These are lean times, candidates agree

By IAN CAMERON

MURRAYVILLE - It was never an easy job to hold public office. But then, it wasn't meant to be. If you think you are good enough to look after the affairs of your fellow man, you better be able to prove it.

What makes a politician run? Ambition? Greed? Altruism? Or is he or she simply a masochist or perhaps an overt exhibitionist? It is hard to say. There are probably these many reasons and then some.

During the best of times a multitude of candidates usually step forward whenever an election is called. But it is when times are tough that the voters really get to separate the men from the boys (and the determined ladies from the more indecisive maidens).

Free-wheeling spending has finally caught up with our society and the astute politician (and would-be politician) today knows the tune he or she is expected to play. Restraint is the refrain.

Automatically this weeds out the men and women who get their kicks from placing themselves in the public limelight during periods of boom when the job of a politician is a relatively easy one. When it is a time of cocktail parties, ribbon cuttings, and minor public glory.

Today public affairs are certainly more difficult to manage.

Therefore fewer people want the job.

You could probably say that political candidates in 1982 are either more dedicated or - simply fools. Let's hope for the former to be the case.

Elections '82 are certainly less exciting than previous years, but at the same time perhaps more interesting. They should definitely not be discarded as unimportant by the voters.

In Langley district the ratepayers will go to the polls next Saturday, November 20, to select three aldermen. In Matsqui there are no elections this year. And two seats on the Langley school board have already been filled - by acclamation.

But back to the Langley municipal elections. Five candidates are seeking the three vacant positions, so there will obviously be two losers when the battle is over at the time of the closing of the polls.

The five, although from different backgrounds and political persuasions, all agree that fiscal responsibility in government is of utmost concern. How could they build on any other platform in 1982?

Of the five hopefuls only one, Elford Nundal, is an incumbent council member. The others are Dave Allison, Dave Bahr, Len Fowler, and John Rennie.

Fowler and Rennie have chosen to throw their fortunes in with Nundal in his bid for re-election. Allison and Bahr are going it on their own. Three are traditional "right wingers," two lean towards the political left.

Nundal is a quiet-spoken man with a strong aversion against the growth of bureaucracy and government involvement in more than the basic necessities of civic life. He is a true free enterpriser, a man who has retired from his veterinary practice after 40 years in the profession, and has never been defeated in an election.

His two running mates are both businessmen-farmers. Fowler has been a council appointee to the district's parks and recreation commission for the past five years and is presently holding the position of chairman of this board. Rennie was comptroller of the Pacific National Exhibition for 19 years and its general manager for eight. He thinks the present council has done well when it comes to financial responsibility, and he would like to see the eventual amalgamation of the two Langleys. Rennie farms near Fort Langley.

Bahr does not agree with Rennie's assessment of the Langley district council's track record. He thinks individual members waste too much time arguing amongst themselves, and that this reflects in disorganized and wasteful management. He is working for the provincial government as director of corrections, and has already made a foray into civic politics, having served as a school trustee and chairman of the board until his defeat last year.

Allison is a newcomer to active politics. He is a resident and businessman of Aldergrove, a New Democrat who runs his own trucking business. he believes there is a need for someone on council to speak up for Aldergrove. He also believes the Gloucester development should go ahead, but in a properly planned manner.

These five men will be asking for your vote on November 20. Perhaps it would be worth your while to go to the all candidates meeting on Thursday, Nov. 18, to hear what they have to say.

In times when you have to be concerned about your own dollars, you should also be concerned how your elected officials plan to spend them.

It would be worth your while.

Meet your hopefuls

ALDERGROVE - An all candidates meeting featuring five speakers seeking council seats in the November 20 civic elections in Langley will be held next Thursday, November 18 in the Elks hall here.

Meeting starts at 7:30 p.m. and the public is encouraged to attend.

All-candidates meeting is sponsored by the local chamber of commerce and will be chaired by Jim Sydor.

Coffee will be served.

Many more candidates in Langley city

LANGLEY CITY - Civic elections here have managed to attract more candidates this year than the neighboring district of Langley.

Contesting the mayor's seat are two incumbent aldermen, Dan Hansen and Reg Easingwood. Present mayor Aubrey Searle has decided to retire from city politics.

Meanwhile, candidates seeking the six vacant aldermanic seats include incumbent Lorraine Murchison, Mike Omelaniec, Andy Milne and former Ald. Merv Hunter. Also newcomers to civic politics Jo-Anne Whyte, John Dance, George Mermet, Tony Hargrave, and Nigel Powell.

Ferguson to fight

ABBOTSFORD - George Ferguson is getting a run for his money in this year's civic elections here.

Ferguson, a long-time mayor, is being challenged by Bernard Gerestein.

Ferguson is a dairy farmer, Gerestein a probation officer.

Surrey's pushing for divorce, says Blair

MURRAYVILLE - Surrey municipal council has been "supporting divorce" from the Fraser Valley regional library system, Mayor Bill Blair said this week.

Next week residents of Surrey will be voting in a council-initiated referendum on whether the district should remain a member of the FVRL.

Langley district councilors are not happy with the possibility of Surrey leaving.

Blair recently suggested that his council should inform the Surrey electorate on "the other side of the story." But apart from condemning the move within the four walls of their own council chambers, they have done nothing to sway the Surrey voters.

But Surrey's own councilors apparently have.

And that is too bad, said Blair, because "a lot of voters depend on their council to give them good, sound, logical, honest advise."

Several Langley council members have expressed the fear that if Surrey leaves, it will mean the end of the Valley library system. Director Jim Craven has done his best to try and dispel this fear. Library has prospered during the past year and will continue to do so, with or without Surrey, he says.

Councilors here have sworn that if Surrey should decide to opt out of system, in favor of establishing their own library system, they will walk away from FVRL without any assets at all. Surrey officials think they will keep half of the books presently circulated in their branch libraries, but Langley officials will not allow this to happen.

"It might not happen at all," library board representative Ald. Muriel Arnason said this week.

Councilors will know for sure when the polls close on the evening of November 20.

Application backed

MURRAYVILLE - Council here will support Langley's Community Services in an application to the human resources ministry's community grants division.

Primary purpose of the Volunteer Bureau, the parent group of LCS, is to recruit and place volunteers in various organizations relating to family services and health associations, according to executive director Louise Tomkulak.

WHAT IS COUNCIL'S CHOICE?

Industry or welfare?

MURRAYVILLE - There are thousands of self-employed people in Langley who make a living manufacturing or repairing a variety of items in their houses or in their workshops, councilors here were told Monday afternoon.

Council members were warned that if they make it impossible for these small entrepreneurs to operate, then society could be faced with a large number of people on the welfare rolls.

As an example, Garry Jackson told aldermen that "hundreds of small business people in Langley repair vehicles at home." If councilors were to legislate more restrictions on these people, Jackson said, then were they suggesting that they would rather see them apply for welfare?

Jackson said he was very concerned about recently proposed bylaws which would restrict the number and types of vehicles that may be parked on any private property in Langley district.

A bylaw to prevent truckers from parking their tractor-trailers at home overnight "is sneaking up on people who don't know what is happening to them," he said.

Jackson said he was not a trucker himself, that he simply had the economic survival of his neighbors at heart.

"So you're really a good samaritan then?" suggested Mayor Bill Blair.

Aldermen said council was really "trying to get a handle on the truck problem" and that because of similar restrictions in other lower mainland communities "they all come here, and how many more can we tolerate?"

"I guess (parking of trucks) is really in line with the kind of industry we are trying to bring to Langley," said Blair. And he further admitted that "we haven't really had too many complaints."

Only the odd case of a refrigeration truck keeping neighbors awake, or the noise of a diesel engine being fired at four o'clock in the morning, he said.

"Problem is very spotty," said a woman in the visitors gallery.

"(Bylaw) will penalize a lot of people," said Jackson. "A little more homework would be in order."

Ald. Elford Nundal suggested that perhaps truckers could police their own and thereby avoid complaints about visual and noise pollution from non-truckers.

Councilors referred the draft bylaw back for further deliberation.

Mother to honor war dead

OTTAWA - Janet Fraser of Debert, Nova Scotia, has been chosen as the Silver Cross Mother attending the Remembrance Day ceremony at the national war memorial here. During the ceremony, she will lay a wreath on behalf of Canadian motherhood. Fraser is 86 years old.

Her son flight sergeant, George William Fraser, air gunner in the RCAF, was reported missing over Germany in August 1943. He was 27 years old. Her son, private John Robert Fraser, RCR (Black Watch) was killed in action in October 1944. He was 21 years old. Her daughter, Mildred Louise Fraser, was a major in the Canadian armed forces. Her husband, the late John Hill Fraser, was a veteran of world war I.

Fraser will be brought to Ottawa as a guest of the Royal Canadian Legion.

