IGNORED BY FARM WORKERS

Union pickets at Driediger's

NORTH OTTER - "Our fight is really with the contractor; much more so than with the grower," a spokesman for the newly formed Canadian Farmworkers Union said Saturday morning.

More than a hundred union members, mostly East Indian, and a handful of sympathizers had formed an information picket here and were trying to entice strawberry pickers at the Driediger Farms to join their ranks.

"We want to cut out the middle man," the unionist told The Star.

Picketers were carrying placards and chanting slogans demanding payment of $3 a 16-pound flat and minimum $4 an hour.

George Driediger said he had signed agreements with a number of individual farm labor contractors and that his farm was paying $3 a flat.

However, 25 percent of all wages goes to the contractor, leaving the individual strawberry picker with $2.25.

According to the union representative this is an unreasonable and unfair surcharge on the workers.

But Driediger says it is not unrealistic. A contractor, he says, first has to line up the seasonal workers in the city, then bus them to the fields and supervise their work. He also looks after paperwork and the payment of UIC and Canada Pension.

Farmers like this system because it relieves them of the paperwork, busing and supervisory responsibilities.

The average contractor or straw boss, in most cases also himself an East Indian, commands a crew of 20 pickers, although some have 100 or more. Pickers include young and old, women and men, girls and boys.

With the average worker in an average field picking about two flats an hour, a contractor of a small crew takes in $240 a day. His overhead costs consist of the investment and operation of a small bus, insurance and UIC - CPP contributions.

In some fields the workers stopped their backbending labor to listen to enticement in a mixture of English and Punjab coming at them over a loudspeaker, but the unionists did not win many converts. A lone worker who dropped his bucket and walked out to join their ranks was greeted like a long lost son.

A union pamphlet claimed Driediger negotiated with the CFU for over two months but that the grower backed out in the last minute saying that as a free interpriser he did not believe in unions.

While the farmer was negotiating a collective agreement with union reps, he was also negotiating with the contractors and in effect, "gathering information on the union for the B.C. Federation of Agriculture," the handbill charged.

"The union is here to stay," came the steady chant from the picket line. For about four hours they walked the quiet country roads leading between Driediger's fields, and before they boarded their buses for a return to the city they promised that they would be back.

"I don't know why the union is picking on me," says Driediger. "But I suspect it is for political reasons."

"Why don't they go after some of the other big farms in the valley? Why don't they go after some of their own?"

The former Langley mayor and president of the B.C. Social Credit party says that if the union should manage to gain a foothold in the industry he will go out of the berry business altogether.

"I will plow my berries under and put my fields into vegetables instead," he says. "And I won't be needing any pickers at all."

The Canadian Farmworkers Union has organized about 500 people across the country, a union representative said. Last week it signed a collective agreement with a Langley mushroom farm and the owner later stated that this move would force him out of business.

Accident-suicide take two lives

ALDERGROVE - Two young people are dead as the direct and indirect result of a tragic traffic accident which happened here at the beginning of an otherwise bright and sunshiny Canada Day.

A well known local businessman is in Langley Memorial hospital where he is reported in stable condition suffering fractures to an arm and head injuries.

Restauranteur Michael Lawes and business manager Brian Manthey had been working throughout Monday night taking inventory at Michael's Restaurant. Lawes was taking Manthey home, shortly before seven o'clock Tuesday morning, July 1.

Lawes and Manthey were driving east on Fraser Highway, toward the place where the young manager lived with his fiancee, Lynn Lougheed, less than a mile from his place of employment.

And then the first in a tragic chain of events took place.

As the car with the two men in it swung across the highway to enter the Manthey driveway, death struck its first blow.

Heading west on Fraser Highway at the exact same time was a large truck and the inevitable crash came. Manthey was killed on the spot.

Lawes was rushed to Langley Memorial.

Later the same morning, after she had been left alone for a few minutes, the grief stricken fiancee took her own life.

Man killed

OTTER - A motor vehicle accident at the 4500 block of 248 Street on Tuesday, July 1 claimed the life of a local man.

The driver and only occupant of a pickup truck, Kruno Petanic of 51 Avenue, Aldergrove, died as the result of head injuries sustained.

New traffic lights claim first life

ALDERGROVE - A two car accident shortly before 3 p.m. on Sunday, June 29 caused the first fatality since full stop traffic lights were installed at the Fraser Highway - Otter Road intersection.

Ten-year-old Justin Wilkinson of 26068 - 56 Avenue was killed at the scene.

Nine people were taken to hospital. Four are reported in serious condition in Royal Columbian hospital in New Westminster. Three were taken to Vancouver General hospital where two were later reported to be in stable condition, while the third was in serious condition. Two others were taken to Langley Memorial hospital.

Accident occurred when a car southbound on 248 Street collided with a westbound car on the Fraser Highway.

Three can do it, but four can't?

MURRAYVILLE - Three civic bodies might be able to cooperate, but he had his doubts that four could, a Langley school trustee told council here this week.

In addressing council, Peter Fassbender said that the school board "has been wrestling with its participation" in a proposed regional swimming pool cum arts centre project.

He indicated that the joint committee might do well in considering cutting out Surrey municipality at this stage.

Negotiations have been going on, or rather off and on, between the two Langleys, township and city, Langley school district and Surrey for the past six months. It has been a power play as to who is to pay how much, and where is the facility going to be?

Named as possible locations have been, travelling in a westward direction, Poppy school, Murrayville municipal property, Langley senior secondary, Willowbrook centre, and another undisclosed site near the Langley-Surrey boundary.

Fassbender said trustees found it "inappropriate to go to the electorate (for financial approval) with a joint municipal proposal at this stage."

At the same time he urged township councilors to decide upon a location for an arts centre now. Next to Langley high school was the "most appropriate at the present time," he said.

Fassbender said the municipality's share in the capital cost outlay would likely be in the neighborhood of $175,000 to $200,000, while the school district hoped to be able to raise between $1-million and $1.5-million through provincial grants.

He said the municipality would have to decide now, before the school board submitted other financial requests to Victoria.

As far as the trustees were concerned, he said, they were not prepared at the present time to commit themselves on a pool although they recognized the need for an aquatic facility in the area.

DND trespassers warned

ALDERGROVE - Local residents who have been trespassing on DND property north of here have been visited by military police warning them that repeated occurences will result in prosecutions.

Canadian Forces Station Aldergrove commanding officer Lt. Cdr. Phil Johnson has enforced restrictions already in effect barring civilians from entering upon the 1,200 acres of DND property. More gates have been put up, and notices have been posted and advertised in The Star informing the public of the policy change.

In recent years regulations were relaxed as different community groups, mostly of an equestrian type, were permitted to use a portion of the property for recreational purposes. In each instance permission was granted by a former commanding officer.

Clubs such as the Fraser Valley Hunt Club have now been informed that permission no longer will be granted.

The riders to hounds have protested this through the channel of their member of parliament, Bob Wenman (see letter to the editor on page 4A), arguing that a large portion of the DND land to the west of 264 Street is not even near any military installations.

A provost from CFB Chilliwack, Cpl. Bill Brown, was called in to pay a visit to the trespassers.

Meetings cancelled

MURRAYVILLE - All meetings open to the public have been cancelled for three weeks as council here voted themselves a "holiday" Monday night.

Next meeting will be on Monday, July 21, starting with committees (with public attendance but no input) at 9 a.m. followed by regular meeting at 2 p.m. Delegates will be received for the afternoon session, but only following preregistration with municipal clerk Derek Doubleday.

Investigation continues

MURRAYVILLE - A police investigation into recent vandalism at the Livingstone Lake two acre mini-park is presently being carried out by RCMP here.

Last week a council directive instructed RCMP to determine who drove a bulldozer across public land and backfilled a portion of the lake.

When the police investigation is completed a report will be turned over to municipal council and in the meantime no release will be made by the RCMP, inspector Ken King said this week.

MAYOR'S INVESTMENT PROTECTED

Restaurant gets zoning approval

MURRAYVILLE - Things worked out alright for a restaurant project in which Mayor George Preston holds an interest.

Last week it became known, much to the apparent surprise of aldermen here, that a development company, Taverstock Holdings Ltd., in which Preston holds shares had gone ahead with the $1/2-million project without bothering to obtain a building license and completed the building even after Langley's building inspector posted a stop-work order at the site.

The restaurant, adjacent to the Fort Langley golf course, was built on agricultural zoned land but originally approved by the B.C. agricultural land commission as a private facility providing dining facilities for members of the golf and country club only.

Neither council nor land commission was told that it was going to be a public restaurant.

Renovations to the huge building with its five-storey tower attracted the interest of Fort Langley residents. One of the curious was a local restauranteur, Herbie Feischl, and when he found out that no building permit had been taken out he went to municipal hall complaining loudly.

This prompted building inspector Peter Jarvis' visit. Building continued in spite of the inspector's red tag, and Jarvis paid a second visit to the site.

Preston, when confronted with the facts said that rezoning after the building was completed should present no problem. "It would be better off zoned commercial," he said, "People don't give a damn whether it is Mickey Mouse zoning - the people in the neighborhood don't mind."

Some people did mind. Feischl did, as did others. "When a guy wants to open a restaurant he has to buy commercial land and get the permits," he said. "These guys aren't doing that. Why shouldn't I be able to buy a piece of farmland on the river and build a hotel on it without proper zoning?"

In order to legalize the situation, council two weeks ago sent a proposal to the land commission, suggesting that the restaurant property be amalgamated with the golf course property. Several aldermen thought it wouldn't be approved. "I doubt very much they'll get the blessing of the commission. It would be setting a precedent, any farmer could open up a restaurant," Ald. Elford Nundal said.

