LEGAL COSTS COULD BE IN MILLIONS

Teacher's battle with giants sabotaged

By MONIQUE GALAZKA

LANGLEY - Norma Janzen, the teacher who has been dismissed from teaching after 24 years as a special needs instructor, because of her refusal to join the Langley Teacher's Association, is pushing Premier Mike Harcourt to change the laws that allow "Friends of the court" to seek court costs should they win their case.

Janzen is also fighting for her freedom of association under the Canadian Charter of Rights.

Interveners are encouraged to step into charter cases to allow the judges as many points of view as possible in making their decisions. The Canadian Labour Congress has stepped into her case as a friend of the court on the side of those she is suing.

"I cannot proceed with my court case because of the possible monetary costs involved from the Canadain Labour Congress becoming a friend of the court on behalf of the Langley Teacher's Association. I did not ask for the intervention, and I don't think it's fair that I should have to pay should I lose my case."

It all began in 1990 when she got a letter from the School Board worded to say that by not joining the union she is deemed to have resigned. It was also worded in such a way that she knew she could not expect any severance pay, or other compensation. She decided to proceed with legal action against the Langley Teacher's Association, the School Board, and Attorney General Colin Gableman

During the proceedings, the Canadian Labour Congress, an umbrella group for all unions entered the scene as a friend of the court, and the B.C. Supreme Court entitles interveners to have costs paid by the loser in the case.

Janzen's lawyer, who is working pro-bono, has been in contact with the CLC about the possibility of their waiving the costs but they are unwilling to do so. Janzen says that it is probably because they know they can stop the case proceeding to trial because of the costs. They can tie up any loose ends by finishing the fight right now and put it all behind them.

So far that seems to be the case. The struggle has now moved to the Premier's office and it is up to him to change the laws regarding the awarding of costs so Janzen can proceed with her case.

"It's a tremendous risk to go to trial and have to pay the court costs of the CLC and the three parties being sued," Janzen said.

Harcourt has said that Janzen's fight is an attempt to break organized labour, but she says it is not. She is only trying to get her freedom of association and to be able to teach without becoming a union member.

"I believe that teaching is an essential service and that they should not use the children as pawns in their bargaining dispute," she said. "When 35% of

Community looks for local heroes

ALDERGROVE - This community is looking for heroes. The Hilda Reddick Memorial Service Award committee is seeking applicants for the trophy to recognize outstanding service to the community without regard for personal gain.

The award is sponsored by the Aldergrove Kinsmen Club, Community Centre Society and The Star, and nominations are open until April 30. Spokesman Bruce Strongitharm said the community centre will have a wall dedicated to plaques honouring Aldergrove's winners of the Reddick awards as well as recipients of other local prizes such as the Pete Swensson and H.D. Stafford memorial awards.

"We want to recognize Aldergrove's community leaders," said Strongitharm. "There is so much being done here by volunteers out of a love for their neighbours, and we should promote that."

Of the Reddick award, Strongitharm said, "Hilda packed more into her few short years in Aldergrove than most do in a lifetime, running a business, raising a family and participating in hree or four community activities at any given time. Her ready wit, enthusiasm and energy serve as an example to us all."

Reddick passed away in August 1990, and is survived by husband, Ron and five children. They had come to Canada from England in 1980, and Hilda had been owner-manager of Aldergrove Shoe Store, and during this time had been involved in the local Chamber of Commerce, Aldergrove Mall Merchants Association, Rose Queen Pageant, Aldergrove Festival Days Society, Aldergrove Agricultural Association and Aldergrove Revitalization Committee.

Reddick Award applications are available at the Aldergrove offices of The Star, Community Centre and Chamber of Commerce. Eligibility is open to those with residence or business in the 856 and 857 phone exchanges, and the selection committee's choice of winner will be announced during the Festival Days celebrations in June.

ZOO BOO BOO

Apologies to our readers

ALDERGROVE - The Star and writer Kurt Langmann wish to apologize to our readers and the Greater Vancouver Zoological Centre for an error in our March 15 edition, which has caused much embarrassment for all involved. Kurt Langmann accepts full responsibility for saying that admission fees would be waived at the centre's spring break walkabout tours, and he wants readers to understand that at no time did the centre's spokespersons mislead him and no one should blame the centre for not being able to waive the fees.

"The special guided tours were free of charge, not the admission fees," said Langmann. "It was a misunderstanding, and since the centre did not see the story before it was published, it's not fair to blame the centre. They were just as surprised as the public was, when carloads of our readers showed up Monday morning expecting free admission.

"I feel awful... our readers count on us to be accurate and I let them down. By the time I was aware of it, Monday afternoon, it was too late to do anything about it, the damage had been done."

The admission fees of $7 to $9 each are reasonable costs, but The Star understands that large groups, with youngsters in tow, didn't bring that kind of money along to spend, and the centre can't be expected to subsidize them without prior arrangement, either. When The Star and the Game Farm sponsored a free day for Star readers ten years ago, former owners Hugh and Eleanor Oakes were overwhelmed by a turnout of several thousand Star readers with coupons in hand.

"I've spoken with several of our readers who've kindly accepted my apologies, but there are all the youngsters involved who can't be expected to understand why they were turned away. Sure, everyone makes mistakes, but when I make one thousands of people see it, and this is definitely the worst blunder I've made in my 21 years here," said Langmann. "Again, I apologize, and I don't know how, but I'll try to think of a way to make it up to our readers."

Youth bravery cited for saving toddler

VANCOUVER - Two Abbotsford youths were decorated for their bravery in saving a toddler's life while on holiday in Osoyoos last summer. The Royal Life Saving Society Canada hosted Toby and Johnny Friesen at a ceremony at Hotel Vancouver, Saturday.

Toby, 11, and Johnny, nine, spied the three year old boy in the deep end of a hotel pool last August 25, and Johnny jumped in, swam down and shook the child, with no response. Toby shouted for help while Johnny put the child on his shoulders and brought him to the surface. The toddler was revived at poolside and recovered fully after three days in hospital.

The Friesen youths were delighted with receiving one of 45 awards handed out, but Toby said, "Most of all, I'm glad (the child) had no brain damage or anything."

Crematoria bylaw in works

ALDERGROVE - The township gave second reading, Monday to its amendment to bylaws regarding accessory crematoria use by funeral homes. The bylaw defines funeral homes and funeral services, and in administrator Jim Godfrey's words, crematoria applications would be required to seek "site specific rezoning."

Coun. Steve Burton said that because of concerns over the monopoly the bylaw would grant the Personal Alternative funeral home and crematorium, the township should develop "guidelines" for crematoria applicants, "so we don't have to react to situations." The new bylaw, once finalized, would have no effect on Personal Alternative's building now under construction, but it has effectively stopped any new applications for crematoria.

Councilors agreed with Burton and have ordered staff to bring forward definitions and other criteria for crematoria.

Chamber to move to park

LANGLEY - Relocation of the Chamber of Commerce Info Centre at Langley Meadows Park was supported by township council this week.

Coun. Muriel Arnason objected, saying she was "aghast" at the concept, even though the plan would incorporate new public washrooms and a caretaker suite for the public's benefit. "It's such a small park already," she said of the space to be taken by the small building.

