PEOPLE WANT TO KNOW

Closed meetings under fire

MURRAYVILLE - There are a lot of people in Langley who are vitally concerned about the faltering economy and would like to know what local government officials are doing to help speed recovery.

Municipal council should not keep their plans secret from these people, Ald. Muriel Arnason says.

She was raked over the coals by fellow councilors Monday morning for her insistence that the public be allowed in on an "economic development meeting" later in the day.

Mayor Bill Blair said he was "shocked" that Arnason would "accuse us of (holding a meeting where) something funny is going on."

Ald. Carol Gran claimed Arnason's attitude was "most negative" and added that "she probably doesn't understand."

Other councilors joined in on the denunciation of Arnason.

"We are holding the meeting to try and improve conditions in the municipality," Blair said. "Would you rather that we not had a meeting?"

Blair added that Arnason really wasn't helping the general public by advocating an open meeting.

"What would it accomplish? I really don't know," said Blair.

Evening meeting was attended by seven councilors, senior staff members and a Langley city representative. Also present were a regional district economic development commissioner, and delegates from the Langley city, Fort Langley and Aldergrove chambers of commerce.

"It was a very progressive, open meeting," Blair said later.

He added that the meeting had been closed to the press and public because several of the people present, including the regional commissioner, would have been reluctant to speak if their words were to appear in print the next day.

Government jobs seen by local planner

MURRAYVILLE - This central Langley community (site of municipal hall and general hospital) will become a "substantial employer" in the not too distant future. Prediction has been made by a municipal planner.

Kurt Alberts says community is bound to become "a substantial employer of a governmental nature."

Alberts says local politicians should encourage more local employment throughout Langley district. Industrial areas in Langley include 700 acres in the northwest corner of the municipality, 200 acres at Aldergrove, and 120 acres at the Mufford industrial park near Milner, he says. Another 400 acres could be made available in northwest Langley, and over 600 acres at the Gloucester development near Aldergrove.

Each 1,000 acres of industrial development requires capital investment of about $23-million, he says.

Sumas rolls out the welcome mat

SUMAS, Wash. - A Canadian business will open here soon, employing up to 120 American workers.

Roto-Matic Food Systems Inc., a company manufacturing a new type commercial oven, has been in operation in Mission for three years. Expansion of the business forced a move, and owner Larry Poulson decided to build here because of the welcome mat which was rolled out for his company by Sumas city council.

"We have never had so much help in our lives from city officials," Poulson commented. "The welcome was overwhelming."

Sumas officials quickly approved of a site for the 10,400 square foot plant just outside the city boundaries and are now in the process of installing water and sewage services to the factory.

Municipalities see hard times ahead

VICTORIA - Layoffs, fee increases and creation of regional fire and police departments should be seriously considered by B.C. communities says the chief inspector of municipalities.

Chris Woodward, in a municipal officers' newsletter, says that if the economy continues to deteriorate, the B.C. government may limit municipal expenditure increases to two percent in 1984 and one percent in 1985.

To cut back on management, Woodward suggested tax sharing between municipalities to enable regionalization of fire, police, recreational facilities and parks; fee increases to adequately reflect costs and layoffs "as an option to reduce expenses."

He said there will be no increase in the provincial revenue sharing fund with municipalities and because there is no foreseeable hike in municipal tax bases, officials have to find ways of "doing more for less."

In his address to the Municipal Officers' Association, Woodward said the current municipal expenditure restraint act, which limits municipalities to a 12 percent spending increase in 1982 and spending in 1983 to a five percent increase, may be continued.

"The program may not end at that time and expenditures may be limited to an increase of two percent in 1984 and one percent in 1985," he said.

He said the boom times are over and municipal governments will experience the greatest impact of this economic decline. He said "you must all practice cutback management to the fullest."

New phone rates approved

NEW WESTMINSTER - New telephone rates that recognize population growth in the Aldergrove exchange area have been authorized by the Canadian radio-television and telecommunications commission and became effective January 15.

Bert Parker, customer service manager for the area, said the new rates reflect the increase in the number of telephones in the Aldergrove toll free calling area and involve customers whose telephone numbers begin with the prefix '856'.

"Telephone rates are established using a value-of-service component based on the number of telephones a customer can reach without paying a long distance charge," he pointed out. "The greater the number of main telephones, the higher the rate group and, in turn, the monthly rental."

Depending on the type of service, increases for residential customers range from 40 cents to 55 cents while the increase for an individual business line customer is $2.95.

There are now more than 6,900 main telephones in the Aldergrove exchange area. In addition, customers served by the exchange can call another 145,756 telephones in the Abbotsford, Fort Langley and Langley exchanges without paying a long distance charge.

Matsqui stalls development, but Langleys ready to go

ALDERGROVE. - Economic development commission established under the auspices of Central Fraser Valley regional district is "dormant at the moment," says Langley district mayor Bill Blair.

Nothing is happening, says Blair, because Matsqui municipality, a member of CFVRD, recently announced that they wanted to withdraw from the commission.

"They (Matsqui) feel that Langley has a few more acres of industrial land, and they thought that not quite fair," Blair says.

As a means of encouraging industry to locate in the lower mainland it is important that the commission become active, Blair says.

"Now is the time for laying the ground work, so that we are ready when the economy picks up."

And if Matsqui doesn't want to co-operate, then the two Langleys "could do a pretty credible job on our own," Blair says.

Langley city mayor Reg Easingwood concurs with Blair.

Chamber is out for business

LANGLEY CITY - Competition will be the key word of the future, according to a brief prepared by the local chamber of commerce.

The day of the laid-back attitude of economic development and prosperity is in the past, according to the chamber. In the future "we can't just sit back and wait" for things to happen.

Chamber is suggesting that it can operate a local development commission for "far less cost than if it is run by (local) government."

"Read Good" buttons on sale

VICTORIA - Education minister Bill VanderZalm is sporting a new lapel pin which reads: "Back to Basics, Read Good, Bill VanderZalm."

The education minister said he ordered 500 of the buttons with the slogan that plays on a grammatical goof he made in an interview shortly after he moved into the education portfolio last summer.

Defending his intention to stress basic education, he said it is important for students to be able to "write good."

In 1975, when VanderZalm was minister of human resources, he produced pins depicting miniature shovels. This was during a controversy over his statement that able-bodied welfare recipients should be given shovels to earn their benefits.

VanderZalm said the new buttons will sell for a much as $10 each to raise funds for what he described as "all sorts of good causes" - including the Social Credit party.

Demand for lumber brings workers back

VICTORIA - Employment in the British Columbia forest industry, which reached a low point last summer when 50 percent of woodworkers were off the job, should be back to normal by the spring, B.C. forests minister Tom Waterland has predicted.

However, he warned there is a "bit of a cloud with regards to pulp and paper prices."

Pulp and paper markets remain weak and B.C. producers face strong competition from Scandinavian countries which recently devalued their currency, making their products cheaper.

Waterland welcomed the announcement that about 2,000 laid-off workers are being recalled earlier than expected because of a strong demand for lumber, in part because of an increase in housing starts and low lumber inventories caused by mill shutdowns.

"I hope it is the beginning of the recovery," he said. "I think it is.

"We will see some fluctuations in markets and housing starts, but the fact that it's happening at this time of year is particularly encouraging because usually it's later in the spring when you see the increase in housing starts."

Gerry Stoney, of the International Woodworkers of America, said he didn't think the recall of workers was just a short-term improvement, adding that if interest rates continue to fall in the U.S. and housing starts keep rising, "we may begin climbing out of this mess we're in."

Among those returning to their jobs this month are 50 employees at Northwood's sawmill in Prince George, who have not worked since September; 70 plywood workers at the Pacific Forest Products mill in Victoria; and 200 Pacific Forest Products loggers in Sooke and Cowichan

Stoney estimated there are now about 12,000 unemployed IWA members.