This week the approval of the land commission arrived. They had no objections.

"Your $10,000 investment is protected," Nundal told Preston this week.

Town Talk

By RICK McILWAIN and FRANZ LANGMANN

This week's question:
What does Canada Day mean to you? How do you feel about the future of Canada?

PENNY MACPHERSON: What it pretty much means is a long weekend, but it is a time to celebrate Canada's 113th birthday and I'm proud to be a citizen of this country.

As far as the country goes, I think B.C. has a better chance than the rest of Canada. Although we are younger, we have more resources going for us than the rest of Canada.

DAVE PATTY: Well, it meant freedom from Viet Nam for awhile, and now that is cleared up, so now I am staying because I like the country. Canada has unlimited potential, but I'm not so sure that we can get it together to make it work as it should.

GEORGE SCOTT: All it means now is a holiday, it used to mean a lot more but this has been forgotten now. I was raised here and I love the country, and I'm really glad we've finally officially adopted O' Canada as our national anthem after so long.

I don't think there are especially hard times in the far future. Right now we have some small problems, but I think we will outgrow them.

JOHN DYDE: What Canada Day means is the realization that we are the greatest country in the world. I'd just like to see more flags and ceremony for Canada's birthday. I'm glad we've finally got an official anthem.

I think it's a great country, but the Quebec French have always cried about how mistreated they are; they want, want, want, with no give.

I came to this country from England because it was turning socialist and the only regret I have is that I didn't emigrate sooner.

MSA study of transport needs

CLEARBROOK - The district municipalities of Abbotsford and Matsqui, in cooperation with the Urban Transit Authority of British Columbia, have initiated a study to examine possible transit needs within the two communities.

As part of this study, UTA staff will be administering a household survey questionnaire in order to gain information on current patterns of travel. The survey will include questions related to work, school, shopping and other purposes.

The survey forms will be distributed on Saturday, June 28, and Sunday, June 29, to a preselected representative sample of households in the municipalities.

Cooperation in accurately completing the form and promptly returning it in the prepaid postage envelope will greatly assist the study team to understand current and future transportation needs within the area, said a municipal spokesman here.

Weather affects berry crop

ABBOTSFORD - Fraser Valley strawberry growers are faced with heavy losses unless there is an immediate improvement in the weather, says provincial horticulturist Bill Peters.

Farmers who have been spraying with fungicides at five to seven day intervals have kept mould under control so far. But some new growers who did not spray face substantial losses.

"If it turns warm and dry we could have an excellent crop as the berries have already sized up well with all the rain," Peters said.

Earlier this month, about 80 percent of the Fraser Valley blueberry crop was wiped out when mould spread through the bloom and the flowers dropped off prematurely.

District agriculturist Fraser Carmichael said all forage crops have been seriously affected by the wet weather.

"Much of the hay that should have been taken off by the end of May is still uncut," he said.

Normally, up to 140,000 tons of hay are imported to the Fraser Valley and Vancouver Island each year.

This year shortages will be even more serious with Mt. St. Helens volcanic ash damage in Washington and Oregon and severe drought in Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

Good hay crops are expected in the B.C. Interior and Alberta.

Other hot weather crops that have been affected by the weather are corn, beans, tomatoes, cucumbers and squash.

Donna Lee McKenzie was honored for her prowess at winning the district wide spelling 'B' for Grade 3's during first anniversary celebrations at Shortreed school last Friday.

Wenman says Soviet preparing for war

OTTAWA - Bob Wenman, MP (ProCon - Fraser Valley West) last week demanded that the government open its eyes to the reality of escalating world tensions and recognize the responsibility of the federal government to establish adequate civil defense measures.

Wenman cited that the central committee of the Soviet Union is actively intensifying that country's arms production and that various statements by the minister of national defense indicate recognition of the growing Soviet threat. He also noted that President Carter has called for reinstatement of the military draft and cited congressional demands for increased military spending which indicate that the U.S. is recognizing the need for taking action. Wenman asked that the minister release the report entitled "Federal Policies for Emergencies, A Planning Review".

"Despite the efforts of other government departments to pass the buck when questioned about their responsibilities for civil defense, the department of national defense must accept considerable responsibility for this issue, particularly in the case of emergency planning", Wenman said.

Wenman stressed that there are two priorities in these times of high international tensions. "Number one, increase our efforts on all fronts towards peace-keeping processes; number two, ensure that in the event that peace-keeping efforts break down, the procedures have been established and the information is available that will minimize civilian casualties."

Dogs life

MURRAYVILLE - Ald. Bill Blair says law abiding citizens own law abiding dogs. People who bother to buy dog licenses are the owners of dogs who never, or seldom, get into trouble.

The bad dogs that kill livestock and in other ways terrorize the neighborhood are either strays or else owned by people who don't care; don't care about buying licenses or controlling their mutts.

"The guy who doesn't buy a dog license, he's the one whose dog gets into trouble," Blair told council this week.

Blair voted contrary to a motion to provide annual municipal grants to the SPCA, but it was approved by majority vote of council.

Long ear of the law

MURRAYVILLE - It used to be the "long arm of the law". Now it is also the "long ear".

Council here decided this week to instruct municipal constable Roy Martin to listen in when the guns pop at the Labrador field trials to be held in north Aldergrove on July 5 and 6.

Brenda Page, chairman of the Labrador retriever club, had requested, and was granted, permission for the use of firearms loaded with blank ammunition at the trials at 6290 Jackman Road.

Martin is to "monitor" and to find out "if it is going to be a nuisance".

If the noise is too loud for his ears, chances are the club won't receive permission in years to come.

Local graduate from WWU

BELLINGHAM, Wash. - Evelyn Muik, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Muik of 2481 LeFeuvre Road, Aldergrove, has received her bachelor of arts in education degree from Western Washington University here, majoring in elementary education.

Pathologist appointed

ABBOTSFORD - Dr. M. Peter Hewitt has been appointed veterinary pathologist at the B.C. ministry of agriculture's veterinary laboratory here.

Hewitt is head of the laboratory's histopathology section. Histopathology is a branch of pathology concerned with tissue changes accompanying diseases.

He joins the laboratory's professional staff, responsible for the diagnosis and control of animal disease problems in British Columbia. Duties include the examination of animals for disease and acting as diagnostic consultant to veterinary practitioners and animal and poultry producers.

Parents, teachers discuss problems

FORT LANGLEY - Parents and teachers exchanged views last Tuesday evening before a packed house assembled hastily to discuss problems troubling the small junior secondary school.

More than one hundred interested parents, teachers, and students crowded into the Fort Langley cafeteria, sitting patiently for over two hours through a detailed discussion of the school program. Interestingly, there was almost no talk about the controversial 'evaluation' issue raging back and forth in the press.

Speaker after speaker concentrated instead on the scheduled transfer of teachers from the school staff in September. Parents were told many popular programs would have to be dropped unless at least some of the transfers were cancelled.

School vice-principal Walt Hennig said after the meeting both parents and teachers wanted to concentrate on program difficulties and not, as he put it, on the "evaluation fiasco."

"Sure, teachers could have scored points if they'd have gone over the dreary history of the so-called 'evaluation', but that would not have addressed the central issue facing our students next fall", said Hennig.

According to Hennig, the real issue for Fort Langley parents and teachers is the possible loss of important school programs.

At the meeting, following a brief introduction by Hennig who chaired the session, Fort Langley commerce teacher John Clifton explained in detail the effects a reduction of staff would have on course offerings.

Clifton presented a seven-page analysis of courses and programs offered in each district secondary school, noting Fort Langley has not been able to provide students with some courses given elsewhere in Langley. He pointed out, however, Fort Langley students have several advantages because of the school's small size.

"Parents should know we can provide the individual attention some larger schools cannot," Clifton told the meeting.

"Fort Langley has an excellent academic record, and it may well be that part of our success is based on the fact we're small," he added.

Following the meeting, Clifton said he agreed with Hennig that the real issues have nothing to do with the evaluation.

"What we need to do in this district is take a good look at school programs. Fort Langley students should have the same opportunities open to other students in Langley. It's time to forget about this evaluation business and get on with the genuine concerns expressed by parents", he said.

After the meeting, parents were treated to a slide show of Fort Langley students who participated in the school's ski program last winter. Teacher Art Smith put on the presentation to the delight of those present.

Fort Langley was the first district school to run a ski program and this year had more than one hundred of its students enrolled.

Parents listen to teachers' explanation

Facts mispresented: Taxpayer

MURRAYVILLE - A Fort Langley resident this week accused municipal council here of "misrepresentation of facts."

Ed Boon, of 9160 Edal Street, representing the local community hall association, complained about increases in water rate fees.

Boon said residents of the town had been misled when a public water system was promoted by civic officials a few years ago. They had then been brought to understand, he said, that all they had to pay - whether they connected to the system of not - was a flat fee of $45 a year to pay for the amortization of the system.

Boon said the annual rate had later been raised to $65, and that the residents had also been forced to pay the $300 connection fees.

He said he could understand that the cost of operating the system could go up, but not how the capital cost amortization could increase.

Answering the delegate, Mayor George Preston said that civic officials had shown "good political judgment" in getting city water into Fort Langley, but that decisions and statements made by local politicians should be always regarded as "without prejudice" because they weren't able to do a thing if senior governments changed the rules in midstream.

Preston said the $20 increase in frontage taxes had been forced upon the water district by the provincial government.

