NOTES AND COMMENTS.

One hundred and thirty out of 140 of General Harrison's Indiana regiment have applied for offices. The other ten are too feeble even to hold offices.

More money is said to have been spent by the United States government in the investigation of the diseases which affect swine than of those which affect the human species.

Thirteen miles from Cheyenne is what is said to be the largest horse farm in the world. There are 120,000 acres of land, where roam 5000 horses, which require the constant attention of sixty five men. One hundred miles of wire fence keeps the animals in bounds.

The Paris Firago says that the Leaning Tower of Pisa has actually been proposed as the great prize of a lottery. The town has become bankrupt, and the creditors want to seize the Hotel de Ville. To avert this calamity a municipal councillor started the idea of a lottery.

Sir Richard Webster has proposed a bill to punish with life imprisonment a spy caught making plans of English fortifications, and imposes a long term upon any government clerk convicted of a similiar offence. It seems that there is now no law in England to reach this kind of offenders.

Bishop Andrew Cahoon, of Salt Lake City, serving out a term in prison for polygamy, has renounced his faith, denouncing the whole Mormon fabric as a tissue of impostures and frauds. He has stood by his church for half a century, but now says he does not propose any longer to be a rebel against his country.

Protective duties between the various Australian colonies make trouble for the women who have been accustomed to send to Melbourne for their dresses. A Tasmanian banker's wife recently ordering a new gown, told the dressmaker to be sure and have one of the girls wear it for half an hour or so, and to put some old ruffling about the neck, so that it should appear to be an old dress and not liable to duty.

"Is the stage elevating, my son?" "Why, yes, I think so; I think so. It is certainly instructive. A real bandit, the murderer of Jesse James and several less eminent victims, two real burglars, a real safe-breaker, and two or three women with three or four husbands apiece are playing in more or less thrilling dramas, and one real live preacher is playing 'Hamlet,' and I don't see how you could ask for a more realistic display than that."—Burdette.

A case of mistaken identity recently caused amusement in a western court. A coloured prisoner, about 15 years old, appeared before the judge charged with stealing a pie. "Take off your cap," said the judge. "What for?" asked the prisoner, without obeying. "What for? You are in court. Take off your hat. "I jess don't have to," replied the prisoner calmly. Whereupon the judge, turning to the father of the prisoner, asked angrily, "Is that your son?" "No," replied the man, with an appreciative grin, "I guess she aint nobody's son."

An exciting scene was witnessed in the Gaiety Concert hall, Birmingham, Eng., recently. A dramatic sketch was in progress, during which a sailor is drugged and murdered. A sailor in the audience leaped from the gallery on to the stage, declaring with an oath he would not see a comrade come to harm. The officials in the hall were floored one after another by the man in his desperate efforts to reach the stage robbers, and four policemen removed him only after a violent struggle. He was perfectly sober, and had returned from a long voyage the previous day.

Rev. Colborne Heine, in the Presbyterian College Journal, says: What is so susceptible as the mind of a child! Like a photographer's plate it receives every passing impression, and reflects it like a mirror. Let their young minds be steeped in the divine love, and in the truth; let religious reading, missionary biographies, letters, papers, and the condition of unchristian peoples be kept before their minds; make them also familiar with the histories of our own martyred forefathers, as well as with the great struggle for religious liberty, and we shall create such an enthusiasm in the rising generation for the spread of the gospel as shall bring into the service of Christ the best talent both of city and country youth, and shall powerfully rebuke and retard the growth of worldliness in the church, which is now so general and alarming. The whole curriculum of reading which is placed before our youth needs revising, and a more distinctly religious literature recommended by the authorities of the church of Christ. There never was greater need for us to take action than now. The amount of trashy literature offered to the young to weaken and defile their minds is simply appalling, and needs a speedy and effectual remedy.

ALASKA'S MONOPOLY.

Ex-Governor Swineford will Contest the Renewal of the Alaska Commercial Co.'s Lease.

President Hatch of the Wisconsin Railway Suicides. No Possible Reason Assigned.

The U. S. Ship Thetis Leaves San Francisco for Alaska and the Arctic.

A WORTHY SCHEME.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—It is stated here that John Swineford, ex-governor of Alaska, is organizing a syndicate of moneyed men to contest the Alaska Commercial Co.'s claim to renewal of the lease of the fur seal fisheries in Alaska, which expires next year, when strong efforts will be made to have it renewed. Swineford has been working the matter up for some time.

ADMIRAL TAYLOR DEAD.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—Rodgers Taylor died here last night of a complication of diseases, augmented by a strong paralytic shock last Monday. The funeral will take place on Tuesday. Taylor was born on Rhode Island in 1811; appointed to the navy 1828; served with distinction during the civil war and was appointed rear admiral in January 1872; retired 1873.

PASSENGER LIST.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 15.—Passengers per str. Mexico for Victoria:—C. G. Ballentine, Mrs. W. B. Hunter, C. E. Chane, Mrs. M. Plaskett, W. P. Suyward, N. J. Becar, Miss McKeon, Mrs. W. McKeon, Miss C. Codine, G. W. Taylor and H. Rogers.

NORTHWARD BOUND.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 15.—The U. S. Revenue cutter Thetis has gone down from the Mare island navy yard and will sail for the north in a few days. She will proceed to Sitka, touching en route at such places as her commanding officer may deem necessary. On arriving at Sitka she will continue northward to Behrings Straits and the Arctic ocean, remaining until September.

TRAIN WRECKED.

TUCSON, Arizona, April 15.—An East-bound Atlantic and Pacific freight train has been derailed near Strauss station, New Mexico, the engine and twelve cars have been badly wrecked. The engine turned completely over and the cars piled upon it. No one was hurt, but the loss to the Railroad company will reach fifty thousand dollars.

VISITED HARRISON.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—The Chicago and all American base ball clubs, who play in Washington to-day, called early to pay their respects to the president headed by A. G. Spalding of Chicago, who was introduced to the president by secretary Halford, and he in turn introduced the base ballists to Harrison. An invitation to attend the game this afternoon was extended to the president and he informed them he enjoyed witnessing the game of ball and had occasionally witnessed games at Indianapolis and Chicago, but owing to a previous engagement he would be unable to attend.

THE STRIKE UNCHANGED.

MINNEAPOLIS, April 15.—The street car strike situation is practically unchanged. No attempt was made to run cars to-day.

A LARGE DEFICIT.

NEW YORK, April 15.—The annual report of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road for 1888 shows a net revenue of $7,708,451: disbursements for interest, dividends and accounts are charged off at $9,553,833, showing a deficit of $1,815,284.

WHEAT.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 15.—Wheat strong; buyer, '89, 140⅜; seller 89, 127¾; buyer season 139.

