DEPUTATION FROM MINERS' UNION

Wait Upon the Council to Ask Permission to Collect Dues on the Street.

The council held its regular meeting Monday evening in the council chamber, there being present, the Mayor, Ald. Beveridge, Banks, Campbell, Maxwell and Willard.

The minutes of previous and special meetings were read and on motion, were adopted.

COMMUNICATIONS

From U.M.W. of A. asking for permission to collect money for charitable purposes on pay-day, and to collect dues for the Union. Laid on the table for further discussion.

From Ladies Auxiliary, of the C. & U. Hospital, asking permission to collect money on the street for that institution. Permission granted.

ENGINEER'S REPORT

This was a report of the work already completed by the contractor, Mr. Travers, the cost of which amounted to $2460.36.

Referred to finance committee.

From Victoria Board of Trade, promising to take up the matter of the C.N.R. coming through Cumberland, at the next meeting.

This was done to strengthen the hands of the Cumberland Board of Trade, who have already communicated with Victoria.

DEFERRED BUSINESS

The question of the U.M.W. of A's, communication came up for discussion.

A deputation from the miners waited upon the council for the purpose of personally urging their request. Mr. Horbury, on behalf of the committee, said that it had always been customary to collect at the bank for deserving cases, and hoped the council would see fit to grant them permission to continue.

Mr. Naylor said, he had been appointed by the U.M.W. of A. to ask the council to grant them permission to collect dues for the Union. Had been here for the past three years, and never heard of any law to prohibit collections on the street. Had heard the reading of last council meetings minutes, but did not hear of any motion passed to the effect that such collections should receive the sanction of the council.

The Mayor in reply wished to explain his position, and stated that he had received complaints from several people in regard to this question, and he had brought it before the Council.

Jas. Brown, said he did not know there was any by-law to that effect, and that there was no need to come before the council every pay-day to ask permission, and would suggest that the council grant them permission until the end of the term.

Ald Maxwell thought that if the by-law was to be sustained, it would only be just to put all on the same level.

Ald. Beveridge asked to see the by-law.

The mayor said it was a provincial by-law and applied to all cities

Ald. Willard thought that while the majority of the cases collected for at the bank were deserving, there were some of them regular hold-ups. He did not see any harm in collecting for charitable porposes, but thought that if the law were enforced, it would prove that the cases were really deserving.

It was finally decided that permission be granted to the Miner's Union until the end of the council term.

Ald. Maxwell, as one of the trustees, said that the city band had been disorganized, being without a leader.

After some discussion it was decided to leave the matter in the hands of the band trustees, and that the new band master, when they secured one, be appointed one of the trustees.

Ald. Banks, brought up the question of the pound-keeper, pointing out that until they secured the service of a pound-keeper, cows and even horses would continue to roam the streets. He had to hunt horses out of his own yard sometimes.

Ald. Maxwell deprecated the state of affairs, but explained that he had trouble to get a man to accept the position.

Engineer Kennedy reported that the sidewalk in front of the Martin estate, next to Thomson's boarding house, was being broken through by wagons crossing over.

It was decided that the board of works be instructed to open up the alleyway to the rear of Martins estate, and to stop traffic over the sidewalk.

Council then adjourned.

MEMORIAL FOR TITANIC ENGINEERS

Monument to be Erected on the Banks of the Mersey to the Heroes of the Engine Room

Many testimonies to the heroism of the officers and crew of the illfated Titanic have been recorded. One, however, has only recently come into prominence. That is, the memorial which is being raised to the members of the engine room staff who went to their death when the ship went down. The merits of the captain, officers and deck crew have been appreciated and recorded, but the present memorial has to do with nothing but the silent heroism of the engineer.

Throughout the entire world the "engine room heroes memorial" is receiving phenomenal attention. The purpose of the effort is to raise upon the banks of Mersey a monument which shall commemorate the heroism of the men who kept the engines running, the lights burning, and then died at their posts in the recent great wreck.

Already over $2.000,000 have been subscribed in small amounts toward this object. None but actively engaged engineers are asked to contribute. First and foremost, the memorial is one to engineers from engineers. The Right Hon. Earl Derby, C.B. P.C., G.C.V.O., Lord Mayor of Liverpool, is president of the fund, while over fifty of the most prominent noblemen and merchant princes of England are vice-presidents.

Mr. W.T. Whyte, manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, starts his vacation on Monday 16th. Mr. R.S. Ross will relieve him at the bank.

WHITE RACE FOUND IN ARCTIC CIRCLE

Prof. Stefanson Finds People for Whom Ronald Amundsen Sought in Vain.

Seattle, Sept. 9.—Ranking next in importance from an ethnologicial standpoint to the discovery made by Prof. Vilhjalmar Stefanson of the American Museum of Natural History of a lost tribe of 1000 white people, who are believed to be direct desendants from the followers of Ericksen who came from Greenland from Iceland about A.D. 1000 and a few years latter discovered the north coast of America. These people are living on Victoria Island, 30 degrees east of the mouth of the Mackenzie River and more than 2000 miles by the coast line and are still in the stone age. While the civilization of nearly 1000 years has passed they have stood still. Prof. Stefanson arrived in Seattle this morning.

During his peregrinations about the regions at the top of the world, Stefanson discovered thirteen new tribes of people. Ten of these tribes had never seen nor heard of white men. The progenitors of the two other tribes had seen the members of the Franklin expedition, and one tribe had once been visited by a whaling vessel.

The tribe of white people, which Stefanson declares are purely of Norwegian origin, never had seen other persons other than of their color. Their number is about 2000, and more than half of them have rusty red hair, blue eyes, fair skins and tow-colored eyebrows and beards. They live on both shores of Coronation Gulf, on the mainland of North America and Victoria Island which formerly was known as Prince Edward Island.

It was for these people that Ronald Amundsen, discoverer of the South pole, searched while making his trip through the northwest.

GOOD PROGRESS ON C.P.R. EXTENSION

Twenty Miles of the Extension Graded and Ready for the Laying of Steel.

Excellent headway is being made with the C.P.R. right-of-way between McBrides Junction and Little Qualicum when Mr. H.E. Beasley, general supertintendene of the Island Division, and the company's consulting engineer, inspected the line last week. The work along the new Courtenay extension is progressing admirably. The right-of-way for the entire distance is just about completed, with the exception of a narrow space near Deep Bay and about 75 per cent of the Platt River sections is completed. Arrangements have been made to go right ahead with the grading between Trent River and Union Bay. When this is done, twenty miles of the extension line will be ready for steel.

BIG BUSINESS CHANGES HANDS

Cumberland Departmental Store Acquired by Firm of Eastern Capitalists.

Mr. Wagenhauser and Onate completed the sale this week of their store, to MacFarlane Bros. who have recently arrived from Ottawa.

After the great progress the old firm have made since they have been here, this news came as a great surprise to most of us, and is regretted by the whole community. In their short residence here both Mr. Onate and Mr. Wagenhauser have proved themselves thorough and straight forward buiness men with plenty of push and go, which we so much need in Cumberland.

The three brothers W.M., T.A. and M.E.R. MacFarlane recently sold their interests in a large general store at Campbell Bay County of Pontiac, which they conducted for 23 years. They are greatly impressed with the opportunity of this district and we feel sure they have a bright future before them.

Mr. Onate and his mother are shortly returning to England, Mr and Mrs. Wagenhauser and their daughter are going over to Vancouver next week. Mrs Wagenhauser will shortly leave for California. Mr. Wagenhauser will return to Cumberland to finally wind up the firms business which will likely take 2 or 3 weeks.

SHIPMENT OF RAILS FOR COLLIERY RAILWAY

The steamer Strathspey, now at Port Mann discharging rails from Sydney, Nova Scotia has a shipment of 1000 tons which are intended for the Canadian Collieries mine road from Union Bay to Cumberland. It is heavy steel of 80 pounds weight.

TURNER HAS CONFESSED

Turner, the Colored Man Sent to Nanaimo for Trial, Implicates Another.

Harry Turner, who was sent down to Nanaimo charged with being implicated in the robbery with violence, committed in Chinatown two weeks ago. Four Chinamen were obliged to go to the hospital here, from the effects of the weapon used upon them.

Turner who elected to stand for speedy trial has confessed, implicating Phillip Hopkins, another colored man here.

Constable Stephenson, upon receipt of telegram, immediately went out to No. 4 mine, where the man is employed, and with the assistance of constable Murry of the city police, arrested him and brought him to the lock-up.

The trial will take place next week, before judge Abrams.

BOXING CONTEST IN CUMBERLAND HALL

The Mortimer Chester bout which takes place to-night in the Cumberland Hall promises to be a good one.

Mortimer and Chester are ready for the sound of the gong. Both have trained to the hour and will put up one of the cleverest goes that has ever been witnessed in this city. They are both clever and hard hitters, and some exciting sport is promised.

Indications are that one of the largest audiences that ever turned out to see a contest will be on hand. The best of order will prevail as every precaution will be taken to keep down any rowdyism that may occur. The weather has been ideal for training and neither principals will have any excuse to offer.

ZAM-BUK AND OUTDOOR LIFE

Every tennis or ball player, every swimmer, every canoeist, every man or woman who loves outdoor life and exercise, should keep a box of Zam-Buk handy.

Zam-Buk is a purely herbal preparation, which, as soon as applied to cuts, bruises, burns, sprains, blisters, etc., sets up highly beneficial operations. First, its antiseptic properties render the wound free from all danger from blood poisoning. Next, its soothing properties relieve and ease the pain. Then its rich, herbal balms penetrate the tissue, and set up the wonderful process of healing. Barbed wire scratches, insect stings, skin diseases, such as eczema, heat rashes, ring-worm babies' heat sores, chafed places, sore feet—are all quickly cured by Zam-Buk. It also eases and cures piles. All druggists and stores. Use Zam-Buk Soap also; 25c. per tablet.

Badly Had

It isn't easy living up to a reputation of being a wit, but Jimbins did his best.

