I ate a light lunch at Bellwood alone, with Bella to look after me.

Oh, Bella, I called as she was going out. I want to ask you something about the night at the Fleming home when you and I watched the house. Didn't you hear some person running along the hall outside your door? About 2 o'clock, I think?

She looked at me stolidly.

No, sir; I slept all night.

That's strange. And you didn't hear me when I fell down the dumb waiter shaft?

Holy saints! she ejaculated. Was that where you fell?

She stopped herself abruptly.

You heard that? I asked gently, and yet you slept all night? Bella, there's a hitch somewhere. You did not sleep that night at all. You told Miss Fleming I had been up all night. How did you know that? If I didn't know that you could'nt possibly get around as fast as the person in the house that night I would say you had been in Mr. Fleming's desk looking for—let us say, postage stamps. May I have another cup of coffee?

She turned a sickly yellow white and gathered up my cup and saucer with trembling hands. I put another line in my notebook. What does Bella know?

I got back to the city and found Wardrop waiting for me at the office. He seemed to have shrunk in his clothes, his eyeballs were bloodshot from drinking and his fair hair had dropped, neglected, over his forehead.

He looked at me with dull eyes when I went in. He was sitting on my desk.

He says he's crazy—lost his think works, said Burton.

I didn't know you knew each other, I put in.

He says we do, Wardrop said wearily; says he used to knock me around at college. I'm not sick. It's only—

Better see one, Wardrop, I urged.

It seemed incredible that an innocent man would collapse as he had done, and yet at this minute I can name a dozen men who, under the club of public disapproval, have fallen into paresis, insanity and the grave. We are all indifferent to our fellow men until they are against us.

Burton was very well acquainted with the specialist to whom we took Wardrop.

I think I've got it all from Mr. Burton, said the doctor when he had sent Wardrop into another room. The idea is Munsterberg's, and I've had some good results. I'll give him a short physical examination, and when I ring the bell one of you may come in. Are you a newspaper man, Mr. Knox?

An attorney, I said.

Press man, lawyer or doctor, Burton broke in, we all fatten on the other fellow's troubles, don't we?

We don't fatten very much, I corrected. We live.

The doctor blinked behind his glasses.

I never saw a lawyer yet who would admit he was making money, he said.

The physical examination was very brief. When I was called in Wardrop was standing at the window looking down into the street below, and the doctor was writing at his desk. Behind Wardrop's back he gave me the slip he had written.

Test is for the association of ideas. Watch length of time between word I give and his reply. I often get hold of facts forgotten by the patient. A wait before the answering word is given shows an attempt at concealment.

On a table was an electric instrument like a small clock, and the first act was to attach to it two wires with small, Black rubber mouthpieces.

Now, Mr. Wardrop, the doctor said, we will go on with the test. Your other condition is fair. I think you can dismiss the idea of insanity without a second thought, but there is something more than brain and body to be considered. In other words you have been through a storm and some of your nervous wires are down. Put this mouthpiece between your lips please. You see, I do the same with mine. And when I give you a word speak as quickly as possible the association it brings to your mind. For instance, I say noise. Your first association might be street, band, drum, almost anything associated with the word. As quickly as possible, please.

The first words went simply enough. Wardrop's replies came almost instantly. To light, he replied lamp; touch, brought the response hand; eat, brought Burton, and both the doctor and I smiled. Wardrop was intensely serious. Then—

Taxicab, said the doctor, and after an almost imperceptible pause, road, came the association. All at once I began to see the possibilities.

Desk—Pen.

Pipe—Smoke.

Head. After a perceptible pause the answer came uncertainly, Hair. But the association of ideas would not be denied, for in answer to the next word, which was ice, he gave blood, evidently following up the previous word, head.

I found myself gripping the arms of my chair. Wardrop's eyes were shifting nervously.

Hot—Cold.

White—Black.

Whisky—Glass, all in less than a second.

Pearls. A little hesitation, then box.

Taxicab, again. Night!

Silly—Wise.

Shot. After a pause, revolver.

Night—Dark.

Blood—Head.

Water—Drink.

Traveling bag. He brought out the word 'train' after an evident struggle, but in answer to the next word 'lost,' instead of the obvious 'found' he said 'woman.' He had not enough mental agility to get away from the association with 'bag.' The woman belonged there.

Murder brought dead, but shot following immediately after, brought staircase.

I think Wardrop was on his guard by that time, but the conscious effort to hide truths that might be damaging made the intervals longer from that time on. Already I felt sure that Allan Fleming's widow had been right. He had been shot from the locked back staircase. But by whom?

Blow brought chair.

Gone—Bag, came like a shot.

In quick succession, without pause, came the words:

Bank—Note.

Door—Bolt.

Money—Letters, without any apparent connection.

CHAPTER XVI

Association of Ideas

Wardrop was going to the bad. When to the doctor's word, staircase, again he said scar, his demoralization was almost complete. As for me the scene in Wardrop's mind was already in mine—Schwartz, with the scar across his ugly forehead and the bolted door to the staircase open!

On again with the test.

Flour, after perhaps two seconds from the preceding shock, brought bread.

Trees—Leaves.

Night—Dark.

Gate. He stopped here so long I thought he was not going to answer at all. Presently, with an effort, he said wood, but, as before, the association idea came out in the next word. For electric light he gave letters.

Attic, brought trunks, at once.

Closet. After perhaps a second or two came dust, showing what closet was in his mind, and immediately after the match, he gave pen.

A long list of words followed which told nothing, to my mind, although the doctor's eyes were snapping with excitement. Then travel'ing bag, again, and instead of his previous association, woman this time he gave yellow. But to the next word, house, he gave guest. It came to me that in his mental processes I was the guest the substitute bag was in his mind as being in my possession. Quick as a flash the doctor followed up:

Guest. And Wardrop fell. Letters, he said.

To a great many words, as I said before, I could attach no significance. Here and there I got a ray.

Elderly, brought black.

Warehouse, Yard, for no apparent reason.

Eleven twenty-two brought the answer, given without a second's hesitation.

Eleven twenty-two C! He gave no evidence of having noticed any peculiarity in what he said. I doubt if he realized his answer. To me he gave the impression of repeating something he had apparently forgotten. The test was over.

My hands were very rough and were badly cracked open and if I went out in the cold air they always bled. I could not do my regular work. Had Nothing on Her Margery and Helen lived quite near each other, and occasionally played together. One day when they met Helen said, boastfully.

We keep a butler.

Margery remained thoughtful for a moment, the suddenly cried exultantly: That' nothing. We keep a boarder.

Mamma—Harry, this is the second time today you have forgotten to do as you were told. I'm afraid everything I say to you goes in at one ear and out of the other.

