Councilors ham it up for TV

By RUDY LANGMANN

MURRAYVILLE - "At the risk of creating more bad publicity for myself in the Aldergrove Star, I move against receiving this delegate," said Ald. Carol Gran, casting a nasty look in the direction of your reporter.

And thus, Gloucester representative Ainslie Loretto was dismissed on a technicality. She had failed to pre-register her appearance with the clerk.

But councilors had not received advance copies of the letter, and the meeting was televised.

"Is there something in that letter we haven't heard before?" asked Mayor Bill Blair. "You could have been on the agenda," he told Loretto.

A vote was taken, and the only objection to Gran's motion came from her arch foe, Ald. Muriel Arnason.

"I am amazed," chided Arnason. "Council should be overjoyed when someone is trying to promote industry in Langley during these hard times."

"You are not furthering your own case," Ald. Elford Nundal then told Loretto. "You should perform as anyone else."

At this point, Loretto got up and left.

"It is not fair to us," continued Nundal. "It is a publicity campaign. We even hired a special person to deal with Gloucester."

"It has cost council $25,000 so far to deal with Gloucester," said Blair.

It was four votes against Arnason's one, but at this point it did not really matter, since Loretto had left, taking letter with her.

Councilors then proceded with the next point on the agenda. Ironically enough, this consisted in voting to receive another late delegate on a rezoning matter.

Upon leaving council chambers, your humble reporter was congratulated by a senior municipal employee on once more having received a free 'plug' by a council member and this time on channel 10 cablevision.

"How do you do it?" he was asked.

'Expediter' said to be little expeditious

ALDERGROVE - A letter from Gloucester Properties president Joaquin Grubner which township councilors decided not to hear Monday night expresses frustration and confusion with council's apparent inability to act.

Addressed to Mayor Bill Blair, the letter asks why councilors are still silent on the issue.

"On January 3 of this year (we) were told by your council that an expert would be retained by the municipality within 30 days to expedite the Gloucester industrial development. It was estimated that the evaluation would take six weeks and we were asked to be patient." So begins the letter.

"The municipality was true to its word and engaged a Mr. (David) Hebdon approximately 30 days from the date of our meeting and so, even after eight years and a $7-million investment, Gloucester was patient.

"Unfortunately, even though Mr. Hebdon was engaged for the sole purpose of expediting Gloucester, he has been almost totally non-communicative with (our) officials and consequently there have been only two meetings since he was engaged almost five months ago. The cost to Gloucester during that time has been an additional $300,000 and, to this date, we have heard nothing.

"To this date the only comments we have from council are that 'there are still questions' and that we 'might make a profit.' In answer to the first, we cannot answer questions unless they are asked of us (our latest submission to the municipality was made more than a year ago and, if there were any (other) questions, we feel sure they would have been asked within that time frame). In answer to the second (comment), whilst we are prepared to donate land to a high-tech college and our corner-stone industry, we do this for the benefit of our local people and our own project. We do not consider 'profit' to be a dirty word; without profit there would be no taxes and therefore no support of our social programs.

"Mr. Mayor, we are not able to market our land without zoning and Gloucester most earnestly requests that your council immediately give first and second reading to our zoning bylaw and set a public hearing date for third reading. We need an act of faith from you and, if there are any (further) questions, they can be answered before fourth reading of our zoning.

"We ask you to be masters of the destiny of the people who elected you to office for that purpose and feel that your able staff will co-operate with you in every way in bringing this eight year battle for our local economy to immediate fruition."

On a motion brought forward by Ald. Carol Gran, councilors decided Monday night not to hear the letter.

Three weeks ago, on Wednesday, June 6, an 'information meeting' called by Gloucester officials here was well attended by local business and residents. At that meeting, Gran stood up and said that the Gloucester project was so big that the company could not expect approval "in a month."

Grubner has tentatively called for another public information meeting in this community on Tuesday, August 7.

THEY WANT YOUR PARTICIPATION

Fall Fair organizers are out to outdo themselves

By KURT LANGMANN

ALDERGROVE - Festival Days have come and gone but there is still plenty of festive spirit in this town to be tapped for the forthcoming 72nd annual Fall Fair.

The fair has been a major event almost every year since 1912, and is one of the oldest established agricultural expositions held in the Valley. The Aldergrove Agricultural Association was formed in 1912 by the town's settlers, and the Annual Exhibition, as it was then called, mainly featured entries in livestock and poultry.

Association secretary Flora Greenough notes that the exhibition was cancelled in some years. "During the second world war, there simply wasn't always enough manpower to stage the event, and during the great depression, people didn't have anything to spare for exhibit. It went straight to their dinner table. But, aside from those darker years, the fair has been one of the major highlights of the year for our town."

All the work put into the event is voluntary, and the Association is a registered non-profit society.

Although cattle, racehorses and other livestock still form an important source of livelihood for Aldergrove farmers, the emphasis has shifted to produce and domestic crafts at the fair.

Throughout your lifetime what is the most enjoyable event that you have experienced:

Don Greenough: The most enjoyable experience I've had is marrying my wife. I found the perfect woman.

Russ Rue: Cruising down to White Rock in a '55 Chevy on a nice sunny day to watch the exotic scenery is most enjoyable.

Unaware of recent moves, councilor draws out secret

MURRAYVILLE - "I think it is out of order. It's two weeks too late," said Mayor Bill Blair.

And a notice of motion brought forward by Ald. Muriel Arnason was blithely ignored by her fellow councilors.

Thus began an incident in council chambers Monday night that flared into yet another confrontation between the two, with harsh words being passed back and forth across the elevated council table.

"I was never informed; not made privy to any discussions," said Arnason. "It is a serious breakdown of communications."

"I certainly wouldn't tell you anything in confidence," shot back the mayor. "I might as well tell the newspapers.

Arnason's deflated motion had suggested the two Langleys jointly look into the feasibility of reviving the indoor swim pool project that was scrapped by the township two years ago after the economy went sour.

Her fellow councilors were clearly irritated because Arnason's suggestion took the wind out of their sails. Unbeknownst to their colleague they have been working along the same line, and did not want her to steal the glory.

