BOOK READERSHIP IS UP

Library enters electronic age

MURRAYVILLE - It is recessionary times and a lot of people are unemployed. And what do people do when they are without a job? Some seek escape through entertainment; others seek to secure their future...

Jim Craven says there has been a marked upswing in the number of people seeking information and intellectual enhancement through the facilities of the Fraser Valley regional library, of which he is the director.

New books are arriving daily at the various library branches, Craven says, and the central library is preparing for the new influx of 'bookworms' by modernizing the facilities.

At the same time as the regional library - like everyone else - has to practice fiscal restraint, the public facility is gearing up for the electronic age. An automated book circulation system is in the offing, and a circle of six Fraser Valley reference centres will soon be connected electronically to the Vancouver public library. The new system will provide library clients with the access to rare books and documents as pages will be transmitted by telephone and photo copying machine at the speed of one very 40 seconds.

There is no need to duplicate priceless collections when the new system goes into effect, says Craven.

Reference centres will open in Langley, Clearbook, Chilliwack, Port Coquitlam, Delta and Surrey and will open to the public evenings and weekends as well as during the daytime.

"The library is a sounding system for the community," says Craven.

And it is being used widely by the public.

"Isn't it fun?" say instructors Peggy Surko but young swimmers Aman and Robbie don't look too sure about it. Aldergrove pool runs many water safety programs for pre-schoolers to adults all summer. Operated by the Parks and Recreation department of Langley Township, the programs are proving ever popular.

STRACHAN WILL DO HOMEWORK

Birth control advocated for recreation department

MURRAYVILLE - A local councilor will be doing his homework...literally...when he will be calculating, in the privacy of his own home, how many people use the various programs provided by the district's recreation department.

What Ald. Ian Strachan has offered to do...for free...is something the municipal department, according to director Darch Oborne, is unable to do with its computerized data processing equipment.

Strachan this week wanted to know how many Langley citizens use the services, and when Oborne couldn't provide the answer the alderman offered to tally up the registration slips at home.

"Why?" asked Ald. Dan Williamson.

"Because I want to determine the unit cost," replied Strachan.

"Our programs seem to 'have babies'," he claimed. "And I am on the lookout for fewer programs.

Ald. Carol Gran volunteered her assistance.

Gran and Strachan also questioned the recreation department's apparent move into the advertising game. Oborne's office has been selling advertising space in a brochure put out three times yearly as a joint effort between the YM-YWCA, the school board, and the two Langley recreational departments. Advertising space on the glossy cover has been sold to "adult ed" by Oborne's staff.

"Who is the 'adult ed'," asked Strachan. "Is he an adult named Ed? Or could it be 'adult education'?" Oborne confirmed the latter to be the case.

"And you know where that money comes from, as well?" asked Strachan. "From the taxpayer."

Gran said the municipal department should move out of the advertising field, instead calling for tenders from the private sector.

"Let the people who know the business make money on it, if they can," she said.

The municipal recreation department is budgeting for a $2,500 deficit for every brochure they publish, according to Oborne.

GOING TO THE GO-GO'S

The Star wants to send you on "Vacation"

The Aldergrove Star is celebrating its twenty-fifth anniversary this year, but this doesn't mean that we've become stodgy and complacent... or (heavens forbid) old-fashioned. What better way to assure this than to offer our readers a chance to win tickets to see the world's first no. 1 selling, all-female rock and roll band, The Go-Go's, at the PNE Coliseum on Saturday, August 21, plus copies of their new album, "Vacation."

Complimentary passes and albums will be awarded to the winners on Thursday, August 19. Full details and your entry coupon are inside this week's issue on page 15.

PROFESSIONAL INSTITUTE ENTERS GLOUCESTER CASE

Agrologists to face hearing

ALDERGROVE - Two members of the agrology profession - one on the verge of retirement - are to be called onto the carpet by their peers.

You guessed it! It's Gloucester.

Gloucester Properties Ltd., the company that plans to develop a 640 acre industrial park in Aldergrove, is once again in the news.

Details are sketchy at press time, but informed sources report that two graduated agrologists are to face an "inquiry" on September 9 of this year. The agrologists are Ross Husdon and Les Colebrook.

Husdon and Colebrook were hired years ago by Gloucester to prepare soil reports for an industrial centre just north of Aldergrove. Once completed, the report showed that the land in question was not economically viable for agricultural use.

Since then, the B.C. government and the local Langley government have given their stamps of approval to the Gloucester project. There are still some minor red tape formalities to abide at the local level, but for the most part the project has received approval.

Now the British Columbia Institute of Agrologists has entered the forum. The governing body for professional agrologists in B.C. claims that Gloucester's soil analysts were not telling the truth when they tagged the land unsuitable for agriculture - as a result they will hold a hearing on the matter.

Ron Bertrand, chairman of the institute's ethics committee, says there are four things the tribunal might do to Husdon and Colebrook. The four things are: 1) censure them; 2) reprimand them; 3)suspend them, and 4) expell them.

"Our (provincial) act trusts us with the duty of making sure that the public is properly served by agrologists," said Bertrand.

He said he could recall one other instance in which agrologists were subjected to such scrutiny in B.C., but he said he could not remember what the results were.

Agrologists, like lawyers and doctors, are a self-governing profession.

Husdon was not available for comment at press time, but Colebrook was located and offered the following comment: "From my point of view they (the institute) are neglecting the economics of farming that piece of property."

Colebrook, who came out of retirement to work on the Gloucester project, says he would have nothing to gain from telling lies about the soil. He said he is not a soil specialist, but he did base his findings on over 30 years of farming experience in Sumas, Delta and Oregon.

"I looked at soils from a practical point of view," he stated.

Ainslie Loretto, chief spokesperson for Gloucester, said: "They are making his retirement a misery, and they are costing them a fortune in legal fees, and that's what really chokes me."

Loretto, a confirmed Socred, also said that the executive of the institute is dominated by New Democrats.

She expressed deep concern over the fate of her agrologists.

"If people are not allowed to do what they believe is honest, where the hell are we coming from?" she asked.

The big question in the minds of Aldergrove residents, and many other people, must be, "How will this latest intrusion by the agrologist's institute affect the industrial centre as a whole?"

In Loretto's estimation it will have very little effect. She feels the institute does not have the power to create a shift of public and political opinion.

On the other hand, Bertrand says he can not recall the transcript of a tribunal being used in a court of law, but he feels it could be admissible under certain circumstances. If he is right, and if the institute does rule against the two agrologists, it is possible that someone may seek an injunction on Gloucester's development. This would halt construction.

"I don't believe the world is that kinky," stated Loretto.

Two-thirds of gas bill goes to feds

MURRAYVILLE - "It's a rip-off," says Ald. Elford Nundal.

Everytime you drive to a gas station and fill up your car's tank, remember Pierre Trudeau and his Liberals.

When you hand $30 to the booth attendant at the self-service station, you sometimes forget. There's no reason why you should, however. Twenty dollars out of that thirty goes directly into government treasury.

Where it goes from there, only heaven knows.

Top Whitecaps playoff seats offered to readers

Whitecaps are now into the playoffs and the Aldergrove Star is offering you our readers the opportunity to continue to support our championship team. Five pairs of tickets to the lucky winners of our trivia questions.

These tickets are close to impossible to purchase but the Aldergrove Star will be offering five pairs of prime tickets to the top action of NASL play.

If you've never been to a playoff game you'll have a surprise coming to you. The excitement is unreal. The air is filled with expectancy as kick-off time approaches. There are no words to explain the feeling or atmosphere but there is nothing like it. Stay with us and watch for the announcement of the NASL playoffs. The Star can put you there.

BCSTA president supports six and five formula

VANCOUVER - The president of the B.C. School Trustees Association is urging education associations across Canada to join in the fight against inflation by practicing economic restraint.

Gary Begin was one of five education representatives and 15 municipal officials from across Canada invited to Ottawa last week for economic discussions with prime minister Pierre Trudeau and finance minister Allan MacEachen.

