Property taxes up by $83

MURRAYVILLE - The average homeowner in Aldergrove and Langley will have to dig deeper into his or her pocket this year.

Taxes will be going up by an expected $83 for a house with an $80,000 property assessment.

Cost increases, municipal growth, and resident requests for services are blamed for the increase. The township's annual budget, approved by council this week, contains a 6.9 percent increase in tax levies over 1987.

Nevertheless, according to treasurer Steve Wilcock, "Langley taxes are expected to compare favorably with those of other lower mainland municipalities". Wilcock says taxes over the past six years have increased at a rate lower than that of inflation.

Enhancement seen

MURRAYVILLE - Plans are under way for public improvements to the Aldergrove and Brookswood commercial areas.

Included in Langley township's 1988 budget are funds "for the enhancement of the Aldergrove and Brookswood commercial areas, an improved civic core in Murrayville, as well as new parks and playing fields."

Also in the budget are plans for the construction of a new RCMP building here at Murrayville.

FOR BUS TAX EXEMPTION

Beales to petition Johnston

By RUDY LANGMANN

MURRAYVILLE - They have not given up yet.

This week, Mayor John Beales and municipal administrator Jim Godfrey will be taking the ferry to Victoria to have a chat with municipal affairs minister Rita Johnston.

It's about the tax exempt status councilors sought for Aldergrove in regards to the three-cent-a-litre gasoline levy by the B.C. Transit commission.

When councilors entered into an agreement with the commission earlier this spring, they believed Aldergrove would be exempt from the tax. Later, the commission said 'no', and raised the tax from 2½ cents to three.

Johnston is council's last hope for a reversal in this policy. She is the provincial minister in charge of transit.

Councilors were bitter last week when they learned that there would be no special status for the part of the township east of 244 Street. Several aldermen said they felt they had been duped by the commissioners and that it would have been more honest if they had been told that all of Langley would have to pay to help finance Skytrain deficits.

Meanwhile, another 'gas war' has spread eastward from Surrey and this week reached Aldergrove. Gas prices at service stations yesterday were 39.9 cents a litre. Nobody knows how long this 'war' will last. Earlier this spring gas was pumped for several weeks at 39.9 cents or even cheaper before the price went back up to 49.9.

Motorists should enjoy it while they can. With the new taxes, gas will soon be somewhere between 50 and 60 cents a litre.

At the same time, south of the border, the price is 28 cents Canadian a liter, or less.

Great turnout for annual Walk

The rain held off and made for a good turnout for the 1988 Langley Walk. Walking, jogging, cycling, or skateboarding over the 12.3 mile Long Route or the 4.5 mile Short Route, were 1,146 participants of all ages.

Registration commenced at 9:30 a.m. for the different categories of competition. At 11 a.m. Mayor Easingwood of Langley and Mayor Beales of the Township, officially started the Walk, with the traditional musket send-off by the 78th Fraser Highlanders.

Long Walkers had their tags marked at three locations along the route; the Short Walk had one checkpoint. The Brookswood Lions concession at Noel Booth Park had a steady flow of customers all day.

Three groups provided entertainment in the early afternoon. Bands from Mountain, Aldergrove and Langley secondary schools performed to an appreciative audience.

Cutting into House

OTTAWA - An Alberta MP who thinks the number of Commons seats should be cut by two-thirds says new senators should be elected in conjunction with provincial elections.

"It would be a very straightforward, inexpensive, economical way to put legitimacy to a Parliament of Canada which surely needs it," Calgary North MP Paul Gagnon said during debate of his private member's motion.

Under Gagnon's propsal, new senators would be required to seek re-election at every second provincial election. Existing senators would keep their seats until they retire, resign or die. But his motion died without a vote after an hour of debate.

Mother's Day founder was never a mother herself

The woman whose 1907 grassroots movement to create Mother's Day, which culminated in its official proclamation in 1914 was never herself a mother, according to research done by Hallmark Cards, Canada's best-known greeting card company.

Miss Anna Jarvis, a Philadelphian schoolteacher, was inspired by her devotion to her own mother to found a day dedicated to honoring mothers.

Two years after her own mother's death; Miss Jarvis began spreading her idea. She wrote hundreds of letters seeking endorsement of the idea to congressinal representatives, state governors, influential business people and to clergy.

In 1910, Anna Jarvis' tireless efforts were rewarded. The governors of the American states of West Virginia, Oklahoma and Washington proclaimed Mother's Day an official occasion. Within a year, it was being observed throughout the United States.

Miss Jarvis achieved her final victory in 1914, when U.S. president Woodrow Wilson issued a proclamation directing the second Sunday in May as a day for public expression of love and reverence for mothers. The custom of observing Mother's Day quickly spread to Canada, where generations have celebrated it in the spirit Anna Jarvis first intended.

At Miss Jarvis' suggestion, the carnation - her own mother's favorite - became the official flower of Mother's Day. According to Hallmark, cards and carnations symbolize Mother's Day now in such diverse countries as Australia, Mexico and Japan.

C-72 won't change

OTTAWA - The number of bilingual jobs in the federal public service will not increase significantly under proposed changes to the Official Languages Act, Doug Lewis, minister of state for the Treasury Board said last week.

About 28 percent of 221,000 federal government jobs are now bilingual and that should not change, Lewis told a Commons committee studying Bill C-72.

The bill would allow public servants to go to court if they aren't allowed to work in the official language of their choice in certain parts of the country. It also makes it easier for people to go to court if they haven't been served by federal institutions in the language of their choice.

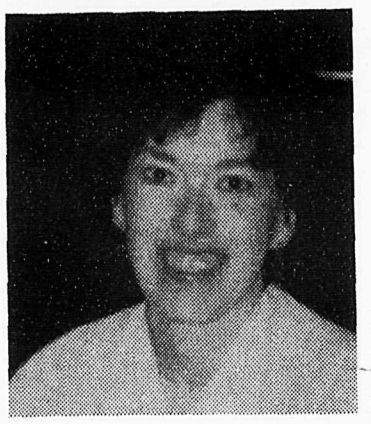
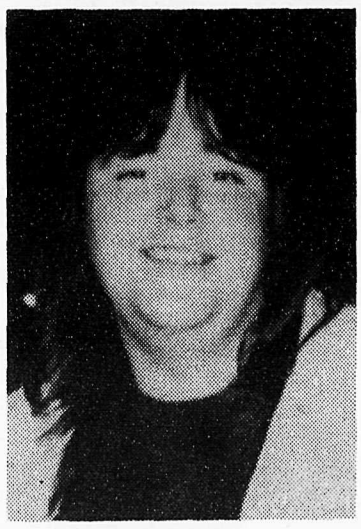
Town Talk

By MICHELE BRUNORO

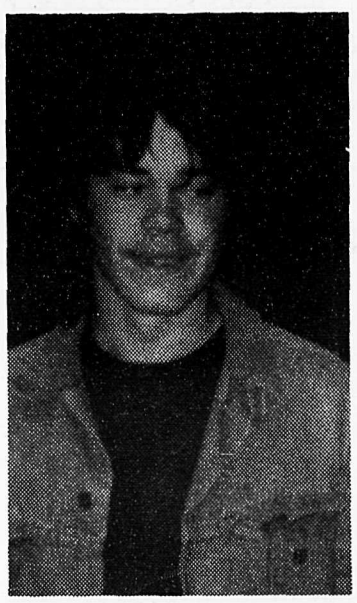
This week's question: How do you feel about the sale of the former Expo property to overseas investors? Is it a good thing or should the government have given preference to B.C. builders, regardless of whether their bid was higher or lower?



Sandy: I believe it was best to sell the property to the highest bidder. In the long run this will be good for B.C. because the overseas buyers can put more money into developing the land than local investors, thus creating more B.C. jobs.



Charmeyn: The land should've been sold to local investors. It's Canadian property and should be Canadian owned. The land should have been developed into low-income housing.



Curtis: The land should've been sold to Canadians regardless of whether or not Canadians were the highest bidders.

Jeannie: The former Expo property is B.C. land and should've been sold to B.C. bidders.

Lee: It shouldn't matter whether the buyer of the former Expo property is a local buyer or one from overseas. The highest bidder should get the property.

Ester: I think that the former Expo proerty should have been sold to the highest B.C. bidder.

SAME ALL OVER CANADA

Hungry governments bite drivers again

Canadians' love for their cars is becoming an increasingly taxing affair as revenue-hungry governments take a bigger bite at the gas pump.

"Both levels of government are placing gasoline in the same situation as the sin taxes (for cigarettes and liquor)," says Pat Curran, spokesman for the Canadian Automobile Association's Toronto office.

Curran says the increases are regressive, meaning poorer people pay a larger percentage of their income in the fuel tax than do the wealthy -- assuming they drive the same distance.

The association argues a car is not a luxury but a necessity. It points to surveys that show 50 percent of all Canadians have no alternative but to drive to work and that about 75 percent of Canadians use their cars to get to their jobs.

On Wednesday, Ontario raised the tax on unleaded gasoline by a cent a litre -- to 9.3 cents -- and on leaded gas by four cents a litre -- to 12.3 cents.

The province said the additional money would be used to upgrade roads while the added tax on leaded gas was meant to discourage use of the fuel, which spews toxic lead into the air.

But the provincial increase comes on top of two recent federal hikes -- 1.1 cents on April 1 and one cent on Jan. 1. The federal Conservatives have raised the excise tax five cents a litre -- or 22.7 cents a gallon -- since taking office in September 1984.

British Columbia also increased gasoline taxes in its recent budget, while Manitoba intended to do so until the NDP government fell and an election was called.

The four Atlantic provinces have resisted the urge to boost gas taxes this budget round.

Provincial taxes now range from a low of five cents per litre in Alberta to 14.4 in urban regions of Quebec, which provides a break for rural drivers.

