how to make politics clean. Another speaker on that occasion said of the "new woman" that she is merely the newly-awakened woman. Contrary to the usual contention of men, woman's great fault has been silence. It was always admitted that she could talk, but not that she could speak. Now women speakers appear who speak with a feminine eloquence all their own and a logic too fine to be called masculine.

Miss Pethick, a suffrage visitor from England, closely identified with the movement there, hoped that Canadian women might get the vote, but not too soon. "If you get it too soon half the women won't know its worth, but if you have to struggle for it, women will be better educated, and will do more with the ballot when they get it."

ONE THIRD OF INCOME DEMANDED IN TAXES

THE RICH MAN IN ENGLAND MUST CONTRIBUTE HEAVILY TO TREASURY

This Calculation Has Been Made by Sir William Lever—He Likes the Idea, However, and Thinks That the System of British Taxation is Ideal.

Under the new scheme of taxation introduced by David Lloyd-George, chancellor of the exchequer, in his budget for 1915-16, a man having an income from a capital of five mililon dollars will have to pay one-third of his income in taxes.

In the first place he has to pay 28 cents on every five dollars in income tax; then he has to pay a similar amount in super-tax, and when he dies one dollar on every five of what is left has to be paid for death and estate duties. The total is figured at just one-third of the income.

This calculation has been made by Sir William Lever, one of the millionaires who will have to pay, but who does not object.

"I like it," he said. "In my view the ideal system of taxation, both local and imperial is through the income tax, the super-tax, death duties, land tax, site value tax, and taxation upon luxuries, such as alcohol, tobacco, etc. Everything else free."

While Lloyd-George has followed his predecessors in his system of taxation, except that he has increased the rate of income and super-tax and death duties so that the wealthy have to pay the lion's share, he has gone to other countries for some of his ideas. His taxation of site values is based on the law now in vogue in British Columbia, while he has gone to the American income tax law for the idea of making money accruing to British subjects from investments abroad pay its share of taxation.

In recent years British capitalists have made immense investments in foreign countries. When the income from these investments were brought home to be spent, the government under the old law did not touch it. Now Lloyd George says all income of British subjects resident in the United Kingdom must contribute to the imperial revenue. These foreign investments are estimated at over a billion and a half dollars, and from this the chancellor hopes to secure $1,250,000 this year, and double that amount next year. The revenue from income tax and death duties this year will amount to something like $44,000,000.

In spite of these increases, Sir Geo. Paish, editor of the Statist, says the burden of taxation is much smaller than it has been in modern history. In 1880, when the expenditure came to $41,000,000, it was raised out of a national income of five billion dollars. Now the national income reaches the enormous total of $12,000,000,000 so it can easily stand the increased expenditure. Sir George argues that England can bear still greater increases in her budget.

"There are good grounds," he says, "for believing that the income and wealth of this country will again double in another thirty years. When it reaches twenty-five billion dollars and I have no doubt that it will within a generation, a budget of two and a half billion dollars will be borne more easily than the burden of a million dollars in 1914."

Who is an American?

There hasn't been a president since Lincoln whose speeches on great public occasions can take rank with Mr. Wilson's. That over the bodies of the sailors killed at Vera Cruz was a most striking utterance.

"Notice that these men were of our blood," he said. "I mean of our American blood, which is not drawn from any other country, which is not drawn from any other stock, which is not drawn from any one language in the world, but free men everywhere have sent their country in order to make that great compounded nation which consists of all the sturdy elements and of all the best elements of the whole globe. I listened again to this list with a profound interest at the mixture of the names, for the names bear the marks of the several national stocks from which these men came. But they are not Irishmen or Germans or Frenchmen or Hebrews any more. They were Americans, every one of them, and were no different in their Americanism because of the stock from which they came."

The idea needs to be emphasized for Canadians quite as much as for their neighbors, for here the same process is going on.—Edmonton Capital.

MEMORIAL TO CHAMPLAIN

First Sod Turned on Site Where He Stood on Nepean Point

On the very spot, as accurately as historians can calculate, where three hundred and one years ago Samuel de Champlain, the great explorer, colonizer and soldier, and the first Canadian, stood when he turned his rugged face towards the sun to regain the bearings he had lost on what is now known as Nepean Point, the first sod on the site of which his statute will stand was cut recently. Mrs. Thomas Ahearn, president of the Ottawa Women's Historical club of Ottawa, turned the first spadeful of earth in the presence of members and delegates to the convention of the Ontario Historical Society. She was assisted by Mr. Clarence M. Warner, Napanee, the president of the Ontario Society.

WIRELESS ON LINER'S LIFEBOAT.

This drawing shows one of the new motor lifeboats that have been built for the new liner, the Aquitania. The boat is 30 feet long by 9 feet 6 inches in width and its primary function will be to tow the ordinary lifeboats. It is fitted with wireless apparatus with a range of 100 to 150 miles so as to keep in touch with steamers in cases of emergency. It will be carried on the boat deck.