CHICAGO, April 15.—Wheat firm; April, 87⅞; June 83⅞; July, 83¼.

NEW YORK, Apr. 15.—Wheat steady; April, 86½; June, 88¼; July, 88¾.

THE NIPSIC USELESS.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 15.—Mrs. Mullan, wife of the captain of the Nipsic, has received a letter from the latter in which he says that the Nipsic is so badly damaged as to be wholly unseaworthy and he will recommend her condemnation and use as a coal hulk.

ALL'S WELL.

NEW YORK, April 15.—The anxiety caused by a despatch said to have been received from Queenstown to the effect that the Cunard steamer Etruria had sighted the Guion steamer Wisconsin putting back to Queenstown, and that the latter had not arrived either at Queenstown or Liverpool, was dispelled by a cablegram received by her agents here that the Wisconsin sailed from Queenstown at 9 o'clock this morning for New York. It is supposed she met with some slight accident to her machinery and put back to Queenstown for repairs.

Steamship Arizona has arrived from Liverpool without news of the lost Denmark.

GREAT PRESIDENTIAL EXCURSION.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—The long anticipated presidential excursion down the Potomac became a reality to-day. Notwithstanding the threatening appearance of the sky and the keen wintry winds blowing, President and Mrs. Harrison decided to take the trip. Accordingly at 1.30 (not half an hour after they decided to go) they left the White house and were driven to the wharf where they boarded the steam vessel waiting for them.

THE SULLIVAN-KILRAIN FIGHT

NEW YORK, April 15.—Mike Murray of the book making firm of Cridge and Murray, this afternoon was agreed upon, at the New York Clipper office, as a final stake holder in the Sullivan Kilrain fight. Sullivan was present and appeared to be in the pink of condition.

A STRANGE SUICIDE.

MINNEAPOLIS, April 15.—Chas. F. Hatch, president of the Wisconsin, Minnesota and Pacific Railway, suicided this morning in the office by shooting himself in the mouth with a revolver. The suicide is well nigh inexplicable as Hatch's business and domestic relations were of the happiest. He was an even tempered and contented man, and friends are at a loss to explain the act. It is hinted he has been speculating in wheat and had lost heavily and this caused despondency. Friends laugh at this story.

VERY REASONABLE.

NEW YORK, April, 13.—The Samoan commissioners sailed in the steamship Umbria to-day for Berlin. Bate's final utterances at the dock to a reporter were: "We desire merely to secure protection for American, German and English citizens in Samoa without giving any particular powerful control of the islands."

A PROMINENT CITIZEN SUICIDES.

ST. LOUIS, April 13.—John Jackson, president and proprietor, of the St. Louis Grain Elevator Company, a prominent and wealthy citizen, suicided by hanging some time during last night, in the office of the Grain Elevator. The body was found by a janitor this morning. Several letters were found on his person addressed to members of his family and to business friends. The announcement of the suicide created intense excitement on the exchange, on the streets and in all financial and business circles. It was well known on the exchange that he was heavily interested in a May wheat deal, and there is a suspicion that a financial reaction will follow. Jackson was 68 years of age and leaves a wife and two adult children.

PREJUDGED GUILTY.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 13.—The Chronicle this morning, editorially noticing the indictments against Herbert F. Beecher, ex-Treas'y agent; Wm. Harned, ex-Special deputy collector, Quincy A. Brooks, for defrauding the customs department at Port Townsend, W. T., says: "Common report, which is usually right in the main, has long since tried and condemned these men, and there is no danger but what an abundance of testimony will be presented to the trial jury. When this nest of thieves is broken up a good job will be done, and it may deter others from following in their footsteps."

JAPAN TRADE.

OTTAWA, April 13.—263 and 162 carloads of cotton, of Canadian and New England manufacture respectively, were shipped to Japan via the Canadian Pacific Railway last month. The Canadian Pacific officials here say that 5 carloads of electrical apparatus passed through here last night en route to Honolulu. They say it is a portion of the appliances for the proposed cable between the Sanwich islands and the mainland.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

OTTAWA, April 12.—Replying to a question the Postmaster-General to-night said that the contract with the Messrs. Allans for carrying the mails was supposed to terminate on April 12th, but Messrs. Allans now contend that it holds good till the fast line matter is determined. Pending a settlement of these conflicting views the Government has decided to issue an order that in case Messrs. Allans' line refused to carry them, the mails this week should be sent via New York. By a clerical mistake the notice issued to the postmasters was made imperative.

In the House to-day in reply to Sir Richard Cartwright the Government said it could not yet state whether there would be any tariff changes this season.

Sir J. S. D. Thompson's bill, the act for the prevention and suppression of combinations in restraint trade, was on motion removed from public bills and orders and transferred to the Government orders. This proved to be the most interesting sitting for two months past. The House was in committee of supply all day. The estimates for the Inland Revenue, Post Office and a part of those for the Interior Department were adopted.

Hon. E. Dewdney in a forcible speech took occasion to institute a comparison showing the difference between the administration of his department by Hon. David Mills in a Liberal administration and by Sir John Macdonald's government respectively.

Mr. Clark Wallace's Bill for the suppression of combines in restraint of trade is sure to become law, though, perhaps, in the amended form. Despite the opposition to-day by the Board of Trade of Toronto, and scores of monopolies, it was reported by the Committee on Banking and Commerce. It provides that all combinations of individuals, of railways, steamboat and transportation companies, unlawfully to restrain trade, limit the facility of transport, limit production or competition, are guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction are liable to a penalty not exceeding $4000 and not less than $200, or to imprisonment for any term not exceeding two years, and if a corporation it is liable on conviction to a penalty not exceeding $10,000 and not less than $1000.

VICTORIA NEWS.

The Malay arrives in the Royal Roads. Late Mr. Dunsmuir to be given a public funeral. Lieut.-Governor Nelson and Hon. A. E. B. Davie are very ill.

VICTORIA, April 15.—The Bark Malay, Capt. Nichols, arrived in the Royal roads last evening from Westminster, for Sidney, with a cargo of lumber. She will sail as soon as she gets a crew.

The late Robert Dunsmuir will be given a public funeral to-morrow. It will be the largest ever seen in the province.

It is reported that Lieut. Governor Nelson and the Hon. A. E. B. Davie, the Premier, are very ill.

The funeral of the late Judge Elliott took place this morning.

H. M. S. Swiftsure arrived at 10 o'clock this morning from San Francisco.

Johnny Threads (coming in from outdoors)—"He is gone, Syl!" Miss Sylvia Threads (toying with the piano keys)—"What do you mean?" Johnny Threads—"I mean that your beau just came up the steps and looked at you a minute through the window, and then went right away." Miss Sylvia Threads—"That is strange; did he say anything?" Johnny Threads—"Yes he said, 'Heavens! Gum!"