Add the federal taxes of 9.9 cents, and the Canadian motorist pumps an average of 19.7 cents a litre directly into government coffers every time he fills up.

Motorists in B.C.'s lower mainland pay an aditional three cents a litre or 13.6 cents a gallon to B.C. Transit's bus and Skytrain system.

All told, that's far more than the oil companies and retailers make in profits, says Duncan Matheson, industry analyst with Merrill Lynch Canada.

And motorists are getting fed up.

Last fall, the 2.6-million member automobile association conducted a national survey of 1,591 people on a range of car-related issues, said Rick Godding, the automobile association's director of travel services.

Sixty-four percent said they thought their provincial government grabbed "more than appropriate" revenues from gasoline prices, while 67 percent felt the federal government took too much.

In contrast, only 45 percent thought the producers received more than their fair share and only nine percent thought retailers got too much.

Two years ago, the association sponsored a letter-writing campaign and a petition with 100,000 names -- all apparently ignored by the federal government.

Godding said the association will likely revise its protest campaign in light of the latest increases.

"It's ironic -- Joe Clark's government fell (in December 1979) because of an 18-cent a gallon excise tax," he said. "Since (Prime Minister Brian) Mulroney came to office, they've raised it more than 20 cents a gallon."

Godding and Debra Berk of the Canadian Tourism Industry Association worry that the higher gasoline prices will discourage vacationers from using Canadian routes when they can use American highways.

"The cost of a vacation in Canada is getting very pricey," Berk said.

50,000 claim to be refugees

OTTAWA - Some bogus refugees may be deported before the government decides what to do with a backlog of nearly 50,000 people seeking refugee status in Canada, immigration Minister Benoit Bouchard said Monday.

"I mean we could have, today or tomorrow, deportations," he said outside the Commons. "It depends exactly when they will be scheduled."

Your spouse could be dangerous to your health

The right choice of spouse could be the key to avoiding stress-related illness, according to UBC psychologist Dr. Wolfgang Linden and doctoral student James Frankish.

"Communication in a good marriage plays a key role in reducing stress," Frankish says.

The researchers are looking for 120 volunteer couples to take part in a unique study that measures stress levels in couples during a communication exercise. The study will show partners how their bodies react to each other during discussions and how accurately they're able to assess their body's response.

"We'll measure each partner's reaction to a standard low-level stress situation (solving mental arithmetic questions) to see how they respond individually to stress," explains Frankish. "Then we'll measure their blood pressure and heart rate while they're discussing some aspect of their everyday life that may cause friction, such as household chores, inlaws or finances."

Linden and Frankish will study the interaction between partners during the taped discussion, and couples will be asked to complete questionnaires regarding their emotional reactions to everyday situations. The study will examine if there is a link between a couple's physical responses, their level of marital satisfaction and their susceptibility to common illness.

"Most people have no idea how interaction with their spouse affects them," says Frankish. "They may say that they're relaxed during a discussion, but their physiological responses are skyrocketing. In other cases, a person will say they're experiencing a lot of stress, but their physical responses are quite low.

"It's important for them to be aware of how they react to each other, because marital dissatisfaction is a source of chronic, low-level stress."

In addition to information about how they communicate, couples will receive tips on how to deal with stress through relaxation techniques.

"If couples need further help, we'll also identify resources available to them," says Linden.

If you're interested in participating in the study, contact Jim Frankish at 734-2979. Participants should be between 30 and 60 years old, have been involved in a relationship for at least three years, and should not be taking any blood pressure or heart medication.

How to live longer lives

WASHINGTON - Elderly people who live alone are more likely to maintain their independence and live longer if they visit friends and attend church or other group events, a U.S. government study indicates.

And people over 70 who live alone are more likely to survive over a two-year period than those who live with someone, the National Centre for Health Statistics found in the study.

Both living alone and engaging in various activities are, statistically, indications of better health.

The less active elderly people are, the more likely they are to die or become institutionalized, the study found.

There is a noticeable difference in people who have contact with friends and neighbors, who go to church or attend sports events, reported Dr. Mary Grace Kovar, author of the study.

Her findings in Aging in the Eighties, People Living Alone -- Two Years Later are based on interviews in 1984 and 1986 with people who were 70 or older.

Of those living alone who reported regular meetings with friends in 1984, 92.5 percent were still alive two years later and 89.3 perent were still living on their own.

Of those with no such contact, 86.6 percent survived two years, 81.5 percent still living alone.

For regular church-goers, 94.9 percent survived two years and 91.9 percent were still alone. Of those who didn't attend religious observances, 86.2 percent survived and 81.9 percent lived on their own.

Regular contact with family did not seem a significant factor in longer life and more independence. Perhaps those reporting extra family contacts needed the help because they were not well, Kovar speculated.

Of elderly people living alone in 1984, 89.8 percent were still alive two years later, she found.

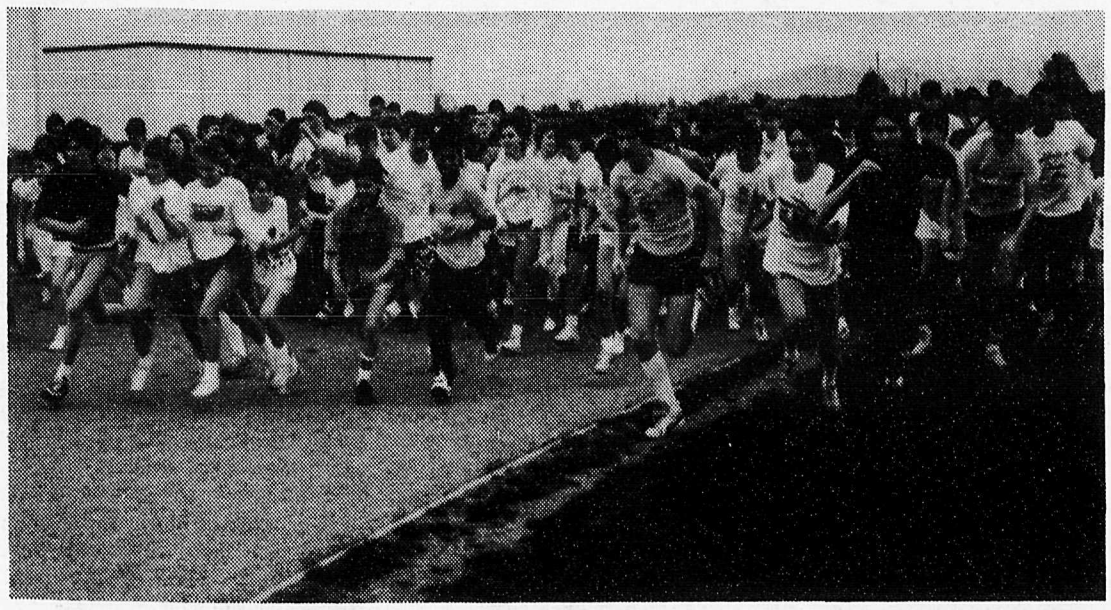
By comparison, 89.0 percent of those living with a spouse survived two years and 84.3 percent of those living with someone other than a spouse were still alive.

Kovar noted that a major factor in continued independence is probably that those living alone were more healthy at the start of the study.

"It is very difficult ... to disentangle" all the factors affecting these people, she said.

Overall, she found that nursing homes are a last resort.

There is evidence of a progression, she reported: "People live alone, then with other people if others are available, then they may become nursing-home residents."



Aldergrove students set out for the Milk Run's 2.5 kilometer course last Wednesday.

A lot of garbage can provide you with cash

The Aldergrove and Langley Chambers of Commerce had their Trash Bash '88 kick off on Saturday, April 30th, but the participation from the community was not as great as expected.

The Trash Bash, designed to clean up the community will run again during the week of May 5 to 8, during the provincial Pitch-In campaign.

Businesses are asked to cleanup the front of their stores, sidewalks, etc.... and to collect garbage in parking areas around the stores, especially on the Fraser Highway.

You could win $100 collecting garbage!

Get together a team of people to clean up the street and go to it with garbage bags. The winning sports group, business, organization or indiviual to collect the most garbage will win $100, donated by the Aldergrove Towing and Aggressive Towing companies. There is also a runner-up prize of $75.

The competition ends this Sunday, May 8, so anyone interested in participating should contact Kelly at 856-5669 immediately.

Milk run aids handicapped

Aldergrove Secondary School students joined approximately 300 other schools in participating in the 10th annual Milk Run last Wednesday, April 27th.

The event is organized by the B.C. High School Sports Association and is sponsored by Dairyland to raise money for the handicapped children. This year the theme was "Loons for the Lions" as the recipient of the donations was to be the Lions Society for crippled children. High school students donate money, run a distance of up to 3 km and then receive milk donated by Dairyland.

The entire student population and staff were involved in this event organized by Aldergrove Secondary School's physical education staff. Students and some teachers ran the 2.5 km course through the subdivision immediately east of the school.

The overall winner of the run was a grade 11 student, Kevin Snowdon, who's winning time was 7:26. The first girl to cross the finish line was a grade 12 student, Marguerite Reuss with a time of 8:30. The first place finishers by grade were: Grade 8 girls - Amber Mutter 9:43, boys - Dylan Hagerman 8:26; Grade 9 girls - Carla Price 9:13, boys - Eric Ristau 7:36; Grade 10 girls - Laura Peterson 9:12, boys - tie between Aaron Learmonth and Peter Okazaki 8:00; Grade 11 girls - Gail Cooper 11:36, boys - Kevin Snowdon 7:26; Grade 12 girls - Marguerite Reuss 8:30, boys - Mike Lemon 7:38.

Total monies donated at this time were $262. Students were collecting pledges for their run and have until Friday, April 29th to turn all monies in.

Local students do well

In February 84 Aldergrove students participated along with 60,000 Canadian High School students in four methematics competitions. These contests are designed to challenge the country's best students. Once again, Aldergrove students performed very well.

