Taylor wants agricultural centre in Matsqui

BRADNER — Ald. Doug Taylor of Matsqui wants the B.C. minister of agriculture to think twice before he puts his signature to any plan placing a government-funded agriculture centre in Langley district.

Taylor, who had proposed a similar development some years ago and had given a formal presentation on the subject to officials of the former NDP government, is upset with a proposal by the B.C. Agrologists Association to place a large farm oriented centre on land at 232 Street and the 401 Freeway.

He feels that north-west Matsqui would be a much better location for such a development and outlines various reasons why.

The centre in question would serve a variety of functions including the provision of educational facilities and presentations; an attraction for rural minded tourists; display areas for recreational and marketing fairs and so on.

Taylor first gave his proposition the light of day back in 1972 and in 1973 he took official action on it.

In answer to a request by then education minister, Eileen Dailly, calling for ideas on how to develop the educational facilities of the Central Fraser Valley, Taylor went to Victoria with a brief outlining the need for an agricultural training centre.

He turned that proposal over to the old agriculture minister Dave Stupich, and one of Dailly's senior assistants in the education department.

Later the NDP government was defeated, as was mayor Doug Taylor. Also, a campus of the Fraser Valley regional college was established in the Matsqui area and so the agricultural centre seemed to die a natural death on the drawing board.

LATEST REPORTS SPARK NEW INTEREST

Recent reports in the press, however, have shown public figures across the province - both from within government and from within the agricultural community - throwing their support behind a very similar proposal to Taylor's made by a special committee of the agrologists' association.

"I've made quite a lengthy presentation to the minister of agriculture," Taylor said Friday, adding that his most recent presentation has been in the form of a letter requesting some consideration to Matsqui as a site for the centre.

He explained that in his opinion the Matsqui area is much more central to the farming communities which will make the most use of the centre, and he added, that locating the proposed centre in Langley would place it near Cloverdale having an adverse effect on the Cloverdale fair, which is presently trying to serve

AT GRAVEL PIT

Three injured, one paralyzed in dives

FORT LANGLEY — Three people were injured over the weekend in a gravel pit swimming hole just off River Road near here.

The pit is located at River Road and 232 Street and is really a pool of murky and smelly water left behind after gravel mining.

The first of the three accidents took place on Saturday, July 30, when Kevin White, 20, dived from a forty foot ledge above the slew and landed in shallow water less than two feet deep. He sustained serious injuries and was admitted to Langley Memorial hospital.

On Sunday, July 31, Roy Lawson of Vancouver executed a similar dive with exactly the same results.

On Monday, August 1, Wayne Desroshers, of 5098 - 202 Street, approached the ledge to perform a dive into the pool of rancid water.

Witnesses at the scene say he had completed a dive earlier in the day, but had decided to do it one more time before going home with his friends.

As he stood on the ledge above the water and begun to spring his body into the air, the gravel and sand beneath him gave way and he plummeted forty feet head first into one-and-one-half feet of water.

His head was badly gashed and his neck and spine were severly injured resulting in paralysis of his lower body.

Police report that the company which owns the gravel pit has repeatedly placed signs around the area warning people not to swim there, but the signs have been ignored.

There were no signs visible at the pit Monday, however, indicating that they had either been lost or destroyed by those who frequent the area.

Police investgating possible OD

MURRAYVILLE — RCMP here are still investigating the death of Roderick Clay Caradice, the apparent victim of a drug overdose.

The 22-year-old man was pronounced dead on arrival at Langley Memorial hospital Saturday afternoon.

As yet the drug overdose has not been officially confirmed as cause of death and no fixed address has been released.

Righted again is the Chevy van driven by Norman Munro of Vancouver. The van rolled over Elma Minosky, also of Vancouver, killing her. Passersby are assisting as she is still lying in the ditch.

Munro is charged with criminal negligence causing death and of being in control of a motor vehicle while having a blood alcohol reading greater than .08.

MINISTER MAKES COMMITMENT

Game Farm told not to worry

VICTORIA — Local MLA and provincial cabinet minister, Bob McClelland, has sent a letter to the manager of the Vancouver Game Farm in Aldergrove outlining his policy on the proposed development of a new game farm in Surrey.

Hugh Oakes, the local game farm manager has been expressing concern lately over the projected Surrey game farm which would be built with government subsidy. He claims that the newer and larger game farm would run his own enterprise here in Aldergrove out of business.

In his July 28th letter to Oakes, health minister McClelland said he can not commit the government as a whole to any course of action, but he stated in no uncertain terms that he would not support any government subsidy of the Tynehead project.

"Let me assure you first of all that I have not and will not support any public funds being given to the Tynehead Zoological Society, and that the massive amounts of money that will be needed to implement their concepts could be far better spent on improved social programs," McClelland wrote.

He added that Sam Bawlf, the minister of recreation and conservation, has "indicated" to the Tynehead society that his department would not support the Surrey project with government funds.

"I cannot speak for government policy at this time, but this government has not committed any funds for the project, and it is my feeling that such a request would not be met with favor," the minister concluded.

"That's the kind of thing we are looking for," confirmed Eleanore Oakes of the local game farm Tuesday.

She said the farm is against any public funds being used to set up a competitor business against it, and feels that if McClelland is committed to speaking out against any move by his government to do so, then the whole picture looks much brighter. Oakes also stated that she was encouraged to hear that Bawlf also might oppose the Tynehead funding.

"If that public funding is not there, then we can rest assured," she said.

Meanwhile, a meeting is scheduled between Hugh Oakes and members of the Greater Vancouver regional district for next Wednesday.

At that meeting, the local zoologist will seek a further committment from members of that level of government.

The GVRD owns the parkland upon which Tynehead proposes to place the new government subsidized game farm.

Developer wants organized presentation to Victoria

ALDERGROVE — Carl Walters, a land developer who lives in Aldergrove and would like to develop a housing subdivision here, want to organize a presentation to Victoria involving more people than just himself.

Walters feels that the attitude taken toward land development by the various levels of government is having a stifling effect on the economy as a whole. He feels that everyone including labor leaders and industrialists, land developers and farmers should be represented in the march to Victoria calling for a relaxation of the strict attitude taken toward developers.

Walters says it was the Ainslee Loretto (Grosvenor Estates) case as reported in The Star which sparked his interest in the presentation. The development in question is a massive industrial park proposed for an 800-acre land tract north of the Trans-Canada Highway in Aldergrove.

Loretto is having trouble getting approval from Central Fraser Valley regional district for her development inspite of what she claims would be obvious economic benefits for the town as a whole.

Walters said Loretto is just one case, if a very indicative one, and he would like to see others band together and take an orderly and well prepared presentation to the provincial government.

Walters and Loretto have been in touch with one another but no firm decision has been reached yet as to whether they will get together on the project. There is some concern that throwing all eggs into one basket might weaken individual applications.

LEASE BUT NOT LEND

Farmer constituent can't seem to get through to Victoria

ALDERGROVE — Henry Neufeld of Aldergrove, a dairy farmer who lives on 272nd Street, figures he has spent over $60 trying to get through on the telephone to someone with some authority in Victoria.

His problem is quite simple, but because of government policy and the way it changes, his very simple problem seems to require the combined efforts of no less than three provincial cabinet ministers to solve.

It all started on the 3rd of July in the year 1974 when Neufeld wrote the following letter to the B.C. Department of highways:

"Dear Sir, Adjoining my property the government (Highways dept.) owns a parcel of land on the corner of Station Road and 48th Avenue.

"Would you please let me know if you would lease this parcel since it would enable me to increase my dairy operation. Yours truly, Henry Neufeld."

It was short and simple and it was the first step on the way to the present state of confusion in which Neufeld finds himself.

Two letters later, on July 18, 1974, Neufeld received a reply from the highways department asking for a legal description of the lands and advising him that all leases of crown land would have to be put out for tender with consideration to all bids.

Subsequent to that, Neufeld called Dave Stupich, who was at that time the minister of agriculture for the province. The two discussed the matter and Stupich answered various queries that Neufeld had. A legal description of the land was obtained and sent by mail to Stupich on January 18, 1975.

There were numerous other items of correspondence and some phone calls between Neufeld and the folks in Victoria, culminating in his lease on property being settled.

All in all things went pretty well. Neufeld's dairy farm was going to expand and the family farm was going to become more self sufficient. It had taken some time of course, but than all business deals take a little time to put together whether one deals with government or private industry.

All in all the lease had taken

Girl dies in driveway

LANGLEY — One person is dead and one is in police custody after an accident at the south end of 208 Street next to Langley Speedway.

Dead is Elma Francis Minosky, 19, who was a passenger in a Chev van driven by Norman Robert Munro, 22, of 1434 East 11 Ave. in Vancouver, who is charged with criminal negligence causing death and driving with a blood alcohol reading greater than .08.

The van driven by Munro left the Langley Speedway parking lot at approximately 45 MPH according to Eddie Hemrich who was in the parking lot at the time and witnessed the incident. He also mentioned that normally the cars are lined up to go out of the gates and that there is no room to speed, but that there was enough room to get that much speed up was a fluke. Hemrich said that when the van failed to negotiate the turn onto 208 Street it went into the ditch and the force of the impact threw Minosky through the windshield and throwing her to the ground where the van then rolled onto her and stayed there until some people came and righted it freeing her.

Efforts to save Minosky's life failed as she died later in Langley Memorial.

COUNCIL GETS KNUCKLES RAPPED

Report absolves everyone of any blame or charge

VICTORIA — A report tabled in the legislature on Thursday, July 21, has absolved everyone involved of any legal blame or charge in connection with various improprieties which were alleged to have taken place at Matsqui council up to May of this year.