"The prime minister made it very clear that Canada's domestic economy and international trade position are being seriously eroded by persistent inflation," said Begin. "And really it isn't too

Spacewoman at Air Show

ABBOTSFORD - A real live astronaut, and a female one at that, will be the guest speaker at the opening of the 21st annual International airshow here next week.

Judith A. Resnik is a classical pianist who also enjoys bicycling, running and flying during her free time. She is definitely the type that most red blooded American - and Canadian - males wouldn't mind going into orbit with.

Black hair, brown eyes, 5 feet 4, 115 pounds and unmarried; that's Judy.

She was selected as an astronaut candidate by NASA in 1978 and the following year completed the training that will make her eligible for assignment as a mission specialist on future space shuttle flight crews.

And in case you are mechanically inclined, we should probably mention that the NASA beauty holds a doctorate in electrical engineering.

Salute to NASA is the theme of this year's airshow which opens Friday August 13 and runs through Sunday, August 15. A major space shuttle display from Rockwell International will be part of the show. Judy will open the show at 1 p.m. on Friday, August 13 [don't miss this], and other highlights include the familiar Canadian Forces Snowbirds, the Eagles aerobatic tri-plane team, Canadian Reds, Art Scholl, Ford Tri-motor, and daredevil wingwalker John Kazian.

A sign of our times - A more and more familiar sight as unions and governments square off for what might be the worst year yet for labor stoppages. Currently the BCGEU is out on strike, followed by the construction industry and many more labor unions are expected to be joining them this year. R. McIlwain photo difficult to comprehend how Canada's current 11 percent inflation rate jeopardized our strength in the market place while other nations such as the United States, Japan and Germany are running rates of 5¼, 4.2, and 4¼ percent respectively."

Begin said he understands, given high interest rates, escalating costs of consumer goods, etc., why people are reluctant to see ceilings imposed on their salary increases. "But based on provincial and federal data it appears economic stability will return only if salary expectations are lowered."

Begin said he and other elected representatives at the meeting questioned the practicality of having incomes come under guidelines while no restrictions are imposed on sectors such as resources. "Trudeau indicated that in the case of organizations, like hydro, elected bodies should apply pressure on provincial government to introduce measures which would restrict funding if energy costs increase at rates excess of the guidelines."

Begin said school boards and councils can play a role in re-establishing a sense of national confidence in the economy. "Existing regulations in B.C. mean that we will follow the six and five formula. I hope other elected bodies across the country are equally convinced of the necessity of this action."

Industry, not housing

MURRAYVILLE - Industry is what is needed in Langley district, not more vacant housing subdivisions.

Ald. Muriel Arnason says this is one thing she has learned after serving 2½ years on council. And she told fellow council members here Monday morning that she could see no reason for approving the subdividion of 8 hectares (20 acres) near 61 Avenue and 240 Street into rural residential lots.

Gar-Wil Developments Ltd. is seeking exclusion of the parcel from the agricultural land reserve as a first step towards rezoning and subdivision.

Municipal planning department has recommended approval.

But Arnason says that with a large number of residential lots sitting empty in the northwest Langley community of Walnut Grove, she saw no reason for council granting approval.

Several other council members agree.

Ald. Dan Williamson says the Gar-Wil subdivision would mean more "patch-work" development in Langley. Many land owners are seeking the right to subdivide in a similar manner, he says, adding that "along comes a developer, and magically the (municipal) provisions don't any longer apply."

This particular application does comply with district policy, in that it is submitted in agreement with the official community plan, according to Ald. Carol Gran and Ald. Mal Harper. "Let us change the policy if you are not happy with it," says Gran.

"Yes, let us change the policy," says Ald. Ian Strachan. "I, personally, question the timing of this application, the economy being what it is."

"(Economic feasibility) is the responsibility of the developer," says Harper.

"It (the development) would bring a little more money in to help support our treasury," suggests Ald. Elford Nundal.

And the application submitted by Gar-Wil is granted local government approval, over the objections of Arnason and Williamson.

New land use act opposed: McGeer

VICTORIA - Many Social Credit MLAs oppose the proposed land use act said universities minister Pat McGeer, saying municipal affairs minister Bill Vander Zalm turned the bill into a personal crusade.

The act was left hanging when the legislature adjourned Thursday - a move that prompted Vander Zalm to call the government gutless.

McGeer said Vander Zalm has been working very hard on the bill and therefore is less able to see its faults than those in regional districts and municipalities.

McGeer said he supports some of the arguments against the legislation put forward by the New Democratic Party but he declined to elaborate.

More problems would probably be created by the legislation than cured, he said.

"I can't think of any legislation in the whole time that I served in this government that has produced so many reservations amongst so many government members. Not one single piece."

Meanwhile, Vander Zalm has sent a letter to the premier and the caucus, saying he will not resign over the matter, but will continue to fight for the bill.

"Old Bills never die"

MURRAYVILLE - Old bills never die. Or is it, Old Bill never dies?

Bill VanderZalm, British Columbia's indomitable municipal affairs minister, is not about to roll over and play dead just because the greater majority of the province's regional districts don't like his land use act.

Bill's bill, which would trim the wings of a high-flying regional system, will undoubtedly become law some day. Absurd as it may sound, it even has won the support of some New Democrats.

"There are some good parts (in the land use act)," Ald. Muriel Arnason said this week. "We should not throw everything out. We should encourage Mr. VanderZalm in the things we approve of."

"Don't worry," said Ald. Mal Harper. "Mr. VanderZalm won't let it die."

"No, I know he is a determined man," said Arnason.

"Old Bills never die," said Harper.

Grants scrutinized

MURRAYVILLE - A suggested recreation assistance grant of $3,000 to the Pacific Riding for the Disabled organization was held over for further discussion by councilors here this week.

According to Ald. Ian Strachan the proposed grant is just too rich and "smacks of special consideration." While realizing that anything having to do with disabled is synonymous with "a motherhood and apple pie situation," he said, a grant of $500 a person to a specific organization was not giving the township the "mileage" it should be getting from public funds.

"That is an awful lot of taxpayers' money," he said. "Five hundred dollars a person.

"Then let us give $500 to each disabled resident of Langley."

Ald. Dan Williamson said that since the group had not submitted a financial statement along with their grant application, the municipality should seek further information before approving the grant. Most councilors agreed.

Normally councilors insist on receiving such a statement before they will consider a grant to any group or charity.

Too much hassle

MURRAYVILLE - "I don't want 874 more government officials sticking their noses into how people farm," Ald. Ian Strachan said last week. "I don't want more government interference into how people make a living in order to pay for their taxes...I will not vote for it in a million years."

Emotional outburst came as council heard a report from building inspector Dave Chesney recommending that a representative member, a health inspector and a municipal representative visit a local mushroom farm. Complaints have reached council about alleged pollution escaping from the Ezaki mushroom farm into a nearby creek.

Fair grounds gets stamp of approval

MURRAYVILLE - Matsqui's new fair grounds is a fine facility, says Langley mayor Bill Blair.

Blair told council here Monday afternoon that he was invited to the opening of the new fair grounds barn during the recent Clearbrook Days. Barn can house more than 100 head of cattle and also features a huge show ring. It is located next to the reclaimed Matsqui garbage dump.

MOTOR VEHICLE ACT

Blood test mandatory

VICTORIA - Highways minister Alex Fraser last week introduced an amendment to the motor vehicle act which will require a driver to give a sample of his blood on the demand of a police officer and which creates an offence of driving or being in charge of a motor vehicle with more than 80 mg of alcohol in 100 ml of his blood, or .08 blood alcohol content.

Fraser said that the criminal code of Canada does not require a person to give a sample of blood to establish impairment. This results in impaired drivers who are injured and cannot take a breath analyzer test not being convited of having over 80 mg of alcohol in the blood. It is necessary to insure that impaired drivers are controlled and the bill will plug the loophole now in the criminal code, according to the minister.

Fraser said the bill protects medical personnel from civil liability when blood is taken for a sample except where negligence is involved. The criminal code of Canada does not make allowance for such protection.

It is expected that this change in the act will assist greatly in solving the problem of drinking drivers. This action is in addition to recently introduced driving penalties including severe fines and jail sentences.