Little Harry—Well, mamma, why don't you top one of them up?

It is believed that the largest kitchen in the world is that of the Bon Marche in Paris. It provides food for all the employes of the house, 4,000 in number. The smallest kettle holds seventy-five quarts, the largest 375 quarts. There are fifty frying pans, each of which is capable of holding 300 cutlets at a time or frying 220 pounds of potatoes. When there are omelets for breakfast, 7,800 eggs are used. The coffee machines make 750 quarts of coffee daily. There are sixty cooks and 100 kitchen boys employed.

A short answer seldom helps things along.

LIFE'S ROAD

Smoothed by Change of Food

Worry is a big load to carry and an unnecessary one. When accompanied by indigestion it certainly is cause for the blues.

But the whole trouble may be easily thrown off and life's road be made easy and comfortable by proper eating and the cultivation of good cheer. Read what an Eastern woman says:

"Two years ago I made the acquaintance of Grape-Nuts and have used the food once a day and sometimes twice ever since.

"At the time I began to use it life was a burden. I was for years afflicted with bilious sick headache, caused by indigestion, and nothing seemed to relieve me.

"The trouble became so severe I had to leave my work for days at a time.

"My nerves were in such a state I could not sleep and the doctor said I was on the verge of nervous prostration. I saw an adv. concerning Grape-Nuts and bought a package for trial.

"What Grape-Nuts has done for me is certainly marvelous. I can now sleep like a child, am entirely free from the old trouble and have not had a headache in over a year. I feel like a new person. I have recommended it to others. One man I knew ate principally Grape-Nuts, while working on the ice all winter, and said he never felt better in his life."

UNIQUE FARM TRACTOR

Old Principle Applied in Construction of Handy Implement

A gasoline farm tractor which works on the principle of a squirrel cage has been invented and tried out by a Connecticut farmer. It consists mainly of a wheel, 5ft 6in. in diameter, with a tread of 30in., which rolls along the ground propelled by a 12-15 h.p. gasoline engine inside. The motor is mounted on four wheels fitted with gears and a clutch, like a tiny automobile, and propels the large wheel by continually trying to climb the inside surface of the wheel like a squirrel in a cage. The tractor was designed to draw cultivators, plows, and other farm implements, and can be driven between rows, up hills, and around sharp corners; but it can also be geared higher to draw a wagon or buggy on the road. Mounted on a frame or cradle, it can be used as a handy power plant for running corn shellers, etc. Built with a 52-in. wheel, this machine weighs about 1,260 lb., and reports of tests made with it indicate a high degree of efficiency.

Complete in itself, Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator does not require the assistance of any other medicine to make it effective. It does not fail to do its work.

How did she happen to turn her ankle?

Oh, her ankle was well turned and there was a handsome young doctor stopping at the same hotel.

A Water Trick

In Athens goats are marched to housekeepers' doors and milked before the eyes of patrons. But this system does not prevent adulteration. The milkman wears a loose coat with wide sleeves. Around his waist is a rubber bag filled with water, and a tube runs down his arm. As he milks he presses the tube and milk and water flow silently together into the milk pail.

Money in Records

There is money in making records for talking machines. An American singer, not of world-wide celebrity, spent over $50,000 on building and furnishing his house, all from the fees paid him for singing into a receiver.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

The conversation at a recent social function in Trenton turned to the extreme precautionary methods of some people and the governor-elect told of the rule laid down by a certain fellow native along that line.

One day while in the city, the governor said, the fellow Jerseyman happened to collide with a bunch of hygienics, and among other things they referred to the water supply of his home town.

It isn't as good as it might be, said the Jerseyman when questioned as to its quality. There is something like 10,000,000 microbes to a drop, but it is the best we can do at present.

SAWS MADE OF PAPER

Will Cut Wood Veneer Better Than Steel and are Widely Used

Circular saws made of paper, for use in making veneer and fine furniture, are being turned out in a factory in England. Thin plates of wood cut by these saws are so finely finished that cabinet makers do not have to plane them at all before they are used. Such saws were originally shown at an English exposition and are manufactured from compressed paper. Indeed, compressed paper of such hardness has been made in England that it has been used in place of building stone. Experiments in the manufacture of car wheels from compressed paper have been made for several years in America, but the product has never competed seriously with the ordinary steel wheels. It is only in the production of certain articles as the veneer saws that any advantage is found.

Minard's Liniment Cures Dandruff

A lady returning home unexpectedly, found her domestic using the drawing-room for the purpose of giving a select party to her friends. Ann, I am surprised, she ejaculated.

So am I, ma'am, replied the unabashed girl. I thought you wouldn't be back for a fortnight.

How came you in the penitentiary?
I was drugged and robbed.
By whom?
My doctor.
Yes.
He told me to take iron.
Well.
I took a stove and was arrested.

With so thorough a preparation at hand as Miller's Worm Powders the mother who allows her children to suffer from the ravages of worms is unwise and culpably careless. A child subjected to the attacks of worms is always unhealthy and will be stunted in its growth. It is a merciful act to rid it of these destructive parasites, especially when it can be done without difficulty.

The late Maurice Barrymore was the idol of the Lambs' during his lifetime, and even now the members of that club take delight in citing instances of his ready sympathy or sprightly wit.

One day, so the story goes, Barrymore was swinging down Fifth avenue when Sidney Rosenfeld, the playwright, rushed up to him, all excitement.

Oh, Maurice, he wailed, have you heard of my misfortune?

No, Barrymore sympathized, is there illness in your family?

Not that. My little boy, five years old, got hold of my new play and tore it to tatters.

I didn't know the child could read, said Barrymore, and continued to walk.

A raw Scotch lad joined the local territorials, and on the first parade his sister came, together with his mother, to see them. When they were marching past Jock was out of step.

Look, mither, said his sister, they are a' oot o' step but oor Jock.

What a Friend Can Do

There are all sorts of friends—those who desert their companions in their hour of need; the fair-weather friend, who runs away when trouble comes along, but is always there when the sun shines; the deceitful friends; the loyal friend; the disloyal friend and so on. Ask yourself which sort you are.

The friends worth while, she who is a real pal in every sense of the word, will stick to her chum through thick and thin; no matter what the troubles are—no matter how her pal may encroach on her time, the true friend will be with her as far as lies in her power and will do the best she can for her.

Magic Effects on Neuralgia Throbbing Pain Goes Quickly

A YEAR'S SUFFERER CURED BY NERVILINE."

No person reading this need ever again suffer long from Neuralgia.