Job printing of all kinds neatly done at the COLUMBIAN office. Prices will be found as low as at any other office in the province.—Adv.

BOULANGER'S WOES.

Over Ten Thousand Documents to be Brought in Evidence Against Boulanger.

Stanley will Forsake American Allegiance and Become a Brition with Titles in Prospect.

Fate of the Steamship Denmark's Passengers still in Doubt. Anxiety Increases.

TEN THOUSAND CHARGES.

PARIS, April 15.—A vast mass of material must be examined by the commission appointed to carry on the prosecution against Gen. Boulanger. The documents in the case reach the immense number of 10,320. Among other things these documents include 3,000 articles from various newspapers, and a quantity of the great visiting cards upon which he has penciled notes and memoranda. The complaint drawn up against the general charges him with corruption of the army, with illegal use of privileges of his office as minister of war and with having delivered a seditious address on the evening before the election of President Carnot. It is reported M. Clemenceau will give evidence before the Tribunal, affirming the last of these accusations and showing that it is justly urged. A commissary of police visited this morning the residence of Gen. Boulanger, Count Dillon and M. Henri Rochefort with warrants for their arrest. Of course the warrants were not served and it was known they would not be as the three gentlemen are all out of the city, but the formality was necessary to prove the charge of contumely against them.

SUGAR EXCITEMENT.

LONDON, April 15.—The Clyde sugar market opened quieter to-day. Prices for sugar advanced over Saturday's quotations, and the market is on the rise. The London market is extremely excited to-day. Sugar has advanced two shillings.

ONLY NEURALGIA.

VIENNA, April 15.—The Neue Freie Presse says the illness with which the Empress Elizabeth is suffering is only neuralgia.

REPAIRED AND PROCEEDED.

LONDON, April 15.—The steamer Wisconsin, which left Liverpool for New York on Saturday last, and yesterday was reported returning to Liverpool, returned and had some defect in her boilers repaired and again sailed for New York.

NOTHING YET.

NEW YORK, April 15.—Nothing is yet heard of the Denmark's passengers. The steamers arriving has seen nothing of them.

NO NEWS YET.

NEW YORK, April 15.—There is no news this morning from any quarter of the fate of the lost steamship "Denmark" and her passengers. The steamship Hamsburg, of the American Line and the steamships Hammonia and Cheniston from the Mediterranean ports arrived this morning without intelligence of any sort. The Suevia and Arizona from Liverpool and the Olympia from Gibraltar, and the Werra from Bremen are expected to-day, and is hoped they will bring some news.

HONORS FOR STANLEY.

LONDON, April 13.—It is asserted that upon the return of Mr. Henry M. Stanley to England, he will be naturalized as a British subject, forsaking his American adoption, and that the government will confer upon him a higher honor than has ever been conferred upon a journalist or an explorer, which two professions Mr. Stanley combines in himself. It is also stated that the Belgian government will join in decorating and otherwise honoring Stanley.

LATE CANADIAN NEWS.

Four hundred settlers arrived at Winnipeg from Ontario last Thursday.

Hon. O. Mowat, premier of Ontario, will shortly leave for a tour to England and the continent.

A new lacrosse league will be formed at Montreal consisting of the Montreals, Ottawas, Torontos and Shamrocks.

Mr. Creighton, local manager of the bank of Montreal, at Quebec, died Saturday morning from an overdose of morphine.

Judge Dugas had an interview with Morrison, the Megantic, Quebec, outlaw, at a lonely spot in the woods Friday. Donald's friends assisted Dugas on condition that he would go unarmed and without an escort, and as that was the only way to get word of the outlaw, Dugas consented. Donald's terms of surrender are unique and peculiar. He asks that the reward of $3,000 be given to himself; and that he be not put in jail before or during the trial; or he would take $9,000 with five days clear start, or the expedition could go to Sheol. Of course Dugas could not countenance these terms, and the interview came to naught. All Donald's friends suspected of harboring him will now be arrested and held as hostages till he surrenders. The situation is critical in the extreme.

Recent Scott Act Repeals Illegal.

An Ottawa despatch of the 8th inst. states that a startling discovery has been made in the capital that all the Scott Act repeals on Thursday last were all illegal and void, owing to the fact that the voters' lists used were the new lists of names set up at the printing bureau. These, however, are merely proof sheets, bearing no imprint of authority. They were not revised and are in no sense legal voters' lists. The proof-reader usurped the functions of revising barrister. The clerk of the crown in chancery admits that the new lists were used in every instance of Thursday's contests, and Hon. R. W. Scott, Q.C., is of opinion that every appeal carried that day is void, and there seems no doubt of it.

The tired individual, who went into the country, as he said, "to get away from the bustle of city life," found that these articles are just as prevalent in the small towns as the large ones.

Daily British Columbian

Monday Evening, April 15, 1889.

Rev. Mr. White has started out on a regular crusade against wickedness and vice in both high and low places in this city. Believing, as all must who take the trouble to believe or observe anything, the scriptural apothem that "Righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a shame to any people," we must say that Mr. White's efforts to point out, with the view of purging, the plague spots of our city, are commendable, and should receive the recognition and support of those in authority and of the right thinking generally amongst our citizens. We have from time to time given considerable space to reports of Mr. White's sermons, lectures, &c., on the subject of the darker evils of the city, and publish to-day a synopsis of a plain talk to "men only" on the subject of "Moral Purity" delivered at the Methodist church last night, after the usual services. Such subjects are not the most pleasant to discuss, but require at times to be handled without gloves. Mr. White has taken a great deal of trouble to inform himself, and although some of his disclosures may startle the unsuspecting, he knows whereof he speaks, and is evidently not striking in the dark. As to the results of such a crusade as that upon which Rev. Mr. White has entered, it is often objected that a morbid sensationalism is the beginning and end. We do not think so, however. We believe that if the moral suasion exercised upon the hearers should be the only result, that the effort would be justified. Other results should ensue in this case, however. We hope to see our city council ascertain their powers, and act upon them, in the best interests of the city, both in the matter of the "social evil" and in the "regulation" of such saloons, of which it cannot be doubted there are a number, who are overstepping even the too broad privileges of their licenses, by running gambling establishments, selling liquor to minors of tender years, and such like offences against laws human and divine. While considering this subject, it is well to remember, not that the fact furnishes any excuse for us, but by way of comparison, that Westminster is not any worse if as bad, as her sister cities, or cities in general, with respect to the evils in question. Apart altogether from this fact, though, Mr. White's researches and public utterances have shown plainly the crying need for reform in the directions intimated.