ALDERGROVE O.A.P.O. NEWS

Aldergrove not such a bad place, after all

By ERNEST CLUETT

ALDERGROVE - The bus trip to Salt Spring Island was a welcome change to the trippers and provided a look at another way of life. All the much publicized flowers and gardens of the so called island paradise were grown in planters and hanging baskets. The rarest commodity in those rock piles was ordinary soil, and I noticed several large climbing roses covering bowers and cottages were grown in large wooden planters. We passed close to Jack Webster's sheep ranch without knowing it, but if anything like his neighbors, he has to farm with his large bank roll for a field of baled hay still out ran no more than ¼ ton per acre. If there is any green grass on the islands we didn't see it, the pastures were all a dun color and even an Aldergrove jack rabbit would starve to death. However, everyone had a good time and most were convinced that Aldergrove isn't such a bad place to live after all.

Now if Gary Runka of the B.C. Land Commission would ride the pensioners' bus trips instead of using his low slung car he could see from his vantage seat high up in the bus that the Fraser Valley has more land reverted back from farms to wild june grass, brambles, and alder. In the delta, on the way to the ferry, hundreds of acres of producing farms when I first came to B.C. 50 years ago is now wild canary grass and hardack and as I read the union wages for farm labor is up to $7 per hour. The problem will probably get worse. So Mr. Runka's tears of woe over the vegetable land of the Site C on the Peace becoming lost to B.C. becomes so much drivel when so much far better land on Vancouver's doorstep is not used. There is a couple of hundred acres of the adner Trunk Road that could produce, with a few dollars outlay, more grub in five years than the Gloucester estates could produce in 40 years with an outlay of a half million dollars.

To all those who never tried a bus trip, I recommend you try one and broaden your education.

I read that in Hawaii the hospital charges are $550.00 per day, plus doctors' fees, so when visiting Hawaii make sure of taking plenty of Geritol and Edax, although not necessarily in that order, and of course a little insurance might also be advisable.

The weekly dance was down in attendance due to the heat of the evening. The door prize was won by Addie Baker and the spot prize went to Elsie Wild and Monty Montgomery.

We regret that the popular president of the thrift shop is in Langley hospital. We all wish him a speedy recovery.

Doris says Canadian money is very hygienic. With the present value of the dollar, even the germs can't live on it.

Paving to start

MURRAYVILLE - Municipal works crews will soon be repaving 267A Street close to the Aldergrove high school.

A number of Aldergrove residents presented a petition to Ald. Carol Gran last week, and this Monday council voted unanimously to proceed with the work.

Court of revision reps appointed

MURRAYVILLE - Mayor Bill Blair and aldermen Muriel Arnason and Carol Gran have been appointed the townships representatives on the court of revision concerning the local voters list.

Legion grant considered

MURRAYVILLE - Aldergrove's Royal Canadian Legion may or may not receive a grant from Langley district municipality to help offset a portion of their 1982 property taxes of almost $10,000.

Legion branch 265 did not receive a grant last year.

This year the veterans organization has paid the $9,787.90 tax bill on their Fraser Highway property, and could be eligible for a $2,500 maximum grant.

Township council this week referred the grant request to their finance committee for consideration.

Nobody dying in hospital corridors

MURRAYVILLE - It is "a lot of malarcky" that people are dying in the hallways of British Columbia hospitals says Ald. Elford Nundal.

Opposition members in the B.C.legislature, backed by hospital workers unions, have claimed that the provincial health care system is falling apart at the seams since the government introduced budget cutbacks a couple of months ago.

"Don't get sick in B.C." has become a political slogan since the cutbacks were announced.

GARDENING IN THE VALLEY

Helpful hints for onions

By DON ANSON

Question: Could you please tell me what I have done wrong? I have had to pull up nearly all my onions, sets and multipliers. The tops have fallen over and there are hardly any roots and the bulbs are rotting. There are no onion maggots that I can see. They are planted next to my carrots which are fine and I had sprayed with diazanon some time ago. I had also sprinkled lime on the soil which I thought was the right thing to do. I have never had this trouble before and am really disappointed as the rest of my garden in good.

Mrs. Bernice Davies
33676 - 5A Ave., Mission

Answer: I am including this in my column because other gardeners appear to be having this problem.

As far as I can see you have done nothing to cause this condition. Ordinarily I would have suspected onion neck rot but this does not occur usually before the curing and storing stage. This disease is a form of botrytis and although it occurs during the growing season the symptoms do not show up until storage. So I think this disease can be eliminated and we shall have to look elsewhere.

I am quite sure that if the onion fly was causing the problem, you would see evidence in the form of small, dirty-white grubs so this leaves only the white rot that can affect all onions, especially spring onions and sets and occasionally garlic and leaks.

Symptoms appear during the growing season and appear on the base of the bulbs and roots which are covered with a white fungus. This particular fungus contaminates the soil for at least eight years and there is very little you can do to kill it.

I advise that you burn all diseased plants and grow your onions in future on a new site. Other plants grown on the old site should not be affected.

As you used diazanon earlier on, this should have taken care of any onion maggots but diazanon is no good against fungus diseases.

When anything like this occurs in your garden, it is always advisable not to attempt to grow the plant affected on that site for a considerable time.

Why these things suddenly appear is a mystery. There is not much sense in applying strong fungicides to your soil because there are hundreds of varieties for fungi and many of these are beneficial and would be destroyed.

Gardeners must always expect some pests and pest-caused diseases to appear even in a well-managed garden but unless they become a major menace, the use of pesticides and fungicides should be avoided unless the situation becomes intolerable.

May I suggest three very worthwhile plants, all biennials, which you should sow now. All three are very easy to grow and will do very well in a vacant space you probably have in the vegetable garden. These plants will give you great delight next year at a cost to you of a packet of seeds. First is cheiranthus, the Siberian wallflower, second is the ever-popular sweet william and third the long-spurred aquilegia (columbine).

All you need is a short, flat run of fine, crumbly soil that has been well tamped.

Water very thouroughly the day before you sow your seed. Draw up shallow drills, sow your seed thinly and cover with very fine soil or preferably peat moss. Cover the rows with a board or plastic until seeds have germinated. This means inspecting every day for germination because the cover must then be removed immediately.

When your seedlings are about three inches tall they should be spaced out or thinned and in late September or October they may be planted in their permanent positions.

Siberian wallflowers are orange in color and have a very sweet scent. They are far hardier than the ordinary wallflower and the flowers last for a long time. When dead-headed they will bloom again later in the season.

Everyone knows the sweet william with its profusion of different colors. It was a very popular Victorian plant and is now coming into its own again. Both of these last two plants need plenty of lime and do not like acid soils.

Everyone should grow the aquilegia hybrids. I think they are the daintiest of all flowers and should be in every garden.

All three of these plants require little attention and should be spaced about a foot apart. All three will grow well in partial shade or full sun although I prefer the partial shade and all three make excellent cut flowers.

Do this within the next two weeks and I will guarantee you will have a beautiful display of color next year at a very small cost. What is more, all these plants, although true biennials, will be in your garden for many years as they all self-seed themselves readily.

Of course there are many other fine perennials and biennials you can sow now but for the least trouble and the most positive results, I think the three I have mentioned will give you the greatest satisfaction.

A sole saving shop

Across the street from Aldergrove Market on Fraser Highway is a young gentleman that can make your life a little easier financially and that's saying a lot these days.

Darrell Krause, proprietor of the Town Cobbler offers a 24 hour service to his customers and if you're really in a bind, same day service. Trained in the European style of shoe repair and using only the best materials available. Krause can give you a shoe that is better than the original. His service is prompt and inexpensive and offers a chance to add many miles to those faithful shoes.

Yesterday's shoes were of a fine quality that is seldom seen these days. The quality alone is worth saving and the replacement cost for a pair of new shoes is prohibitive. Darrell can keep those quality shoes looking new for a fraction of the cost.

Drop in and meet this young businessman. His manner is warming, his expertise professional and his service prompt.

Vedder Craft fair

VEDDER CROSSING - More than 30 artisans will be displaying and selling their handmade crafts at the fourth annual craft fair being held Saturday and Sunday, August 21-11. Fair will feature crafts and homemade food, a fire truck display, and even farm fresh canning fruit.