Canadian productivity low

OTTAWA - Canadian productivity is the worst in the western world, says the chief economist for the Paris-based Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development.

Sylvia Ostry says the magnitude of the problem is underlined by new statistics compiled by the organization that show an increase in Canadian labor costs of 15.5 percent since 1972, compared with less than two percent in the previous decade.

Ostry last week told the founding conference of the CanadaCouncil on Working Life that Canadian wages are well above average for organization members and there has been a sharper slowdown in productivity in this country.

A drastic reduction in the rate of wage increases and a sharp improvement in productivity is needed to encourage new investment and keep profits from being further reduced, said Ostry, former chairman of the Economic Council of Canada.

She said bankruptcies in every country in the organization are at post-war record levels and the debt position of many Third World countries is serious.

The recent improvement in real income and slowdown in inflation felt in most OECD countries because of a drop in oil and commodity prices may not last, she said, because many commodity products are unsuitably low compared with the cost of production.

Ostry said the problems Canada must tackle include the size and composition of government spending, which she said have tilted national output to consumption and away from investment.

Taxes need to be shifted away from investment and employment to consumption, she said.

The pressure on profits "from too-high real wages and other costs" must also be relieved.

Otter residents want better water

MURRAYVILLE - Councilors here voted Monday afternoon to "take the necessary action" to assist homeowners in the Otter Road area who are experiencing trouble with their privately owned domestic water system.

A petition was brought to council by Lorraine Lemoine who explained that the owners of the system "don't have the money to upgrade it."

As a result, she said, it is badly in need of repairs and replacement of the water lines. Pressure on the lines is normally way down, Lemoine said, and amohg the 100 or so households who receive their water from the system, many have installed holding tanks on which they can draw when supply is low. Filling up these reservoirs aggravates the situation, she said, as it further lowers the pressure on the lines.

Councilors did not seem to know what "necessary action" would mean, but decided to leave this up to technical planning staff to decide.

They did, however, suggest to Lemoine that the users could form their own co-op to take over operation of the water system. Or, if they would rather become a part of the utilities area, they should prepare themseleves to pay user fees and frontage levies.

Farmworkers need protection

VANCOUVER - Badly needed safeguards for British Columbia farmworkers exposed to pesticides have been recommended by the British Columbia Medical Association.

A brief prepared for the Workers' Compensation Board lists 12 recommendations B.C. doctors want action on when farmworkers come under WCB regulations next April.

"We have seen recent evidence of the hazards that workers with little or no knowledge can experience when exposed to pesticides," said Dr. Eric Young of Surrey, chairman of the BCMA's environmental heath committee.

"Workers should be educated and protected through signs, rules for entry and re-entry into fields after spraying, change rooms, showers and special warnings for high risk persons, such as pregnant women and children," Young said.

The brief also calls for regular selective monitoring of the environment and work force, establishment of maximum exposure levels and examination of California's provisions for emergency medical care and medical supervision of farmworkers.

Census shows new Canadian rural revival

Small is beautiful, or so it seems, for more and more Canadians are making the switch from big-city life to the nation's small towns and rural areas. Whether it is a reflection of back-to-the-land, an attempt to escape the big-city population and pressures, or simply a function of urban spillover into the countryside, Canada is in the midst of a rural renaissance.

In fact, the 1970s were the first decade in Canada's history to record a faster growth rate for rural areas than for urban areas. The most recent figures from the 1981 census show that since 1976 the rural population has grown by 8.9 percent -- almost double the urban growth rate of 5 percent. Of Canada's provinces and territories only four recorded greater population growth in urban areas than in rural areas -- Alberta, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and the Yukon.

Canada's non-urban population now numbers some six million -- 800,000 more than a decade ago -- and it has meant big changes for Canada's small towns. Urbanites may slip away from the nation's cities unnoticed, but their arrival in a small town can quickly change the social landscape, the local market place and the level of demand for municipal services.

Understanding the nature and scope of changes on the local scene is vital for local businesses, citizens' groups and public officials. Statistics Canada has recently released a series of profile publications for every municipality -- urban and rural. These include 1981 census information on the population by age and sex, marital status, household and family size, dwellings and language.

Asked to comment on the value of these profiles, James Knight, executive director of the Federation of Canadian Municipalities, said that "without this information municipal officials could be seriously hampered in planning and delivering the municipal services expected by most Canadians ranging from choosing the best site and size of senior citizens' facilities, day care centres and fire and police stations, to mapping out transit routes, zoning and industrial parks."

Knight said that these most recent dates showing a renaissance in rural areas will be invaluable to municipal officials in towns and villages across Canada who might be faced with a sudden influx of former city dwellers used to big-city services and conveniences. To meet their needs without disrupting local finances, officials must have access to detailed information which only census data can provide."

Employees support United Way drive

VANCOUVER - When economic times are difficult people are more likely to help those in need.

Campaign results coming into United Way from employee groups around the lower mainland are showing dramatic increases.

Bank of B.C. employees have pledged $44,800, 73 percent more than last year.

More than 97 percent of Woodwards' employees in two metropolitan outlets have given to United Way.

Odeon Theatre employees at head office contributed the equivalent of two days' pay. United Way is asking for 'one day's pay'.

Donations by 102 employees of Wright Engineers are up by 77 percent over last year.

Chairman Gordon MacFarlane reports that campaign results are now at $5,097,543, about 60 percent of the $8.6-million goal to help fund 84 human care agencies.

"This year's campaign will be successfully completed by November 15," he said.

Unemployment has reached depression levels

By BOB WENMAN, MP

I was very busy on my last trip to the riding before the House of Commons resumed sitting, trying to see and assist as many people as possible before returning to Ottawa. Many people dropped by the motor home to share their concerns about the government's continued mismanagement of our economy.

I was able to help some people receive unemployment insurance that was rightfully theirs, but held up in the crush that is occuring at the unemployment office. With record unemployment delays do occur, and an active MP can help.

Not all meetings in the riding are hard formal problems. I was fortunate last time to get to meet some constituents in the relaxed informal atmosphere of small coffee parties. My thanks to Carol Boan and D. Baker who hosted the parties. I hope this neighborly idea continues with such great success. If you are interested in hosting or attending a coffee party, please call my constituency secretary at 530-1424.

Parliament resumed on October 28 with Canadians looking for relief from the highest unemployment rate since the Great Depression. With winter approaching the UIC benefits nearly run out for many, it was hoped that finally the Trudeau government would awake and do something concrete to aid those it had caused such hardship to fall on.

Instead of any lasting steps to create jobs, however, we are to have another bandaid solution. The minister of finance claims the government will create 60,000 riew jobs at a cost of $1.3-billion. Perhaps a good question is, "How many jobs will not be created and how many jobs will be lost by the actions of this self-same government?"

By draining potential job creating credit from the money market in order to orchestrate large corporate bail-outs, how many people will be forced to go on welfare or other social assistance programs? One billion dollars for Dome Petroleum, 130 million for Consolidated Computers, 400 million for Canadair and millions more for Massey-Ferguson and Chrysler, all taken from credit markets that millions of Canadians and thousands of small businesses need access to just to stay economically alive.

The week of October 24 to 30 was small business week in Langley and Surrey and perhaps a fitting occasion to reflect on the fact that small business is the backbone on which our economy is built. It is small business that has a strong potential to bring this country out of these economic hard times.

The small business operators of Canada do not want a handout. All they want is a fair chance. Instead of that chance, the federal government is virtually closing the doors on businesses that cannot afford to pay UIC premiums which are about to increase by 40 percent. Instead of that chance, small business finds itself without the lines of credit it needs, eaten up by government bail-outs.

On October 29, I questioned the minister of finance in the House of Commons and asked what he intends to do to ensure that millions of individual Canadians and thousands of small businesses are quaranteed access to credit, commensurate with their assets, so that they can invest and spend in the Canadian economy and create real, new and lasting jobs.

Many of us watched the prime minister's "grave-side chat", rhetoric that cost the Canadian taxpayer at least $60,000. He told bankers and lending institutions to "take a chance on a Canadian". It is a shame that the government has gotten to the point where it has gone beyond the point where it not only doesn't listen to the Canadian people, but not even to its own words.

I will continue to question the new finance minister and challenge the government as it neglects the small business person for the sake of bailing out large corporations. There are still far too many small businesses in Fraser Valley West hoping and waiting for the chance to expand, to build to create real new and solid jobs.

Public school system has come a long way

VICTORIA - The year was 1836. The Hudson's Bay Company had outposts at such widely separated places as Fort St. James in the north and Fort Langley in the south. In between lay Fort George and Fort Kamloops.

Even though home and civilization were often an ocean and a continent apart, the company demonstrated commendable interest in the children of its fur traders and staff members for in that year it issued a dictate urging parents to "devote part of their leisure hours to teach children their A B C's and catechism, together with such further elementary instruction as time and circumstances permit." This resolution, recorded in historical documents, represents the first known concern for education in the wilderness that would become Canada's most westerly province 35 years later.