Waterland does not expect the turn-around will affect direct government revenues for at least six months because "the price of lumber will have to come up considerably before we get off minimum prices (the government charges for the cutting rights to its timber)."

Waterland also said that he, deputy forests minister Mike Apsey and deputy industry minister Sandy Peel will try to stop imposition of protectionist measures on Canadian lumber products entering the U.S.

The U.S. commerce department's international trade administration is to decide by March 7 whether Canadian softwood lumber producers should be subject to a countervailing duty on grounds they are helped by government subsidies in Canada.

At issue are annual imports valued at $2-billion U.S. A coalition of American lumber firms contends that shipments of lumber, shingles and shakes, used in house construction and fencing, have unfairly captured about 30 percent of the depressed U.S. market.

Local businesses unable to pony up the cost

ALDERGROVE - Head of the local downtown businessmen's association, John MacKenzie, says that urban revitalization in the commercial core has "stalled."

"Many business people feel that they already pay enough in (municipal) taxes," MacKenzie says. "They are not prepared to spend another $800 to $1,000 a year on a downtown revitalization program."

MacKenzie says he personally is of the opinion that "we shouldn't be dragging our feet,... but I can't seem to get the other people to agree."

BY UNION PRESIDENT

Government layoffs seen as false economy

BURNABY - President Norman Richards of the B.C. Government Employees' Union, has described a letter sent by provincial secretary James Chabot to all provincial employees as "a move towards meeting our union's concerns regarding recent government statements concerning layoffs in the public service."

Letter, which was sent to all provincial employees with their paycheques, talks about "transferring certain functions to the private sector" as one of the ways to reduce the public service.

Describing this approach as "bad policy which would merely transfer the costs of services to a different area," Richards claims that ultimately the taxpayers will still have to pay for such services.

"Surely, this is a fine example of false economy. It would probably cost even more in the long run to transfer any sizable government function to the private sector. In addition, we already have those services in place and functioning well. All it would do is make the government look good because they could announce the disappearance of jobs from government service, but the costs to the taxpayers would still be there."

Richards said that his union is making arrangements to meet with government planners responsible for the cut back program, "in order to find out the facts behind the letter."

Accident claims teenager's life

MATSQUI - An Aldergrove resident, 19-year-old Sandra Lynn Lemieux was killed in a head-on automobile collision here early Tuesday morning.

Mishap occurred at 1:45 a.m. in the 28100 block of Fraser Highway and is still under investigation by Matsqui police.

Recovery seen for B.C. in 1983

VICTORIA - British Columbia was hit hard by the world-wide recession in 1982, but stands poised to help the country towards recovery in 1983.

That is the major conclusion of the 1982-83 Economic Review and Outlook, released recently by the ministry of industry and small business development.

The annual review reports that declines were experienced in nearly every sector of the provincial economy during 1982, with the worst effects being felt in the forest and mining industries.

However, the report notes that inflation also fell sharply during 1982, from 14.3 percent, on an annual basis, to only 8.8 percent by October. It was still falling rapidly at year end.

Interest rates were also down substantially, with five-year residential mortgages dropping from a high of 21.25 percent in August 1981 to 14.5 percent in December 1982. One-year rates were even lower.

Those two factors, plus the first sales of coal under major new export contracts signed in 1981 and 1982, should lead economic recovery in B.C., says the outlook section.

In addition, low world inventories of copper could spark higher prices when demand picks up. This would mean an immediate improvement in B.C.'s copper mining industry, it notes.

Overall, while a real growth rate for 1983 of approximately 2 percent is predicted for the country as a whole, British Columbia will probably do slightly better than that, the report claims.

The Review and Outlook includes a sectoral analysis of the provincial economy and a set of statistical charts and tables. Copies are available from the provincial ministry of industry and small business.

1982 was not a good year for most contractors

Home-building activity continued to pick up last month but the increase wasn't enough to make 1982 a good year for most contractors.

Canada Mortgage and Housing Corp. report that December housing starts rose to a seasonally-adjusted annual rate of 145, 000 units from Nobember's rate of 133,000 units. However, other figures from the federal agency indicate the year as a whole was very poor.

Actual housing starts in cities of 10,000 people or more during 1982 were 104,264, down 27 percent from the comparable 1981 figure.

The last time urban starts were so weak was 1962, when only 102,008 homes were begun.

The December housing statistics from towns, villages and rural areas are still being compiled and won't be available until later this month.

Most experts predict that starts in both rural and urban areas will be about 130,000 for 1982 although they now are looking for a substantial improvement this year if mortgage rates remain reasonable.

Convection oven finds a winner

ALDERGROVE - At a recent draw held at Aldergrove Centre Mall, Dianne Kelder of 25460 - 64 Avenue was the lucky winner of a Braun convection oven.

Survey questionaires were distributed by Bentall Investments in December 1982 in the Fraser Valley area at which time the community was also invited to enter a draw for the convection oven by depositing their survey in person at Aldergrove Centre Mall.

Kelder was born and raised in the Aldergrove area. She is a housewife and mother of two.

E.T. helps in space life search

BOSTON, Mass - Scientists trying to contact extraterrestrial life have been "searching for a needle in a cosmic haystack" for 20 years without success, two astronomers said last week.

But an equipment breakthrough will allow scientists to greatly expand their hunt for radio communication from alien beings, the University of California at Berkeley researchers say.

And a more sympathetic attitude on the part of U.S. lawmakers, NASA and the public - perhaps due to the popularity of the movie E.T., The Extra-Terrestrial - also is helping the search, they said.

Jill Tarter and Stuart Bowyer said they have received several "false alarms" and unexplained radio signals from space during their separate research projects in the last six years.

"I don't think either of us would bet more than 25 cents that any of the candidates we have now is any better than any other source in any direction in the sky," said Bowyer. "They're just a random sample."

The two wrote papers on extraterrestrials for the 161st annual meeting of the American Astronomical Society.

Tarter has used the world's largest radio telescope in Arecibo, Puerto Rico, to examine 210 stars similar to our own sun. Listening to 65,000 channels on each of 13 frequency bands, she said she has received many false alarms stemming from weather balloons, equipment failures and other causes.

A new computerized system developed by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration will eliminate the months of analysis needed to examine the signals, she said.

The computer, due to begin operation at Arecibo this spring, will give scientists an instant analysis of 74,000 different radio channels, she said. Within four years it will be able to scan the heavens and listen in on eight million narrow-band radio frequencies, improving chances of detecting some form of communication.

Without the new equipment, scientists must record all signals on magnetic tape, she said, and "a week of observing time turns into a year of the computing process."

"It's like searching for a needle in a cosmic haystack, and it would be hard in a lifetime to even determine whether you've tried enough places to give up," Tarter said.

The hunt for extraterrestrials, which has occupied some astronomers for 20 years, has become "more respectable" in scientific circles, although some researchers at the convention said the search is a foolish use of an observatory's time, Boyer said.

Wenman initiates 'Survival and recovery'

OTTAWA - Robert Wenman (ProCon - Fraser Valley West) says that as a response to our current economic crisis he has organized Survival and recovery, an informal information seminar to be held at 7:30 p.m. on January 31.

The seminar, to be held at Cloverdale secondary school, 5811 - 184 Street, is designed "to bring together as many different representatives from the private sector and all levels of government who have a integral role during our economic hardship," says Wenman.

"Virtually everyone is affected by our economic crisis and this meeting will hopefully answer the various questions facing the people of Fraser Valley West," he adds. Speakers confirmed to date include civic dignitaries, officials from the federal departments of taxation, manpower, UIC, and CCOP; representatives from the provincial department of human resources, tax consultants David Ingram and associates and local community organizations.