Meeting a friend the other morning he said suddenly.

I say, old fellow, have you heard about that young lady who poured a jug of water into her fiance's straw hat?

No, replied his friend, getting ready to hear an excellent little anecdote.

Neither have I, said Jimkins, as he began to walk quickly away. It hasn't leaked out yet.

They were decorating the parish church for a certain festival, when the vicar happened to come in. Seeing some tacks lying about the pulpit, he remarked to his daughter, who had apparently been using them—

Don't leave those tacks lying about. What if I stepped on one in the middle of the sermon?

Well, exclaimed Katie, there would be one point you wouldn't linger on.

Misdirected Energy

Short of breath and angry withal, the motorist emerged from beneath his car, and the helpful friend, who was presiding over the oil-can, beamed upon him.

I've just oiled the cylinder, Shirley, old man, remarked the helpful friend with huge satisfaction, and a grin of pleasure on his countenance.

The motorist became angrier and shorter, still of breath. His hand went to his head, and he grew red with vexation. For a moment he battled with his temper.

Good heavens he gurgled eventually, that wasn't the cylinder! It was my ear you were oiling!

A Horse Cigar

A happy thought of the Parisian League for the Protection of Horses is the humane cigar. The league has created a certain brand of cigar said to be a very good one. This cigar is called the "caballos" (Spanish for "horses"), and is decorated with a horse's head in white, and the inscription "Be kind to animals." When a cab driver is seen to be good to his horse, he is presented with one of these cigars occasionally by the agents of the society, and when he is able to bring ten of the bands he receives a pipe cut in the shape of a horse's head. As the cigars are good they are welcome to the men. Naturally there is no assurance that the cab driver who receives the cigar will always be kind to the horses, but the impulse is given and the cause of gentleness helped.

Horse cabs are a rarity in New York nowadays, but the caballos cigar might make a favorable impression among our truck drivers.—New York Mail.

DOCTORS ADVISE OPERATIONS

Saved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Swarthmore, Penn.—"For fifteen years I suffered untold agony, and for one period of nearly two years I had hemorrhages and the doctors told me I would have to undergo an operation, but I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am in good health now. I am all over the Change of Life and cannot praise your Vegetable Compound too highly. Every woman should take it at that time. I recommend it to both old and young for female troubles."—Mrs. EMILY SUMMERSGILL, Swarthmore, Pa.

Canadian Woman's Experience:

Fort William, Ont.—"I feel as if I could not tell others enough about the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was weak and tired and I could not rest nights. A friend recommended your Compound and I soon gained health and strength and could not wish to sleep better. I know other women who have taken it for the same purpose and they join me in praising it."—Mrs. WM. A. BUFFY, 631 South Vickar Street, Fort Williams, Ontario.

Since we guarantee that all testimonials which we publish are genuine, is it not fair to suppose that if Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has the virtue to help these women it will help any other woman who is suffering in a like manner?

Bismarck and His Landlord

Prince Bismarck was famous, of course, for his iron will. Austria, Denmark, France and the German Parliament all had occasion to recognize this quality in the great statesman; so also did the landlord in the following anecdote. While in Frankfort, as Prussian representative in the Diet, Bismarck lived in the house of a particularly sulky and tight-fisted man.

One day Bismarck asked that a bell be put in his room, so that he should not be obliged to shout for his servant when he wanted him. The landlord declared curtly that he would go to no such expense—that it was entirely the lodger's affair.

A few days later the inmates of the house were startled by a succession of pistol shots coming from Bismarck's room.

The landlord, imagining all kinds of fearful disaster, rushed to the room from which the shots had come. Trembling with fear, he threw open the door. There, to his astonishment, he beheld Bismarck, quietly reading some papers, with a smoking pistol beside him. Without looking up, Bismarck asked quietly—

What can I do for you?

The quaking landlord managed to stammer—

W-w-what has happened?

Nothing, Bismarck replied, in the same even tone. I was merely calling my servant.

When he returned from a walk that afternoon Bismarck found that a bell had been installed in his room.

Goldsmith Was There

When the late Franklin Fyles visited London he told his traveling companion as they rose from breakfast the first morning, that he would have to be gone most of the day.

I've got to see a doctor and a lawyer to whom I have cards of introduction, he explained, and there are a couple of dramatic critics here who've written me to call as soon as I reached town. Then I'm going to hunt up Goldsmith's grave down in Temple Gardens—I'd rather see that than any other thing in all England.

A few minutes past ten, Mr. Fyles walked into the hotel again, and to his friend's surprised look, merely said:

Doctor and lawyer and critics all out. Only man at home was Oliver.

A pompous politician, while on his way out to take over the governorship of one of our colonies, was approached on the promenade deck by an innocent-looking fellow-passenger, who, raising his hat, humbly inquired:

Would you mind telling me, what K.C.M.G. means at the end of your name, sir? It has puzzled one or two of us.

Knight Commander of St. Michael and St. George, of course, said the pompous one, as he inflated his chest.

Oh, said the innocent, I thought it meant "Kindly Call Me Governor."

We hear much of compromise nowadays, said a politician recently, and it is sometimes a good thing. He knew a young man who got married about a year ago, and he and his wife were constantly arguing as to whether they should buy two cycles or an up-to-date motor-cycle. Meeting him one day, he said—

My wife and I wrangled for months, but thank goodness we've compromised at last.

What have you compromised on?

A baby carriage, he proudly answered.

Got the Evidence Upstairs

An Indian judge, when first appointed to his position, was not well acquainted with Hindustani. He was trying a case in which a Hindu was charged with stealing a nighai. The judge did not like to betray his ignorance of what a nighai was, so he said—

Produce the stolen property.

The court was held in an upper room, so the usher gasped—

Please, your lordship, it's downstairs.

Then bring it up instantly! sternly ordered the judge.

The official departed, and a minute later a loud bumping was heard, mingled with loud and earnest exhortations. Nearer came the noise, the door was pushed open, and the panting official appeared dragging in the blue bull.

The judge was dumbfounded, but only for an instant.

Ah! That will do, said he. It is always best, when possible, for the judge personally to inspect the stolen property. Remove the stolen property, usher.

Served Him Right

He criticized her puddings and found fault with her cake,
He wished she'd make such biscuits as his mother used to make
She didn't wash the dishes, and she didn't make a stew
Nor even mend his stockings, as his mother used to do.
His mother had six children, but by night her work was done,
His wife was always drudging, and yet had only one,
His mother always was well dressed, his wife could be so, too,
If she would only manage, as his mother used to do.
Ah, well, she wasn't perfect, but she tried to do her best,
Until at length she thought her time had come to take a rest;
And so one day, when he the same old harangue went through,
She turned and boxed his ears, as his mother used to do.

She Wanted to Know

One of the "Seeing London," brakes was passing along Piccadilly, and the conductor was pointing out the various objects of interest on the way.

On the left, he yelled through his megaphone we have Apsley House, the London home of the Duke of Wellington. The mansion with the flower-boxes is the town house of young Lord Topknotch, one of our greatest landed proprietors.

The young American girl on the front seat clutched his arm excitedly.

Oh, say, she gurgled through her nose, do tell—who was it landed him?

THE FARMERS AND THE GRAIN RING

The Duty of the Hour

In previous articles we have fully exposed the true inwardness of the proposed sample market for grain and the selfish motives of the Winnipeg Grain Ring who are seeking to force the grain growers of the Western Provinces to accept it. The grain men of Winnipeg are not to be trusted. In the past they have always sought to secure unfair advantages at the expense of the farmers, and when they propose to remove at one blow, all the legal restrictions that now check their rapacity by the establishment of a sample market, they must be resisted with untiring determination and vigor. The people of the western provinces cannot afford to sacrifice the advantages they have gained over this ring of sharks after years of determined conflict. The farmers should remember that when the sample market is established, all grain passes into the hands of the Winnipeg grain ring the moment it is shipped, to be sold by the grain combine for any price they choose to pay. The people of the West will never submit to such an injustice.

We wish to again to emphasise the fact that the farmers of the West have never asked for a sample market and will not have it at any price. The present system of grading and shipping grain gives general satisfaction to the producers of the West, and is also satisfactory to the buyers in Great Britain, France, Germany and other European countries as well as the United States and home buyers. The foreign buyer can now buy on grade, sending his orders from his home office, and can be sure of getting just what he has ordered. On the contrary, if he orders from a sample market, he must either send an agent across the Atlantic at great expense (which is paid by the western farmer) or he must trust the Winnipeg grain sharks who will charge him a good fat commission for buying for him on the sample market (which commission must also be paid by the western farmers).

In a recent report of J. T. Lithgow, Canadian Trade Commissioner in Germany, he shows the value of the present grading system alike to the Western Canadian farmer and the German grain buyer. "He says:—Canadian wheat takes a very high place in the estimation of German importers and millers, and the large Hamburg importers express the greatest satisfaction at the grading and at the condition of the wheat on arrival. There is a probability that this year the demand for Canadian wheat will be greatly increased." The establishment of a sample market would greatly injure this prospective trade, if not entirely destroy it by abolishing the present standard grades. It would be folly not to foster the German market for wheat, particularly in view of the great crop that will be harvested this fall.

We wish again to emphasize the necessity of quick transit from the farmers market to the lake ports. The railway companies are making every endeavor to be ready to handle the immense crop that will be harvested next fall. Last April the C.P.R. ordered for immediate delivery two hundred and fifty locomotives of the largest type and twelve thousand forty-ton freight cars in addition to the engines and cars being built at the shops in Montreal. The Grand Trunk Pacific and the Canadian Northern Railways have also ordered hundreds of locomotives and thousands of freight cars. But all these additions will scarcely suffice to move the crop on time, particularly when we consider that after the close of navigation on the Lakes there will only be a single line of railway from Fort William to Montreal to convey the grain left at the head of the lakes and in country elevators. In the face of these facts the grain sharks in Winnipeg and the Big Interests at their back, with monumental impudence and selfishness want to hold up for twenty-four hours in Winnipeg every car load of wheat grown in the western provinces, thus putting hundreds of cars daily out of commission.