B.C's first formal school opened in 1849 when the Hudson's Bay Company posted chaplain-schoolmaster Rev. Robert Staines to the small trading community that would later be Victoria. But because of the sparse population and vast geographic distances, education on Canada's west coast received only perfunctory attention until the passage of An act respecting public schools in 1872. This was the forerunner of the prsent day School act which contains the laws and provisions governing public education.

Although education in the 20th century bears little resemblance to the system in place 110 years ago, history reveals that some areas seem remarkably familiar. For example, John Jessop, B.C.'s first superintendent of education (1875-76), addressed pupil-teacher ratio and teacher entitlement by introducing a salary scale for teachers based on average attendance (10-20 pupils, $50 per month; 40-50 pupils, $80 per month). And he made provision for an assistant teacher when average attendance exceeded 50 pupils.

Education finance was contentious then as well. Jessop himself led a teacher protest against the Victoria school board over the issue of salaries. And government-school board cost sharing was first introduced in the late 1860s when government grants to boards of $500 per teacher had to be matched by a local tax levy.

In other areas change is more marked:

- The 534 students enrolled in B.C. schools in 1872 swelled to 503,000 in 1982.
- The number of teachers in B.C. grew from 16 in 1872 to 29,000 in 1982.
- There were only 14 schools in 1872 while there are about 1,600 now.
- The number of school districts has fluctuated greatly; from a high of more than 800 districts in B.C. in 1938, to a decline to 649 in 1944 and then to the current 75 districts following a reorganization in 1944.
- In 1872 public education cost $432,000 to administer. The total of school district operating budgets in 1982 was about $1.5 billion.

May we quote you on that?

MURRAYVILLE - "Usually the press quotes what you don't want them to quote," a delegate to council said Monday afternoon.

"Yes, we find that too," smiled Mayor Bill Blair.

Bob Begusich, of 20244 - 73A Avenue, came to complain to council on two counts, that of waterline installation near his home and of commercial activity at a neighbor's residence. As for the first, he berated council to spend his tax dollars more wisely and to fire municipal engineers, and as for the second he said he did" not want to make trouble for the Van Mooks (the neighbors), since the man of the family had recently died.

Begusich also offered that "there is no such thing as a good man...only when you are dead are you good."

With a stern look at the press box, Begusich admonished the journalists present to quote his exact words.

Seniors take first place

OTTER Poppy school's second annual invitational debating tournament was held here on Saturday, November 6. Over Twenty junior and senior teams from all over the Fraser Valley were in attendance.

The Poppy senior debating team of Peter Huang and Cheryl Dumaresa placed first overall in the senior category. Individually, Peter Huang placed second by one point to the Centennial debater, Peter Smode. Cheryl Dumaresa placed third.

This is not the first time that the two have been successful. Last year, they placed first in the provincial junior Hammarskjold debating tournament. Cheryl also took first place in last year's Poppy invitational tournament while Peter placed first in the Viking invitational team.

The next debate for the Poppy team will take place in Burnaby early next month where Poppy has already taken first place in the junior category for the last two consecutive years. They now intend to finish their collection of trophies with the first place prize for the senior category at this next debate.

Douglas and Begbie return to old Fort

FORT LANGLEY - National historic park here, on November 19 will be the setting for the re-enactment of one of the most important episodes in our provincial history. It was on this date in 1858 that the proclamation was read at the Fort, establishing British Columbia as a crown colony.

Students from Fort Langley junior secondary school, under the direction of Kerry Querins, will act in the role of James Douglas and Matthew Begbie, the two principal participants on that memorable day.

Program will commence at 11 a.m. when Douglas and Begbie will enter the Fort escorted by cadets of the Royal Canadian engineers. They will be wearing the uniforms of 1858 symbolizing the guard of honor mounted by the Royal Engineers on that day. A salute will be fired by the gun crew of the Richmond Centennial Raft Association to welcome Douglas into the Fort.

In accordance with the historic reports of that time, James Douglas will read the Queen's commission which appointed Matthew Begbie as judge of the colony and swear him into office. The newly appointed judge will then read the Queen's commission that appointed James Douglas as B.C.'s first governor.

After the presentation of the commissions and swearing in to office ceremonies are completed, the governor will then read a portion of the lengthy proclamation that established the foundations of the province.

In the afternoon, at 3 p.m., in keeping with tradition, the provincial cabinet will convene their annual meeting in the Big House at the old Fort.

Upon completion of the cabinet meeting they will attend a Douglas Day reception and dinner at the Langley civic center. Senator Ray Perreault, federal minister of fitness and amateur sport will be the guest speaker.

There will be free admission to the park on this day.

For their tomorrow, we gave our today

By ANTHONY HAWKINS

Of all the things that man finds most abhorrent, one must surely be war. As the last leaves begin to be torn from the trees by the first winter gale, as the bag of Halloween winnings is finally emptied, and as thoughts almost reluctantly turn to Christmas, we find the day of Remembrance is here once again.

The eulogies and prayers have been intoned, the guns fired, the trumpet's last note has ceased and we can forget again in the bustle of our daily lives that people really died for something that they somehow believed in.

It is easy to appreciate and laud the gallantry of someone hurling themselves into the fire or torrent to save the life of another but it is particularly hard for the young to understand that people went to war basically because they considered it was something that had to be done.

It is true, but only partly so, that our volunteers went inspired perhaps by the sounds of martial music and the promise of a change along with some excitement and possibly some good times. But those cynics who opine that this was the only reason are very wrong to dismiss the presence of any higher minded motives and this is all too easy to do if one had never been closer to personal danger than crossing the street.

"What was it really like in the war?," so many ask. There was, to be certain, an inherent, albeit irrational, sense of immortality that caused one to believe that if told that only one man in the unit was to survive the next attack every man's thoughts would have been the same. "I'll be awfully lonely without the rest."

But for all the months and years of boredom; for all the emptiness in the stomach before action and for all the stark horror of the unanswered question, "My God, what am I doing here?" those who did go to war, when weighed in the balance, were not found wanting.

Those whose coarser sense is blurred may decry their labors as foolishness and maunder on the madness of war from the comfort of their armchairs. However, they should remember that our veterans nevertheless did what they thought they had to do and despite the smug neers of these self-appointed 'analysts' their glory should not be blotted out.

The battle of Kohima is reputed to have caused the heaviest casualties of the Second World War. The position was overrun by the enemy and when retaken months later the bamboo and jungle had grown up, around and through the remains of its defenders making finding and burial impossible.

The whole site was declared a cemetery and left as it was found with a simple granite cairn to commemorate those who died there.

The only words on the cairn are those of the garrison commander's last radio message which speaks for all those who did not return.

"When you go home,
tell them of us and say;
It was for their tomorrow,
that we gave our today."

Boom and bust; a lot of nonsense

By DON LOBB

This is not a forecast of doom and gloom. What I will try to do is present reality in a form that will be perhaps a little tough to swallow, but it won't make you outright gag.

The economic review for the province is complete and it contains some hard facts which might assist people in making the right tough choices.

For one thing, there isn't any real value for those of us who are employed to consider going elsewhere for a better deal. There are no better deals around, it seems.

Wage increases are expected to be limited to between 7½ and 9½ percent in the private sector, or lower if the federal Six-and-Five program takes hold.

Consumer prices are expected to rise 7.5 percent in 1983 and 5.7 in 1984. Unemployment is expected to remain at above 10 percent until 1984.

One prognosticator suggests that interest rates, declining now, will be back up to 18 percent in the second quarter of 1983.

B.C. registered the most dismal failure in the production of domestic products in Canada this year. Nova Scotia was a close second.

Predicted for B.C.? "Slumps in logging and mineral output will affect wholesale and retail trade, which will drop a stunning 10.2 percent in 1982."

On the upbeat side, the same industrial sectors are expected to make a 3.6 percent recovery next year. Not much, but a beginning.

Employer's Council of B.C. predicts a positive future for the forest products in the long term. They predict 1.6 million housing starts in the U.S. next year, along with expanding Asian lumber markets. The plywood market is expected to remain weak and pulp prices are expected to take two years to regain strength, although shorter inventories may speed the recovery process.

High inventories in the mining sector will hamper recovery, anticipated to begin late this year and early in 1983, with copper leading the way.

Our province's favorite industry, tourism, heralded as the savior of the provincial economy, proved dissapointing in 1982, with only 40 percent of the visitors coming from outside Canadian borders.

There had been a 13 percent decline in the number of farms in Canada in 1982 and with the current economics, record numbers of farming units have been declaring bankruptcy this year. The decline in 1982 may reach 17 percent.

Only in B.C. has that trend been reversed. Here they have been increasing by 8.8 percent in the same time period, although the average farming unit here is much smaller.