Bruins clinch first in basketball league

Over the past 10 days the Bruins clinched first place in the Fraser Valley Girls Basketball league by defeating the Cougars 63 - 34 on July 27 and Rainbows 68 - 52 on July 29. Leading the way for the Bruins was Aldergrove Totem star Allison Wells with 15 points each night followed by super guard Yvonne Coletta with 10 points for both games. Leading the way for the Cougars was B.C.'s outstanding basketball player Sue Ewanik with 9. Ewanik was playing for the B.C. under 19 team and was a guest of the summer league for one night. Leading the Rainbows in their loss to the Bruins was the ever improving Donna Waechter who potted a game high 30 points, 3 off the league record.

On Wednesday, July 28, the girls from the summer league played the B.C. under 19 team and came out on the bottom end of a 75 - 46 score. The B.C. under 19 team was lead by super star Sue Ewanik with 18. Playing in her best performance and by far the best player on the floor was Allison Wells who pained and drove for 17 points. Wells performance kept the game close in the first half with a 31 - 23 score but the quicker and taller B.C. team came out flying in the second half to put the game out of reach.

In other summer league action during the July 27 to 29 week the Trojans dropped to second place after a heart breaking loss in a last minute shot by hot shot Tracy Waterfield. Leading scorer Sturmey was held to 17 points. leading the way for the Rainbows was Patricia McDonald with 14 and Tracy Waterfield with 11. In the game versus the Cougars the Trojans lost 56 - 45 with Sturmey fouling out with a game high 29 points. This game saw the return of B.C. all star Leah Ellis who ended up with 9 points. Leading the Cougars was Q.E. standout Angie Bosard with 12 points.

In the league final games of the regular season on August 3 the Cougars beat the Rainbows for third place by 46 - 34 score. The Cougars jumped off to an early lead and lead 32 - 7 at the half. The Rainbows came out strong in the second half but came up short. Leading the way for the Cougars was Leah Ellis with a game high 18 points. The Rainbows were lead by Patricia McDonald with 13 points.

The second game between the Trojans and Bruins saw the Trojans finally beat the league leaders 42 - 28 with Sturmey hitting for 19. Bruins were lead by Aldergrove Totem bound Jane Huff with 8 points.

Play off action sees the Bruins play the Rainbows at 7:00 and the Trojans and Cougars at 8:30 August 9.

Championship play begins on Wednesday August 10 at 7:30 for third and fourth and at 8:30 for first and second.

All star and team awards will be given out after the championship game.

Canadian girls place first in U.S. basketball

On August 4 and 5 a group of girls from the Fraser Valley Summer League participated in a basketball tournament at Poulsbo, Washington in the Seattle area.

The girls were placed on 2 teams called Canadian 1 (Sheri Sturmey, Allison Wells, Erin Carson, Cathy Watson, Carmel Keenan, Carolyn Lucy, Diane Maver and Jane Huff) and Canadian 2 (Leah Ellis, Carolyn Samson, Teri Clarke, Susan Olson, Tracy Waterfield, Leslie Ellis and Wendy Friedenstab.)

The teams placed first and second in the 5 team tournament with Canadian 2 taking top honours and Canadian 1 going through the long backdoor route to place second.

The first game of the tournament saw Canadian 1 come up against a stacked American team with Pam Clark a state all star and 6 foot twins Cindi and Wendi Johnson bound for Olympic Junior College on a full ride scholarship. The girls came up short on a 42 - 38 score against the Koala Bears with Sheri Sturmey and Abbotsford standout, Erin Carson, hitting 14 each.

The Canadian 2 team came up against the Pegas with Cindi Johnson moving over to help them. The Canadian girls ran up a 16 point lead only to have the Americans close to within 2 before finally winning 68 - 66. Leading the way for the Canadians was Leah Ellis with 18 points, Carolyn Samson with 16 and Teri Clarke hitting 10.

This placed Canadian 2 in the Championship on Thursday while the Canadian 1 team was in a do or die situation all day Thursday. A loss would bounce them from the tournament but if they kept on winning they could finish second. Win they did by defeating the Kangaroos 52 - 34 with Erin Carson hitting 18, Sheri Sturmey and Carmel Keenan scoring 12 each. Next came the Pegas whom they completely dominated and won 50 - 14. Sheri Sturmey and Cathy Watson owned the boards, lead the fast break and set up others for easy baskets. Leading scorers for the Canadians were Sturmey with 16 and Allison Wells with 14.

The Championship game was played between the Koala Bears and Canadian 2. The game was an extremely tight defensive struggle with Biola College bound Carolyn Samson pitted against the taller and highly talented Pam Clark of North Kitsop High. Samson dominated and continually out played her taller opponent with Leah Ellis taking their quick, fast point guard in the second half and holding her to no points. The Canadians won the game on a last minute shot by Teri Clarke formerly of the Abbotsford Panthers and bound for Capillano College in Vancouver. Leading the way for the Canadian 2 team in the Championship was Carolyn Samson with 16 points followed by Leah Ellis with 10.

The Koala Bears dropped down to play the Canadian 1 team for second place in the final game of the tournament. The Canadian 1 team dominated the American girls and won 30 -16 with Sheri Sturmey playing a strong game against Pam Clark and lead her team with 10 points followed by 8 points each for Erin Carson and Carmel Keenan.

The American coach said that he was surprised to see how well the Canadians played and said their passing and shooting skills were excellent. He was pleased to see that our man to man defense was the best he has seen in recent years and really complimented the girls on their strong performance against some extremely talented American girls.

The girls were billeted for Wednesday night and all of them had a good time and made many new friends. They represented Canada well in their performance both on and off the court and gained respect for their ability to play against strong American competition.

Ferrari wins race, loses driver

HOCKENHEIM, West Germany - It has been a tough season for the Ferrari racing team on the Grand Prix tour.

First there was the Belgian grand prix, where Gilles Villeneuve died during time trials. The young Canadian driver, who some considered to be the fastest formula one driver ever, flipped his racer on a curb and was thrown into a fence.

Weeks later in Montreal, Villeneuve's team partner Didier Pironi, had a narrow escape after a firey crash on the starting grid.

Now, in the West German grand prix, Pironi emerges not so lucky. After touching wheels with another car during practise runs. his Ferrari did three mid air flips before landing and crushing both his legs. Although Pironi was able to move all his toes after six hours of surgery on Sunday, it is generally held that his racing days are over.

It is some consolation, perhaps, that a third Ferrari team driver, Patrick Tambay, was able to win the race in West Germany. It was his first win in 51 starts on the grand prix tour.

On the winner's platform Tambay said his happiness over the win was mixed with sadness over the death of Villeneuve and the crippling of Pironi.

"They were both with me. It's difficult," he said.

Special workshops at Campbell Valley Park

LANGLEY - Fraser Valley residents will not want to miss the exciting special workshops being offered at Campbell Valley regional park this month.

On August 12 at 9 p.m. park naturalists are offering a free evening of astronomy. The community astronomers of the Vancouver Planetarium will bring their powerful telescopes and you will be able to discover the wonders of the solar system. A special treat will be the peak of the Perseid meteor shower on this evening.

Edible wilds is a workshop designed to show you how to find and cook the food that grows wild in our region. For example, cattail, which grows in ditches, can be collected at this time of year. The roots and tender young stems can be eaten in salads or added to soup. One session only, August 14, 10-2 p.m.

Workshops are free (except for Edible wilds which is $10 per person to cover costs). Pre-registration is required. Telephone the GVRD's Burnaby Lake Nature House at 420-3031 to reserve a space.

Park is at 204 Street and 8 Avenue in southwest Langley.

Free guided trailhikes

MAPLE RIDGE - Enjoy an invigorating and educational Sunday afternoon outing at the University of B.C. research forest here. Guided walks in the woods are led by professional foresters. There is no charge. Two-hour hike begins at 2 p.m., rain or shine, at the forest gates. Trails are well constructed. Bring friends and family, bring a camera and a picnic, make a day of it. Hikes are held each Sunday through the Labor Day weekend.