"This meeting will afford the people of Fraser Valley West the opportunity to talk with these experts regarding any problems they may be encountering in these areas. The other major objective is to facilitate individual input from the people of Fraser Valley West to these officials and to offer solutions to the manifold problems facing Canada today," Wenman says.

Stolen car found

ALDERGROVE - A police constable conducting a routine street check discovered a vehicle stolen from North Vancouver on. Jan. 11. The vehicle was abandoned at the 27A Avenue and 27000 block and had been damaged. It had been stolen the previous day.

COST-SHARING SOUGHT

Greater Vancouver hospitals treat many patients from all over B.C.

VANCOUVER - Nearly 20 percent of the patients occupying beds in Greater Vancouver hospitals live outside the region, and this is a fact that has financial implications for local taxpayers, says Nancy Grant of the Greater Vancouver regional district.

By contrast, only half of one percent of those hospitalized outside Greater Vancouver are residents of the metropolitan area -- usually as a result of illness or an accident suffered while away from home, Grant says.

Statistics emerge from a report prepared by the Greater Vancouver regional district's hospital department.

Use of the region's hospitals by non-residents is of concern to the GVRD's hospital committee because some of the costs of providing these facilities are borne directly by local taxpayers. Although the provincial ministry of health is responsible for all hospital operating costs, the GVRD pays part of the cost of building and equipping them.

The main reason for such heavy use of local hospitals by non-residents, says Michael Walker, GVRD general manager for hospital planning, stems from the city's role as a major referral centre for specialized medical treatment for patients from throughout British Columbia.

"Greater Vancouver is well equipped with sophisticated and expensive one-of-a-kind treatment facilities," says Walker. "For example, the cancer clinic, facilities for open-heart surgery and Vancouver General's burn unit all handle serious cases from all over the province. We've also got the UBC medical school and more doctors per capita than anywhere else in B.C., and that probably also attracts non-residents to seek medical care here."

This specialized role is reflected in the GVRD report's statistics on patient-days in a number of major referral centres. The G.F. Strong rehabiliation centre tops the list, with over half of its patients coming from out-of-town. The children's hospital and Sunny Hill hospital for children also receive large numbers of non-resident patients (about 40 percent). In the two large downtown Vancouver hospitals, Vancouver General and St. Paul's, almost 25 percent of patients occupying beds do not live in Greater Vancouver.

Walker gives geography as a likely reason for 15 percent of beds at New Westminster's Royal Columbian hospital being occupied by people from outside the GVRD.

"As the largest hospital in the region's eastern sector, Royal Columbian receives a lot of patients from places like Langley and Maple Ridge, which aren't in the GVRD, and from even further up the Fraser Valley. It also gets a heavy share of accident cases because of its proximity to the freeway."

Delta mayor Ernie Burnett, past chairman of the GVRD hospital committee, thinks local taxpayers should not have to subsidize medical care for residents of other B.C. municipalities.

"If the facilities we build are meant to serve the population of the province as a whole and not just our local taxpayers," Burnett says, "perhaps we need to discuss with the ministry of health better ways of cost-sharing which reflect the role Greater Vancouver is playing in the provision of health care on a province-wide basis."

Safe refuses to yield to hammer

ALDERGROVE - Burglars entered the Spools Lumber and Building Supply store at 24389 Fraser Highway Tuesday night and worked away at cracking open the store's safe with a sledge hammer.

They were not successful.

Nothing was taken during the break-in.

Blood supplies short

VANCOUVER - Elective surgery may be cancelled in 80 B.C. hospitals unless there is a deluge of donors at Red Cross centres soon, Canadian Red Cross public relations director Rick O'Brien said last week.

A critical shortage of blood supplies could force the curtailment of a wide variety of surgical and medical procedures unless 750 to 800 donors a day appear at the Red Cross blood centre, he said in an interview.

Car in ditch, three in hospital

LANGLEY - A motor vehicle accident involving only one car sent three people to Royal Columbian hospital last Saturday morning.

Langley RCMP report that the car was northbound on 197 Street when the driver failed to negotiate a corner at the 40 Avenue intersection. Car skidded down an embankment and landed on its roof at 3:56 a.m.

Winter Driving Warning

Snow Area Spot Checks

At this time of year and in areas subject to heavy snow conditions, you will see special signs requiring that your vehicle have good winter-tread tires or carry chains or, in some case, that chains be mounted. For your safety and that of other motorists, these signs are authorized by law.

During the next few weeks, random checks will be carried out by the RCMP in problem driving areas, more particularly the Hope-Princeton, the Squamish Highway to Whistler, the Fraser Canyon, but including other sections of road on Vancouver Island and the rest of the province subject to snow conditions. The operation will be in conjunction with the Attorney General's "CounterAttack" programme and other police traffic checks. Drivers of vehicles not properly equipped may be turned back or charged.

The Ministry of Transportation and Highways is doing its best to clear snow and maintain our roads in winter to make them safe. Before driving into snow areas, make sure you have good winter tires and are carrying chains to make your vehicle safe.

Be on the lookout for snow clearing and sanding equipment sometimes operating in conditions of limited visibility. Their flashing amber lights are warning you to use extreme caution and slow down. Make sure also that you observe special signing and directions of flagpersons if you should encounter them, and please drive carefully.

Let's hold the line

Under normal circumstances, a 3.5 percent increase for local educators would be considered a farce compared with the generous wage hikes of other civil servants in this province.

But even 3.5 percent, in these recession-ridden times, may prove to be disastrous, especially when the smoke clears this spring.

It appears at this point in time that our school board, which demanded a minus two percent settlement - will be pressed into issuing pink slips before the next school year begins, but teachers figure they'll deal with that problem when the time arises. Some suggest layoffs would happen whether a raise in pay was granted or not.

Some teachers suggest that at the present time it's more important to catch up and keep up - a move which will cost educators and all other civil servants in the long run, if not sooner, if the economy stays as is or gets worse.

With high unemployment in the private sector - where the 6 and 5 federal guidelines are almost a joke considering the tough year gone by - we can ill-afford to grant increases. Holding the line, and holding a job is what worries those operating or working for a private business.

As we start 1983, economists warn us that this is the year that recovery must happen if we are to get back on our feet. If we're not all prepared to tough it out and hold the line, it may prove to be the worst year on record.

The attitude that 3.5 percent is worth hundreds of jobs proves there are still some people who are convinced there is a pot of gold at the end of the recession's rainbow.

And it will be that kind of thinking that does us all in.

Why business owners are seeing red

By ROGER WORTH

Canadians will soon be receiving their income tax forms in the mail, so it is perhaps an appropriate time to explain why people operating small and medium-sized companies are so angry about the number and complexity of the forms they are forced to fill out for government.

The issue is timely because the changes in the personal income tax form during the last 20 years or so are but one example of the kind of paper-burden entrepreneurs are forced to contend with.

Let's flash back to the 1960s. At that time, Revenue Canada was satisfied with a four page tax form. Canadians reported their income, lopped off a few deductions and either paid the tax bill or filed for a refund. It was a relatively simple exercise.

Now, Canadians are faced with a 30 page form, together with a multicolored booklet explaining how easy it is to fill in this document.

This once simple process has become so complex that more and more people are forced to visit accountants and tax preparation experts as they attempt to save money.

Thankfully, this is a once-a-year happening.

Such is not the case for business people. They are forced to deal with such government-oriented paperwork on a week-to-week basis. They have to report federal and provincial government sales taxes, workers' compensation and unemployment insurance changes and dozens of other pieces of paperwork, including information for that federal government monster called Statistics Canada.

In fact, most smaller firms are spending 10 hours a week or more handling the government's paperwork and red tape.

The tragedy, of course, is that the time could be better spent operating the business, allowing the entrepreneur to expand and create new jobs, or at least maintain present employment levels.