Coun. Mel Kositsky said "it's a good public/private partnership" that will mean "more safety" for the park users. "It's a very valuable community facility."

Councilors agreed to the cost-sharing concept in principle, instructing staff to proceed with the necessary legalities.

Midwives to be legal

VICTORIA - Midwives could be legally practicing in B.C. by next year, after Health Minister Paul Ramsay announced the establishment of the B.C. College of Midwives, last week. The new nine-member college will set standards of practice, develop a code of ethics and review public complaints. Midwives' services will also be publicly funded.

Midwifery has historically been practiced throughout the world, but there was previously no legal status for it in B.C. Ramsay said the college will ensure that it is "safe, regulated and licensed," whether practiced in hospital or in the home.

Family physicians generally favour midwifery as a practice but most prefer to see it in hospitals where emergency assistance is readily available in the event of complications. Ramsay said there will be a demonstration project on home birth within the next couple of years, "not to decide whether home births should be allowed but to look at how they should be allowed."

Dance to music of 32 Avenue

ALDERGROVE – The Aldergrove Mall and the Aldergrove Festival Days Society have announced that popular local band, 32nd Avenue, will perform Saturday night, June 10, at the Aldergrove Festival Days Dance. The dance is scheduled to be held from 9 pm to 1 am at the Aldergrove Mall, and will likely prove to be one of the most popular events of the Festival, held June 9 to 11. In keeping with the festival's "South Pacific" theme, the mall will be transformed into an exotic and colourful vacation spot for the evening, and special events and contests will reflect the dance's South Pacific theme.

Other events that are currently in the planning stages include a fireworks display, parade, softball tournament, tractor-pull and a family style picnic. Ideas, volunteers and participants for these events and other activities are welcomed, and all members of the community are encouraged to become involved in the planning of this year's Aldergrove Festival Days.

The society's next meeting will be April 5 at 7 pm in the Aldergrove Elk's basement meeting room. For more information, contact Bob Long, Festival Days president, at 533-0053.

ABBY TASK FORCE BUSY

Arsonists hit three more times

ABBOTSFORD - The Arson Task Force has been hit with three more suspicious fires this week, although two of them are considered unrelated to a serious string of fires at unoccupied dwellings over recent months that are believed to have been caused by one arsonist.

Two fires on the night of March 17-18 are considered isolated incidents. The first fire, 9:55 p.m., March 17, destroyed a barn that was at the rear of a home on Jackson Street destroyed by a suspicious fire last year. The task force determined that there was evidence that children had been playing with fire at the site, and that there have been previous reports of children playing there. A neighbour had also recently lectured children on the property about a fire they made in a metal container.

Then at 4:34 a.m., March 18, fire and police were dispatched to a fire alarm in a portable classroom at the rear of Abbotsford Senior Secondary School on Crescent Way. The building had been broken into and was engulfed in flames. Investigation showed that items had been stolen and the fire was likely to conceal evidence of the breakin.

While these two fires are considered isolated incidents, the 3:55 a.m., March 21 fire at a barn on Wellsline Road is still under investigation. It was discovered by a passing motorist who alerted the resident owner. Initial findings show it started in loose hay inside, and Abbotsford Police Arson Task Force, Abbotsford Fire Department and the Provincial Fire Commissioner's office are still probing the site.

'LAW MUST BE CHANGED'

Lives ruined by Big Brother

ALDERGROVE - Amandah Sinclaire is fighting a losing battle, trying to prevent her granddaughter (who is referred to as X because of legal proceedings) from becoming a "ministry" child like herself. She is trying to stop X from being adopted by a foster family, when her own family is willing to adopt her.

Sinclaire knows what it's like to be "taken" by the Ministry of Social Services, having been a victim herself.

Amandah Sinclaire with 'X' during happier times.

Her oldest son, the father of X, was also taken by the ministry. Sinclaire was in the hospital at the time, and he was under the care of a neighbor. It took her three days to find out where he was and get him back.

Now he's dead, murdered last year, a victim of his 'street lifestyle,' resulting from being torn from his family and shuttled from foster home to foster home.

Her other two kids are outstanding community members because, "I raised them myself," she said.

The ministry has opened itself up to public scrutiny the last few years, and changed some laws, but the one which states that no one working for the ministry can be held accountable for their actions, has not been changed. Sinclaire said it is this law must be changed, and that someone should be held accountable for all the lives ruined by the Ministry.

The story really begins 51/2 years ago when her son and girlfriend of seven years had a baby.

The mother, also a victim of the ministry, knew that because of her drugs/booze, prostitution and HIV status, that she couldn't properly care for the child and signed a witnessed letter requesting Sinclaire, the natural grandmother of the child be granted custody.

Instead the ministry apprehended the child, placed her in foster care, and the nightmare began.

At this moment Sinclaire doesn't even know if her monthly visits, that she had to fight for, are cut off yet. She does know that the adoption is going through, the adoptive family is moving away and her visits will be cut off some time between now and June.

"I don't know when the adoption is taking place because they won't tell me. Of course they won't tell me where the family is moving to except off Vancouver Island, and I am really frustrated because they are taking away my dead son's only child."

The Ministry of Social Services claims that X is a special needs child. She was originally believed to have HIV and cerebral palsy, but has miraculously 'recovered' into a healthy five year old girl.

However, the foster family, and possibly the ministry, are trying to keep the special needs label on X for two reasons, according to Sinclaire. The first is that the ministry has decided that Sinclaire is not fit to raise a special needs child and, if the label is applied, the ministry will pay the foster family for her care.

"They are sending her to a speech therapist because they claim she doesn't speak in sentences. I have several witnesses who have heard her speaking in full sentences on many occasions. One person even said that her vocabulary was outstanding for a five year old. It's all lies to keep the "special needs" label, because there is nothing wrong with that little girl."

The ministry has decided, against their own word and advice, that X should be formally 'adopted out' to the foster family, and the adoptive mother has stated that when the legalities are over that all visits with family will be cut off until the child is 19.

Currently Sinclaire gets one supervised visit per month to which she brings a Grandparents Rights volunteer as a witness, and the ministry sends a social worker.

For a long time visits were restricted to the home of the foster family, but when the foster mother refused to have any more visits in her home, Sinclaire was allowed to take X other places.

"I have other grandchildren who come over, ride the horses, stay over night etc., but I cannot do these things in one, two-hour, controlled, supervised visit per month," she said.

Sinclaire also says that the home X is in is unsuitable, because as a foster home, the environment is a bad influence for a young girl.

"The family has adopted a mentally handicapped girl, but the worst is the stream of angry foster kids coming through all the time. It's not a stable, and there is a potential for abuse.

The foster mother is apparently also unsuitable, according to Sinclaire, because she tells her lies about her family.

"I have witnesses to X telling me 'Mommy hates you, Granny. You lie," she said.

Sinclaire says that she has tried to get along with the foster mother who is very difficult, and even has her on tape yelling and throwing her out of the house when she came to talk about the adoption.

She (the foster mother) has also admitted to slapping her.

"If the foster mother really cared, she would bend over backward to include family members in X's life, not call me a liar. What is that woman doing to her head?"

At one hearing with the mediator Sinclaire told the foster mother that she wanted to hear the foster father's side of the story and get some input from him. She was angrily told by the foster mother that she's taking care of it.