It was in fact her notice of motion that brought out into the open the hitherto secret information that they had been having discussions with various local service clubs to revive the project.

"Everything has already been acted upon by council," said Blair.

By council, perhaps, but apparently not by Arnason.

Ald. Len Fowler elaborated further on the mayor's revelations. "It is a feasibility (study)," he said. "To see if it is affordable; if the taxpayers are not going to be hurt."

Deputy mayor, Ald. Elford Nundal, suggested that perhaps a new taxpayer referendum should be held. "Maybe the people of Langley in the meantime have changed their minds," he said. "They now want sewers. Times have changed."

The multi-million project was shelved in '82 after local officials determined that no funding was available from the provincial government.

A man's got his priorities ... District mayor Bill Blair knew where he was going last weekend as he went to welcome a group of Asta's can-can dancers to Aldergrove.

Meanwhile the mayor's deputies, aldermen Elford Nundal and John Rennie, were dispatched by their chief to such tranquil spots as Ponder park and duller Langley Days functions to cut ribbons and listen to speeches, perchance to speak themselves.

Blair, obviously, had a good time.

New party comes ALIV

ALDERGROVE - A local man has formed a brand new political party that is designed to operate on the municipal level only.

Dave Allison says ALIV stands for the Aldergrove-Langley Independent Voters Association.

It is strictly non-partisan, Allison says.

But he indicates that the new civic party will take on such strong groups as the LVA (Langley Voters Association) and the Social Credit party.

ALIV has been hatched as an "electoral reform organization" according to Allison.

But he adds that "our purpose is not to oppose everything or everyone already elected."

Party platform includes the call for a municipal referendum on nuclear disarmament, a solution to the Aldergrove sewage problem, the end to "evasive talk" concerning the Gloucester industrial project, and the merger of the two Langleys into one municipality.

Allison says an organizational meeting has been planned for sometime in July.

"We may not be able to run a full slate this November," Allison says.

Fair organizers aim for a big show

Contemporary fair books have dropped the animal categories, due to a lack of proper facilities. Today's categories, which number in the hundreds, include horticulture, hobbies, arts, handicrafts, honey, and domestic science such as baking, jams, canning and soap.

The 1983 fair featured the work of 1457 entrants, displayed in the spacious confines of the Aldergrove ice arena. The Association is eager to better last year's number of entries and attendance, and is hard at work preparing and promoting this year's fair.

"We want the entire town to rally around the event," says Greenough. "We want the storekeepers to get involved in whatever way they can, and we want all the new residents to know that they can enter and attend, too."

"We're getting street banners made up. We don't have much of a budget, but they're effective so we're going ahead and doing it - hang the cost."

"We're also suggesting that Aldergrove merchants adopt a western theme for the fair weekend, September 8 and 9. The Association is awarding a prize for the best-decorated store front."

Aldergrove merchants are also invited to rent one of the thirty-odd trade booths offered at the arena. Among the information and trade booths confirmed are the B.C. Agriculture Dep't., Langley RCMP, garden specialist Don Anson, and the Doll House from Gastown. Rentals are very reasonable, and further information is available from Association director Bill Franklin, 856-8985.

Youngsters also have until July 5 to submit entries in the fair's poster contest. Using the theme of harvest, the competition has two categories, grades 1-3 and 4-7 and offers six cash prizes. Posters can be done in any style on a 9" x 12" sheet of construction paper, and may be turned in at the Aldergrove library or mailed to the Aldergrove Agricultural Association, Box 1053, Aldergrove. All entries will be displayed in the town to promote the fair.

High school students are also invited to enter the Association's crest contest. The only stipulation is that the Aldergrove Agricultural Association's name is on it, and that the crest be approximately five inches in diameter, on a 9" x 12" sheet of heavy paper. A $25 cash prize will be awarded to the creator of the adopted crest.

Name, address and grade of all entries must be printed on the back of the sheets.

Fair books are now available at the Aldergrove Star office and Aldergrove library, free of charge. Entry fees are nominal; adults, 25 cents per entry; 12 to 16 years, 15 cents per entry and 11 and under, free. Entry forms and fees must be delivered by September 6, and exhibits must be delivered to the arena September 7 before 10 p.m.

Fair competition is open to all B.C. residents, so get busy weeding your carrots, knitting your afghan, polishing up your collection or whatever. You could be a winner, too.

Aldergrove Fair books are now ready

By FLORA GREENOUGH

ALDERGROVE - The new re-vamped Aldergrove fall fair books are now in the mail and for those not on the mailing list, they can be picked up at the front office of the Aldergrove Star, at the library in the mall, and at the office of the Langley Advance. Get your copy as soon as possible so you have plenty of time to study all the new categories this year. Last year, we had over 1,400 entries and this year it would be nice to have many, many more.

Special thanks must go to Hazel Amundson, who spent many days compiling all the items, setting out all the pages and then typing them out. A great job.

Special guests, as of this writing, will be the local detachment of the RCMP, represented by corporal Murray Ross. Police officer will be showing slides and explaining home protection methods and much more. More important, to my way of thinking, is the fact that they will be there not only as the men and women who uphold the law but also as members of the community, fathers, husbands, next door neighbors. These people have a tough job to do and the more we can help them as community members, the more they can effect their aims, which is to cut the crime rate. If you've never thought about being a Block Parent or patrolling your area to help out, fair time would be a good time. They are very approachable and easy to talk to. They will be a great asset to the fair.

Another guest and a first this year is the "Doll House" from Gastown in Vancouver. They will be at the fair with a professional doll house maker, who right in front of your eyes will put one together. This will do nothing for my ego, as it took me over two months to put one together and this man does it in a matter of hours. Guess some of us have it and others only wish we did. Also they will have a great assortment of miniatures to keep every member of the family happy, whether you are into dollhouses, birdhouses, kites or any other neat stuff.