The allegations included accusations of conflict of interest against former consultant planner for Matsqui district, Ray Olson; implications of improper use of classified information during private land transactions by treasurer Bruce McIntyre and engineering technician Dave Laxton; questions as to the propriety of using municipal equipment, labor and money to cap a gushing water well owned by Ald. Henry Friesen and charges against council in general of not being responsible in legislating against conflict of interest.

Colonel Alfred Hood, a former alderman for the city of Victoria, had been asked by the provincial government to conduct a six day hearing in May and deliver his findings on these matters to the legislature.

The 43-page "Hood Report" was the culmination of that request by the minister of municipal affairs.

RAY OLSON IN CONFLICT

Consultant-planner, Ray Olson, was found to be in a conflict of interest situation in the report, but Col. Hood recommended that the former municipal planner be advised that this conflict was not of his own making.

The probe chief said in his comments that Olson was working under difficult circumstances without any real terms of reference.

He said that council's own bylaws created Olson's conflict of interest by making it binding upon him to act both as planner for the district council and as an advisor to land use contract applicants.

Col. Hood described the termination of Olson's services at the end of May as being the only "positive step taken by council".

He went on to denounce council and its staff for failing to deal with proposed bylaws designed to avoid conflict of interest and for being negligent in the keeping of true minutes. In this connection the prober cited lengthy time lapses between requests by council to have bylaws redrafted or brought before regular meetings, and the actual redrafting or placing on the agenda of these matters.

In addition to recommending that Olson be advised of his absolution, Hood also called for "immediate action" by council to correct those portions of bylaws which give rise to conflict situations, and suggested that the provincial government pass an amendment to the Municipal Act requiring consulting planners to take oaths of office similar to those taken by full time members of the senior staff.

McINTYRE AND LAXTON FOUND FAULTLESS

In the section of his report dealing with McIntyre and Laxton's alleged use of classified sewer extension information, Col. Hood once again found the two land speculating staff members free of any legal blame.

In the case of McIntyre and Laxton, the prober summarized the following:

"I consider it was unethical or at least unwise for Mr. McIntyre and Mr. Laxton, as employees of the municipality, to enter into major land transaction in the municipality, an involvement they openly admit to."

In his recommendations, however, Col. Hood once again declared that the accused should be absolved of any wrongdoing and went on to heap procedural and legislative advice upon the council and the provincial government.

The former politician chided council for being aware of McIntrye and Laxton's land investing practises without challenging the propriety of such behavior.

He also called for council to review its system of taking minutes of meetings to ensure that the documents always cover meetings adequately.

In addition Col. Hood's recommendations called for a more expedient system of bringing matters before council for consideration or action and indicated that council should stop dealing with staff on "unwritten understandings" and start confirming their policies in writing.

Other conclusions in the report on McIntyre and Laxton's land deals required changes to provincial legislation resulting in fuller disclosures by municipal employees and more control over staff investments in local speculatory or development projects.

In clearing the McIntyre-Laxton duo of any suspicion, Col. Hood commented that he felt there was enough evidence to be sure that Laxton was aware that long range plans did show a sewer extension in the area where he and McIntyre bought land, but added that there was no "concrete evidence" to support any theory that they might have known the sewer was imminent at time of purchase.

McIntrye and Laxton had purchased a piece of land for $170,000 and had later resold the same land for $430,000 after plans were announced to extend a sewer line into the area.

FRIESEN WELL SHOWS TAINT OF ILLEGALITY

The only subject the Hood Report dealt with and subsequently found to contain some possible illegalities was, paradoxically, the least controversial of the three items covered. It was the "emergency" capping of a gushing water well located on property owned by an alderman, and the expropriation of that well property by council at a later date.

In his comments on that item, Col. Hood questioned not only the wisdom of council's expenditures, but also the legality.

Once more, however, he gave Friesen a clean bill of conduct and recommended that no action be taken against him other than to get him to pay back the public money spent on his property.

Most of the prober's ire was once again directed at the council for attempting to disguise a water well expropriation as a parkland acquisition. He went so far as to call for the quashing of the expropriation bylaw in which the so-called park property was acquired.

He stated in his recommendations that council should not spend public funds on private property without passing a bylaw to do so, or without acting on the basis of a "true emergency".

Col. Hood commented that the evidence did not seem to point out any great emergency at the time the well gushed forth. He said it seemed obvious that commercial services could have been called in by Friesen to complete the capping job, and he rapped councils knuckles for jumping into the well picture without prior thought.

Socred supporter cheesed off with local MLA

two years to finalize.

The first thing Neufeld did once the lease was signed was go out and start clearing a ten-acre parcel which was suitable for extra pasture. The total cost to Neufeld for the clearing of this land was in the neighborhood of $8,000. This included seeding and fencing of the cleared ground.

THEN CAME THE CRUNCH

Neufeld's new leased property was then comprised of about 10 acres of usable farm pasture and a further 50 acres or so of uncleared forest and bush.

Like most people, the local dairy farmer was feeling the grips of inflation and a pinch on the purse strings. There simply was not enough money to proceed with the clearing of the rest of the leased land at the time.

Neufeld did not give up hope, however. He next began to make enquiries about the Agricultural Land Development Act.

This is an act of the provincial legislature which allows farmers to borrow money at a low interest rate to complete capital expenditure projects on land they own or lease. These capital expenditures do not include the building of barns or homes, but simply apply to the improvement of farmland itself, by the addition of irrigation, drainage systems, dykes, dams, farm roads, or by the removal of brush and trees.

Under this act the government will lend up to $15,000 at four percent interest with up to 15 years to repay. In addition, to help make the land productive, the government will accept interest payments only for the first three years of the repayment contract if the farmer so wishes.

Neufeld asked about a loan under this act and received some very bad news. He was told that it would not be possible to advance any funds under the act because the lease agreement he signed with the government did not include an option to purchase clause. The option clause is necessary for any type of financing whether through the government or private lending institutions.

On June 16, 1977, Neufeld wrote a letter to the present agriculture minister, James Hewitt. The letter explained the problem and concluded on the following note:

"I have dealth with various personnel in the ministry of agriculture but have had no success in obtaining an answer to this problem.

"Can you tell me how the government can lease out land to encourage development for agricultural use and yet have restrictions through other departments, eg: A.L.D.A., highways, that prevent the farmer from such development?

"...My request to you, sir, is that you would please look seriously into this problem either to obtain an option to purchase clause or change the requirements of the A.L.D.A. program."

The reply that Neufeld got back on June 29, 1977, from Hewitt expressed deep sympathy for his problem but could not offer any way of getting around the impasse. Hewitt simply suggested that Neufeld take his application for a loan to a local banking institution.

This of course was impossible as the banks require the same option to purchase clause that the government does, the only chance being that the credit unions, banks and finance companies charge a greater rate of interest.

Neufeld tried to point this dilemma out in his letter to the government on July 12. He pointed out that private lending institutions refuse to lend money under such circumstances and he further informed the government that he did not think this was a very good example of promoting the agricultural use of land.

According to Neufeld, if his land could be cleared he would have plenty of room to grow all his own feed and to raise more than 40 dairy cows he presently keeps on the farm.

This he feels would be a credit to the government in that it would represent the proliferation of one more family farm and, would help one more farmer to make his farm operate without spending money on feed south of the border.

That mailing got once more reply from Hewitt, in the form of a firm letter in which the minister once again denied assistance under the A.L.D. Act and made reference to previous letter he had written pointing that fact out.

POLITICANS TOO BUSY TO TALK

Neufeld simply could not give up. He had all the land he could ever need right there and no way to get his hands on money to develop it into usable farmland. He started a telephoning campaign.

The local farmer says he has now spent upwards of $60 trying to contact either agriculture minister Hewitt, highways minister Alex Fraser or his local MLA, health minister Bob McClelland.

He has not been able to get in touch with any one of them, nor has anyone returned his calls.

Neufeld finds that his most bitter experience in this regard was the result he got from one telephone call to McClelland's constituency office in Langley.

After being told that it was not possible to speak with McClelland, Neufeld asked why, offering that McClelland would probably be willing to talk to him if he was seeking his vote again.

"Just because you vote for Bob does not mean you have a right to talk to him," Neufeld quotes McClelland's secretarial help as saying.

Neufeld sees that as the icing on the cake. He feels that he is being dealt with in an flippant fashion. He feels that McClelland was elected as his representative and he can't see the purpose of having McClelland in office if he isn't going to at least try to help his constituents.

He recalls when the whole thing began how he would pick up the phone and call Stupich in Victoria, and how Stupich would either talk to him right away or return the call as soon "as he had a few free minutes."

"I was never much for the NDP," said Neufeld, "but at least you could talk to them; you can't even talk to these people."

Today he feels desperate. He has turned to the media to act as an ombudsman in the affair. But The Star regrets that it can be of little help.

Our most recent call to the local MLA's office was answered with the following reply from his local secretary: "I wish you would stop calling this office, we are very busy here."

We have decided not to bother Bob's overworked secretaries anymore.

Sorry about that, Mr. Neufeld.

No one-man show, please

some of the needs the centre would fulfill.

"We've got a lot of things going for us in this particular area," said Taylor, "we've got a wider variety of specialized farm types."

Taylor noted that Matsqui has numerous types of farms raising everything from livestock to table decorations, and he postualted that the centre could be much more serviceable located in the midst of this variety of agricultural persuits.

He revealed that the letter he sent to the minister on Friday explains the background of the old proposal and outlines reasons for Matsqui's site superiority. It also requests a meeting between himself and the minister to discuss the matter at length.

