Notable Failure of Justice.

The trial which resulted from the murder of Rev. G. C. Haddock at Sioux City, Iowa, some months ago, has terminated in what seems to be a very plain miscarriage of justice. The murder was committed under circumstances of a peculiar character. The stringent laws enacted for the regulation of the liquor traffic in Sioux City were not being enforced. The saloon keepers were determined that they should not be enforced, and the liquor interest was so strong that no one seemed disposed to come personally into conflict with it in the interest of law. In these circumstances Mr. Haddock determined to take the matter in hand. He boldly put himself at the head of those who desired to see the law prevail, and he became at once the object at which the liquor interest aimed the missiles of its wrath. But when the contest began to grow hot, Mr. Haddock suddenly disappeared. He was assassinated, and everybody believed the assassin had been employed by those whose business had brought them into conflict with the victim. The supposed murderer was arrested, and after a long and expensive trial, in which all the resources of the law were exhausted to secure the prisoner's escape, the jury disagreed and the case collapsed. When the jury was polled it was found that they stood 11 for acquittal to 1 for conviction. But it has been ascertained that the conduct of the jury was in some respects very peculiar. Mr. O'Connell, who stood out for conviction, has made a public statement from which it appears that during the progress of the trial the jurymen had plentiful supplies of whiskey which they drank. Before the case was closed O'Connell was given to understand that the defence knew the jury would stand 11 to 1 for acquittal, and that he held the key to the situation. When asked whether any of the jurymen were bribed, he replied that he did not wish to implicate any one, but he said, in reply to another question: "I was asked to name my price; the offer was made on behalf of the defence!" If the facts are as stated, the circumstance is anything but creditable to the guardians of justice in Sioux city. A man was brutally murdered because he stood up for the enforcement of law, and the murderer escapes justice through barefaced bribery.

Some Big Figures.

At the colonial conference recently held in London the president delivered an interesting address in which he pointed out the wonderful development of the British empire during the past 50 years. Beginning with Canada he said that in 1837 there were two provinces, which in 1840 were united, and in 1867 was formed the confederation which now stretched from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and through it ran "that remarkable achievement of British enterprise," the Candian Pacific Railway. Australia he described by saying: "A nation has been created out of a wilderness, and a people have been ennobled by the gift of institutions which the struggle and experience of centuries have won for themselves." In South Africa the old Cape Colony had developed and now there were Natal and Bechuanaland. In other parts of the colonial empire progress and development were everywhere to be seen. But in matters of trade and commerce the most striking exhibit was presented. In 1837 the imports of the British American possessions amounted to £5,200,000, and in 1885 they were £25,700,000. During the same period the exports rose from £5,000,000 to £21,500,000. In Australasia the imports have risen from £1,500,000 to £63,500,000, and the exports from £1,800,000 to £52,000,000. The imports of the African colonies had increased in the same period from £2,000,000 to £10,000,000, and the exports from £1,500,000 to $12,000,000. The British shipping trade with the colonies in 1837 was 3,700,000 tons, and in 1885 it was 56,600,000 tons, and in this period British exports to the colonies increased from £11,300,000 to £54,500,000. In 1881 the value of British ships and the freight they annually carry was estimated at £900,000,000, of which it was conjectured that £144,000,000 is afloat at one time. In 1837 the population of the colonies was 4,204,700. The population of the same colonies in 1881 was 12,753,277, and of all the British colonies 15,763,072. The population of Canada is now three times as large as it was in 1837; in the West India Islands it is nearly twice as large; in Ceylon it is twice as large; in the Cape it is eight times as large; in Australia it is twelve times as large. These figures are certainly evidence of rapid and substantial development during the prosperous reign of Queen Victoria, and make a showing of which every British subject may justly feel proud.

WASHINGTON AT MORRISTOWN.

[illegible] Under Alarming Circumstances by Dame Cook, and the Way in Which She Made a Good Dinner When Provisions Were Scarce.

Morristown, N. J., is a town of about [illegible]000 population, lying among the [illegible]range Mountains, within 34 miles of [illegible]ew York.

It is a very old town, having been [illegible]ounded about the year 1700, and its [illegible]treets are lined with wide-spreading [illegible]ms, whose great gnarled trunks re[illegible]ind one of the trees of New Haven.