Japan has become our near neighbor now, by means of the fast steamships that ply between our shores and those of the strange eastern empire every two weeks. With this near neighborhood comes a natural increase of mutual interest, which is intensified from the fact that Japan has entered upon a new era—is undergoing a complete metamorphosis—is rapidly conforming itself to the ways and methods of Anglo-Saxon civilization, socially, commercially, politically, and even religiously. All this is important to us, principally (for we are selfish first, of course, and sentimental afterwards), from a commercial standpoint. Japan, throwing off her old exclusiveness and simple style of living, and approximating to the varied and complex life of the occident, is discovering new and manifold wants, which, from our geographical position and natural resources, we may expect in large part to supply. Hence our interest in the "land of the rising sun." These remarks will apply in a measure to our anticipated relations with the infinitely larger but less civilized Chinese empire. The staple food of Japan, as well as China, at present, is rice. Japan, however, is getting tired of its monotonous bill of fare, and is said to be reaching out after American wheat and beef. This is but the beginning of other wants, which foreign markets, ours amongst the number, will be called upon to supply. Rice, of course, will still continue to be raised, and will be the principal article of exchange for our products. A brief description of the manner of raising this favorite grain in Japan will be interesting. The Scientific American gives some particulars, by John M. Birch, U.S. consul, from which we glean the following facts: Two species of rice are grown in Japan—the lowland, cultivated by means of irrigation, and by far the most important, and the upland rice, grown on high, dry ground, just as wheat is grown in America. There is a great deal of labor connected with raising the staple article of rice by irrigation. The water so neccessary is conducted to the fields, which have raised borders, by means of conduits from numerous streams, or, in times of drought, from basins, which have been constructed to retain the contents of these streams flooded during the rainy season. In some instances it is necessary to raise the water to the required level by means of pumps. The pump in universal use resembles a water wheel, or a steamer's paddle wheel, and is made to revolve by a man ascending the flat boards. In the spring, about the month of March, the fields, which have been left without cultivation during the winter season, are dug up and begin to be prepared for rice sowing. In digging the ground the farmer uses for the purpose a mattock-shaped agricultural implement universally used in Japan. This implement is used as our laborers use the mattock, or the blade may be fastened to a wooden beam, thus forming a plow, which is drawn by a horse or an ox. The broken ground is then throughly saturated with a liquid manure, consisting of all sorts of refuse, such as night soil mixed with bathing water, rotten grass, bamboo leaves, and when dried by the sun the ground is again dug up and flooded with water to a depth of three inches. Through the slush is drawn an agricultural implement somewhat resembling a harrow, for the purpose of disintegrating the soil and thoroughly mixing the manure with it. The soil is now ready to receive the seedlings, which have been grown from the seed rice. The seed rice being soaked until ready to sprout is sown in very heavily manured patches of ground, covered with water during the night, and drained off during the day; and when the sprouts are six inches high, which is in the month of May, they are transplanted into the prepared fields as shallowly as possible (the number depending on the quality of the ground), in tufts of several plants, about six inches apart, and arranged in such a way that all the roots are of the same length. The work is done by all the members of the family who are able to wade about in the water. The rice sprouts thus planted require a great deal of manuring and cultivating before they put forth the ripened ear. It is estimated that from the planting time until the harvest, in November, the fields are hoed once every two weeks, in order that they may be kept free from weeds, water plants, etc. When the ear is about to burst forth the earth must be drawn up to the roots, and at the same time the plants must be heavily manured, which is done by the farmer pouring on the roots of each tuft liquid manure, consisting of a mixture of everything which is supposed to possess fertilizing qualities, but of which night soil is the principal ingredient. In September the fields are permitted to become dry, and in October and November, when the ears present a yellow color, the grain is cut by an agricultnral implement resembling a sickle, dried on the fields as our farmers cure the newly cut grain, made into bundles, and taken to the farmyards. The heads are then pulled from the straw by drawing the bundles through a comb-like arrangement of wooden or iron teeth, hulled or thrashed by spreading them on a mat and beating them with a flail, and separated from the chaff by running the thrashed grain through a machine made of two bamboo baskets, placed one upon the other and full of cut bamboos placed on end, which form the cleaner. The food rice is also further cleaned by pounding it with a pestle, in a mortar-shaped vessel, and where a number of pestles are used in as many mortars, they are set in motion by water or steam power. One would imagine that one of the first things the Japanese would do, now that they are being initiated into "Melican" ways, would be to introduce labor saving machinery into the cultivating and harvesting of the "national crop," and there can be little doubt but that this will eventually be done, although there will be the prejudice of centuries first to overcome. That is rapidly giving way, however, before improvements in other lines, and the whole field must soon be won for modern civilization.

HE DRANK HASHISH.

The Sad Results of a Drug Clerk's Terrible Blunder.

An Unfortunate Pill-Mixer Talks About the Power of the Extract of Indian Hemp and Describes How a Dose of It Affected Him.

A few miles from this city lives a man who was once as fine a drug clerk as there was in the city of Boston, says the Manchester (N. H.) Union. His name was Randolph R. Sanford, and he is at present residing with his widowed mother. Sanford is some over forty years of age, and is a complete wreck. His hair is as white as snow, and his left side has been paralyzed from the crown of his head to his feet. While mixing chemicals at the last place in Boston where he worked, an unforseen combination ensued, and an explosion was the result. This explosion proved most disastrous to Sanford. He got the bulk of the flying liquid in his face, and his nose was fairly eaten off. He was ill for a long time, and during his sickness his whole left side was paralyzed, as stated above. Within the last three years he has partially recovered the use of his afflicted side, and in the summer-time manages to get around and do a little garden work, the Sanford place being noted for the quality of the vegetables raised and the beauty of the floral plats. Sanford is a most interesting conversationalist, and is full of stories regarding the life of a drug clerk. His experience with hashish is worth reproducing. Hashish is the foundation of the same powerful extract that figures in Monte Cristo. The name by which it goes among druggists is "extractum cannabis indicæ," or extract of Indian hemp. The liquid preparation resembles ink in appearance—a dark green ink. Its fragrance is of a narcotic odor, and in taste it is slightly warm, bitterish and acid. In Hindostan, Persia, and other parts of the east, hemp has habitually been employed as an intoxicating agent. The parts used are the tops of the plant and a resinous product obtained from it. The plant is cut after flowering, and formed into bundles from two to four feet long by three inches in diameter, which are sold in the bazars by the name of gunjah. The resin obtained is formed into balls by the natives, and is smoked like tobacco, with which it is said to be frequently mixed. An infusion or decoction of the drink is sometimes used as an exhilarating drink.