RITCHIE WANTS TO TALK IT OVER

Bill Ritchie, meanwhile, would like to see Taylor sitting down with the committee and talking about it. Ritchie is a member of the agrologists' association's special agriculture centre committee, and he happens to live in Matsqui.

Ritchie told The Star in a phone interview that the Langley site had been chosen because of its location close to main traffic arteries and because free government land was available there.

"This is a new concept in North America, this would be a first," he stated, adding that he felt the proposal the committee is putting forward is probably very different to the one Taylor has in mind.

"I think he (Taylor) would be well advised to contact the committee," Ritchie remarked, adding that the special body of agrologists would welcome any constructive input on the project.

He said it would be best to sit down and talk about it,"...and not make this a one-man show against the committee that has put all the work into it."

Otter Park — vandalism — wire cutters and horse and (riders)?

OTTER — Having a natural park in the area in which you live should be a joy for all. Those who own and ride horses in Otter park want the whole 10 acres and seem to disregard the thought that parks are for people, children, picnicers, day campers, to be able to have a camp out without fear of being trod or kicked by a horse, says a spokesman for Langley recreation commission.

This spring a meeting was held with the local residents of Otter park and as a result, the park was divided and fenced - an area for leisure and an area for horses and riders.

Herb Jones, the Langley parks foreman was most disturbed by last weeks vandalism at Otter park. He states "Horses go where ridden, doubtful too if horses have learned to use wire cutters."

This leaves a selfish motive to those who create this type of vandalism, says Jones. "Children and adults should feel safe when animals are in a park, and this type of vandalism is senseless, and we will all pay for last weekends wire cutting episode and post damage."

Langley's municipal constable, Roy Martin, will be investigating this vandalism and anyone riding horses in the park and with wire cutters in their jeans will no doubt be checked out thoroughly, says Jones.

Window breaker charged

ALDERGROVE — Edwin Lawson, 50, a local resident, has been charged by Langley RCMP under section 387 (1) of the criminal code.

Lawson was charged under the section dealing with damage to private property after some local citizens saw him hurling an object through the store front window at Aldergrove Sports Centre and reported the incident to the police.

Fair celebrates 60th anniversary

LYNDEN — The Northwest Washington Fair celebrates it's 60th anniversary this year.

In commemoration of the Northwest Washington Fair's 60 years of existence, fair-goers who are or will be 60 years old in 1977 will be admitted free of charge.

The 60th anniversary of the fair, founded here in 1917, is marked by the completion of a five year building plan in which $750,000.00 was spent on new buildings and improvements.

The new structures include a new cattle barn, a horse arena and lobby, a main office, a goat and sheep barn, a horse barn complex, and gazebo.

Improvements include all new siding and roof on the grandstand.

The fair theme this year, "Back to the Country", emphasises the old-time country flavor the Northwest Washington Fair has come to be know for.

School trustees support parents on transfers

LANGLEY — A parents' group protesting the transfer of a kindergarten class has received support from Langley school board.

Letters from both the board and the Belmont Concerned Parents Committee have been sent to Education Minister Pat McGeer.

Both have requested a portable classroom unit to handle an expected overflow of children as a result of lowered pupil-teacher ratio.

The committee's letter, sent Monday, also praised the school trustees for their support.

Langley school board acted after receiving petitions totalling 1,011 signatures.

The signatures represented "basically every person in the Belmont area," according to parent spokeman Tim Forty. He said house-to-house and street canvassing was done to collect the signatures.

SEVEN SITES IN LANGLEY

Home parks plan favored

A landbank policy with a focal point of 340 acres suitable for mobile home parks was endorsed Monday by Langley district council committee, following a recommendation from planning director Ken Major.

The committee also endorsed another planning recommendation that mobile home parks be established only by land use contract and that the charging of impost fees be continued.

A further recommendation to remove the previous limit of 150 units per park was sent to the advisory planning commission.

No site has been scheduled for northeast Langley due to the distance from urban services, but Major had recommended seven specific sites in the other quadrants of the municipality.

These totalled 88 acres in the northwest, 171 in the southwest and 79 in the southeast.

"Does this mean if somebody proposes a park on these sites they will automatically get approval?" Ald. Bill Blair asked.

"No, we are only saying this would be a good area to have a mobile home park," Ald. Jock Lindsay told Blair.

Replying to a question from Blair, planning officer Major said that the tax yield to the municipality from mobile home parks is much higher than from a conventional subidivision.

"We get taxation from the parks as well as individual taxation from each unit," he told Blair.

"Whether we win or lose, trailer space has to be made available," Mayor George Driediger told the committee.

The vote was that the planners recommendation be endorsed as policy in respect of the areas, but not be tied to any of the specific sites mentioned.

Notice of public hearing

The British Columbia Energy Commission will conduct an inquiry into the matter of franchise fees paid to municipalities by gas utilities in the Province of British Columbia. The hearing will commence Tuesday, the fourth of October, 1977 at the hour of 9:00 a.m., local time in the Hearing Room of the Commission, located on the twenty-first floor, 1177 West Hastings Street, Vancouver, British Columbia.

The inquiry will be directed to the following questions:

1. What is the nature and purpose of franchise fees, and are they in the public interest?
2. If such fees are in the public interest, what is the appropriate level and how should that level be determined?
3. If such fees are in the public interest, should they be displayed as a separate item on the face of the bill issued by the gas utility to its customers or continue to be included in the general tariff structure?
4. If such fees are in the public interest, should they be assessed only to those customers residing in municipalities which require the payment of such fees or continue to be assessed against all the customers of the utility through the general tariff structure?

Any person intending to give evidence and/or cross-examine witnesses at the hearing should give written notice of intention to do so By September 2, 1977 to the Secretary of the Commission. If such a person intends to file a written submission or to use prepared direct testimony in support of a submission, such submission must be filed with the Secretary of the Commission together with 10 additional copies not later than the aforesaid date.

Persons intending to participate in the hearing who are uncertain as to the manner in which to proceed should contact the Secretary of the Commission by telephone ((604) 689-1831), or in writing for clarification.

To legislate or not to legislate

Are you happy with your government in Victoria? That question is probably similar to — "When did you stop beating your wife?" but it is considerably more relevant.

It's been said that we get the government we deserve - and we should - we are paying for it.

One of the most discouraging experiences for a taxpayer, full of enthusiasm for the capital city, and overcome by the majesty of government, is to sit in the public gallery in the legislature. The standard of debate is questionable, the level of repartee is not very inspiring and the occasional flashes of wit shine like cut glass set in 10 carat gold.

A little harsh? maybe - because governments should not be judged by their oratorical performance alone.

The purpose of the house sessions is public debate - public in the sense that it is reported for all to read or hear - reported so that we may believe in democracy in action: we can make our representations and ask our questions.

The government proposes, the opposition opposes and, one supposes. The division bell decides. Like justice, which must not only be done, but be seen to be done, government must be seen to be governing. What has been happening lately in the provincial house is a flagrant abuse of the purpose of the house. It is questionable whether most of us elect our MLAs to sit for a week aruging about ICBC. Many of us had the naive idea that they would be debating proposed legislation introduced for the greater benefit of the community.

Last Monday, the minister said that the RCMP had the ICBC matter in hand - that the police would be investigating the whole controversy. Opposition members claimed that the police knew nothing about this. As a matter of record, the RCMP later commented that they had not received a formal request for an investigation.

In the stormy house debate (and we use the word debate loosley) where insults and allegations were traded with more speed than accuracy, a complete day was wasted on charges and counter charges on information produced in the house the previous week.

Either the RCMP had been informed and asked for an investigation or they had not. To an outsider the solution seems obvious - if they had not, they should have been, immediately, and all discussion in the house should have ceased until the police report was available.

This legislature has seen an epidemic of innuendo and a plague of allegations - sometimes proven, sometimes withdrawn. When legislation has been introduced, it has many times shown signs of being hastily conceived and often been lacking in the detail required for intelligent discussion of its value to the province.

For example, we note two pieces of information rushed into the house earlier this session; the provincial Investment Corporation and the proposed B.C. Systems Corporation. Like puppies we are thrown a tidbit or two but suddenly we will wake up to find that somehow or other, we have bought the cake.

We know little about the proposed investment corporation, except that it is planned to be a non-government controlled operation selling a majority of its shares to the public. On that basis, and in the absence of house debate, we remain hopeful that the legislation presented will constitute full and adequate disclosure of the government's intentions.

The B.C. Systems Corporation was announced in January and the enabling legislation has not yet been submitted to the house. There are reports however, confirmed by a study of the careers columns in the local press, that the systems corporation is starting to hire personnel. Should not the introduction of a central computing system as outlined by the premier be made the subject of full and open debate? If we are going to have a giant computer - to be the Big Daddy to all the crown agencies in the province - would it not be nice to know the details and to ask questions? It may not be the iceman that cometh - it may be 1984!

We suggest that house sessions would be better spent on major changes like the Investment Corporation and the Systems Corporation than on repetitious and unproductive talk about ICBC and a minister's office carpet. Hansard these days reads more like the Harvard Lampoon or Mad Magazine in its better moments.

For intelligents and informed debate in the house, it is essential that all members of the house have advance notice of the subjects that the government wishes to introduce. At present, the house agenda - the orders of the day - are announced on the day; which makes it very difficult for the dedicated and well-intentioned MLA to contribute to debate in a constructive manner.

Advance publication of the orders of the day, might be one step towards a more productive government and a better use of the taxpayers money. As one MLA said in a private member's bill entitled 'The Overdue Bill' there should be a notice in every government office, reminding the occupants that "It is the taxpayers money." Perhaps that should all start with the legislature in Victoria.