Selena Charlton, Gurmit Aujla and Stephen Spiegelhalter were Aldergrove's top three Grade 11 students out of the seven from the school that wrote the Fermat Test for that grade. Thirty-four Grade 10 students wrote the Cayley Contest, and of these, seven perofrmed well enough to be placed on the Honour Roll for their zone which covers the Upper Fraser Valley. Alfred Penner, Jeremy Fredrickson, Maurice Lefebvre, Rudy Schroeder, Tammy Hummel, Chatelle Bergunder and Matthew Stockbrocks were the outstanding seven. Alfred, Jeremy, Maurice, Rudy and Tammy also received a certificate of Distinction for achieving a score that placed them in the top twenty-five percent of contestants from across the country. Aldergrove Secondary placed sixth overall in the Fraser Valley. The Grade 9 Pascal Contest had forty-three keen Aldergrove participants. Lana Shipley, Joti Samra, Eric DeBoer, Tia Wautier.

Shannon Clark, Shannon Purcell and Lisa DeGuchi were put on the zone Honour Roll. All seven of these students were in the top twenty-five percent of Grade 9 Canadian Math Contestants. Lana Shipley had the added prestige of placing first in the Upper Fraser Valley. Aldergrove Secondary placed 4th overall in the zone for this competition.

The American High School Mathematics Exam is sponsored by several mathematics associations and originates in the United States. This exam is used to identify students with exceptional mathematical ability. It is intended mainly for students at the Grade 12 level and exceptional students in earlier grades. Alfred Penner, a Grade 10 student at Aldergrove Secondary, did exceptionally well on this intentionally difficult exam. Alfred just missed being on the Honour Roll, but was the proud recipient of a National Council of Mathematics Teachers' pin.

Cars, booze and school

The end is in sight. The end of another school year, that is. A milestone approaches for students finishing grade 12, and with that comes a time of celebration and a time of tough choices.

With this year's Spring CounterAttack campaign leading us into the graduation period, getting effective drinking driving messages to young people is important. Equally important, is the need for the community to supply safe grad programs, which include transportation alternatives for graduating students.

Even though a significant number of students do not drink at graduation activities, as passengers they may be placed in situations that force them to ride with drinking drivers. Although it may be viewed by some in our society that to provide safe rides home for young people at grad time is to condone underage drinking, it is a practical method of reducing the number of young people killed in this province due to drinking and driving.

Another preventive measure is through education and awareness. With this in mind, students are joining in the anti-drinking driving movement in a unique way this year ... on the high school stage.

"Arthur Makes a Difference" is a project developed by the Insurance Corporation of B.C. as part of its secondary school youth leadership program. It is a funny, upbeat stage play designed for any B.C. secondary school group to perform in front of their peers.

Written by traffic safety community programs manager Kathy Friederici, the play was first performed in front of 600 student delegates at the CounterAttack youth leadership conference in November 1987. Requests for the script have since been pouring in.

The major theme behind the show is dealing with peer pressure. Falling naturally under this heading is drinking and driving, one of the risky choices put before the title character as he faces the initiation rituals that go with social life in high school.

"Arthur Makes a Difference" is a lighthearted morality play. It is partly an improvisational piece that makes room for local place names and popular expressions. With a simple stage setting and no need for scenery changes, the play highlights the energy and personality of the student actors ... and their message.

"We've got to make them undersand," says Arthur. "It's not cool to drink and drive. Life's too much fun to toss it all away just because someone calls you a dweeb."

A dweeb? For a translation check with a high school in your area. Chances are they will be performing "Arthur Makes a Difference" this spring.

If your high school is interested in obtainng a copy of the script contact: ICBC Traffic Safety Education Department, 240 - 151 West Esplanade, North Vancouver, B.C. V7M 3H9.

ASK ANNABELLE

Dear Annabelle,

Three months ago my husband spent two weeks in the hospital with a broken hip. My neighbour's husband used to drive me to the hospital every evening (I don't drive). After a few days we started going for a drink before we drove home. One thing led to another and one night we stayed out and went to a motel. We broke off when my husband came home.

The other day I got a phone call from my friend saying his wife knew about our brief affair. He wanted to confess all to her and suggested I tell my husband. Annabelle, I can't tell him - or I don't know how. I still love my husband but if I tell him, suppose he leaves me? I have been so dumb and now I am in real trouble.

Signed: Unfaithful.

Dear Unfaithful,

What you both did was very foolish. If your ex-lover wants to confess to his wife, he should. You can't stop him and it would be better for his conscience and his marriage if he does. You too, have to face the consequences of what you have done. Tell your husband and then try to forget it ever happened and get on with your lives. If your husband is convinced the affair is dead and gone and he is a reasonable man, he will forgive you. I hope you use better judgement in the future.

Dear Readers,

I have been thinking lately about dog food. I don't mean the bags of dry crunchy stuff that is easy to look at and handle. I'm talking here about the stufff in cans. It is the most outrageously awful stuff I have ever seen. We have tried it all, from cheap to expensive. Some looks like pate, but certainly doesn't smell like it. Some has bits of the most gruesome entrails clearly visible when it is opened. Some even have ground carrots and other vegetables., but you can't tell what they are. We tried some once that gave our cock-a-poo warts on her nose. An expensive trip to the vet only told us not to buy that brand again. We mix part of a large can, (one can lasts three days) with dry crunchies for our two dogs. After the second night we notice that they push the canned stuff to one side of their dish and just eat the crunchies. I'm all for starting an organization for better food for pets. There are so many organizations out there now that another wouldn't hurt. What do you think?

Dear Readers,

So this Sunday is Mother's Day. Personally I have never favored these days set aside to be nice to someone. I tried to see into the future when our children were young and taught them that as far as I was concerned every day was mother's day. I think it paid off because I get very few presents in May. Several years ago my husband's dear mother and father died and last year my mom highland flinged her way to Heaven. That leaves us both orphans now. No more cards to buy or flowers to deliver. How sad. Going through my mother-in-law's papers a while ago we discovered this peom, author unknown, yellow with age, clipped from an old newspaper that advertised bales of cotton material and new corsets for sale, cheap.

Tell Her Now.

"If with pleasure you are viewing any work a woman's doing,
If you like her or you love her,
tell her now,
Don't withhold your approbation till the parson makes oration,
And she lies with snowy lilies
o'er her brow;
For no matter how you shout it,
she won't really care about it;
She won't know how many tear-
drops you have shed;
If you think some praise is due
her,
Now's the time to slip it to her,
For she cannot read her tomb-
stone when she's dead.
More than fame and more than money
Is the comment kind and sunny
And the hearty, warm approval of a friend.
For it gives to life a savor, and it makes you stronger, braver,
And it gives you heart and spirit
to the end;
If she earns your praise - bestow
it;
If you love her - let her know it!
Let the words of true encouragement be said;
Do not wait till life is over and she's underneath the clover,
For she cannot read her tomb-
stone when she's dead."

So here's to all you mothers out there: Have a happy day. And to all the children, don't forget there are still 364 days left to practice.

Millions spent on training

Almost $27 million of the provincial budget has been allocated to provide employment and training opportunities for income assistance recipients.

The statement was made by Claude Richmond, Minister of Social Services and Housing, who also said that the ministry is entering its' last year of three year federal-provincial agreement intended to enhance employment possibilities.

Employment and training programs will be offered by specialist teams in 128 offices across the province this year.

Teams will be made up of staff with reduced caseloads to better assist recipients on an individual basis.

A new on-line computer system will help with job referrals and training opportunities.

"The number of employable people on income assistance has dropped by almost twenty percent over the past two years. This is due in part to the improving economy and also to the effectiveness of our employment initiatives, Richmond said.

"To continue this success will require an innovative and flexible approach and we plan this year to develop local employment projects responsive to regional economic factors."

We have everything

By ERNEST CLUETT

The draw at the Choral Concert on Monday, April 25 resulted in first prize to Evelyn Johnson, second prize to Selena Davies, third to Edie Roberts and fourth to Doreen Laird.

The Concert had a large and enthusiastic audience. Joan Danby was the featured soloist and received a standing ovation. The following day the Choral Group entertained at the Sharon United Church in Murrayville. Groups from rest homes were bussed in for the occasiion. Mrs. Mervyn was present and looking well.

Then there was the chap injured in an auto accident who hired a lawyer on the no win, no pay basis. They verbally agreed on a 20 percent fee if successful. However, the damage award came in at $50,000. of which the lawyer retained $39,000. The chap who had the injury was rather peeved and appealed to the Law Society.

Opposition MPs love to institute public inquiries as they get publicity and the taxpayer, as always, pays the cost.

The Stevens inquiry paid three lawyers $1.06-million dollars for 1,764 hours of work which by my figures is $600. per hour. The taxpayers had to pay that plus another $600,000 for Stevens lawyers, all to prove that Stevens had a case of conflict of interest. Even in Victoria politicians want public inquiries for every imagined sin, that the opposing political party has committed. Perhaps they have lots of legal friends who need the money, for at the cost of these inquiries the taxpayer, I am sure, would rather retain the money, than prove something immaterial.

In Aldergrove we are fortunate in having a first class lawyer who works for very reasonable fees as the pensioners can vouch for. So there is no excuse to patronize the very expensive city lawyers.

I agree with alderman John Scholtens in his fight to get Aldergrove out of the bus system. When the pensioners petitioned for a bus service, we had in mind that the Fort Langley jitney run would include Aldergrove, but none of us expected a fancy, costly two busses a day service. Two busses a day for $1.5 millions of dollars. Something is grossly absurd. Even Cascade bus company never charged us a three cent per litre tax on gas or a $1.60 surtax on hydro.