It was here that Washington had his [illegible]eadquarters during a great part of the [illegible]evolutionary war, and the old tavern [illegible]here he was initiated into the mysteries [illegible]f Freemasonry has been lately moved [illegible] the foot of the hills on which his [illegible]rmy was encamped, and it is now being [illegible]itted up for a country boarding house. [illegible]t was in this hotel that Washington, [illegible]amilton, and Tilghman had their [illegible]ffices.

They tell a story of Washington's [illegible]oolness in time of danger which re[illegible]minds one much of the stories told of [illegible]rant in this regard.

It was at a dinner at this hotel. The [illegible]eal was over and a number of the [illegible]ounger officers were discussing the [illegible]ein and walnuts in the dining-room, [illegible]hen an alarm that the British were [illegible]oming was given. One of the guests [illegible]became very much excited and rushed [illegible]out into the entry and yelled:

"Where's the General? Where's the General?"

Washington was coming down the [illegible]stairs at the time. He met the young [illegible]man, heard his excited story, and in [illegible]moderate tones said:

"Be quiet, young man, be quiet."

Washington's headquarters were afterward in a fine brick mansion located on a hill near the village, and having an outlook over a large part of the surrounding country. This is now kept in the same style as it was during his occupancy. It is filled with the furniture of colonial days and has many of the relics of Washington and other colonial statesmen.

Not long ago the Directors of the headquarters were very anxious to get a cooking kettle, such as was used at the time of the Revolution, and they hunted everywhere within a range of 100 miles, but in vain. At last they found one under their very noses. It belonged to an old lady of Morristown, and she very kindly gave it to them.

They received it in the afternoon and too late to take it to the headquarters. They prized it so highly that fearing that something might happen to it they deposited it that night in a bank vault, and the next day took it out and hung it upon the crane in the old-fashioned chimney.

Speaking of Washington's cooking, during a large part of his residence at Morristown money was very scarce and good victuals no less so. Washington's housekeeper was an Irish woman, a Mrs. Thompson. She came to the General one day and said that she had nothing but the ordinary soldiers' rations left.

Upon Washington's telling her that he had no money she asked for an order for six bushels of salt, with which she said she wanted to preserve fresh beef. The salt was given to her, and the next day Washington's table was supplied with a meal fit for a king.

The Irishwoman was sent for, and Washington told her that she had done very wrong in expending her own money for his food, and that he was not sure that he could repay her. She then told him that she had sold her salt for provisions, and that as salt was worth $8 a bushel she had done very well with it.—[Cleveland Leader.

How To Dress Healthfully.

The science of Hygiene may be looked upon as the outcome of the present century.

It is true that the ancient Greeks and Romans were good sanitarians, and that the Hebrews compiled the finest code of sanitary laws which has ever been made; but, during the Middle Ages, all this valuable knowledge was allowed to lie shut up in books.

Had the Bible been properly studied those terrible epidemics which decimated Europe could never have happened; yet, so great was the popular ignorance on the subject, that the Jews, whose obedience to the Biblical laws saved them from many diseases, were, on this very account, accused of causing the diseases by witchcraft.

The present century has witnessed a revival of the science of health, and health knowledge was never so widely distributed among the people as at the present time, when sanitarians are making every effort to increase it, and to render it popular.

In past times the unhealthiness of dress in certain of its forms was not understood, and it is not surprising that there was no revolt against them. At present, on the contrary, fashion's sins against health are well understood by sanitarians, who are using their best endeavors to make the devotees of fashion understand them also, so that there is every hope that the higher intellect will gradually succeed in making dress truly beautiful, which it cannot be without at the same time being thoroughly healthy, for health and beauty go hand in hand.

In order to attain this, dress must be regarded from a physiological as well as artistic standpoint, and a little study soon enables one to see that the two are not only congenial, but are interdependent. One need not go to the extremes that some of the dress reformers urge, and wear ugly, unbecoming things, nor put them upon their children; all this is as far wrong in one direction as the bad, unhealthful dressing is wrong in another.