From the Back Porch

Pete makes millyon, an' don't know it

A while back the wife an I has a slite disagreemint, wich is a perlite way of sayin' she lit into me like a bear with a sore tail - so I went up to Pete Svensen's ranch an Hardhat Johnson wus there.

We wus settin' at the table an Pete wus jest fixin' anuther hot rum wen there is a knock on the door an this lady ses Ding Dong Im the Avon Lady.

Hardhat ses wot the hell? an Pete ses sum wimmen are real dinagling, but he ain't heard about a Ding Dong before, so I explains.

Wimmen, I ses, jest aren't happy unless they are fixin' their hair er plasterin' themselves with stuff to make them smell purty. Why, I ses, in Africa they mix up a gud batch of mud fer fixin' hair an in Tibet they go fer Yak butter wich has set in the sun till it is gud an ripe.

You jest wudn't believe it, I ses, but in sum of them Ayrab places there ain't much water, so they foller the camels arount with a buckit an a comb an if the camel cooperates they have a real hair fixin' bee.

Do tell? ses Pete an Hardhat asts the lady where she has left her camel.

by Bill Clark

She is awful nice an ses she has sumthin' real gud fer armpits an we shud be purty gud fer a starter, wich she knowd soon as she opened the door.

Pete fixes her a hot rum an we all buy a few things fer Christmas presents wen she starts twitchin' arount an sniffin'.

Hardhat has left his old cruiser coat hangin' on the chair where she is settin' an he riz up an flang it arount her shoulders becus she is startin' to shiver, sort of.

It don't help, becus she starts shiverin' worser an her eyes is gettin' sorta shiny like. She asts Hardhat wot he has been sprayin' on the coat an he ses nuthin'.

Hardhat ses it us a dandy fer ten er fifteen years an it starts you sweatin' real quick wen it is down arount twenny below. Mebbe, he ses, it is the mickey of rum wot he had in the pockit an got bustid wen he wus tryin' to start the chain saw. On t'uther hand, he ses, that there side pockit is where he keeps his snoose box an it has cum open a few times over the years and split.

He is tryin' real hard, becus the lady is shur interestid which he cud tell frum the way she wus breathin', sorta quick like. So Hardhat ses there is mebbe sum horse linimint frum wen he fixed Jake Menzl's quarter horse wich went lame a wile back.

That's about it, he ses, except mebbe fer sum pine pitch frum wen he cleart the scrub pine back of the cabin an mebbe there is sum smoke frum campfires wich he has set arount with me an Pete fer years.

The lady riz up to go an Hardhat ses wot about his coat? an she ses she is gonna send him a nice new one if she can keep the one she has got on. Hardhat ses Shur, becuse she is still sorta shiverin', but wot the hell is she gonna do with his old one?

Well, she ses, fer starters she is gonna put it under her pillow fer a week.

Then wot? asts Pete.

Then, she ses, she is gonna cut out a chunk an send it into head office an if they can find wot's in it, they can make a millyun er two.

She is jest gettin' into the car wen Hardhat asts her if she knows where to send the new one.

Send it, Hell! she ses - I am gonna deliver it!

Tennis ploys backfire

By ARTHUR HOPPE

James Kilpatrick, who writes a newspaper column instead of finding honest work, reports that President Carter is a fiendishly clever tennis player who employs every trick in the book to destroy his opponent's game.

Not only does our President call foot faults on his competitors which is unheard of in social tennis, but when they are playing well he kindly advises them of what they are doing wrong.

From this, Mr. Kilpatrick concludes that Mr. Carter "bids fair to be the greatest president of them all," because "Jimmy Carter, dear friends, is my kind of crook."

Coming from Mr. Kilpatrick this is high praise indeed. But I fear he has made the cardinal error of confusing tennis with real life.

There is Mr. Carter, for example, about to sit down with Mr. Brezhnev to discuss nuclear disarmament. Naturally, Mr. Carter insists on spinning a coin to determine who will serve up his arugment first.

"Heads it is!" says Mr. Brezhnev triumphantly. "I'll serve."

"Okay," says Mr. Carter graciously, "then I'll take that side even though I'm afriad you'll have the sun directly in your eyes."

A grumbling Mr. Brezhnev and his advisors cart all their papers and charts around to the other side of the table. "Mr. President," he finally begins. "Our position is..."

"Hold it!" says Mr. Carter. "I have to tie my shoe."

Mr. Brezhnev, his patience waning, taps his fingers as Mr. Carter slowly ties his shoe. "A-hah!" says Mr. Carter. "I see you tap only the three middle fingers of your right hand. I'm no expert, mind you, but why don't you bring your little finger and thumb into the motion? Like this: Da-da-da-da-rup! Here, let me show you."

"Take your hands off me!" cries Mr. Brezhnev.

"Sorry, just trying to be helpful," says Mr. Carter, drawing back and accidentally spilling the water carafe over Mr. Brezhnev's favorite document. "Whoops!"

"By Lenin!" shouts Mr. Brezhnev, pounding the table. "We'll never give up our Backfire bombers for the likes of you!"

"A good move," says Mr. Carter. "But I think if you didn't clench your fist quite so tightly you'd get a louder thump. Here, try it again."

At this point, a ranting Mr. Brezhnev has to be dragged from the room by his aides. Mr. Carter goes home with a foxy smirk on his face — the psyche of another opponent utterly destroyed. He has several moments to savor his victory before the first of 1232 Intercontinental Samovar Missiles lands on our heads.

So you see what errors of judgement we are led into when we compare tennis with reality. After all, "tennis isn't a matter of life or death," as my old tennis mentor, John Gardiner, is fond of pointing out. "It's much more important than that."

Rhodesian and Namibian refugees in crowded camps

Editor, The Star, Sir,

The ever-growing violence and repression in Rhodesia, South Africa and Namibia have led to a great increase in the numbr of refugees, and especially of the young, who have fled into neighboring territories. There are now so many that the scanty resources of the host countries are inadequate. The London 'Observer' (May 29th '77) reports of one camp in Botswana: "At the end of last week, the camp contained almost 2,000 refugees, but there are only 913 blankets. Eight hundred of the refugees were sleeping in the open ... three hundred of them did not even have a piece of cardboard to cover themselves to keep out the cold." The 'Observer' estimates that about 800 fugitives arrive every week, so that shortages of shelter, clothing and food must grow worse without aid from outside.

In a large refugee camp in Angola, thousands of persons who have escaped from Rhodesia and Namibia were recently found to be existing without food of any sort save for canned bully beef. The immediate need is for food, clothing and tents, but there is also a need for the earliest possible provision of some education for the young people, so that they do not become demoralized and embittered by their exile. Many of the refugees are children as young as 7 and 8, and the schools of the host countries (Zambia, Tanzania, Angola, Botswana and Mozambique) are already over-strained with their own young people.

The Canada-Southern Africa Relief Committee has as its aims the providing of food and clothing, education, and medical and legal aid for children and their families who are victims of the unjust regimes in Rhodesia, South Africa and Namibia. We believe that many Canadians will wish to show in a practical way their belief in human freedom and dignity, and their abhorrence of the racial oppression which has brought so much suffering to Southern Africa. We invite those who are interested to send donations of money to:

Letters to the Editor

John Kelly defends Golf Club

Editor, The Star, Sir,

Did you notice last week how Mayor Driediger congratulated himself and the council for approving the relocation of the Langley Rod and Gun Club from 208 Street to a site on 264 Street? "This is one of the nicest things to happen in quite awhile," said the mayor in obvious self-approval.

Mr. Editor, it was one of the worst thought-out decisions this mayor and council have made in their term of office. Neither the mayor nor the members of council have anything to be proud of.

The mayor was gloating because he had used the gun club as a firing squad to shoot down the new 36-hole Aldergrove Golf and Country Club which he opposed. Driediger's opposition to the new golf complex was so emotional at times that it bordered on the irrational. He once asked me, "How do we know you won't sell it to Americans if we give you approval?" Since Langley has a bylaw against moving topsoil, it frankly hadn't occured to me to build the golf course in Langley and ship it to the U.S. That remark by the mayor showed that his opposition to the golf course was based on his evaluation of me and what I might do to the golf course after I had built it.

The mayor incorrectly believed that I had abandoned the Shamrock Golf course on 232 Street and that the members of that golf club had been swindled, when in fact I had acutally reimbursed them all in full when a company formed by the members of the club bought the golf course from me in 1971. The members of the club took possession in 1971. I haven't had anything to do with it since, so the mayor was wrong on both counts. His view of the demise of the Shamrock Golf course was so distorted that he was almost paranoid about preventing me from doing what he mistakingly believed I had done before. That's called persecution. Ignorance begets arrogance and arrogance begets persecution.

The mayor's attitude rubbed off on council. It wasn't long before the council thought it should regulate matters which are none of its business. The council put roadblock after roadblock in my path and insisted that I supply them with a strata title prospectus and a feasibility study before they would consider final approval for the golf course clubhouse. The council was treating me like I was a proven crooked developer. The mayor insisted that his view of the facts of the Shamrock golf course be made part of the council's thinking on the proposed Aldergrove Golf and Country Club. It was irrelevant and wrong, but the council did what the mayor wanted. They stalled and stalled. Three members of council were sent to see the owners of the golf course land to try and pressure them into giving the council a financial guarantee that I would build the two 18-hole golf courses before I built the clubhouse. I had already assured council several times that the golf courses would be built first. Ald. Blair reminded the council that I had made that commitment earlier. When I wouldn't give up, they refused to reach a decision despite their promise to do so. The owners of the land had promised to grant me another option. We were waiting for the council's decision. The owners knew what was up. After all, they had had a private conference with three council members. The council was planning to stall me indefinitely. When the gun club offered to buy the property, the owners accepted.