The marketing of grain and all kindred matters are wholly within the province of the farmers, and no steps should be taken in such matters without consulting them. They are the best judges of what is to their interests, and they universally resent the attempt of the selfish grain dealers to saddle them with a system that would take from them the safeguards which they now possess.

An Oil for All Men.—The sailor, the soldier, the fisherman, the lumberman, the out-door laborer and all who are exposed to injury and the elements will find in Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil a true and faithful friend. To ease pain, relieve colds, dress wounds, subdue lumbago and overcome rheumatism, it has no equal. Therefore, it should have a place in all home medicines and those taken on a journey.

Charles the XII of Sweden had an old-fashioned way of having food cooked without coal or gas. The fowl was larded, trussed as if for roasting and stuffed with butter. A piece of hot steel, not red hot, was inserted into its belly. It was then shut up in a tin box, which was wrapped in a woolen cloth and strapped on a soldier's back. In a few hours, when the march came to an end it was found sufficiently cooked. The Tartars were not so fastidious. They cooked their meat while galloping on horseback by using it as a saddle. This was a much less expensive method than that provided by the fireless cooker of to-day.

He was the happy father of a very pretty and bright little girl of twelve. Dad, she said to him, one evening, while he was reading the paper, every morning when I go to school the boys catch hold of me and kiss me.

But, Ethel, he said, why don't you run away from them?

Well, dad, if I did, perhaps they wouldn't chase me.

He went on reading.

Ready to Oblige

The lady of decided notions and political leanings went to consult her solicitor.

Good morning, Mrs. Tawker, said the man of law. This is a real pleasure! Take this easy chair. Let me lower the window-blind to keep the sun out of your eyes. Will you have a footstool? Do you feel the draught from that window?

The woman of decided, etc., eyed him coldly.

One moment, please, she commanded sternly. When I come to you I want to talk business with you as man to man. Treat me like you would a man.

The lawyer sank into his chair, and put his feet on the table.

Right-o! he said breezily. Will you have a cigar, Polly?

Lucid Explanation

A foreigner on a London tram-car, not satisfied with the rate of progress said to the conductor—

Pardong, m'sieur, but zee car—he run so slow, and why, if you pleaze? Ees it not so?

Yes, replied the conductor, we can't help it, though. You see the car ahead is behind.

The foreigner's eyes opened wide. Would you mind saying him again? as asked apologetically.

I say, replied the conductor, louder than before, that the car ahead is behind. See?

The foreigner returned to his seat. Zee car-r-r ahead he ees behind. Most wonderful! Most astonishing ees this country! I do not understand but some day perhaps I will.

Mrs. Snappem (who has been suffering from toothache): Thank goodness, I've had that tooth out at last!

Mr. Snappem—Happy tooth!

Mrs. Snappem—What do you mean?

"I Want You to Have My New Portable Granary"

"I have a money-saving invention---handy granaries to allow field threshing over your farm. Move them about each year. You save long hauls at harvest time. In spring you scatter small straw stacks---no burning of straw."

"My 150-bushel Granary, showing door. Also without door, if desired. Shows how easy to bag grain, when wanted. Other cut at left shows spout for hand filling as attached to Granary."

"These granaries come in compact bundles. A boy can set up and bolt one together in a few hours. Four padlocks protect the grain. Separator delivery into a spout on the side or into roof manhole—saves work during threshing. Your grain is protected from vermin, wet and thieves. ¶ Sell it when you are ready, loading direct from the granary into your wagon, or bagging it. No musty or heated grain. ¶ Get my granary and be independent of elevators for selling. Sell at the highest price, no matter how long you store your grain. The Pedlar Granary protects you."

Minard's Liniment Cures Garget in Cows

A professor one day objected to a candidate for graduation (who was a native of Ceylon) on the ground of false spelling.

Why, he said, he actually spelt exceed with one e.

Oh, replied the candidate's supporter you should remember that he came from the land of the Cingal-ese!

The joke saved the candidate.

When people who write for fashion publications, says a Vienna letter, have nothing more to say about queer shaped hats, grotesque skirts and other equally important matters, they tell us that black is going out and white is to be the mourning color—if white may be so termed. This fashion news item may be looked for several times a year, but black, sombre black, still maintains its place. The band on the sleeve has done much to save money for those who still wish to wear a badge of mourning, but the sleeve band will never go white. The greater display of mourning is made with stationery, the size of the cards and the depth of the black borders indicating — what? There will be real mourning among the stationers when one may announce the death of a beloved one or tell of his good qualities on paper which is pure white.

The Dog in Politics

An Italian paper has been collecting instances where dogs were used to influence politics or express the political feelings of their owners. We are told that in 1894, when bilingual teaching was imposed on Istria, dogs were painted black in sign of mourning; in 1897 a candidate for the town councillorship of Milan decorated his Newfoundland with a scroll inscribed, "Vote for the Socialist." The following year this was imitated in London, where numbers of dogs wore mantles on which was written, Vote for Chamberlain, or Vote for the Socialist. It is also said that in 1902 on the reception of the news that the Boer War was ended, the streets were enlivened by the apparition of dogs wearing the Union Jack and others drunk with whisky. How the nature of the tipple was determined by the Italian observers is not stated.

Sermon by CHARLES T. RUSSELL Pastor Brooklyn Tabernacle.

CHIEF OR FIRST RESURRECTION

'The Rest of the Dead Lived Not Again Until the Thousand Years Were Finished.'

Glasgow, Scotland, .—Bible Students of this vicinity numbering hundreds have held a three-days' convention. To-day's session, attended by several thousand, was addressed by Pastor Russell twice. We report one of his discourses, based on Revelation xx, 5. It was announced that next Sunday he will address a similar convention in London. He said:

The resurrection of the dead seems to be the most difficult thing in the Bible for the worldly-minded to grasp by faith. This must be because the human mind instinctively realizes the majesty of the Power and Wisdom necessary to the reproduction of the same individuality which lived and thought centuries ago, before passing into the silence of the tomb. The Bible makes no denial of the stupendousness of the resurrection miracle—so far beyond the wildest flights of human imagination—it confesses this and calls upon us to exercise faith in the great Creator, the Omnipotent One, whose greatness we can but feebly sense and surely cannot comprehend.

Hence, the doctrine of the resurrection of the dead, from its first announcement in the Scriptures, has called for the strongest faith on the part of believers and has excited the general resentment of unbelievers, who seem to find it easier to believe anything else respecting the dead. Undoubtedly this is the reason why so many who give evidence of general intelligence accept the absurd theory that when a dog dies he is dead, but when a man dies he is more alive than ever.

These properly claim to hope for everlasting life, but not having faith enough to believe in the Divine power to perform the resurrection of the dead, they are driven to the theory of Plato. Indeed, who has not heard Plato quoted by ministers and other learned men when discussing the future life? They do not quote Jesus and the Apostles, because the explanation of Jesus and the Apostles are all to the contrary, proving that the dead are dead, and that the only hope of a future existence is by a resurrection.

Note the answer of Jesus to the Sadducees of His day, who, we are told, specially denied the resurrection of the dead. Jesus answered, "That the dead are [to be] raised was shown to Moses at the burning bush," when God's message was, "I am the God of thy fathers, the God of Abraham and the God of Isaac and the God of Jacob." (Mark xii, 26; Acts vii, 32.) Jesus commented that God would not declare Himself to be their God if they were dead in the absolute sense that brutes die. Jesus' argument was that the fact that God still recognized them as persons while dead implied that their souls merely slept and will be granted a resurrection of the dead, in God's due time and in better bodies—under more favorable conditions than those under which they died.

We remember that St. Paul's letters and sermons abound in references to the dead. We call to mind his great resurrection chapter (1. Corinthians xv), in which he declares that "As all die in Adam, so all shall be made alive in Christ—every man in his own order." (Verses 22, 23.) He does not say that every man is alive, but that they shall be made alive in the resurrection. The intermediate state he declares is a sleep, from which, by Divine arrangement through Jesus, they will all be awakened in the resurrection morning, at and after the second coming of Christ.

We remind you afresh of his positive statement that if they be no resurrection of the dead, then all whom we have supposed have fallen asleep have perished. (Verses 16-18.) But that God is able to raise all the dead he declares is demonstrated by the fact that He raised up Jesus from the dead on the third day; and so likewise on the Third Day of a larger scale—the third thousand-year day from the time Jesus was raised—God will raise up all those who have died because of Adam's sin.

That Third Great Day, the Millennium, will be the Great Seventh Day or Sabbath. So to speak, our Lord gave Himself a Ransom-price in the Fifth Day, from which the Seventh would be the Third Day, the day of the world's resurrection—"the last Day"—the end of the present Week of 1,000-year days in which sin and death have reigned, ushering in the glorious Epoch when God's will shall be done on earth as it is done in Heaven.

The tenor of all the Scriptures is that the Church alone will participate in the First or Chief Resurrection—the world in general will have no share in it. Hearken to Jesus' words on this subject, and note their explicitness of statement to the effect that all who participate in his First Resurrection will be the elect overcomers of this Age, and they will be the Royal Priests, or Priestly Kings, of the next Age, in which the world will be dealt with and, so far as willing, uplifted from sin and death. He says, "Blessed and holy are all they that have part in the First Resurrection; on such the Second Death hath no power; they shall be priests unto God, and unto Christ, and shall reign with Him a thousand years."—Revelation xx, 6.

The word in this text rendered first signifies chief, foremost, superior. It will indeed be first in order of time, too; but the particular thought is that it is superior. Its superiority rests in the fact that all who share in its blessings will not only attain life, full, perfect and everlasting, but additionally they will receive life on the highest plane, being made partakers of the divine nature, by the "change" which this resurrection will bring to them.—II. Peter i, 4.