"Some eight or ten years ago," says Sanford, "I was at work for a prominent druggist in Boston. For some little time I had been suffering with dyspepsia, and the ailment bothered me so that life became unbearable. I at last mixed up a decoction that gave me great relief. I was to take it before meals, and placed the bottle on a shelf behind the prescription counter among other bottles which are usually found in that place. One noon I went to take my medicine. I took down what I thought to be the right bottle, and, discarding the use of a spoon, I placed the bottle to my mouth and took a large swallow. Horrors! The taste told me that I had made a mistake! I looked at the bottle and—well, my friend, I had taken a large dose of Indian cannabis, or otherwise hashish. I knew what the results would be. I staggered back to the rear part of the store. How queer I felt. How light I was growing. Up, up, up I went, until my head bobbed against the ceiling. I was like a cork floating on disturbed water. I glided along, and could look down and see the huge bottles, each one with a hideous face laughing at me. The stools on the marble floor seemed to want to keep me company, and their click, click, on the marble floor sounded like thunder in my ears. Suddenly I was plunged into inky blackness. From the black nothingness flashed out bright balls of light. I reached the sofa and sank down upon it. My tongue seemed to swell, and I tried in vain to scream, but no sound issued. I seemed to know that there was a long, long hour before my fellow-clerk would be back from his dinner, and then he might not come into the rear room and discover my condition. The events of days and weeks came before my mind in all the details, and I saw faces—beautiful faces—angelic in their divinity, which seemed to beckon to me and then vanish with a hideous laugh. Again was I tossed to the ceiling and then thrown by some invisible force from one side of the room to another. I felt no concussion, but bounced about like a huge foot-ball. Then I fell back into dreamy contemplation and years seemed to pass by. Fantastic pictures were worked, my limbs felt weighted with lead, just the opposite to my experience of what seemed to me years ago. I heard somebody say: 'Why, Rolphie, old fellow, what's the matter? Rolphie! Rolphie!' The words reverberated like thunder. My shop-mate had returned. Again he tried to shake me to myself, and I never hated a man so cordially as I hated him at that moment. He got a doctor, and I tell you, my friend, they had no easy time to bring me to myself. Every word they uttered surged into my brain and seemed to jar me to pieces. I suffered from that experience long afterward, and it appears even at this day, when I think it over, that I have that feeling coming on, so powerful was the impression made on me at that time."

GRATEFUL FOR FAVORS.

A Dog Story Which Unfolds a Noble Trait of Canine Nature.

One afternoon in December, during a thick snow-storm, as I sat by an east window writing letters, my attention was attracted to a beautiful collie dog sitting very quietly for some hours at my front gate, writes a correspondent in Our Dumb Animals. As I went out just at night to put my letters in the post-office, I noticed that the dog was still there, and on going toward him I saw at once that he was in trouble. I spoke to him, but he did not move. I then saw a large tin pan was tied closely to his tail and one hind leg. I took my knife from my pocket and cut the string. When he found he was free he began to lick my hand and bark and roll over in the snow, and then jumping up began to lick my face. When I started for the post-office he trotted along by my side and every few minutes he would lick my hand and if I looked at him or spoke to him he would bark and jump up and lick my face and roll over in the snow with the wildest expression of joy. When I returned he started to go with me. But when I told him he must not go, that he must go home, after licking my hand again he trotted back across the village common. On going down street again a few days later this same dog came bounding across the common to meet me, repeating the same expressions of joy and thankfulness as before, and kept close to me till I started for home. This he kept up, and once in every few days would come to the house and appear dissatisfied till I made my appearance, when he would make the same demonstrations as at first. Some time in March a cold sleet-storm set in toward night and increased in violence as darkness came on. After dark I heard a strange knocking at the back door. On opening it there stood Ponto in a sad plight. His beautiful shaggy coat was matted together and his eyes almost closed with ice. He did not offer to come in until I invited him, when he gladly accepted my invitation. I built up a good fire in the kitchen stove and melted the ice from him and dried him and made him a nice, soft bed in the attic, where he lay quietly till I called him in the morning. After giving him a good warm breakfast I told him he must go home. He went at once, not forgetting to thank me for my hospitality, in his dog fashion. Ponto and I remained firm friends as long as my home was in that village. "I would not enter on my list of friends" one who would in any way ill-treat such a dumb friend as Ponto.

Where His Feet Were.

Colonel Visscher, the humorous poet, was appointed mail agent on a western road some years ago, but had hardly entered on his duties when a money package was stolen from his car, and he had some difficulty in satisfying the department that it was not his fault. A few days later the train left the track and he sustained a broken ankle. He then sent in his resignation, with the words: "I am tired of holding a position where I have one foot in the penitentiary and the other in the grave."

AMPUTATING A LEG.

What a Newspaper Correspondent Saw in a Boston Hospital.

An amputation, while a serious, is really a very simple operation. A layman, who sees an amputation of a leg for the first time is surprised that there is about it so little that is startling or shocking to his nerves. He naturally expects to see serious hemorrhage and rapid work to prevent the patient's bleeding to death. He is surprised to find that, on the contrary, it is one of the most bloodless operations performed on the surgeon's table. The first leg amputation seen by the New York Sun's Boston correspondent was performed upon a man of middle age, who was suffering with advanced necrosis, or death of the bone of the right leg, just below the knee. The patient had been brought into the amphitheater of the city hospital for treatment two weeks before the time of amputation. On the first occasion he was not ready to submit to amputation, although the doctor advised it, and the surgeon then operated upon the bare chance of saving the limb. He found, on examination, however, that a great cavity had formed in the bone, the first cause having been an injury, and there was hardly a chance of saving the limb. The patient not having consented, however, to losing the leg, the treatment at that time was limited to merely cleansing the wound and closing it up. The doctor stated then that even if the disease was checked and a cure was begun it would require at least two years for enough fresh bone to form to make a whole limb.