Mr. Editor, the reason the mayor praised himself and his council is not because the council had done its part to make the gun club relocation fall nicely into place; he was happy that he had cooked by goose and believed he had seen the last of me. He ain't seen nothin' yet. Despite the council's promise to reconsider the residential clubhouse and make its decision on June 6, they haven't made the clubhouse decision to this day. Tired of waiting for the council to decide on my proposal, the owners of the 305 acres granted an option to the gun club to buy the centre 156 acres of the golf course site, thus destroying the two 18-hole golf courses in one fell sweep.

Then on July 18, this year the council "in committee" rezoned the gun club's 40 acre property on 208 Street from "municipal freeze" to trailer park use. Naturally, the value skyrocketed. Do you wonder, Mr. Editor, if someone had previously taken an option on the gun club 40 acres? Yes, indeed, Mr. Editor, shortly before it was rezoned.

Two days after council's rezoning decision, the gun club met to approve the sale of the gun club property to the undisclosed option holder for $1,200,000.00 and to approve the purchase of 156 acres of the 305 acre golf course site.

Five days later, the council gave approval to the gun club to move to the 264 Street site. In doing so the council broke its resolution allowing me to use the land as a golf course. There are now two council approvals out on the same piece of land, a golf club and a gun club.

These are the events in their correct sequence, Mr. Editor.

As you know, Ald. Lee expressed his disapproval of the council's action and expressed regret that he had taken a holiday out of the country while it was all being done. He believed the proposed 36 hold golf course should not have been sacrificed just to provide a new home for the gun club. Ald. Blair agreed. "Why can't we have both?" they asked.

Ald. Blair did not wish to vote against his friends in the gun club, so he suggested that they look for a site that was really useless for anything else and leave this site for the golf course. When I heard that the gun club was dickering on the golf course site, I offered to help them loopk for an alterante site so that they wouldn't destroy the golf course. I had hoped that the gun club would pick up the 160 acres of municipal bush in behind the golf club. It is going to waste as it is.

Being an old scattergunner myself, I recognize the need in a community for a place where shotgunners can enjoy safe, organized shooting once in awhile. One of my golfing friends has been in England shooting for Canada's rifle team as part of the Jubilee. My wife's father is a gunsmith. We are all for the gun club having a first rate facility, but why kill off the golf course in the process?

Throughout the world, golf courses are welcome wherever they are built. A 36 hole golf course breathes out enough oxygen every day for 40,000 people. Golf courses give relief from barbed wire fences and "no trespassing" signs. They are noiseless neighbors. They do not intrude on others. They enhance the neighborhood and provide permanent jobs. The proposed golf course would have created sixteen new jobs, Mr. Editor, and would have provided Langley with the largest lawn in Canada, for there is no other public golf course that would be its equal. Imagine having Canada's largest public golf course and gun club side by side. Why would the council let such an opportunity slip through its fingers?

I think it's a pity that the council followed the mayor's lead to give approval to the gun club to take a 156-acre bite out of the golf course and thereby destroy the golf course, while a 160 acre wooded site lays fallow in behind. It does not seem to be a well thought out way to look after both the golfers and the rod and gunners of Langley. A 465-acre facility for both makes a whole lot more sense.

The gun club still has time to withdraw its offer to buy the 156 acres and buy the municipality's 160 acres next door. If the mayor really believes that that area is a good location for the gun club, he can prove it by assisting the gun club in acquiring the municipality's quarter section.

It would be a feather in the council's cap if they made the municipal site available to the gun club and left the 305 acre Gibson site to the Aldergrove Golf and Country Club. That way everybody wins.

Thank you, Mr. Editor, for allowing me to present my views to your readers.

CONSCIENCE AND COMMENT

Colson - born again

By Rev. K. NEILL FOSTER

In the recent convention of the Christian Booksellers Association it was our privilege to hear Charles Colson, former White House hatchet man and now a best-selling author.

Colson is a large man physically who at one time had a great deal of influence in America. Now, after a Watergate prison term, his political power is gone. But his real and abiding influence may be on the rise. His book Born Again has hit one million copies and his stint in prison has given him a profound concern for the 300,000 Americans behind bars.

Effecting changes that are permanent among the inmates is a vast undertaking, and we wish Mr. Colson well. But Chuck Colson did not spare the thousands of publishers and booksellers in his audience either. Religion and the "born again" emphasis, he told the crowd, were never more popular than today. But public morality, he said, is on the decline. Apparently there is not a vital relationship between the religion professed and the life lived.

St. Paul described such a state of affairs as "having a form of godliness but denying the power thereof."

So it seems the current wave of evangelical enthusiasm is not new. Nor has a single thing changed. The gate into the Kingdom is still strait. The way is narrow. And few really go in thereat!

Choir to perform at Lutheran church

ABBOTSFORD — A high school and college age choir with 50 singers under the direction of Ron Perry will be performing at Trinity Lutheran Church here on Monday, August 15 at 8:00 p.m.

The visitors are from Emanuel Lutheran Church in LaNalra, California.

Trinity Lutheran is situated at the corner of Marshall and Cherry Roads.

Aldergrove Gospel film schedule

Interantional Films will present the Italian motion picture Getting It Together at 7:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday at the Aldergrove Gospel Chapel. In addition, there will be a brief account of a spiritual awakening amongst Italian people in New York state.

Three other films are scheduled for the summer weekends at the chapel during August.

Step over the Edge will be shown at 7:30 p.m. August 13 and 14, produced in connection with the Wheaton College Vanguard program.

Senior Year will prepare young people and their parents for the forthcoming schoolyear, to be shown at 7:30 p.m. August 20 and 21.

For August 27 and 28, Bernard Palmer's Son is the provocative and penetrating true story of the well-known author of the Danny Orliss series.

Interantional Films, Inc. has produced films since 1963, with the wholehearted co-operation of Europeans, Africans, Asians and Latin Americans; and has found them spontaneously accepted in every land - in primitive villages as well as in ultra-modern cities.

Admission is free and all will be welcome to attend these motion pictures during August at the Aldergrove Gospel Chapel, located between the Aldergrove senior secondary school and 264 Street.

Do you live in Aldergrove ?

ALDERGROVE — Do you live in the Aldergrove area? There is a way out

By STANLEY H. CHURCHILL

What can one do when faced with an emergency situation, to which, after vainly exhausting every available human means, there remains no way out, no way of escape?

There are many thousands who, from their own experience, would answer that hopeless question with one word - "Pray!" What they are really saying is - "Ask God. Appeal that verdict of no hope, no way out. Take it to our All - knowing, All-powerful, All-loving, Ever-present Heavenly Father!" But immediately come the doubts and fears - "This trouble is terribly urgent and real. I need help, right now. How is praying going to help?"

One bitterly cold winter evening in Alberta a number of years ago a man arrived at his destination - a coal mine out in the country - only to find that every space in the big stable provided for customers had been taken, leaving no place for his four horses. The temperature bade fair to drop to the -45 degrees below zero mark before morning, and it was unthinkable that those horses would have to be left out all night, hungry and weary as they were from the all-day trip of 35 miles.

It was far from any town, but across the road was a farm, with stables and outbuildings. However, his inquiry met with a curt refusal from the farmer, who said he had taken in all his own stock due to the cold, and he had no room left for more. Returning to where the team stood, still mhitched to the sleighs, he then reached out with all his heart in prayer to God. He did not plead with God for a miracle, but instead joyfully affirmed that God does provide all neeful things for all His creatures, including those horses. Also, at the same time he denied the cruel evidence of the human senses that there was no shelter for them. It was reassuring to remember a sentence from the Christian Science textbook, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, by Mary Baker Eddy, which reads, "Divine Love always has met and always will meet every human need." (p. 494). Right there was a terribly urgent human need! Perhaps six or seven minutes were spent in this prayerful knowing that God was in control, when there came to him a definite guidance to go back and see the farmer again.

This he resisted - had he not just been there, and had been refused in no uncertain terms? But again came that direction, "Go back and see that farmer." It was so powerful he stopped arguing against it, and started off to obey. As he was going, there came a warm, comforting feeling that all was well - a joyful, wonderful certainty. When he reached the farmer, he asked, "Are you sure you do not have room for my horses tonight?"

"Why, yes!" was the reply, now in cordial tones. "One of my men phoned me from town just minutes ago to say it is too cold to come home tonight, and he will keep his team in the town livery barn. I have room for four horses." You may be sure no time was wasted until all four had been made secure and comfortable for the night!

Going back to the question we started with, there are times we need to remember - and believe! - the promise Christ Jesus gives us in Matt. 10:25: "With men this is impossible; but with God all things are possible."

The prophet Isaiah relates another of God's promises in these words, "It shall come to pass, that before they call, I will answer; and while they are yet speaking, I will hear." (Is. 65:24).

Ron Eaton takes super stock championship

LANGLEY — The final race of the B.C. Carlings O'Keefe Unlimited Super Stock Championship series was held at Langley Speedway on Sunday. George Stuart of Campbell River won the battle as he took the main but Ron Eaton won the war placing second in the main, and winning the overall points in the series.

Meanwhile back at the races, Dennis Brosseau won the claimer "B" trophy dash and Bjorn Illingby the "A". Jim Stratichuk took the super stock "B" dash, narrowly beating out Langley's Bob Nairne, who has had his car out for only two weeks. Tony Johnson of Victoria won the "A" dash.