The sharers of this resurrection will not only receive everlasting life, but more, they will thereby be made death-proof—immortal in the Bible sense, in which it is declared that God alone hath immortality. God has also given immortality to our Redeemer in His resurrection, and has promised the same to the elect Church, the Bride, the Lamb's Wife, in this First Resurrection. Aside from these, so far as the Bible teaches, this special kind of immortality goes to no other creatures in the Universe.

Even angels, both the holy and the fallen, possess only the ordinary immortality known as everlasting life—an immortality or deathlessness dependent upon the Divine pleasure and supported by necessary elements of Divine provision. The Church, on the contrary, sharing in this Chief Resurrection, will possess inherency of life, the same kind of immortality possessed by Jehovah Himself.

From the context it will be seen that none will participate in this Chief Resurrection except such as shall successfully pass their trial and be accounted worthy of joint-heirship with Messiah in His glorious Kingdom, for it is distinctly stated that they are to "reign with Him a thousand years."

From what we have seen it must be evident to all of us that to gain a share in this Chief Resurrection is to gain the great Prize held out before us in the Gospel Age—the Prize which our Lord referred to as the "Pearl of great price," for which a man would be well justified in selling all that he has that he might purchase it.

It will be admitted on all hands that the great Apostle Paul is represented amongst the loyal ones who sacrificed every earthly interest, aim, hope and ambition that he might attain the Kingdom blessings and joint-heirship with Christ. We are therefore deeply interested in St. Paul's words respecting his hope, his sacrifice and his anticipation of attaining a share in this better resurrection, which he styles "His Resurrection"—namely, the resurrection of Christ.

The Scriptures continually maintain the thought that Jesus is the "Head of the Church which is His Body," and that these saintly Elect constitute the members of His Body. Carrying out this figure, the whole Body, all the members, should share in the same resurrection as that experienced by the Head—the Redeemer. And to this the facts agree. More than eighteen centuries ago our Lord Jesus was raised from the dead by the Father's power.

St. Paul declares that because of His obedience in carrying out the Divine Program as our Redeemer—even unto death—"Therefore God hath highly exalted Him, and hath given Him a name [honor, station] above every other name [except His own—He is excepted], that at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, both of things in heaven and things on the earth." (Philippians ii, 9, 10.) To this end we must all be changed from earthly to heavenly nature, because "Flesh and blood cannot inherit the Kingdom."

It seems a long time indeed between our Lord's resurrection and the resurrection of His Mystical Body, the Church class (Col. i, 24), but the period is long only from our limited human standpoint—not long from the Divine standpoint, in which a thousand years are as one day. (II. Peter iii, 8.) He who brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus, that Great Shepherd of the sheep, will bring us also [from the dead] by Him," and with Him, as members of His Body.

It is to this that St. Paul refers saying, I count all [earthly] things but as loss, * * * that I may win Christ [win a membership in His glorified Body—in the Kingdom class], * * * that I might know Him and the power of His resurrection [that I might experience that great power of God which in the Redeemer's case lifted Him not only out of death, but to the very highest plane of existence, the divine nature, with its glory, honor and immortality], * * * being made conformable unto His death, that I might share also in His resurrection.—Philippians iii, 7-11.

Oh, the Apostles gives us the key to his hopes; he did not hope that the Heavenly Father, who had required of Jesus a manifestation of His loyalty unto death before He would crown Him with immortality at His own right hand—he did not expect that this same God would give him a share in that great glory and honor, except as he should demonstrate similarly his loyalty to the extent of his ability in being conformed to Christ's death.

There is a lesson here for us. It is in vain that we shall hope to share the Master's glory if we fail to share His loyalty, His ignominy—to be dead with Him to the world, its praises, its ambitions, its rewards. "If we suffer with Him, we shall reign with Him." And the only way to enter into that reign of glory will be through the power of "His Resurrection"—the Chief Resurrection.

The statement of our text that the rest of the dead will not live until the thousand years of Christ's reign are finished has proven a stumbling block to many who have studied too superficially. Let us not forget that the Spirit does not reveal the deep things of God, except to those who search for Truth "as men search for silver"—patiently, persistently, delving deeply.

It is very easy for all to grasp the thought that Messiah's Kingdom is to last a thousand years, and that all who shall be alive at that time, all who shall be born during that period, will participate in the wonderful blessings and privileges which it will bring to the human family. They are ready, too, to admit the reasonableness of giving an equal opportunity to those of our race who have gone down into death with either no knowledge of Christ, as was the case for four thousand years, or with the too limited knowledge to benefit them, as has been the case during the past two thousand years, and to-day, only this text respecting the "rest of the dead" stands in their way. I should be glad if any such are present here to-day, because I know I can relieve them of their difficulty. Yes, I shall be glad if my words through the press shall reach many others who have been perplexed by this Scripture.

It is not necessary for us to set this Scripture aside, even though all Bible scholars know, or should know, that this portion of Revelation xx, 4, 5, which relates to "the rest of the dead which live not again until the thousand years are finished" is spurious—that it is not found in any of the old Greek manuscripts. It is supposed that it got into the text, not through any desire to corrupt the same and falsify the record, but that in the days when the manuscripts were copied by pen, some copyist made this memorandum on the margin of his manuscript as a helpful thought, and that other copyists, using his manuscript, supposed it to be a part of the original and incorporated it in the text.

However, the additional words are in no sense in conflict with the facts, which are these: Adam, created in his Maker's likeness perfect, was alive in the sense that he enjoyed perfection of life and that he had a right to a life everlasting, except as he should forfeit the same by disobedience. The moment he disobeyed God's command he came under the sentence of sin, namely, death. From that moment onward he was judicially dead, even though the dying process lasted for more than nine hundred years.

Similarly, all of his posterity, from the Divine standpoint, are dead, "children of wrath." Jesus carried out this same thought in His teaching, saying, "Let the dead bury their dead." Only those who have accepted Him as their Life-giver are even reckonedly considered alive, from the Divine standpoint.

And so, throughout the thousand years of Messiah's reign, "All in their graves shall come forth," "every man in his own order"; but they will still be, from the Divine standpoint, judicially dead—without the right to everlasting life. The work of the Lord Jesus, as the Great Prophet, Priest, King and Judge, and the Church with Him, will be the instruction and assistance of these for their gradual uplifting out of sin and weakness and imperfection—toward perfection—toward acceptance with God—toward everlasting life. Such as reject the assistance offered will die the Second Death. Such as avail themselves of the blessed privileges of that time will attain human perfection. But still they will not have everlasting life accorded to them. They will merely be in a good, suitable and ready condition for God to grant them everlasting life.

The tests for eternal life will come at the close of the Messianic reign—when the great Mediator between God and men, having accomplished His work of restitution of the race, shall deliver over everything into the hands of the Father—the hands of Justice. Everlasting life will not be given as a matter of mercy, but as a matter of justice—to those who will demonstrate their loyalty and worthiness of everlasting life. The mercy of God will be exercised in the bringing of them to this condition, where perfection in word, deed and thought will be possible.

The great temptation which will then come to all the world, through the loosing of Satan—the temporary permission of evil in the world—will demonstrate which of these resurrected from the dead God can approve and consistently grant the great gift of eternal life. All those who fail in their trial will be destroyed with Satan in the Second Death, while all who prove their loyalty will be acknowledged worthy of everlasting life.

Thus the rest of the dead, aside from those now on trial, the Church class, will not live in the full sense of Divine recognition as worthy of everlasting life, until the thousand years of Messiah's reign shall have ended.

But, beloved brethren, much as we are interested in the glorious blessings that the Messianic Kingdom shall bring to the world of mankind, the Lord wishes us to be specially interested in the glorious opportunity and privilege which He has accorded us of having fellowship with our Redeemer in the suffering of this present time and being counted worthy to share with Him in the glory which shall follow — into which the faithful will be ushered by the power of the First Resurrection.

Willing Away Bodies.

There have been many instances of similar bequests to that of Florence Nightingale in her last will and testament: "I give up my body for dissection or post-mortem examination for the purposes of medical science." The earnest desire to aid the study of medicine usually has been sufficient reason for the slight strangeness of the legacy, but many testamentary directions are not so open to satisfactory explanation. Some unknown and unwritten romance may lurk beneath the bald words of the individual who desired his "carcass to be cremated, and the residuum thereof deposited in two urns, numbered respectively 1 and 2. On the ashes in No. 1 are to be placed a packet which will be found on my desk and my miniature portrait scarf pin, and on the ashes in urn No. 2 a similar packet, which will also be found on my desk, and my miniature portrait finger ring."

A BIG SPIDER STORY.

This Brazilian Hairy Monster Could Even Dodge Revolver Shots.

If we live in a locality where mosquitoes are found at all during the summer we are pretty likely to consider them a torment. But comparing our own condition with that of Algot Lange during his travels in Brazil we may on the whole consider ourselves fortunate.

"In the first place," he says in "In the Amazon Jungle," "there are the ants. They are everywhere. They build their nests under the houses, in the tables and in the cracks of the floors and lie in ambush waiting the arrival of a victim, whom they attack from all sides. They fasten themselves on one, and sometimes it takes hours of labor to extract them.

"Many are the breakfasts I have delayed on waking and finding myself the object of their attentions. It proved necessary to tie wads of cotton covered with vaseline to the fastenings of the hammocks to keep the intruders off. But they even got around this plan. As soon as the bodies of the first arrivals covered the vaseline the rest of the troops marched across them in safety and gained access to the hammock, causing a quick evacuation on my part. Articles of food were quickly destroyed by these carnivorous creatures within a few minutes after I had placed them on the table.

"When convalescing from my first attack of swamp fever I had occasion to study a most remarkable species of spider which was a fellow lodger in the hut I then occupied. In size the specimen was very respectable, being able to cover a circle of nearly six inches in diameter. This spider subsists on large insects and at times on smallest varieties of birds, like finches, etc. The natives dread it for its poisonous bite and on account of its great size and hairy body.