On a recommendation by Ald. Elford Nundal the complaint was referred to council's utilities committee for consideration.

"Blunt refusal" rejected

MURRAYVILLE - A "blunt refusal" was not adequate, a member of the Aldergrove Legion told council here this week.

Alvin Fast asked councilors to state why they had turned down a tax relief request from the Legion.

Speaking for council, Ald. Bill Blair said the refusal was not meant as a slight, but that rather it was part of an attempt by council to hold the tax millrate. Since this was the first request of its sort from the Aldergrove Legion, he said, and since council already had cut off grants to other community groups that used to receive them in the past, they had found it prudent to turn down the Legion as well.

Fast pointed out that the Aldergrove Legion was the only community organization with a hall, and that it was being used extensively by the public at a very low cost or no cost at all.

Council promised to reconsider the request.

Bylaw amendment sought

MURRAYVILLE - Council here has been asked to amend their building bylaw.

Earl Erickson, the owner of property at 248 Street and 58A Avenue, has asked that sideyard allowances be reduced from 10 feet to five feet in half-acre subdivisions.

Ten-foot sideyards would make it difficult to construct a suitable residence on a long, narrow lot, Erickson said.

He was advised to take his case to the board of variance, and councilors promised to refer it to planning subcommittee as well.

Asked by Ald. Elford Nundal, Erickson said the lots in the half-acre subdivision sold for between $35,000 and $38,000 a parcel.

4A THURSDAY, JULY 3, 1980

Working holiday

By IAN CAMERON

MURRAYVILLE - Councilors here have begun a three-week holiday. When they met Monday night they voted to cancel all open committee and regular meetings between now and July 21.

It is only a holiday from the public, however, as they already have closed subcommittee meetings and the rather pretentious "cabinet" meetings scheduled for at least the first two weeks of July.

Exactly what prompted this extraordinary step (it is the first time ever Langley council has shut itself off from the public for three weeks in a row)?

Perhaps time off to plan out strategy without the interference of press and public?

Or perhaps the hope that a number of red-hot issues (we can think of three just off the bat) will have time to cool off before mayor and alderpersons reemerge smilingly and refreshed on the third Monday of July?

I'm an old pair of gum boots

By KEN McRAE

Here I am, an old man in a dry month,
Being read to by a boy, waiting for rain.
I was neither at the hot gates
Nor fought in the warm rain--
From "Gerontion", by T.S.Eliot

Here I am, an old pair of gum boots, left standing neatly on the gravelled turn-out on the Lougheed just before you hit Mt. Woodside. I am, like Gerontion, not one of the heroes of Thermopylae either, though I have been close to Harrison Hot Springs, I think. (When you're replaced by so-called 'dressier' footwear and stuffed into a trunk somewhere, you can't tell, except for the smell, sometimes.)

My absent-minded wearer had parked at the turn-out, then walked along one of those paths through the woods to Mountain Slough; i.e. I had supported and protected him, taken him where he thought the fishing might be good. With his mind on that, I think he did not notice the deep violet of the dying trilliums on the bank to his left, nor the white harebells blooming just below them. The four buds on the only chocolate lily in the woods, just showing a hint of the dark color behind the green, probably escaped him too. If you're thinking fish, you're not thinking flowers, or boots.

I waited while he tried his luck casting about, then returned with him to the car. Supporting himself with one hand on it, he pulled me off and set me down, as I said (wishing to give him credit where it is due), neatly, in proper alignment, then pulled on his other shoes. And to my amazement, he drove off without a backward glance, leaving me red-faced and open-mouthed, too dumbfounded to speak.

All the rest of the day I stood there, naturally thinking he would recollect his faithful footwear and return, remorsefully, for me. All kinds of vehicles whizzed by, but no one stopped to investigate. That was rather embarrassing, believe me. To think that nobody cared enough to stop. After all, I was not that old. Mature, yes, but with sufficient tread left for many a merry bout.

When evening wore into night, at least I was spared the shame of being quite so - noticeably forgotten. In fact, it was really rather comforting to have all those denizens of the night come up and sniff me. I liked the skunk best.

In the morning, I was quite cheered when a bird came and perched on my edge, then dropped a fair bit of moss down inside. A bit of all right, I thought; here's somebody who knows a good thing when she sees it. No doubt my fairly new felt insole helped. A moral there: It's what you've got inside that counts. This bird and I are going to collaborate; I may help to raise a family of birds. Imagine!

I stood a little taller. Might get my picture in the paper. Headlines: "Local boot makes good." TV is definitely a possibility. The jackpot would be a movie, of course. I began to think about the best place to show the premiere. Chilliwack, Vancouver, Hollywood? Any more room at Grauman's Chinese theater for footprints, I wonder?

How about Harrison? Caesar's Forum would be rather pleasant, I think, with all those brooding busts of the great. Yon Cassius: "There is a tide in the affairs of men/Which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune." And who better to deal with tides and floods than gum boots?

Interviews: "How do you account for your steady stride of fortune, sir?" And I, modestly, but with becoming wit, "Well, I'm a Gemini, of course." And, "You just put one down, then the other." And, "The important thing is not to drag your feet." Little gems like that.

Meanwhile, I have accepted my biographer's offer of temporary shelter, among his own 'permanent collection.' (A rather scruffy lot, I must say; two pair have definite holes at ankle height, I noticed at once. Only one is really respectable, though in that terribly unfashionable full-knee length; not even any jolly red piping or rolled-edge to relieve the drab. I won't mention the smell, but what do you expect from farm boots? Gucky, but non-Gucci, if you know what I mean.)

Still, they did move over to give me room. Anyway, it's only until my big break (or my former wearer) comes. I'm going to miss that bird, though. I need her more than ever, in this dry month.

Lake no longer

By STEPHEN KAWAMOTO

"Summertime, oh summertime, pattern of life indelible, the fade-proof lake, the woods unshatterable, the pasture with the sweetfern and the juniper forever and ever, summer without end..." So wrote E.B. White in Once More to the Lake. Today, summer is in full swing but times have changed.

The lake is fading, the woods shattered by the roar of bulldozers and real estate salesmen. Gone is the pasture with the sweetfern and juniper. Yet, the summer lazes on.

When the loveliness is erased, what remains? Only memories. Then, it's time to move on. There are other lakes to swim in, other trees to climb, other meadows to walk. Sure, they may be a little farther away. But once you're there, the beauty will leave you speechless.

Still, mankind has a way of removing such beauty. For starters, there are the Friday nights of nothing-to-do parties. Laughing, singing and talking into the dead of night. Come Saturday morning, you are greeted with the sight of broken beer bottles and the cooling embers of a wee bonfire.

And the once-suppressed tempers of people concerned with their peace of mind are kindled, ready to burst into flames. A few of them have been judge and jury to young adults they don't even know. The rest have a lot of other things on their mind.

Monday arrives with one or two complaints hinted, the rest buried till the end of the week. Yes, Mr. White, the "pattern of life indelible" is in every Friday night. But, it's no longer the lake.

For now the ball is rolling, the tempting visions of greenery falling. Another Friday night, and another and so on. The complaints are now voiced loudly, embittering even the mention of the word "lake". Mob fever is ready to infect everybody concerned. Thank God, though, for self-control.

Today, the woods are shattered with the hoots and shouts and swearwords nearly every Friday night. And Monday morning may never seem the same again. The sign says "Private Property." It lies uprooted, and the land is public again.

Tomorrow this land will have all signs of greenery uprooted. We're told it's progress but a house can never replace a tree. And a land-filled lake is no guarantee of dry basements after every rainstorm.

Gone are the sweetfern and juniper forever. One day, a dozen houses will stand where a lake once was. Now the memory of the lake will soon fade away.

On volcanic thrill seekers

By GARY WATSON

How far will the human race go in the quest for cheap thrills or scientific curiosity?

Before Mt. St. Helens blew her nose, thousands of snoopy onlookers trekked to the brink of Helens' wrath. They scoffed at the obvious.

We got a glimpse of longtime, slope resident Harry Truman enjoying his instant, folksy heroism as he refused to leave. Dedicated geologists eager to conquer brave new challenges crawled the burping monster.

Ahhhh, such stern stuff as are 'real' men made of.

Where are they now? Cooked and buried.

And the initial death toll? Fourteen dead, 90 missing, 400 square miles of total desolation, 18 inches of ash, 100 refugees, mostly children and all hell waiting to belch again.

Does that deter more brave soldiers of science? Nope.

Three geologists flew their helicopter 2000 feet straight down the steaming gullet. And for what? To return and tell we breathless ones that? "it's still rumbling and spewing ...vigorous steaming...new seismic noise...harmonic tremors...movement of molten rock."

Beautiful, fellas! Hold the copter, we'll be right down.

Then President Carter does his perfunctory fly-by. What would a disaster be without a presidential peek?

"Horrible," says Carter and the waiting world breathes again. "Scary and spooky," say the scientists. "A total of 3000 feet straight down. One third of a mile wide and gambolling water nymphs frolicking in the cauldron."

Earthquakes still shuddering beneath, so what does Jimmy say?

"We'll make this a tourist attraction and bring it under federal control for 'safety' and scientific research."

Aaaaa-yupp. You betcha, Jimmy. We've got our barbeque burger baskets all packed and ready to fry.

The real job creators

By ROGER WORTH

The "image" of Canada's small and medium-sized businesses, as they say in the advertising business, is out of whack with reality.

The image is that big firms represent industrial salvation for the country. Indeed, a lot of Canadians still believe the major companies - many of them foreign-owned - are creating a majority of our new jobs.