Ross Surgenor of Victoria beat out Roy Haslam, also from Victoria and Johnie Rothwell of Delta in the fast heat. Then the "B" heat got out onto the track and it looked like Jim Stratichuk was going to win his second race of the day until he, Gordie Hemrich and another driver spun into the turn four wall putting Stratichuk and the other car out of the race and Gordie one lap down. Then Aldergrove's Alex Praisley took command with his buddy, Bob Nairne, running close behind and that's the way the race ended, giving Alex his first win of the year.

The consolation heat saw Surrey's Al Tourond winning with Ron Eaton, the series winner, second and Dave Dalby third.

In the super stock main Ross Surgenor had the lead off the top and kept it for a while. In lap six Buddy Lynds and the turn one wall had a meeting as one of the mags on his car snapped. A borrowed tire and some fast work got him back in the race. All went well until lap 23 when Tony Johnson spun also in turn one and he still continued. Then in lap 35 Ross Surgenor was trapped behind a slower car as he was trying to get by, and George Stuart passed him and then Roy Haslam also passed him, and into third place he went. It stayed that way until lap 53 when Ron Eaton went by too, and that's the way things ended: George Stuart first, Roy Haslam second, Ron Eaton third, and Ross Surgenor fourth.

The claimers rolled out next, if thats what you could call it. The claimer main event was scheduled to go 30 laps but it only made 20. They started with 22 cars and ended with six! With the demolition derby they decided to have, Langley's Paul Gendron was one of the smart ones even though it was unintentional, he got black flagged. Other than that all the 13 cars that went out were mechanical or accidents.

The race was halted at 20 laps and Wayne Baber was the winner with Bjorn Illingby second and Gordon Harding third.

Come out next Saturday night and see more Langley Speedway action. (See advertisement).

Aldergrove's Alex Praisley came out of a three year retirement this year. He won the "B" heat this last Sunday for his first win since 1973. Alex also made it into the top ten in the B.C. Carling O'Keefe super stock series, and is also in the top five in Langley Speedway points for the year. Weaver Photo

Brill on hectic schedule

EDMONTON — Aldergrove native Debbie Brill, perhaps Canada's best chance for a medal at the World Cup in Duesseldorf, West Germany next month, took her first step with an easy victory of 1.85 metres in the women's high jump at the Canadian World Student Games and World Cup track and field trials held here Saturday and Sunday.

Brill will be leading a hectic schedule for the next few weeks. She will attend the American World Cup trials at Guadaljara August 10-12 before competing at Sofia in the Student Games August 12 to 28.

The World Cup is scheduled for Duesseldorf, September 3-4.

Two local trophy winners

ALDERGROVE — Two recent imports from Surrey are bound to show up on the coming year's little league baseball roster.

Andrew and Roland St. Jean moved to Aldergrove with their parents recently and have located at 6229 - 256 Street.

In the Surrey-West league last year, Andrew, 8, was a member of a team which walked away with both the league and playoff championships.

His brother Roland Jr., 10, played for a team which also took a league championship.

The St. Jeans have been in B.C. since Christmas and have been in the Aldergrove area for just over a month.

Their original home was Toronto.

Mission holds first night race

On Saturday afternoon and evening July 30th, Mission Raceway held its first evening race. The race was limited to E.T. (Elapsed Time) Brackets, for muffled cars only. The turnout of cars and the spectator response was very good and has encouraged us to try it again. It will be run this Saturday, with the track opening at 3:00 p.m. for Tech inspection, practice and Grudge racing. The E.T. Brackets will be run starting at 6:30 p.m. and all cars must have mufflers.

At this past Saturdays race a good variety of cars turned out, from a 9 second Dragster to a 25 second compact car. Many of the regular race cars that came out with mufflers on found that their cars ran even faster with the mufflers. The most significant thing about this race was the number of cars that came in off the street. The E.T. Brackets are designed basically for the part time racer and street car. The aim of this program is to get the young drivers off the back roads and onto the track where they should be doing their racing. The E.T. Brackets fit right in as their is no advantage to have a high buck race car, as the prime factor in E.T. racing is consistency, not speed.

The most pleasing sight at the track was all of the so-called Street Racers who were there for the first time, many of them when asked said it did make more sense racing on the Drag Strip.

It would seem that the race started to produce the desired effect, that of reducing the amount of racing on the streets.

The spectators and racers were treated to something special when Washington's Chuck Swift showed up with his Dodge Wheelstander, and made a couple of unexpected runs.

A second feature this weekend will be the second annual Volkswagen "Bug In" Sunday, Aug. 7th. The various types of events (Drages, Slalom etc.) are open to Volkswagons only, although spectators are welcome. Cars are expected from as far away as California.

Qualifying and practice will start at 9:00 a.m. with the final eliminations at 1:00 p.m.

"Drag racing is not street racing". "Do it on the strip - not on the street."

July 30th results are as follows: Pro Bracket: winner - Gary McBoyle of N. Van., runner up - Chris Clifford of Delta.

Bracket #2 - winner, Dave Ferguson, Surrey, runner up, Harold Lockerby of Surrey.

Bracket #3 winner Ken Burns, Port Moody, runner up Ron Parr, Surrey.

'Indigestion and patent medicines

Different people associate different symptoms with indigestion the Canadian Medical Association reports.

The most common symptoms are pain in the stomach and chest, fullness or bloating in the abdomen, an excessive amount of gas, heartburn, loss of appetite and even nausea. Most people find these symptoms occurring soon after meals, and more frequently after eating certain foods. Sometimes they associate headache and constipation with indigestion.

There are many patent medicines available without prescription which are supposed to be useful in the relief of any or all of these symptoms. The three main groups are antacids, laxative and headache remedies.

Antacids are taken to counteract the effect of the hydrochloric acid normally present in the stomach. Taking large amounts of antacid may, however, disturb the chemical balance of the body and cause such complications as kidney stones.

The constant taking of laxatives to relieve constipation may interfere with the absorption from the intestine of vitamins and other important food factors.

Some of the drugs commonly used in headache tablets have been shown to cause inflammation of the kidneys.

The C.M.A. says, these are but three examples of why it is unwise for people to administer to themselves large amounts of patent medicines. The other very important factor, of course, is that the symptoms they are treating may be due to an underlying disease. It would be more sensible for the individual to consult his doctor.

Amateur open jackpot rodeo

The Langley Riders Society announce that September 10 and 11, 1977 are the dates set for their next rodeo. This will be an OPEN JACKPOT RODEO which means anyone can enter and that the entry fees will be jackpotted with monies paid to fourth place. By CATHY WATERFIELD

The Otter District 4-H Horse Club held its first achievement day since the forming of the club last Sunday, July 24 at the Cloverdale fairgrounds.

The day started out with showmanship followed by English equatation and pleasure and then western equatation and pleasure in the morning. During the time of these classes a trial class was being judged in the upper ring of the fairgrounds.

The afternoon consisted of a fun day, with such games as barrels, poles, the rescue race and we even had harum scarum jumping and stadium jumping.

A lot of thanks goes to our judge for the day Mrs. Dorothy Todhunter. The trail judge Mrs. Reynett, our club leader Mrs. Belva Grovue, our co-leader Mrs. Cally Blamire and all of the parents who helped set up jumps, time and be ringmaster.

We would also like to congratulate Lesley Brooke, who was unable to ride in our achievement day because of a lame horse, but achieved anyway because of her efforts of showing up at achievement day and judging day the following Monday.

We are all looking forward to helping the PNE contestants get ready for the big show at the PNE from August 31 to September 5.

The eight club members participating from our club this year are Valerie Blamire, Brenda Grouvue, Todd Waterfield, Andrea Blamire, Jennifer Brooke, Anne Starr, Linda Samilus and Cathy Waterfield. In reserve is Paul Heathcote.

In order to achieve the club also had to participate in Judging Day which was the following Monday, July 25. Each member had to judge three types of livestock, which consisted of horses, jersey, beef cattle, goats, sheeps, swine, rabbits for chickens.

We would like to thank Mr. and Mrs. Heathcote for providing horses for judging day and also Vikki Fowler for judging the horses on judging day.

We would also like to thank the Central Fraser Valley Agricultural Association for inviting us to their fair last Friday, July 29. It was a great time and was enjoyed by all.

Following are the results of the Otter 4-H Achievement Day.

STAR RECIPE OF THE WEEK

LIME PEAR JELLY

2 - 3 oz. pkg. Shirriff Lime Jelly Desert
1 - 14 oz. can pear halves
2 cups boiling water
cold water
1 cup cottage cheese

Drain pears.

Prepare jelly desert according to package directions incorporating pear juice in liquid.

Pour half jelly into a 6 cup ring mould and leave until just set.

Arrange all but 1 pear half on the jelly around the mould, pour over remaining jelly and chill until firm - about 3 hours.

Chop up remaining pear half and mix with cottage cheese.

Unmould jelly and fill centre with cottage cheese and pear mixture.

Serves 8.

SAVORY POTATO PEPPERS

6 medium green peppers
6 strips bacon, cooked and crumbled
⅓ cup chopped green pepper
1 small onion, chopped
1 lb. ground beef
¾ cup Shirriff Mashed Potato Flakes
1 - 15 oz. can tomato sauce
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. sweet basil
1 tsp. marjoram

Topping:

1 tbsp. butter, melted
¼ cup Shirriff Mashed Potato Flakes

Preheat oven to 375 F.

Remove small slice from top of each pepper and remove seeds.

Saute green pepper and onion in bacon drippings. Add ground beef and brown. Stir in tomato sauce, bacon, seasonings and potato flakes. Mix well.