Women are reluctant in dealing with anger

VANCOUVER - More women today are entering or returning to the work force and finding they have to cope with two jobs: homemaker plus their outside commitment.

The strain of added responsibility can lead to intense anger that many women don't know how to deal with.

If repressed, that anger can manifest itself in depression, fatigue, psychosomatic illness and poor self-esteem.

"Women are not used to dealing with aggressive or angry feelings," said Michaela Johnson, a former mental health and social worker who now runs private and group therapy sessions for women.

"Women are taught to be nice. Men are more comfortable with aggression and anger because early in life they received subtle messages which told them that to express these emotions was all right.

"Nobody likes an angry woman. Women get the message that they can't be angry and if they are, there is something wrong with them."

Johnson was the leader of a recent workshop designed to teach women skills that would enable them to constructively confront, release and act out angry feelings.

Women must learn to recognize anger, which they often repress unconsciously or redirect into other emotions, said Johnson.

Once the physical signs of anger are recognized, a woman can learn how to express and deal with anger in an appropriate way. These methods run from discussing the problem with a pillow, to punching it to writing a nasty letter then tearing it up.

The important thing is to find a safe way to express that anger without becoming violent or saying things that will be regretted later. Once the steam has been blown off it is easier to discuss a problem logially and sensibly.

"We often confuse anger with violence," said Johnson. "In fact, people who repress their anger are more likely to be violent.

"Women also have to learn to say no, especially women who have jobs and end up having to do housework as well. They have so many obligations and roles that they don't give themselves time. It takes a full-fledged nervous breakdown or major illness before they stop."

Johnson blamed women's reluctance to express anger on social conditioning and a dearth of role models.

Little boys learn it is acceptable to be angry and be "little scrappers," she said, but that's not the case with little girls.

This conditioning continues into adult life.

"Women are expected to be cute and smiling and if a woman does get angry she is seen as a castrating bitch or cute when she is angry - anything but taken seriously," said Johnson.

"The closest thing to a role model showing that anger in women is acceptable is Maude on television, and look how long it took us to get her."

Johnson said female anger often is transformed into the "hurt syndrome", anger that becomes a flood of tears as the woman streaks to the bedroom for a good cry. Tears and hurt are socially acceptable, unthreatening responses from women.

Johnson said the expression of anger can aid a relationship. Repressed anger "may go underground" and come out as gossip or sarcasm.

The key is to realize that "it is okay to be angry."

"You can see anger as a method for expansion instead of something threatening," she said.

A poor bunch

People of North America have become somewhat accustomed to the antics of hockey players who appear to believe that skill can be met only with caveman tactics.

There can hardly be a doubt that most Canadians were heartily ashamed of the way some Quebec Nordique players acted when they played the Russian Selects.

Good sportsmanship is looked upon with favor the world over and good losers, even though they are losers, are nevertheless respected.

Not so the bad losers such as Le Nordique, who, whether they wish to admit it or not, were representing Canada when they agreed to play the Russians and who, by their bad graces, besmirched the Canadian image.

When one compares that attitude with that of the Russian coach after his team was defeated by the Edmonton Oilers, the difference between class and crud can readily be seen.

The coach simply said of Edmonton, "They were better than us."

Such truth would, it seems, never be uttered by an NHL coach or the goons of that league.

The Russians can still teach us.

Justice triumphs!

By RICK McILWAIN

The federal fisheries department swooped down on 130 accused fish poachers last week and fired a volley in protection of our salmon fishery. After the smoke cleared, many questions came to the fore and fisheries officials, having refused any comment prior to court appearances, have shed no light on the problems.

The first question that arises is the use of entrapment to gather evidence. If one creates an atmosphere that promotes the commission of a crime, who is the criminal? Over one hundred fishermen of native descent were charged in this operation. If you open a store-front operation and offer to pay cash for black market fish, it is clear that people who live at poverty levels are tempted to break the law, just to have enough money to live on.

Another question has arisen of racial discrimination. Fisheries director Wayne Shinners stated that this was not the case, that in fact they had charged all they had evidence on. No doubt they did, but when you go trapping, you set a trap for a specific reason and only catch what you intend to capture. You don't use bear traps to catch muskrat.

Mr. Shinners has stated that the fisheries department has been aware for quite some time that over 500,000 fish are poached annually and that this traffic must be stopped. Agreed, but how? Do we prosecute the poverty-ridden Indians to the point of persecution or do we close down the profit motivated buyers? The Indians are only trying to survive. They make no profit, no accumulation of wealth and no large scale fishing. They only catch enough to make ends meet. The buyers are making large profits. Taking advantage of the Indian's poverty, they can buy for next to nothing and sell at the highest price. These people are dealing in volume. What about the large refrigerator trucks loading Indian fish in the Fraser Valley, Mr. Shinner? Why has no attempt been made to shut them down? With no market, there sure isn't going to be much poaching. If there are 500,000 fish being taken illegally from the river, where is the profit? I haven't seen any rich Indian fishermen in this Valley, as a matter of fact, I don't recall ever meeting any kind of fisherman that was rich. Who is making the profit and where are they now? The prosecution of the Indians smells of scapegoat.

For the last two years, fisheries people have cried of the importance of preserving our salmon stocks. In the name of conservation they have taken many a fisherman's livelihood from him with their closures of the river. "Trust us," they said. "It's necessary," they argued, and we went along. Now we find out they were aware of the heavy toll poachers were having all along and the closures amounted to the commercial fishery subsidizing the illegal fishery. "Trust you" you say. Not likely again.

The salmon fishery is in trouble. There are no simple answers to a complex problem but until federal fisheries department admit that they form a large part of the problem, no improvement can be expected. Native rights, international control and political interference are all part of the problem and each needs to be addressed, but fisheries, so far, has addressed little and accomplished less.

Once again, Canadian justice has triumphed. Prosecute the poor, who do what they must to survive and have little ability to defend themselves. But God forbid! don't dare prosecute those who make a profit. Just give them fair warning you are on to them so they can take their money and run.

Valuable pig on a stick

By ROBERT SKOGLUND

Three years ago I started recording stories that I'd heard from my venerable next-door neighbor, Gramp Wiley. Back then, a column might have started out something like this: "Gramp Wiley just told me about a man he knew 50 years ago who..."

Or I might have written, "Yesterday afternoon Gramp Wiley pounded his fist on the arm of his rocker and hollered, 'Back when I was boy there was no pollution'."

But too often after I'd rushed home to write Gramp's story I would see the same yarn in Yankee Magazine or in a book by John Gould. That's why I no longer hurry to record his boyhood memories.

Now, I hold each story for 30 days. If I don't see it within a month, I figure it's true. After all, Gramp is almost 80 - something worth telling must have happened to him in that amount of time.

It was last month sometime that Gramp leaned back in his rocker and said, "Years ago I was walking by Perigrew Latroon's place when I noticed a pig stumping about on a wooden leg. Back in those days I was kind of curious so I ran over to the barn, where Perigrew was working, to find out about it.

"That's a nice looking pig out there," I said by way of introducing him to the topic. "That's a valuable pig" Perigrew says. "Last year the barn caught fire, but that pig climbed out of his pen and made a racket over by the kitchen door until I came out and noticed the smoke.

"We got it out and saved the place. My son, Meriton, is chief on the volunteer fire department, you know. When he first brought Claudette home from France they moved in here. All the volunteer firemen come here for their meetings - Meriton is chief, you know. Claudette still thinks that half the young men in this country fight fires. I guess she figures the other half set them."

"Perigrew was a talker," Gramp said. "Get him started and he'd tell you about his relatives and his wife's relatives and all of their friends. But he had forgotten about the pig, and I wanted to know why it has a wooden leg, so I nudged him back in that direction by saying, "That pig out there must go 300-400 hundred pounds."