Visitors to the Saturday dance were Janet and George Gull, Juliette Farfearriary, Ethel and Dave Patterson and Phil Hughes and Alma Magron. Prize winners were Chris Lockhart, Jim Ranger, Phil Hughes and Bob Coutts. Spot dance went to Chris Lockhart and Tim Thomas, Ann and Fred Chisholm. Ann is still black and blue with bruises she suffered in her fall recently.

The May 7th dance is to be an Hawaiian dance. Everyone that can, is asked to wear some flowery outfit. The hall, as in years gone by, will be decorated by Mary Sanderson.

Doris says she wakes up in the morning with nothing to do all day, and goes to bed with it only half done.

Naturalists find beauty on day outing

By JUNE CLEGHORN

April 10 was a beautiful spring day, perfect for the Langley Field Naturalists' field trip to Blackie's Spit. More than 20 species of birds were sighted, the usual residents of the area, some of which are the Great Blue Heron, the Savannah Sparrow, the Yellowlegs, green-winged Teal, the Cormorant, the Loon, and, of course, sea-gulls and crows in abundance.

Mary Pastrick led the field trip to Rolley Lake on Saturday, April 16. It was a dull drizzly day so the group concentrated more on plants than birds, although Kinglets, Juncoes, Flickers, Stellars Jays and a varied thrush were seen. A plaintive call alerted the naturalists to the presence of loons and two were observed feeding on the lake.

A liesurely walk on the path around the lake takes one through different habitats. The sweet gale, a common plant in the swampy area, was in full bloom exhibiting a rather inconspicuous flower. Further on a patch of "Japanese Rhubarb" was pointed out by the leader. This plant was introduced to the area in the early days by the occupants of a lumber camp. If anyone knows how this plant was used, we would like to hear from you. The next challenge was to distinguish between the red and blue huckleberry, both of which grow beside the path. Other plants noted were sword ferns, salal, yellow violets, trillium, staghorn moss and shelf fungi. Many members of the group stopped at the nut farm in Fort Langley to observe the toothwort growing under the Hazel nut trees. It has a small blue flower but grows in such profusion that it makes quite a show when it is in bloom. This is a delightful time of year to get out in the woods to observe the wild spring flowers and the deciduous trees as they bloom or leaf out but remember to look and not touch.

4-H demonstrations in competitions

April 22 saw 10 groups of Langley area 4-H Junior members competing at No. 6 Firehall for the right to represent the district at Regional finals May 10, 1988.

"Balloon Sculpture" by the Otter Horse pair, Kara-Leigh and Emily Stone won the judges nod for first place, with Emily Stone and Heather Gillies also of Otter Horse coming in second with "Beating the Brown Bag Blues". Joe Berg and Josh Carlson from Otter Beef went "Skiing" to get an honourable mention. Angie Pool allowed Heather Easley and Kiersten Skaaning, all from Langley Dairy to dress her up as "Scary Hairy", the scarecrow. Otter Lamb's David Denten and Michael Whelton demonstrated how to "Build a Campfire" while fellow members Stephen Thorne and Wade Lancaster gave us some "Homework Skills". Brother and sister, Sally and Calvin Martin from Langley Beef made an "Origami" bird, while fellow members, Michel Bech and Erin Best showed how to "Use and Program a Computer". "Electrical Energy" was produced by Langley Lamb & Woolcraft members Lana Willoughby and Angie Carey. Melissa Dodd and Angela Thiessen from Otter Swine were as sweet as their "Chocolate Chip Cookies". Thank-you to the judges, Mrs. Marion Rosseau, Mr. Wilbert Millar and Mrs. Maureen Van Gool and to the Master of Ceremonies Miss Susan Becker. Junior Regional finals will be held at the Chilliwack Fairgrounds in the Evergreen Hall.

Langley Senior 4-H members met Friday, April 29, also at No. 6 Hall to demonstrate everything from the fine art of or Origami to cheep housing. The top demonstration was presented by Otter Horse members, Alesha Coburn and Jennifer Reeve, doing Origami. Brian and Gail Anderson from Otter Swine made a Fruit Salad for Granny to also win the right to go on to Regional finals. Michael and Bryan Thorne of Otter Lamb fame illustrated the proper method to use a telephone and phone book. Otter Beef members Shawn and Lynn Ingeberg, made good neighbours with their cedar fence demonstration.

Back in the kitchen were Langley Lamb & Woolcraft members. Stacey Apostoluk and Nicole Ouellette served up a vegetable salad complete with candles to dine by. Representing Otter Holstein were Cori and Suzanne Pazdzierski, making the ideal Mother's day gift - a floral arrangement. The team of Danny Pool and Erik Skaaning from Langley Dairy felt sorry for another mother and made some cheep houses for their feathered friends. Wanting their new nephew to get off to a prosperous start, Brian and Gail Anderson, from Langley Beef, made a paper mache piggy bank for the little guy to keep his money in. If either of the top two district finalists cannot continue on to region finals, the team of Sandi Vestering and Sherri Jensen from Otter Beef will continue on to the region with their demonstration on Dough Art after being given an honourable mention.

Our Master of Ceremonies was John Ouellette, and the judges for the evening were Mr. Ken Mallinson, past president of the B.C. Sheep Breeders Association and of L.M.S.B.A., Mr. Reno DeGianni, and Mr. Jeff Creasy, both past members of Otter Beef Club. Regional finals will be held on May 6 in Mission at the Leisure Center.

'Bicycle muggers' on the rise

LANGLEY - RCMP are warning women to carry purses and handbags under their arms, all people to secure unlocked sheds and for citizens to watch for drug trafficking in downtown Langley.

These suggestions are ways the RCMP hope the general public will consider and put into action to help stop crime in their community.

Women are warned of a group of youths on bicycles who approach unsuspecting females from behind, snatch their purses and make getaways on their bikes. This makes it hard for the victim to identify the robbers.

Thefts from unlocked garden sheds have increased recently. Stolen items include power tools, chainsaws, lawn mowers and similar items. Padlock your shed and perhaps place lighting in the area to reduce the chance of your house becoming the target for these unscrupulous characters.

Most thefts are simply "crimes of opportunity." Increased security will discourage most offenders.

Drug trafficking in Langley city continues to be a problem, and police request that any information you may have that would lead to the arrest of these individuals be passed on to the Langley detachment drug section.

Break and entry and thefts for April were reported at 26 in the city and 49 in the municipality. Other thefts were 41 and 72 respectively. Thefts from vehicles were 34 and 66, and thefts of vehicles were 19 and 15, respectively.

If you are interested in becoming a volunteer with the RCMP's Observe and Report program in Aldergrove and Langley, please contact Const. Chafe of the crime prevention unit, 534-4184.

Members of the patrol will use CB radios supplied by police, in their own vehicles, to report any suspicious happenings directly to RCMP officers.

Ambitious singer keeps trying

By KURT LANGMANN

LANGLEY - What price fame and fortune?

Bunni Wabash often wonders if show-biz is all it's cracked up to be. Still, a resolute conviction keeps the young woman going.

She was born on the prairies thirty-something years ago, blessed with a dynamic singing voice. While still in her teens she went on the road with a rock band, and worked her way up (including a stint with the Bobby Curtola show) and eventually ended up in this area, where she settled down to the married life. Domesticity, complete with two sons, keeps her busy, but she kept her fingers in the entertainment business.

Her voice keeps her in high demand amoung musicians who recognize true talent. Her specialty is the torchy ballad and country style of the late Patsy Cline, not unlike Alberta's high-spirited K.D. Lang. But while Lang keeps making progress in the tough business of music (her new album was recorded in Nashville with the help of Cline's producer, Owen Bradley, and it's a sensation), Bunni feels her best efforts have been stymied. Every time things were settling into the right place, something went wrong, very wrong.

In order to keep herself going and in groceries, she's diversified over the last two years into acting. It's mostly been extra work so far, in just about every locally filmed production, from the Jump Street TV series to the recent Richard Dreyfuss movie, Stakeout. She's working her way up, though, and is beginning to earn a few "lines" here and there, including a new commercial for International Coffees.

"I want to get a little more pull with producers, so I'm looking for a good agent," she said. "But compared to the music busines there's a lot less slime in the film industry."

She points out little favors, like Dreyfuss whispering a hint on how she should move so the cameras capture her face briefly in the final edit of Stakeout. It was no big deal, as she's just a police officer extra without any lines, but the kindness meant a lot for the struggling actress.

She contrasts this with the excuse she was given for not winning a recent singing competition. "They told me I have no stage presence, and my blouse didn't look ironed. That's a crock, just not true. Besides, it's supposed to be a talent contest, not a bimbo competition."

The musical director of her church choir keeps telling her she's far too talented to waste her time singing in local bars and dance halls, but she perseveres because it keeps her in touch with the common folk and their tastes.