Prairie farms by the section boost the national average to 511.4 acres. In B.C., the average is 269 acres, although we have 25 percent of the total fruit tree acreage, 50 percent of the broccoli consumed in Canada is grown here, we raise 5.8 percent of all cattle, 2.6 percent of the hogs, 8.2 percent of sheep, 10.9 percent of horses, 9.8 percent of goats and 7.5 percent of rabbits.

And the median age of farmers in B.C. is down. There has been a 2.2 year reduction in the average age of farmers since 1971.

However, livestock inventories show a marked reduction in breeding stock and calf inventory in the west, indicating lots of beef right now, shortages down the line.

Unemployment in the Cariboo in 1982 with 100 Mile House reporting 1,400 on unemployment insurance in July and a further Weldwood layoff announced this week.

Between 1980 and 1982, UIC claims in Williams Lake climbed from 4,561 to 7,669 last year and are expected to top 9,000 by the end of this year.

Locally, UIC claims rose from about 1,350 to 1,800 this year and a handful of workers are finding jobs in the emergency programs instituted by the federal and provincial governments.

There has been some activity in the real estate markets with agents finding moderate and low priced homes moving rapidly following a decline in interest rates and housing grants combined with mortgage relief programs.

Consumer bankruptcies were up a startling 77.6 percent to 842 to June 30 this year, but the businesses forced into receivership were close behind. There were 422 bankruptcies for a percentage increase of 71.5.

The total for a one year period is estimated at 2,528, an increase of about 75 percent.

A July survey indicated that 80 percent of local businesses suffered marked declines in sales from last year, but many were going to survive because of an excellent year in 1981.

The trend? Work harder, longer hours for the same return, reduce overhead and inventory, but be prepared for higher utility bills, rents, taxes and prices at wholesale levels.

So what does all this mean? Simply, hard times are upon us and will likely be here until the end of 1983.

But what of the years beyond that? At best, I would have to say they present a tremendous challenge.

For instance! Canada must increase its forest products output by 40 percent by the year 2,000 or face a loss of its position in international markets.

The forest industry and the government will have to spend $650 million a year on forest renewal and rehabilitation of neglected lands to achieve the harvest.

An additional $55 million over the current budget will have to be spent to sustain current yields.

The federal and provincial governments are promising a joint program with the feds responsible for intensive lumber stand improvement and the province responsible for timber regeneration.

Recovery? It's time for the federal and provincial governments to put their money where their mouth is. Long-term recovery is what we want, not boom and bust cycles.

Farmers are our unsung heroes

By ROGER WORTH

Once again, Canadians have very real evidence that our farmers are among the finest in the world.

The recent Russian purchase of $1.5 billion worth of Canadian grain should drive home the point that we're extremely lucky to have farmers who are so productive. In fact, they're the unsung heroes of the so-called war against inflation.

Consider what's happening. The Russians have a great deal of land that is similar to the acreage farmed by Canadians. The weather and climate in the growing areas is about the same. Yet continually, the Russians are forced to buy our wheat because they can't produce enough themselves, even for the home market.

Effectively, if the Russians didn't import grain, they'd be in desperate straits, or at least have their already low standard of food intake pruned. It's not a matter of price, it's a matter of whether or not the product is available.

In Canada, wheat is available, and at realistic prices.

While it may be difficult for the Canadian housewife (or househusband) to understand what a great deal he or she is getting when they line up at the check-out counter, at least the products are available.

Complaints about the high costs of various products are debated; yet we all tend to miss the point.

In Britain, families spend about 30 percent of disposable income on food. In West Germany, it's 33 percent. And in Japan, food costs are a whopping 40 percent of disposable income.

In Canada, on the other hand, we spend little more than 22 percent of disposable income on food.

The fact is, Canadian farmers, without much hullabaloo, are generally selling their products at bargain basement prices, which is the major reason we don't really understand what a deal we're getting.

Beset by high interest rates, escalating costs and low prices, it's remarkable that our agriculture community is able to compete in world markets.

Somehow, Canadian consumers have turned to downgrading farmers the minute they increase prices, no matter how little.

Perhaps it's time city dwellers understood that, unlike Russian consumers, they are able to buy what they want, and at prices that are among the cheapest in the world. Our farmers deserve credit for keeping things that way.

After the fall

By STEPHEN KAWAMOTO

Under pressure from Ottawa, premier Bennett gave us his "fireside chat" earlier this year. At the time we were bogged down by the recession, by the production depression. And we still are.

Inflation is eating money out of everyone's pockets. Big business responded to Bennett's call for restricted expansion in industry by salary cutbacks and layoffs of "non-essential" employees.

The businesses that went bankrupt and closed out lost out to inflation and rising costs.

But the majority of businesses are still open. They just aren't operating at peak efficiency because recent events have forced the working public to start pinching those pennies.

So now we have the bargain-hunting public, big business and the recession. The public and big business can survive these hard times. It's been done before and it can be done again.

We will not give up hope in these tough economic times. While it is still on, we can only wait and see as we get on with our everyday lives. For we can and will survive.

Hopes and dreams are not enough

One of the main reasons that the Canadian economy has been steadily faltering and increasingly growing worse despite hopes that the tide will soon turn is that neither the governments nor the people have actually addressed the issue by first realizing that it is not just a segmented problem but one that requires certain action on the part of every government in Canada and every citizen. Hopes are merely dreams. Something concrete must be done.

Far too long has the belief been held that the natural resources of this great country of Canada will eternally ensure that economic stability will continue to burgeon and that each individual will continue to prosper. This is the same thought foremost in the minds of everyone in every other country, a great self concern and very little thought given as to the welfare of the whole in general.

Case in point are strikes. British Columbia has the unenviable record in having the most labor disputes of any other province The entire scenario looks like a tragic love-hate relationship between close relatives, and many other innocents caught in between. Nobody really benefits. The time lost due to strikes and lockouts is gone forever.

If the United States of America can keep its inflation rate down to 3 percent by voluntary restraints why can't Canadians? It must be evident to Canadians that drastic action must be taken to curb the escalation of wages and cost of living and that nothing will occur until every last one of us accepts this as our personal responsibility.

A proposal that was suggested by our government recommended wage and costs increases be limited to 6 and 5 percent over two years. This was met without enthusiasm by provincial leaders and icily by unions. Perhaps it is the very medicine that is required but we will never know unless we try it.

Canada is rather fortunate in not having a dictatorship or heavy-handed bureaucracies at the helm. In places where dictators rule the inflation rate is soaring. However eager the populace is that it should be curbed nothing is done. Here, we can see that controls and restraints could be reasonable tools to work with, and since our gross national productivity is at a new low and we have no better place to go but up, let's let reason prevail.

Salmonella?

Now that British Columbia is no longer British and W.A.C. Bennett sold the Columbia River to the Americans years ago, we really should select a new name for this province. How about a contest and the winner gets a free trip to Hawaii. The best choice, "Pacifica," is already being used by a city in California, and "Columbia" is already a country in South America and a district in the U.S. How about "Salmonella" or "Socredland" or "South Alaska". Perhaps we should just surrender to common usage and name it "BEECEE".

What is normal?

By JACK PHILLIPS

Everyone wants to hear that the economy will soon improve and we will all be back to normal. But what is "normal"? An annual inflation rate of 10 percent is not normal. Unless inflation can be licked any economic gains will be transitory and illusory. During wartime we are willing to make sacrifices. Why not when we are in another kind of war? Because of inflation people on fixed incomes, and not backed by powerful unions, are having to get by with less and less. You can't expect them to have much sympathy with union members who feel they have a right to "catch up."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Yes, Langley students were betrayed

Editor, The Star, Sir,

Carol Gran is right! Langley school board must take its share of responsibility for the closure of Kwantlen College in Langley. But in fairness to Rev. John Rhoad, even though he made the unfortunate motion to terminate Langley campus, we're sure that he was convinced that it was preferable to close the campus rather than to accept a faculty rollback as had been proposed by the Kwantlen faculty but which was rejected by Kwantlen's administration. Rev. Rhoad was simply naive about the fact that the new college president from eastern Canada has not wanted Langley campus from the start; he wants a large "institution" in Surrey!

The fact that Rhoad, Lanlgey's only representative on the Kwantlen board, made the motion is an indication of the disadvantages of having only appointed board members who have no constituency and, therefore, are unsure of their responsibilities. Would any Langley school board member make a motion to close the only high school in Langley? Not likely. One would have expected Rhoad to make the motion to keep the campus open even if he suspected that the motion might be defeated! It is ironic to have Rhoad who had the most to lose (by the Langley closure) make the motion to lose all and the chairman of the Surrey school board, who had the most to gain, vote against the motion! Is the Surrey school board more concerned about our children's education than the Langley school board?