"Yes sir," says Perigrew, "That's a valuable pig. When I got caught in a piece of machinery last summer that pig ran over to the kitchen door and carried on until Meriton came out and unhooked me. For a week or so Isobel Dyer was in here every afternoon to see how I was getting along. She'd stay until we ate and of course we had to feed her too.

"One night when we'd finished eating I let the dog lick the plates and then I just put them up in the cupboard. She never came back.

"One of her boys was a policeman. He got so good at detecting thieves that he became one. The other boy was a sign painter - made Next Window Please signs for banks - sold millions of them through the mail and got rich. He came by here once with an awful headache - said his brain felt like it was about ready to explode. I told him he didn't have to worry about injuring too many people."

"But did Perigrew ever tell you why the pig had a wooden leg?" I asked.

Gramp Wiley said, "Every time I mentioned the pig he'd ramble off on something else, so I finally said, "Perigrew, why does that pig have a wooden leg?" and he said, "That's a valuable pig, sir; and you can't expect I'm going to eat a valuable pig like that all at once."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Make jobs, not war

Editor, The Star, Sir,

With rampant unemployment putting unbearable stress on families, the argument that arms production produces jobs is both morally corrupt and economically unsound.

Many economists have shown that: $1 billion invested in the weapons industry produces 70,000 jobs, but $1 billion invested in civilian jobs produces 100,000 jobs.

We are wasting the earth's non-renewable resources (and the minds and muscles of our workers) on weapons sytems we dare not use.

Will we wake up before a micro-chip malfunctions and initiates a nuclear holocaust? Let's switch from war to peace now.

Misplaced priorities

Editor, The Star, Sir,

What's the difference between Kwantlen College and Whistler ski resort? Why, a mere $27-million.

There is a certain irony that Kwantlen College has to close their Langley campus when the Socred government cuts the college's funding and the fact that Whistler resort can put their hand in the taxpayers jeans for $27,000.000.00.

When the college funding was cut there was much hand-wringing from Mr. McClelland, our local government MLA, and Mr. VanderZalm that they had done everything that they could to save Langley's Kwantlen branch. Perhaps Mr. McClelland could ask his buddies in cabinet to reverse the decision to bail out the ski resort and put $1-million of the twenty-seven to use for Kwantlen College.

After all schools before ski resorts.

B.C. vocational program will aid students

VANCOUVER - A new B.C. government program to increase the number of people receiving vocational training is "one of the most exciting and innovative approaches in a long time," the principal of the Pacific Vocational Institute said last week.

Henry Justesen was referring to an announcement by education minister Bill VanderZalm that the new training access program - to be known as TRAC - will increase the number of students taking pre-employment programs at one time to 3,200 from 1,900.

Although the number of students wil be raised by almost 70 percent, VanderZalm told a news conference that provincial funding in the next fiscal year will have to be increased by only 30 percent to $8 million or $9 million.

Flexibility is the key to TRAC, said the minister. Regional colleges and the Pacific Vocational Institute will run year-round, and students will enter and leave vocational programs in a continuous cycle, starting this month.

"This way we can keep the classes filled, so we'll have full classes on a year-round basis," said VanderZalm, adding that students with previous training in a field will spend less time in those programs, clearing the way for new students.

The minister was vague on how many new instructors will be hired or what teachers' contract changes will be needed to allow year-round operation of vocational schools. He suggested this will be decided by individual college boards.

Justesen admitted there will be "definite administrative challenges" in keeping track of students entering and leaving the programs at different times.

But "that's why we've had to innovate and develop computerized tracking systems, among others, to support this type of programming," he noted.

Jan Cioe, president of the College-Institute Educators' Association of B.C., also said TRAC is a step in the right direction. "I'm pleased that the government is acknowledging the importance of post-secondary education (during) this economic downturn."

However, Cioe has one reservation about the program - the speed with which it is being implemented. "All of the support services are not yet fixed."

"In particular there are very few instructors who have been adequately oriented to the new program and the new teaching techniques involved, so we have some concern that, at least in the initial period, there may be some rough edges."

ALDERGROVE OAPO NEWS

Activities are in full swing at OAP hall

By ERNEST CLUETT

ALDERGROVE - Activities at the OAP hall are in full swing. Shuffleboard on Mondays at 1:30 p.m., Tuesday - crib, Friday - bridge at 7:30 p.m., carpet bowling on Thursdays and art classes on Wednesdays.

Choral group performed at the Cottage in Abbotsford on Jan. 17, and will be at Murrayville on Jan. 25 at 2:00 p.m., Jan. 19 at Cedar Hill at 3:30 p.m., and Newton on Jan. 24 at 7:00 p.m.

Visitors at the Wednesday dance were all from Clearbrook. John and Ruth Bruhaug, John and Olinda Croissant and Betty Comm.

I dropped in to visit Bill Allen on Wednesday, January 12. He was being prepared for another operation at the time, but seemed in good spirits. I am glad to report the operation was a success and Bill is now back in the ward at the Columbian hospital. He is looking well, but is extremely tired.

The Star correspondent who mentioned the taxes and regulations on the new oil and gas wells, put on by the federal government to fill the coffers in Ottawa, failed to remember that within three months all rigs but three had ceased drilling in the Fort St.John area and returned to Alberta or south to the U.S. The helicopters also went back to Calgary and Edmonton, the repair shops closed. Truckers were no longer needed and had to depart and Fort St. John became a ghost town. The work force with no jobs, except a few in the coal fields departed to a more hospitable climate and a great many are still not employed. The government didn't get their pound of flesh and the work force had a devastating blow to their hopes for the future. At the border the increases in price caused the U.S. to curtail buying of natural gas and to quit buying oil altogether. There has to be a better way of running the economy than by slapping willy-nilly taxes on something any time a politician thinks the profits are too high. I am sure several members of our family who lost their jobs in the Fort St. John area mixup will agree with me.

The Saturday dance had as prize winners: Bob Hare (door prize) and the spot prizes went to Sylvia Turpin and yours truly. Visitors were Niel and Myette Sparrow and Arnold and Frances Rode all of Abbotsford and Clarence Henderson of 'Upper Crust Manor' in Aldergrove. The birthdays of Andy Keay and Debbie Munroe were suitably celebrated.

The bus trip on Thursday, January 20 will leave the hall at 10:15 a.m. instead of 10:30 a.m.

Doris says her doctor says she has to give up all night wine and cheese parties and all night bingo and crib sessions. From now on it's weak tea and television and bed at eight p.m.

Adult schooling returns to school

ALDERGROVE - Vocational adult secondary training is back. The break is over and it is time once again to hit the books. VAST program will be held once more every Monday and Wednesday evenings in the portables behind Aldergrove secondary school from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m.

"We welcome all past, present, and future students, all who have a desire to upgrade their educational skills to a grade 10 or grade 12 level," says instructor Dave Coutu.

"Make a new year's resolution that 'This is the year I improve myself; this year I do something for me'."

VAST is a means of ensuring that this resolution is kept. For further information contact Coutu at Aldergrove secondary, phone 856-2521.

Rural gas stations legitimized

MURRAYVILLE - Three corner grocery stores and gas pumps located in rural Aldergrove, and four in the Langley area, have been granted "site specific" zoning by township council here.

Commissioners advising council on planning matters agreed that the seven businesses - some of which seem to be rooted in antiquity - "serve a useful purpose" and "are a credit to the community."

Rural businesses have been operating on a non-conforming basis ever since Langley introduced zoning regulations a decade ago.

Located in agricultural and rural residential areas inside the agricultural land reserve, businesses such as Betty's Country Store on 264 Street and the Patricia Service Centre near the Aldergrove international border crossing were established long before municipal authorities developed their complex present day bureaucracies. Officials admit that they have no information on file as to when the shops were established.