Nerviline will quickly cure the worst Neuralgia, and Mrs. G. Evans, in her strong letter written from Russel post office, says:—"One long year, the longest of my life, was almost entirely given up to treating dreadful attacks of Neuralgia. The agony I experienced during some of the bad attacks was simply unmentionable. To use remedies by the score without permanent relief was mighty discouraging. At last I put my faith in Nerviline; I read of the wonderful pain-subduing power it possessed and made up my mind to prove it valuable or useless. Nerviline at once eased the pain and cured the headache. Continuous treatment with this magic-working remedy cured me entirely, and I have ever since stayed well."

Mrs. Evan's case is but one of hundreds that might be quoted. Nerviline is a specific for all nerve, muscular or joint pain. It quickly cures neuralgia, sciatica, lumbago, lame back, neuritis and rheumatism. Forty years in use, and to-day the most widely used liniment in the Dominion. Don't take anything but "Nerviline," which any dealer anywhere can supply in large 50c. family size bottles, or in a small 25c. trial size.

Postmaster-General Burleson tells of an old Scotchman who was listening to former Secretary Wilson's lecture on the activity of microbes. The sectary of agriculture said: There are microbes in the cabbage and microbes in the wheat and microbes in everything that grows.

The old Scotchman paid strict attention to the lecture.

When he left the hall one of his friends asked him how he liked the lecture.

I don't see why the secretary of agriculture should put so much stress on what the McCrobes done, he said. They've done no more than the McGregors or the McPhersons, and there lives no such clan as the Campbells, anyway.

NERVES ARE SORE AND PAINFUL

Neuritis or inflammation of the nerves, is the most painful of nervous ailments. You may feel the soreness or tenderness throughout the body, or it may be confined to certain nerves, In the head it is called neuralgia; in the hips and legs, sciatica; in the face, tic-doloreux, and in the chest, intercostal neuralgia.

The application of dry heat affords relief from the lance-like pains, but the essential thing is to build up the exhausted nervous system by the persistent use of such a restorative as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. You will have other symptoms to warn you of the depleted condition of the nervous system, and this is your opportunity to restore to the body the energy and vigor of health.

While this great food cure is instilling new vitality into the starved nerve cells it is also forming new, firm flesh and tissue, and, by noting your increase in weight, you can prove beyond doubt the benefit being obtained by its use. This is Nature's way of curing diseases of the nerves, and it is the only way to obtain lasting benefit.

Husband (newly married)— Don't you think, love if I smoke it would spoil the curtains?

Wife—Ah! you are really the most unselfish and thoughtful husband to be found anywhere; certainly it would.

Husband—Well, then take the curtains down.

He had risked his life to rescue the fair maid from a watery grave, and of course her father was duly grateful.

Young man, he said. I can never thank you sufficiently for your heroic act. You incurred an awful risk in saving my only daughter.

Warwick—There's Wilkins. Have you read his latest novel? He has the heroine, an heiress, turn down the hero and marry the villain.

A man who had purchased some currant buns at a bakery was distressed, on starting to eat one, to find that it contained a fly. Rushing off to the bakery he made an indignant complaint, demanding another bun in place of the inhabited one.

I'm sorry, sir, said the saleswoman I can't give you another bun, but if you will bring back the fly I will exchange it for a currant.

An "Interest" Instrument

A Hungarian citizen invented an instrument which shows instantly the amount of interest due on any given sum for any period at any given rate of interest. The instrument, made in the size and shape of a watch, is of very simple construction, and inexpensive. All that is necessary to operate it is to place the hands in the proper position on the dial and the exact amount of interest in each case is indicated on the face of the instrument.

The steamer "Birdswell," which brought a cargo of feed etc. for the dealers here last Wednesday, remained in the river until Tuesday of this week before returning to Vancouver.

The Cumberland Steam Laundry is still for sale, and will be sold at a bargain. This is a snap for the right people. Work is plentiful in the district and whoever buys it is sure to do well.

The Captain of the steamer "Birdswell" would like to make a fortnightly run to this port, but owing to the dangerous condition of the river bottom, and the fact that the markings were all blown out last winter by the storms, is afraid to undergo the venture.

Last Thursday evening the Knights of Pythias, learning that it was the birthday of the chancellor, Mr. E. E. Lindon, decided to hold a surprise social dance in honor of the occasion. At which a delightful time was spent by those present.

The press of Victoria has this to say about the Royal Players, a company of 14 people who play at the Opera House, Courtenay, May 4: "No better aggregation of players has been seen at popular prices than the Royal Stock Company, now playing at the Victoria Theatre, as every play that has been produced has been perfect in detail, and exceedingly well performed. Miss Edyth Elliot possesses that charm and magnetism that few actresses can boast of, and the sweetness of voice, the charm of manner, and intense emotion that she is mistress of, ranks her as one of the very best leading women we have in the West. Mr. Royal as a comedian, has few rivals, and has the happy knack of being able to keep his audience in roars of laughter, as his comedy is natural. The company are all well chosen to support the principals that head the best stock company on the coast."

TRI-WEEKLY SERVICE ON E. & N. RAILWAY

Port Alberni, April 19:--As soon as the traffic warrants the move the E, & N. Railway Company will increase its tri-weekly passenger train service to a daily service the same as last summer, and there is likely to be a change in the running time, which will allow passengers to leave Port Alberni at 7 o'clock in the morning and reach Victoria about 1 p. m,.

The announcement was made by H. E. Beasley, general superintendant of the Company. Mr. Beasley said the company figured on inaugurating a passenger service on the East coast line from Courtenay on July 15. It was planned to have the train leave Courtenay every morning at 8 o'clock, and arrangements were under consideration to provide for a connection with the train from Port Alberni at the Parksville junction. This train would make faster time than usual to Victoria by means of cutting out a number of stops along the line from Nanaimo south.

Mr. Beasley announced that arrangements had been made to encourage shipping from the Canadian Pacific Lumber Company's mill in Port Alberni by bringing all the extra freight cars required from the mainland. This means that most of the cars used will have to come in empty but the railway company is determined to meet all demands on the Island. —Vancouver Sun.

Letter to the Ediotr

Editor Courtenay Review.

Dear Sir:—The movement in favour of the establishment of a hospital to serve Courtenay and the district, came it will be remembered into some prominence in the early part of last year, and no doubt appeared to many of our local residents to bear welcome fruit, in the arrival of a community of nursing sisters, whose object as announced in your columns, appeared to be identical with the requirements of the district. It is therefore with no little surprise that I have read the article in your issue of the 9th instant which would seem to indicate that with the exception of the formation of a committee of gentlemen for no very specific purpose other than that of receiving correspondence and promises of assistance, we are in much the same position as we were a twelve month since.