"The first time I saw one in my hut was when it was climbing the wall in close proximity to my hammock. I got up and tried to crush it with my fist, but the spider made a lightning quick move and stopped about five or six inches from where I hit the wall. Several times I repeated the attack without success, the spider always succeeding in moving before it could be touched. Somewhat out of temper, I procured a hammer of large size and continued the chase until I was exhausted.

"When my hand grew steady again I took my automatic pistol, used for big game, and, taking a steady aim on the fat body of the spider, I fired. But with another of the remarkably quick movements the spider landed the usual safe distance from destruction. Then I gave it up. For all I know that animal—I can scarcely call it an insect after using a big game pistol on it—is still occupying the hut.

"'Lange,' asked one of my friends, 'why didn't you try for him with a frying pan?'"

Galilei and the Swinging Lamp.

The boy Galilei, sitting with hundreds of others in the Cathedral of Pisa on a Sunday morning, saw an attendant draw aside the heavy hanging lamp to light it and then let it swing. Many other eyes saw the same thing, but there was only that pair in Galilei's head which really observed what happened, and only his brain began to reason upon it. He alone noticed that as the swings of the huge lamp became smaller and smaller they always took the same time. He proved it by counting them with his pulse. He had made a great discovery, out of which grew the pendulum clock and the accurate measurement of time.

Arctic Mosquitoes.

The presence of mosquitoes in myriads within the bare, uninhabited arctic circle is surely in some degree a mystery. The mosquito is a bloodsucker, but in these unvisited plains he is for the most part and of strict necessity a vegetarian. A few birds excepted (and the birds are furnished with impervious feathers), there is no local life whatever. The Lapp in summer drives his reindeer to the sea, and no native crosses the field if he can help it. Yet in this region, "seemingly the most unsuitable for its effective working," the mosquito flourishes, "a primeval and enduring curse, inexplicably developed to its utmost."—London Chronicle.

Blue and Green Sea Water.

The blueness of sea water is in constant ratio to its saltness. In the tropics the tremendous evaporation induced by the blazing sun causes the water to be much saltier than it is in higher latitudes. For about thirty degrees north and south of the equator the waters are of an exquisite azure. Beyond these latitudes the blue changes to green, and in the Arctic and Antarctic oceans the greens are almost as vivid as the tropical blues.

Norway's Long Day.

Summer time brings more than two months of continuous daylight at Wardburg, Norway, in the "Land of the Midnight Sun." That little village near the north cape has the longest day of any civilized community in the world, extending from May 21 to July 22, during which period the sun is at all times visible except when obscured by clouds.

Relations Became Strained.

Mrs. Ambish—I often tell my husband I wish he had more "get up and get" about him.

Mrs. Jellers—Indeed? I've often heard that he gets up and gets his own breakfast.

His Trade.

"The man passing over there is such a time server."

"I despise that kind."

"No reason to despise him. He is such a good clockmaker."

The Roman Legion.

Ten cohorts of 600 men each, with a wing of 300 cavalry, was the ordinary composition of a Roman legion.

NAPOLEON'S ESCAPES.

Reckless of Danger, the Great General Was Often Wounded.

In reply to the question in what engagements he considered himself to have been in the greatest danger of losing his life, Napoleon once said, "In the commencement of my campaigns." Indeed, if further proof were demanded to show that he did not spare himself at Toulon it is only necessary to add that during the seven weeks of its siege Napoleon, in addition to a bayonet wound in his thigh, had three horses shot under him, while at the siege of Acre, during the expedition to Egypt, he lost no fewer than four in the same manner.

During the last days of his life, when captivity, disappointment and sickness had well nigh completed their work, it is said that the agony of his fatal disease drew from him on many occasions the pitiful cry of, "Why did the cannon balls spare me?"

During his long military career Napoleon fought sixty battles, while Caesar fought but fifty. In the early part of his career he was utterly reckless of danger while on the battlefield, and this spirit of fearlessness contributed largely to the love and esteem in which he was held by his armies. There was a curious belief among the English in Napoleon's time that he had never been wounded, and indeed the report was current that he carefully if not in a cowardly manner retrained from exposing himself.

Nothing could be more contrary to the truth, for he was in reality several times severely wounded, but as he wished to impress upon his troops the belief that good fortune never deserted him and that, like Achilles, he was well nigh invulnerable he always made a secret of his many dangers. He therefore enjoined once for all upon the part of his immediate staff the most absolute silence regarding all circumstances of this nature, for it is almost impossible to calculate the confusion and disorder which would have resulted from the slightest report or the smallest doubt relative to his existence.

Upon the single thread of this man's life depended not only the fate and government of a great empire, but the whole policy and destiny of Europe as well.

An Honest Sergeant.

A military story comes from Ireland. A noncommissioned officer entering a barrack gate in Dublin, was mistaken by the "fresh one" on sentry go, who immediately saluted him. The noncommissioned officer, unaware that his colonel was just behind, returned the salute, a thing not permissible under the circumstances. Arrived at his quarters, he was surprised to find an order for him to attend before the colonel. On presenting himself he was asked how he came to return the salute, knowing full well he not entitled to it. Not in the least embarrassed, he promptly answered, "Sir, I always return everything I am not entitled to." The colonel, taken aback by his ready wit, laughingly dismissed him.

Budding Genius.

A newspaper recently offered a prize for the best story to be written by a pupil of the public school. Here are a few passages from the contributions: "Cora Brown was fortunately the possessor of a birthday, for she was the daughter of rich friends." "But all this time a cloud was gathering over Mrs. Delaney, which grew large as years went by, and that cloud was full of grasshoppers." "My father desired me to marry a bank president, a handsome, reckless man, fond of naught save the gaming table." "'Vat I dell you, vat I dell you,' shouted the Irishman." "As she entered the room a cold, damp smell met her sight."

Cinnamon.

Ceylon provides us with the bulk of our cinnamon, which is the aromatic bark of certain trees common to that island. The trees are never allowed to grow higher than ten feet. During the season of harvesting, of which there are two a year, the branches of three to five years' growth are cut down and the top surface of the bark scraped away. Then the bark is ripped up longitudinally into slices, which when exposed to the sun to dry curl up into quills. In the course of drying the oil, upon which the aroma and flavor depend, is diffused throughout the bark.

She Knew Better.

"But, madam," says the architect, "it is utterly impossible to build the house the way you want it planned. The rooms you specify will occupy 2,000 square feet more of floor space than is contained in the total dimensions of the lot on which the house is to be built."

"Nonsense," says the woman. "How is it, then, that my dressmaker is able to give me a twenty-two inch waist line when I really measure thirty?"

That's What Noah Did.

"What did Noah live on when the flood had subsided and his provisions in the ark were exhausted?" asked a Sunday school teacher of her class on Sunday.

"I know," squeaked a little girl after all the others had given it up.

"Well, what?" inquired the teacher.

"Dry land."—London Tit-Bits.

Inconsistent.

"Who are your best patients, doctor?" was asked.

"The people who are always contending that life isn't worth living," replied the doctor without the slightest hesitation.

Equivocal.

"I'll bet little Mrs. Getit was afraid to ask that grump husband of hers for a new white willow plume."

"I left there awhile ago, and I assure you she was showing the white feather."

FOUGHT TO THE LAST

STRUGGLE OF ZULU AGAINST BRITAIN AND BOER.

The South African War Has Obscured the Zulu Campaign of 1879 When the British Forces Broke Up One of the Most Remarkable Negro Empires of Modern Times.—The Campaign Against Cetawayo.

Ten years ago the British in South Africa subjugated the Boers. The reverses and final victory of that long campaign have dulled the memory of the English to the events 33 years ago when their encroachments were questioned defiantly and their interference resented by a brave and black foe—the proud Cetewayo who replied to an unwarranted ultimatum by sending an ox hide to the Colonial Government with the message: "Count the hairs upon this, and then you may number the Zulu warriors." The British high commissioner in South Africa, Sir Bartle Frere, had made up his mind that a powerful and independent Zulu kingdom to the north was a menace to the advancing English colonists.

The time was near when these mighty chiefs with their thousands of followers, fighting, like Homer's heroes, hand in hand, armed with stabbing assegais and shields of ox-hide, would melt away with broken power into insignificance before the terrible rifles of the Boers and the British. War was declared and Britain's troops marched upon the natives.

The British forces met with a stubborn resistance as soon as they crossed the Tugela river, in January, 1879. A strong force of Irregular Horse were attacked in the Devil's Pass on Zlobane Hill and suffered heavy losses, but a determined rush on the British lager the next day was repulsed. A few days later, however, the British met with a terrible calamity at Isandlana. The Zulus swarmed like bees around the British position, upon which they advanced under a heavy fire, regardless of consequences, and came at once to hand-to-hand fighting with their assegais and short swords. The Imperial troops were broken and, back to back, they fought and disputed every inch of the ground. One square of 60 men defied the repeated attacks of one horn of the Zulu army and, their ammunition failing, the gallant little band to a man, fell as they had fought, side by side. The carnage was dreadful. At last the Zulus made a combined attack. From every black throat rung out the victorious war whoop, Usutu! and they rushed the camp. Fearful slaughter now ensued; it was one infuriated mob stabbing wildly on every side. Panic-stricken, those who were still alive sought to escape by flight, but there was no path, no track—rocks and ravines everywhere. The Zulu reserves closed in, the panting fugitives were pursued with redoubled vigor; no quarter was given, danger and death was all around. Horses, mules, oxen, men on foot and horseback, white and black all intermingled in one mad stampede. Night closed in at last, and as the young moon arose on that fatal 22nd of January, *she looked down upon all that re*mained of a thousand British slain.