We are lucky again this year to have our own Don Anson, the garden expert, with us. This man has the answers to more horticultural questions than anyone I know, and he'll be at the fair for the two days. Feel free to ask him anything that might be puzzling you or giving you problems; but be ready to sit down and enjoy a full answer; he's a fascinating person in himself and he makes gardening come "alive" just by talking about it. He's truly a garden lover right down to his favorite piece of music, "English Country Garden", which I promise will be played for him this year. Welcome, Mr. Anson.

The B.C. agriculture department will also be with us this year and they have some really good pamphlets and booklets that you can either pick up or send away for at little or no cost. I'm finding out that these people are really willing to help and they come out to speak on different topics that we ask for. We have a special interest in the department of agriculture and very close ties with them.

As often as possible, from now until fair time which is September 8 and 9, I'll be letting you, the public, know who will be at the fair. If you would like to join in on the fun and take an active part; let us know or write to Agriculture Association, Box 1053, Aldergrove, and reserve your space now.

I have just been notified that there will again this year be free babysitting available at the arena for parents of young ones who would like to browse at their leisure. Last year it was a huge success and the babysitters are well screened and all responsible youngsters. I don't know yet if we'll be needing more than we have now; but if we do, babysitters must be responsible and have had experience in tending children, be local, and enjoy a good reputation. Plan now to attend the fair. First weekend after the kids go back to school.

We, the agricultural association are inviting you to take part in our annual fall fair. Actually for three reasons. First reason, we're all part of Aldergrove and want to enjoy your company. Second, we are expecting a record breaking attendance and hope that your presence will make the fair more interesting and varied. Third reason; with rising costs and tighter belts, we can in our own way help our local business people to extra exposure and hopefully tell our public, they-we have it all here in Aldergrove. Please feel free to phone Bill Franklin at 856-8985. There will be someone there at all times to answer all your questions on booths in the arena. Spaces are now filling up, but I'd like to see our local men filling a lot of them. Needless to say, we are now in full swing and in the final stages of putting the fair together for this year. Our posters and crests are starting to come in and its going to be a hard time for the judges to pick a winner.

ASK ANNABELLE

Dear Annabelle,

This has been bothering me for some time now, in fact for many months. One day I was driving into town on the main road, (it had been raining for several days) in front of me in the middle of the road there were three large cardboard boxes. I stopped, got out and started pushing them with my foot over to the ditch. Just then a car came towards me from the town side and the window was rolled down and a woman's voice yelled at me, "Shame on you." and then sped on. Did she think I was dumping my garbage by the side of the road or what? I really felt very guilty and still do. All I was trying to do was prevent an accident. Maybe she will read this if it is printed and forgive me.

Signed: Feeling Guilty.

Dear Feeling,

Stop feeling needlessly guilty and in the immortal words of W. Shakespeare from the Merchant of Venice, Act V, Scene I -

"How far that little candle throws his beams!
So shines a good deed in a naughty world."

Don't waste any more time thinking about this, and if you have to, think of the accident you probably prevented.

Dear Readers,

Watch for Corrie Lundstrom's prize winning pie recipe next week.

Star readers are invited to mail in their questions to ASK ANNABELLE. Use a nom de plume if you wish. The address is ASK ANNABELLE, c-o The Aldergrove Star, Box 220, Aldergrove, B.C., V0X 1A0.

Summer reading club for the kids

ALDERGROVE - A summer reading club will start at the Aldergrove branch of the Fraser Valley regional library on July 3. As this is the year of the Olympic games, the theme will be "run for reading" and you are invited to "go for the gold" by going to your library. Children who join the club will set their own goal, upon completion of which their certificate will be signed by the library coach and they will receive a library "run for reading" button.

CANADA'S LARGEST YET

London Drugs opens in Langley today

RICHMOND - The newest London Drugs store and the largest ever opens June 27 in Langley, at 19555 Fraser Highway. In joining the existing 20 London Drugs located in B.C. and Alberta, it marks the continuing growth of the little pharmacy that decided to become "The Greatest Drugstore On Earth".

Langley's London Drugs will continue the industry-leading formula, devoting over 25,000 square feet to its pharmacy, non-prescription pharmaceuticals, photo departments, housewares, hardware, automotive, stationery, health and beauty aids, cosmetics and home electronics departments.

With the larger retail space, key departments like pharmacy, camera and cosmetics will be enlarged and a new focus is added in "Books for less", London Drugs full line book store with both hard and soft cover offerings. "We are constantly looking for new products our customers want and that we can deliver with our famous low prices", says Mark Nussbaum, senior vice president of London Drugs. "That's why we keep growing and it's why we have so many U.S. chains visit to see how we lead every other drug store on the continent," he continued.

Langley resident and store manager Rick Schieman will have less travel time to work as his leaves his former Richmond head-office job in operations and becomes local manager for the company. A Langley resident for ten years, Schieman has been with London Drugs for nine of them. In his new role, he heads a team of over 60 people necessary for the large new store. "People in Langley have been waiting for a London Drugs Store. I know because I live here," Rick says with a smile", and they'll love this one!"

The shopping plaza will see many new stores and services locate around London Drugs, who have completely renovated the one-time Hi-Low food store location.

"Parking and easy access were the key to our selection of the site," says Jerry Bleet, director of operations. "We're open seven days a week and our customers are busy people. They expect to be able to get what they want fast as well as inexpensively." He adds that the new store layout will allow even more efficient stocking of the over 30,000 items London Drugs sells.

ALDERGROVE O.A.P.O. NEWS

Dinner and ball brings out crowd

By ERNEST CLUETT

ALDERGROVE - The pensioners' dinner and ball attracted a large crowd of seniors and friends. The dinner catered by Charlesworth was superb. The desert of fresh strawberries and ice cream topped with whipped cream was crammed full of calories which everyone completely ignored with the generous helpings. The head table had as guests the mayor of Langley city Reg Easingwood and the mayor of the municipality Bill Blair. Both were accompanied by their wives. The dance was a relaxed friendly affair which everyone enjoyed. Janice Fulton, Joan Chesney and Mary Walker are to be congratulated on the success of their work. The seniors of the year for 1984 - 1985 were chosen and are John Ossington and Jennie Lewis. Lewis unfortuniately is confined to hospital, but her daughter was present to accept the honor and the trophies. Entertainment was provided by the Button and Bows dance team.