The reality is somewhat different.

Here's what the 55,000-member Canadian Federation of Independent Business found in a recent study:

•In the period 1970-1976, Canadian-controlled manufacturing firms (most of them small and medium-sized enterprises) increased employment in Canada by 111,000 jobs.

Meanwhile, overall employment by subsidiaries of U.S. firms declined by 9,500 jobs and other foreign-controlled companies employed 1,200 fewer people.

•The major source of new employment in the six year period was by firms below the 500 employee size category and the fastest growing sector was Canadian controlled firms in the 100-199 employee size class.

•An additional 136,000 jobs would have been created if foreign-owned companies had matched the performance of Canadian-controlled firms.

•Canadian manufacturing companies increased output 112 percent in the period, compared to 85 percent for American controlled establishments.

•Manufacturing shipments would have been $9.2 billion higher in 1976 if the foreign-controlled companies had duplicated the success of the Canadian-controlled firms.

While the thousands of smaller companies that innovate more readily and grow more rapidly do not attract much notice, they are the key to providing more jobs in the country.

It's high time everyone - including the bureaucrats and politicians in Ottawa and the provinces - took a long hard look at what's really happening in Canada.

Our vibrant small and medium-sized "job creators" deserve more support.

Spring sunset

By DONALD STEPHEN KILEK

I can watch the sun go down,
Splashing golden orange
From horizon to zenith.
Soon the distant stars appear,
Sparkling like jewels
Safely out of man's reach.
Spring is in full bloom,
The many flowers agree.
And sunset is best described
By birds gaily trilling
Amongst shrill cries
Of youngsters at play.
The dusk grows longer
As we count each day.
Soon comes the summer
And extra daylight hours.
But for now, let the night fall
So that another morning
Will grace this time called spring.
Then you can watch the sunrise.

Surprise! surprise!

OTTAWA - Prime minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, speaking to contemporaries in Oslo, Norway, is reported to have said that he intends to stay in office until at least 1985.

Coming from a politician who resigned and then had to be "drafted" into taking his party once more through an election campaign, the statement might seem odd. But not overly surprising.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Why won't they let us use the land?

Editor, The Star, Sir,

I would like to bring to your attention a problem which has developed in the past few months regarding horse riding in the department of national defence property near Aldergrove. The DND owns a large area of undeveloped land, approximately 1200 acres, north of Aldergrove. Part of this land is occupied by the Canadian Forces Station and radio antenna on the east side of 264 Street, but approximately 500 acres on the west side of 264 Street is totally unused by the DND and is let under a hay contract to Mr. Englehart, a local farmer. Between the hay fields are large areas of trees and uncultivated land, through which a network of trails have been made for horse riding and dog walking. Previous base commanders have given tacit approval to a number of local riders to use these trails on the condition that the hay fields were not to be ridden on or damaged, and this privilege has been appreciated and not abused.

The new commander, Lt. Cdr. Johnston, has taken a firm position that this situation will not be allowed to continue, by the erection of gates, 'no trespassing' signs and threats of prosecution, and has caused considerable local antagonism and resentment against the Canadian Forces base. As a member of the public who has previously enjoyed the privilege of riding through the DND property, I find this action unnecessary and an over-use of military authority. There is a clause in the DND manual regarding 'the non-military use of government lands' which states that where the land is not needed for military use, consideration should be given to sharing the use of the land with the local community for various recreational uses.

I would suggest that this area of land on the west side of 264 Street is entirely suitable for this purpose of shared recreational use. The woods and trails could be used for walking, riding, exercising dogs or simply enjoying the natural beauty without any damage to the area or the hay fields.

An example of this multiple recreational use is Campbell River Park, recently established by the GVRD in south Langley, a very pleasant area to ride, but unfortunately 12 miles away from Aldergrove. I would very much like to see a similar area developed here in Aldergrove, and would appreciate any help you could bring to bear on this problem.

I can think of at least a hundred local riders and parents who would be delighted to have a place to ride off the roads, which are increasingly hazardous. We have already had two horses killed by traffic in the Aldergrove area, and a petition is presently being circulated in support of this idea for public access to part of the DND property.

Sundays and religion

Editor, The Star, Sir,

Your Town Talk question last week re: the Lord's Day Act being rewritten was of special interest. Because I highly value individual freedom I am all for the preservation of that freedom which would, undoubtedly, be jeopardized by this legislation as shown in Bill 8.

Bill 8 is also a cause for alarm for those who worship God on a day other than Sunday. Sunday laws constitute an arbitrary and unnecessary interference with the inborn rights of free people to decide for themselves how they will use their time, run their businesses and observe their day of rest. I realize that many of the objectives of those who support the enactment of Sunday laws are good but I also believe everyone should have the opportunity to close his business on the day of his choice and to do so without penalty.

I read of a woman who was recently fined every fourth Sunday by her labor union because she chose to attend church rather than a union meeting!

Sunday laws, in Constantine's day, produced a history of persecution.

Why could there not be a one-day-in-seven law which would ensure that a person cannot work seven consecutive days?

I also believe that church and state should be entirely separate.

Bill 5 in the Statutes of Ontario - chapter 9, under exemptions, states, in part, that the Sunday closing law does not apply where: (a) "the retail business establishment was closed to the public and no goods or services were sold or offered for sale therein during a period of twenty-four consecutive hours in the period of thirty-two hours immediately preceding the Sunday..."

This would certainly simplify matters - don't you agree? It really boils down to the fact that no legalistic observance of Sunday, Saturday or Friday would produce happy citizens.

As Thomas Jefferson said in Notes on Religion, 1776: "Compulsion in religion is distinguished peculiarly from compulsion in every other thing. I may grow rich by art I am compelled to follow, I may recover health by medicine I am compelled to take against my judgment; but I cannot be saved by a worship I disbelieve..."

REPORT FROM VICTORIA

Yes, there is a housing shortage

By BOB McCLELLAND, MLA
[Minister of Energy]

In recent months we have heard a great deal about the shortage of housing in British Columbia. The problem is particularly acute in Vancouver and Victoria although the situation is critical throughout the province. The Vancouver and Victoria metropolitan areas have experienced 0.1 percent vacancy rates for several months.

The shortage of accommodation is a result of a number of factors. Record levels of interprovincial migration along with a drop-off in construction levels due to high interest rates and the termination of federal tax incentives have created near zero vacancy rates.

The number of people entering B.C. has aggravated the already tight housing situation. An average of 25,000 immigrants enter British Columbia each year. Net interprovincial migration into British Columbia has averaged 19,000 persons per year over the past ten years. When these two figures are combined approximately 44,000 people enter British Columbia every year. Preliminary figures indicate that net interprovincial migration for 1979 will be greater than recorded in other years. This fact makes the housing situation even more desperate.

Figures released for the first four months in 1980 show that housing starts are up over the same period last year. First quarter housing starts in B.C. climbed to a record 7,079 units according to the Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation. This trend continued into April. CMHC statistics show April housing starts numbered 2401, up 68 percent from the previous April. Housing starts for Canada as a whole declined 16 percent. British Columbia starts from January to April have increased by 78 percent over the same period last year. Canadian starts have declined by 13 percent for the same period.

There are two main reasons for this apparent housing boom. Many capital cost allowance applications approved under the Multi-Unit Residential Building (MURB) scheme in late 1979 were started early this year. Also contributing to the increase in housing starts was the B.C. government's mortgage program. Through the B.C. credit unions we brought forth an innovative program which provided $200-million of provincial revenue as affordable mortgages. The purpose of the program was to provide homes, to encourage construction at a sensitive time of year, and to maintain employment in our forest industry. Mortgages under the scheme are available at 9¾ percent and construction of the houses must be completed by December 31, 1980. The mortgage scheme is expected to account for 3500 new units by yearend.

Although building has outpaced housing construction in other provinces, British Columbia still faces a critical housing situation. The increase in starts experienced in British Columbia tends to seem abnormally high because starts are down in other provinces. Finance minister Hugh Curtis has urged his federal counterpart, Alan MacEachen, to consider reintroduction of MURB allowances, or a similar measure, to encourage rental construction where vacancy rates are low.

All regions of Canada are experiencing housing shortages. This provincial government has provided building incentives through the $200-million mortgage plan. We have attempted to lessen the severity of the housing shortage. Such measures help in the short term, as we have seen, but provide no long term solutions to the problem.

WENMAN REPORT

Canadians already paying too much

By BOB WENMAN, MP

The prime minister and the minister of finance have recently made statements both in the House and to the media indicating that they are considering doing away with indexation of income tax.

Indexation of income tax is a means by which taxpayers are protected against inflation by the raising of personal exemptions each year in accordance to the rate of inflation so that taxpayers will not find themselves in a higher tax bracket just because they received a cost of living increase.

Indexation is also a measure of financial discipline and spending control for the government. The government has to exercise discipline on its spending because more revenue is not automatically granted to it by inflation, but only by increased production in the economy, effective in wage gains which were greater than inflation.

Quite simply, I am very strongly opposed to de-indexation for several reasons. Firstly, de-indexation is a form of tax increase that for the year 1980 would result in Canadians paying an additional 1.6-billion dollars in tax. Canadians, in my opinion, already pay too much tax.

Secondly, de-indexation would hurt the lower wage earner the most. For example, those earning less than $10,000 per year would see their tax raised by 109 percent in 1980. Also, people on fixed incomes, such as pensioners and widows, would find themselves with less disposable income just because their income sources, such as pension funds, RRSPs or savings are not structured so as to provide the cost of living increase.