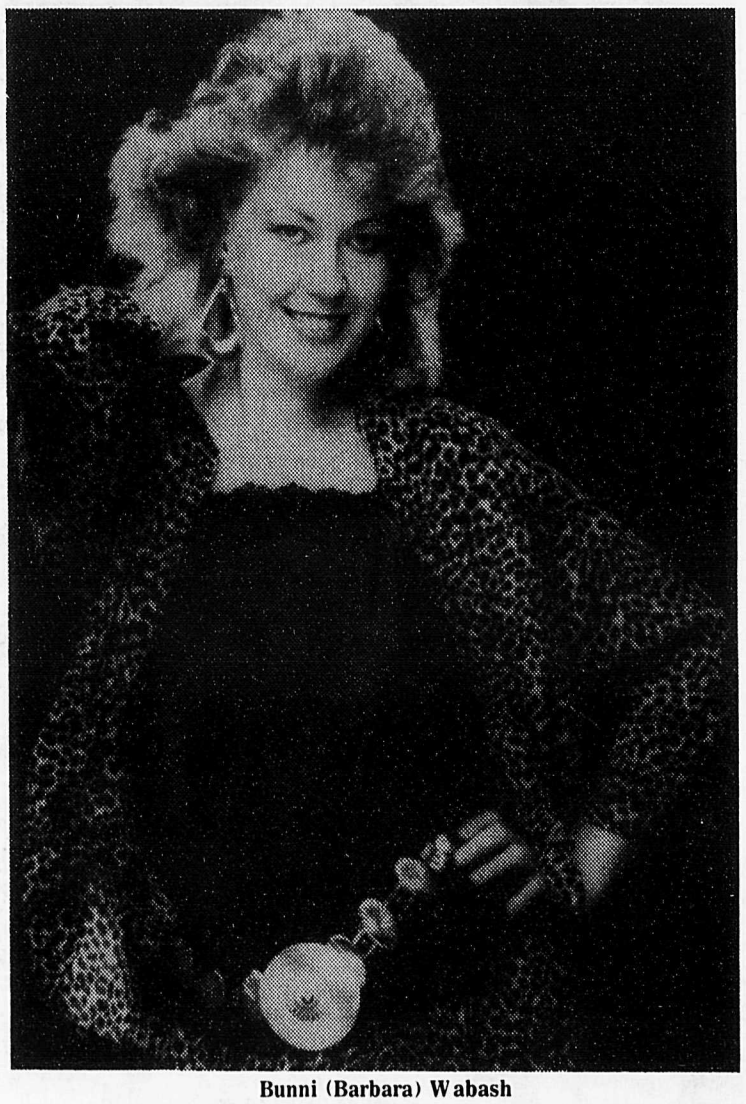
She is banking on the help of her new manager, Peter Williams, the piano player with the Charlie Wells Band. He put a showcase together last month at Bosman's in Vancouver, which resulted in complimentary reviews on CKWX and JR Country radio stations. He is also working on assembling a stage band for her, along with the financing to take it on the road.

She also developed a quality demo of an original song, called I Need Love Too, at Gilles Parenteau's recording studio. She's been 'shopping' the song, and last summer when she cornered Roy Clark at the Lynden fair he said he wanted to record the ballad himself.

"His agent called me again in January for permission to use it, but I haven't decided yet if this is the route I want to take. I'd also like to finish a bridge to insert in the song for contrast, before I take it any further," she said.

In the meantime, she makes the circuit, fronting various bands like Ricochet Rabbit, belting out standards like C'est La Vie, She's Got You, Blue Moon of Kentucky, etc. It keeps her in shape and in touch and it also adds a few more fans and friends. Fame is an elusive creature, and Bunni knows well that to achieve this success depends as much on luck as it does on talent.

"I consider myself very lucky in many ways," she observed. But she continues to hope that Lady Luck will one day smile on her singing career, too. "I love country music and I love to sing. People keep telling me I should go south, back to Nashville again. I'm considering it."



Bunni (Barbara) Wabash

. . . but everyone a star

LANGLEY - So you'd like to be a singing sensation - even for five minutes?

Kelly Armstrong is the man who can help you live the illusion.

The young drummer, part-time handyman and all-round nice guy runs the show every Sunday evening at Gabby's country music club. Their amateur night allows everyone from the bottom right up to the top talents to put their names on the list and their reputation on the line.

Kelly has the right formula, and it has paid off for everyone involved. Gabby's can usually count on a full house on what is normally considered a slow night for the cabaret business. The local amateurs get a chance to perform with a solid, professional band backing them up in front of a sympathetic audience of friends and fellow amateurs.

Don't be shy about it, if you think you have a bit of the right stuff. So long as you're trying and are not abusive in any way, no one will ever boo you off the stage. And if you do hit a sour note or two, people in the audience will just attribute it to stage nerves and will applaud just as enthusiastically as they do for the others who perform flawlessly.

It's great entertainment, too. The range of talent is astonishing.

"We've had up to 37 acts in one night," said Kelly. "Tonight (May 1), we had 21. People just have to come up and get their name on the list and when they're called up they can pick the two songs they want to do and the key."

There is no admission fee to the club on Sundays, and there is no charge for performing, either. It beats the heck out of lip-sync shows or singing in the shower.

Gabby's puts up the cash for the band and sound equipment. Their only revenue comes from drink sales - and there is a selection of non-alcoholic drinks for those so inclined.

Kelly Armstrong

Last Sunday's back-up band consisted of the boys from the Rocky Swanson recording band, who could play everything from ballads to blues to rock to straight country. The amateur talent was just as wide ranging.

There was Steve, a senior citizen, who sang a couple old-time melodies. Two pretty little ladies tried to do justice to the Judds. Bing's version of All My Ex's Live in Texas would have got a tip of the hat from George Strait. Two of the Pierce Bros. had everyone rockin' to classic Ritchie Valens (La Bamba and Let's Go). Lyle did a great Dwight Yoakum impersonation. Doug closed the night with a slick rendition of Sultans of Swing, complete with extended Mark Knopfler-style guitar solos. There were some real diamonds on stage that night - and every Sunday night for that matter.

Check it out for yourself. Have a good look, listen for a while, steel your nerves and then calmly saunter over to your master of ceremonies, Kelly, and ask for a turn. But beware, because once you've tried it you'll be hooked. But, on the other hand, amateur night junkies have lots of friends and allies, and isn't that what it's all about?

No one wanted to leave

The recent spring arts ball delighted all 140 guests who attended the gala evening at Newlands.

When the midnight hour approached along with the closing waltz, nobody wanted to leave, so they stayed and continued their merriment for another hour, dancing to music by Peter Murray and his band of renown.

Auctioneer Keith Beadle gave an outstanding performance with his melodious medly of numbers for the mini-auction held during the intermission period.

Fashions by Ella's were modelled and each received generous bids from the audience. Beautiful table centers by KaLing Martin were also quickly purchased by many of the guests.

Dave Stratkaukas provided background music during cocktail hour and the entertainment was provided in the form of a dragon dance by the Langley Secondary Chinese Dragon Dancers.

Mayor John Beales graciously offered to be a personal pilot in his plane and host a luncheon on Saltspring Island as a fundraiser. The lucky couple, Mr. and Mrs. Alan Davidson of White Rock will soon confirm plans for the outing with Beales.

Door prizes, dance spot prizes, fortune cookie prizes and raffle prizes were also taken by many grateful winners.

Long John Baldry 'hooked' on Peter Pan

VANCOUVER - Legendary blues and rock performer Long John Baldry will star as Captain Hook in the SDA Productions presentation of Peter Pan running from May 12th to 29th at the Queen Elizabeth Theatre.

Baldry, who now resides in Vancouver, is a seminal figure in the history of British rock and roll and has had a major influence on the careers of many British rock stars including Rod Stewart, Elton John and Mick Jagger.

Baldry has recorded over 25 albums and over 35 singles in a career that has spanned 28 years. He has been awarded several Gold Records both in Canada, the UK and Australia.

Long John Baldry has spent his life on stage as a "headliner" on tour around the world. He has also spent time on stage as an actor in the early 70's when he was cast in a production of Big Rock Candy Mountain by Alan Lomax and directed by the legendary Joan Littlewood. He described his experience in this production as a "pure, revitalizing, tonic".

In Peter Pan, Baldry will play the dual role of Mr. Darling-Captain Hook. It is expected that after he dons his pirate hat and boots he will stand a formidable 7 ft. 2 inches. This should provide an interesting contrast to 5 ft. tall Peter Pan star Cathy Rigby.

Peter Pan opens at the Queen Elizabeth Theatre on Friday, May 13th and runs nightly at 8 p.m. except Mondays til May 29th. There will be matinees Saturdays and Sundays at 2 p.m. Tickets are $17.50-$27.50 (plus agency fee). Discounts are available for students and senior citizens. Tickets are available at all VTC outlets or by calling 280-4444. Group rates are available at a substantial discount to groups of 25 or more. CAll 731-5837 for more information.

CHECK LISTINGS FOR EXACT TIME

Rabu to perform in Langley

Joelle Rabu is returning to thrill local audiences with an all-new concert which promises to be a transport of delight and to touch hearts with passion and excitement.

The concert will be held at Brookswood Secondary and Rabu is to be accompanied by her trio featuring award-winning J. Douglas Dodd, Charlie Knowles and Tom Neville.

Rabu returned from an enormously successful tour of eastern Canada. The group has toured such diverse places as Poland, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria in eastern Europe, as well as China, England and the United States.

Audiences everywhere have responded to her unique style.

Rabu's third album 'Passport' has just been released and the LP highlights her gift for languages with songs in English, French, and Esperanto.

The story of Rabu reads like a rags-to-riches fairytale. She made her debut in 1983 as Edith Piaf in "Piaf, Her songs, Her loves". Rabu's fantastic voice and electrifying stage presence catapulted her to unprecedented award-winning critical acclaim in a matter of months.

Tickets are $10 at the door. Children under 12 and seniors are $8. For reservations and group discounts call Kevin at 530-2141.

CHECK LISTINGS FOR EXACT TIME

DUTCH DAYS RETURN TO LYNDEN

LYNDEN - How would you like to visit Holland? You don't even need a passport, let alone have to sit through a 12-hour flight.

Lynden's fourth annual Holland Days festival is set for Saturday, May 7.

The traditional "street scrubbing ceremony" at 11 a.m. will signal the beginning of the festival. Reenacting an old Dutch custom, costumed Lyndenites armed with yokes, brooms and buckets will scrub down the street of the business district, with the burgermeester (mayor) of Lynden inspecting their work afterwards.

No world records will be set in the wooden shoe races, but, boy are they fun to watch! Beginning at 11:45 a.m., the races feature four categories; "Flying Dutchmen" -- men and women ages 12 and over, "Flying kids" - children ages 11 and under, and the VIP race.

You can also watch Lynden mayor Egbert Maas square off against Steve Sieberson, consul for the Netherlands, or Senator Ann Anderson versus representative Pete Kremen or Dennis Braddock. The VIP race starts at noon.