Mechanical appliances in the way of artificial limbs are now so skillfully made that a wooden leg, as it is ordinarily called, is almost as good as one of flesh and bone. It certainly is not worth two years time to a man in active life to spend in trying to save a badly damaged leg. At all events, this patient seems to have come to that conclusion, and two weeks after his first appearance he was again upon the surgeon's table, and the necessary instruments for amputation were by the side of the operator. It was deemed necessary to take off the leg just above the knee-joint. The appliance which does away with all hemorrhage in amputations is called the Esmarch bandage. This is simply a long belt of India-rubber about two and a-half inches wide, which is wound tightly about the limb, beginning at a point below where the amputation is to be made, and extending spirally, like the stripes of a barber's pole, but overlapping toward the body for eighteen inches or more and then at the point of the bandage nearer the body a stout rubber cord is tied very tightly. The rubber band is then unwound and the limb is left altogether bloodless, and with the blood-vessels tightly compressed at the point where the rubber cord remains. The effect of winding the rubber about the limb in this way is to drive the blood from all the veins and arteries back into the body, and to leave behind nothing but the bones and tissues. Then the surgeon begins his work. He need not hurry—he has plenty of time to do his work carefully and thoroughly. In the case in point he proposed to cut the bone about three inches above the knee-joint. The flesh was sound and healthy from the knee-joint upward, and it was necessary in this, as in all cases of amputation, to so cut the tissues that there would remain a flap, as it is ordinarily called, of flesh which should completely cover the end of the bone where it was taken off. Taking a rather narrow-bladed scalpel or surgeon's knife, sharp-pointed, and with a blade about twelve inches long, he rapidly cut the flesh from the knee-pan diagonally upward to the point where he proposed to sever the bone, and likewise on the opposite side of the limb, making a V-shaped incision on each side of the leg through all the tissues to the bone. Not a drop of blood followed the course of the knife in all its work. The cutting of the tissues occupied scarcely three minutes, and then the surgeon was ready to use the saw. This instrument, although, of course, of finer make was practically the same as that used in an ordinary butcher's shop, and the surgeon used it in about the same way and about as rapidly as a butcher would cut through a leg of beef. This finished the executive part of the operation, and it occupied scarcely five minutes. The more delicate and more tedious part of the operation followed. This comprises the taking up of the large and small blood-vessels, and tying up or ligating them. The important arteries and larger veins were easily discovered, and the ends of them seized with artery-forceps. These forceps were applied and left hanging to perhaps a dozen blood-vessels before the ligating began. This work was done by the surgeon's assistant. It consisted in tying the ends of the vessels just above the point where they were gripped by the forceps with a strong catgut thread. Especially in the case of the arteries it was necessary that this should be done with the greatest care, for if, for any reason, one of these threads should give way, there would be the greatest danger of the patient bleeding to death before the hemorrhage could be checked. After all the blood-vessels in sight had been thus tied up, the rubber cord which bound the limb near the body was loosened, and then occured the only hemorrhage of the entire operation. There remained in the exposed stump of the limb fifteen or twenty small blood-vessels which could not be detected by the eye while the limb was bloodless, and the location of which was shown by the flow of the blood itself. When the bandage had been loosened the surgeon, standing ready with a handful of artery forceps, rapidly seized the ends of the exposed blood-vessels as fast as the location of them was indicated, and in two or three minutes the hemorrhage was checked, and the end of the limb was hung with a great bunch of curious little steel implements. These smaller vessels were taken up one at a time by ligatures, in the same manner that the others had been, and when the last had been tied, and the last pair of artery forceps had been removed, the wound was ready to be closed up.

It was first treated with antiseptic solution and powder in order to reduce to a minimum the danger of inflammation and to increase the chance of the wounds healing by first intention. Then the two flaps above and below the bone were brought together over it, and the edges of the skin were carefully sewed opposite to each other, and the operation was over. It had occupied altogether about forty-five minutes. The patient during this time remained apparently asleep. The operation had been entirely painless, and when the bandages had been applied and the other one removed from the patient's face he was carried from the amphitheater just as he began to show signs of consciousness.

The Great Jefferson Cheese.

When Thomas Jefferson was chosen President Elder John Leland, a Baptist clergyman of Cheshire, Mass., proposed that his flock should celebrate the victory by making for the new Chief Magistrate the biggest cheese the world had ever seen. Every man and woman who owned a cow was to give for this cheese all the milk yielded on a certain day only—no Federal cow must contribute a drop. A huge cider press was fitted up to make it in, and the appointed day the whole country turned out with pails and tubs of curd, the girls and women in their best gown and ribbons, and the men in their Sunday coats and clean shirt-collars. The cheese was put to press with praper and hymn singing and great solemnity. When it was well dried it weighed 1,600 pounds. It was placed on a sleigh and Elder John Leland drove with it all the way to Washington. It was a journey of three weeks. All the country had heard of the big cheese and came out to look at it as the elder drove along.

Size of the Human Heart.

The masculine heart weighs more and is larger than that possessed by the fair sex. A heart, it would appear, grows most quickly during the first and second years of life, and between the second and seventh years it doubles in size. Until after the fiftieth birthday the heart still grows a little. In childhood the male and female heart are the same size; but after manhood the masculine heart develops much more than the female, and ends by being two square inches larger than the latter.

Messrs. G. W. Gilley & Co., have completed their contract for sinking the mattrasses for river mouth improvements.

The flags on the str. Princess Louise are flying at half mast to-day out of respect to the memory of the late Hon. Mr. Dunsmuir.

The last of the special services in the Oddfellows hall, which have been conducted by Bishop Sillitoe for some weeks, was held last night.

The water in the river has been rising steadily for the last few days. Large quantities of driftwood continue to pass down from up river.

The ship Camana, the first to load lumber on the Fraser river, is now on the voyage to British Columbia. She may probably load lumber again at the Royal City Mills.

The str. Rainbow arrived from Victoria yesterday afternoon with a full load of freight and a number of passengers. She left this morning for Vancouver and Nanaimo.

D. J. Levy, of 61, Johnston street, Victoria, B. C., is the only agent H. L. Gabel has in British Columbia. Hold your orders; he will be in New Westminster on or about May 1st, 1889. *tc

The barque Malay, which loaded lumber at the Royal City Planing Mills for Sydney, N. S. W., was towed to sea yesterday morning by the tug Pilot. The str. Rainbow spoke the Malay in the gulf and Captain Nichells reported "alls well."

Mr. W. W. Carlow addressed the meeting for young men only at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon. The attendance was quite large and the interest great. Mr. Carlow is a young man whose heart is in the work, and who speaks largely from experience.

200 lots on the Thorne road, from $65 upwards, on monthly instalments of $10, without interest. These lots are only two blocks from the park, have a good view, are mostly cleared and are only four blocks from the new store. Apply to WM. REIDT, Front street. *

At the police court this morning a Chinaman, named Ah Wah, was sent to gaol for one month for stealing wood from the Royal City Planing mills. Patrick Cafferty, after sobering up, gave $5.00 bail to appear this morning, but as he did not materialize the amount was forfeited.

Ald. Thos. Cunningham went over to Victoria this afternoon to represent the city officially at the funeral of the late Hon. Robt. Dunsmuir, to-morrow. W. H. Ladner, M. P. P., went over also and will represent the district at the funeral. Mr. Bole, Q. C., intended to be present at the funeral, but at the last moment was prevented from going by important professional business.

The Nanaimo Courier objects to the Colonist, Times and Vancouver World stealing items from its columns and giving no credit. THE COLUMBIAN has objected to the same thing on several occasions, and without avail. The startling energy, enterprise and activity these journals are so fond of laying claim to in providing the public with the latest important news, would appear ridiculous but for the stolen items from THE COLUMBIAN, Courier and other provincial exchanges.