Sinclaire has met the foster father only once, at a meeting four years ago. She has not even seen him since, and he has not attended any of the meetings or hearings.

Sinclaire also says that she doesn't fully blame the foster mother for the situation because she is also being played as a pawn in the ministry's game, although in disputes of any kind, the Ministry sides with the foster family.

The ministry is playing all of us against each other, including the foster mother," she said.

"She should never have been told by the ministry that she could adopt X. There have been other family members, including the maternal grandparents, also willing to adopt the child, and all of us have been told by various ministry workers that none of us wanted her, because of her special needs," she continued. "That is an outright lie, because all of us are willing to take her. "

"All I want is my granddaughter back with the family, because it is in her best interest to be raised by family. The law must be changed and someone must be held responsible for what is happening and what has happened to my family, because it's tearing me apart.

"I don't want anyone else to have to go through what I'm going through."

GOSLINGS . . . YOUR APPLIANCE AND FURNITURE CENTRE FOR OVER 73 YEARS . . .

Why is common sense so uncommon in politicians?

By NIGEL HANNAFORD

What would it take to put common sense back into government?

Things happen sometimes and you think, "If you took the first 12 people you came across on the main street, explained the situation in simple terms, would they make a better decision than the people we pay to do it in Ottawa?"

Sometimes, the only answer possible is "yes".

Leave aside the whole issue of the national debt and housewife economics. Even the government now knows it screwed up, although it doesn't care to admit it.

Leave, if you will even the amazing decisions of the parole board which regularly releases murderers to resume their killing or the potty grants handed out to organizations nobody has heard of to produce books, art or research that nobody wants to read or look at.

How, though, does our immigration department find it within its heart to give refugee status to a foreigner bearing the AIDS virus, who openly brags on the radio that he came to Canada for free treatment?

These must have been the same people who let that Somali warlord in, or the fellow who had been killing his fellow countrymen in Rwanda.

Bizarre doesn't describe it but it"ll do for a start.

The facts in this case are that a 25-year-old Polish man was admitted to Canada following a decision by immigration officials. The man had claimed he was harassed and persecuted because of his sexual orientation and health condition.

Interestingly, the ruling came after the federal court overturned an earlier board decision to deny the man status.

Now, the man has died of his condition, in a Canadian hospital.

What we now have to consider is what our policy might be.

It's nice to be known as a compassionate, caring society. It is not nice to have a world-wide reputation as an easy touch.

It is well known that it is quite hard for a foreigner to get into Canada to work.

Ask anyone you know who employs people. They will confirm that when some bright chap from another country, a visitor, suggests he could go to work here, the rigmarole of getting him in here leaves both parties exhausted and seldom succeeds.

On the other hand, tell the board you're gay, that people are picking on you and you're also HIV-positive, and somehow the gate swings and caring, compassionate Canada opens its wallet to you.

Immigration Minister Sergio Marchi, responding to Reform MP Grant Hill's challenges on this matter, says that Canada will not be opening the doors to HIV-positive "refugees", which I suppose is somewhat reassuring.

This one made it through and the world is full of sick people who would love our free health care system.

The folks who make these dumb decisions aren't necessarily bad people or even stupid people. They are out-of-touch-with-reality people, though, which prompts me to the "ask the first 12 people you meet" remark.

Obviously it's not offered as a serious suggestion - though it works well enough as a jury in criminal cases.

Perhaps, however, the selection for these immigration boards needs to be widened and the composition rotated more often.

There's a lot of common sense on the streets - except in Ottawa.

Move to return public flogging

WASHINGTON - A movement to restore corporal punishment is sweeping America in the wake of the Republican takeover of Congress and the caning last year in Singapore of an American teenage vandal.

Measures to restore caning are up for consideration in California and New York state. In Tennessee, state delegates plan to make the punishment a public spectacle on the courthouse steps.

A young American named Michael Fay inadvertently set off the revolution last year, when he was caught spray painting in Singapore. He was sentenced to a fine and six lashes with a cane, reduced to four after President Bill Clinton intervened.

Far from uniting in outrage at Fay's treatment, Americans decided the cane could be deployed at home.

"The intent is to create fear in criminals," said Tom Cameron, a leading pro hanging and flogging Republican member of the Mississippi legislature.

"I look at Singapore and you can walk all around the streets. If it works in Singapore, maybe it'll work here."

Governor Kirk Fordice, who told voters he wanted to make Mississippi the "capital of capital punishment", is backing the move.

The trend is strongest in the rural Deep South, where people are now affected by crimes previously associated with big cities.

Black office holders are mainly opposed to reviving beatings. John Horn, of the Mississippi senate, said the campaign was "racist" and hearkening back to the days of slavery.

IN TURF WAR

NDP faces growing attack

VICTORIA - A turf war between public service staff and top NDP advisors over who should pay more than $200,000 in unauthorized bills has been exposed in a series of leaked intergovernmental memos.

Copies of the memos were handed to reporters by the BC Reform Party.

The Reformers had followed an electronic mail trail showing Premier Mike Harcourt's own in-house 'spin doctors' billed the forest ministry for thousands of dollars of public relations work behind the back of its own communications branch.

"Their concerns were ignored by the premier's communications advisors in an extraordinary display of deliberate deception and contempt for fiscal control and accountability," said Reform leader Jack Weisgerber.

All of the unauthorized billings went to NOW Communications, a public relations firm set up by the New democrats' former communications director, Ron Johnson, after the party gained power in 1991.

Documents released by the Reformers a few days earlier showed NOW collected $5-million over the past three years for handling the premier's public relations, including Harcourt's television 'townhall meeting' earlier this year.

The memos tell of struggles by Ministry of Forests communications brass to get Evan Lloyd, the deputy minister in charge of the Government Communications Office, and one of Harcourt's top strategists, to stop assigning ministry PR work to NOW without their approval.

"We cannot maintain financial control on a contract with NOW. We've tried to convince GCO to let us know when they are planning/making commitments but they have not seen fit to do that," Jim Challenger wrote in an October, 1994, memo to Laura Stringer, public affairs manager for the forests ministry.

"Be forewarned that with the amount of money involved and the helter-skelter way things are done in the 'heat of the chase', we could end up in court very easily," he continued.

The memos reveal that NOW originally had a $500,000 contract with the forests ministry to publicize its Forests Renewal Plan and the new Forests Practices Code.

But as the ministry reached the limit of its publicity budget for the two programs dear to Harcourt's heart, Lloyd's office kept assigning NOW more work, which the firm was expected to bill to the forests ministry.

In a September 26, 1994, invoice to Challenger from NOW vice president Larry Huber, the company asked for $205,000 for work done after the expiration of its 1994 contract.

Handwritten notes in the margins indicate that at least $175,000 of the invoiced items were assigned by the Government Communications Office.

At the bottom of the invoice Huber commiserates with Challenger over the billing snafu.

"We again seem to find ourselves in the position of trying to be responsive to requests for services without getting contractual commitments from the source of the requests," he wrote.

In October, NOW's contract was extended to March 1995 and its value doubled to $1.1-million.