'Grove bridge club

ALDERGROVE - At the July 30 meeting of the Aldergrove Bridge Club, Ed Carpenter came in first with 7,500 points. Art Pynn was second while the consolation prize went to Doris Code..

No grand slams were bid and made this time.

The Aldergrove Bridge Club meets three Friday evenings each month at the OAP hall on 273 Street. Everyone is welcome. Phone 856-2383 for more information.

Tightening the belt

By STEPHEN KAWAMOTO

"Get involved in your own future and maximize your independence." Paul R. Ehrlich, The End of Affluence

Eight years after the above words saw print, inflation rose to heights we consider unreasonable. Meanwhile a production depression hit the industrial establishment hard. Many companies started singing the blues as they laid off workers to make it through the next fiscal year. For others less fortunate they played taps.

Here at home, the Canadian budget got strangled by a debt that could put every person 15,000 dollars in the hole, maybe more.

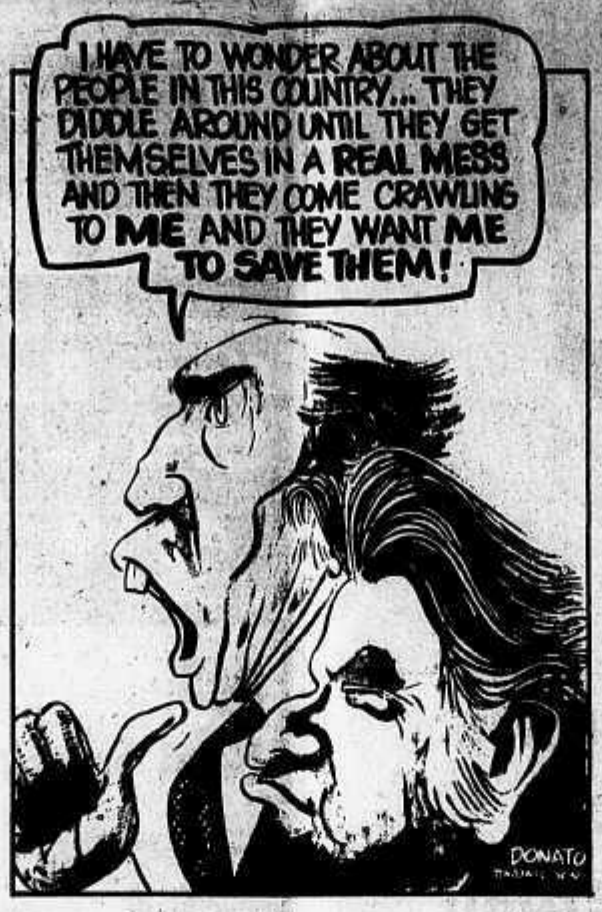
Today, Paul Ehrlich's words still live on. In fact, they were neatly summed up by Ald. Ian Strachan in Langley district council not too long ago.

"People will have to learn to become self-sufficient," he said, "and no longer depend upon government handouts."

For once we learn self-sufficiency, our own future is in our hands. When we practise it with finesse we won't need the government to bail us out ever again. The day will come when we'll pull ourselves up by our own bootstraps, when things get tough once more. But for now, what will we do?

Certainly we are at an economic crossroad. We have a choice between living beyond our means and establishing our own domestic cutbacks. The choice is ours to make. Yet only one way can we choose. The other way could ruin us.

So, let's tighten the belt.



Another whale of a fish story . . . with suds

By BRUCE RAMSEY

Was talking to a self-styled fisherman and some of his associates the other night and the following story is reported to be true.

The individual told the story with a straight face and his friends nodded their heads in apparent appreciation. Not being a fisherman myself, I nodded my head in agreement too, and there was my big mistake.

"There I was," said the fisherman, "sitting on the banks of the Elk River with my handy brand new fishing rod in my hand, when I peered down into a pool of clear water and saw a Kokanee languishing there!".

"I said softly to myself as I cast my line that I must have that Kokanee.

"I cast my line, and regret to say, it got snarled on a lodgepole pine, but there was that Kokanee smiling at me, and then I noticed there were more Kokanees in that pool. I could hardly believe my eyes, and losing my composure, I jumped into the water, and I made a grab for the first Kokanee I could get my hands on.

"In triumph I brought it ashore, and then dived in again and grabbed another.

"In short time I had landed six fine Kokanees, and decided to call it a day.

"When I got home I told my wife I had caught six Kokanees, and she said, "Oh, goodie, goodie," and went out into the back yard and started up the smoker.

"How I love smoked Kokanee," she said. and I thought she was daft.

Now, Gentle Reader, our fisherman is in trouble. He says his wife is mad a him, a Siamese cat by the name of Charlie is also mad a him, and for why?

The answer is simple: You just can't smoke a half dozen beers.

Song

By JOHN DONNE

Go and catch a falling star,
Get with child a mandrake root,
Tell me where all past years are,
Or who cleft the devil's foot;
Teach me to hear mermaids singing,
Or to keep off envy's stinging,
and find
What wind
Serves to advance an honest mind.
If thou be'st born to strange sights,
Things invisible to see,
Ride ten thousand days and nights
Till age snow white has on thee:
Thou, when thou return'st, wilt tell me
All strange wonders that befell
Thee,
And swear
No where
Lives a woman true and fair.
If though find'st one, let me know;
Such a pilgrimage were sweet,
Yet do not; I would not go,
Though at next door we might meet
Though she were true when you met her,
And last, till you write your letter,
Yet She
Will be
False, ere I come, to two or three.

We must swallow a dose of restraint

By BOB McLELLAND, MLA

Despite the efforts of all levels of government to alleviate the pressures of lean economic times, many British Columbians are facing the reality of living with less. We have all been accustomed to the good life in our province. Understandably, it is difficult to swallow a dose of restraint.

Reducing expenditures is by no means easy, especially with inflation and high interest rates. The pressures are particularly sharp for those experiencing financial problems due to pay-cuts and lay-offs. Before your blood pressure rises too high you should get in touch with the ministry of consumer and corporate affairs.

The ministry has recently published a comprehensive kit entitled "Surviving a financial crisis". The kit outlines a short-term program to follow to deal with a sudden financial crisis. In a series of straight-forward steps, the pakcage advises how to assess your financial and legal position in the event of foreclosure and repossession. The kit offers practical ideas in a series of "Fast facts" sheets, and lists participating resource groups and how you can contact them for more information.

It is important to remember that you are not alone and that others have made it through similar circumstances. Most creditors will be reasonable if you explain your situation to them and make a commitment to place them on your priority list. Banks, credit unions and trust companies have little use for your home, car or appliances. They are usually willing to listen to an alternative payment schedule, if it seems reasonable.

The ministry of consumer affairs also operates a debt counsellor service which employs experienced counsellors who offer expert advice at no cost. The debtor assistance offices are located in major centres across the province. One is located in Vancouver at 1130 West Pender Street; phone 668-2345. Other community offices are funded by the ministry to provide this service in smaller centres. The Surrey coordinating centre at 9815 - 140 Street (584-5811) and Matsqui, Abbotsford Community Services at 2406 Montrose Avenue in Abbotsford (859-7681) are also available to Langley residents.

If you are faced with foreclosure or repossession, it is reassuring to know that the debt collection act provides you with protection from harrassment from creditors. If you think your rights are being violated in this regard, contact the consumer and corporate affairs compliance officer, in Vancouver.

We in government know that many British Columbians are having to deal with the harsh realities of these tough economic times. We are doing our utmost to help our residents over difficult times and into a brighter future.

To obtain more information or assistance, you can contact the ministry of consumer affairs in Victoria or Vancouver. As always, my constituency office in Langley will provide information and aid in whatever way it can.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

We should all have our say

Editor, The Star, Sir,

It irks me no end to hear Ald. Strachan say to our neighboring mayor of Matsqui that he may get his bell rung by the citizens in the next municipal elections. All because he voiced his opinion on a controversial subject. The Fraser industrial park. The Matsqui mayor was referred to by Mr. Strachan as ding dong de-Jong and that he would be committing political suicide.

Now Mr. Strachan, take note how many years Mr. DeJong has served the citizens of Matsqui, in comparison to your term of office.