Other business establishments that have now once again been legalized with the stroke of a pen include gas stations at 8590 - 200 Street and nearby 8615 - 200 Street. Also a gas station at 23182 - 72 Avenue, and a grocery store and gas pump at 5393 - 248 Street. And a grocery retail store at 2381 - 208 Street.

Seeing a need for speedy services in the community, Harts decided to expand and add to their line of business and ever growing popularity of video equipment and movie rentals.

Bill Goetken, an Aldergrove resident, has taken over management of the new store, which is located across from Sabil Insurance in the Aldergrove Centre mall. Bill has had five years experience in the retail sales business and he is looking forward to meeting new clients in town.

The new store is equipped to supply you with a full line of camera and photographic equipment, as well as their sales and rentals of VCR machines and cassette tapes.

Hart's is independently owned and operated and their prime emphasis is on bringing wholesome family video entertainment to their customers.

Special daytime viewing programs have been devised for rental, and their business is growing rapidly since their expansion to the mall. Continuous additions to stock will ultimately create a large cassette library, to offer customers a more varied choice in movie rentals.

Quebec girls enjoyed visit here.

Poppy students host Quebec basketball team

OTTER - D.W. Poppy school, and in particular the junior girls basketball team, the Poppy Peppers, hosted a team from Tracy, Quebec during the week of January 7 to 15. The visit was part of an exchange sponsored by Open House Canada which saw the Poppy team visit Quebec from Dec. 10 to 17. During that part of the visit the girls were billeted in the homes of the host team. They were treated to visits to the Olympic stadium, the Montreal forum, Quebec City, Montreal, and a Montreal Canadiens hockey game.

The Quebec exchange team, Les Diplomates de Tracy, are currently the top team in the Quebec provincial basketball league which makes them the top junior girls team in the province of Quebec. On their trip west they proved that they are possibly the best team in Canada by defeating some of this province's best junior teams. They beat each team they played by at least 20 points. They defeated Maple Ridge, New Westminster, Maple Drive (Quesnel), Colquitz (Victoria), White Rock, and Spencer (Victoria).

The Poppy Peppers were gracious hosts showing the Quebec team a wide range of sights and events. They met mayor Blair at municipal hall, they visited Fort Langley and the Centennial museum, and experienced the Brookswood junior secondary school's French immersion program. They were taken on a two day trip to Victoria to view and tour the legislative buildings and the provincial museum. They were also treated to a Canucks hockey game, a visit to Stanley Park and the whale show, a tour of the new stadium, the French division of the CBC, and Gastown. The highlight of the tour for the French girls and their coaches Pierre Lemay, his wife, Marie, and Pierre Cournoyer, was a day of skiing on Grouse Mountain on Friday. They were very impressed with the weather, the snow, and the view of Vancouver city.

The overall exchange was highly successful and definitely fulfilled the original Open House Canada purpose of furthering understanding and cooperation between different cultures in Canada.

Aldergrove girls place second at Trinity invitational

FORT LANGLEY - Trinity Western College, under the direction of Dennis Jansen, displayed some of the finest basketball teams in Western Canada in their weekend high school girls basketball tournament. Participating were the Alberta 4A Champs, St. Joseph's of Grand Prairie, Alta., and Alberta provincial finalists Lethbridge Collegiate.

The number 1 double "AA" and last year's B.C. provincial champions Penticton, highly rated Salmon Arm, New Westminster, Chilliwack, Number 1 in single "A", Vanderhoof and Aldergrove, presently ranked no. 2 with a 21-4 record.

The girls began the tournament pitted against Lethbridge Collegiate and won the game in a tough battle 51-49. The game saw Aldergrove get off to a good start and pull ahead only to have the Lethbridge team close to within 2 in the last seconds. Leading the way for Aldergrove was Allison Wells and Yvonne Coletta with 15 and 11 points respectively.

The next game saw the girls matched against the highly rated double "AA" Salmon Arm Jewels. The game was a seesaw affair with both teams exerting great pressure on each other. Aldergrove fouled out 3 starters during this game and the girls that replaced them, Tracy Waterfield, Kim Sauder and Michelle Sather have to be singled out for their outstanding play in leading Aldergrove to a 58-56 win. Theresa McDonald played a key role in the win by sinking 2 crucial free throws late in the game to put Aldergrove up by one.

The girls won this game as a team and all the girls took part in their most impressive win to date.

The final saw the locals in with some rough competition in the Penticton team but the Aldergrove girls proved they could play with the best even though they lost 67-54. The girls fell behind early and trailed 38-20 at the half. The girls responded to the challenge and closed to within 6 before Penticton's size took affect which resulted in the final score.

Top scorers for the Aldergrove girls was Allison Wells with a game high 19 and Yvonne Coletta with 15.

Aldergrove students 'cramming' for mid-term, scholarship exams

By UTA GOTTSCHALK

ALDERGROVE - It's that time of year again when mid-term and scholarship exams are on everybody's mind. A few students have already begun glancing over their notes here and there, but you can be sure that there are going to be a lot of baggy, bloodshot eyes around this next week, as a result of "cramming" the night before. Don't be surprised when your son or daughter falls asleep with his-her face in the mashed potatoes; it won't be anything compared to what it will be like when June rolls around.

English 12 students will all be writing either a district or provincial scholarship exam this time around.

You may also have heard about the many basketball games that have been playing at Aldergrove secondary. The most recent tournament was the Aldergrove invitational. The senior girls' team hosted Abbotsford, Mountain, Vanderhoof, Cowichan, North Delta, Centennial and Port Moody. Cowichan finally won the tournament, and Aldergrove placed fourth.

The senior boys basketball team is also doing well. Last week they hosted Agassiz and Hope. They beat Agassiz with a score of 60-48, and played Hope (who ranks in the provinces top ten) the next night. They tied late in the fourth period, but Aldergrove broke the tie by scoring a basket with only one second left in the game.

Everyone, including the teachers, enjoyed the hat-day, sock-hop last Friday. There was everything from Robin Hood and Mickey Mouse to British bobbies and New Year's eve party hats.

A few things coming up soon at the school are the "Axis Mime" presentation and Coffee House, of which more will be written next week. The grad committee is also planning a combination paper-bottle drive, so please save up your newspapers, and if possible, any returnable bottles. The exact date will be announced later on.

KINSMEN MOTHERS' MARCH

JAN. 24 — Please help the physically disabled of B.C.

An Explanation and Appeal

from the Aldergrove Kinsmen Club

On Monday, January 24, approximately 65 volunteers will be canvassing a large portion of the Aldergrove area from 7 p.m. - 9 p.m. on our annual Kinsmen Mothers' March. Among the many projects and services the Kinsmen throughout B.C. perform, the major one is the Mothers' March. This campaign is the main source of revenue for the Kinsmen Rehabilitation Foundation of British Columbia (K.R.F.) and its program of services for the disabled.

Normally the campaign is a week-long effort, but in Aldergrove the Kinsmen Club has decided to make a one-night blitz on January 24.

3,000 mail-outs will go out to the areas that our canvassers cannot reach. Unsuccessful attempts in the past has limited our business appeals to just 20 this year.

On Monday, January 24, if you are not contacted by a Mothers' March canvasser, please use the mail return envelopes that will be distributed.

The Aldergrove Kinsmen are hoping for a successful and respectable return on their 1983 Mothers' March.

Thank-you

Play 'The Diamond Game'

Are diamonds really anybody's best friend?

"Enterprise," the PBS series about how American business works, investigates "The Diamond Game," airing Thursday, Jan. 20.

Veteran CBS newsman Eric Severeid hosts the half-hour look at the secretive diamond business whose center is one block of 47th Street in New York City.