It is obvious that the present government is running into difficulty with its economic policies. It needs more money to finance programs, including the increasing cost of imported oil, a dilemma the Liberals brought upon themselves. They did this by defeating the Crosbie budget on the basis of the 18 cent excise tax on gasoline which they claimed would harm the little people and reduce economic growth. Now they are finding out that there is no other way to make up for increased cost of imported oil than to increase taxes by a large amount. So rather than increase the excise tax that would have certainly furthered the goal of conservation and rendered gasoline more of a user pay commodity, the Liberals are considering abolishing indexation.

Inflation is the number one enemy of wage earners today. Inflation gets fuelled by increased government expenditures and increased taxation. At the very least, the government should not contribute to inflation by increasing taxes in a way which is so unproductive as by abolishing indexation.

Please feel free to contact me regarding this or any other matter by writing Bob Wenman, MP, House of Commons, Ottawa, Ont. K1A 0A6 or call the constituency office at 530-1424.

Fraser Valley down B.C. Selects 2-1

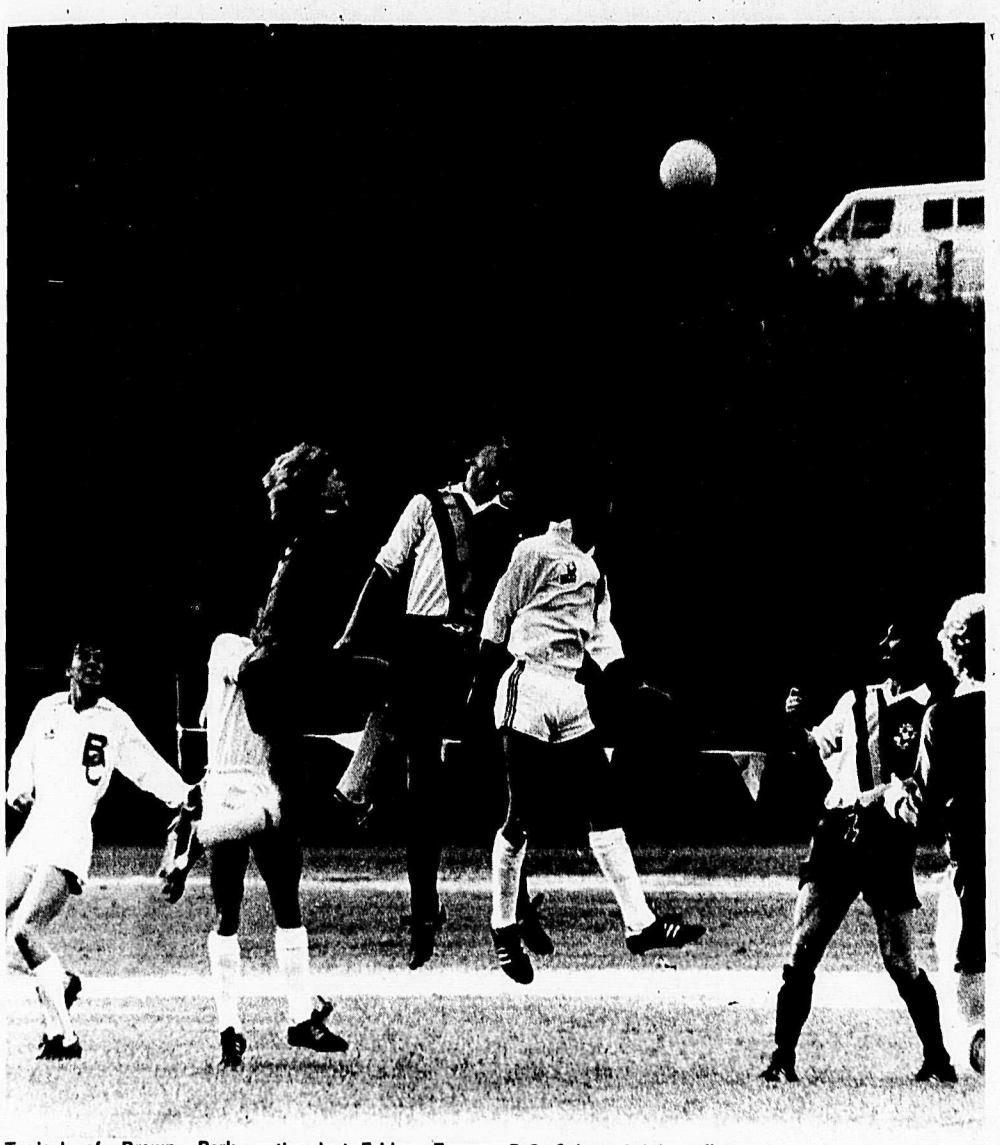
By RICK McILWAIN

ALDERGROVE - The Fraser Valley All-stars promotions claim soccer as good or better than NASL. Well, Friday against the B.C. Selects under 18 team at Brown Park, they outdid their claim to fame.

The quality of soccer that these two teams produced would leave our Whitecaps hard pressed to equal. It's surprising that in such a short time, we suddenly have quality soccer available from local talent. Well, maybe not so surprising remembering that the Borsatos, Bradner Redshirts, Aldergrove Regents and such high calibre teams have been around a long time and it is these clubs and others like them that are responsible for the improvement in the game.

The one dark cloud over the game had to be the disgusting display of sportsmanship put on by Sammy Saundh throughout the game, or at least up till he was ejected. It's hard to understand a player of his ability utilizing deliberate fouls to better his play. It might be suggested he get as much control on his temper as he has on the ball. It would immensely improve the game and wouldn't hurt the team effort one bit.

If you get off on first class soccer, top rate officials, and the sheer excitement of close competition, save yourself a trip to Empire Stadium and drop around to Brown Road Park on Friday night at 7 p.m. and catch your own Fraser Valley All-stars in action.



Typical of Brown Park soccer was this goal front action last Friday. Fraser Valley All-stars downed B.C. Selects 2-1 in a first class match.

Sunday's schedule is: 10 a.m., consolation semi-final; 11:30, championship semi-final; 1 p.m., consolation final; 3 p.m., championship final; 4:30, awards presentations.

The host Matsqui-Abbotsford team closed out the season last week with a 9-5 victory over Port Coquitlam in Maple Ridge.

Teamsters 9 Port Coquitlam 5

Teamster scorers: Henry Ned 3 goals; Steve Wiebe 2 goals, 1 assist; Leonard Eksyma 4 goals, 1 assist.

Mike Wiebe made 25 stops to the PoCo goalie's 13, in a good team effort by all the Matsqui-Abbotsford boys.

DIVISION 2B

Matsqui-Abbotsford Tip Top Carpets scored a pair of last-season wins last week, downing Surrey and Burnaby in successive games.

Tip Top Carpets 12 Surrey 5

Tip Top scorers: John Stalker 5 goals, 4 assists; Curtis Jakubowski 2 goals, 4 assists; Art Johnson, Allan Mills 2 goals; Glenn Payne 1 goal, 1 assist; Ian Cox 3 assists; Keith Schultz 2 assists; Greg Schmidt 1 assist.

In a hard-hitting game, Tip Top scored seven powerplay goals and played well defensively.

Stalker had an outstanding evening and Jakubowski and Schultz added good games.

Tip Top Carpets 8 Burnaby 6

Tip Top scorers: Curtis Jakubowski 3 goals, 3 assists; John Stalker 2 goals, 3 assists; Art Johnson, Glenn Payne 1 goal, 1 assist; Allan Mills 1 goal; Ian Cox 1 assist.

After falling behind by two in the third period, Tip Top came back to score the last four goals of the game.

Steve Chalmers and Rob Joiner played a good defensive game.

Tip Top's next game is Thursday at MSA arena at 8 p.m. vs. North Delta.

Gordon Jones brings back silver

ALDERGROVE - From the recent Canadian junior boxing nationals held on P.E.I., six B.C. boys returned with medals. Three silver and three gold medals were earned by the young pugilists.

Local boxer, 13-year-old, Gordon Jones brought back a silver medal by defeating Alvin Northcott of Alberta, in an all out effort of punching and jabbing to win by a 3-2 split decision, on Friday June 27.

The evening of June 28 saw Gordon lose by a 4-1 majority decision when a much taller lad from Ontario, Ernie Johnson, took the gold medal. Gordon brought home the silver, but says that next year, he'll have the gold.

No doubt, Gordon will earn that gold next year, and in the meantime, maybe, he'll grow some.

Langley to host games

LANGLEY - Division two games in the 1980 minor lacrosse provincial championships will be hosted by Langley on July 18, 19 and 20.

Edward Hibbs wins Flowerdew trophy for 1980

MURRAYVILLE - Edward Hibbs, the 1980 Flowerdew trophy winner, his wife Rose, and family have lived in the northern part of Langley for twenty years. Ed became well known throughout all of Langley when he was elected chairman of the parks and recreation commission in 1977.

Many of Hibbs' interests have been: the development of an indoor pool facility, the setting up of a Langley parks and recreation foundation to which people may bequest monies or land, which was officially formed in September 1979, and also, in having the parks and recreation commission express to council the need for improved playing fields and the building of a fine community spirit so that many local service clubs and sports organizations have taken an active interest in improving parks throughout the district.

In the past two years, he was elected to the British Columbia Recreation Association as provincial director, one of seven persons so elected in B.C.

As a member of the Fort Langley Lions, he helped with fund raising events to provide change and washroom facilities at the Fort Langley park.