Now we are all very much aware of the crying need of a local hospital, and your account of the sufferings endured on the road to Cumberland hospital by the poor fellows injured at the camps, serves the more to emphasize the need; however I am quite sure that neither the casualties in the logging camps and other works in the vicinity, nor the health of the community in general, warrants the establishment of two such insitutions, neither of which under these circumstances could expect to be self supporting. Never-the-less unless the Sisters of St. Joseph have renounced their declared intentions, the article in your issue of last Thursday indicates that such a condition of things is really contemplated.

I have no wish to advance any special pleading on behalf of either proposition, but taking into consideration that the matter is urgent I think that the cause may well be more closely examined before we have definitely committed ourselves to a policy that savours of opposition, in a matter of vital need.

In the first place we have already among us a community of nursing ladies who have settled in the neighbourhood with the announced intention of erecting a hospital to serve the district, and who as a preliminary have, as I am myself aware, already opened their doors to quite a number of patients.

As to whether as a religious body they are in a position to apply for government aid, (which you inform us is only granted to an undenominational establishment) with regard to any project they may have in view, can be to us only a matter of conjecture and is in my opinion beside the mark.

I might mention however that the one or two institutions of the kind conducted by religous societies that I have been in touch with, have as far as the hospital work was concerned, been as undenominational as the most exacting government could require.

If then it appears to me, we have the fulfilment of our object already in embryo, wherein lies the purpose of our committee of local men? Perhaps Mr. F. D. Cameron or whoever may be charged with the interpretation of the scheme will kindly consent to be a little more explicit and with your kind permission, (as the matter is of public import) through the medium of your columns.

I am yours truly
A Resident in the District.
Courtenay, April 11, 1914.

VICTORIA NOTES

The "Colonist" of April 14th has the following by way of an editorial:—

The problem of the future is an economic one—how to escape from the burden of taxation we are loading ourselves with to gratify luxurious tastes.

And now we are told that the way to reduce the high cost of living is for women to spend less on their clothes. Another way would be for men to spend less on whisky.

This seems to show that the burden of dead living is being felt in Victoria, side by side with the burden of over-indulgence in alcoholic liquors. Enough said!

Chinese eggs are arriving in large quantities at Victoria and for the most part are being transhipped at this port for the States. But a number are shipped to places in Canada, and, owing to the hard shells and tough skins, they are even reaching places as far east as Montreal without a single egg being broken Now is the time for the Comox Valley poultry keepers to organize before it is too late. Cowichan has done so to good advantage, and you can buy Cowichan eggs in Victoria to-day, knowing that they are fresh, and not mixed with the product of the nest that is occasionally discovered carefully hidden away. The point to be emphasized is that Cowichan eggs constitute a particular brand, whereas Comox eggs are not known as such anywhere, not even in Comox Valley itself. If, in two years time, the Chinese egg has driven the Comox product out of the local Comox market itself, the aggrieved poultry men will blame, not themselves, not the climate, not the Comox hens, but the Government.

The astounding fact, going back to the poultry question, is that so few people, comparatively, keep hens. As a result, a market is created, not for the local product, but for the cheaper and competing product. Your correspondent is acquainted with a resident of this city, who has five pullets in a run placed on a plot as big as a good sized kitchen table. Result, 124 eggs, for the month of March, worth at least $3, and moreover absolutely fresh, at a cost of 50c of feed.

The Government of B. C. will supply any applicant with enough literature on poultry to satisfy the severest craving for knowledge on that interesting subject.

Easter passed all too quickly in Victoria, but was enjoyed by large numbers of people. The attendance at the various places of worship constituted a record, and taking one instance alone, that of Christ Church Cathedral, it is safe to say that from 8 a. m. until 1 p. m. the building was crowded. Service followed service, and one congregation replaced another; an overflow service was held in an adjoining school-room as there were so many people who could not gain admittance to the 11 a. m. service. This is as it should be and the province could do with more of the religious spirit, which is after all an instinct as natural as that of sleep, or eating or drinking, in that it satisfies a natural craving.

Aston's HandmadeShoes will stand the Test.

She Could Find Nothing to Cure Her Rheumatism Till On a Neighbor's Advice She Tried Dodd's Kidney Pills.

St. Walburg, Sask.,—(Special).—I can truly recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills for any one suffering from Rheumatism. These are the words of Mrs. W. A. Baldwin, a highly respected resident of this place. And Mrs. Baldwin gives her reasons.

"I was nearly helpless with rheumatism for two years," she states. "I got medicine from the doctor, and tried several other remedies but nothing helped me. Then one of my neighbors advised me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I bought four boxes, and they helped almost from the first. I have used nearly two dozen boxes and am nearly cured."

That rheumatism is one of the results of diseased kidneys is again shown in Mrs. Baldwin's case. She had headaches, stiffness of the joints and backaches, her sleep was broken and unrefreshing, and she was always tired and nervous. Her limbs swelled and she was always thirsty. These are all symptoms of diseased kidneys. When she cured her kidneys with Dodd's Kidney Pills the symptoms vanished—and so did the rheumatism.

One Improvement

My dear, said Mrs. Newlywed, her face flushed with excitement from her afternoon in the kitchen. I want you to be perfectly frank with me now; what would you suggest to improve these doughnuts I made today?

Well, replied Mr. Newlywed, lifting one with a slight effort, I think it might be better if you made the hole bigger.

Mothers Value This Oil.—Mothers who know how suddenly croup may seize their children and how necessary prompt action is in applying relief, always keep at hand a supply of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, because experience has taught them that there is no better preparation to be had for the treatment of this ailment. And they are wise, for its various uses render it a valuable medicine.

DO LONG BREATHS HURT?

DANGEROUS PLEURISY ALWAYS BEGIN THIS WAY

Speediest Cure is Nerviline

Ouch, that stab-like pain in the side is like a hot knife blade in the ribs!

Probably got overheated—cooled too fast—now there is congestion, tightness, such soreness you can't draw a long breath.

This is the beginning of Pleurisy.

Pleurisy is far too serious to neglect a single instant.

Quickest relief will come from a vigorous rubbing with Nerviline. This trusty old pain reliever will fix you up in no time—will take away the congestion—make you well just as it did Mr. Samuel St. Johns, of Stamford, who says:—"In running to catch a train last week I became much overheated. I put up the train window and rode that way in order to get cooled off. In an hour my side was so full of pain and my breathing hurt so much that I thought I had pneumonia. I always carry Nerviline in my grip and at destination I rubbed my side thoroughly three times. The warm penetrating effect was soon noticeable and I quickly got relief. Nerviline I consider saved me from a serious illness."

Any sort of a cold can be quickly broken up with Nerviline which is a marvel for reducing inflammation, for relieving congestion in the throat and chest, for curing stitch in the side, lumbago, neuralgia, sciatica or rheumatism. Nothing more soothing or powerful. The 50c. large family size is the most economical. Small trial size 25c. at dealers everywhere.