At Isandlana, the Zulus captured $300,000 worth of commissariat stores, besides immense quantities of arms and ammunition, two cannon, and the colors of the Twenty-fourth Infantry. England was stunned by the disaster. Reinforcements were hurried to South Africa. The invading army stood on the defensive. Early in March, the Zulus inflicted another serious reverse on the British, capturing a convoy and wiping out its escort. It was not until June that the British commander felt prepared for a general advance on Ulundi, the Zulu capital. Opposed to a greatly strengthened and well-equipped army, Cetewayo recognized the futility of the struggle and made overtures for peace, but his white flags were fired upon "to test their sincerity" and his messengers put in irons. Disaffected chiefs deserted the king and surrendered, and the combined British army occupied Ulundi after a most determined resistance by the remnant of Cetewayo's forces. Soon afterward Cetewayo was captured and sent to Cape Town as a state prisoner. The military system was abolished. The country was divided into 13 districts, each of them under a native chief or kinglet, and over all was a governor-resident, in the person of John Dunn, an Irishman, who had been for many years Cetewayo's right-hand man and principal lieutenant. This divide and conquer policy not working satisfactorily, Cetewayo was reinstated in 1883, but his glory had departed and he was soon driven out by some of the recalcitrant chiefs, and died in exile the following year. Soon afterward the empire of the dynasty of Chaka, the black Napoleon of Africa, became a mere appanage of the British colony of Natal. The power of the Zulu was broken and, a few years later, the last determined stand with assegai and shield was made far to the north in Rhodesia, when the Matabele fought valiantly, but unavailingly, against the steady advance of Cecil Rhodes and the Chartered Company.

The rise of the Zulu kingdom began with Chaka, who was born in 1787. He was educated in all the Kaffir accomplishments of a prince and a warrior, and in his early youth determined to become an African Napoleon. Some shipwrecked English sailors told him of the deeds of the great emperor, then at the zenith of his career, and the recitals fell on fruitful ground. Becoming ruling chief, on the death of his father, he entered upon an unchecked career of conquest. He subjected the whole male population to compulsory military service, and created an imperial guard of 15,000 veteran warriors, who were ready to march 50 miles in any direction.

King Chaka's reign was marked by extreme cruelty and one of his savage outburst cost him his life. He was assassinated and his brother the great Dingaan, ascended the throne.

What the Editor has to say.

IT is very gratifying to us, and we feel assured it is equally so to the citizens of Cumberland, to see the vast improvement the cement sidewalks are making in the appearance of our city. In our opinion progress and prosperity follow good roads, good sidewalks, and a well lighted city. We would urge the City Fathers and the Board of Trede to the advisability of making the most of our opportunities and resources, and endeavor to bring tourist trade here. Cumberland in the past has been almost neglected because of the fact that it has not made itself known. Our city is bound to go ahead just as rapidly as its progressive citizens will make it by advertising and boosting.

THE newly incorporated city of Port Alberni has made a good start in the direction of municipal ownership. The corporation is calling for tenders for the construction water mains from a point on China Creek to the town, and are negotiating with the Canadian Pacific Lumber Co. to supply steam for the electric lighting of the city.

THE decision of the Imperial Trade Commission to take up the subject of immigration is highly satisfactory. There are few subjects to which this body could more profitably devote its attention. Emigration and Immigration are of vital importance to the Empire There are large numbers of people in the Mother Country who are liying close to the line of subsistence; and there are millions of acres of land in the Colonies which await development. At present the demand and the supply are separated. It is the task of our empire builder to bring them together. It is of Imperial import that these land-hungry people should be settled on the lands of the Empire, and not allowed to drift away to live under other flags.

There has been, it is true, a vigorous advertising campaign on the part of our government, and to a less degree on the part of some of the other colonies. But the Imperial government has taken practically no part in the matter and there has been no co-operation between the home and the Colonial authorities. This is a state of affairs that cannot be allowed to continue with impunity. The present status is not producing the results which the welfare of the Empire demands. Our position in Canada is the most fortunate of all the Colonies. South Africa and Australia are in even greater need of settlers than we are, and they are not obtaining as many as come to us.

It is easy to see that there is here a big problem for the Imperial Trade Commission. What is needed is a scheme of co-operation between the Home authorities and the Governments of the Dominions. We ought to be able to divert a large part of the thousands of British settlers who are now going to non-British countries. We ought to be able to increase the volume of British immigration that is already coming to Canada. Moreover, there is an important work to be done in looking after the welfare of the immigrant, which is now almost entirely neglected. We ought to provide an organization that would look after him from the time he makes known his intention to emigrate till he is settled and prosperous in his new home, He should not be pauperized; but he should be protected from all danger of fraud. This can bedone only by co operation between the Home and Colonial authorities, but with such co-operation it ought to be easy.

Synopsis of Coal Mining Regulations

COAL mining rights of the Dominion in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the Yukon Territory the Northwest Territories and in a portion of the Province of British Columbia, may be leased for a term of twenty-one years at an annual rental of $1 an acre. Not more than 2,500 acres will be leased to one applicant.

Application for a lease must be made by the applicant in person to the Agent or sub Agent of the district in which the rights applied for are situated.

In surveyed territory the land must be described by sections, or legal subdivisions of sections, and in unsurveyed territory the tract applied for shall be staked out by the applicant himself.

Each application must be accompanied by a fee of $5 which will be refunded if the rights applied for are not available, but not otherwise. A royalty shall be paid on the merchantable output of the mine at the rate of five cents per ton.

The person operating the mine shall furnish the Agent with sworn returns accounting for the full quantity of merchantable coal mined and pay the royalty thereon. If the coal mining rights are not being operated, such returns shall be furnished at least once a year.

The lease will include the coal mining rights only, but the lessee may be permitted to purchase whatever available surface rights may be considered necessary for the working of the mine at the rate of $10.00 an acre.

For full information application should be made to the Secretary of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, or to any Agent or Sub Agent of Dominion Lands.

STEAMER COSTUME.

Knitted Suit For the Young Girl.

IN GRAY AND BROWN WORSTED.

No matter how the breezes blow on deck, the ocean traveler if gowned in the knitted costume illustrated will be comfortable as well as smartly attired.

The Norfolk jacket is natty and close fitting, and a becoming feature is the deep sailor collar of white pique.

The close fitting little straw motor bonnet is very fetching.

Helpful Hints For Homes.

To take away the oily taste when using oil for frying make the oil very hot and then fry a piece of onion in it and when brown take it out.

When darning stockings run a thread round each hole before beginning and draw until the edges run flat. This makes the hole appear smaller, and it will be much easier to mend.

Scalds or burns can be cured by applying oatmeal and cold water. The cooling qualities of the meal help to draw out the fire from the burn, while its soothing properties heal it.

A simple and excellent way to remove dirty marks from a raincoat is to cut a raw potato in slices and rub it well on the marks. It will also remove mud stains from dress skirts, children's coats and gentlemen's trousers.

Now is the time when housewives should be thinking about a stock of herbs for winter use. The best plan is to dry the cut herbs in the sun, the plants being laid on sheets of paper or in trays. When this is not possible they may be dried in front of the fire or in the oven.

In Case of Fire.

The gas jets of small city rooms are often placed near a window, and fires have been started through the curtains being blown toward them. To obviate this danger sew several small weights in the lower seam of such curtains to hold them down or at least to prevent them from flying high with every breeze.

'MARVELOUS' CURES OF SKIN ERUPTION

Four Children Constantly Scratching. Nearly Tore Limbs Off. Cured in a Month by Cuticura Soap and Ointment

"Two of my daughters and two of my sons were suffering from very bad heads, the doctor ordering my daughters to have all their hair cut off so as to prevent it from spreading all over their heads, and to get to the seat of the trouble in order to be able to rub some ointment, which he gave them, well into the sores. These sores started in small blotches which got larger and larger and then burst and spread all over their heads, and in some cases down their backs and bodies. The doctor said it was eczema, but they seemed to be daily getting worse. The sores formed like little boils, then filled with matter, and looked like abscesses. They became all inflamed and irritated, causing them to be constantly scratching themselves. This made the sores burst, and the matter flowed all over their heads. We had to cut their finger nails and at times to put gloves on their hands, the irritation was so bad, to keep them from digging into the flesh, and at night they would nearly tear their limbs off. The bolsters would be literally covered with blood.

"The teachers would not let them attend school for fear of infection spreading among the other children, so I resolved to try the Cuticura Remedies, which I found to benefit my children greatly. I continued with the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment for one month, and the result is a marvelous cure." (Signed) George Arthur Robinson, 37, Fitzwilliam St., Hoyland Common, nr. THE STREET CAR GIRL.

SHE'S always just across from me,
Dressed in the latest style.
Her face is bright and comely too,
With a bewitching smile.
Sometimes she winks right saucily,
Again 'tis plain to see
That she's demure, this pretty girl
Across the car from me.

When I am hanging to a strap
And twinging aches endure
She sympathetically says,
"Try Limberem's Pain Cure."
She's always giving me advice,
This dimpled, smiling girl,
Just yesterday she said, "Blank's oil
Will keep your hair in curl."

Each morning when I ride downtown
My face she shyly notes
And whispers, "Finest breakfast dish
Is Goodem's Busted Oats."
I had to blush, though, yesterday—
I did not understand—
She said: "Wear Squeezem's corset. It
Gives you a figure grand."

One day she tossed her head at me
And said in manner shy,
"If you would know real happiness
Drink Boozem's rock and rye."
And many times she's told me when
My eye she fairly caught,
"Get married, but before you do
Buy this nice house and lot."

She gives me good advice, and she
Is watchful of my ills
Quite frequently she warns me to
"Take Curem's Liver Pills."
Sometimes she's booming washing soap,
Sometimes it's fruit that's canned,
And once she faced me boldly with
A plaster in her hand!

She always has a smile for me,
But I sit like a chump
And try to look polite when she
Begs me to "see that hump."
Sometimes she cooks. You'd never think
The work for her was hard.
But nothing's tiresome for the girl
Upon the street car card.

Aptly Expressed.

Out on the east side of the city lives a woman who has known Kansas City from the days when it was but a steamboat landing for westbound freighters. In her life she has known many ups and downs and has noted well the changed fortunes of others. Like many other noble women who came west in the pioneer days, she had but little schooling save in the ways of the world, and her speech is faulty. For all that her thoughts ring true.