The parade held on Saturday through down town Langley was long and rather drab. In no way could it compete with the well planned, lively Aldergrove parade. Dorothea Stafford and I rode in the 1929 Chev truck (what did they use for springs in those days?) driven and supplied by George Preston. That is the last function we as seniors of theyear seniors of the year shall appear in. The new citizens will now take over.

Tom and Doreen Folkard celebrated their 53rd wedding anniversary on June 27. Congratulations from all of branch 71.

A passing thought; the Evergreen orchestra received a large Senior Lottery grant for musical instruments and supplies, but yet on the night of the ball none of their microphones worked and Aldergrove as usual had to come to the rescue.

The Saturday dance had as visitors Ella and Fred Sabister, Bob and Fern Passley and Clark and Francess Brodie. The door prizes were won by Lula Shellborn and Ellen Anderson. Spot went to Gwen Keay and John Croissant. The birthday of Fern Passley was celebrated.

Frank Corbett is out of hospital, feeling very chipper and back running the Friday bingo in the hall (fourth Friday in the month, for your information).

The trade fair held in the Langley civic center was attracting a steady stream of interested people. It is interesting to note the many and varied concerns that are felt by business in Langley. If we could only get some action in and around Aldergrove, we could have a viable town and not a quaint back water of civilization.

Leader by default

The John Turner phenomenon is interesting.

Here is a man who would appear to have done everything wrong, yet within two weeks he will be prime minister of Canada.

His record as a cabinet minister was not particularly distinguished, as it ended nine years ago, yet from start to finish he was an overwhelming favorite to bury any and all members of the current cabinet who contested his apparent right to the Liberal leadership.

His campaign performance was not impressive. He ran into all sorts of flack from the media, and on television he looked, and particularly sounded, like a man involved in something he didn't really care for.

He was perceived as a right winger when the candidates who spoke for the left wing appeared to get most of the applause.

And even his credentials with the right wing should be suspect, since government spending increased 80 percent in his three years as finance minister and the deficit increased five-fold.

He was apparently viewed by many as an heir apparent because he finished third on the last ballot at the Liberal convention in 1968. By the rules of the 1984 convention, however, he wouldn't even have been on that ballot, because he was never really third.

Paul Hellyer, hardly a magic name in Canadian politics, was well ahead of him on the preceding ballot, but dropped out to support Robert Winters. Turner, who was last, would have been off the next ballot automatically at this convention. By the rules in 1968 he could stay on if he chose, and he did.

In the 1968 convention he was the youngest candidate, but this time he was the oldest, in an era when youth is supposed to be just about everything.

He got a break, of course, in that his main opponent, as one francophone leader following another, was all but ineligible in the minds of many of the delegates. Had Jean Chretien been working for one of the other anglophone candidates instead of for himself, it might have been a different story.

Now, unless he really boots his opportunities, Turner is going to be prime minister of Canada for the next four or five years at least. Without too much to judge by, since he was never in charge before, we can only hope that he does a lot better for the country than his predecessor.

Fortunately for him, although it has been so unfortunate for the rest of us, that should not be at all difficult. - Agassiz Advance

Battling interest

Farmers and ranchers who battled to overcome the crippling effects of interest rates that went through the 20 percent roof at the height of the depression, a period during which prices for their products did not keep pace with the general rate of inflation, saw some hope when interest rates began to fall below 10 percent early this year.

What they had not considered was that the banks and lending institutions which had been quick to ladle out the loans when the rates were at their peak and in so doing had pushed thousands of them off the edge of a financial cliff, would not withhold credit because agriculture had "become a bad risk" because they had gone over the edge.

Money is available. It must be. Lending institutions rolled in enormous profits from 25 percent interest rates. Money is available, but interest rates are back in double digits, heading upward daily and it is that fact which confuses not only farmers and ranchers, but the average Canadian.

If money is not tight, why are interest rates so high? It is not because Canadians have gone on a buying spree. Business reports and predictions indicate we are hanging grimly on to all our extra cash. Basically, Canadians have not come out of the psychological shock of the recession and businesses are suffering.

An explanation is relatively simple. Our interest rates are high because credit in the U.S. has reached boom proportions. Americans are borrowing big and buying big and their economy is pounding along at a furious rate, which means that money is in short supply and their interest rates reflect that factor. They are even higher than Canadian rates.

There is not a single Canadian economist who would dare to suggest that Canada's economy is on the verge of a boom. We are so flat-lined that if our economy was a human body they would be sending for the crash cart.

Our interest rates are climbing into the 15 percent range because credit demands are weak, meaning the Canada-U.S. interest rate differential narrowed to the point where the Canadian dollar depreciated to 75 percent.

That means the Bank of Canada had to prop it up or we would have found ourselves in a new round of inflation and that is where we sit today.

Canadian money had to cost more or our kite-tail relationship with the American economy would have sunk us financially in the world market place.

Liberal government policy, which tied our economy to that of the U.S., makes it possible for American speculators to determine what the Canadian dollar will sell for in world markets. They can manipulate us simply by raising interest rates in the U.S.

If they want Canadian products at cheaper prices, they can run up the interest rates, deflate the Canadian dollar value and buy at their own prices. When they sell to us, the price of U.S. products earns them 125 percent in terms of Canadian funds.

We are in a no-win situation and when credit costs are so high that a farmer or rancher can't afford to replant or restock his land, we had better start rethinking our economic policies and seriously consider firing the government who set us up like ducks in a shooting gallery to be picked off by the U.S. investors.

Punishment is pricey

OTTAWA - A federal government decision to punish the Soviet Union for shooting down a civilian airliner carrying Canadian passengers last year is costing Ottawa more than $12,000, according to documents published last week.

A Toronto travel agency, and 22 ticket holders stranded abroad or forced to cancel trips after Ottawa suspended Soviet Aeroflot flights into Canada for several weeks last year, are being paid $12,632.73 in compensation, according to a cabinet order approved June 14.