Jean longed for a kitten with all heart, but her mother was not fond of cats, so she was not allowed to have one in spite of her eager pleadings. At length it became necessary for Jean to go to the hospital for an operation. I will make a bargain with you, Jean, said her mother. If you will be a brave little girl about having your operation, you shall have the very nicest kitten I can find.

Jean climbed upon the operating table and took the ether without a struggle. As she came out from under the influence of the anaesthetic and began to realize how sick and wretched she felt, the nurse leaned over to catch her first spoken words: What a bum way to get a cat.

CRIPPLING PAINS OF RHEUMATISM

Cannot Be Cured By Liniments—Must be Reached Through the Blood

Thousands of men and women suffer severely from rheumatism. Cruel, crippling pains in the muscles and joints make every movement a torture. Many people think rheumatism is due to cold or wet weather and they try to cure themselves by rubbing liniments on the painful parts. This is a great mistake—the rheumatic poison is in the blood, and liniments and rubbing cannot give more than the most temporary relief. If you are a victim of rheumatism or lumbago you can only rid yourself of it by making your blood rich and pure, for only in this way can the poisons of rheumatism be driven from the system. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured more cases of rheumatism than any other disease except anaemia, just because they make the rich, red blood that goes right to the root and cause of rheumatism. You cannot be well when your blood is impure, therefore, begin curing your rheumatism to-day with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The following are the particulars of one of the many thousands of cures to the credit of this health-giving medicine.

Mr. Jeremie Nadou, St. Jerome, Que., says: "A few years ago I was seized with a severe attack of rheumatism. The pains in my back, arms and legs were terrible. I treated with several doctors but they did not help me, and as time went on I was unable to work and began to think that I would be a cripple for life. While in this trying condition a friend who had been cured of rheumatism by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills advised me to try this remedy, and I got a supply of the Pills. I had taken the Pills for several weeks before any improvement was noticed, but once signs of relief came the improvement from that time on was rapid, and I joyfully continued taking the Pills until every vestiage of the trouble disappeared. No one but a similar sufferer can imagine the gratitude I feel for this relief from pain, and because I have since enjoyed perfect health I urge other rheumatic sufferers to give this medicine a trial."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

NO LISENCE IS NEEDED

Only Non-resident Fishermen Need Take Out Fishing Lisence.

"There is no lisence required at all for residents of the province who want to fish," stated Game Warden Williams today, in answer to a question, which had been suggested by many enquiries, The recent amendments to the Game Act, have made many people believe that a fishing lisence must be taken out, but this is not so except in the case of non-residents who must take out the customary lisence as before.

The game wardens throughout the province have made several arrests and secured convictions during the past week where breaches of the game laws have been discovered: Fred Bragg and R. Shanklin of Arbutus Canyon, were each fined $50 and costs by Magistrate Jay, at Victoria, for shooting grouse out of season. The birds were discovered hidden in a mattress. Two men in the East Kootenay district were similarly fined $50 and costs each for trapping, while an Italian at Hope who carried a gun and shot at some ducks. without having a gun license was fined $20 and costs.

May Exclude Chinese

Ottawa, April 20.—A new interpretation of the recent Order-in-Council prohibiting the entrance into British Columbia of all artisans and laborers has been made here. It was thought at first that owing to the Chinese Act, the Order-in-Council did not affect the entrance of Chinamen. However, after a close scrutiny of the legal aspects of the question, it has been decided that under the present regulations the government can, if it so desires, exclude all newcomers from China, and in view of the recent racial difficulties in British Columbia the government may avail itself of this interpretation. The only nation now excluded from the provisions of the order are Japanese cases, covered by the treaty arrangements with that country.

Ottawa is awaiting with considerable interest and some anxiety the arrival of the steamer which has sailed from Shanghai with 400 Hindus who, it is claimed, will endeavor to test the legality of the recent Canadian Orders-in-Council as to their rights as British subjects.

The steamer is expected to arrive at Victoria about May 1, and order have been sent to the coast to prohibit the entry of the immigrants if the are entering in contravention to the present regulation

Flour trial is essential but—it is not your work!

Flour varies from time to time in baking quality. This is because wheat continually varies according to soil conditions, etc.

Therefore, if baking results are to be constantly high, baking tests are essential. It is unreasonable to expect you to make these tests at your expense.

PURITY

So from each shipment of wheat delivered at our mills we take a ten pound sample. This is ground into flour. Bread is baked from the flour. If this bread is high in quality and large in quantity, we use the shipment. Otherwise we sell it.

Keeping Her Hand In

Yes, sir, said the barber, deftly rubbing the lather into the scalp of the patron, I was ship's barber on a trans-Pacific steamer for five years until the ship was wrecked and I was cast away on an island in the south seas. I lived there for two years and never saw a human being, but when I was rescued I flatter myself I was a better shampooer than ever. I kept in practice all the time.

How did you manage it? asked the patron.

I shampooed the cocoanuts.

Waiter, asked the impatient customer, do you call this an oyster stew?

Yessuh, replied Erastus Pinkley.

Why the oyster in this stew isn't big enough to flavor it.

He wasn't put in to flavor it, suh. He's jest supposed to christen it.

The scene was a certain business place in the city of—well, not London. Into it there came a well dressed woman, who after glancing around, inquired of the assistant:

Have you Pepy's Diary, please? I do not see it advertised.

Sorry, madam, replied the young man, they've not sent us any this season. The fact is, madam, I think they've stopped publishing it.

The lady, uttering a "Thank you so much!" turned to the door.

Uncertain as to whether or not the young man was treating the lady seriously, I remarked:

Of course you know that the lady is confusing a very famous book with a scribbling diary.

He remained silent for a moment or two, and then said:

Is that so? I really had an idea that a firm named Pepys used to publish a diary.

LA GRIPPE'S VICTIMS

You Can Only Recover From Its After Effects by Enriching the Blood

Few diseases so shatter the health as la grippe, or influenza. Its victims all tell the same story. They are left despondent, tired, weak and wretched in every way. They have no appetite, ambition or strength; cannot sleep and suffer from headaches, backaches and nervousness. In this weakened condition lies the real danger. The body falls an easy prey to bronchitis, pneumonia, and even to consumption. Nearly every form of nervous trouble has been known to follow an attack of la grippe. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills give the quickest and most thorough relief from the after effects of this trouble. They build up and purify the blood, drive the poisons out of the system and give strength and tone to the whole body. The following is an example of their power in cases of this kind. Mrs. R. A. McLean, Wentworth Station, N. S., says: "Two years ago Herbert E. Freeman, a young boy living with us, was attacked with la grippe. At the time he did not have a strong constitution, and we feared the trouble was settling on his lungs. He was not able to walk fifty yards without being out of breath, and his general vitality was very low. For months he continued in this position, notwithstanding all we did for him, and it was at this crisis that we got Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for him. By the time he had used three boxes there was a noticeable improvement, and this was followed by his being able to do light work, and later he had all the strength of a growing boy. His cure was looked upon as remarkable by all who knew him, and I am giving the result in the hope that it may be of benefit to someone else."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Now, children, said the teacher to the junior class in arithmetic, if I had nine yards of cloth and used five to make a shirt and three to make a jacket, what would I have left?