During noon hour it's a fitting time to sample the tastes, sights and activities indigenous to the dutch heritage carried on in the Lynden community. Watch the Klompen Dancers perform, witness a dutch organ recital at First Christian Reformed Church, or tour Lynden in a horse-drawn buggy and take in the beauty of the dutch architecture and well-manicured yards.

Or you can head to Lynden's pride and joy, the Pioneer Museum, and see wooden shoes being carved, a dutch antique wooden shoe display or taste cookies made from an antique dutch cookie press. For arts and crafts enthusiasts, there is an all-day "Dutch" arts and crafts fair at Fairway Center. For artists, there is a Dutch art show.

The highlight of the day, at 2 p.m., is the "Parade of provinces", featuring a provincial parade of Dutch fashions and creative entries, and children adorned in honor of Queen Beatrix's 50th birthday.

Beginning at 6 p.m. is the "Holland Days benefit auction." Twelve beautiful dolls decorated in authentic Dutch costumes by local community members highlight this fundraising event. Plus many more Dutch specialty items, found only in Lynden, will be auctioned off.

There is no charge for parking or admission.

Pro-life to speak

A former abortion clinic owner will tell her story at a public meeting in the Langley Civic Center on May 25.

Carol Everett of Dallas, Texas, will speak on the abortion industry and the facts and fiction surrounding it. She speaks from experience after having an abortion in 1973 and owning two abortion clinics between 1977 and 1983.

"I've seen babies aborted," she told a quiet audience in the U.S. recently. "I was in the room with the doctor."

Her story of conversion from pro abortion to pro life is spellbinding. She will be in Langley as part of a lower mainland tour.

For further information on the meeting or other matters, please contact the Langley Pro Life Society at 534-4828.

Giving your diet the cold shoulder

Q: I do well on my diet until I get a cold. Then I seem to crave everything. What can I do?

A: "Feed a cold—Starve a fever." An adage we have all grown up with, and sometimes a dieter's license to splurge. After all, who wants to diet when what you really need is sympathy? But there is no excuse for not sticking with your previously made commitment. Just keep these simple hints in mind:

- When you're suffering from cold or flu symptoms, drinking plenty of fluids is important. Water is one of the best choices because it is both low in calories and additives. Warm lemonade can also be very soothing.
- What's better for a cold than hot chicken soup? Many canned soups are high in sodium, so plan in advance this season and make your own. Bone chicken breasts and slowly cook them in a crock pot with water. Add celery, onions, mushrooms and herbs. Simmer. Freeze in individual servings for fast heating when you're not feeling well.

'Caine Mutiny'

By Paul Elie

Like Alfred Hitchcock and Jimmy Stewart, or Woody Allen and Tony Roberts, Robert Altman and Michael Murphy have an enviable director-actor relationship. Murphy plays Capt. Blakely in Altman's new version of "The Caine Mutiny Court-Martial," airing Sunday, May 8 on CBS.

"The advantage to working again and again with one director is that he'll cast you in parts that are different, let you stretch," Murphy says. "This role, for instance, is totally different from anything I've ever played."

"The Caine Mutiny Court-Martial," adapted by Herman Wouk from his novel, opened on Broadway in January 1954. By the end of the year, though, the movie version, starring Humphrey Bo-

Cherrington new chairman of Fort Friends

John Cherrington has been elected as the chairman of the Fort Langley Cooperating Association, taking over the position held by Grant Rawstron for two years. In addition, eleven other directors were elected at the Annual General Meeting held Wednesday, April 27 at Fort Langley National Historic Park: John Gilray, Bays Blackhall, Cassie Barton, Grant Rawstron, Inager Eakin, Jim Purdon, Doug Makaroff, Robert Rogers, Jerry Bowen, Wes Magnuson, and Roger Roberts.

The evening featured noted historian, Jamie Morton, who spoke on the "Social History of Fort Langley National Historic Park" and Chief Trader, James Murray Yale and his years with the Hudson's Bay Company.

Superintendent of the Fort, Wayne Crossen, extended his congratulations on a good year's work and the "rewarding relationship" that the Fort and Cooperating Association have developed.

Retiring Chairman, Grant Rawstrong was presented with a wooden bucket which has a brass plaque attached that expressed the "Friends of the Fort" appreciatin for his dedication and hard work.

Linnea Battel was introduced as the Executive Director and in turn introduced the staff who will be situated in two offices in Fort Langley: one at Fort Camping grounds in the "Barn" and one at No. 92 Gabriel Road. For further information please call 888-3943.

The mother of my children

By MONTE VIGH

The Mother of my children is the precious guardian of our home.
Her Queen-sized heart is filled with love that shows itself in many ways;
but both our little children know that love is spelled T-I-M-E, and for this over-flowing love she's worth a thousand Mother's days.

It seems its going out of style to stay home with a little child, but greater is the work she does than any other big career.
She sacrifices her desires to meet the needs of little ones and of the women known as Mom we know she is the one most dear.

Through deeply sympathetic eyes
she radiates the softest strength, and in her arms our children know they always have a place to come.
Her sympathizing tears and hugs
do wonders for their tender hearts;
My children have the sweetest friend,
their fav'rite name for her is "Mom".

My special, Milady

By TINA TOFFAN

There comes to pass my fair maiden
To impress her beau was her sole wish
Whilst dining together a romantic eve' -
Sweet green peas tumbled from her dish.
No doubt feeling somewhat embarrassed
She struggled to carve her blue meat
Lo! On the horns of a dilemma ...
She proceeded to eat a mouth-watering morsel
When it took a nose dive off her dish
Evidently that wasn't entirely sufficient
A ghastly slurp echoed from her china glass
Removing it from her crimson lips -
From her mouth hung a false eyelash!
Speechless he commenced t'wards her
She feign madness then started to chuckle;
Spoke a foreign word in her native tongue;
Rising to apologize - struck him with her knuckle.
Certainly a simple misunderstanding
But when he escorted her to the front door
Bending slightly to receive her three-quarter coat -
Her trousled wig fell upon the marble floor.
Only an apparition would appear so daffy;
A creative enthusiast scarcely e'er glum;
And a trifle hard to confess sometimes,
Still, a new era fashion, a maiden into - my Mom.
I duly crown her: "My Special - Milady"
Quite humorous her character unique and kind;
Deemed to possess an enlarged gold heart -
The best treasure any young lady could find.
Love Forever, Tina

Dearest teacher

By ANN SAUNDERS

Mother taught eight children honesty.

One day Mother and Ellen walked three miles to town. Mother made necessary purchases at Woolworth's while Ellen browsed. Everything was excitingly brilliant to Ellen, especially the perfumes - an extravagance we could not afford in 1934. Overwhelmed, Ellen reached, touched, then impulsively hid the bottle in her pocket. Eventually Mother finished shopping and they walked home.

Ellen hurried to her bedroom and opened the perfume. Lily-of-the-Valley fragrance permeated the air (as well as her conscience) so, quickly hiding it, she sauntered into the kitchen.

"What is that lovely fragrance?" asked Mother.

Now the stealing had to be covered with lying but Mother saw through it and said: "Bring the perfume."

Seeing the evidence and arriving at the truth Mother said: "Get ready, Ellen, we're taking it back to Woolworth's."

Those were the longest three miles in Ellen's memory!

Facing the manager and admitting her wrong-doing was difficult, especially when he suggested she keep the perfume. Mother wouldn't hear of that as 'it could encourage more dishonesty.'

How many mothers would emulate that twelve-mile walk to instil honesty in her child today?

God bless Mothers, who, even after death, remain enshrined in our hearts as the sweetest and dearest teachers we ever knew!

JACKMAN MANOR COOK AMONG TOP CHEFS

Mesman's next stop is top of the world

Loretta Mesman sits at her office desk - her back to the prize.

It's a plaque showing her acceptance to the British Columbia Chef's Association.

"That's the elite of the elite," she says and laughs.

It is. There are 200 current members and this April, she became only the third female to be accepted into the association since it's beginning in 1958.

Lorretta Mesman smiles as she pulls a pie out of the oven at the Jackman Manor, a home for seniors.

The next step is the world.

"Now what I want to do is start going into world competitions," Mesman says.

She would like to enter the next competition in Vancouver with her husband John and prepare a Canadian dish.

"What we want to do is something very Canadian - maybe try to go into something beaver or buffalo - something that's not the norm," she explains.

She started cooking when she was nine years old with her mother and father who had a concession stand on Jericho Beach in Vancouver. Sometimes they would feed over 10,000 people a day.

She went into dental nursing but dropped that when she met her husband, a chef, and suddenly became very interested in cooking.

They started running a place called Henny's Banquet Hall and Mesman upgraded her cooking skills in vocational school courses during the four years they ran Henny's.

Then the Mesmans opened the first Copper Kettle restaurant, in Coquitlam. They designed and decorated the facility themselves.

It was a hit.

One year later they expanded their business venture and soon had a banquet hall, dining room and a cabaret upstairs.

But it kept them from their family, so they sold it.

From there, Mesman went to Langley Memorial Hospital where she became the head cook, while taking supervising courses and eventually received her Canadian Food Services Supervisor certification.

She began entering competitions then and after eight and a half years at the hospital, moved on to Jackman Manor, where she works now.

After getting her chef's journeyman papers, she entered a competition in the United States and was accepted by the B.C. Chef's Association soon after.

The reason she is only the third female to become a member in the organization is because cooking is still a man's field, she says and adds that women are beginning to gain recognition.

"Women are starting to come into it more, but it really is a man's field."

"There are a lot of good women cooks out there, but they never really follow it upward. It's still very much a man's profession."

She's been at the Jackman Manor for three and a half years and has been extremely pleased with the job, because she likes cooking and she likes the people.