After the announced closure of Langley campus, many Langley parents, students, organized groups, and elected officials tried to have the Kwantlen board reverse its decision, but we are not aware of one Langley school board member, one district official, or one Langley teacher voicing any opposition to the closure of the campus. Does Langley school district really believe that all you need is a high school diploma to get a good job? Indeed, should the school board be reminded to "mind its own business," the business of education?

Legionaires beat Seattle visitors

By RUSS DAVIDSON

ALDERGROVE - Saturday, November 6, the Legionaires travelled to Hjorth park to play the Sounders. Greg Zembik got the ball at midfield, and put a pass to Andy Brown, who in turn passed to Paul Liebel, and the score was 1 - 0 before the Sounders got into the game or even touched the ball. The second goal for the Legionaires was a picture to watch, as Brian Bell passed to Paul Liebel and on to Danny Wakelyn for a 2 - 0 lead at half-time. During the second half, the Sounders pressed hard and got a goal for their efforts. The game ended 2 - 1 for the Legionaires.

Sunday, November 7, Bradner park was the field for the Seattle exchange game. The Legionaires started fast as Danny Wakelyn laid a pass to Chris Bell and up to Chris Bleau for the first goal. Clint Kramer started up the left side with a pass to Chris Bell, and again Chris Bleau made a run for goal number two. Adrian Reglin at centre half, passed to Brian Brady, who in turn passed to John Bencinger for a 3 - 0 score. Brian Bell started up the right side and laid a good pass to Clint Kramer, who then fed Chris Bleau for his hat rick and a 4 - 0 lead. The Seattle team got one goal back before the half, making it 4 - 1 for the Legionaires.

After the oranges, Seattle came roaring, and made the score 4 - 2 in the first minute of the second half. Chris Bell started the ball up the left side, and passed to brother Bryan Bell, who in turn passed to Brian Brady for a 5 - 2 lead. Tim Bergsma got the ball at midfield, and fed Brian Brady, who in turn fed Andy Brown, and it was 6 - 2 at the end of the game. The mothers of the Legionaires supplied an excellent lunch which was enjoyed by all.

Legionaire team members are reminded of the parade at 9:00 a.m. on Thursday, Remembrance Day. They are to meet at Buckerfield's to line up.

Alpha Hunters keep on winning

Under conditions that would be difficult to describe, the Alpha Hunters continued where they left off last week and beat the LYSA Eagles 5 - 1. The game itself was played in mud and rain but I am sure that the many spectators who braved the conditions enjoyed a good game of soccer.

David Morgan displayed a lot of skill and courage with his all action style and helped himself to a hat-trick to bring his total to nine for the season. Goalkeeper Pat Wiebe put his name on the score sheet when he scored with a well taken penalty. Greg Byron was the other goalscorer. Man of the match this week was Joe Deacon who displayed skill and persistence on a field that was not suited to the finer points of the game. His game proved to the doubters that soccer is an all-weather game and can be enjoyed even under such atrocious conditions.

Sunday saw the return with the Buckley Chargers from Tacoma and because of the easy win in the first game, it was decided that the players should enjoy the game and let the ball do the work. The attackers became defenders, the goalkeeper became a centre-forward and the defence wandered up-field. The Hunters still scored six goals in the first half. Mike Giesbrecht 2, Mike Goyer, James Maller, Kyle and Aaron Williams were the scorers. The score remained 6 - 0 even though the Chargers were awarded two penalties. The Hunters did score quite a few second half goals but the referee judged them all to be off-side.

Next week is the big game. Two unbeaten teams battling for a win.

Lightweights show team spirit

Two weeks in a row the Aldergrove Lightweigths have had to play in very rainy weather.

October 31st Aldergrove played the Langley Panthers. The game started out very slow as the girls were warm and dry, but once they were all wet and muddy it didn't seem to matter anymore.

The first goal was scored by Aldergrove. Tammy Henderson had a beautiful kick from the eighteen yard line to Teresa Ramsey who expertly shot it in. This seemed to get the girls momentum going and about 5 minutes later the Lightweights scored again. This time Lori Williams made a great pass to Shannon Douglas who fired it in. The remainder of the game was spent defending their goal. The score was 2 - 0.

This past week's game the Lightweights played Fleetwood. The field was partially under water making it hard for both teams to pass the ball successfully. Although this was a deterrent Teresa Ramsey lifted the ball in front of the goal where Shannon Douglas fired it in. Again in the first half Teresa Ramsey managed a beautiful lifted shot to Jenny Kidd who was in front of the goal and shot it in. Just before the half time whistle was blown Shannon Douglas passed the ball to her right wing Teresa Ramsey who successfully lifted the ball over the head of Fleetwood goalie to score Aldergrove's final goal of the game. At the end of the game the score was 3 - 0 for the Lightweights. I would like to commend all the girls for playing well. Both weeks they came off the field wet, very muddy and tired. They showed us what real team spirit is.

Skyhawks tie first, win second

By GORDON WAKELYN

The "Energensis Control System" Aldergrove Skyhawks scratched out a tie on Saturday Nov. 6 on a rain soaked pitch at Parkside. The boys were never really with it as the rain seemed to penetrate the boys spirit. Lance Delves and Hayes Beckett scored the goals with Thomas Castonguay the only Skyhawk playing a good game throughout. Final score 2 - 2.

On Sunday the Skyhawks met the American team at Bradner Park. This was the return match of the Washington soccer exchange. Our boys had no trouble with their American friends as they handily outplayed the team from Sumner. The scoring was shared by a lot of Skyhawks with particular notice going to Danny "Parky" Parkinson and Paul "Knock 'em dead" Gillanders scoring their first goals of the year. The final score was something like 9 to 2.

I would particularly like to thank the ladies for making the after-game goodies for all, the American parents and kids as well as our own group. Thank-you also to Russ Davidson and his team for sharing the load.

OPEN DAILY FROM 8:30 A.M., TUESDAY TO SATURDAY

Langley, best team at B.C. Bronze Gloves

At the B.C. Bronze Gloves Championships, held at the National Training Center in Burnaby on November 5th and 6th, the Langley Boxing Club had eleven entries. Largest amount of boxers in the 52-year-old history of the club, of the eleven entries, nine made it into the championship or final bouts, one unable to compete in the finals by default. With eight boxers in the finals the local club had the most boxers from 24 boxing clubs entered in the tournament.

Following are the results of the tournament for the Langley boxers:

Jamie Lamont (11 yrs. 90 lbs.) lost to Queensborough's Troy Taylor. Jamie fought a very good bout, but lost to a much more experienced opponent.

Jamie Richard (12 yrs. 95 lbs.) lost on a controversial decision to Jason Harris, Queensborough. Jamie in his second carrier bout fought an opponent with 10 bouts, whose record includes three TKO's in a row.

Reid Purvis (13 yrs. 75 lbs.) lost to Geronimo Bie, Astoria.

John Turner (13 yrs. 80 lbs.) defeated Jason Cole, Crofton by a TKO. Turner, the most experienced Langley boxer in this tournament, improved his record to five wins in five carrier bouts, two by TKO, to become the only contested Langley boxer to win the 1982 Bronze Gloves Championship.

Tom Gimlett (15 yrs. 100 lbs.) was uncontested in the tournament, as there was noone in at his age and weight class.

John Heal (13 yrs. 115 lbs.) lost to Fred Loewen, Kelowna.

Shane O'Neil (14 yrs. 135 lbs.) lost to John Rithye, Kelowna.

Joe Swanson (16 yrs. 112 lbs.) lost to George Pires, Astoria. Pires was declared the Bronze Boy (best boxer of the tournament).

Tony Sawada (16 yrs. 125 lbs.) won his first bout, but was unable to compete in the finals.

Willy Hebert (11 yrs. 80 lbs.) was the only boy from the local club that was unable to compete in the finals, as he was eliminated in the preliminary bouts.

After the final bouts were over, the Langley Club also received the Best Team trophy.

Final results for the Langley club: 2 champions, 7 runners-up to the champions.

According to the coaches of the local club; Glynn Jones and John Curry: "Considering that our boys were all in their first season of boxing, with only two months or less training time behind them, competing against boxers in their second year of boxing (in most cases), the club did very well. We never expected to receive the Best Team trophy at the end of the tournament."

Next for the Langley Boxers is the Intermediate elimination bouts for the Canada Games, at the National Training Center, on the 13 of November, and the Langley Club's Boxing Show at the Murrayville Community Hall Sunday November 14 at 3 p.m. In this show the Langley boxers will be competing against boxers from B.C. and Washington.

Raiders pack it in

The Aldergrove "Raiders" played their last two games of the Fall Touch Football season last Sunday.

In the first game we were defeated 28 to 0 by Mission Medium Security Prison. We started to get our game together in the third quarter when Rick Phillips caught an interception and ran a 40 yard run back. Grant McLeod then caught a 20 yard pass from Harry Elliott but didn't quite make it into the end zone. Colin Deegan was gaining some ground with two good catches from Harry with about a 10 yard gain on each. But it wasn't enough to score a touchdown before the final whistle.