The dress should be protecting, becoming, and so planned that every movement of the body shall be free and graceful, and this may be obtained, if we will only give thought and care to the essentials of proper and correct living; and also take into consideration the influence it will have on the health of so many in the future.

Value of Punctuality.

An eminent Philadelphia jurist died the other day, and among other bequests gave to his grandson a gold watch with this instruction:

"Whenever he looks at the watch he will remember the necessity of being a correct and punctual man."

There is a lesson in this injunction which everyone may learn with profit. The man who is always punctual does more and does it better than he who is always late, always behind time.

Leaving duties to be performed until the last moment and then rushing them through makes a mess of any work.—[Norristown Times.

Where the Difficulty Lay.

"Look here, Smith," said a rich fellow to his former schoolmate, who had asked for aid, "this is the second time you've applied to me this month. I'm afraid you don't live within your means."

"Ah," said Smith, "I'm just trying to find the place to live within."—[Life.

A QUEER LITTLE RAILROAD.

What an Association of Illinois Farmers Have Done To Carry Their Freight and Themselves.

There is a little narrow gauge railroad in central Illinois which is rather amusing.

It runs through a rich farming country and is owned and managed by wealthy farmers. The conductors, engineers, and brakemen are farmers' sons, who have grown weary of raising cattle and corn, and who have taken to "railroading" as a relief.

The various stations along the line of this little railroad are of no consequence whatever, except to their score or more of inhabitants and to the farmers of the neighborhood.

A train starts from each end of the road every morning after breakfast, runs to the opposite end of the road by dinner time, returns again for tea, and ties up for the night.

As there is no telegraph line connected with the road, nobody at any of the stations knows when a train is coming until it arrives in sight. As the rails are laid on ties placed on the flat prairie, and as no grade exists from one end of the road to the other, the tall grass has an awkward habit of getting under the wheels and stopping the train. Not infrequently, also, the light rails spread apart and the cars run off the track, and go tumbling along on the virgin prairie.

Whenever a little accident of this kind occurs, the engineer, conductor, brakemen and passengers jump to the ground and lift the cars into place again.

The passengers ride in a car reserved for them in the rear of a long line of freight cars. Half of this car is partitioned off in order that it may also serve for carrying mail bags, express matter, and baggage.

Not infrequently passengers walk into a village ahead of the train and announce that the cars will follow them in an hour or two, providing they can be kept on the track long enough.

Sometimes a locomotive gets stalled on some one of the several gentle hills along the line. The trainmen thereupon quietly wait until the other engine appears. Then the two engines draw the train up the hill.

Notwithstanding the oddities which exist in the management of this little railroad, it hauls large quantities of freight, and is making money for its stockholders.—[Chicago News.

Sheriff John's Greatest Trial.

The greatest trial that Sheriff John ever had to undergo was when a young man was convicted of murder and sentenced to death. It looked very much like a case of self-defense, and John took that view of it.

After court adjourned he tried to ease his mind by thrashing three of the jurors. The other nine were prudent enough to hide out, and thus the peace of the community was not alarmingly disturbed.

As the day set for the execution approached, John grew desperate and gloomy. He spent every afternoon sitting in the jail talking with his prisoner, who at that time was the only inmate. The jail stood in a lonely place, and at that season of the year, mid-summer, was not visible from any house, on account of the foliage of intervening trees.

As the two sat there with the door wide open, the prisoner frequently remarked that it would be easy to make a successful break for liberty.

"You could do it powerful easy," assented Sheriff John. "You could get clean out of town before I could raise the alarm, because I am lame, and I shouldn't be surprised at any time if I had a fit. Likely as not if you should take a run the excitement would prostrate me for an hour or two. Then you would get to your uncle's, you know, and he would put you on a horse, and you would go through the hill country and get to the mountains. Why, you'd get off, dead certain."

Then the prisoner would puff away at his pipe and go off into a brown study.

Two days before the time for the execution Sheriff John told the condemned man that he would go down town and get some tobacco.

"I'll leave the door open so you can get the fresh air," he said, with downcast eyes, and then he went off whistling merrily. He was gone an hour, and when he returned the prisoner was in his usual place.

"Well, of all the big fools you are the biggest!"

Then he locked the door, and sadly and slowly made his way homeward.