"I really enjoy working here," Mesman says. "I enjoy the residents very much."

For the future, she plans to stay behind the desk and in the kitchen at the Manor and aim for the world in upcoming competitions.

How-do-you-do tour

People are sledom aware of all the tourist attractions their own community has to offer, but the Abbotsford-Clearbrook Chamber of Commerce is endeavoring to increase the public's knowledge by hosting the second annual "Howdoyoudo Tour in Your Own Town."

Those attending are asked to meet at the chamber office on McCallum Road at 10:15 a.m., "register and receive a cordial 'Howdoyoudo' from our travel counsellors" before departing at 10:30 a.m. for a tour of the special sites and attractions.

The tour will be followed by lunch at Heritage Valley and the bus is scheduled to return to the chamber office by 2 p.m.

For more information or reservations, call the chamber office at 859-9651.

Students of North Otter elementary school prepared manuscripts for the recent visit of author, Meguida Zola.

Nothing but the best

NORTH OTTER - Thursday, April 21 was an 'author's celebration day' at North Otter elementary school. Combining the goals of developing writing skills and encouraging reading with the National Book Festival week, students met with author, Meguida Zola, participated in a school write-in and later, shared their polished pieces of writing with fellow students and parents.

It was an exciting day. Regular classes were suspended, celebration dress was required, snacks were provided and parents were invited. The celebration was the result of extensive preparation and a recognition of the students' ongoing active participation in the writing process. Every student was involved. As students presented their writing in cross-grade family groups an appreciation of the school community was enhanced.

In the past, North Otter's annual theme for the special week has been "Turn on the pictures in your mind" and focused on a writing contest. This year the phrase "and share" was added plus the concept of total involvement and co-operative sharing. Zola's book Only the Best suggested a focus for expectations. The phrase the students chanted as Zola's book was read "only the best and nothing but the best" became a reality of the day.

A grant from Canada Council covered the cost of the author's visit.

Naturalists plan trips

gart, had become the definitive story of the U.S.S. Caine and its commander, Capt. Queeg, who was accused of cracking under pressure. The new version stars Brad Davis as Queeg and features Peter Gallagher ("The Murder of Mary Phagan"), Jeff Daniels ("The Purple Rose of Cairo") and stand-up satirist Eric Bogosian, as well as Murphy.

"I play the president of the court – the chief justice," Murphy says. "He was a 'mustang officer' – an enlisted man who rose through the ranks. So his sympathies are with the sailors, not with some law-school-educated college boy who joined the Navy as a lieutenant."

Tanner, by contrast, is the son of a brigadier general and earned a doctorate in history before entering politics. "Tanner '88," created by Altman and "Doonesbury" artist Garry Trudeau, will air until Election Day, following Tanner on a mock presidential campaign, complete with junkets, fund-raisers and encounters with the real candidates. Tanner seeks a "kitchen cabinet" and leads an anti-apartheid rally in the episode airing May 8 and 10.

Compared to "Tanner," isn't "The Caine Mutiny" stodgy and mundane?

"You think of it as an old saw, this play," Murphy admits. "But with Altman, good things started to happen. I've done a lot of TV garbage, but he's captured something."

MARQUEE

COLORS (R – Orion) Starring Robert Duvall and Sean Penn. ★★★

By J.T. YURKO

More than anything else, "Colors" is about hopelessness. The inner-city youths who join the gangs of Los Angeles – or any major city – are looking for a way out and find there isn't any. The gang is a substitute for a broken home, a chance for peer acceptance – or simply a fact of life.

The film stars Robert Duvall and Sean Penn as Dets. Hodges and McGavin, who patrol a neighborhood the street gangs have claimed as their home turf. "Colors" is no "West Side Story," though. There are no rapturous romances, no star-crossed lovers, only the bleak graffiti-filled atmosphere of ever-present violence. The film opens with a "drive-by" in which one member of a gang is murdered by members of another gang for no apparent reason. The title refers to the colors the gangs wear as emblems.

As in countless previous cop films, a seasoned veteran is teamed with a hotheaded young recruit. McGavin wants to shake up the gang world – but Hodges has seen second- and third-generation gang members, so he knows they're here to stay. When thugs throw rocks at the pair's police car, McGavin takes out a shotgun, while Hodges says, "Hey, this is my office." When they corner a drug dealer, the older cop lets him go, so the dealer will owe him one.

There are no heroes here. Hodges is just a cop, no blue knight, and McGavin is always just this side of violent – one gets the impression that he feels the gang he runs with happens to be called the L.A.P.D.

And there are no villains, either. The gang members are neither sadistic fiends nor innocent victims – they are casualties, of the violence, of the drugs, of themselves.

Dennis Hopper's direction is noteworthy as it neither glorifies gang life nor exploits it for quick cinematic thrills. He has made a violent, gritty movie, with perhaps more curses than any film since "Scarface," but Hopper's style is decidedly unsensational.

Bird weds Drummond

ALDERGROVE - Sharon United Church in Langley was the setting for a late afternoon wedding on Saturday, April 19.

Carol-Ann Bird, daughter of Pat Bird and the late John Bird of Aldergrove, and Russell Drummond, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Drummond of Strathmore, Alberta, exchanged wedding vows in front of Rev. Peter Packman.

The bride looked radiant in an antique white wedding gown with a finger-tip veil. She carried a bouquet of orchids and peach roses. Her attendants, sister Heather Mason of Prince George, Gail Rhodes of White Rock and Sharon Stadnyk of Langley, wore pink cocktail length dresses.

The groom's best man was Don Friesen of Strathmore, and groomsmen Dave McFarlene of Cheadle, Alberta and brother Neil Drummond of Strathmore. Ring bearer was Scott Mason of Prince George.

Enid Wright, the bride's great aunt from Peachland, sang a solo. Master of ceremonies at the reception in the Langley Legion was Rick Whitaker of Birch Bay, Washington. The toast to the bride was proposed by her uncle Frank Dolman of Abbotsford. Numerous out-of-town guest were also present.

Bride and groom will be taking up residence in Strathmore.

Pesticide tax

Premier Bill Vander Zalm and Agriculture and Fisheries Minister John Savage today jointly announced that farmers will be exempt from paying sales tax on the purchase of pesticides used for farm production.

In the provincial budget it was indicated that sales tax would be payable on the purchase of pesticides.

Agriculture and Fisheries Minister John Savage said the sales tax would place B.C. farmers at a competitive disadvantage.

"No other province has a sales tax on pesticides for farm use, and pesticide costs in the U.S. are already lower than in B.C.," Savage said. "Since pesticide purchases are a substantial part of operating costs for farmers, granting the exemption will ensure that bona fide B.C. farmers will continue to compete on an equivalent basis with other Canadian and U.S. producers."

The reinstatement of the exemption takes effect immediately.

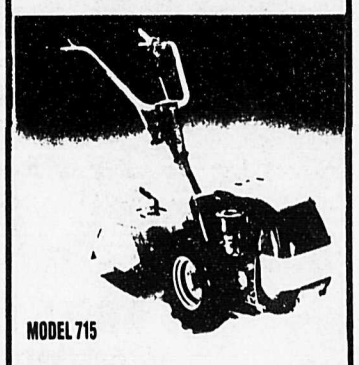
The Most Versatile Tiller has NO belts or chains



The BCS tiller is very unusual. Partly because it's so versatile. And partly because it doesn't have belts or chains.

Its versatility lets the BCS do much more than an ordinary tiller. For example, it can mow your lawn, or clear your walks and driveways of snow.

The BCS performs efficiently and with very little maintenance. It has no belts, no chains, no friction discs. Its transmission is an all-gear drive. Which is far more mechanically sophisticated than other tillers.

Come try a BCS tiller. It's the most versatile tiller around, and doesn't have belts or chains.

Men's fastball season opened Sunday with three games

Tom Young and Don Miller had two runs batted in each to lead the Aldergrove Classics to a 7-2 victory over the B & B Tavern team from Sumas, Washington.

The Aldergrove Men's Fast Pitch League has amalgamated with American teams and opening day for the season was held on Sunday, May 1.

The Classics went full throttle in the third inning as six players scored in a row.

B & B Tavern responded in the fourth with Mike Thompson scoring from third, batted in by Bob Cyr.

Both teams were silent until the sixth, when Aldergrove's Lance Skoyen made it home off a double by Ken Skoyen.

In the seventh, it was Bob Cyr scoring for the Sumas team, but it was to be their last.

Final score was 7-2.

Other games were played by the Langley Merchants played to a scoreless tie with Tim Horton's. There were only six hits in the whole game. Lorne Peters of the Merchants pitched an outstanding game with eight strike outs.

Walter's Carpets didn't roll out any red carpets for the fernridge Arms team. In fact, they walked all over them, playing to a 8-1 victory.

Walter's player Wes Rosseau batted in two runners and scored twice himself, knocking the opening day's only homerun over the fence, while teammate Wayne Redekop went two for two and scored twice. Terry Costain of Walter's also had to RBI's and made the rounds once to score himself.

The only Fernridge run came from Roger Werk in the fourth.

Bake sale was a great success for Association

By FLORA GREENOUGH

The Bake, plant, and white Elephant sale held on April 30 at the Aldergrove Mall was a great success and the members of the Aldergrove Agricultural Association would like to thank all who made it a fun time while helping us to make our 1988 Fall Fair a bit better.

Many thanks to Hilda; the manager of the Mall for making it possible to hold our sale in such a central location. Thanks go out to Harvest Moon Farms for a good deal on our plants. Two welcome and new faces at our tables all day Saturday were Melanie Nickolson and Pat Rinke, who with our members baked up a storm and then stayed to help us all day. Welcome aboard girls, we need new members like yourselves. We would like to see some new gentlemen join us to help out our members now who, while getting older and better are tiring out. Come on fellas; aren't there any men with some ideas and time to help put on one of B.C. oldest Fall Fairs?