The second game was the worst of our season. We were defeated 32 to 6 by the referees with the help of the "Unknowns". The "Unknowns" were good and would likely have defeated us anyway, so they really didn't need the referees assistance.

If I sound bitter it is because I am. We have had a lot of trouble with the refereeing throughout the whole league this year and it is very discouraging to all the players, but most especially to the new teams like ourselves. We try to follow the rules laid down in the rule book, but this year we have also learned which rules to ignore and which rules don't count depending on who is refereeing our game.

Despite the outcome of this Fall season, most of our team members are looking forward to starting up again in the spring. We have had a number of inquiries from others who would like to join our team in the spring, so instead of giving up, we will be back with renewed energy and enthusiasm.

Watch for us!! and "Go Raiders"!!

Legionettes lacklustre, but victorious

ALDERGROVE - On a day which was more in line with a warm fire and a hot brandy, the soccer faithful were getting their kicks on the windswept rain-soaked park at Creekside.

Maybe because of the 10-1 slaughter they handed the visitors last time, the home team 'nettes did not impress by their lackluster play. In spite of this they managed to end the first half with a 1-0 lead on the well-taken goal by Andrea Ollafson.

The second half started with no improvement in the weather, although the big change was in the play of the Legion lassies with Ollafson getting her second of the game. Just when it looked as though it was going to be a repeat of the last game, the Stingrays came back with a perfectly taken goal. This changed the texture of the game. After a nice rundown the wing Stacey Markle was rewarded when the ball bounced off the opposing fullback. It was 3-1 for the Legionettes.

The Stingrays were awarded a penalty shot. Lori Glover in goal for the 'nettes managed to get her hands on the ball but it was judged to be across the line. The game still in balance. Allison Mailer was in the right place and gave the Legionettes a cushion 4-2, and the 'nettes were to further their lead when Cheryl Miller latched on to a loose ball after a penalty shot and made no mistake. Final score 5-2 for Legionettes.

Next week, Holly Park at 12:00 o'clock.

The second half of the B.C.-Washington exchange was more beneficial to the home side coming away with a 3-0 victory. The kids were eager to renew their friendship with their billet of the past fortnight when the Maple Valley team arrived at Creekside on Saturday. Apart from the fact that parents and kids had a great time, it would be unfair not to mention the goal scorers. Cheryl Miller, who has earned the nickname of Thunderfoot, showed why when she crashed the ball over the outstretched hands of the American keeper. The penultimate tally came from the boot of Ollafson. The third and final tally came from Lara Beckett who until now has never had any luck. Special mention must go to Lori Glover who recorded her first shut-out.

Thanks to Judy Beckett and Wendy Glover and all the parents for making the exchange the success we have come to expect.

Thursday, Nov. 11 Legionettes meet at Buckerfield's at 9:30 a.m. for the Armistice parade.

Music notes: Slugs, Nash, Pop, Neon, Valdy

By NOZ PARKER

The new Doug And The Slugs album is set for release on November 15 in North America, and is titled "Music For The Hard Of Thinking."

A recent press release from "the witless at Ritdong Records" notes slyly that, "With so much of today's music aimed at the hard of hearing, Doug and the Slugs break new ground with "Music For The Hard Of Thinking."

Nash the Slash, the one-man electric band from Toronto opens the November 15 Commodore concert for the infamous rock singer-contortionist. The concert tour is traversing the continent in support of new albums, Iggy's excellent "Zombie Birdhouse" and Nash's third solo album, "And You Thought You Were Normal."

Nash's latest features only original compositions this time, and all voices and instruments; electric violin and mandolin, keyboards, basspedals along with electronic percussion and effects are played by Nash.

Previous albums have featured frenetic covers of old hits like Jan and Dean's "Dead Man's Curve" and a very funny cut-up of Deep Purple's "Smoke On The Water" (on which Nash plays the "heavy metal" into the ground and retitles "Dopes On The Water.") In a phone conversation last week from Cincinnati, Nash said he appreciates that those songs, "got me some added attention and radio airplay, but they did distract from my originals."

"Side one of the new album is vocal aimed at radio and side two is instrumental for home listeners."

Nash said, "The show has been getting great response in the large U.S. concert bars we've been playing. Iggy asked me to do this tour with him. We're mutual fans so it's been working quite well."

"As a support act I don't get that much time, so I have to kick ass to leave a good impression. I do about seven songs of which four are from the new album."

Nash always appears on stage in a suit and tophat, with his face bandaged up like the Hollywood "Invisible Man." He is fascinated by theatrical image (his name is borrowed from a cutthroat butler in an old Laurel & Hardy film) but says he does the masking as a personal statement of anti-image.

Although Nash enjoys other music and musicians (he was a founding member of the FM trio) he says, "I have no desire to work with musicians. I believe in the hardware. Electronics have evolved to the point now where they can just about do anything."

Iggy Pop's new album, produced by Blondie's Chris Stein, is his best yet and one of the most lucid and chilling rock albums ever made. It has been accurately and favorably compared to some of Jim Morrison's earlier work. Guitarist Rob duPrey co-wrote most of the songs with Pop, and they make a very creative team. The music is not as raw and primitive as previous recordings, but there are no synthesizers or rhythm-boxes either.

Langley resident Brian Smith is better known as a member of Trooper and for his lead guitar work on Randy Meisner's latest album, but till November 20, his fans can catch him as a member of "Joani Bye & The Neon Special" at Gastown's Savoy nightclub.

Joani Bye has fronted several Vancouver bands, including Foxfire and Night Train Revue, and her stirring vocals will also be featured in an upcoming Paul Anka Show.

Keyboardist Tim McHugh, bassist Brian Newcombe and drummer Daryl Burgess complete the "Neon Special" lineup.

The Savoy and CFMI Radio are also sponsoring "The Real Guitar Contest" every Thursday night through December 16. Amateurs will play 3-4 minute blues tunes of their choice, using the Savoy band as backup, in competition for 15 hours of studio time at Ocean Studios, a guitar and a $100 prize. For more information or to register, call 738-9839.

Valdy wound up a cross-country tour last weekend at the Soft Rock Cafe, and leaves for a European tour on November 12.

In a private conversation last Friday, the singer from Salt Spring Island expressed pleasure with the interest from adults and kids at shows in the Maritimes and Ontario, particularly his appearance at the Jacques Cousteau Festival. And though his last record, "Valdy's Kid's Record" was an enjoyable departure for him he says, "I did it because I have three kids of my own, not because that is the direction I'm going in."

Valdy says he is currently wrapping up a deal with Eliot Mazer (producer of the "Hot Rocks" album) and U.S. Records, to go down to Nashville to record a country style album in February. He found that his song, "Leaving Ain't The Only Way To Go," did very well on CKWX and other country stations across the country, and he wants to follow up on that.

"Country fans are loyal, and they'll give your new record a chance. It's a real grassroots response, as compared to pop music which is only there for the fleeting moment. There's more of a human relationship in country music."

Still "Valdy's Kid's Album" is verging on 10,000 copies sold, and, "...that market is different. If it's a good record, there's steady growth and it never stops selling...as in the case of Raffi."

Valdy, along with saxophonist Claire Lawrence and guitarist Norm McPherson will play ten dates in fourteen days as musical representatives to Europe selected by CP Air.

Valdy will also perform at Maple Ridge on January 28 (see "What's On") and may also perform at Chilliwack's Evergreen Hall in the new year.

Have you thanked someone today?

By ANN SAUNDERS

ALDERGROVE - Albert Schweitzer was once interviewed by Bernard S. Redmont and, during the interview, Schweitzer suggested: "You must give some time to your fellow man. Even if it's a little thing, do something for those who have need of your help, something for which you get no pay but just the privilege of doing it."

A number of years ago, at the risk of his own life, a young man rescued from the icy waters of Lake Michigan nineteen drowning men and women. When asked what was the one thing about the terrifying experience that stood out in his mind he said: "The one thing I cannot forget is that out of the entire nineteen, not one ever came to me, not one of them ever wrote me, or in any way expressed any appreciation or thankfulness."

Stop and think for a moment. Would you have thanked the person who risked his life to save yours? Sometimes it is human nature to forget and to be unthankful.

One railroad conductor who was thanked for his faithful service could hardly handle the situation for he said: "In 12 years of work this is the first time anyone has expressed any appreciation."

The Bible also portrays a story of ten lepers who begged Jesus to have mercy on them. Jesus healed them and went on his way. (Luke 17:11-19) Later, a man appeared in front of Jesus. He was one of the ten who had been healed. He, alone, had hurried to express his thanks. Jesus answered: "Were there not ten cleansed? But where are the nine?" Only one took time to thank.