Aeroflot flights between Moscow and Montreal were suspended in retaliation against the September 1983 downing of a South Korean jumbo jet in Soviet airspace by Soviet fighter planes. The suspension has since been lifted and Aeroflot is again flying daily into Canada.

Pioneer journeys on, still sending messages

WASHINGTON - More than six billion kilometres from Earth, the unmanned spacecraft Pioneer 10 is still sending back signals whose power is reduced by the vast expanses of space to a few thousand-trillionths of a watt.

One year ago, the spacecraft launched in March 1972 became the first man-made object to travel beyond the solar system.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration took note of the anniversary, saying Pioneer 10's chief discovery may be that the magnetic field associated with the sun shields even the farthest reaches of the solar system from most cosmic ray particles.

Long behind it is Pioneer's 21-month mission to Jupiter.

It was the first spacecraft to cross the asteroid belt, fly by Jupiter, chart the largest planet's intense radiation belts and measure the mass and density of the four biggest among Jupiter's 13 moons.

Its course will carry it next past Barnard's Star, one of the sun's closest neighbors, in 3.8 light years -- 10,507 years. In 32,000 years, it should drift by another star, Ross 248.

Barring celestial mishap, Pioneer 10 should just keep on drifting, scientists say, still on its path five billion years from now when the sun becomes a red giant and engulfs Earth.

NASA says Pioneer 10 has sent more than 126 million bits of scientific data. Currently, it is seeking gravity waves that might indicate the existence of a 10th planet in a so-far undiscovered orbit beyond Pluto.

Scientists hope to track the spacecraft for seven more years, even though its eight-watt transmissions are miniscule by the time they reach deep space receiving antennas from 6.4 billion kilometres away.

As it plunges deeper into space, Pioneer 10 carries with it a plaque meant to be understood by any intelligent creature. It shows a man and woman in a pose of friendly greeting, a map that shows Earth in relation to easily identifiable objects in the galaxy and an indication that Earth was its point of origin.

Soviets breed super chickens

MOSCOW - Soviet scientists have bred amphibious chickens that fearlessly leap into pools and spend hours pecking grain under water, Tass news agency says.

In a report from Leningrad, it says scientists at a research institute also have carried out similar experiments with mice, rabbits, cats and monkeys and their offspring.

"After a full training course, the offspring not only swam and dived freely, but even ate and slept and, in a word, lived under water," Igor Charkovski, who conducted the tests, said.

His team had conducted thousands of such tests as part of research into the effects of underwater human childbirth and of teaching babies to swim. Charkovski said they had no intention of creating human amphibians, but that people should be taught to master their "second environment" of water.

A matter of great interest

By ROGER WORTH

It's little wonder Canadians are concerned about interest rates, which are rising again.

Homeowners have already been through the period when 20 percent plus interest rates were the norm, and many are still paying the price because they signed five-year mortgage deals at those exorbitant rates. Others simply lost their homes because they couldn't afford the rates.

The same situation faced the country's small companies. Many lost money, so the firms were forced to cut staff, forget about expansion and try to hold on until interest rates dropped. The impact was extreme. In fact, Canada's bankruptcy rate reached near-record levels.

For big business, those 20 percent rates were also extreme, but some of the companies were bailed out by governments, and the bankers allowed others to postpone interest payments until they were better able to pay.

The fallout among consumers was also extreme. People stopped borrowing to purchase major items. Instead of buying new cars and houses, debts were repaid. Flea markets and discount shopping centres became more popular.

Indeed, those high, high rates, together with the sharp increase in unemployment, changed people's buying habits. Canadians became a nation of bargain hunters as they hoarded their cash for a rainy day.

Now, it seems, every upward blip in interest rates causes people to worry that rates may again reach sky-high levels.

The economists and heavy thinkers tell us we won't have 20 percent interest rates this time, at least not in the near future. Yet, we've become a nation of disbelievers, and who can blame us? If the experts were wrong once, who's to say they won't be wrong again?

The politicians may be correct when they say we have no choice but to follow America's lead in interest rates, but one thing is clear: consumers, home buyers and smaller firms may not understand the intricacies of the economy, but those 20 percent interest rates taught Canadians some hard lessons, and many are not going to get caught in such a trap again.

Men disapprove of bachelor contest

TORONTO - Canada's first Most Eligible Bachelor pageant is feeling the heat, two weeks before its contestants flex their biceps and charisma.

The pageant, set for July 7, has one men's rights group hopping mad and a Toronto television station nervously wondering whether to broadcast the show.

The 12 contestants, selected by a mostly female committee in downtown bars, will compete before a crowd of 1,500 women in evening clothes, fitness and entertainment categories for $10,000 in prizes.

"We definitely don't need this," says Ross Virgin, president of a men's group called In Search of Justice. "Can you imagine if someone sponsored Toronto's most eligible old maid contest? Women would be banging the drums in protest."

Jay Switzer, programming director for Toronto-based CITY-TV, says he has some reservations about carrying a one-hour program on the pageant.

Pageant promoter David Bell dismisses charges of sexism, saying the style will be one of "elegance and sophistication. There will be no bathing suits or anything like that."

'Hypocrite' pop

In the latest issue of the Jehovah's Witness magazine, Awake!, rock singer Michael Jackson is quoted as saying that the video for his hit song and title track of the album Thriller was not a good idea. He says, in fact, that he would never do anything like it again.

The article says Jackson is sorry he did it because the subject matter and visual effects go against the teachings of his religion. There was already a disclaimer on the video to indicate that Mr. Jackson doesn't believe in the occult.

We expect that the $30 million from the sale of the album Thriller, plus sales and royalties on the videotape and the video The Making of Thriller and other asundry profits from the publicity of it all (which together probably total another $30 million) will also be renounced by the artist. After all, it is supposedly ill-gotten money that would only weigh heavily on the now-pure conscience of Mr. Jackson.

When we see the $60 million turned back to some charitable organization, we'll know Mr. Jackson was serious. Until then, pardon us if the word 'Hypocrite' pops up.