Mr. Bill Franklin was disappointed in the turnout of the Junior Garden Club members. Only five showed up to turn in their cards and pick up their seeds. One of our long time Jr. gardeners who has done very well over the years is being encouraged by all members of our group; Mark Friesen has informed me that on completion of his grade 12 he will be taking the Agricultural Training at Fraser Valley College. This young boy can be seen almost any time of the day toiling away in the family yard, whether it be the garden or the animals. Here is a successful farmer of tomorrow.

For the Junior Gardeners who didn't show up on Sat., they are asked to phone Mr. Bill Franklin to make arrangements for their seeds.

The Fall Fair Book is now in its last stages of "Growing Pain", in the office of the Aldergrove Star and Kurt Langmann, tells me that the end of May will have the books in your hands. Please start watching for this in our paper. The cover this year will be our new crest of which we are very proud of.

Kids need our blood, too

Most people don't think of children when they think of heart surgery.

But at the Children's Hospital in Vancouver, an average of three are operated on every week. This requires a lot of blood.

Over five units of blood are needed for every operation, because children's heart surgery is different than what is done on adults, says Carol Stanley, head technologist for the blood bank at the hospital.

"Most adult surgery is bypass surgery required because of blocked vessels. The problem is totally different with children. Most children who need surgery are born with a heart problem," says Dr. Bonnie Massing, associate haemopathologist.

According to Massing, the majority of child heart surgery is what non-medical people call "a hole in the heart."

This requirement of blood for such surgery is an example of how a miracle of modern medicine has placed greater demands of the Red Cross Volunteer Blood Donor program.

Today, more blood is being used than ever before to save lives every day and the need for blood donors continues to escalate.

If you would like to help in the fight to save lives, there will be a blood donor clinic at the Sevenoaks Alliance Church gym, at 2575 Gladwin Road in Abbotsford on May 5th, from 2 to 8 p.m. and another at the Sevenoaks Shopping Center in front of Eatons on Friday, June 3rd, also from 2 to 8 p.m.

"There's No Place Like Home"

Announcing
B.C. Home Based Business

Richard C. Purdy's dream started at home. A simple business concept, based on his family's recipes. He created chocolates and confections in his kitchen. Mr. Purdy sold them from a small covered cart he pushed up and down Vancouver's main thoroughfare, Granville Street.

Today, the Purdy's Chocolate Company has grown to 40 stores across B.C., Alberta and Washington State. A simple home based business concept that developed into a major industry. In fact, 50 percent of all businesses in North America began at home.

The Ministry of Economic Development has developed a new program to assist and encourage the growth of the home based business throughout British Columbia.

If you have an existing home based business and want some assistance, or if you're just considering starting up, the B.C. Home Based Business program is here to help you.

If you are interested in starting a Home Based Business or would like to better develop your existing business please write:
B.C. Enterprise Centre,
750 Pacific Blvd. South,
Vancouver, B.C. V6B 5E7.
Telephone in Vancouver 660-3900, elsewhere in B.C. call 1-800-972-2255.

He's training dogs . . . people

Helmut Peters not only trains dogs, but now he's opening a school to teach people how to train dogs.

The Mount Lehman resident has his own school for dogs called the Academy of Dog Training and within the next month or so, will be training people, because of the many requests he has had for such a school in the area.

"I've had numerous people interested," says Peters, who owns somewhere between 20 and 30 dogs himself at any given time.

The class will be limited to six people to assure top quality training for the students.

"I want to put out good students because it will reflect well on me," says Peters.

The courses will be four weeks long with 120 hours of instruction.

There are two different courses; Basic Obedience and Advanced and Specialist Dog Training.

Don't be deceived by the Basic Obedience course, it isn't the one where you teach dogs to sit and heel.

"No, no! It's much more than that," Peters clarifies.

The course goes very in-depth to cover subjects such as the history of the dog, breeds, dog psychology, canine to canine socialization, health assessment, fleas, worms and parasites and others.

The Basic course is required to go on to the advanced course in which students study offensive aggression, defensive aggression, equipment, canine self-confidence, tracking, drug detection, police dogs, family dogs and that's only half the list.

A subject called Customer Role Playing allows the trainee to go into the field and look at other ways of training dogs, because Peters feels there are so many methods.

He says that every dog is different and they each have distinct personalities so a method that works for one dog may not work on another. You can learn the basics of dog training, he says, but until you've worked with many dogs, you aren't really a trainer yet, due to lack of experience.

"I'm hoping to pass my knowledge on to the students, so they learn what they have to know - the basics."

"But I always say that until you've worked with at least 100 dogs, you're not a dog trainer," Peters adds.

He began dog training 15 years ago with the Frontiersman of the Commonwealth, a paramilitary organization started by the Mounties.

He went into his own training business five years ago and is a certified government instructor for the Basic and Advanced courses.

At his dog academy, he is involved in all aspects of dog training and also sells dogs bred at his kennels.

Peters is involved with security dogs and rents some of them out to companies for guarding their compounds overnight.

Those are the kind that rip your leg off the minute you enter the property. Peters has to drop them off and pick them up every night because no one else can handle them. Mean!

If you would be interested in dog training, contact Helmut Peters at 852-3666 or write to him at 2333 Mt. Lehman Rd.

'Seed capital' project

VICTORIA - A $16-million regional 'seed capital program' to diversify and expand local economies comes into effect May 1, said finance minister Mel Couvelier.

The government will guarantee up to $2-million of loans in each of the eight economic development regions of the B.C. Projects which would not otherwise be able to receive financing will have individual loans made by financial institutions guaranteed up to a maximum of $50,000 each. Guarantees will not exceed 75 percent of total loan amount.

Small business development boards in each region will assess proposals on their own merits.

Scientist answers local farm prayers

VANCOUVER - Canadian pig farmers can thank a UBC bio-resource engineering professor for solving one of their biggest headaches -- what to do with the waste 2,000 pigs produce.

At least 100 times more concentrated than domestic sewage, pig waste is difficult to dispose of because available treatment processes don't remove all the pollutants.

An average swine operation may produce 12,000 litres of waste a day. Some farmers release the waste on their land, but most don't have enough land to handle it.

Victor Lo has developed an agricultural waste treatment process that's easy to install, relatively cheap, and more efficient and reliable than any other treatment process in use.

"As far as we know, we are the first in North America to use this kind of reactor treatment for agricultural waste," Lo said.

Advanced electronics are the key to the fine control necessary in this treatment which removes 98 percent of all environmental pollutants, leaving the end product almost pure water. Currently being tested on a swine operation in Aldergrove and a dairy farm in Langley, it could be available on a limited commercial basis at the end of this year.

The first stage of the treatment is anaerobic--without oxygen--which removes about half the pollutants. If the end product were released into the environment it would cause lakes and streams to decay from lack of oxygen.

The second stage is a sequencing batch reactor that forces air into the waste under carefully regulated temperatures. This aerobic treatment polishes off the process removing all but two percent of the pollutants.

The entire integrated cycle takes four to eight days, a far cry from other treatments which may take up to 20 days--and don't generate a pollution-free product.

"Because it's extremely efficient, a small reactor can handle a large amount of waste," Lo explaned. That makes it adaptable to any size swine operation--or poultry or dairy operation, he said.

HEU says reorganization of duties is disorderly

Statements made by the Hospital Employees Union regarding the elimination of orderlies from Langley Memorial Hospital have been called inaccurate by Richard Holinaty, the Executive Director at LMH.

In a recent news release, Jack Gerow of the HEU said that the cutting of all orderlies from the LMH staff would result in a health and safety risk at the hospital but Holinaty stated that while Gerow claims to be concerned about patient safety, his incorrect statements do nothing for public confidence in the local health care facility.

Gerow called the latest staff reduction at Langley "a blow to families in the area who depend on the hospital" and said the layoffs are part of a debilitating shift in the province's health care structure.

Holinaty responded, saying that not one orderly will be losing a job and that the orderlies are part of a planned reorganization of the nursing services to accommodate the expanded hospital operations in June.

In fact, adds Holinaty, an additional 86 positions will be created to handle up to 40 new acute care beds with added patient and hospital services.

He also said the hospital remains committed to providing optimum quality care and these nursing adjustments will enhance the services to patients.

Minimum wages get a boost

VICTORIA - Provincial minimum wages get a 12 percent boost this summer.

Effective July 1, adult minimum wages go up 50 cents to $4.50, while workers under age 18 get a 35 cent raise to $4. Minimum rates for domestic and farm workers also go up 12 percent, based on a piece-work formula, but are excluded from minimum hourly wages.

'ANCHOR' PULLS OUT

Main food store to leave Sevenoaks

The owners of Seven Oaks Shopping Center in Clearbrook have announced the departure of Woodward's Food Floor from the mall and are looking at two alternate ways of developing the space at present.

An agreement reached on May 3 states that Woodward's Food Floor (1987) Limited will vacate their present space in the mall by May 21.

"While we regret that our tenants felt it was necessary to close their store, it must be remembered that the Food Floor is more than 12 years old and that food retailing has changed significantly in the last decade," said Seven Oaks manager Garry Miller, Tuesday.

"This closure gives us the opportunity to modernize the space."

They are looking at two alternatives to modernize the space and are confident that the change will improve the center.

Redevelopment is expected to be complete and operational by October this year.

Taxpayer picks up bill

OTTAWA - The federal government has agreed to pay $6,890 to China for damages to its Toronto consulate during a demonstration last October.

Tibetan demonstrators, angry over a crackdown on nationalist protests against Chinese rule in Tibet last year, threw rocks, eggs and tomatoes at the consulate. Some windows were broken and the building needed cleaning.

George Rioux, a spokesman for the external affairs department, said Canada is responsible for protecting foreign missions from intrusions and damage under the 1961 Vienna Convention. Canada is a signatory to the treaty.