Are you thankful for food, clothing and shelter? In many parts of the earth, millions go to bed hungry every night. Perhaps Helen Steiner Rice was correct in her philosophy when she said:

"For the joy of enjoying and the fullness of living
Are found in the heart that is filled with thanksgiving."

Take time to say: "thank you" to someone today.

Buy tickets, but buy them from us

By ERNIE CLUETT

ALDERGROVE - The efforts of the committee to put on a hobby and handwork show and sale in the OAP hall on 273 Street, was an outstanding success. The large variety of handicrafts were a revelation to all who think that the pensioners are good for nothing but baby sitting. Baking, basketry, leather work, knitting, crocheting, paintings and pottery were all on display and although a lot of exhibits were not for sale, those that were had a ready sale. It is to be hoped that we shall have another show early in the new year.

A lot of newcomers in the hall for the first time were very impressed with the facilities and several promised to return to the general meeting held the following day.

The general meeting had an excellent turnout of members. The large number present were warned by Jack Baker, our provincial board representative, to ignore the postal efforts of the Elder Citizens to obtain $10 of your money for actually nothing more than a subscription to the Elder Statesman, which you can purchase for $6.50 per year anyway. Starting in January the paper will be available in your hall each month and the $3 membership fee will have to be paid by the member to the branch.

You are again asked to purchase lottery tickets through the branch, enabling us to retain $3 for each $10 book sent in. If you send in yourself by mail, the lottery keeps the whole $10. Opal Thomas is in charge of the lottery and has all the books of entry blanks. All books of coupons received in the mail can be turned in to Opal. Once a week every Wednesday she will forward all purchases to the lottery headquarters. Opal's phone number is 856-6024.

Frank Corbet and Ernie Goodison are starting bingo again every fourth Friday at 1:30 p.m. starting November 26.

There will be an open house in honor of Art and Dolly Cross's 50th wedding anniversary, from 1:00 to 4:00 p.m. on December 4.

The prize winners in the draw for the free dinners at Michael's Restaurant were Les Williams and Tom Folkard. The planter and plants were won by Elsie Hughes, Dolly Cross, Audry Beland and Grace Ferguson.

There will be a bus trip leaving the hall at 9:30 on Thursday, November 18, and returning at 4:30 p.m. Destination, Vancouver Museum and a popular shopping mall. Fare $5 return. Phone Adeline Wright for reservations at 859-8408.

Art Cross and Fred Bohnke volunteered to finish installing the hall's exhaust fan and some carpenter work in the men's 'house of parliament'.

In answer to the irate citizens who took exception on my panning of the Greenpeace in last week's article, I refer them to the editorial in the "Oregonian" for October 29. In Oregon and Washington to augment their fishing money, tours are run by skippers taking the public to view the killer and grey whales on their northern migration. These are well run tours. However, in B.C. on the tip from Greenpeace, hordes of pleasure seekers descended on Telegraph Cove in the Johnson Strait in kayaks, sail boats, and motorboats. They rammed, poked and clobbered the animals till they fled in terror and so far haven't been back. While Greenpeace was down in the South Pacific, the animals they are so emphatic about protecting were fleeing for their lives. But then, there were no reporters or TV cameras present, so Greenpeace was probably not interested. So now what could have been a wonderful tourist attraction has gone down the drain.

The Saturday dance had a large crowd attending. Prizes went to Mary Powroznils and James McKay for the spot dance and Katy Banman won the door prize. Visitors were Henry and Alice Rods from Enderby and Millie and Rudolph from New Westminster. The birthday of Eda Degans was suitably celebrated.

Ignorance causes poverty, heartache

By ROBERT SKOGLUND

"Ignorance is the cause of poverty," I said to my neighbor Gramp Wiley.

"If I were smart, I'd be rich. But I have to work, and every time I go out on my tractor to mow someone's field something breaks. The only time I get ahead is when the weather's so bad I have to stay home."

Gramp Wiley forced a smile, leaning back in his rocker with a dreamy look in his eyes, and said, "Let's talk about the women situation over at your place."

"I'm in trouble," I whined. "Two weeks ago I ran over a steel survey stake and punctured one of my tractor's rear tires. I took it up to the garage and told them no way could I get money to buy a new tire - they'd have to put a patch in this one. When I got the bill for $117, I was surprised that they hadn't put in a new tube. I didn't think a patch would hold on such a big hole - especially on a calcium filled tube. But they'd patched it because they thought I'd said they had to patch it. Of course I meant the tire, not the tube."

I closed my eyes and took several deep breaths. Gramp Wiley drummed his fingers on the arm of his rocker and said, "What's a nice looking little darling like Reeney see in an old brute like you?"

"Before I could get that tire on, the battery let go. I had to buy one for $154. Then the starter went - same week. That was $139. When I got it back from the shop and tried it, the smoke and fire rolled right out of it so I took it back - 40 miles each way. They'd forgotten to tighten the bolts on the end so the brushes weren't ground."

I gritted my teeth and shook my head. Gramp Wiley said, "I saw her coming out of the house yesterday. Must be nice having home-made bread on the table when you get home."

"I didn't get home with that starter before the rear end dropped out of my car. For years I've bragged that a Mercedes is the cheapest car a person can drive. Rich people buy American cars and trade every three years, poor people buy a Mercedes, pay for it over an eight year period, and then expect it will last them a lifetime.

Mine hasn't gone 100,000 miles and I had to have it hauled home by a wrecker. There's no sense in having a Mercedes if you can't [illegible] how economical it is."

[illegible] what's she taking for courses this semester?" said Gramp Wiley.

"That patch has come loose like I though it would and the water is running out of the tire. When I went to get my air compressor to pump it up, the shed door fell off the hinges. I never have time to fix anything right. When I finally staggered into the house there was a message on my answering machine - my phone gets unplugged tomorrow unless I pay my bill. But I'm broke because my tractor eats money."

Gramp said, "You must know I don't really want to talk about women. But everyone who's been in here this week has told me their troubles and I'm tired of it."

"Mark told me he sold a winch," Gramp continued. "Big thing - bolted to a cement base with four bolts big as your arm. Asked one of his neighbors who had a burning torch to cut off the bolts so they could move the winch. When Mark went over to get it he almost cried - his friend had sliced the winch up into three or four pieces. Never did cut off the four bolts."

"You don't know what trouble is. The editor told me he spent an hour digging in an old paper for his '50 Years Ago Today' column. He reprinted the story about Kay Lastimme who showed up at her big church wedding with another guy she'd just married that afternoon. Her 50th wedding anniversary was written up in the same paper. That's trouble."

"He told me about his cousin's troubles, too. Remember when some of California slid into the Pacific during the big rains? The cousin is being sued by the EPA for dumping a tennis court and a house overboard without a permit."

"Then there's Jimmy's two-year-old who accidentally ran over his sister's kitten with a tricycle - 'Ma, the kitty's asleep and won't wake up,' and his other kid who bet his friends he could put three crab apples in his mouth."

Gramp Wiley pounded his fist on the arm of his rocker. "You think you've got trouble? Someone else, I'm glad I've forgotten who, had to take his kid to the hospital to have a bike training wheel extracted from her mouth. And Julian's dog just ate a whole book of trapping laws."

"That's enough, Gramp," I shouted. "Let's talk about the women situation."

Shop Alderhaven's bazaar

By IRENE ORWICK

ALDERGROVE - Our first potluck dinner of the fall season at Alderhaven on October 27 was attended by 24 people who enjoyed the many delicious dishes of food, among which was a tender moose roast.

It was nice to have Jake and Mary Giesbrecht join us for this occasion. Just like old times.

On November 2, our general meeting was held with a good attendance. Mrs. Perry read the minutes of the last meeting Cathie Richardson gave the treasurer's report and there was a short discussion regarding some problems. Laura Johnson and Edith Sundberg are doing very well with kitchen and hospitality jobs, with other willing hands helping out.

Then it was time for the birthday party. There were only two; Mrs. Maude Evans and Mr. Perry sat at the birthday table. A tasty lunch was served by the ladies in charge.

Our bazaar in Alderhaven will be held in the lounge on Saturday, November 20 beginning at 2 p.m. and finishing at 4 p.m. This is a chance to get some Christmas shopping done, as there will be a nice display of handiwork and home baking. You can also enjoy a cup of tea with us.

Women succeed in grand slam

ALDERGROVE - In local bridge club play on Oct. 29 it was Donna Costello first with 6,360 points and Laura Miller second with 5,480. Kay Carpenter and Fran Colebank bid and made a grand slam. Where were the men to let this all happen?

Nov. 5 the men did better. Art Hill was first with a score of 7,350 and Jim Moran second with 7,020.

Attendance is moving up, 12 tables on Nov. 5. This week club members will be playing on Thursday, as this is the second week of the month. As usual it is at 7:30 at the OAP hall.