Kind to all and ever ready to minister to the suffering or needy, she has no sense of tolerance for those whom she describes as "stuck up." Some she knew in other days and some she even fed have now prospered and reside in the more fashionable districts of the city.

It was Easter Sunday, and the old lady's smile and bow had received in return such a cold stare from a prosperous looking matron and her husband as they rolled past in their electric that the older lady was heard to remark as if talking to herself:

"Well, well, the pot has biled and the scum has riz."—Kansas City Journal.

A Yorkshire farmer was paid by check for some cattle he had sold. It was the first time that it had ever happened.

"What's this?" he said.

"Why, money for the beasts," said the cattle dealer.

"Well," said he, "Aw'll try, but if it's a wrong 'un thou'll hear about it."

The check was cashed, of course, and the farmer went home happy, but he could not sleep. He had seen a wonderful thing, and it had excited him. As soon as day broke he made for the cattle dealer's house and woke the dealer.

Jones' Legacy

When Jones' rich grandmother passed away there was a boom on Jones. All his poverty-stricken friends rallied about him with words of cheer and comfort, but Jones remained sad and dejected, and nothing they could say brought solace to him.

Come, come, said Smith, kindly, it's the way of the world.

Jones buried his head deep in his hands.

We must all die some time philosophized Robinson.

Jones shed a bitter tear.

She left a last will and testament, I suppose? murmured Jenkins, carelessly.

Oh, yes, said Jones, raising his head at last; she left a will and testament.

Ah, chimed in Brown, you were always a friend of hers. Of course your name was mentioned?

Yes, answered Jones, bursting into a fresh flood of tears, my name was mentioned, boys I—I am to have—

They hung expectant while more sobs choked his words. I am to have the Testament.

No More Smiling

The new vicar was paying a visit amongst the patients in the local hospital. When he entered ward No. 2 he came across a pale-looking young man lying in a cot, heavily swathed in bandages. There he stopped, and after administering a few words of comfort to the unfortunate sufferer, he remarked, in cheering tones:—

Never mind, my man, you'll soon be all right. Keep on smiling; that's the way of the world.

I'll never smile again, replied the youth sadly.

Rubbish! ejaculated the vicar.

There ain't no rubbish about it, exclaimed the other heatedly. It's through smiling at another fellow's girl that I'm here now.

Canada's Cry for Children

It will come as a surprise to many people to know that in Great Britain there are no fewer than 350,000 children who knew no other parentage than that exercised by the State or by charitable institutions, while there are in Canada many people who would be only too glad to adopt such little ones.

This class of immigration not only relieves the burden on the British taxpayer, but it sends to the Dominion new-comers whose general ideas are in a plastic condition and who can, more readily than those of older years, be influenced along Canadian lines to become Canadian citizens.

It has been estimated that Great Britain could save a million sterling by sending to Canada 10,000 children of discretionary age to become valuable citizens. Canada last year made application for 18,000 British children, but on account of lack of funds, fewer than 3,000 were sent out. The cost of transporting these children would be far less than keeping them in public institutions.

Do you believe that we ever show our real bent when we are children? asked Binks of the genial philosopher.

Yes, said the genial philosopher. I know a barber in this town who, at the age of ten, was the most disagreeable little shaver you ever saw, and always mixed up in some kind of a bad scrape.

A volunteer who had been a railway porter before the South African war, on his return resumed his duties, and on being asked one day by a traveller if he noticed any changes since he left, replied—

Sure an' Oi do, sorr. The eliven train now shtarts at twelve; the express doesn't shtop at all, an' there's no lasht train.

The Scorer's Paradise

Village cricket is not generally a slow game but the match between the Pudmore Slackers and the Stopton Smashers was the exception which proved the rule.

Two of the former team had been in for about three-quarters of an hour and not a solitary run had been notched. It was a fine exhibition of how not to play cricket.

At last one of the pair, more by accident than design, made a hit that very nearly resulted in a run being scored.

Derisive cheers came from the ever-dwindling crowd of onlookers, and when they died down the voice of the local butcher, who was by way of being a wit, was heard to remark:

Steady, there—steady! Keep your heads! If you get so reckless we shall have to wake the scorer!

TONIC TREATMENT FOR THE STOMACH

The Modern Method Most Successful in Treating Indigestion

The old fashioned methods of treating indigestion and stomach troubles are being discarded. The trouble with the old fashioned methods was that when the treatment was stopped the trouble returned in an aggravated form.

The modern method of curing indi*gestion and other stomach troubles is* to tone up the stomach to do its normal work. Every step toward recovery is a step gained, not to be lost again. The recovery of the appetite, the disappearance of pain, the absence of gas—all are steps on the road to health that those who have tried the tonic treatment remember distinctly. Dr Williams' Pink Pills are a tonic medicine, every constituent of which is helpful in building up the digestive organs, and is therefore the very best remedy for chronic cases of stomach trouble. The success of the treat*ment is proved by thousands of cases* like the following. Mr. W. W. Swain, Grand Valley, Ont., says:—"For several years my mother had stomach trouble from which she got no relief whatever until she began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She was treated at different times by three doctors, but their efforts did not avail. Then she was advised to try an electric belt, but it proved worthless. She suffered much during this time and food became distasteful. The trouble also affected her nerves and her general health was on the verge of a breakdown. One day a friend who was in asked her to try Dr Williams' Pink Pills. Without very much hope that the Pills would prove successful when other medicines had failed, we nevertheless got her a supply. In a few weeks we could see a decided that the Pills would prove successful when other medicines had failed, we nevertheless got her a supply. In a few weeks we could see a decided change, and got six more boxes, by the time these were used mother was almost well, and she kept on taking the Pills for a short time longer and was completely cured. She is now a healthy and strong woman and is never bothered with her stomach in any way. I hope this statement will bring relief to other sufferers.

Why experiment with medicines of doubtful value, when you have such positive evidence of the benefit following the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills? Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MONEY TO LOAN ON FARM PROPERTY AT CURRENT RATES OF INTEREST

GRAIN

The surest and most satisfactory way in which the Western farmer can secure for himself the full value of his grain, is to ship it by the carload in bulk to Fort William or Port Arthur, and employ a reliable and experienced grain commission firm in the Winnipeg market to look after and dispose of it. We are old established and widely known over Western Canada in this branch of the grain trade. We act as farmers' agents and handle strictly on commission, and are not open to buy the farmers' grain on our own account. We make liberal advances on car bills of lading, supervise the grading of cars, obtain the highest prices going at time of sale, and make prompt returns when sold.

We invite farmers to write to us for shipping instructions and market information. We give as references to our reliability, efficiency and financial standing any city or country bank manager in Western Canada.

Mr Croker-King, the well-known actor, tells of an amusing incident of a theatrical tour. A certain town was "billed" for two great rival productions. Wonderful Cures Reported in Germany.

It was Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute of Buffalo, N. Lovely Landscape

George IV. on one occasion casually entered a private apartment at Windsor Castle, and encountered somewhat to his surprise, his valet who was seated at a table loaded with viands and eating with great avidity.

Ah! exclaimed the King. I was always fond of scenery, and here is a lovely piece of landscape spread out before me.

The valet smiled feebly, but politely intimated that he did not understand the King's allusion to landscape and scenery.

Why, replied the first gentleman in Europe, do I not see before me a smiling valet with a magnificent gorge?

The valet hereupon rose and retired excusing himself to the King on the ground that he had turned suddenly ill.

Finland's Arsenal

Finland has been called a land of schools. Twenty years ago the country had 22 per cent. of its population under its tuition. Ulcaborg, in the north, which is locally called Oulu, had seven schools for the upper and *middle classes, and five for the chil*dren of the poor. It is in relation to a school for the poor that Harry de Windt tells the following story in his book on Finland.

It was related to me by an Englishman who, while passing through Oulu some years ago, made the acquaintance of a schoolmaster, now deceased. The traveller expressed surprise that Finland was permitted by Russia to retain its currency.

Russia dare not take it from us, was the schoolmaster's reply.

Dare not! Why you could not fight Russia!

Oh, yes we could! We make guns, and very big guns, here in Oulu. We have an important foundry. Do you care to see it?

The Englishman followed his host with surprised curiosity until they came to the gates of a large brick building, from which were emerging a troop of merry school-children.

There, sir, said the Finn, pointing to the so-called arsenal, which was in reality one of the largest schools, there is our foundry, and there are our guns, at present on their way home to dinner. The weapons of my country, sir are progress, civilization and humanity and let me tell you that in the end they will surely gain the victory over the deadliest engines of destruction ever forged at Kronstadt.

Generous Employer

The generosity of Marshall Field, the Chicago merchant prince, to his employes was remarkable. He never tired of showing his appreciation to an old and faithful worker.

One morning, while making the daily round of his great establishment he noticed the worn and haggard look upon the face of an elevator man. This man had started in when a mere boy, and had faithfully performed his duties ever since, only getting the regular annual vacation for many years. This vacation was usually two weeks. The confinement was telling on his health, and he felt very bad on this particular morning. Marshall Field asked him why he did not lay off for a few months and go to Colorado, coming back refreshed and strengthened by that climate. The idea was utterly ridiculous to the elevator-man, and he plainly said so. He had to make a living, and could not afford to lose the time. Marshall Field smiled, and said: I presume you could afford it at my expense?

The result of this chance conversation on the elevator that morning gave the elevator man a six months' vacation in the mountains of Colorado with all expenses paid, and upon his return full of renewed energy, another still greater surprise awaited him in the form of an envelope containing six months' pay.

Etiquette on Warships

Etiquette plays quite an important part on a modern battleship, and the Navy enforces many little forms and customs.

In the ward-room, where the officers and midshipmen dine, the commander does not sit at the head of the table. That place is reserved for the president of the mess. The commander invariably sits at his right hand, while the former changes every month.