FOX AND HOUNDS ROYALS DEFEAT DELTA

Thanks Paul, this one was for you

ALDERGROVE - In exhibition games, the Fox and Hounds Royals continue to play high calibre soccer.

On Tuesday, June 24, the Royals travelled to North Vancouver to take on the leading team in that part of the lower mainland, the Burdet Beavers.

In the first half, Burdet team play tore holes in the Fox and Hounds defence time and time again. At times, due to excellent team positioning the locals appeared to stroll into the Royals penalty area, at will, but due to poor finishing they went in at the half 2-0 when it could have been 5-0.

However, in the second half it was a different story. The Fox and Hounds came out fighting. Surely the North Vancouver champions thought Aldergrove must have fielded a different team to that which played in the first half.

The Royals repeatedly took the play to the Beaver's end of the field. On the odd times the Beavers took the ball downfield, but this time they found themselves up against a virtual stone wall. The Fox and Hounds defence had got the measure of how these Vancouverites attacked and simply shut them down.

The Royals got two goals back in this period, one scored by David Moorthy and the other by Arvid Wiens. Arvid is usually a midfielder but due to injury to Royals winger Gordie Paterson, Arvid was playing in the wing position. He collected a ball from Phil Anderson, took it down the wing and curled a high shot into the goal mouth. The ball appeared to curl in and the goalkeeper was caught flat-footed and could only watch as it went just under the bar and into the back of the net.

In the last ten minutes the Beavers ran out of steam and the Royals were hitting the upright and crossbar and narrowly missing the goal, but they couldn't finish the Beavers off.

The game ended 2-2 and a grateful Beavers coach was glad to hear the final whistle.

On Saturday, June 28, the Fox and Hounds took on the reigning Sun Tournament of Champions, Delta United. Previously they had taken on Delta, but that was the 12-13 year olds. This time it was the champion 14 year olds.

The Fox and Hounds were really up for this one, and mainly because Delta are the team to beat. They must be one of the best, if not the very best team in the province. When you play a team of this calibre, you know by the end just where your own team stands. Delta for years have either won Sun Championships or provincial championships, they have been together since division 9.

gether since division 9.

Secondly, this was the last game for the Fox and Hounds brilliant goalkeeper Paul Taylor. Paul left on Monday with his parents to live in the Okanagan.

Presumably the team wanted this game more for Paul than for anything else. They couldn't think of a finer farewell gift than for him to be on a team that beat this great Delta eleven.

And that's just the way it went. The Fox and Hounds gave no quarter. They were hard into the tackle and played the best teamwork of their short career up to now.

Fox and Hounds played Delta off the park. In the end, even the Delta crowd gave the Aldergrove boys applause.

David Moorthy scored two fine goals. Ron Hunt scored his usual solo effort, and Robby Calderone, a new striker, scored the best goal of the game.

The goalkeeper for Delta is the B.C. under 16 year goalie. Ron Hunt took the ball down the wing, took three Delta defenders with him, then made a picture perfect pass back to Robby Calderone who was standing alone on the 25 yard line. The ball didn't even touch the ground and Robby hit it first time. The Delta goalie didn't even move as the ball screamed into the back of the net.

The game ended in a 4-0 win for the Fox and Hounds.

"To put this game in its proper perspective, I don't believe anyone has ever beaten Delta by four goals," said their proud coach. Lew Ross, the Delta coach told me he was simply speechless about the Fox and Hounds play. He didn't know a team of this calibre existed this side of Ontario let alone in the Fraser Valley."

On any given day, Delta could turn this result around and trounce Aldergrove 4-0. That's soccer. But Saturday was not that day.

Thanks Paul for all you've done for the Fox and Hounds Royals. This one was for you.

Whitecaps had several chances to score during Cosmos game Sunday but just couldn't seem to get past the expert defense of Cosmos'. Many close calls for both teams gave fans reason to wonder who was going to win for the first half, but the Cosmos showed their superiority throughout the second half and easily took the match 3-0.

CAUSE FOR CELEBRATION

Tickets going fast for folk fest

When the deadline for Early Bird weekend tickets arrived at midnight on June 15, the organizers of the Vancouver Folk Music Festival were hoping to have sold 1,500. The goal was optimistic in view of the '79 figure of 956, but it was vital for the smooth operation of the newly independent organization. The final figure is closer to 2,500--an increase of 150%--and a cause for celebration!

A totally different line-up of artists has been scheduled for this July 18-20 weekend, not because the festival committee is too cheap to bring back last year's favorites, but because there are so many artists to choose from that they will offer a different selection every year. The performers slated for this year include all categories and the public is invited to discover a new set of talents. A complete program of the day-time workshops and evening performances will be published in the Star in one of the next two issues.

The Vancouver Folk Music Festival brings together not only musicians from all parts of the world, but also audiences from afar. Orders have been arriving from Nanoose Bay in B.C. to Edinburgh in Scotland, from Whitehorse in the North to El Cerrito, California in the South. A psychology profesor from Norman, Oklahoma stumbled across the festival in 1978 and is returning for his third visit this year. Orders have arrived from "folkies" and farmers, lawyers, miners, engineers and people from all walks of life. Many of those who bought weekend tickets this year are people who spent only one day last year.

Festival Coordinator, Gary Cristall, is both elated and scared. Next to a natural catastrophy, excess is what he fears most. The workshop stages are small so as to create an intimacy between performers and their audiences. If that intimacy is lost because the crowds are too large, the festival endangers itself for future years. Gary estimates that 9,000 people on site per day is as much as can be comfortably accommodated, though it will be monitored from on site. If the crowds are getting too large, he will cut off ticket sales.

Gary is also trying to avoid commercial excesses. Already he has turned down lucrative offers from large breweries and cigarette manufacturers wanting to invest advertising dollars in the Festival. While the temptation is immense, he knows the ethics of the Festival would be sacrificed. It is a festival where all performers receive the same wage, where they are billed in alphabetical order, and where stars emerge only by virtue of audience response. It is a special event, and it is what draws many of the finest musicians to Jericho Park, Vancouver, B.C., when they could be earning a lot more performing in New York or Los Angeles.

We strongly advise people wishing to attend the Festival to buy their tickets soon. Senior citizens and accompanied children under twelve will be admitted free. Advance weekend tickets are $22; at the gate $25; Friday, $8; Saturday and Sunday $11 each. Tickets are on sale at all Vancouver Ticket Centre outlets, Black Swan Records, Octopus Books Ease, and at 3271 Main Street, Vancouver.

Positive Vibrations

By ISAAC

This column can be called the return of last year's heroes. It will also show how the new establishment, the punk and new wave bands, have entrenched themselves in as the status quo. Many of the artists who shocked the music world out of its disco daze two years ago are now releasing their third, fourth or even fifth albums. Most of these are now firmly stuck in the system they started out to destroy just a few years before and their music reflects these changes. What was revolutionary now seems commonplace. (Ever noticed how the music of those rebels of the sixties, the Beatles, now makes up a large part of background Muzak?)

If I was to pick the ten best records released so far this year all of them would be debut albums by new groups, and half of them would be Canadian. The Star's of yesterday have dimmed. There are a number of reasons for this dullness and each artist has his own combination of circumstances so I will let the albums speak for themselves.

One of the earliest new wave artists was Graham Parker whose first album Howlin Wind, was released back in early 1976. Last year's Squeezing Out Sparks was a masterpiece, hailed in the music press around the world but it did not produce a hit single and therefore did not achieve the sales that it should have. This year's follow up album The Up Escalator instead of building Parker's reputation reveals an artist who has abandoned his integrity in favor of some slick marketing ploys. Most of the songs on the new album are single length with lightweight ideas and repetitive, fade-out chorus. On top of this is a white-washed, gutless production job by Jimmy Iovine who produced Tom Petty's last album. The Petty album has so far spawned three hit singles and it seems obvious that Parker's record company plans the same success for The Up Escalator. Parker is not Petty and this is not a very satisfying album.

Parker is noted for writing good, intelligent songs backed by some electrifying playing by the Rumour. On the new album the songs are dim-witted pop songs and the music has been emasculated by Iovine's a.m. radio production work. Forget this Escalator and try one of the earlier Graham Parker albums instead.

A similar case of 'pop song-itis' is also plaguing Wreckless Eric's new album The Biggest Smash. Wreckless, seen live, is a great rock and roller and his first Canadian album The Whole Wide World exhibited his sandpaper vocals and raw energy in fine form. On the new album some idiot of a producer has decided that Wreckless should be the next Tom Jones. Pure pop is best left for Nick Lowe and other people who have the talent to write and sing good songs. Wreckless Eric has neither of those abilities, just a unique raspy voice and loads of energy and both of these ingredients are missing on Biggest Smash. There are a few good songs on the album but most of them have an ordinary, clean sound that will do little to enhance the reputation of Wreckless Eric.

Two other acts that have just damaged their reputations by releasing new albums are Bram Tchaikovsky, with Pressure, and DEVO with Freedom of Choice. I liked Tchaikovsky's first album because of his Byrds'-like 12 string guitar playing and clean melodies. The new album has none of that and is really very nondescript. Devo go through all the motions and have all their weird sounds but lack catchy melodies and are just marking time. Clear way for the next new wave, it's time for some new ideas.

O.A.P. no. 71 takes holidays

By MARY SANDERSON

ALDERGROVE - With so many OAPO members on holiday, I will try to pinch hit for Ernie and Evelyn although I can't fill their shoes in many ways.

Our last two dances have been almost busting the hall at it's seams. A sigh comes from all when the word came we are closing for a short holiday after July 12. The wonderful people who supply us with our toe-tapping music have to have a break, too.