The memos show Johnson billing $143,400 for his personal strategic advice at a rate of $200

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

It's time to get tough

Editor, The Star, Sir,

University Information and Research is helping the Melanie Carpenter Campaign spread its message of concern and change in the criminal justice system. Mr. Carpenter appeared on the CTV talk show "Shirley" on Monday, March 20 to share his story of the brutal murder of his daughter, Melanie. During the station breaks there was a commercial aired promoting the new MELANIE (make every life an issue everywhere) help-line. The staff at CTV were wonderful in getting this commercial produced in under 24 hours, just three days before the show's airing date.

I would like to ask your help in letting the rest of Canada know of the help-line by way of this press release from the campaign headquarters. It would be appreciated.

The friends and family of Melanie are determined to change the legal system so we are safe on the streets. The rights of the innocent need to be protected, not those of criminals. To this end we are promoting the following petition:

-Keep dangerous sex offenders and pedophiles locked up for life

-Eliminate mandatory release

-Impose stiffer sentences for violent offenders

-Have violent criminals serve their full sentences and have time added for bad behaviour

-Have a central registry for the names and addresses of violent offenders

-Give more power to the legal institutions to keep dangerous criminals in jail even after their sentence is served, if they are still a risk to society

-Give police more authority in apprehending and interrogating violent offenders, including the ability to take blood and saliva samples

-Eliminate the insanity, drunk or drugged defense

-Impose stiffer laws and sentences for stalker criminals

-Reinstate capital punishment for first degree murder in which there is no doubt of guilt

We invite all Canadians to phone us with your vote of confidence at our MELANIE help-line. Mr. Carpenter has a personal message he would like to share with you.

The number is 1-900-451-4887, ext 128, $2. per minute, average call four minutes, average cost $8, maximum cost $10. Touch tone phone required, under 18 need parent's permission. Every call will help our campaign.

Time for a change

Editor, The Star, Sir,

We at the MELANIE Campaign headquarters would like to take this opportunity to thank you for your coverage of the tragic story of Canada's daughter, Melanie Carpenter.

It is only through the media we are able to get our message out to Canadians and you have played an important, and much appreciated part in that. Thank you once again.

May we ask you for one more thing? We are attempting to raise funds for the campaign to challenge the violent offender laws in Canada. It appears that most Canadians are with us in this desire. Through our press release, our hotline can be established immediately. This will allow thousands of Canadians to vote with us and help us at the same time to raise the much needed funds to reach our goal.

If further information is required about this process, please contact me personally at the Melanie Campaign office. Our fax number is 589-8343 and our telephone number is 589-9456.

No criminals

Editor, The Star, Sir,

In response to those who blame all crime on gun owners, we have had gun control for over 60 years and crime still runs wild. They kill with knives, clubs, they kick people to death; you name it.

Why? First, there is no real punishment. Jails are now resort hotels.

Secondly, authorities are unable or are otherwise not allowed to put a stop to drugs.

Gun owners are not criminals like some seem to think. Get rid of the illegal drugs and you may again meander around Stanley Park at midnight and survive.

Bag lady fashions

By SYLVIA BAKER

ALDERGROVE – We're turning our "Bag Lady", Jean McLean, loose in the Aldergrove Mall, on March 25 for our second annual "Bag Lady Fashion Show". When you see her, around twelve noon, be sure to follow her to centre stage for some fun and fashion from the Aldergrove Thrift Shop. This was an outstanding event last spring with over one hundred spectators. Volunteers from the shop had a good time showing off clothing from the store and those a little shy about walking the board were a welcome sight in the audience. Come join us as we welcome spring into Aldergrove with some bright outfits and lots of spunk. The show will begin around one o'clock on Saturday and last until two thirty. The shop will not be open on that Saturday in order to give the ladies time to outfit and be prepared. We will display items at the mall from both shops for your review. Clothing worn during the fashion show will be available after the program.

The March meeting was held on Monday the 6th, with 16 attending. We are very proud to announce that we were able to donate $ 2,500 to the following organizations. Save The Children (for the young man that we sponsor), The Sunshine Club (an organization providing a social atmosphere for special people), Douglas Park Elementary School for their Special Olympics, Cerebral Palsy, and the Kidney Foundation to further their research. It gives us great pleasure to be able to consistently return to the community, funds for these various worthwhile groups. We recycle everything, even the money that comes to the shop is returned to you in some way. Thank You.

A wheelchair was donated to the Legion in Aldergrove. After much consideration the members decided that it would be of greater use to the community through that organization.

We are in desperate need of a cash register for one of the shops. Our old Victor hand operated one has given up on us and while it is still in use, we find it frustrating to see incorrect figures and totals. If anyone has a recently set aside register that they are not using, give us a call, we can talk. The Victor is destined for one of the local museums. Shop 856-5292.

I would like to thank Rob Douglas of R.D.Signs for his splendid work on our fashion show posters, the sale signs throughout the store and the lettering on the door. It's business people like Rob, that make us feel so much a part of the community. They give their time and service in order that we may return more to community projects.

'Boss of bikes' coming here

LANGLEY – The Heart and Stroke Foundation is about to release a marvel of mechanical engineering at Newlands Fitness Centre. On May 4, groups of 30 pedal-pumping passengers from this community will jump onto one colossal cycle and take part in the Big Bike Ride.

Measuring eight feet across at the wheels and extending 30 feet long, the Big Bike is a spectacle that you don't want to miss.

The Big Bike Ride is more than just an entertaining community event, it's also an opportunity for people to raise money for the Heart and Stroke Foundation of B.C. & Yukon. Build a team of friend, family members or co-workers and get your heart in motion on the Big Bike.

The minimum pledge for each team member is $ 50. and prizes are awarded for all fundraising efforts. By raising more than $ 50., you could win great prizes such as Big Bike T-shirts, sweatshirts or jackets to mark the occasion.

"The Big Bike Ride is a fun-filled event that encourages people to support an important cause. We are looking for companies, service organizations and other groups in the community to get involved in the ride, " said coordinator Paula Spring-man.

Teams are made up of 29 riders who ride a 4.7 -kilometre course around town, beginning at Newlands and ending at Newlands. Each team displays a sign with their organization's name on the Big Bike while riding.

All pledge money will be used to fund life-saving heart and stroke research and health promotion programs.

'Keys' advance to the cup finals

ALDERGROVE – In Premier Division League Cup, Gold Key United met Burnaby Rangers at Parkside on Sunday.

The ten team Premier Division was drawn into two groups of five. Each team playing each other once in their group, giving each team a minimum of four games. Gold Key United with their 2–0 win against the Rangers, clinched first place in their group of five and now await the winner of the other group, who they will meet in a Cup Final.

The game on Sunday against the Rangers was scoreless in the first half. Both teams created chances that were squandered, Gold Key forwards were guilty of hurrying their shots while Burnaby came close, skimming the crossbar on one of their forays.

After the halftime break Gold Key upped the pace of the game, showing a little more intensity. They were rewarded for this, when, from a scramble in front of the goal, Auburn Caldwell tapped the ball on to Lori Ormrod who scored the games first goal 16 minutes into the second half. Just four minutes later Lori Ormrod was brought down inside the penalty area. Jolene Smith made no mistake from the spot to put Gold Key up by two goals. Final score 2–0 for Gold Key.

Coach John Deacon said, "We had two girls up from the U19 District team today. They were Erica Steinback and Lauren Wood. They played with poise and maturity which was a very pleasant surprise. Without them it would have been difficult to win."