Spoon mixture into green peppers and place in baking pan. Add ½" water to pan. Cover and bake 30 minutes.

Remove cover. Top peppers with mixture of potato flakes and butter. Bake 15 minutes until topping is browned.

Serves 6.

Dr. Bob Young

Physiotherapy is frenquently prescribed as adjunctive, and sometimes the only treatment for a variety of disorders. Men and women trained in this discipline are important providers of health care.

Physiotherapy uses physical means to treat disease, illness, and injury. Exercises, heat, water, sound and electronic waves are some of the modalities used to relieve discomfort and increase mobility.

Perhaps physio is used most to ease pain and improve range of motion, but it can also improve circulation, correct deformities, and strengthen muscles. It is frequently of major value in shortening rehabilitation time after industrial and other accidents, allowing workers to return to their jobs much sooner.

Physiotherapy is of considerable value to the post-surgical patient, being used to improve lung function (a service now frequently performed by a respiratory technologist instead), and to help the patient regain muscular strength. Physiotherapy is an important part of the treatment of strokes, and is used after fractures and joint injuries.

Most of us think of exercise when we think of physiotherapy. Passive exercise is movement of a paralysed or very weak area by the therapist. With improvement, assistive exercise is used, in which the patient contributes some of the effort. Free or active exercise is the next step, followed by resistive exercise where the part is moved while carrying added weight or other resistance.

There are several forms of hydortherapy. Wet heat and wet cold are often used in the treatment of arthritis and joint injury. Ice packs and hot packs, whirlpool baths, Hubbard tanks (which are like a large bathtub), and even swimming pools are used.

Dry heat is available from heating pads and hot water bottles. More sophisticated methods include infrared heating, diathermy which uses radio waves, and ultrasound, which provides heat to deeper tissues.

Ultraviolet light is also occasionally used by physiotherapists, usually for treatment of skin conditions.

Finally, functional training is provided - teaching the patient to use the damaged muscles and joints in the best possible way for walking, working, and normal day to day activity.

DESIGN TODAY

Bathrooms — for the body and soul

Believe it or not...not all bathrooms are a tangle of drying "undies", hairpins and rubber ducks!! Some bathrooms are exotic, erotic or just plain wild - like the ducks that are real and live in their own adjoining pond! Now you may not be eccentric enough to share your morning shick with a dozen quackers, but bathrooms are becoming a favorite people place!

A place to preen your feathers away from the rest of the flock means privacy, a bathroom that at most is shared by your mate. If you have any choice about its location, pick an outside wall that offers as much light, seclusion and view as possible...and don't skimp on the size. Bathrooms are getting bigger and you'll need something more than a broom closet to really make it function.

Start with four pieces of plumbing, not three. The bidet has finally arrived in America while in Europe its been in use for years. (In fact its not unusual in many European hotels to have three pieces in your bathroom and hike along several miles of corridors in search of the "toilette"). Counter space with electrical outlets (codes permitting) will give you a working surface for the electrical grooming aids that are now so popular, if the sink is placed near the end rather than the middle of the counter. Many sinks are small and poorly designed for anything more than getting a glass of water. Make sure the tap extends well into the middle of the sink and the water isn't inclined to jump out of the bowl when turned on full force.

The bathtub can easily be given a setting the Romans would have loved! A platform of two steps on the sides - all three if you can position it away from more than one wall, will give the appearance of a "sunken" tub, which surrounded by plants can turn into a tropical pool. With a separate shower, plants can be suspended from the ceiling and will flourish in the abundance of light and humidity!

Drop windows to the floor if you can and provide privacy outside rather than inside by a rockery, brick or cedar "screen". Turn the area into a Japanese garden or a private sunbathing patio that inside, you can enjoy the year round.

Carpet, books, piped in music, wood panelled walls, mirrored walls and chaneliers can survive as nicely in the bathroom as any other room.

Sound extravagant? Not at all, when years later most bathrooms have to undergo costly remodeling. Besides, ducks are very fussy about what they call home!

GARDENING IN THE VALLEY

A good year for tomatoes

by Don Anson

I think we can safely say that this year will be a better year for tomatoes than last year. Tomatoes revel in the sun and it seems we are getting more sunshine and less rain than last year.

It is only comparatively recently that toms were grown outdoors. For many years they were considered to be a greenhouse crop only. Now we have hundreds of varieites that can safely be grown outside. Provided a few general rules are observed, there is no reason why anyone cannot grow a good crop outside.

Contrary to some belief, tomatoes do not require a very rich soil. But they do like plenty of humus worked deep into the ground. Their roots go down a long way and these roots revel in a soil that retains moisture. If their roots go dry all kinds of problems arise. In fact, most of our problems with tomatoes arise from too little moisture at the roots. Tomatoes can be successfully grown by hydroponics, that is by dispensing with soil and growing them in water that has been treated with carefully balanced chemical nutrients. I don't believe the taste of these hydroponically grown toms is as good as those grown in soil but at least they grow well this way. And we can learn from this.

Tomatoes do not like an excess of nitrogen. This will promote far too much leaf at the expense of fruit. Those of you who have used plenty of poultry manure in the soil will have found this out.

Tomatoes require more phosphates and potash than they do nitrogen so if you are giving them a dressing of fertilizer, make sure the second two numbers in the bag of fertilizer are high and the first number small. I believe that all tomatoes plants are better if staked. In the first place they are much easier to attend to and the fruit does not get muddied by rain splash and the lower leaves do not lie on the soil surface and attract pests.

Here are a few pointers that I advise you to do now:

- At least once a week, preferrably twice, remove all shoots formed between main stem and leaves. Also remove any new growth coming up from the base and that which sometimes even comes from the leaves themselves and the ends of the fruit stems.
- Don't remove any leaves as sometimes advised to allow the fruit more sun. The fruit will ripen without direct rays from the sun and the leaves perform a definite function.
- Make a shallow basin around each plant so that water does not run away and around this basin place a mulch about two inches thick. This must be done after a deep soaking.
- Water whenever the top two inches of soil have dried out and always water the soil only, never the plant itself.
- Every two weeks give the plant some nutrition. It is best to use a liquid proprietary mixture of which several are available at any garden shop. These, of course, will be high in phosphates and potash and low in nitrogen. Don't overdo the feeding or do it too frequently.
- Don't tie too tightly to stakes. This can injure the plant.
- Watch out for pests and take appropriate action immediately.
- Before first frosts are expected, lift the whole plant and hang it upside down in a dry, airy place in the sun. The fruit will ripen and have a better flavor than if picked when green and ripened indoors.

Question:

As a visitor from England I would like to know (1) is it possible to take back some blueberry cuttings (2) what type (3) how to go about rooting them?

J.L. Warne
R.R. 6 Box 17
Aldergrove

Answer:

You would first have to get a permit to take plants out of the country. Blueberries require a very acid soil with plenty of peat. They may not grow well on your North Sea coast but if you can get the permit, I suggest trying Rubel Rancocas or Concord. Blueberries are usually grown from hardwood cuttings but they don't root easily. Softwood cuttings taken in July are sometimes used. These should be four to six inches long and, after dipping in a hormone solution should be inserted in a rooting medium of half damp sand and half damp peat moss. I think you would do far better by buying Blueberry plants from a nursery or garden shop.

ENTERTAINMENT

COWBOYS CANCEL

Big acts to come

The Cement City Cowboys show at the Bow Fiddler Cabaret was an experiment that bombed. The popular and music award-winning foot-stompers were not a hit with local patrons and were cancelled following the first night's performance, on Tuesday.

Owners of the new night-spot explain that they are still "feeling out the local market," and apparently a straight-ahead country act is not commercially saleable. Stonebolt a five-piece rock band, were contracted to take over the last two nights of the cowboys show and are carried over till this Saturday.

Stonebolt provide a solid beat, featuring their own material as well as Pablo Cruise, Boz Scaggs and Jeff Beck. Their musicianship was capable, if not overwhelming.

The lead singer worked hard for his keep throughout the evening, but the highlight of their performance came during a later set when the band let loose with an instrumental featuring moog synthesizer and fast-paced lead guitar work behind a phlanx of echoplexes, fuzztone and other assorted paraphernalia.

Owners of the club are working on engagements with "name" Canadian and international musicians in an effort to provide Langley with its own version of the "Old Roller Rink" or "Commodore Night Club". (Incidentally, the Bow Fiddler is also a former roller skating rink, although subsequent renovations have hidden traces of this past). If the owners have the savvy to book the right acts, the door take should cover the cost of these more expensive musicians, and the Fraser Valley will be the better for it. An immense pool of talent is available for smaller club stands, and although not all of them provide boogie dance music, they hold some share of the public's respect and admiration.

We look forward to the possibilities.

BACK TO KAMLOOPS

Chico and the band nearing close

SUMAS PRAIRIE — Chico and The Band, a middle of the road cabaret band with a light jazz style is rounding off its two week booking at Davy Crockett cabaret this coming weekend.

The Kamloops band came into the Fraser Valley for this two-week stint and will return to their hometown as soon as the booking ends.

Bass player Rob Dachscherer says the group sometimes has trouble finding bookings in the lower populated regions and were very glad to be able to get the Davy Crocket gig. He explained that jazz groups generally have to travel into major cities to find a market for their material.

Regulars at this Sumas Prairie club, however, seem to find the light jazz style to their liking. The establishment, which is one of the few in the Fraser Valley serving full course meals, is a cozy and friendly atmosphere in which light jazz seems to create a pleasant mood for dining and dancing.

Dachscherer, in conversation with The Star confided that he and the other members of the group often discuss the possiblity of trying the southern California market.