Last year members of the Diamond Dealers Club sold more than $4.5 billion of diamonds to Americans. "Enterprise" takes a look at the daily schedule of William Goldberg, the shrewd and effervescent president of the Diamond Dealers Club, as he assesses rough stones, pinpoints potential value once they have been shaped and seeks out specific diamonds for his clients. Since a large part of a diamond's worth depends on its weight in carats, choosing the correct cut and method means a difference in thousands of dollars.

For the past 80 years DeBeers Consolidated Mines in South Africa have more or less controlled 75 percent of all the world's rough diamonds. Caught between the fixed price of rough diamonds and a volatile market, dealers like Goldberg gamble millions of dollars daily.

The "Enterprise" series is produced for PBS by WGBH Boston and is a co-production with the Learning Corporation of America.

Laura Ingalls Wilder (Melissa Gilbert) is thrilled to meet with two publishing executives (William Prince, l. and John Bennett Perry) who are going to publish her "Little House" books. But all doesn't go smoothly in the "Once Upon a Time" episode of LITTLE HOUSE: A NEW BEGINNING, to air Monday, Jan. 24 on NBC.

Keeps mouth shut

Mel Stewart, who will have the leading role in Deathtrap, the thriller coming to the Abbotsford Little Theatre on January 22, is more than sticking to the sacred rule about never revealing the ending of a thriller. When his friends ask him what the play is about he says, "It's about two hours." If you press him he will admit that he plays a mystery writer living in Connecticut, and that the evening has two acts. "Even so, says Mr. Stewart, "I feel I've given away too much." Deathtrap kept audiences guessing for years on Broadway about the working out of its tricky plot. The one critic who spilled the beans received hundreds of poison pen letters from outraged mystery fans.

Dear 'Miss Lonelyhearts'

Arthur Hill, Eric Roberts and Conchata Ferrell star in Nathanael West's "Miss Lonelyhearts," to air on PBS' "American Playhouse" series on Tuesday, Jan. 25.

The new television adaptation has been translated into a one-hour production by young filmmakers H. Jay Holman and Michael Dinner.

The drama centers on a young reporter (Roberts) on a large metropolitan daily newspaper who is assigned to write the popular advice to the lovelorn column.

In the process, he becomes entangled in the personal lives of the troubled people seeking salvation by airing their private agonies in public. Despite the adverse effect the column has on his life, the reporter continues to try and get past his editor's cynical approach and perpetuate the sincerity and honesty of the human race.

Miss Ferrell, star of the movie "Heartland," portrays one of the desperate letter-writers, a unhappily married young woman who gets to meet "Miss Lonelyhearts."

Arthur Hill, best known to television viewers as "Owen Marshall," plays the veteran editor Willy Shrike, who refuses to reassign Lonelyhearts to another beat when the suffering reporter pleads with him to do so.

This broadcast for television, filmed in black and white to capture the feel of the '30s, is more faithful to West's novel that Dore Schary's 1959 film "Lonelyhearts," starring Montgomery Clift, Robert Ryan and Maureen Stapleton.

Auditions set for 'Old King Cole'

Auditions for Unicorn Theatre's spring production will be held at the Laurel Street Arts Centre (corner of Laurel and Montrose in Abbotsford) on Sunday Feb. 6 at 1:00 P.M. The play, "Old King Cole", requires a cast of five men and two women. Performances will be in April.

Those interested in other aspects of theatre, such as backstage work, are also welcome. For information, call 853-5629.

Poppy to host Axis Mime

The Axis Mime Theatre will be coming to D.W. Poppy on Thursday, Jan. 20. Most students will attend, expecially the drama students, who will be especially attentive for the educational experience. The mime theatre has come to Poppy numerous times in the past years, and they have never failed to give an excellent performance.

Poppy's junior dance, held last Thursday, January 13, was a huge success. C.C. Mobile music supplied the sound. The theme was Dance International and everyone really got into it. Staff and students had lots of fun.

The food was catered by the community recreation 12 class. The dance was organized by the junior members of the student council.

Fireplace needs fresh air supply

When the weather outside is frightful, a fireplace is delightful - but: did you know an open fireplace can create a serious health hazard?

Oh, no, not another hazard, you say. Isn't anything safe anymore?

Yes, your fireplace is safe, as long as the room has adequate ventilation.

An open fireplace is thirsty for fresh air. If the fresh air supply in your home is limited, the open fireplace will make sure it gets its supply first.

All fuel-burning equipment requires air, of course, so if the fireplace is competing with a gas furnace, for example, the venting system will be disturbed. That can lead to the production of carbon monoxide. And that, in turn, can cause headaches and drowsiness - and much more serious illness, with no one aware that the odorless, deadly gas is the cause.

Ironically, homes that have windows and doors carefully sealed against drafty spaces to save heat can be at the most risk.

What to do? Two things: it is important that you provide a permanent fresh air supply for your open fireplace or woodstove.

In the meantime, the best temporary safeguard to eliminate the carbon monoxide hazard is an open window in the room with the fireplace.

Second: if you have recently installed or modified a solid-fuel-burning appliance (such as a woodstove) or greatly increased the insulation factor in your home, have a qualified heating expert assess the air requirements in your home.

GIVE YOUR HOME A SEASONAL SPRUCE-UP with warm, rich colors. Rit Dye makes it easy to create colorful home furnishings and decorative accessories.

Change of season, change of color

When the weather starts to cool and attention turns indoors, make your home warm and inviting with a seasonal spruce-up. You can keep pace with the calendar's changes without making major decorating investments.

Key items such as furniture and carpet can stay the same; the secret lies in changing the little things. A few decorative touches and some seasonal accents will do the trick when you give your home the feeling of Fall with quick, inexpensive Rit Dye color changes.

Bring in the beautiful outdoors with colors that echo the hues of the turning leaves or create warm effects with the colors of fire. Deep, rich shades are most effective since dark colors seem to come in closer to create a snug atmosphere.

Select from a range of fashionable shades like Cardinal Red, Plum, Rust, Wine and Chestnut Brown or experiment and mix color recipes from powdered Rit Dye to create your own custom colors.

It's easy to dye slipcovers, pillowcovers, curtains, fabric lampshades or tablecloths to give your home autumn accents. Just follow the directions on any package or bottle of Rit Dye.

Dye over white or over pale solids, keeping in mind that the original color may affect the final results. Give patterns a darker cast with a richly colored dye-bath.

Unfinished wood and wicker can also be colored warm, country tones by painting or sponging on a hot, concentrated dye solution.

Combine color with thick, soft textures that can actually add warmth to your room. Some dye-it-yourself decorating ideas: dye soft white flannel blankets in jewel tones to throw over chairs or couches; drape windows or skirt tables with harvest colored warm, fleecy sweatshirt fabric; create a thick, shaggy rug to lie in front of the fireplace by stitching together richly dyed cotton janitor mops.

When it's cold and grey outside, you want something to look at inside! Add extra appeal to your decorating scheme by displaying colorful collectibles on shelves or tables and bringing out inviting books, candles, and dishes of nuts or candy.

Create some of your own decorative accessories: Batik or stencil dye heavy cotton to make a wall hanging or screen; dye dried leaves, grasses and straw to make seasonal arrangements and wreaths to add warm, country comfort to your room.

Or make your couch an interesting and irresistible place to roost with the addition of tie-dyed, batiked or stenciled pillows.

For more year-round Rit Dye fashion, decorating and craft ideas, write to: RIT/2NF, P.O. Box 307, Coventry, CT 06238.

Tile transforms nursery into room

When children leave the 'toddler' stage and soft carpet and Mother Goose wall paper is no longer appropriate in the nursery, many families are faced with the question of how to redecorate the room to last through the coming years. What type of floor and wall coverings will survive the handprints, crayons and muddy feet of childhood and still look good when the child becomes a teenager?

In recycling a room to avoid the expense of continual remodeling, a good place to start is with beautiful and versatile ceramic tile. Tile is durable, doesn't fade or stain, and is easy to maintain; just soap and water will remove grime or spots keeping the floor looking like new.