Now, I'm not in the least defending what Mr. DeJong said, I'm more concerned about his right to say it.

It is one thing to call names and to think the citizens of Matsqui are not intelligent enough to decide who they wish to look after their affairs.

Perhaps Mr. Strachan should attend the next veterans day, Nov. 11, and perhaps he will then understand what all those dead and wounded soldiers fought for, the freedoms including that of speaking your mind. Was it really all for nothing?

GERALD CUTHBERT

Neither a borrower nor a lender be

WASHINGTON - The way it works with interest rates - when you're looking for a bank loan or buying on credit - is simple.

In theory, that is, and until recently.

Now, even the economists who made up the theory and watched it work for years, more or less, are baffled by what's happening to money and credit in the United States. They say interest rates ought to be lower. They don't really know why they're so high - and expected to go higher.

Double the puzzle for Canada and other countries, whose money and lending markets depend heavily on what happens in the United States, the world's biggest market.

The theory goes like this:

First, money is a comodity something like shoes or snowmobiles: Those who have money for sale - that is, to lend or invest - charge a price to those who want it to spend.

The price, which is the interest rate, depends on how much money there is around and how much demand there is to borrow it.

Second, the deal usually goes through middlemen such as banks or their credit-card affiliates, mortgage companies. They pay the lender-investor a price and charge the borrower-spender more, pocketing the difference as payment for getting lenders and borrowers together.

ADDS TO INTEREST

This adds something to the interest charged the lender.

Third, money's present price also depends on its likely value, its buying power, in the future. The lender wants to be sure that the money he gets back eventually from the borrower will buy as many shoes or snowmobiles then as it now would.

So the lender tries to add enough to the lending price - the interest rate - to cover him against any price inflation in the meantime. So do the banking middlemen in the deal.

Taken together, these market forces should produce a rational borrowing price, even allowing for inflation.

For example, a fair basic price for a loan used to be regarded as about two or three percent a year - say - $30 for a loan of $1,000, including a cut for the middleman. That's the so-called "real" or "true" interest rate, without anything for future inflation.

The market theory says that if there are more lenders than borrowers, the price of money as a commodity falls because supply exceeds demand. In that case, though, more people would seek the cut-price loans. This increases demand for money and therefore the interest rates. And vice-versa, says the theory of the "self-correcting" money market.

Now, add the allowance for inflation.

In the United States, recent experience says this should be no more than about seven or eight percent a year. That would dictate a total loan charge of 10 or 11 percent to cover the lender, the middleman and inflation - say a price of $110 on that $1,000 borrowing example.

WORSE IN CANADA

In Canada, where inflation is worse, the rational market rate works out to about 15 percent or $150 on the same loan.

But the prime rate, a bellwether bank-loan price that governs other rates, was 16.5 percent in the United States at the start of the week, or $165 on the $1,000 loan example. The comparable rate is 18.25 percent in Canada, or $182.50.

Count on more for a home mortgage loan - as much as 20 percent for a measly term of one year. And much more on a credit-card purchase, 28 percent. That means paying about as much in a month as used to be considered fair for a year. Even the Canadian government is paying 19.5 percent to citizens who lend it money by buying Canada Savings Bonds.

That indicates lenders are hedging for more inflation, and how. And, bewilderingly, at a time when the outlook is for less inflation under the depressing impact of recession - less production, less employment, less spending, less borrowing.

What's going on?

Nobody's sure. But economic ideas borrowed by governments have made the simple old market ideas obsolete.

That goes as much for governments such as Ronald Reagan's, which pays political lip service to market freedom, as for those who acknowledge that government should manipulate the market for the greater good of the public, such as Pierre Trudeau's.

TUNE TRENDS

For one thing, during the last 35 years, most governments have got heavily into spending to help the people and industries they represent. That means picking up part of the cost of a family illness through health care or providing a grant to a factory to keep it going.

Such welfare, politically hard to withdraw, has meant in recent years that all western governments are spending more than they collect in taxes, especially in time of recession.

They borrow extensively - in effect it's the people borrowing from themselves - to get what they need. This tends to increase demand for money and lenders can charge more for what they lend.

Further, in the last seven years or so, most governments have adopted a so-called monetarist economic theory which means they consciously limit the amount of money available for spending or borrowing.

They do this through their central national banks - the Federal Reserve Board in Washing to, the Bank of Canada in Ottawa. The national banking managers manipulate the supply of money available, which includes notes and bonds and debt accounts as well as dollar bills and coins.

AFFECT LIMITS

The central banks do it by regulating, through their own borrowings, what the commercial banks have available to lend to others under legal rules.

When they restrict the banking system's capacity to lend money, as they have been lately, it is designed to curb inflation. This is based on the theory that you can't spend money you don't have or cannot easily borrow, so demand for goods and services is reduced, and inflation should be curbed.

In theory. But limiting the supply of money also increases the price of borrowing it - the interest rates.

When people and companies borrow anyway, by choice or necessity, the increased cost of borrowing goes into prices and adds to inflation.

This encourages people to believe that inflation can't be beaten, that this year's dollar is worth more than next year's.

In the vicious spiral of the new economics, it means lenders in turn want more for their money, so interest rates rise.

COMPOUNDS PROBLEM

Compounding the current problem is the fact that money, its borrowers and lenders are no respecters of national boundaries, in the absence of government controls.

Government central bankers thus are often required to hold interest rates high enough to attract foreign lenders, or at least to prevent the departure of investment money to other countries where the rates of return are higher. If not, it leads to a decline in the exchange value of the national currency.

Thus, Canada's dollar has declined sharply in recent days. Although Canadian interest rates are nominally higher than those in the United States, they are not in a lender's eyes - considering the higher inflation rate that nees to be recovered in the rate of return.

The international factor has also influenced U.S. money policy.

Ironically, just lately, U.S. central bankers have been permitting the money supply to rise beyond avowed target limits while U.S. inflation moderated in the first four months of the year.

This ought to mean, says the theories, declining interest rates. In fact, market experts expect them to rise.

Paul Volcker, chairman of the U.S. Federal Reserve Board, remarked recently that "I don't see any place for those interest rates to go but down" in current conditions. But when he wouldn't guess.

The only answer for ordinary folk, hard as it is, may be in the words of William Shakespeare's Polonius long before other economic theories took over: "Neither a borrower nor a lender be."

A visit to 'Vernon, Florida'

PBS' "Non-Fiction Television" series presents a visit to "Vernon, Florida," on Wednesday, August 18.

Viewers may find themselves wondering what is so special about this small town in Washington County, Florida? Errol Morris, the director of "Gates of Heaven," the "brilliantly bizarre" film about pet cemeteries, has put together a portrait of several eccentric residents of this very peculiar town.

Where else could you find: a man whose obsession is turkey hunting and tells endless stories about all the turkey feet adorning his walls; How about the town policeman who discusses where he sits waiting for crimes that never happen; Or a couple who have a jar of sand they insist is growing.

"Errol Morris has a real knack for getting people to trust him," says film writer Seth Cagin. "They address his camera without a trace of self-protection. What they talk about are their interests, and what's astonishing is how these interests boil down to some kind of universal experience."

The "Non-Fiction Television" series is made possible by grants from the Independent Documentary Fund. The IDF was created in 1977 to encourage the production of new and innovative documentaries by independent film and video makers in the United States for national broadcast on public television.

Veteran actor John Mills (r.) stars in THE ADVENTURES OF LITTLE LORD FAUNTLEROY, to air Saturday, August 14. Newcomer Jerry Supiran and Caroline Smith (l.) also star in the CBS movie which continues where the classic novel, "Little Lord Fauntleroy," left off.

Welte Motors: The new car dealership in Clearbrook

The bright new dealership in Abbotsford, Welte Motors, brings the area the all-exciting AMC Jeep and Renault line of automobiles and trucks.

Ross Welte is the principal owner and has a bright and alert sales staff of four highly trained personnel. They have 3 knowledgeable parts and service people who can service all your needs.

Welte Motors is located at 32330 South Fraser Way, Clearbrook, next door to "Color Your World".