He pointed out that entertainment in that area is much more varied and audiences are used to a much wider variety of styles. He admitted that competition is tougher, but added that "you can't beat them if you aren't there."

Exhibition of art from Quebec coming to town

Quebec Art: Past and Present, a travelling exhibition organized by the Extension Department of The Vancouver Art Gallery, will be shown locally at The Langley Exhibition Centre, Mavis and King Streets, Fort Langley from August 4th - September 2nd, 1977.

This exhibition is specifically designed to give people some insight into the development of Quebec culture. At this point in our history it might be a good idea to take a closer look at the work of Quebec's artists. In fact, one of the most important political documents ever published in Quebec was an artistic manifesto (Refus Global, by P-E Borduas in 1948).

Regardless of your politics however, there is something for everyone in this exhibition. Spring Thaw, Quebec Village by Clarence Gagnon is a beautifully graphic landscape somewhat reminiscent of the work of the Group of Seven. Or perhaps one might prefer the bright, optical Accelerateur Chromatique by Claude Tousignant. Then again, there is the almost childlike quality of L'Arrivee de Jacques Cartier by Arthur Villeneuve. A wide range of artforms is featured, including painting, sculpture, and graphics. This timely show is one of the most ambitious yet undertaken by The Vancouver Art Gallery's Extension Department and should appeal to a wide audience.

This exhibition is made possible by the National Museums Corporation of Canada.

Hours: 10-5 Monday thru Saturday. 2-5 Sunday.

Admission is free!

Abby Concert band marches on

The Abbotsford Concert Band played eight concerts and took part in four parades during its six-day visit to the Klondike Days festivities in Edmonton, July 19 to 25.

The 47-piece band under conductor Alex Brickwood, of Chilliwack, marched in the three-mile Klondike Days parade which featured 20 bands from the U.S., Britain and the western provinces.

The band also took part in three parades at the downtown intersection of 100th Street and Jasper Avenue.

Concerts included the Exhibition Grounds the Aberhart hospital, Fort Edmonton Historical Park and the Edmonton Zoo.

The band performed at the start of the Sourdough Raft Race on the North Saskatchewan River which featured 140 rafts.

Two concerts were played at the Edmonton Civic Centre.

The band travelled to Edmonton by charter bus stayed at Lister Hall on the campus of the University of Alberta.

Future activities include the Chilliwack Agricultural Fair, August 15 and concerts at Powell River, August 20 and 21.

ABBY ROAD ENDS SATURDAY

Manager looks to Bowser Moon

ABBOTSFORD — The management of International Fun Palace, this town's rockingest night spot, was looking forward to seeing Bowser Moon grace its stage this week.

Manager John Laduks, confided last week that the Beatles act "Abbey Road" had not lived up to expectations.

He said the club had booked the Toronto foursome through Bruce Allen Agencies when that agency told him that his first choice was unobtainable.

Laduks first choice had been a group called "Liverpool" which is noted for being one of the finest Beatle acts in the business.

Abbey Road began their booking on a strange note. Rythm guitar player David Adamson became a father in the middle of the first night's show and as a result the band did not play beyond the first set, to enable Adamson to join his wife at MSA general hospital.

Laduks expressed that this was natural, and just one of those things, but he did say that he had expected an extra special performance from the band for the rest of the week.

What he got, was not extra special, however. The band continued to start sets late and end them early for the rest of the week, and although the faithful regulars at the club kept up their patronage to a respectable level, it was obvious that there was not enough stage presence to excite the audience into any type of frenzy.

Laduks said he feels things will be different with Bowser Moon. Bowser Moon has a good track record wherever it plays and is a welcome regular at the Palace.

The new band will be playing the Palace until Saturday.

REGISTRATION

MUNICIPAL VOTER'S LIST

Registration for the Municipal Voters List for the November election closes at 5:00 p.m. on Wednesday, August 31st, 1977.
Declarations may be filed at the Clerk's Office, Municipal Hall, 4914 - 221st Street, Langley, during regular office hours of 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., Monday to Friday, inclusive.
To qualify for the Voters' List, persons must be eligible as follows:
1. Residents - A person must have resided in Langley Municipality for the past 3 months, and in British Columbia for the past six months and in Canada for the past twelve months, must be 19 years of age or over, and be a Canadian citizen or other British subject.
2. Non-Resident Owner - A person who is not a resident of Langley but is the owner of real property in Langley Municipality and has resided in British Columbia for the past six months and in Canada for the past twelve months, and is 19 years of age or over, and a Canadian citizen or other British subject, may file a declaration to be placed on the Voters' List.
3. Corporations - Corporations which own real property in the Municipality of Langley and which have all shares or more than 50 percent of the voting shares owned or controlled by one individual or one individual and one or more members of his family, may be placed on the Voters' List provided they file a written authorization naming a person 19 years of age or over, a Canadian citizen or other British subject, to be its agent to vote on behalf of the Corporation. No Corporation is entitled to appoint an agent if the Corporation is controlled by an individual who is a resident or owner of real property in Langley Municipality. Forms for Corporations to complete in this regard may be obtained from the Clerk's Department.
4. Persons who were enumerated in 1974 or who have registered since the Municipal election of 1974 are not required to file another declaration.

A view over the 4-H club barns on Sumas Prairie which last Thursday and Friday was the scene of several 4-H clubs achievement day.

The barns - show rings and riding arenas are all built by 4-H clubbers, leaders and parents with donations from interested business people.

It is a wonderful complex for the kids to use year round for their playdays and shows.

It was quite a site last week to see 6-700 kids with their animals including goats, dairy and beef cattle to horses.

Judy Mills was presented with a framed certificate making her an honorary member of the 4-H Junior Council at achievement day held on Sumas Prairie Thursday and Friday, involving 4-H clubs from Aldergrove, Matsqui, Abbotsford, Mt. Lehman and Sumas.

You want a guts machine? You've got to build it that way.

There's another Canada out there. A Canada that begins where the pavement ends. A place where the premium is on performance. This is a Canada most people never see, because there's no place for second best in man or machine.

Scout II will get you there. It will get you through, under, over or around darn near anything. Bring on the roughest country, mix it up any way you like, and your Scout II will chew it up and spit it out.

Selective 4-wheel drive is one reason why.

When you get into the boonies, engage your two-speed transfer case, or the only dash-mounted 4-wheel-drive conversion knob, and let her rip. Automatic-locking hubs mean you don't even have to get out to get 4-wheelin'.

Scout isn't tough by accident. An 11-inch clutch, front disc and rear self-adjusting drum brakes, and all-steel welded construction (fully dipped to rustproof), are all standard on the Scout II.

Scout engines range from the economical slant-4 to the fire-breathing 345 V-8. International even offers a diesel option.

And interior comfort is deluxe, with optional custom decor and rear folding seat. Exterior accents are available to personalize your "4-wheeler".

We've got many other options for show or go, work or play, including 10-15 LT LRB tires, air conditioning, AM/FM, 8-track stereo, 7-position tilt wheel, heavy duty step bumper, and more.

See us at Kish, and we'll show you the Canada others are passing by.

Cominco: tours for all seasons

By OLGA OSING

No matter what the season, there is always a tour at Cominco, the largest lead and zinc smelter plant in the world.

There are tours of the metallurgical plants and tours of the chemical and fertilizer plant — all located on the mightly Columbia River's banks in Trail.

In a word, the tours are "educational", a mine field of information about the smeltering process.

Cominco's history goes back to 1895 — to the boom days in nearby Rossland when one mine after another made high grade strikes.

The news spread through the investment markets of the world and people streamed to the area. Among them was 26-year-old F. Augustus Heinze from Montana. He built a smelter on Trail Creek Landing of the Columbia River. A year later it went into operation treating Rossland ores.

In 1906, the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company was formed by the amalgamation of a number of southeastern British Columbia mines, the Rossland Power Company and the Canadian Smelting Works. Seven years later the company purchased the Sullivan Mine in Kimberley, one of the world's largest lead-zinc ore producers.

Years later the company's name was changed to Cominco.

The metallurigcal tour begins with slides showing Cominco's interests in such places as the United States, Greenland, the United Kingdom, Australia, Spain, Japan, India, and, of course, various parts of Canada.

Some of the highlights of this tour are the maintenance of shops the lead blast furnaces and the zinc tank rooms. The Trail operations have the capacity of producing 270,000 tons of refine zinc and 155,000 tons of refined lead each year.

Other productions at Cominco's Trail plant include silver, cadmium, bismuth and indium, which are recovered from lead and zinc concentrates and refined. You'll see samples of these during the tour.

Equally interesting is the tour of the chemical and fertilizer plants.

You'll be shown how Cominco extracts nitrogen from the atmosphere and combines it with hydrogen to make amnonia. You'll see the pellets of Elephant Brand fertilizers pouring out from dryers onto conveyor belts, which carry them to the bagging machines. Here the pellets are weighed into bags for world markets.

Both tours are conducted from Mondays to Fridays, except statuatory holidays. Children under 12 are not allowed on any of the tours.

For the summer schedule, April 1 - September 30, the metallurigcal tours are at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. For the rest of the year there is only the morning tour.

The tours start at the main gate of the metallurigcal plants.

The tour of the chemcial and fertilizer plants, which also starts at the main gates, are held only at 2 p.m. throughout the year.

Also, remember to dress for the weather, whatever the season. Comfortable walking shoes are a must. You'll walk about a mile.

The tour itself lasts two hours.

Cameras may not be taken into the plants but they may be checked with the guard at the gates.

At the end of the metallurigcal tour you will receive one of the most interesting souvenirs to be found anywhere — a set of miniature tools made of zinc!