Another important reason to choose ceramic tile is for its beauty. Italian ceramic tile in particular offers a tremendous array of designs, sizes and shapes. These qualities make tile a perfect choice for any room in the house.

Have fun decorating a child's room:

- Create a 'rug effect' by laying a different color of tile around the border of the room.
- Use an occasional group of patterned tiles on the wall to produce a built-in picture or mural.
- For added emphasis, use colored or contrasting grout.
- Make a small room look larger by putting the same light-colored tile on the floors and walls.

'Deathtrap' unites humor and horror

Homicide and humor are the ingredients of Deathtrap, the suspense thriller coming to the Abbotsford Little Theatre on January 22. The Ira Levin play will star Mel Stewart as a mystery writer with a problem. He hasn't had a hit in 17 years, and announces that he's willing to commit murder to remedy the situation.

Deathtrap commences with the mystery writer's discovery of a sure-fire hit written by one of his students in a college seminar. His intention, he tells his incredulous wife, is first to collaborate with the student and, if necessary, kill him and appropriate the work.

Out of this proposal emerges a tangle of homicidal schemes, plots and counter-plots that also involve a European clairvoyant and a pompous New England lawyer. All this transpires in an attractive Connecticut country home decorated mainly with grisly murder weapons that are souvenirs of the writer's early stage successes. The uses to which these devices are employed provides some of the play's major gasps of surprise and terror.

Martin Millerchip will direct the Abbotsford Little Theatre's production of Deathtrap. The cozy, wood-beamed murder cottage will be designed by Evelyn Kingston and Margaret Barnes will create the costumes. Lighting designer Nat Chase will supply the atmosphere conducive to the grim but frequently funny complications of the story.

Besides Stewart, the cast will include Susan Larson as the horrified wife, Robin Abrey as the neophyte author, Kareen Zebroff as the psychic who can prophecy crime and Gwynn Mills as an opportunistic attorney.

Deathtrap will play for fourteen performances, ending on February 12. Tickets and seat reservations can be made by calling the box office at 852-2787, and tickets are on sale at various locations including The Aldergrove Star offices.

TALC AND SOAPSTONE CARVING BEGINS

LANGLEY - Starting on Tuesday evening from 7:30 - 9:30, January 25, another ten week session of soapstone carving will begin at the Michaud Heritage House, 5202 - 204 Street.

Instructor Toots Tucker, who has taught this popular course for several years and also maintains a very relaxed atmosphere of "learning while creating", reports that carving in soapstone can be accomplished by people of all ages. Pre-registration is advisable and can be made by telephoning 534-0781.

Soapstone, the softest of all the existing minerals can be scratched by a fingernail, and is easily worked into unique and interesting pieces of art. An artistic "eye" is an asset, but does not necessarily apply to this medium, as many noteworthy and excellent objects have been sculpted by the novice, who had only the desire to learn and create, says Tucker.

Tools, consisting of wood-carving chisels, files, rasps, steel wool and sandpaper, along with "elbow grease" and patience is all that is required to begin this course. Pieces of soapstone in various shapes and sizes are available for purchase or can be obtained in any local lapidary shop.

Langley-'Grove re-union planned

LANGLEY - The graduating class of 1958 of Langley high school is planning a 25th reunion of students and teachers to be held the weekend of June 10 to 11.

In the spring of 1958, Aldergrove high school was completed and Aldergrove students who had attended Langley all through their high school years were transferred there and held their own graduation.

All Langley and Aldergrove 1958 grads and teachers and anyone who attended Langley high school the same years but did not graduate are invited to attend. For further information call: Jim at 859-7225, Harvey at 856-2761, Joan at 888-2431 or Dave at 590-4521.

Station on Heritage agenda

FORT LANGLEY - A progress report on negotiations to move Fort Langley's CNR station will be given next Wednesday, when the Langley Heritage Society holds its monthly meeting. Bill Evans, the group's vice-president, has been working with mayor Bill Blair and the heritage advisory committee in an effort to preserve the building. Evans has disclosed some difficulty in bargaining because of CN's position on the choice of a new site.

Also on the society's agenda is news about grant applications, proposed heritage sites, and an NFB film titled "Some call it progress". The meeting starts at 8 p.m. on January 26 in the theatre at Fort Langley national historic park.

ESPECIALLY KEENLYSIDE

Skywalk are great!

By NOZ PARKER

Skywalk attracted a full house to the Soft Rock Cafe, Sunday evening - a respectable feat considering the economic times and the infrequency of live performances from this local jazz/rock sextet. (Most nights the six men are performing with their other bands, including Wildroot Orchestra, Mambo and the Tom Keenlyside combo.)

However, in the course of Skywalk's two year career the band has made a name for itself by virtue of their polished professionalism, exciting performance and frequent instrumental brilliance. The band knows their chops, and are capable of reading charts too, although they knew the material (mostly original) well enough to do without sheet music in concert.

Their style emulates such fusion bands as Weather Report but their instrumental lineup and sound is distinctive. The lyrical heart of the band would have to be Tom Keenlyside, a truly wonderful, melodic yet aggressive performer on various saxophones and flutes. He primarily used the cutting edge of a soprano sax on the tunes including his self-penned "Best of Both Worlds", and for some phenomenal soloing on Coltrane's "Naima". He also excelled on piccolo and flute on two sweet samba-tinged originals, "Bahai Bossa" and "Tune X". Keenlyside is hot and capable of great things -- I wouldn't be surprised if he makes a mark on the international jazz scene.

Lead guitarist Harris Van Berkel added a rock and roll punch to the proceedings and was a key ingredient, particularly on the funny "Flim (sic) Beasts of the Amazon" but he did seem out of his league on the jazz side. He used a chorus effect with his Gibson guitar almost exclusively and that did become wearisome after awhile -- he sounded like a poor man's Pat Metheney. Still, he was always adequate and occasionally did soar with some inventive soloing.

Percussionist Jim McGillveray is a delight to the ear and eye. He must use a semi truck to haul his assortment of gadgets about, but it's not just for show. He really does use them all, with utmost taste and discretion.

The other three men, keyboardist Graeme Coleman, drummer Kat Hendrikse and bassist Rene Worst, are all old hands in the local jazz scene and their performances were exemplary. They are very important sides of the Skywalk sound, as Coleman writes many of the tunes, and Hendrikse and Worst are sympathetic and creative voices too.

Skywalk's sense of dynamics and love of melody make them a band that crosses many divisions in music; they are gratifying and interesting for the ears of rock, pop, funk or jazz fans. You can find out for yourself too, as the concert was recorded by Ocean Sound for broadcast on CJAZ at 10:30 p.m., either this Saturday or next. Do yourself a favor and tune them in.

"Boom, boom, out go the lights!" - Canadian rocker Pat Travers opens the show for Aerosmith this Friday evening, 7:30 p.m. at the Pacific Coliseum. Travers' new album, "Black Pearl" is his eighth and in many ways, his most ambitious and successful effort yet. Tickets at VTC-CBO outlets, including Eaton's and Woodward's.

She loves to scream!

Susan Larson (Myra Bruhl) has landed the coveted role of the wife in the mystery thriller, "Deathtrap," that will open on January 22, at the Laurel Street Arts Center, with a special preview on January 21. One of her biggest moments in the play, and the one she looks forward to most, is when she lets loose a piercing scream as somebody is murdered. Her one fear is that the effect will be so chilling, the audience is going to scream as well. Mrs. Larson says she won't be satisfied with her performance unless her scream tops theirs. You can add your terrified shriek to the clamor at any of the 14 performances of the Ira Levin suspense hit at the Laurel Street Arts Centre from January 22 through Febuary 14, with a special preview on January 21.