Explosion at Anthracite.

A bad explosion took place in the Anthracite mines a few days ago. Choke damp which had accumulated in an unused chamber invaded a gallery in which a large gang of men were working, and coming in contact with their lamps caused a terrific explosion. A dozen men were more or less injured three especially being very severely burned and bruised. It is rumored that the Anthracite mines will again be closed down on the 14th inst., a large number of hands having already been discharged.

Base Ball.

A meeting of the Westminster base ball club was held on Saturday evening at which the following officers were elected for the season:—James Wilson, president; T. R. Pearson, 1st vice-president; E. H. Port, 2nd vice-president; J. G. Blake, secretary and treasurer. Regular practices will be commenced immediately and the club will work hard to hold the proud position it won last summer in its matches with the provincial clubs. The first game of the season will be played on Good Friday at 2:30 o'clock, between the first and second "nines."

A Fisherman Shot.

Bears are as well posted on the date of the oolachan run as are men, and they are also as fond of these delicate fish as the most fastidious epicures. Bears are always numerous along the river bank during the oolachan run, and as fishermen are surprisingly expert. On Saturday afternoon one of these animals, huge in size, was observed by an Indian to be busily engaged in fishing at a point only a quarter of a mile above the Brunette Saw Mills. The Siwash borrowed a rifle and a few minutes later bruin was a corpse. The Indians will keep a sharp lookout for bears until the sweevy run is over.

Haywood, Richards & Mackintosh.

Mr. S. T. MacIntosh, for some time past in the employ of the C. P. R. telegraph company, will leave in about two weeks to enter into partnership with Messrs. Haywood & Richard, real estate dealers of Westminster. Mr. Haywood is also a member of the real estate firm of Haywood & Black, of Vancouver, while Mr. Richard's time is almost entirely taken up by his business in this city, so that the management of the Westminster office will rest mainly with friend MacIntosh. His business qualities are such that there cannot be a doubt but that he will make it go. The best wishes of many friends go with Mr. MacIntosh to his new field of labor; all who know him joining in wishing him success.—Colonist.

May Day Celebration.

At a meeting of the Hyacks, held at their hall on Saturday evening, the following committees were appointed to carry out the necessary arrangements for the May day festivities:—Collecting: Harry Read and W. W. Dickinson. Ball and music, Thomas Ovens, Harry Read, W. H. Jones, F. Stirsky, N. Nelson, George Scoullar, Geo. Hume and W. W. Dickinson. Decorations: Messrs. Johnston, Stirsky, Edmonds, Oliver, Vianen, Hogan, Webb and Ackerman. Games and sports: W. E. Dickinson, S. H. Webb, Geo. Scoullar, John Henley and D. McGregor. We are requested to state that members of the fire company who wish to secure uniforms can have the same by leaving their measure with Mr. M. A. McRae at any time during this week.

The Railway Magnates.

A party of railway magnates, consisting of of Senator Canfield, Chas. King, Col. Percy Dickinson, Henry Hewitt, Jr., W. A. Lombard, E. J. B. Lombard, T. H. Bacon and S. S. King, arrived in the city yesterday on matters connected with the Southern Railway. They were taken in hand by Mayor Hendry, B. Douglas and other prominent citizens who chartered a tug and took the party down to Ladners to give them a view of the country. Mr. W. H. Ladner, M. P. P., was in waiting at the Landing and took half a dozen of the visitors over to Boundary Bay, a trip which surprised and delighted them.

This morning Mr. Canfield was kept busy signing cheques for the pay of the carpenters who were brought over from the sound some weeks ago. Messrs. Canfield, King, Dickinson and Bacon left by the 1 o'clock train en route for the Sound. The Messrs. Lombard, Mr. Hewitt and Mr. S. S. King went up to Langley Prairie this afternoon to look at that portion of the country and will return this evening and make an excursion in another direction to-morrow.

Before leaving Senator Canfield made arrangements whereby all outstanding claims against the company will be paid off during this week.

PERSONAL.

F. C. Gamble, of Victoria, is in the city.

L. Guichon, of Ladners, is staying at the Colonial.

Miss Phillips returned to-day from a visit with friends at Ladners.

T. E. Ladner came up from the Delta this morning on the str. Princess Louise.

THE LADIES DELIGHTED.

The pleasant effect and the perfect safety with which ladies may use the liquid fruit laxative, Syrup of Figs, under all conditions make it their favorite remedy. It is pleasing to the eye and to the taste, gentle, yet effectual in acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels.

The str. Princess Louise arrived from Victoria this morning with 89 tons of freight and the following passengers:—Mr. and Mrs. Hooseburgh, Mr. J. Hooseburgh, Mrs. Sherman, Miss Phillips, Miss Byron, J. Byron, W. C. McKenzie, H. J. Brody, P. P. Gendereau, C. Nelson, F. C. Gamble, H. Nicholson, N. Chase, A. Sawyer, Garvin, Rev. Mr. Porter, J. Lee, Lemidb, J. Furness, W. Gibson, E. White, S. Elliott, Deans, D. B. Grant, Alexander, Beatty.

Wasted Effort.—Charitable vigor (about to leave the hospital)—I never saw such a cold-hearted person as that patient near the window. I read one of Heber Newton's sermons to him fully ten minutes, and he didn't show the least emotion. Attendant—I'm sure he didn't mean to hurt your feelings, mum; he's deaf as a post.—Puck.

THE CHURCHES.

What Was Spoken at Some of the City Sanctuaries Yesterday.

HOLY TRINITY CHURCH.

The sermon at Holy Trinity church last night was preached by the Rev. Philip Woods who took for his text the 15th verse of the 15th chapter of St. Mark:—"And so Pilate, willing to content the people, released Barrabas unto them, and delivered Jesus, when he had scourged him, to be crucified." "Last Sunday we spoke of Herod and now we go on to speak of Pilate under whom Christ was crucified. Of all accused persons brought before Pilate Christ was the least guilty. The name of Pilate is very familiar to us, so let us find what manner of man was he in whose hands were placed the life and fate of Jesus Christ. History gives us enough details of the character of this man, and suffice it is to know that Pilate hated the Jews and the Jews hated Pilate. Pilate passed a portion of his time in Jerusalem and it was during one of his stays there that Christ was brought before him. Is it not a wonderful fulfilment that Christ should be delivered up to be crucified by the Roman soldiers? Pilate knew it was their fierce passion that led them on and he asked what charges were found against Jesus. This surprised and disappointed the people and they declared if He were not a malefactor they would not have brought Him. Pilate could find no fault with Jesus and said so, but yet he was forced to to deliver Him up to be crucified. This was Pilate's first attempt to release Jesus. He tried another by sending Him to Herod, but Herod acquitted Him, and Pilate had to do something. He ordered Christ to be scourged and then let go. This, however, would not satisfy the chief priests, who clamored for the blood of the innocent Jesus. He was indeed the despised and rejected of men. Pilate again asked what they wanted and the mad cry went up "crucify Him, crucify Him," and Christ was finally given over to be crucified. Let us then take warning from the history of Pontius Pilate. He had many opportunities but made little use of them. He had asked God what was true, but did not wait for an answer. And this is often the case with us, we ask but do not wait for an answer. We pass over what the bible tells us, and have our own vain opinions on all subjects. Let us ask the question and wait for an answer; and when the answer comes let us profit by it. Pilate failed for want of moral courage, and he was fond of popularity. During this passion week are we going to fail in our duties from the lack of moral courage? Are we going to give up pleasure and indulgences? Whether you are going to keep Good Friday or let it pass unnoticed, remember on that day Jesus Christ died for you. Which then are you going to choose, pleasure or Jesus Christ? May the passion be the means of bringing many souls to God.