The day before the one appointed for the hanging a pardon came, and the nappy sheriff hugged every man, woman and child he met on the main street, without regard to race or color. In fact, his jubilation was so noisy and covered so much territory that the recipient of the pardon was almost entirely forgotten.—[Atlanta Constitution.

Snubbing the Intrusive Beau.

He (to lady in street car): "Pardon me, but will you not tell me at what corner you get out?"

She: "That is unnecessary; but I can tell you at which you get out, and that is the next one."

Strange to say, the prophecy is verified within two minutes.

Elderly masher (to lady also in street car): "Excuse me, but will you not allow me the honor of your acquaintance?"

She (after deliberate survey, speaking very clearly and distinctly): "Sir, your mistake in addressing me is remarkable, inasmuch as your age entitles you to more discrimination."

Masher rapidly disappears over rear platform amid suppressed but general enthusiasm.

Third masher (to third lady on street): "Will you not allow me to join in your walk?"

She: "Certainly, until I meet a policeman."

A curious and sudden purpose leads the masher down a side street.—[Judge.

Pour Prendre Congé.

A young lady from Tennessee, a cousin of the late President Polk, visited friends not many miles from St. Paul.

Her relationship with the deceased President was generally commented on during her stay.

Her visit ended, and, as is customary, she made her parting calls. Among others, she called at the house of a young lady who failed to fall in love with the young lady from Tennessee, and, finding the lady of the house out, she left her card.

The envious young lady on returning home picked up the card, and scanning it said:

"She does try to put on lots of airs, simply because she's related to a President. Just think of it, P. P. C.—President Polk's cousin."—[St. Paul Pioneer-Press.

The Child Is Father of the Man.

"Oh! ain't you mean?" said one six-year-old to the other. "You took the biggest cake. I was just going to take that myself."

Why Not?

Dunner: "See here, I'm tired running here after that bill of mine."

Servant: "An' why don't yer kape yer bill at home thin?"

WHAT PHYSICIANS SAY ABOUT THE

STARR KIDNEY PAD.

"Treatment by Absorption has for some time been recognized by Medical Men to be the most simple and effectual means of conveying to Diseased Organs, "Curatives," but in cases of Kidney Disease and Complaints attendant thereon, successful treatment was practically impossible until the introduction of the Starr Kidney Pad. It costs less than a single prescription and is immeasurably more decisive and effective than any quantity of internal Medicinal dosing. Worn immediately over the seat of Disease, its curative properties become absorbed by the diseased and enfeebled Organs, continuously and directly, as required to insure in return their healthy action and original vigour. It is comfortable to the patient and pleasant in its effects, and cures when nothing else can. The Starr Kidney Pad accomplishes positive, decisive results. A more valuable discovery as a true remedy for Kidney Diseases was never made.—Medical Gazette

The Starr Kidney Pad, manufactured in Toronto, is a permanent sure cure for diseases, disorders and ailments of the Kidneys, Bladder and urinary secretive system, or attendant complaints, causing pain in the small of the back, sides, etc., producing urinary disorders, such as too frequent, scanty, difficult, painful or copious micturition, inability of retention and sedimentary urine, dropsical symptoms, etc., denoting the presence in the system of diseases common to the urinary secretive organs—known as gravel, catarrh of the bladder and passages, Bright's disease, diabetes, dropsy, piles, nervous debility, etc. Send for pamphlet to LANGLEY & CO., Wholesale Agents, Victoria. Representing Goldie & McCulloch, Galt, Ont.

SIR.—We the undersigned having witnessed the terrible fire which wiped out of existence the young city of Vancouver, on the 13th inst., have, after the fire, examined the safes sold by you, some of which were put to the most severe test, having been surrounded by large quantities of lard and bacon, and we are pleased to testify to the remarkable manner in which every safe sold by you preserved its contents, not only books and papers, but also thousands of dollars in paper money were taken out in perfect condition. We can, therefore, with the greatest confidence, recommend them as thoroughly fire proof:

THE BRITISH COLUMBIAN Printing Company (LIMITED,)