GARDENING IN THE VALLEY

Gardening books are perfect Christmas gift ideas

By DON ANSON

Question. Some time ago you wrote the name of a good general garden book for this particular area of the lower mainland and I would appreciate it if you repeat this in your column at your earliest convenience.

Mrs. Beryl Clarke
11829 230 St.,
Maple Ridge

Answer. With Christmas coming up, I think it quite a good idea because books on gardening make fine Christmas gifts.

I strongly advise buying the Reader's Digest publication "Illustrated Guide to Gardening in Canada". This may be obtained or ordered from W.H. Smith and Sons or any good bookshop. I find it a fascinating, concise and excellent reference book on anything connected with gardening. It has a really first-class section on plant disorders, pests and diseases with full colored pictures of everything that can go wrong. This book, although covering the whole of Canada, indicates all the climatic zones with ours being the most temperate. There are 640 pages in this book and I am sure it covers everything the average gardener needs to know.

For quick information, without anything really detailed, I suggest you buy "The Pacific Gardener" by A.R. Willis. This is readily obtainable anywhere and is now in its eighth edition. There are only 150 pages but it contains very valuable information written in a very understandable way.

Another book I have recommended in the past is "The Complete Gardener" by that famous English gardener W.E. Shewell-Cooper. This will probably have to be specially ordered. Shewell-Cooper has written dozens of books on nearly every garden subject. Although written in England, I find that its subject matter is equally pertinent to this province as climatic conditions are very similar.

Another book which everyone should have is "Let it Rot" by Stu Campbell. This is all about composting and will give the reader an enormous insight into the activity that goes on in the soil and how we can create a fine garden by the use of composted organic material.

There are, of course, thousands of books on every aspect of gardening. I must have 200 at least. Many of them differ in content as they are written in different places with different climates and types of soils. Gardeners in New York, Montreal or California should follow books written in those areas. Although The Sunset books contain much excellent information and are available in any newsstand in British Columbia, they are nevertheless written in California which has a very different climate from ours.

We are able to change our soils to our advantage but we are not able to change our climate. We know that we are going to get large amounts of rainfall every year in these areas and we must act accordingly. As we know that we also are likely to get extensive periods of drought every year, we should make every effort to ensure that our soils can retain much of this moisture.

No gardener worthy of his salt should go entirely by book knowledge. We have so many mini-climates and even micro-climatic conditions in the same garden that one cannot lay down the law and say that "such and such" must be done. Take such a place as Manning Park between Hope and Princeton. There are about four different climatic zones in that area alone, major climatic zones that is. In your little garden there may be several micro-zones due to soil texture, exposure to winds and rains and to ground undulations. Frosts might lie in one pocket and not in another. One fence might make a great difference to a flower border. Reflected heat from a building might enable you to grow things that would never grow in another part of your garden.

These things you have to find out for yourself. No book will tell you what to do so experimentation is the only answer. Read about the basics from a garden book. Basic gardening will always remain the same but the rest is up to you.

You should be planning next year's garden now, taking into account all the things that did well this year and all the things that went wrong. Don't think that everything should have gone the right way. That seldom happens with gardening. Ask yourself such questions as "Is my garden beautiful in the early summer and spring and "Blah" later on"? Act accordingly. "Have I got too much or too little lawn area?" Or "Am I producing too many or too few vegetables for the size of my family?"

These questions to yourself are easily answered and, if needed, must be part of next year's planning. If the whole garden is taking too much out of you then you must make plans for more low maintenance gardening. If your garden drainage was not too good, then you should contemplate more container gardening. If your soil is inadequate, think more about correction by the supplement of composted organic waste material.

The author will endeavor to answer any questions on the subject of outdoor gardening. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: "Gardens", care of The Star, Box 220, Aldergrove, V0X 1A0. All letters will be answered personally, but some may be answered in this column.

Local talent at photo arts seminar

By SARA SHADBOLT

ABBOTSFORD - Following the established practice of tapping local talent wherever possible, the Abbotsford Photo Arts Club has invited three well-known photographers from the Fraser Valley to lecture at its fifth annual seminar this coming weekend, November 12 and 13.

Sharing some of his professional expertise in the field of portrait lighting will be Andrew Simpson, proprietor of Clearbrook Photographic Arts. Still under 30, he has an impressive list of trophies to his name, including best portarit of a lady and best portrait of a bride, in B.C. this year. Simpson's interest in photography and fascination with people began at the age of 14 and in 1971 he began his apprenticeship as a studio portrait photographer with Harvey McRae in Lloydminster. Since then he has taken numerous courses on various aspects of portraiture, classical and modern. In 1976 he had his first picture accepted by the Canadian archives for their permanent collection and has since had four others accepted.

Also known locally for his wedding portraits, Frank Stadnyk combines photography with a full time career in the Matsqui police force, where he has from time to time put his photographic talents to use. Stadnyk will be lecturing on environmental photography, landscapes and scenics, an aspect of the art which he practises mainly for his own enjoyment, although he has sold several of his enlargements as wall decor hangings.

Having first become interested in photography through a night school course, Corporal Stadnyk now has twenty years of experience behind him, including many ribbons and acceptances from international exhibitions. He won the award for best wedding photography in the state of Washington in 1978 and 1979 and has finished in the top three each year since then. He also does sports photography, including team and individaul portraits.

From the Upper Fraser Valley, renowned nature photographer Valerie May will be passing on some of her secrets of success with wildflowers and animals. With more than twenty years experience as a photographer, she retired a couple of years ago from a full time career with the Chilliwack school district and now devotes most of her spare time to her hobby. She has had many pictures published on cards, calendars and in prestigious books about nature. Some of her work appears in Canada, a year of the land.

People wishing to register for the seminar are urged to call 853-6801 or 859-4645 to indicate their intention ahead of time, to allow for planning the catering. Registration is $20, or $15 for students and seniors, which includes dinner on Saturday evening. The seminar takes place on Friday evening, November 12 and all day Saturday, Nov. 13 at Trinity Memorial United Church opposite the main post office on Hazel Street in Abbotsford.

Students compare German, Canadian educations

By PETER HUANG

OTTER - Poppy school's two German exchange students have been doing very well in Canada. Rudiger Nehmzow and Claudia Kost are now speaking English almost fluently.

Maybe it has something to do with the environment. The two are impressed with the weather and the beautiful countryside. Rudiger, who came from a small city, Trier, also commented on the size of Vancouver. Such a large city was totally new to him and going there was an unusual experience.

Poppy itself has been an interesting change from the German schools. In Germany, there are three major types of schools. Everyone must attend elementary school, which covers grades one through four. After this, there are three choices, a school with grades five to nine, five to ten, or another with five to thirteen called gymnasium. Where there are ten or eleven classes daily in Germany, there are only five at Poppy.

Rudiger and Claudia feel that schools in Germany are more academically geared than in Canada. Although their academic facilities are fairly comparable, there are no industrial courses offered.

So far, Rudiger and Claudia have no real complaints about Canada. They have spent a day in Vancouver, a weekend at 108 Mile Ranch, and Rudiger has gone hiking with the community recreation class. In fact the only complaint he could come up with after a lot of thought was that the drinking age is too high (but the driving age is great).

Rudiger and Claudia, who arrived early in September, will be staying in Canada until December with their Poppy billets, Roaldn Schigas and Christine Brack. Next March, Roland and Christine will be going to Germany for their three months of exchange.

Goblins collect for UNICEF work

ALDERGROVE - Witches, goblins and assorted creatures of the night appeared at doors on Hallowe'en night in the Aldergrove elementary school area. Many of these spooks carried UNICEF boxes with the intention of raising funds to help the less fortunate children in developing nations. When the sixty boxes were opened and content counted, a total of $136.20 was raised by participating children; a healthy sum, thanks to the children and parents involved.

Ahead of his time

ALDERGROVE - Hudson Taylor was a young man ahead of his time, according to the movie being shown at 7:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 13 and 14, at the Aldergrove Gospel Chapel.

He was just an ordinary man whose vision inspired more than one thousand missionaries who accepted the call for medical work, literature distribution and discipleship in the Orient.

"What is necessary," Taylor said, "is not that we have great faith, but rather that we have simple trust in God's great faithfulness."

Acclaimed the best missionary film of the year, it is the winner of four awards, combining romance, challenge of pioneer missions, and the experience of a disciple who dared to believe God.

"God means what he says," said Taylor. "He will do all that he has promised."

Friend of George Mueller of Bristol who launched out single-handed to feed thousands of orphans without the backing of charitable organizations, this young missionary seemed at first to be a maverick when he endeavoured to validate the effectiveness of medical missions by simple faith.

Another musical "western" motion picture starring Redd Harper and Cindy Walker will be shown at 7:30 p.m., Monday, Wednesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday, November 15, 17, 18, 20 and 21, at the chapel.

This film features also the world champion rodeo riders from the Texas panhandle, with Harper starring as Mr. Texas.