Weinberger denies report that airliner was spying

WASHINGTON - The Reagan administration has denied as "lies" a British report that the South Korean jetliner downed by Soviet fighter planes last September with a loss of 269 lives was on an intelligence mission to test Soviet radar.

Defence secretary Caspar Weinberger called the story, in Britain's Sunday Observer newspaper, "a total set of lies."

The Observer quoted the British magazine Defence Attache as saying Korean Air Lines flight 007 entered Soviet airspace off Japan to enable western intelligence to monitor Soviet radar and electronic signals. The Boeing 747 was attacked by two Soviet jet fighters and crashed in the Sea of Okhotsk. All aboard the jetliner, including 10 Canadians, died.

Weinberger contended the British magazine "apparently...picked up lock, stock and barrel the total set of lies that the Soviet Union published after the Korean airliner was shot down."

Speaking on television's CBS Morning News, he added:

"There's absolutely nothing remotely resembling any kind of mission that that plane was on. It was a commercial airliner and they've been trying ever since desperately to hide the fact that they've murdered 269 people without the slightest provocation whatever."

The Defence Attache article said the close-orbiting Ferret spy satellite and the newly launched Challenger space shuttle were used to monitor the Soviets as they tracked the plane through their airspace.

In London, a defence ministry spokesman said the British government had "absolutely no connection with this whatsoever, so there is nothing we can say about it."

The Observer said the author of the Defence Attache article, who wrote under the pseudonym P.Q. Mann, "appears to have access to hitherto unpublished technical information."

The newspaper said Defence Attache, published six times a year by Diplomatist Associated Ltd., is "well regarded" by the British defence ministry sales organization and the British defence industry. Calls to the magazine, which has a circulation of 3,100, went unanswered.

Press Association, Britain's domestic news agency, quoted the author Sunday night as saying he hoped for further investigation of the KAL incident. It quoted him as saying he remained anonymous for professional reasons.

The magazine said American authorities assumed the Soviets would hold their fire after identifying the plane as a civilian airliner.

Parks and school dep'ts. build Otter tennis courts

NORTH OTTER - Township mayor Bill Blair, and school board chairman Donna Rantamaa, officially opened a new tennis court at North Otter school before an audience of school children and parents last Saturday afternoon.

Begun in 1982 after requests from neighborhood residents and the parent-teachers group, the set of community standard tennis courts were planned and built by the township utilizing school district land. North Otter school and nearby Steele park is classified as a neighborhood park school co-ordinated to provide a maximum of service to residents and children. The placement of the tennis courts next to the school was approved by the school board in 1983 on the basis that students would have priority usage during the daytime, and that the township provide maintenance of the courts in perpetuity. The courts will be used for the physical education program of the school, as well as at recesses and lunch to provide a hard surface play area for court games and activities, as well as providing full sized tennis courts for after school play and for the teens and adults of the neighborhood. Prior to the installation of these courts, the nearest courts were at D.W. Poppy school - over two miles distant.

In opening the courts, Blair said that "the co-operation between the school district and the township is to the benefit of Langley's citizens, and is a continuation of our neighborhood park school co-operative program."

Century 21ers win it all

By GORDIE WAKELYN

ALDERGROVE - Century 21ers put together two fantastic ball games June 18 and 20 to become the squirt boys softball playoff champions.

In the first game the boys got off to a fast start and lead Aldergrove Sports Centre by a score of 10 to 2 after two. Sports Centre started coming back and after six innings the score was 18-15 for the 21ers. Sports Centre had a good seventh inning and scored nine more runs.

The 21ers had last bats and knew they needed seven runs to win. They brought out the big sticks and drove in 17 runs to defeat Sports Centre 35-24. Top guns in that game were Mark Groves, Michael Fauchon, Rocky Bourgeois, Darcy Wakelyn, Erin McIlroy, Rob Loewen and Mark Herfert.

Game two was a little different as the 21ers lead all the way and never looked back. Great defense and good hitting allowed the boys to win 21 to 15 against the green machine. Great pitching by Tyson Koch and some fine defensive work by Danny Parkinson and Tim Cail along with a timely home-run by Mike Grant lead the way for the team.

Thanks go to Carol Fauchon, Bill and Carol McIlroy, 'Dug-out' Don Grant and fellow coach Norm Koch for making this an extremely good season for the 21ers. Ron Parkinson's long distance vibes also contributed to the fine play.

Pets and slug bait don't mix

LANGLEY - SPCA officials warn that every year pets are accidentally poisoned by slug bait. The early signs of slug bait poisoning include anxiety, muscle tremors, excessive salivation, and coordination problems. Gradually the tremors will increase and the animal will fall over in convulsions with the limbs extended.

If you suspect your pet is suffering from poisoning, call a veterinarian immediately.

If you use slug bait or other poisons in your garden, remember that they are dangerous and should be stored well out of the reach of children and pets. A little time spent in the safe storage of these chemicals may prevent a needless tragedy later on.

Kulshan cabin closes

BELLINGHAM - Western Washington University has announced the temporary closure of over-night use of Kulshan cabin, the popular hiker facility located at the 5,000 foot level on the north side of Mount Baker.

Accessed via a two-mile trail from the Glacier Creek Road just above the town of Glacier, Kulshan cabin lies at the doorstep of Coleman glacier and is a popular resting facility for day-hikers, backpackers and climbers.

According to James Schuster, associate director of WWU's Viking Union facility, the sleeping loft will no longer be available for over-night use due to deterioration of the cabin structure and current planning for a major renovation of the facility.

Signs have been posted at the trailhead and at the cabin site informing visitors of the loft closure and the lack of sanitation facilities.

BLOOD CLINIC

ALDERGROVE - There will be another blood donor clinic held at the OAP hall here on Thursday, July 26, from 2 to 8 p.m.