ON THE 10TH OF JANUARY, 1887, the COLUMBIAN Newspaper and Printing Concern was purchased by a joint stock company composed of citizens of New Westminster, to be known as the "British Columbian Printing Co., Limited." The concern has been for nearly a year owned and controlled by the British Columbia Stationery and Printing Company, of New Westminster, Victoria and Vancouver. The object of the new company is to continue the publication of the BRITISH COLUMBIAN newspaper and carry on a general printing and publishing concern, controlled entirely by those whose individual interest it will be to promote the development, especially of the Mainland. There will be no slackening of the energy hitherto displayed in the management of the establishment, and its patrons may rely upon receiving full value for their money. The COLUMBIAN will continue to be entirely independent in both Dominion and provincial politics, and will devote itself to the advancement of such schemes a may be considered in the public interest. The concern is now entirely separate from any other business, the book and stationery establishment in this city having been taken over by Mr. T. R. Pearson, who will continue to carry it on in his own name and for his own benefit. It is desirable that a daily newspaper should be maintained in this city, and the new company asks for public patronage on the ground that it is engaged in an enterprise calculated to promote the public welfare. It asks that the COLUMBIAN be judged on its own merits and supported only so long as its policy is enconsistt with its professions. In consequence of this business change all accounts due the concern must be settled without delay so that the books of the former company may be adjusted and closed. It is expected that the Yosemite will ply on the Vancouver-Victoria route very shortly. The Rithet will take her place on the route between this city and Victoria.

Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator is shown by its good effects in destroying worms. Many have tried it with best results.

EMIGRANTS.—The total number of emigrants that have left Queenstown for America during the past month is 11,854, as against 8,656 for the same month last year.

WILL ABOLISH DISALLOWANCE.—A rumor is afloat in Ottawa at present that the government will make a proposition to the Canadian Pacific for abolishing disallowance.

THE O. R. & N.—Commencing yesterday, a daily train, known as the Portland express, leaves San Francisco every afternoon at 4 o'clock for Portland. The distance between the two cities is covered in about 40 hours under this new service.

A KINDERGARTEN SCHOOL.—The Sisters of St. Ann's convent in this city wish to inform the public that they will open a kindergarten at the convent to-morrow, May 3rd. Children of both sexes, from two to seven years of age, will be admitted. See their adv. in another column.

CUSTOMS.—For the month of April the collections at this port were as follows: Customs, $4,595.74; other revenues, $230.98; total, $4,826.72. This is a decrease of $505 as compared pared with the same period of last year, and an increase of $1,477 over April, 1885.

DISTRICT MEETING.—The annual district meeting in connection with the Westminster district of the Methodist church will open in this city at 9 o'clock next Wednesday morning. It is expected that all the Methodist ministers of the mainland (except the northwest coast) as well as lay representatives) will be present.

THE SHEBA REEF.—The Sheba mine in South Africa promises to produce all the gold the world has any use for for centuries to come. It is a 35-foot reef and there is exposed a mass of gold quartz, which, at a rough calculation of 16 cubic feet to the ton, will yield a million tons of payable stone without sinking one single inch below the level of its exposed base. The metal is visible everywhere, and it is asserted that nowhere in the world can such a marvelous deposit be matched.—Ex.

VICTORIA CUSTOMS.—Customs receipts at Victoria for April amounted to $93,159 (inclusive of $60 for Chinese head tax). This is an increase of $34,110 over the same month last year. For the past 12 months or more there has been a steady falling off in the customs receipts at Victoria, and this large increase for April is very likely owing to a great extent to the action of the C.P.R. in rushing up rates, thereby forcing importers to purchase in the San Francisco and Portland markets.

GOLD DISCOVERY.—While the excavations of a reservoir, connected with the works of the Kamloops Water Co., was proceeding yesterday, indications of gold were observed in the dirt, and Messrs. Jones and Faucett staked out claims and had them duly recorded. Mr. Jones had some of the dirt washed, and specimens of gold were found, ranging in size from a pin head up to the size of a pea. The gentlemen named have so much faith in this discovery that they have paid for a mining license; and will, we learn, proceed to develop the mines.—Sentinel.