A lot of scraps, promptly answered the little girl at the foot.

'Tis a Marvelous Thing.—When the cures effected by Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil are considered, the speedy and permanent relief it has brought to the suffering wherever it has been used, it must be regarded as a marvelous thing that so potent a medicine should result from the six ingredients which enter into its composition. A trial will convince the most skeptical of its healing virtues.

ARE YOU ONE OF THE UNFORTUNATES

WITH BACKACHE, HEADACHE AND THAT TIRED FEELING

If so, Listen to the Story of George F. Stander, and Use Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Handsworth, Sask. (Special). — If you are one of those unfortunates who suffer from sore back, headache and that tired, listless feeling that makes work a hardship and life not worth living, the story of Geo. F. Stander, a well-known young man of this place, will interest you.

"For nearly ten years," Mr. Stander says, "I suffered from sore back and headache. I had a bad taste in my mouth in the morning, and I was always tired. I finally decided that my kidneys were the cause of my trouble, and decided to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I got half a dozen boxes and before I had finished taking them I was completely cured.

"I advise anyone suffering as I did to use Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Healthy Kidneys strain all impurities, all the seeds of disease, out of the blood. Weak kidneys leave these impurities in the blood, and the result is nervousness, tired feeling and pains and aches that often develop into Diabetes and Bright's Disease. Dodd's Kidney Pills make weak Kidneys strong and healthy.

Louise de Chapporal

As a Child She Was Condemned to the Guillotine During the Reign of Terror

By JOHN L. TREVOR

During the French revolution among those who believed in securing certain reforms from the king was Edmond de Bouvier, a younger son of Count de Bouvier. He was enthusiastic for the cause until it passed into the hands of those who were infuriated, like wild animals, by the taste of blood; then he wished to withdraw. He was thinking of leaving France when he received the appointment of judge, before whom persons who were to be got rid of would be brought for condemnation.

De Bouvier was horrified, suspecting that the appointment had been given him with a view to sending him to the guillotine on a charge of sympathizing with the royalists. He would receive from Robespierre, who was then in control, a list of those who were to be condemned, and when they were brought before him it would be expected that he would do the bidding of his superior. If he refused he would be sent to execution himself. Nor would his refusal save those whom he was expected to condemn.

De Bouvier was young and wished to live. Indeed, he hoped, if his life was spared till this flame of vengeance had burned itself out, to be of service to his country. Summoning his resolution, he went to the courtroom the morning after his appointment, and, by doing what another would do if he did not, won the confidence of those in power, while at the same time he was on the watch for an opportunity to get out of France.

He had condemned most of those who were brought before him, standing up under the ordeal by summoning all his fortitude when a child, a girl, was brought before him. The judge flinched. Calling to him one who had charge of the prisoners, he asked him why one so young had been brought before him for condemnation. He was told that she was Louise de Chapporal, the last of the family of the Counts de Chapporal, and it was to the interest of the revolution that the family be eradicated.

"But who ordered her to be brought here?"

"Citizen Robespierre."

"Is he willing to stand for the execution of a child?"

"No, M. le Juge. As soon as she has been dispatched it will be announced that a mistake has been made."

For a moment De Bouvier meditated whether to step down from his chair and surrender himself to be dealt with as an enemy to the revolution. But an idea struck him—not that there was much expectation of carrying it out without his own condemnation, but there was a faint hope. At any rate, there was hope for the child.

"How old are you, little girl?" he asked, with a pity in his voice he could not control.

"Seven," replied the child, with a smile.

"Have you a papa and a mamma?"

"Yes, but they have taken them away."

The judge bit his lip to retain his equanimity. He knew that they had taken her parents to the guillotine.

"That will do," he said to the man in charge of her. And she was led away among those who were to be executed.

These prisoners were to go to the guillotine the next day. That evening De Bouvier went to a clothing shop and bought a pair of loose trousers, a blouse and a red silk handkerchief. Then he bought a suit of boy's clothes. Taking these with him, he went to a baker's and purchased a dozen loaves of bread and one of those wooden vessels in which bread is carried by bakers in Paris. These articles he deposited in a room he had hired.

In the morning, putting a razor in his pocket, he sallied forth in the direction of the courtroom, where he was expected to send more victims to their long home. But turning into a street that led to the Place de la Revolution he went toward the guillotine. A rumbrel passed him, loaded with persons going to execution, and among them he saw the condemned child. She, too, saw him, smiled and waved her hand.

He hurried on. When he reached the guillotine the victims were being unloaded. Stepping up to the executioner, he took from his pocket the parchment appointing him a judge and showed it to him.

"I condemned these prisoners yesterday," he said, "and I made a mistake. This child is not to be executed."

The executioner looked at the paper and said nothing. It was none of his business who was to be executed. De Bouvier then spoke to the officer in charge of the troops surrounding the guillotine, but did not show the evidence of his authority, for he was known to the officer.

"This child got on the list by mistake."

"Yes, M. le Juge."

"I am going to take her away."

The officer hesitated, then said that he supposed it would be all right, only he would expect the judge to take the responsibility in the case. This De Bouvier then spoke to the officer in child by the hand, led her away.

He did not hurry till he entered a narrow street leading from the Champs Elysees, then walked as rapidly as the child was able. Taking her to the room he had hired, he shaved off his beard, then put on the baker's costume, tied the handkerchief about his neck, dressed the little girl in boy's clothes and cut off her long hair. Then, putting the receptacle filled with the bread on his head and taking the child by the hand, he went downstairs and out on to the street.

Meanwhile, a new batch of prisoners were brought to the courtroom to be condemned by Judge de Bouvier. The judge did not appear, but those in charge of the prisoners, thinking that he had been belated, waited for him. When an hour had passed without his coming, a messenger was sent to his lodging. He was not there. An announcement of the fact that the judge was not at court and could not be found was made to Robespierre. At once notification was given to all in sympathy with the revolution to look out for the missing judge and arrest him if found. An hour later word reached Robespierre that the missing judge had taken away Louise de Chapporal from the guillotine. The manager of the revolution was now certain that De Bouvier had disobeyed his order and had taken to flight. But he must pass the city barricades, and orders were given to the gatekeepers to look out for a man and a little girl.