Visitors attending our last dance included Mr. and Mrs. Bowes from England, Mr. and Mrs. Lowen from North Vancouver, and Steve Newranski of Melfort, Sask.

Birthday wishes were extended to Fred Metzger of Aldergrove.

Vera Stanfeld was the lucky lady to win the door prize. Spot dance prize went to Elsa Emans and Louis Yurkowski.

On behalf of the pensioners I must extend a big thank you to all the ladies who come in each Saturday to prepare all the sandwiches, coffee and cut cakes, and also to everyone who helps with the clean-up.

Aldergrove's OAPO is a grand organization to belong to, never a grumble that the other fellow isn't doing his bit.

The bingo on Fridays at 1:30 p.m. have been doing very well, this is the only bingo where the house doesn't take its share that I know of. Mr. Corbett makes a grand job of calling the right numbers. Our thrift shop is working very hard, it is open Tuesday till Saturday at 12 p.m., no holidays here.

We plan on a cleaning and painting bee at the hall in the near future and I will try to pass the time and day along to you when it has been decided upon. In the meantime, have a good holiday.

Playground facilities favored

MURRAYVILLE - A request for a 1981 grant for helping with the installation of playground facilities at Fort Langley elementary school was met with favorable response by municipal councilors this week.

Parent-teacher group at the school will receive a grant on a matching basis, meaning that they will have to raise 50 percent of the cost themselves.

MINTER GARDENS

Thousands view new show-piece

CHILLIWACK - Canada's newest, most spectacular show garden, the Minter Gardens, was opened officially on the country's 113th birthday, Tuesday, July 1.

And they couldn't have asked for a better day to celebrate the two occassions.

Thousands of visitors passed through the gates during the day, to bask in the sunshine, listen to the speakers, watch the entertainment and enjoy the beautiful gardens with their scenic backdrop of Mr. Cheam and Bridal Veil Falls.

The gardens are located at the junction of highways 1 and 9, just east of here and only 10 km from Harrison Hot Springs. They offer 25 acres of absolutely magnificent and serene beauty.

The official day began when special invited guests were piped to their seats in the courtyard by Chilliwack Legion piper sergeant Frank Froese. Owner Brian Minter then introduced the guest speakers, Fraser-Cheam regional district chairman Fred Bryant, US consul general to Vancouver Robert Moore, Chilliwack mayor Bill Welch, CFB Chilliwack base commander Col. Don Gray, Alex Patterson MP, and George Mussalem MLA (Socred - Dewdney). Other guests included Rick Antonson of the South Western B.C. Tourist Association and David Courtin representing Canada Week.

After a presentation of provincial and territorial flowers by children from nearby Rosedale elementary school, the official flag-raising ceremony took place. It was presided over by chief Theresa Jimmy of the Shahalis band assisted by Legion sergeant-at-arms Stewart MacPherson and a red-coated Mountie.

Visitors then spent several hours savoring the pleasures of the nine different gardens, the Lake Garden, the Rose Garden, the Formal Garden, the Arbor Garden, the Rhododendron Garden, the Meadow Garden, the Fern Garden, the Alpine Garden and the Stream Garden. They also enjoyed the salmon barbeque and native crafts display as well as performances by Ukrainian dancers and the Scottish pipers.

Minter Gardens, just off the Trans Canada highway, is open from 9 o'clock in the morning until dusk, seven days a week. Entrance fees are only $3.75 for adults, $1.75 for children aged 6 to 12, and $3 for senior citizens. Children aged five and under are admitted free and special group and family rates are available. A restaurant providing natural foods at very reasonable prices is located near the main entrance. In the nearby gift shop visitors can buy high quality souvenirs and local B.C. art.

Tuesday's opening ceremonies concluded with a fireworks display in the evening.

"Fur brigade" arrives Sunday

FORT LANGLEY - National historic park here will be the setting for the annual re-enactment of the arrival of the Hudson's Bay Company fur brigade at this historic Company depot on the Fraser River.

The fur brigade will be comprised of members of the Dogwood and Beaver canoe clubs. Colorfully dressed as were the voyageurs of old, they will arrive at the Fort Langley beaching area at 1 p.m. on July 6.

The brigade will be welcomed on their arrival by a traditional feu de joie, fired by members of the Canadian Black Powder Federation wearing period dress. From the landing the voyageurs will portage their canoes and packs to the old fort where they will be greeted by the chief trader.

In the 1840's this heralded a week of hard work and hard carousing. Diaries of the time record how the voyageurs upon their arrival received a "regale", a half pint of rum, as a reward for their labors. They were then able to purchase items not generally available, including "generous purchases of liquor and enjoyed the usual gentlemanly sports and dancing, though there occurred some classic instances of rowdyism."

Though they were warmly welcomed to the fort, it is reported that the chief trader and his staff were happy to see them depart again for the interior.

After the 1980 voyageurs are welcomed there will be the customary feed of bannocks and beans and this will be followed by a dance demonstration by the Royal Scottish Country Dance Society, square dancing by the Buttons and Bows with the visitors joining in, and folk singing.

Admission to the historic park is free on this day.

Langley grad ceremonies financed

MURRAYVILLE - Councilors here have voted to look around in their 1980 budget for a spare $200 as a contribution to Langley senior secondary graduates.

LSS student Kim Fletchuk had asked council for the grant, matching one approved by Langley city council, to assist with the cost of renting the civic centre for grad ceremonies.

GVRD will support border gas stations in bid for help

VANCOUVER - Greater Vancouver regional district will back gasoline station operators on the region's eastern border in their appeal to the provincial government for help in resolving a problem that is causing them financial hardship.

The operators are losing business because they must charge higher prices to pay the three-cent-a-gallon surcharge which is used to help pay for public transit. But nearby stations, across the border in other regional districts, do not pay the surcharge because different methods are used to finance transit in those areas.

Under the existing legislation the GVRD does not have the authority to grant the affected stations relief from the tax.

Several station operators told the GVRD board they had appealed to provincial representatives for assitance but were told it was a GVRD responsibility.

The board voted to join with the station operators in sending a delegation to Victoria for a meeting with finance minister Hugh Curtis and municipal affairs minister Bill Vanderzalm.

GVRD members of the delegation will be board chairman Alan Emmott, transportation committee chairman Ian Young and Surrey alderman Bob Jacobs.

Bridge every Friday

ALDERGROVE - Last Friday night an enjoyable evening was spent by members of the local bridge club with four tables present.

High honors for the evening were won by Margaret Collins and Walt Waring.

It has been decided that bridge will be played every Friday during the summer. Novices as well as advanced players are welcome. For further information call Kay at 856-2383 or Frances at 856-6010.

Non-conforming home will not be allowed

MURRAYVILLE - A Brookswood resident has been informed by council that non-conformity to a municipal bylaw will not be allowed.

Robert Newman, of 19846 - 28 Avenue presently has two homes on his 2½ acre property, one built in 1943, the other in 1969, building inspector Peter Jarvis told council this week. He wants to demolish the older home occupied by his son, and put a new modular home on the lot.

Council will let him do this, but only if it remains unattached, meaning without a permanent foundation.

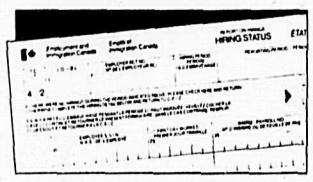
We're tightening up on people who abuse Unemployment Insurance.

Most people getting unemployment insurance play by the rules. But some people don't seem to know that they can't take a job and collect benefits without telling us they're working. That's why employers are being asked to send us the starting date and Social Insurance Number or extracts from computer payroll tapes for each employee they hire or rehire. This information is cross-checked with the Social Insurance Numbers of people receiving unemployment insurance benefits. Only cases of potential abuse will ever surface. After investigation, anyone found receiving benefits to which they are not entitled will have to repay them.

It may be an honest mistake. Some people forget or don't understand they must tell Unemployment Insurance and report their total earnings when they start a new job. In that case, repayment is all that's required. But, a penalty or prosecution may follow when the new system detects people wrongly collecting benefits.

If you are collecting unemployment insurance benefits, and start a new job, please say so on your UI claimant report card.



Social Insurance Numbers of newly-hired employees are now being cross-checked with those of people receiving unemployment insurance benefits. Only cases of potential abuse will ever surface.

WHO DO YOU THINK SHOULD PAY THE LEAST FOR AUTOPLAN INSURANCE?

Maybe the young guy because he doesn't have much money? Or the older man because he just might be a more responsible driver? How about the woman? She may drive less and more cautiously. The logger? He certainly doesn't have to fight city rush-hour traffic.

The answer: none of the above, necessarily.

Drivers who should pay the least possible amount for their Autoplan insurance are those who don't cause accidents. It doesn't make any difference – and it shouldn't make any difference – whether they are male or female, young or old, married or single, or where they live in the province.

That's the whole idea behind the F.A.I.R. program – Fundamental Auto Insurance Rating. When F.A.I.R. is fully in place, everyone will be entitled, as their right, to the same base Autoplan premium, depending upon the use of their vehicle. Only drivers who are responsible for an accident will be charged an additional premium of $300 spread over three years. And the more accidents they cause, the more they'll pay.

It's simple. It's logical. It's F.A.I.R.