Heritage crafts demonstrated

FORT LANGLEY - Quilting, spinning, weaving, tatting and candlewicking are some of the historic crafts which will be demonstrated at the Langley Centennial museum on Sunday, July 8 from 2 to 4 p.m. Representatives from a number of Fraser Valley fabric art guilds as well as a number of skilled hobbyists will be presenting demonstrations of traditional textile crafts. In addition to viewing the demonstrations, visitors will be treated to discussions of the fine points of lace-making, crocheting and wool dyeing. These events are being presented in conjunction with Fur Brigade Days, a day long celebration of Langley's role in the fur trade. Scottish dancing, knife throwing, a gun salute and campfire sing-along will highlight the day's events at Fort Langley national historic park.

Museum is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., seven days a week. It is located at the corner of Mavis and King streets.

Album review: New sensations, sounds

By KURT LANGMANN

New Sensations
Lou Reed
(RCA Records)

The "new sensation" that's most gratifying is to hear Lou Reed back on the radio with a readily-accessible sound. It ranks alongside his better records, the early "Lou Reed" and "Transformer", for its melodic touch and the recent "Blue Mask", for provocative lyrics.

Reed still cuts a dark and mysterious figure, but he's a lot more human these days. His best songs are about characters, particularly in the first person. "I love you, Suzanne", the title song or "Endlessly Jealous" are the epitome of Reed's style: jangling guitars and his arresting voice.

Bassist Fernando Saunders is another of Reed's more recent acquisitions and his playing is an invalubable asset. With a slick four man band, and help from violinist L. Shankar, back-up singers and a horn section, Reed has earned a come-back.

Reckoning
R.E.M.
(IRS Records)

R.E.M., a rock quartet from Georgia, have been getting extravagant praise since their 1981 debut single, "Radio Free Europe," and have been building on their style since with two great albums, 1983's "Murmur" and the new "Reckoning."

Their sound and substance is decidedly un-trendy and honest in spite of all the mystery they like to clothe their image in. Their new set of ten tunes are more straightforward than last year's release. Instead of recycling a now proven formula they took a new turn. Says guitarist Peter Buck, "Reckoning represents a real departure from Murmur. We didn't want it to be the same type of production. Reckoning is less of a mood record, more of a song record."

The familiar ring and surge of R.E.M.'s sound do emerge again on such tracks as "S. Central Rain (I'm Sorry)" and "Pretty Persuasion" and rockers like "Letter Never Sent" and "Harbor Coat." There are also murky ballads like "Time After Time" and rousing country-rock with "(Don't Go Back To) Rockville."

Says Buck, "We expected to take our time recording Reckoning because we had a hard act to follow, but things went really fast. We had six songs done in the first two days, most of them in two or three takes. We just looked at each other and said, "Hey, we'd better slow down a little bit!' "

R.E.M. will bring this excitement to the Commodore, Thursday, June 28, along with L.A.'s Dream Syndicate.

Icicle Works
(Vertigo Records)

A Liverpool trio, Icicle Works take a different approach to pop music. Iain McNabb's vocals and lyrics are intense and emotional, their music follows alternate routes and drummer Chris Sharrock is one of the more powerful and innovative players on the scene. Their current single from the album, "Whisper to a Scream" is only a small indication.

Says Sharrock, "We're full of contradictions and that makes our songs a bit more interesting to listen to, but I wouldn't say we're conveying anything desperately intense."

Iain McNabb of Icicle Works.

McNabb, who alternates guitar and keyboards, acknowledges that the band is not doing anything new, however. "Everything's been done a million times before. The only thing I can see that makes us any different is that we put our own personality and style into arrangements that don't follow the conventional structures of either pop or rock songwriting."

"That's accidental, because of the way I write the lyrics," continues McNabb, "I can't follow the prescribed patterns because they bore me to tears. I like melodies, but not melodies that dominate. I prefer a more winding or mysterious series of themes that converge to form a whole."

With bassist, Chris Layhe, Icicle Works will demonstrate their point in concert, July 9 at the Commodore.

TOOTHSOME TWOSOME — Remington Steele (Pierce Brosnan, l.) and Laura Holt (Stephanie Zimbalist) go undercover at a dental convention to investigate a case involving infidelity and murder on "Remington Steele," airing Tuesday, July 3 on NBC.

Gangsters hard to follow

By J.T. YURKO

Director Sergio Leone is best known for creating the "spaghetti westerns," Italian movies about America's Wild West that usually starred Clint Eastwood. And without doubt, Leone's masterpiece is his brilliantly stylized presentation of "Once Upon a Time in the West," starring Charles Bronson, Jason Robards and Henry Fonda (in his only villainous role).

But for "Once Upon a Time in America," Leone shifts his sights to the lives of American gangsters during the 1920's and '30s. The world of outlaws, six-guns and horses is updated to the underworld of gangsters, bootleg whiskey and machine guns firing from passing cars. We are presented with the lives of four men who grew up in a Jewish ghetto to become rich, powerful, corrupt and remorseless about the way they got there.

If this sounds like the synopsis of "The Godfather" films, it's because the comparison is unavoidable. The accent here, though, is not on one family but on the camaraderie of four characters as they live their turbulent and often brutal lives.

Robert De Niro (who played the young Don Corleone in "Godfather II") is one of the leaders of the gang, and James Woods gives a superb performance as his partner. In fact, all the performances are first-rate, including those of Elizabeth McGovern, Danny Aiello, Treat Williams and Burt Young.

The women are rather rudely abused in this film, but that's been going on since Cagney rubbed a grapefruit in Mae Clark's face. What cannot be overlooked is the fact that Leone's original running time was close to four hours, while the print released is about two hours and 20 minutes. Thus, one hour and 40 minutes — enough for another whole movie — is missing. And it shows. The epic sweep the film strives for just isn't there, and scenes that should follow smoothly bump episodically into one another.

This film has much to like, including enough action and plot to keep viewers' attentions. The important intangibles, however, such as pacing and narrative flow, seem to have been left on the cutting room floor.

The Late Blumer disappears in comedy

VANCOUVER - A new presentation by the Arts Club Theatre on Seymour Street is Vancouver playwright John Lazarus' comedy, The late blumer, which opens Monday, July 2.