De Bouvier's object was to head for the coast and escape to England.

When he reached the barricade, the soldier of the gate was about to pass him when a man darted up on horseback with Robespierre's order. The fugitive was refused a passage till he could be investigated.

"Investigated!" cried De Bouvier. "I have no time. I must carry this bread to my customers living outside the barricade."

"But I am ordered to stop Judge de Bouvier," replied the sentinel, "and a little girl."

De Bouvier laughed. "Do I look like a judge? And you are told to stop a girl, not a boy."

The sentry called a sergeant, who looked at the two wayfarers and consulted the order. For a moment the man and the child were between life and death. Fate threw the die, and life won.

"Go on," said the sergeant. "There's no need to keep persons from their bread."

The barricade once passed, De Bouvier found himself on the road leading toward Calais. But he had not gone far before he took to the woods for the day, and on reaching another road he changed his direction, resolving to head for the Belgian frontier. He peddled bread along his route, and when he had sold one lot he bought another. Couriers were sent out notifying the revolutionists on this route, the one usually taken by emigres, to stop any young man with or without a little girl who answered the description of the missing judge. De Bouvier's two precautions threw those who were looking for him off his track. They did not know he was disguised as a baker nor that the child with him was a girl. Besides, the fugitives appeared to be commoners and not aristocrats, as was given out.

After several narrow escapes De Bouvier, with his charge, crossed the border into a country where he was safe. He went to Belgium, where he turned Louise over to some emigre ladies, who on hearing her sad story agreed to care for her. Then he went to sleep, happy that if he had been obliged to condemn certain persons to death he had been able to save a child and had escaped with his own life.

When Napoleon was made First Consul De Bouvier returned to Paris. He entered the army and became a colonel. Louise de Chapporal did not return to France till the restoration of the Bourbons after the final fall of Napoleon. She was then a woman and began to hunt for the man who had saved her from the guillotine. Through those to whom he had committed her in Belgium she learned his name and sent him word that a lady wished him to call upon her. He did so and was informed that she was Louise de Chapporal.

Mademoiselle or, rather, the Countess de Chapporal regained her estates through the king and was very rich. She gave herself and her fortune to the man who had during those frightful days risked his own life to save hers.

ELECTRIFIED CELLULOID.

Pulling a Couple of Strips Between the Fingers Changes Them.

If you will take two thin lengths of celluloid, put them in contact and then suddenly and rapidly pull them between your fingers you will observe they both have become electrified—not only on their outside surfaces, where the friction of your fingers caused a negative electrification, but also on the inner surface of the celluloid.

The strange part about this is that one of the inner surfaces of the piece is positively charged and the other one is negatively charged. If one of them is slightly curved during the friction the convex one will be positively charged and the concave sided one will be negatively charged.

It seems, therefore, to depend upon whether the surface is concave or whether it is convex—depressed or extended—to produce negative or positive electricity. Even the most minute, imperceptible curvature is sufficient to give the expected result. It also is impossible to pull the strips of celluloid through the fingers without producing such strong electrification that one piece will support the other.

Even the vapor pressure of liquids is stronger at the convex surface than at the concave. If electrons are considered as particles of gas dissolved in solids—as they once were—or as negative electricity, there will be a greater tendency for the electrons to escape from the convex side, which therefore will be left positively charged. This also is in perfect accord with the latest researches upon electrons.

Interesting experiments can be made by following the above directions. Celluloid has peculiar properties for tests. New York Press.

Railway Trains In England.

I can prove in a moment by any traveler that our trains are infinitely more luxurious than the trains in England. But still, and notwithstanding, I say the English railway service is better. Why? Because it's more human; it's more considerate. You aren't driven and urged to step lively and called at in loud, harsh voices and made to feel that you are being tolerated aboard something that was never made for you at all, but for the employees of the company. In England the trains are run for the people, not the people for the trains.—From Theodore Dreiser's "A Traveler at Forty."

Worse Yet.

"He's a frightful bore, your baron. Here he's been buzzing the whole evening long about Kant and Schopenhauer."

"You have my sympathy. For my part I detest philosophical discussions."

"Philosophical discussions, indeed! Kant and Schopenhauer are the names of the baron's two horses."—New York Post.

Breaking Him In.

"Yes," sternly answered the unscrupulous dealer. "Always remember that our assets are your liabilities."—Baltimore American.

A Complicated Case.

"Growcher always looks worried. Why doesn't he think of something pleasant?"

"Well, he has himself kind of whipsawed. The only thing he thinks of with pleasure is money. And he can't think of money without worrying."—Washington Star.

What's the Use?

"These public drinking cups are dangerous."

"I tried carrying a private cup for awhile, but it was no improvement."

"Why not?"

"I had to lend it to so many people."—San Francisco Chronicle.

THE KAISER'S TREAT.

What an Invitation to His "Bier-abend" Really Means.

Kaiser Wilhelm occasionally gives a "bier-abend," an evening of informal entertainment, when beer is the only quencher of thirst. But an invitation to the kaiser's "bier-abend" is paramount to a royal command to "bring your check book!" It is the emperor's way of raising money. All the money for the recently opened Kaiser Wilhelm Research institute is supposed to have been raised in this way. A certain well known merchant prince had won the royal favor and was invited to drink beer at the palace. He found a group of wealthy persons around the table.

The emperor explained what he wanted and allowed the newcomer to fill out the first check. He began with $1,250, and the slip was carried around the head of the table for approbation. The kaiser tore it to pieces. "If you start with that sum they will only be paying $12.50 at the end," he said. So the merchant prince wrote out a check for $75,000.

This was approved, and the money the emperor wished for his pet charity was raised. Soon after the merchant prince received another invitation to drink beer at the palace. This time some one else had to write out the first check, but it cost him a good sum, anyway.

Quite soon another invitation came, and the merchant prince was beginning to feel that his hobnobbing with royalty was getting to be too expensive a luxury. But an invitation from a king is as binding as a summons, so he went and found an anxious group of charity supporters sitting around the table. The kaiser had not come, and the atmosphere was not exactly jovial. The emperor entered, beaming. "Good evening, gentlemen!" he said enthusiastically. "Tonight you will not have to pay for your beer!"—Raymond E. Swing in Chicago News.

PLANNING A NEW PARIS.

M. Delanney's Big Scheme For Improving the French Capital.

Since Baron Haussmann remodeled Paris in the days of Napoleon III. at a cost of $500,000,000 no such stupendous alterations as M. Marcel Delanney proposes have been considered for the French metropolis.