METHODIST CHURCH.

At the close of the ordinary service there was an intermission of ten minutes at the expiration of which the church was well filled with "men only" to listen to Rev. Mr. White's discourse on "Moral Purity." After asking for a show of hands as to whether he should preach a sermon on the subject, or give a plain talk, which was decided in favor of the latter, Mr. White announced as his text, 1st Corinthans, 6 chap. 16—20 verses, and spoke as follows: Solomon warned the people against the effect of the sin upon their bodies, but Paul, taking a higher plane, points to the effect upon the soul. After reading from Isaiah 1 chap. 18 verse—"Though your sins be as scarlet they shall be white as snow; though they be red like crimson they shall be as wool,"—Mr. White continued: The gospel I shall present to you to-night is a gospel of hope for the guilty, yet without condolence on account of the sin committed. All sins are bad, but the sin I want to speak of to-night seems to be darker, harder, than the rest, and, like the crimson stain, is hard to get rid of, to escape from, and very few, escape that have gone very far on this downward road to hell. In the last two or three months I have been talking about and warning against the dark sins that mar the happiness and prosperity of our city; it is because I love this city, and those most annoyed about my talk against the liquor traffic are nevertheless convinced, and some have confessed that it is a bad business; and men whom I have spoken to about these dens of vice say, that it is a bad business and we would be better without it, yet think it better not to speak about it. Disease sometimes becomes so bad, however, that you cannot hide it, it breaks out in cancers in the neck and face. The cancer symbolizes what I want to speak about to-night. The sin has become so glaring that everybody can see it I didn't know six months ago where these places were, and I went to a constable for my information and he told me more than I shall tell you to-night; he told me where they were conducted, and some of those who frequent them. I shall not tell you all this to-night, but it may be necessary yet, in stamping out this evil, for stamped out it must be. I have taken upon myself to fight this evil until it is exterminated, and I do not intend to stop short of the accomplishment this end. It is not the inmates of these houses I would speak against to-night many of whom I believe have been more sinned against than sinning, but the people who support them. And who are the people that support these houses? In trying to find this out, I find it was not what we usually look upon as the low and vile; nor is it, as a rule, the the working man, for he can't afford to keep up these places. No, the support comes from those whom we would otherwise regard as respectable members of society—some married men—some lads. And I say that the married man that frequents these places is a perjured scoundrel! Didn't he vow to love honor, and cherish his wife as long as she lived? and when a man breaks that vow isn't he a perjuror, and worse? I have thought, if it wasn't just for breaking up families, I would post up a list of these frequenters, who risk bringing disease to their wives and perpetuating it thus to the future generations. Now, as to the single men, their curse does not seem quite so black, if it is possible to make any difference, and yet, I say to you, young men, that it is a sin from which there is no escape. How would you like to see one of your own families, a sister or a friend, inveigled into these places, or betrayed, so that the next step would be to enter one? I venture to say there are not many in this house tonight who would not hasten for a revolver or rifle, and bring speedy retribution upon the betrayer; and there are few juries that would convict you, either, for the provocation is a hard one to withstand. Then, do you not think that these inmates are sisters of somebody, some of them mothers, and very few of them but what have times of regret and remorse for the lives they are living. Not only married men and young men, but lads, are frequenting these places. Not long ago a lad working in one of the stores in the city was suspected of taking money from the till. His employer marked some money, and, to his horror, found that this young lad had been robbing the till to spend the proceeds in these places. After descanting further on the evil and its effects the preacher touched on the remedy: Yet, how are we to get rid of the evil? First, by keeping yourselves pure, and forbidding anyone to speak disrespectfully of woman in your presence. Then educate the lads as to the consequences of this sin. If a boy would never hear of the sin, I would say don't tell him; but he will hear, and you should warn him of the consequences. Then, I want it to be understood that I consider the men who frequent these haunts of vice as being on the same plane as the women who are inmates, and there is a time coming when it will be generally understood in this way. Those who frequent such places should be debarred from decent society until they forsake their sin and determine, by God's help, to live a better life, when, the speaker said, he would be glad to take them by the hand and lead them to Christ. The false idea that this sin was necessary was, he said, the greatest lie that Satan had ever coined. The reverend gentleman concluded his address with a pressing invitation to those guilty of sin to forsake it, and they would find in Jesus a Saviour that would save them though their sin was of the deepest dye.

A collection was taken to aid the W.C.T.U. in their work of reclaiming fallen women, which was pretty well responded to.

Surrey Council.

Council met pursuant to adjournment. A number of communications were received from various settlements, requesting appropriations on certain roads; these were referred to the councillors for the respective wards, to await their report. The clerk was instructed to acknowledge the communication from Mayor Oppenheimer of Vancouver, re Toronto exhibition. Reports were received and approved from the reeve and Councillors McCallum and Armstrong. The assessment, revenue, and salary by-laws were reconsidered and finally passed. Mr. G. W. Cann applied to the council for a deed for the lands he purchased at the delinquent tax sale, March 10th, 1888. The reeve and clerk were instructed to execute the deed. The clerk was instructed to prepare a memorial addressed to the inspector of fisheries, praying the government to introduce carp and shad fry into the Fraser, Serpentine, Nicomekl, and Campbell river. Councillor Brown was authorized to have certain repairs executed on the Semiahmoo road, between Elgin and St. Leonard's. Coun. Armstrong was instructed to have repairs executed on the Wade ward roads, cost not to exceed $21; also to invite tenders for the construction of a bridge over the Nicomekl river, on the line of Kensington Prairie and Huntley road. The clerk was instructed to have certain printing done, and to obtain legal advice on several questions. Council adjourned to meet as a court of revision on Tuesday, April 30th, 1889, at 10 o'clock a.m.