Evening-dress is a steadfast rule; so much so that the man who has to take a watch after dinner, and who has no time to change, sits at a table by himself.

The toast of "The King" in the Navy is drunk sitting. Tradition has it that a certain king once proposed a toast, and jumping up, hit his head against a beam above. Orders were given, the story goes, that all toasts were to be drunk sitting in future.

The middy on a warship is just like a fag at a public school, with the officers as his prefects or monitors. Midshipmen have to make themselves generally useful to the latter.

Cats as Witches

In the Monferrato it is believed that all the cats who wander about upon the roofs during the month of February are really witches, whom it is lawful and even necessary to shoot. An old German superstitution has it that if a black cat sits upon the bed of a sick man it is a pressage of his death, while if after his death it is seen upon his grave it is enough to arouse doubts as to the locality to which his soul has departed.

In Hungary it is thought that cats generally become witches between the ages of seven and twelve years. A French belief concerning the cat is that if the animal be carried in a cart and the wind blow from it to the horses, they immediately fall tired. If any part of the horseman's clothing be made of cat's-skin the horse will feel as though it carried a double burden.

Well Caught

He had returned home in the evening, tired and ready for a restful hour or two.

John, my love, said his little wife sweetly, did you post that letter I gave you this morning?

Yes, my pet, said John, hiding his conscience-stricken face behind the newspaper.

Well what is your answer? still more sweetly.

Wh-what is what? gasped John.

What is your answer, dear? said his little wife clearly. That letter was addressed to you.

Addressed to me! exclaimed John. I didn't notice it.

And then, like a foolish man, he fell into the trap and produced the letter from his pocket to see. The envelope was not addressed to him, but a long and severe lecture was.

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS

A Powerful Magnet

Filled to overflowing was the village school. A lecture was in progress, and the professor who was lading out the knowledge produced a most powerful magnet, with which he enticed a large lump of iron to perambulate.

Can anyone conceive a greater attractive power than this? demanded the lecturer, with an air of triumph. To his surprise an answer came from the audience.

I can, remarked a burly yokel.

The lecturer was puzzled, and challenged his heckler forthwith.

I'll tell you the facts, sir, replied the agricultural one. When I were a young man there was a natural magnet, done up in a neat cotton dress, named Mary Ann.

Yes? queried the professor.

Well, continued the laborer, every Sunday she waved I walked moiles over ploughed fields and rough roads, all winds and weathers. There was no resisting her. She was far more attractive than your magnet, for in the end I married her.

Attacks of cholera and dysentery come quickly, there seldom being any warning of the visit. Remedial action must be taken just as quickly if the patient is to be spared great suffering and permanent injury to the lining membranes of the bowels. A Ky. lady, speaking about food, says: "I was accustomed to eating all kinds of ordinary food until, for some reason, indigestion and nervous prostration set in.

"After I had run down seriously my attention was called to the necessity of some change in my diet, and I discontinued my ordinary breakfast and began using Grape-Nuts with a good quantity of rich cream.

"In a few days my condition changed in a remarkable way, and I began to have a strength that I had never been possessed of before, a vigor of body and a poise of mind that [illegible] me. It was entirely new in my experience.

"My former attacks of indigestion had been accompanied by heat flashes, and many times my condition was distressing with blind spells of dizziness, rush of blood to the head and neuralgic pains in the chest.

Since using Grape-Nuts alone for breakfast I have been free from these troubles, except at times when I have indulged in rich, greasy foods in quantity, then I would be warned by a pain under the left shoulder blade, and unless I heeded the warning the old trouble would come back, but when I finally got to know where these troubles originated I returned to my Grape-Nuts and cream and the pain and disturbance left very quickly.

"I am now in prime health as a result of my use of Grape-Nuts." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

OBLIGED TO QUIT BUSINESS

SO DREADFUL WAS THE SUFFERING FROM ITCHING PILES

After Twenty Years of Pile Torture Relief and Cure Came With

DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT

You take no risk and you make no experiment when you use Dr. Chase's Ointment for piles. Many doctors still cling to the idea that nothing but an operation will effect a cure. But operations are expensive and dangerous, and often fail in their results. Some have been cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment after operations had failed.

Dr. Chase's Ointment truly has a wonderful record as a cure for piles and all itching skin diseases. Here is a case which was reported recently:—

Mr. John P. Marshall, 14 Barnes road, St. John's, Nfld., writes:—"For upwards of twenty years I was troubled terribly with itching piles; at times so bad that I was obliged to lay up, unable to attend to business.

"I tried many treatments without benefit, until I accidentally read of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and found at last a cure by using this ointment. I only used one box and part of a second one when I was completely cured, and have had no return of the piles. That was eighteen months ago, and needless to say, I attribute this cure to Dr. Chase's invaluable Ointment."

Many sufferers from piles have tried so many scores of treatments that they cannot believe that cure is possible. In order to convince the skeptical we are always willing to send a sample box free to anyone who encloses a two-cent stamp to pay postage.

Stockings embroidered with life-size figures of mice are the latest craze in New York. They cost $6 a pair.

A Quaint Statue

Humor in statutes is rare, except of the unconscious type; but the little parish church of St. James, Yarmouth (Isle of Wight), has within its wals, a fine white marble statue of a dashing seaman who was Captain of the Wight from 1687 to 1692.

Sir Robert, as well as being an admiral bold, was also a bit of a wag. On one of his nautical raids he captured a French vessel which had on board an unfinished statue intended to represent Le Grande Manarque. Holmes did not make the sculptor, who was on board, walk the plank, but compelled him to finish the statue in the likeness of his captor. The head was the head of Holmes, but the body was that of Louis XIV.

*The contrast is striking and humor*ous, and, as the guide-book says, the statue is well worth a visit, if only to see the incongruity of partnership between a buccaneer face and a regal body.

Whether the corn be of old or new growth, it must yield to Holloway's Corn Cure the simplest and best cure offered to the public.

Shot for Preference

A rather turgid orator, noted for his verbosity and heaviness, was once assigned to do some campaigning in a mining camp in the mountains. There were about fifty miners present when he began; but when, at the end of a couple of hours, he gave no sign of finishing, his listeners dropped away.

Some went back to work, but the majority sought places to quench their thirst, which had been aggravated by the dryness of the discourse.

Finally there was only one auditor *left, a dilapidated, weary-looking fel*low. Fixing his gaze on him, the orator pulled out a large six-shooter and laid it on the table. The old fellow rose slowly and drawled out:

Be you going to shoot if I go?

You bet I am replied the speaker. I'm bound to finish my speech, even if I have to shoot to keep an audience.

The old fellow sighed in a tired manner and edged slowly away, saying as he did so—

Well, shoot if you want to. I may as well be shot as talked to death.

Minard's Liniment Cures Distemper

The Doctor Didn't Think So

A smart young doctor sat facing his patient.

Yes, my friend, he said gladly, you are quite well again now, and need not come here again.

The patient, recovering from a bad illness, was relieved to hear this. Then his face became overcast again.

Bad aboud der bill, doctor, he said—need it be told he was a German—I ain't got mooch money. Vill you take der bill oud in trade?

The kind-hearted doctor eyed his patient's shabby clothes.

Well, perhaps I might, he said agreeably. Er—what is your trade?

I vos der leader off a Sherman band, doctor, said the patient proudly. We will blay in de front of your house every evening for one month.

Is the editor-in-chief in? asked the visitor, as he strolled into the magazine office at eight o'clock in the morning.

No, sir, answered the chairman politely. He doesn't get here so early. Is there anything I can do for you?

Perhaps you can. I suppose you are not connected with the poetical department of the magazine?

Oh, yes sir, was the quick reply.

You are? And what do you do?

I empty the waste-paper baskets, sir.

Now they claim that the human body contains sulphur.

In what amount?

Oh, in varying quantities.

Well, that may account for some others.

Visitor (to little girl)—Were you born in India?

Little Girl—Yes.

Visitor—What part?

Little Girl—Why, all of me, of course.

A misdirected zealot, George, is a man who, when his house is burning is so determined to keep the flames from being fanned that he kicks his dog for wagging his tail.

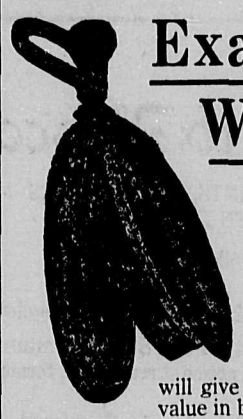
Placing the Blame

I wish to complain, said the bride, haughtily, about that flour you sold me. It was tough.

Tough, ma'am? asked the grocer.

Yes, tough. I made a pie with it, and my husband could hardly cut it.—Everybody's.

Examine The Watch Value



Here Represented at $9.25

You should demand of the Watch you are to carry Good Service and Good Appearance. Here is a Watch that will give you at the very least 100% value in both.

This is not a "fussy" watch, but it is the high-grade, 17-jewelled EATON movement set in a 16-size Dust-proof, Nickle Case—a good, sensible watch for any man.

Here Are Our Reasons
For Saying It is Exceptional Value at $9.25

In the first place it is dust-proof. The case has solid back, screw front, and dust-proof cap fitted tightly over the stem wind, so that dust cannot possibly penetrate.

Perfect workmanship ensures its accurate time-keeping qualities. It is adjusted to 5 different positions and to all atmospheric conditions—neither heat nor cold will affect it. The screw front is filled with extra heavy crystal.

This Watch carries a 2-years' Guarantee, and we know you will find it an excellent companion.

INCREASED IMMIGRATION TO AUSTRALIA

London, Sept. 9.—The rush of English emigrants to Autralia is tremendous, and there are not enough British ships to carry the passengers, seven hundred sailed Saturday on the Moravian and 2,000 are on the waiting list. Many cannot wait and prefer going to South American countries rather than remain in England. J.E. Ridgway, a shipping agent says:

"About 100,000 Britishers are going to Australia this year. Men and especially girls, wanted there. At least 175,000 would have gone if accomodated."