Does the prospect of disappearing for a while appeal? Sound good? How about for seventeen years? Sound strange? That's what happened to Blumer. For most of us, the seventies bridged the gap between the love generation and the high-tech confusion of the eighties. John Lazarus has written a contemporary fantasy about Blumer, a kite-flying Kits Beach crazy who took one acid trip too many back in 1967 and didn't wake up until 1984. It is a hilarious generation gap comedy and Blumer is a modern day Rip Van Winkle; a laid back love child who wakes up to life in the fast lane.

Rick Scott appears as Blumer. Scott was last seen on the Arts Club stage as Sufferton in Ann Mortifee's Reflections on crooked walking and appeared last season in the long running hit comedy, El grande de Coca Cola.

Canadian musical opens Festival season

White Rock Summer Theatre's ambitious season opens with Raymond Storey and John Roby's unusual country and western musical Country Chorale on Thursday, July 5.

Set in the late 1950s, Country Chorale uses an imaginative new dimension with its musical framework. A live radio show ("The Country Chorale" of course) is the delightful background for Ruby's battle between small-town life and her need to be a great country singer. Appropriately, Country Chorale is sponsored by C-ISL AM Radio.

Susan Ferley directs the cast of eleven, including Alicia Jeffery as Ruby, Robert Seale as Ruby's boyfriend Dell, Allen MacInnis as M.C. of The Country Chorale radio show, and Pat Armstrong (on stage with WRST for the first time since 1982) as Erma Tesky. Neil Foster, Kim Kondrashoff, Sid Jenner, Jean-Marc Morin, Wendy Noel and Suzanne Ristic play a variety of roles including musicians and singers in the band. In addition to performing on stage, Sandra Head is musical director of the season opener.

From a toe-tapping 'Hill Billy City Slicker Blues' to a wailing version of 'Easy At The Start' the audience is invited to step back into the world of the late 1950s, the world of live radio and the world of the theatre.

Following the opening night performance of Country Chorale, a 'Radio Roundup' Reception will take place in the lobby, celebrating theme of the musical.

Tickets for Country Chorale are available at White Rock Playhouse (536-7535). Season passes for the three Mainstage productions are on sale until June 30.

ARNPRIOR, Ont. - Mayors and other elected officials from across Canada attended a conference conducted by Emergency Planning Canada at the federal study centre, here, on June 11.

Health checks for your pup

By Dr. DAVID MARLOW

Once a puppy has been acquired it should be taken to a veterinarian for thorough check-up. Your veterinarian will give an examination to determine if the puppy is in good health and advise you on general puppy care such as feeding, grooming and toilet training.

A series of vaccinations will be recommended against distemper, parvo virus, hepatitis leptospirosis and kennel cough. Your veterinarian will be able to advise you regarding disease problems in your area. A rabies vaccination will be given over three months of age if trips to the U.S. are anticipated or exposure to rabies areas is expected.

Puppies are usually born with roundworms and sometimes hookworms. The stools should be examined microscopically by your veterinarian for these parasites. Suitable medication may then be administered. Rice-like segments in the puppy's stool indicate the presence of tapeworms. Tapeworms are commonly transmitted by fleas. Elimination of the problem must also include the flea to prevent recurrence.

Apart from fleas, common parasites such as ear mites and lice will be detected by your veterinarian.

If a puppy is allowed to roam free it is more likely to pick up fleas, worms and the serious infectious diseases. It may also get injured from fights and road accidents. For health's sake keep the puppy confined to its own yard and exercise on a leash once the vaccination is complete.

Making a splash . . . Typical of the frolic and frivolity presented during Langley Days is the Covered Wagon Race. Using a standard child's wagon, a military style obstacle course and a lot of nerve on the part of the entrants, this event provides no end of laughs to the spectators. This gallant team from Sneakers Cabaret, attempt the treacherous and difficult water crossing.

LEGION NEWS

Summer barbecue among coming activities

By FLORA GREENOUGH

ALDERGROVE - Summer's here, and all's well with the world! Another huge, happy, hungry, hearty barbeque party will be held at the Legion. The last barbeque was such a great time that the branch is having another one on July 2. The horseshoe pits will again be avail- to any who want to work up an appetite; although I found that last time all that was needed was to watch and smell the men cooking! The bar will open at 12 noon, to dispense the happy juice. We are pleased also to say that Ed Peekeekoot will be playing. He's the one-one-man-band that charmed everyone last time, and he'll be playing from 2 till 6 p.m. Now to the eats: the sirloin steaks, with the works, will still be $5 and the quarter pound hamburgers are only $1.25. Where else can you expect so much for so little and have all the fun thrown in free? If you're a member mark this date down now. If you will be a guest of a member mark it also. May the sun shine bright on all our heads that day, but if it doesn't don't fret. The barbeque goes ahead anyway inside.

Down to business; the Legion has put in a lovely grassed-in section for the beauty and use of its members. This turf also cuts down a lot of dust in the area and adds beauty in general. Please don't let the kids damage it, playing baseball and generally littering it up. Our horseshoe pits have been wrecked, and it does hurt us as well when we see our work treated like this. We don't trespass on other properties, we'd ask that the public doesn't misuse ours.

The Legion is looking for something odd. It's in our very natures to be odd sometimes; but this time we are outdoing ourselves. Does anyone out there know where we might get a mannequin? Male mannequins and female mannequins are needed for a really good idea that I believe will please all of us. If you know of some business that is closing down, or know of someone with one that's willing to part with it; phone 856-8814 during business hours.

Branch member Louise Wilson is in hospital. It is hoped that she will be home soon and feeling back to her jolly self again soon. Two of our life members are well on the mend, Slim Sorensen and Sid Murrell. Keep on getting better so we can enjoy your company all over again.

On to auxiliary news; I'd like to thank Margaret Gervan for taking over the color party duties and being sergeant-at-arms while I won't be able. I know that they are in capable hands. Over the years this lady has taught me more ins and outs of our jobs and rules, and I would dare add probably most of the members have learned from the same source as well. She's there and available whenever needed, one of our "rocks of information and help."

Have a happy and safe summer all, and we'll see you in September.