Rewarding experience

LANGLEY – Pacific Riding for the Disabled Association requires volunteers to assist disabled riders of all ages in therapeutic riding lessons as sidewalkers and horse-handlers. Training is provided, no experience with horses or disabilities necessary.

Lessons run Tuesday through Saturday, between 9 am and 5 pm. A commitment of one hour a week makes a great deal of difference to the program. The facility is located on 10 beautiful acres at 21081 – 72 Avenue. If you are interested in becoming part of the PRDA volunteer team and would like to attend the new volunteer orientation Tuesday, April 4, at 7:30 pm, contact Jennifer at 530-8717.

Sprinkling ban will be back

BURNABY – Lawn sprinkling restrictions will be in effect throughout the GVRD again this summer, starting June 1 and continuing until September 30.

The regulations will be the same as the last two years with lawn watering allowed twice a week from 4 to 9 am and 7 to 10 pm, odd numbered addresses on Thursday and Sunday, even numbered addresses on Wednesday and Saturday.

The measures, which are part of the district's water conservation program, are intended to reduce the chances of more severe restrictions being necessary later in the summer.

Per capita use of water in Greater Vancouver is among the highest in North America. The GVRD is currently conducting a study on the effect residential water meters would have on water use in the region, and is participating in the BC21 Power Smart water and energy saving program.

Bruins battle PoCo to a stunning 2-2 tie

By JOE MORRISON

ALDERGROVE – The Aldergrove 'Atom B' Hewitt and Co. Bruins had the regular 2 games this week, with the first coming at home. The opponent: Poco.

There was no scoring in the first, but good action at either end. Poco seemed to have the edge in play though, with their aggressive defense keeping Aldergrove at bay, but the home team managed to get a few chances.

And they capitalized on a chance for the only goal of the second period, coming at 5:59. Parker MacDonald shoved the puck toward off the face off into the Poco zone. He wove through the defensemen then deked the goalie out of his skates before putting it in for a 1-0 Aldergrove lead. It was a good goal, and the only one of the second, as Aldergrove headed into the third with a 1-0 lead.

Aldergrove increased their lead at 7:56 of the third when Joe Hogan flipped a pass to Greg Neufeld near his own blue line. He swung over to the left side of the ice, shot down that side, deked around the defense and then swept in sharply on the startled goalie and then tucked it underneath him. It was another great goal! and it put the home team up 2-0.

Aldergrove goalie Will Parley was having a good, solid night in net, but was finally beaten with 1:53 left in the 3rd. Poco pulled the goalie and scored again with 15 seconds left to stun Aldergrove and earn a 2-2 tie.

The next game took the Hewitt and Co. Bruins to the Olympic sized ice sheet of the Abbotsford Recreation Center for an exhibition game against (who else?)Abbotsford.

But the home team dominated the first period, victimizing Aldergrove goalie Scott Mathieson at 13:04 and 8:30, but Aldergrove got one back with 4:32 remaining in the period. Parker MacDonald threw it over to Keith Howson-Jones, who came in, crisscrossed with MacDonald then let a wrist shot go at the right face-off dot that blew by the Abbey goalie on the glove hand side. Abbey's lead was cut to 2-1.

Abbey scored again with 2:17 left to take a 3-1 lead into the second. And they continued their dominance on the scoreboard scoring again at 12:34 and 11:06 to take a 5-1 lead. The visitors finally replied with 1:13 left on a power play.

Greg Fournier passed it over to Rich Pearce whose shot was stopped by a sprawling goalie, but Jordan Stangle was there to flip the rebound up and in to cut the home team's lead 5-2.

The Hewitt and Co. Bruins played well in the third period, taking an advantage in the play in contrast to the 2 preceding periods. Will Parley replaced Scott Mathieson in goal and was solid in net until they were rewarded with a goal with 1:00 left. Greg Wismer's bullet from the point was stopped and the rebound came to Parker MacDonald who swept it over to Scott Cleeve who snapped it over the goalie to cut Abbey's lead to 2.

Aldergrove pulled the goalie, but was unable to score as Abbey held off Aldergrove late charge to take a 5-3 win.

Red Star tops field

CLOVERDALE – Red Star Fashion, with regular driver Andy Arsenault at the controls, held off the late challenge of Dal Reo Scooter to capture the $ 32,100 final of the Delta Pace Saturday at Cloverdale Raceway. Hy Tigress, part of a three horse Dave Jungquist trained entry, finished third. Time for the mile was 2:02:3.

Fourth in the early going Red Star Fashion commenced her bid just before the half mile mark, was even with the pacesetter Dal Reo Scooter midway on the backstretch before clearing into a lead which she never relinquished.

The win was the ninth from twelve career starts for the three year old B.C. bred daughter of Desire Me. She also won a leg of the Delta elimination last week for owner Robert Murphy of White Rock and now has career earnings approaching the $ 50,000 mark in less than two years of racing.

The driving victory was also a milestone mark for driver Andy Arsenault as it was win number 500 in his career.

Loose Lines...Robley Johnson has taken over the lead in both the trainer and driver standings with a hot hand in the past two weeks. However driver Bill Davis could be back on top soon as he recorded four victories on Saturday and followed that up with five trips to the winner circle on Sunday. Driver Gord Abbott is nearing a milestone for career wins as he is a little over twenty away from 1,000.

Wednesday night will feature full card simulcast wagering from Northlands Park in Edmonton. The first race from there will go at 5:30.

ASK ANNABELLE

My dear Annabelle,

It is my sad duty to inform you that our mutual friend, John Kirkwood, closed his umbrella on Saturday morning. Or in the parlance of today's society, passed away. John, as you know, was only 62 years old but the wisdom he attained was closer to 200 years.

I remember meeting John for the first time at the Ship Inn in Hong Kong. He was the correspondent for the Sun newspaper. Many is the pint of nut-brown ale we consumed at those premises. A few years later I again ran into John as I was serving with the troops in Viet Nam during the bloody war. It was at the H.Q. there that he was listening to the short-wave radio from the American States and heard about Hurricane Hugo. The announcer was saying, "the hurricane hit the State of Florida with a huge wallop." It was then that I (Hugo Wallop) received my nickname, "Hugo (Huge) Wallop" and have been known by it ever since.

John Kirkwood was a man of many colours, the best of which was his ability to annoy people, most of whom later became his best friends. With the exception of one time at a party hosted by his one-time girlfriend in her apartment in Richmond, after he had returned to Vancouver. It seems that John had looked too long upon the red wine and after a few hours (or was it minutes) he managed to spill his glass of red wine on her white carpet and fall over her couch, only to land in the collective laps of three women sitting on same. Exit, one girlfriend from his life.

At one time, (and I still digress, a habit that comes with old age) I met John in Hong Kong at the Ship Inn and when closing time came at us we left to catch the bus to his digs. The bus had no driver; that honourable person had stopped for tea before keeping up with his schedule. On we hopped and because the passengers were in a hurry to be home at that time of night, John took over the driving of the bus. We travelled several miles before we were stopped by the police and after I had bailed John out of jail we managed to get home by taxi.

Many more adventures lurk in my brain but I shall keep them safe until I write my autobiography.