GARDENING IN THE VALLEY

By DON ANSON

Question. We have a cherry tree [Bing, I believe] which, after early spring, becomes sick looking. It is an old tree with considerable moss on its limbs. The leaves become spotted and turn color, pale green and drop off. Set cherries also drop off. Is there anything that can be done to correct this or should we dispose of the tree? If so, what type of dark-eating cherry is recommended for this area?
Mrs. K. Rich
48400 Yale Road East,
Chilliwack

Answer. Cherry trees are often infected with one or more of several viruses which may greatly reduce the vigor and productiveness of the tree. I doubt very much whether you could restore your tree if it is old. I suggest you cut it down and purchase two more trees to take its place. You will need two because sweet cherries require a pollenizer of a different variety. Now is the correct time to plant cherries.

Recommended are Bing with Van or Deacon to pollenize; Star with the same pollenizers; Deacon with Van or Bing or Lambert with Van or Deacon. Space your trees about 30 feet apart and don't use the same site of your old tree. Make sure your planting holes contain plenty of humus and that drainage is perfect.

Question. I am writing to seek help about a prayer plant I have indoors. It does not get any sun and the tips of the leaves are turning brown. What is the cause and what must I do? Is there a special time when you can cut them down? If I don't water, the plant falls down but as soon as I water it is stands upright again. I give them liquid food once a month.
Miss Catherine Cech.
Box 689, Aldergrove

Answer. Your prayer plant hates any exposure to direct sunlight so that is not your trouble. However, it needs good light and a warm room. I suspect your plant is in too large a pot and is not getting enough humidity. Try misting it often and don'r over-feed it. It likes a very peaty mixture. Cut away old leaves in the fall and reduce your watering considerably until fresh growth starts in the new year.

Question. Last year we purchased some acreage in this area and I'm finally getting around to some landscaping. We have a lot of thistles, stinging nettles and blackberry ramblers. Is there some way of getting rid of these? There is an area around some evergreens where I would like to plant azaleas, rhododendrons and some kind of ground cover to create a low maintenance are. However, this area how has tall grass growing everywhere. Should I dig this under and wait until spring to plant or is there something else I could do and plant this year? Could you recommend a book on rhododendrons? Would there be some nursery around the area that has a good selection of ground covers etc., that are reasonably priced. As we have a lot of landscaping ahead of us, I would like to find a place where I could get a good deal.
Renee Smith.
29747 Langara Ave.,
Mt. Lehman.

Answer. I was going to answer this directly but then realized there must be dozens of readers with similar problems. Thistles, nettles and blackberries may often be found over a former septic drainage field. Your best bet is to apply a brush killer strictly according to instructions. You won't be able to use the area for a while and a second application may be needed. You will find it very laborious and impractical to clear this area by digging or cultivation.

If the tall grass is couch or quack grass it will take a long time to eradicate it. If, however, it is ordinary grass I would first cut it down to the ground and then turn it under. Next job is to top the surface with plenty of well rotted manure or compost. Don't add any lime if you want to plant rhododendrons and azaleas which are both acid loving plants. Reserve this area for planting these and other acid loving plants next spring. Included could be heathes, lily of the valley, camellias and ferns. In the meantime you could plant some ground covers after the initial spadework. I would suggest ajugas (bugleweed) or vinca minor (perewinkle). It is a bit too late to hope for much flowering from annuals unless bought as bedding plants.

Any book on rhododendrons would be written by an expert and therefore would contain all you want to know. I'm sure most bookshops would have such a book in stock. As for the nurseries, I cannot favor any particular one but there are dozens in this neighborhood and maybe one will get in touch with you through this column. I know what you mean about "reasonable". I must have given away at least 200 ajuga plants this year alone, yet they cost about 75 cents to buy. One thing I forgot to mention is that you should incorporate plenty of peat moss into the area where you want to plant your acid lovers.

Otter 4-H horse club news

OTTER - The month of June has been a busy one for the Otter 4-H horse club. It started off with the fourth annual invitational show on June 1 which was a huge success. There was a good turn out of riders representing Otter, Double T, and Hazelmere 4-H horse clubs. English classes were held first and the high point winners were: Unit 1, Lindsay Denney; unit 2a, Cindy Mortimer; unit 2b, Jo Ann Nassey; and unit 3, Jennifer Hunter. After lunch western classes started, and here the high points were awarded to Jill Kelly in unit 1, Stacy Bull in unit 2a, Jo Ann Nassey in unit 2b, and Andrea Blamire in unit 3. The aggregate high point trophy for the day went to Jo Ann Nassey of Otter. The interclub relay was won by Hazelmere, with Double T taking second. Judge for the day was Tish Bernard, and the trail judge was L. Des Roches. The day ended with a few games and a lot of laughs. Friday, June 13 was a lucky day for Otter. The junior district demonstration finals were held and two teams from the club were among the eight teams taking part. Stacy Bull and Kim Sauder placed third, while Jo Ann Nassey and Sue Schroter took first place. Congratulations.

Parade unit and clean-up crew have taken part in two parades this month. The Aldergrove parade on June 7 saw them repeat their Fort Langley success and take a first place for equestrian entries. On June 21 they entered the Langley Days parade and placed third behind Langley Riders and Mission Riders, however, the clean-up crew won the first place trophy in their division.

This year for the first time Otter 4-H horse club built an educational display and entered it in the district competition. The club members placed second after Otter beef, and will be entering the same display at the PNE.

The club also held a fund raising activity on June 22. A concession stand was run at Boreen Acres during their dressage show, which proved to be quite successful.

The month of June ended with the final workday before achievement day. This took place at Boreen Acres on June 29, and consisted of lessons in showmanship, riding, and judging. Members of the club have really learned a lot this year, and appreciate the time and effort given by their riding instructress, Vicki Fowler.

Jehovahs witnesses convention

ALDERGROVE - Twenty-two district conventions of Jehovah's Witnesses will be held throughout Canada this summer according to a local spokesman for the group.

Gary Robinson, representative for the group in Aldergrove, announced that they expect some 90,000 delegates to attend these "Divine Love" district conventions that will be held in 15 cities across the country.

Robinson said 104 persons will represent Aldergrove at a four-day meeting planned for the Pacific Coliseum, July 10 - 13.

"Love is one of the strongest emotions for good in humans," Robinson said, "And yet we live in a lovestarved world. Divorce, crime, delinquency and most other problems besetting man would disappear if the two greatest laws ever given, to love God and to love one's neighbor, were obeyed."

"The 'Divine Love' conventions will provide practical help for people of all ages in the application of these great laws in our lives," Robinson concluded.

Provincial finals of the Prince Philip Games were held last weekend at the Langley Riders arena. Aldergrove teams won the privilege to represent B.C. at the Western Regionals to be held at Kamloops. Well done, Aldergrove.

'It is written' program rates award

ALDERGROVE - George E. Vandeman, director-speaker of the It Is Written telecast has been named a 1980 "Faith and Freedom" award winner by Religious Heritage of America, a St. Louis-based organization.

The Faith and Freedom award honors men and women who communicate the principles of religious heritage through television, radio, print journalism, films and literature. Previous Faith and Freedom winners include Pat Robertson, head of the Christian Broadcasting Network, and George Cornell, religion editor of the Associated Press.

"My hope is that this honor will focus attention on our loving God," said Vandeman. "He and his word are the center of all we do at It is Written."

It is Written is a syndicated religious telecast of the Seventh-day Adventist Church. Continuously produced since 1956, it has featured Pastor Vandeman as host-commentator on bible themes and current events as they relate to prophecy. The program also contains a strong health emphasis, considering healthful living as a spiritual imperative. It is seen on 121 stations in Canada, the United States, Australia and the Caribbean.

Pastor Vandeman is a prolific author, with 20 books to his credit and a circulation of nearly 7 million. He considers the written word an important part of his ministry of bringing the gospel to the people.

The It is Written TV program may be viewed locally each Sunday on Channels 2 and 8 at 6:30 a.m. and Channels 6, 8 and 11 at 11:00 a.m.

Gov't. urged to reconsider holiday act

VANCOUVER - By a vote of 29 to 25 the Greater Vancouver regional district board has urged the provincial government to reconsider its proposed Holiday Shopping Act.

Under the proposed legislation municipalities and regional districts could control business on holidays by passing a bylaw setting out the regulations and submitting the matter to the electors, in the form of a referendum, for approval. If no bylaw were drafted or referendum held, then the existing status in the community would continue.

The board recommended that the proposed legislation to regulate commercial and retail activities on Sundays and statutory holidays be applied on a province-wide rather than local basis.

The 29-25 result reflects the 'weighed' vote on the board. On a one-director, one-vote basis the outcome was 11 to 10 against the motion.

Children's Hospital thanks Patricia W.I.

PATRICIA - Nine members of Patricia Women's Institute were present at the May meeting, which was held in the home of A. Ciacomazzi.

A letter was received from Children's Hospital thanking the institute members for their support during the past years.

Canadian ladies will be hosts at the Peace Arch picnic on July 11. This is always a happy event, when they get together with their American friends.

Hostess prize was won by Mrs. Halliday.

Mrs. Carr hosted the June meeting; eleven members answered the roll call.

A sizeable donation is to be sent to the new Children's Hospital in Vancouver, and a large parcel of beautifully made garments is ready to be sent to the small inmates of this hospital. Pyjamas, nighties, dresses, and operating gowns are included in the selection. All garment are made to hospital specifications.

Agricultural convener Mrs. Goortz read an informative article, "How to start a Kitchen Garden" by Guy Symonds. This piece appeared in the first edition of "Country Ways", a Fraser Valley journal of rural living.

The institutes display for the Aldergrove fall fair was discussed at length, as there will be no meeting until after the fair.

Hostell prize was won by Dagny Johnston. September meeting to be at the home of Mrs. Goertz.