They are open Monday to Friday, 8 to 5:30 for service, Monday to Friday and the parts department from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. 6 days a week. They carry a full line of all AMC, Jeep and Renault parts.

All models are on display in their show room and highly trained sales staff are exceedingly conversant on all units. Come in and meet the staff.

Very soon now they'll be introducing the all new "Alliance" car and will be priced competively with all other import 2 door and 4 door models.

This fine automotive dealership wish everyone to know that contrary to automotive belief the car business is exceedingly progressive and most aggressive sales are going very well.

A cook's tour through the Keg's Kitchen

CREAMY GARLIC DRESSING SECRETS

1½ cups Mayonnaise
1 cup Sour cream
2 tbsp. Water
1 tsp. Prepared mustard
1 tsp. Worcestershire
4 drops Tabasco
Salt & white pepper to taste
½ medium Onion
3 large Garlic cloves

Chop garlic and onion very finely. Put all ingredients into a mixing bowl and stir until smooth and creamy. Season to taste.
For best flavour prepare dressing a few hours ahead of time. This recipe makes about 2¼ cups of dressing.

Ask for our free recipe cards the next time you visit the Keg.

This Week in Canada

On August 14, in 1848, the Act of Union was amended repealing a clause that English be the only official language, and in 1879, Sir John A. Macdonald was made a member of the British Privy Council.

Getting sick plants onto their feet again

The recent spell of fine weather has highlighted the usefulness of plant tissue testing to help maintain healthly plants in the greenhouse and field.

The hot weather certainly brought the plants along but also lead to problems of moisture stress and nutrient deficiences. Many elements are only replenished slowly around actively growing plant roots and with poor moisture availability the soil has difficulty keeping up the supply of nutrients.

Many of our local soils are acidic which increases nutritional problems since elements like phosphorus, calcium, magnesium, potassium and sulphur are poorly available to the plant under acidic conditions.

In greenhouses where plants are intensively fed with nutrient solutions, the hot weather often results in high evaporation and causes increases in the salt concentration around the roots which can damage the plant.

In addition to hydrogen, oxygen and carbon derived from carbon dioxide and water, the plant requires a balanced supply of nitrogen, phosphorus, potassium, calcium magnesium, sulphur, boron, copper, manganese, iron, zinc, molybedenum, chlorine, and in some cases cobalt and small amounts of other elements. The analysis of plant foliage can quickly tell us if these different elements are present in the correct proportion.

Different plants may vary considerably in the concentration of elements depending upon age, the part sampled and the species of plant itself. Careful sampling of the plant is required so that the laboratory analysis can be interpreted correctly. For instance, our laboratory in Langley is able to test a wide variety of crops ranging from tomatoes, cucumbers, grapes and apples through azaleas, chrysanthemums and roses to corn, grasses and coniferous container seedlings. The results are interpreted by reference to tables of 'target concentrations' for each element which have been derived from research on the different plants in question. If target levels in all elements are met, then the grower can, with some certainty, look forward to a good yield and hopefully, a modest profit.

Leave water in pit: Langley

MURRAYVILLE - "One of the reasons we are in the trouble we are in," said Ald. Ian Strachan. "Governments trying to govern by anticipation rather than by need."

Public works department had recommended the Jackman Road gravel pit be drained into a stream running into the Bertrand Creek.

"As long a there is the slightest possibility that the water could be contaminated, we shouldn't even consider it," said Ald. Carol Gran.

It would probably be the best to leave the water where it is, in the gravel pit, the two aldermen said.

Japanese lead in sail technology

JAPAN - The Japanese continue to lead the world in industrial modernization, as can be witnessed in their present return to sailing ships.

Nippon Kokan KK, a Japanese shipbuilding company now has two modern tankers on the open seas powered by sail as well as engines. The ships are in service between Japan, China and South Korea.

The first sail-assisted tanker was the Shin Aitoku Maru. It was fitted with rigid sails that were linked to a microcomputer. The computer set and trimmed the sails at the best angle, then co-ordinated engine speed to optimum fuel efficiency.

After realizing a fuel saving of ten percent the company decided to outfit a second ship the same way. Negotiations are now underway to launch two more sail-assisted ships.

Adult daycare group formed

LANGLEY - An adult day care group has been formed to help outfit the adult day care centre with sufficient equipment to provide a planned program of social, recreational and health related services to senior members in this community.

"With the help of this equipment, we will provide a hot noon meal as well as many activities and programs, such as crafts, swimming, movies, gardening and the opportunity to participate, in supervised safety, in many local events," says Mun Hope, president of the local New Horizons organization.

The initial cost of the required equipment will be $12,995. The Lion's club has already donated a brand new van worth about $18,000 for senior citizens' activities; and suggestions for a suitable name for this bus are being sought.

The provincial ministry of health has approved a budget of $70,000 for other operating expenses in connection with the day care centre.

Equipment required includes an office desk, office table, chairs, filing cabinets, typewriter, adding machine, bulletin boards, woodworking equipment, ceramics supply, embroidery, quilting, exercise bike, small games, record player, instruments, chesterfields, small tables, bookcases, lamps, pots, pans, dishes, cutlery, linen, stove refrigerator, dishwasher, croquet set, picnic cooler and lounger.

"Our hope is that through participation in this program, senior citizens can remain independent in their own homes for a longer period of time than would otherwise be possible," says Hope.

Meredith-Miller wed

ALDERGROVE - Janet Ruth Meredith looked lovely in a wedding gown of satinized quana and satin lace when she walked down the aisle to become the bride of Lance Preston Miller.

She was given away in marriage by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd E. Meredith of 27144 - 28 Avenue, Aldergrove.

The lace trimmed bodice of the bridal gown featured a Queen Ann neckline, long fitting lace trimmed sleeves, a semi-empire waistline hold on an A-line skirt trimmed with lace and an insert of knife pleats lending a ridingote effect, forming a full lace edge circle entrain. A crown of lace and seed pearls held the cathedral veil and blusher of silk illusion trimmed with satin lace. Bridal bouquet was yellow roses, carnation, freschias, and baby's breath, with yellow rose buds on a lace ribbon.

Rev. Milton Johnson conducted the Saturday afternoon, July 10 ceremony in the Community Baptist Bible Church.

Lance Preston Miller is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack P. Miller of Fort Smith, Arkansas.

Denise Sherman of California was the honor attendant. She wore a long Gunie Sax dress of a blue floral print. Bridesmaids Linda Schmolinski of Clearbrook and Grace Mohr from Hay River, NWT, were dressed in matching outfits. All three carried bouquets of mums, baby's breath and blue carnations tied with lace ribbons.

Flower girl, Rhonda Janzen of Abbotsford wore a matching dress and carried a basket with white carnations.

Aside from the normal proceedings, Janet and Lance had a junior bride and groom in the wedding procession. The junior bride was Bobbi-Jo Rhonda Meredith, a niece of the bride, and Darrell Janzen was the junior groom.

Candle lighters and ushers were Larry Meredith and Jim Swedland. Jeremy Johnson of Abbotsford was the ring bearer.

The bride's mother wore a long blue empire waist dress with three quarter length sleeves. The mother of the groom had chosed a long pink empire waist dress with long sleeves.

Larry Chisum, the groom's brother from Tulsa, Oklahoma, was the best man.

About 150 guests attended the wedding. They came from as far away as Arkansas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, California and North West Territories.

For her going away costume the newly wed Mrs. Miller wore a light blue floral dress with three quarter length sleeves and tie belt. Her corsage was a blue tipped carnation.

The young couple will take up residence in California.

Family honors Ruth Butcher's 94th birthday

ALDERGROVE - A family gathering was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Butcher on Aldergrove on Aug. 1. The occasion was to celebrate the 94th birthday of Mr. Butcher's mother, Mrs. Ruth Butcher.

Mrs. Butcher resides in Langley and until June of last year lived by herself at home on 203 Street. Her husband George passed away in 1975 at the age of 93. She now resides at Highland Villa in Langley, where she remains active and alert, taking part in all social events there. She knits, plays bingo and goes on outings and holidays and also takes her turn tending the stall at the Langley Memorial hospital.

Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Noel Butcher of Langley, Mr. and Mrs. Murray Butcher from 70 Mile House, Mr. and Mrs. Owen Butcher from Prince George, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Butcher and Mrs. Mary Berbeaff of Grand Forks and Miss Linda Butcher from Vancouver. Several grandchildren and great grandchildren also attended.

A very happy evening was enjoyed by all.

BUT IT HAS BEEN FUN

It's been no vacation for the Go-Go's

The Go-Go's, a five-woman rock and roll band from Los Angeles, return to Vancouver, August 21 to headline their show at the PNE Coliseum.

Their last appearance here barely attracted 400 people to the Commodore, but a lot of things have happened between last summer and this summer.

Their first album, 1981's "Beauty And The Beat" was perfect summer music; bright and cheerful as could be, but it wasn't until last fall that the radio stations of north America realized their potential and began to play songs from the record on a regular basis. Their single, "Our Lips Are Sealed" went top-ten and the follow-up "We Got The Beat" went gold, which in turn helped to sell over two hundred thousand copies of the album in Canada, and over two million in the U.S.A.

The Go-Go's became the first all-female band to make it into the top-ten since the early '60's girl groups like The Ronettes and The Shangri-La's, and the very first all-female group who write and play their own material to hit no. 1 on the respected Billboard charts.

Yet when the core members Charlotte Caffrey, Belinda Carlisle and Jane Wiedlin formed the band in 1978, few people predicted that they would become one of the top pop phenomena of the '80's, and in fact many obstacles were put in their way by sexist corporate heads who were sure that an all-female rock band had no sales potential.

The members were undaunted by this resistance, and set to work rehearsing, writing and working as much as their day-jobs would permit. As Newsweek recently noted, "There's never been a rock group quite like them... they refuse to play the victim."

In April 1980 they quit their day jobs to commit themselves totally to the group and their manager, Ginger Canzoneri took out a loan on her car and pawned her jewellery to keep the band going. The gamble was justified as they were invited to tour the U.K. They released their first single on the English label, Stiff, and the song, "We Got the Beat" brought them back as conquering heroes, at least on their home turf.

They were still unable to get a contract with a major record label and with reservations they signed with the small independant label, I.R.S. (Miles Copeland, the head of I.R.S., is the son of a top-ranking C.I.A. agent, which probably explains his word-games in naming his corporations. I.R.S. stands for International Record Syndicate; his booking agency is called F.B.I; and his brother Stuart is drummer for the top-selling trio, The Police.) I.R.S. did have the added clout of being distributed and promoted by the big A & M Records label, but the fight was far from over for the Go-Go's. They set out on a lengthy concert tour.

Says Charlotte, "We didn't have the airplay at the time, but the shows were all packed, we'd leave town, and the sales of the album would go up and we'd start getting some airplay."

Their no-nonsense hard work attitude finally paid off by the end of 1981, with scads of critical praise, a concert tour as The Police's opening act; and after an arduous seven month climb, "Beauty And The Beat" occupied the no. 1 slot on national sales charts.

Strangely enough, there has been a recent spate of girl-group albums, from several of the major labels. Imitation is the sincerest form of flattery, as the saying goes.

The sexist back-stabbing still exists in some quarters however: In a recent Rolling Stone interview, Charlotte ruefully notes tht some people, "assume we slept our way to the top." Kathy adds firmly "I wouldn't do it if I weren't a musician. Why should I do it now?"

Although Jane notes that, "The bottom line is that the songs are fun... the lyrics aren't soppy. I like to have a dichotomy: set a serious subject to light music, or write serious music with not-so-serious lyrics."

With the release of "Vacation," The Go-Go's are aware of what their success means to both them and their fans. Says Jane, "Successful professional women in the past have always been portrayed as unhappy, with something missing from their lives. We try to show that you can be happy; you can have a career, be successful and still be satisfied with your life."

When lead singer Belinda Carlisle, guitarists Charlotte Caffey and Jane Wiedlin, bassist Kathy Valentine and drummer Gina Schock take to the Coliseum stage, the proof of that will be ample.

Opening act will be Vancouver's Payolas, another band who have seen dreams turn into reality in the last few months. Their recent A & M album, "No Stranger To Danger" has sold almost 50,000 copies in Canada on the strength of their haunting hit single, "Eyes Of A Stranger," and a busy concert touring schedule.

The show, produced by Perryscope, gets underway at 8 p.m. and tickets are available at VTC-Eaton's and CBO-Woodward's.

Complimentary tickets along with copies of the new Go-go's album, "Vacation," will also be awarded to contest winners, courtesy of The Aldergrove Star. (See entry form, this page.)

Impressionism and Cubism at Fort museum

FORT LANGLEY - In-gallery demonstrations of the techniques used by Cubist and Impressionist painters will be held at the Langley Centennial museum on Sundays, August 22 anc 29, from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. An exhibit, at that time, will be a show of work by artists such as Tom Thomson, Emily Carr, and Michael Snow. This exhibit, titled Metaphors for Motion investigates a variety of ways in which artists have illustrated movement in their work.

museum is located at the corner of Mavis and King Streets. It is open seven days a week from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Rocky III: About the film

In "Rocky III", the continued story of one of the most popular inspirational characters in motion picture history, Rocky Balboa undergoes both internal and external changes in attempts to improve his personal life, is challenged to keep his World Heavyweight title, and finds that it's not nearly as difficult to get to the top as it is to stay there.

Stallone again plays the beloved boxer Rocky Balboa. Talia Shire is his wife Adrian; Burt Young portrays Paulie; Carl Weathers is once more Apollo Creed, and Burgess Meredith is back as Mickey. Of equal interest, the film introduces an exciting new screen presence, Mr. T., who plays the pivotal roid of Clubber Lang, Rocky's fierce new adversary.

"Rocky III" features important changes in Rocky's story, and also in the way it is told on the screen. While it follows the paths of the characters from the original film, which was the winner of the 1976 Academy Award as Best Picture, "Rocky III" also shows us the tremendous differences that time--and success--have brought into each of these people's lives.

Stallone's creation, Rocky Balboa, has come a long way--from being a hopeful loner to being an internationally acclaimed winner who has realized his dreams. Rocky possesses fame, fortune and a home for his wife and child--as well as the problems that come with each.

Book sale at library

ALDERGROVE - The local library will be holding a sale of discarded adult bookd on Friday, Aug. 13. Hard backs will be on sale at four for $1.44, paperbacks will be 20 for $1.44.

Katia and Marielle Labeque, the famous French pianists will perform Saturday, August 14 on the same bill with solo guitarist, John McLaughlin [see "what's On" for details].

Their three recordings on the Philips label have won them considerable acclaim, particularly last year's "Barbara Hendricks Sings Gershwin," on which the Labeque sisters provided the brilliant accompaniment to young American soprano Hendricks. Their two pianos set off Gershwin's classical and jazz-pop rooted music with improvisation and the perfect mood for a variety of show tunes, including "The Man I Love" and "I Got Rhythm," as well as two selectionsfrom Gershwin's only opera, Porgy and Bess ["Summertime" and "I Loves You, Porgy"].

The Labeque sisters have just released an album featuring their Interpretations of Brahms' 21 Hungarian Dances, displaying once again their considerable talents.

Their appearance should not be missed by any serious student or fan of piano music.

Tina to reduce telephone static

ALDERGROVE - Next time you pick up your phone receiver and hear whistles, crackles, sputters and other people's conversations or any of the other myriad background noises that are common in this area, don't despair. Leave the phone attached to the wall, and call B.C. Tel repair service.

A repairman will visit your house and check out the phone. If he can't get rid of the noise, he will call head office and they will send out the big gun.

In this case the big gun is called TINA (Transmission Improvement and Noise Abatement), a special crew of telephone workers who are being trained and equipped to diagnose noise problems and find cures.

A special machine called a 'Wilcom', will come to your aid.

The machine listens to the phone and identifies the noises it hears. It then tells its operator what is causing the interference.

If you experience noise problems or weak transmission on your phone line, call repair service at 114, and tell them to send TINA out for a visit.

If you are really angry about your phone service, you can offer the repairman a cup of coffee. It will make both his union and his managers livid if you can get him to accept.