Although many people considered John Knox Kirkwood an annoying little man, we who knew him loved him and thought he was, perhaps, not so annoying but right in his thoughts and writings, especially his writings in the Vancouver Courier, where he wrote for many years. Where could you find a more common touch than in the essays he provided for the Courier?

And so, there is a brief story of a man, larger than life, and that has been said of many men, but now John Knox Kirkwood joins them in history.

Yours faithfully Hugo (Huge, thanks to J. Kirkwood) Wallop. (Ret.)

Dear Huge,

Thank you. We knew about John's passing from his sister Pat. We were very sad but not so much after we had thought of all his little peccadilloes and habits. He stayed with us at least once a month (I was always worried that he didn't eat properly and fed him well when he was here). He attended our barbecue parties and always wrote about it in his column in the Courier, referring to my husband as "the Squire" and me as the Squire's good Lady wife person. We shall miss him and his sometimes annoying ways. But miss him we will. May flights of angels take him to his well-deserved vacation with pay. The rest is silence.

WOMEN & WEALTH

By JULIE EDWARDS

Recently I was discussing investment strategies with an Aldergrove Couple who were trying to reduce the amount of taxes they pay on investment income. They were particularly dismayed that a bond they had purchased from a bank two years ago, advertised as a guaranteed rate of 8%, actually yielded only 4% after their taxes were applied. They felt they had been misled, but I reminded them that what they should really be looking for is an investment that yields the best After Tax Yield.

We discussed the different types of bonds and the different ways they are taxed. This couple had purchased a GIC at par ($100) that paid interest twice a year and yielded 8% annually. Since the income from this bond was entirely interest, it was taxed as one would expect – at the couples' marginal income tax rate.

I then showed them a perfectly legitimate and legal way of keeping more of the returns from their bonds than expected, thereby increasing their after-tax yield. To do this, I explained, they need to purchase bonds that contribute income through capital gains, rather than through interest. These are called discount bonds, and offer the same safety and semi-annual payments as GIC's or other regular bonds. The difference is that in addition to paying par value for your money, they also pay a capital gains component which is taxed at a preferential rate.

The couple looked a little confused, so I calculated a real example. Rates are for illustration purposes only. I compared their bank GIC to a better quality Province of British Columbia 5.40% January 18, 1999 bond selling for a price of $ 90.75 to yield 8.25%. Their after-tax yield, taking into account the $ 9.25 capital gains, works out to be 4.50%. They would have to buy a 4 year GIC with a rate of 9% to generate the same yield for their money. This is because only 75% of the capital gains is taxable at their marginal tax rate.

They now understand how to use tax rules to work in their favour and were amazed at how much money they would have earned had they not gone after the supposedly better return.

North County Line residents were entertained with movie crews at work on a sequel to Wedlock called Deadlock 2 last week. The crews, along with SWBC Rail workers, had a train engine and cars going back and forth all day long under the bridge, readying for stunt persons (left and above) who leaped atop the train around midnight on March 7. This was followed by filming of a chase atop the cars, which went till early morning daylight. The stunt persons were standing in for Hollywood stars Neah Peoples and Esai Moralli (below) who performed the less dangerous scenes at the site. The movie is described as quite the gore-fest, with plane and car crashes, exploding heads and more, and Pacific Motion Pictures expects we'll see it on pay TV later this year. -

Arts council unveils new logo

LANGLEY – The Arts Council unveiled their new logo at the March general meeting held last week at the Langley Community Music School. The LAC directors struck a committee early this year to take a look at whether the tree logo should be maintained or a new logo developed. A call for submissions went out to local colleges, high schools and the arts community.

At the unveiling, LAC director Tom Turner said that the Arts Council "had an enthusiastic response, and we had over 20 submissions to choose from. We had a number of submissions from artists in the community, as well as from local high schools."

The winning design was one of three logos submitted by Brookswood Secondary student Scott Underwood. The Grade 12 arts student said that the design "shows the areas the Arts Council is associated with" and how "the different categories are connected, showing they all come from a central point". Scott was on hand at the unveiling to accept a $ 50. honorarium from the Arts Council.

Turner, vice principal at Langley Fine Arts Schools, said that the submissions were excellent, the decision was tough, but the new design was the overwhelming choice of the Arts Council directors. The previous logo, a stylized tree, was the second choice.

Arts Council president, Marilyn Tecklenborg referred to the new logo as "an excellent choice as the hand is so symbolic to the arts. Our new logo is one that will take us into the next century."

ROCKIN' AFTER MIDNIGHT

By KURT LANGMANN

For readers who've been calling about tickets for the Barra McNeils at Matsqui Centennial Theatre on March 31, Ticketmaster in Sevenoaks has them (show sponsors are Gladwin Heights Church). The Star will be publishing an interview with Stewart McNeil in next week's edition.

Lyle Lovett and REM's drummer Bill Berry are both recovering and their respective concerts are both confirmed. Lovett, who broke an arm while dirt biking with his father in Texas, is set for the QE Theatre on April 15 (tickets for the original show date will be honoured) along with his Acoustic Quintet. His last show here was delightful. REM, who I haven't seen since they played the Commodore a dozen years ago, are still doing their May 10 Coliseum show, as Berry, 36, is healed after surgery on his brain hemorrhage in Switzerland. Their North American tour starts May 5, but the European leg was cancelled after Berry grabbed his head in pain, 90 minutes into a concert in Lausanne in March.

Patrick Harrington, aka Sonny, is booking acoustic singer-songwriters as well as hosting open stages, every Saturday evening from 7 to 9:30 p.m. at St. Regis Hotel's Treehouse Lounge. The grand opening is April 1, from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m., featuring a great bill of four: Chris Houston and Evil Twang, Harold Nix Band, Georgina Taylor and Veda Hille. They're all worth catching, but I especially recommend Hille (a former Langleyite) whose piano playing and compositions are somewhere in outer space with the late Sun Ra. Wild ideas and cool vocals, too.

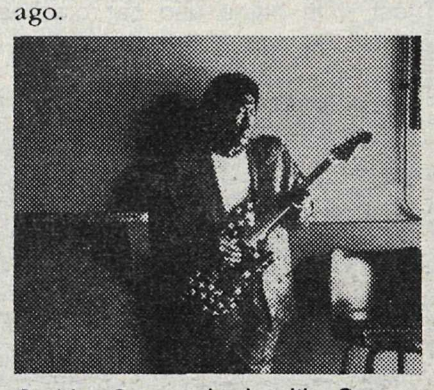
It's also barn-raiser time again, with Laurie Thain's sixth annual fundraising dinner dance for Fraser Valley Child Development Centre coming to Matsqui Ag-Rec Centre, April 22. This year's line-up includes Thain, Rocky Swanson, Curtis Blayne, along with line dancing demo and lessons. Tickets are $20, call 852-2686, 873-1865 or 793-0103.

Music West returns May 11-14, with three nights of festival concerts, Slam City Jam, high school programming, the music trade show and conferences and some new features. Drummers will enjoy Celebration of Rhythm while guitarists rave at Star Frets. More on the new music technology aspects and the Internet next time.

New releases of note:

I Love Everybody by Lyle Lovett (MCA) is another classic from the long Texan. With 18 songs, gathered from throughout his career but never before released, its acoustic sound augers well for his upcoming concert here. Lovett doesn't get a lot of radio play, but Canadians buy his albums anyway (the last three of four albums sold gold, 50,000 copies here). His dry humour and delivery are unique and the sense of the bizarre runs through songs lik Penguins, Creeps Like Me, Fat Babies and my favourite, Record Lady.