THE MISSION.—The Skating Rink was crowded last night by persons who listened intently to the powerful address delivered by Mrs. Hampson-Hemus. All the available standing room was occupied. The address related to the importance of making the best possible use of present opportunities and laying up treasure beyond the grave. None of the things in a man's possession at the time of his death could go with him to the eternal world, but his possession there would be the things he had during his lifetime set apart for the Lord—these were all laid up in store for his eternal possession. The address occupied nearly two hours in delivery, and quite a number of people remained to the after meeting. To-night the meeting will be in the Skating Rink at 8 o'clock, and to-morrow night a temperance mass meeting will be addressed by Mrs. Hampson-Hemus. This will close the mission.

VANCOUVER FIRE PROTECTION.—We have received for publication a letter written by Mr. Edward Gold, of Vancouver, in which he draws attention to the inefficiency of the means provided for the protection of that city from fire because of the lack of water and appliances on the part of the company. Mr. Gold is of opinion that the council should make this matter first in considering the improvements which require immediate attention. When the dry season comes, as it will soon come, the work of clearing land will bring back the danger of conflagration, and if the implements for fighting this destructive enemy are not at hand and in order, another disaster similar to that of last June may overtake the young city. Mr. Gold says the city has now a good steam fire engine and an efficient fire company, but until the company has received the necessary equipment for which it has frequently applied to the council in vain, its usefulness in case of emergency must be limited. Instead of spending the city's resources on pleasure grounds (for which it is proposed to take $5000), and other schemes which may be very excellent in themselves, Mr. Gold thinks everything should be made secondary to the placing of the fire brigade on a first-class footing. He suggests the erection of more tanks, that the approach to the bay at the foot of Carrol st. be put in good condition and a large pit sunk where a good supply of water could always be found, the purchase and training of a good span of horses to draw the engine, and regular weekly practice for the company. Mr. Gold says he sent this letter to the News, but the editor refused to publish it. As the letter is of considerable length, and our space is limited, we shall have to ask Mr. Gold to be content with the above notice indicating the drift of his communication.

Mr. W. R. Lazier, Bailiff, &c., Belleville, writes; "I find Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil the best medicine I have ever used in my stable. It will remove warts by paring them down and applying it occasionally."

The Confederation Life.

The annual report of this solidly prosperous Canadian institution will be found in another column. The facts revealed in the accounts and the Directors' report thoroughly justify the encomiums which the shareholders present bestowed upon the management. Thanks to the resolute manner in which the Company has declined to embark upon extravagant methods of procuring business, the working expenses of the company bear to the total income the very small ratio of between 17 and 18 per cent. A point attesting the soundness of the finances of the Company is the fact that the interest income is sufficient to pay the death claims—which in a company of the age of the Confederation Life is something to be proud of. The assets and liabilities are set forth in minute detail and the tables show that, after making allowance for all possible contingencies and providing for every debt, there is a surplus of $282,199 over liabilities and capital combined. The increase in the assets in the last year was $260,590. So much or most can be done by rigid adherence to what the President defined as the true policy of the Company, viz:—"To keep its balance sheet right and avoid unnecessary, unwise, or extravagant expenditure for the sake merely of increasing new business." —Toronto Globe. T. R. Pearson & Co. are agents for this company in British Columbia. m19tc

WHITE BRONZE MONUMENTS.—White Bronze is a comparatively new substance, and has come into large use, rapidly, for special purposes in this country. It has been found to be so well adapted for statuary and monuments, that companies have been for some time established at Bridgeport, Conn., Detroit, Mich., Des Moines, Iowa, and St. Thomas, Canada, who are making monuments of all kinds and styles. From experiments made by these companies, it has been found that the material will stand exposure for an indefinite period—it is practically indestructible. White Bronze being noncorrosive and unchangeable, it is stated to be equal to gold, silver or platinum, and superior to copper or antique bronze, which throws off a verdigris. The monuments are cast from refined zinc, and are given their sparkling appearance by the sand blast, sand being blown against the work under a high pressure of steam, which cuts the surface, but does not adhere to it. A thin film of oxide which forms on the bronze is indistructible by the elements; it cannot be dissolved by water, and air cannot penetrate it, although the film is so thin as to be immeasurable. No corrosion, it is affirmed, can take place.—Boston Journal of Commerce. Chas. J. Robson, New Westminster, is agent for the White Bronze Monuments in British Columbia.