M. Delanney is prefect of the Seine. His scheme involves the widening of many streets, the destruction of unsightly shanties and the erection in their places of model houses to be paid for in part out of $40,000,000 already appropriated for this purpose by the municipal council, the limiting of the height of buildings to the width of the street on which they are situated and the laying out of forty-seven additional public gardens, making a total of 128 of these institutions, or more than London has.

"Le Grand Paris," as Delanney calls his proposal, also involves the development of the suburbs, where there will be a sudden acquisition of space after the fortifications have been destroyed. A large appropriation has already been made to wipe out these fortifications, which now serve only to provide lairs for the riffraff of Paris, but the prefect of the Seine wants a further $100,000,000 to construct parks and flower beds where the old defenses now are. He would convert the open spaces about the city and the hills of the Seine, Marne and Oise rivers into huge gardens connected by a promenade about twenty-five miles in length.

At present there are nearly 200 inhabitants to the acre in Paris, twice as many as in London. The construction of "Le Grand Paris" would give the city nearly six times as much territory as it has at present, reducing this congestion and thereby lowering rents and the cost of living.—Outlook.

Makes Gloves X Ray Proof.

M. Menard, chief of the radiographic and electrotherapeutic department of Cochin hospital, Paris, and M. Cousin, chief pharmacist of the same hospital, have succeeded in impregnating rubber with the salts of heavy metals, such as lead, in quantity great enough to make the rubber impervious to X rays. With the impregnated rubber they have made gloves which will prevent the hands of operators from being burned while administering the X rays.

Canal Zone Game.

As Gatun lake is the only large body of water in the canal zone it is expected that it will attract many birds on migratory journeys as well as become a habitation for native species. Along the Chagres river there is an abundance of small animals, and if the isthmian commission persists in its purpose to protect the game the country along the water course and the lake may become a considerable reservation.—Christian Science Monitor.

In 1881 he became professor of commercial and maritime law in Laval and was batonnier general of the Quebec Bar in 1900. In 1906 he declined the Superior Court judgeship, and two years later was appointed puisine judge of the King's Bench of Quebec. From 1897 to 1905 he was Attorney-General and Speaker of the Legislative Council. While in political life he was a strict autonomist in Quebec affairs.

Monarch of Arran.

One of the most interesting of little kingdoms, within other kingdoms is an island off the coast of Scotland, not always suspected of having a monarch of its own.

Arran, this interesting island kingdom, is ruled over by a lady, the beautiful marchioness of Graham, wife of the eldest son and heir of the Duke of Montrose. It was as Lady Mary Hamilton that the marchioness inherited this little monarchy from the late Duke of Hamilton, whose only child she was. As sole owner of this sea-girt kingdom, the marchioness rules wisely and well over loyal subjects, numbering in all nearly 5,000. The island, which is some 19 miles long and 10 1-2 broad, with an area of 168 square miles, has had a romantic history.

Along the cliffs of the south coast there are several large caverns, one being known as the King's cave. Here Robert the Bruce is said to have hidden himself for some time, while it was from Brodick bay that Bruce sailed to Carrick on his expedition for the recovery of the crown. There are many interesting ruins, too, such as Lochranza, once the residence of the Scots kings. Then there are cairns, standing stones and stone circles.

Gun-Runners Busy.

British Indian troops have just left Bombay for the Persian Gulf. From all accounts, the gun-runners in the Gulf are once more at their game, and they seem to have entered the field with greater zest than in the past. What is more alarming is the wide range of action of the smugglers. The whole of the Gulf littoral now seems to have become the hunting-field of the smugglers. In spite of the preventive measures adopted by the Sultan of Muscat, the smuggling of arms continues merrily and there seems no immediate prospect of its coming to an end. The Royal Indian Marine ships in the Gulf are fully occupied in blockading the arms traffic, and the mixed population of Arabs and Persians along the Gulf now openly resents interference on the part of Britain with what they regard as trade. Only the other day, a British ship was looted by the Arabs on the Tigris and the Mohammedan captain of the ship killed. If the Arabs and the Persians continue in as aggressive a mood as at present, there will be no other alternative left for Great Britain but to increase the number of her troops in places on the Gulf.

"Not better than the best, but better than the rest"

Pacific Great Eastern Bill

In a speech made by the Premier, in moving the second reading of the Pacific Great Eastern Bill, regarding the additional guarantee to be provided for the first section of the road between North Vancouver and Fort George. He said:

Had I been in a position two years ago to anticipate the increased cost of construction as well as the money stringency, I might have been able to advise Parliament better with regard to the guarantee first arranged. Failing that, however, and counting upon a continuance of normal conditions, the bill as enacted two years ago was the best under the circumstances the Provincial Government could submit.

There was no intention on the part of the Province to injure any legitimate investments made in railway construction in this portion of the country, but there was always the determination on the part of the Government that from the moment we might attack the enterprise we should lose no time and spare no effort in pressing on with it in a businesslike way, so that within a reasonable period of time we would be able to go to the people of British Columbia with some tangible results.

No time has been lost. The various complications have been fairly dealt with. In respect to the project of the Howe Sound & Pemberton Meadows Railway Syndicate we were face to face with the strong protest of these people against any trespass on the part of the Pacific Great Eastern corporation on the territory which they regard as their own. So that their investment might be protected and so that the Pacific Great Eastern might be induced to make use of the trackage already provided, the company, in conference with all the interests involved, succeeded in making arrangements which entitled the new company to take over the old trackage and make it part and parcel of their system.

At the present time there are 4,000 nem engaged in the work of construction along this line, distributed for the most part between Squamish and Clinton. Surveys for the entire line to Fort George have been completed and everything is in readiness for the letting of contracts between Clinton and Fort George.

The whole of this mileage is accessible from tide water and it is quite feasible to arrange for the distribution of gangs of workmen throughout its entire length, and in doing so to practically guarantee that by the end of the year, or at all events early next spring, the entire section will be completed and we can count upon having a continuous grade from North Vancouver right through to the city of Fort George.

I would direct the attention of the House to the necessity for early action in regard to the construction of the bridge at the Second Narrows. The obligations of the Pacific Great Eastern impose upon the company a direct connection with the city of Vancouver, and it is generally admitted that the route must cross Burrard Inlet at the Second Narrows. I regret to have to report that, while the Provincial Government has provided a subvention of $400,000, and while the Federal Government has made an estimate of $350,000, and while large municipal subventions of the city of Vancouver and neighbouring municipalities have also been arranged, to date practically nothing beyond the drawing of the plans and the calling for tenders has been accomplished.

Whats the matter with our ball players? There was a time when Cumberland could boast of having some of the very best. If death had not taken from us the moving spirit in all athletic sports, the late Wilt Clinton, it would be different. The boys appear to have lost heart and interest in sports since his death? We would like to see a leader with some of Wilt's spirit and disposition again in our midst. We are badly in need of such a one.