A Tribute to Berry Gordy by various artists (Motown) are songs either written by, or inspired by the founder of the Detroit soul label. With stalwarts like Smokey Robinson (Did You Know), Diana Ross (You've Made Me So Very Happy), Temptations (Do You Love Me), Four Tops (I'll Be There), the Supremes (We Couldn't Gt Along Without You), Stevie Wonder (All In Love Is Fair) and more it smokes the new competition. The highlight is the late Jackie Wilson's Lonely Teardrops/To Be Loved, Gordy's first breakthrough over 30 years ago.



Buddy Guy paired with Sonny Landreth at the Commodore, April 15, are a guitar matchup sure to please.

Weezer is the name of the band and album (MCA) that's hard to pigeonhole but huge among youths (witness their sellout of an all-ages Commodore show). Recorded with the help of ex-Cars leader Ric Ocasek, it's not conventional pop, but has certainly become "pop" with a punk edge to it. Buddy Holly is the big hit but by the time we're sick of hearing it played to death, radio stations will find other gems to list: In The Garage and Holiday are at the top of my list.

Hell Freezes Over by the Eagles (MCA) is likely a pretty good sampling of what fans can expect to hear next week at the Coliseum (March 27-28). It has some of the hits (Take It Easy, Hotel California) but doesn't rely on a greatest hits type package and features four new songs as well. Those glorious harmonies and solid songs explain why the band has been selling 1.5-million records a year since they disbanded in 1980, and both the Common Thread tribute and this new release will only boost these figures.

Candlelit tours of fort history

FORT LANGLEY - On Saturday, April 1, the Candlelight Tour of the Fort returns, courtesy of the Friends of the Fort and the National Historic Site. Local volunteers, including students from the Langley schools, Royal Engineers from CFB Chilliwack, and volunteers from Fort Nisqually in Tacoma, will be re-enacting life at the fort on the eve of the Gold Rush.

Visitors will be guided on a trip back in time and will be able to watch actors perform a series of vignettes of life at Fort Langley in the year 1858. The volunteers are of all ages and will stage events based primarily upon the events recorded in he journals of Lieutenant Charles Wilson of the Royal Engineers and Arthur Bushby, a young Englishman in search of adventure.

The tours will allow visitors to see the fort as it actually operated, lit only by the light of candles and campfires. There will be approximately 20 people in each group so that the visitors will be able to see the vignettes without peering over someone's shoulder. Each tour will cost $7, with proceeds going to the Friends of the Fort to enhance the historic site. Tickets are being presold at the fort, 23433 Mavis Avenue, telephone 888-4424.

It takes place rain or shine. Ticket numbers are limited, so early purchase is recommended. There will be no refunds, and prompt arrival at tour time on the ticket is advised.

Of the 85 operations exceeding their waste permits, 25 were municipal governments or native bands. Another six were private housing estates or mobile home parks.

The forest industry accounted for another 25 names, of which eight came from the pulp industry.

Among municipalities making the list were the Capital Regional District, Cowichan Bay, Ucluelet, Greater Vancouver, Powell River, Vernon, the Central Kootenay Regional District, Burns Lake and the Bulkley-Nechako Regional District.

PLEADS NEIGHBOUR

Take away the trash!

LANGLEY - A frustrated Forest Hills resident told the township Monday that she's been getting the runaround for a year now, over her complaint about a mess at a neighbouring abandoned house. Pam Yearwood said the government should simply clean it up, even bulldoze the house, and send the bill to the owners. "I'm not going away till something is done."

Administrator Jim Godfrey told council that they had acted on Yearwood's complaint last year and assumed that the owner was cooperating voluntarily because there was an improvement, until the complaint came back and their research showed that the property had changed hands. Godfrey said they would take it up with the new owner and if nothing is done, they can send a crew in to "remedy the situation."

Council pointed out to Yearwood that heavyhanded measures are "a difficult problem" in that they'd lost other similar court cases. "We have to explore other ways," remarked mayor John Scholtens.

Action on child safety

LANGLEY – Businesses here are taking action on the safety of Langley's children. On two evenings, March 28 and April 4, a group of people from local businesses and volunteer service groups will learn about child abuse prevention.

Langley is once again a leader by being the first community in B.C. to offer a program created specifically for business people and volunteer service groups. The two seminars will cover practical topics such as hiring techniques, house rules, criminal record checks and other ways to increase child safety throughout the community.

The program is the result of a partnership between the Township of Langley and the Langley Chamber of Commerce, with assistance from Langley Family Services and Langley School District #35. The seminar will be delivered by the Red Cross' Child Abuse Prevention Program for Adolescents. Fun-ding for developing and presenting the program has been provided by the United Way of Greater Vancouver. The program also has the support of the Insurance Bureau of Canada.

Over the past year, as part of its child safety program, the Township of Langley has expanded its own screening procedures and training programs for staff and volunteers who are in regular contact with children. Now the Township is sharing its expertise with the business and volunteer sectors of the community to extend the safety network.

While this program is of greatest relevance to businesses and volunteer groups that are directly involved with children, it does provide practical advice that would be helpful to any business or organization when dealing with a number of situations that typically arise.

This two-evening program will be held from 7-9 pm on Tuesday, March 28 and Tuesday, April 4 at the ABC Restaurant in Langley. The cost of the program is $ 30 per person, which includes a light meal, a variety of handout materials and a certificate of participation. Limited seating is available. To register, call the Langley Chamber of Commerce at 530-6656.

Student writers sponsored

LANGLEY – For the eighth year, Realty World offices in B.C. sponsor the British Columbia English Teachers' Association Creative Writing Contest.

"We are very pleased to again join forces with the English Teachers' Association in this worthwhile cause," said Dougal Shewan of Realty World – Valley West.

"We wish to encourage all secondary students to develop their creative writing skills, especially in this age of high-tech. The improved communication skills will help the students regardless of the careers they pursue.

Substantial cash awards will be presented to winners, and all winning entries will be published in a book which will be widely distributed throughout the province.

Student submissions to the contest already have been received and judging has been concluded. "The number of entries has almost doubled. Without Realty World's assistance we would be forced to scale down the contest substantially. We can now give the winners appropriate recognition and build this contest into an important part of the school year," said BCETA president Sylvia Jones.

GV building stay above $3-billion

BURNABY – For the seventh straight year Greater Vancouver municipalities in 1994 issued building permits worth more than $ 3-billion.

According to figures compiled by the GVRD's Strategic Planning Department permits valued at $ 3.4-billion were issued in the region last year, down slightly from the previous year. The one-year record of $ 3.5-billion was set in 1992.

The total covers all forms of construction including residential, industrial, commercial, and institutional. Langley township's total dropped from $ 172-million to $ 164-million last year, while Langley city's dropped from $ 61.3-million to $ 41.8-million last year.

Residential construction again dominated the figures accounting for $ 2.3-billion of the total though the number of housing starts declined from 20,388 to 19,441. There were permits for 5,957 new single family houses and 10,331 apartment units.

Industrial activity was up sharply, from $ 196.4-million to $ 294.6 million. There were large increases in Vancouver, Richmond, Delta, New Westminster, North Vancouver district, Port Coquitlam, and Port Moody.

Commercial construction, mostly office and retail, dropped from $ 424.2-million to $ 380.3-million though there were major increases in Coquitlam, North Vancouver district, Surrey and Langley city. Vancouver, Burnaby, Port Coquitlam, and Port Moody recorded significant declines from the year before.

Institutional construction, mostly educational and hospital facilities, was down from $ 455.3-million to $ 336.3-million. Richmond, Burnaby, Port Moody, North Vancouver district and Langley township saw large increases while Vancouver, Coquitlam, Port Coquitlam, Surrey, White Rock and West Vancouver saw significant drops.

The little pond

I truly feel that it is Spring,
When the frogs begin to sing,
When the small pond in the field
Jumps with joy at Nature's yield.

Prolific is the Little Pond,
Harmonious the sound it spawned,
Mother Earth's abundancy said nothing of redundancy.

When sound waves make my ears vibrate
I also want to celebrate,
Along with them I want to sing
My Gloriosa to The Spring.

Politically correct hugging

LONDON - The 'non-threatening hug' was demonstrated recently at a workshop at a Green Party conference in Britain.

Instead of the full frontal embrace, which the party regards as menacing and sexually predatory, the Green hug is altogether more gentle and supportive.

A 'how-to-hug' leaflet will follow for those who could not attend the weekend workshop in southwest England.

The initial touch should be applied to the shoulders or the middle of the back - definitely not to the waist (too sexual) or the heads (too patronizing).

Next, an arm is placed around the shoulders, applied only from the side. It may be enhanced by a light yet affectionate squeeze. The final phase is the embrace from the front without the bodies touching.

Fort water contaminated

FORT LANGLEY - A recent hydrologist's report on water contamination in this village said that while municipal wells have not been adversely affected, there are a handful of private wells that are near or above Canadian standards for nitrate content. The Piteau Associates study was ordered by the township as part of its ongoing debate over sewerage service to the community, which is divided on whether it wants or can afford the service.

Coun. Trudi Campen, observing that both sides feel strongly about the issue, said the township should do more than just a random phone survey. "There's only about 2,500 people involved. We should hold open houses."

Coun. Muriel Arnason said there's no money in the budget to bring sewers into the town, and that two businessmen who have petitioned for sewers "are not a large delegation. The groundwater study is not all that negative. We owe it to the community to hold a referendum."

"A little pollution is like saying you're a little pregnant," countered coun. Steve Burton. "There's a problem in a certain area; we have to look into rectifying it."

Councilors agreed to follow staff recommendations to publicize the groundwater-septic tank impact study with a bulletin sent to residents, followed by a public opinion survey. "We're still open to doing more," noted Burton. "We're not limited to tonight's decision."

Reform opens office

ABBOTSFORD – Buoyed by the recently announced public opinion polls, Abbots-ford members of the Reform Party of British Columbia have recently opened an office, in preparation for the expected provincial by-election. The office is located in downtown Abbotsford, at 2469 Montrose Avenue.

"It's not a fancy place, but we rely solely on volunteers, and this place is more than adequate. It will serve us well,," stated Ray Feenstra, constituency president.

The February poll by Marktrend showed that BC Reform support had increased to 34%, right alongside the Liberals, with the NDP steady over the past three months at 25%. This shows a 5% increase for the BC Reform, and a 5% decrease for the Liberals over the previous month.

It is expected that a by-election will soon be called for this constituency. The Abbotsford seat was vacated by Harry DeJong on November 1. The government is obligated to fill the vacancy by setting a date by April 20, 1995. "Since Harcourt has now backed off the idea of calling a provincial election, we expect him to set the date any day now," said Feenstra.

BC Reform has called its nomination meeting for Monday, April 3. To date, three BC Reform members have stated their intention to seek the nomination.

Shelter wins Japanese housing contract for Kobe quake victims

ALDERGROVE – Local company, Shelter Industries Inc. has received a $ 3.1-million contract through the Hyogo Prefecture in Japan to build, transport and install a total of 100 housing units. The contract will provide temporary houses for Hyogo residents who lost their homes in the recent earthquake.

Shelter's president Harold Clifford said his company's factory-built modular structures are uniquely able to meet short time lines. Although the contract was awarded March 8, the first shipment will be delivered March 23, with three additional shipments ending April 13. In partnership with Northcrest Industries of Langley, the houses will be transported from Vancouver to Kobe.

Clifford said the initial request for proposals allowed only two days to prepare a submission. Nine bidders worldwide were chosen from 73 submissions. B.C. Trade and the Canadian Consulate in Osaka, "helped to secure the contract by promoting the capabilities of B.C. manufacturers."

Each unit provides 323 square feet and includes a separate entrance, full kitchen, bathroom, bedroom, and living and dining area. The 100 units are paired into 50 duplexes measuring 16' x 40'.

Shelter Industries is a leading custom designer and manufacturer of modular and relocatable buildings, and has twice received national awards for its rates of sales growth.

Alternatives to spanking

LANGLEY – Family Services is offering a workshop called Alternatives to Spanking, Monday, April 24, from 7 to 9 pm.

"You were probably yelled at, spanked or punished as a child and you turned out O.K. But there are different ways. Come and learn some positive discipline techniques," said Betty McClurg.

Preregistration is required. Cost is $ 10. per person. For further information call Agnes at 534-7921.

A Wake Up Call On Overdue Traffic Fines

If you have outstanding fines pay now or the account will be turned over to a collection agency. Funds can be redirected from your employer or bank account, drivers' licences will not be renewed and your credit rating could be affected.

Why should I pay now?

Your ticket specifically states payment is due within 30 days. Legislation is coming which will add interest to the outstanding amount. This legislation will become effective this spring. So, now is the best time to clear the slate.

Where can I pay?

Fines can be paid at any Government Agent's office, Driver Services Centre, MVB appointed agent's office, court locations or by mail to:

SENIORS' NEWS

Staying beautiful -- and alive

By MAUDE MacPHERSON

ALDERGROVE – Driving around an area in West Surrey where the homes are large and the gardens and lawns so beautiful it's plain to see spring has arrived. All the flowering shrubs are in full bloom, daffodils are everywhere.

Before too long computer cameras will be focused on Sunday drivers making sure they don't exceed the speed limit. This is not implemented yet but will be going through the legislature in the near future. I believe in some countries it's proving quite successful in cutting down the accident rate, and if that is the case we should be thankful.'

School break – I bet to most children it seems a long time since the Christmas holidays but to the seniors it's like the wink of an eye.

There was a good crowd out to carpet bowling Thursday, nineteen I believe.

The Choral Group sang at the Menno Hospital on Friday. The residents really seemed to enjoy our St. Patrick's Day members.

Don't forget the Art Show in the OAP hall April 1. I'll mention it again next week.

Winners at Friday night Bridge were: First prize went to Audry Scott, her score being 6830, second was Renie Rowley with 5920, third went to Muriel Arnason with 5810 and fourth prize winner was Jean Ingram-Johnson. The draw went to Barbara Hahn.

It will be Choral Group Whist again Thursday March 30 at 7:30 pm in the OAP hall. We've had ten tables, now lets try for twelve. There's only a few more parties before the summer break up, so let's do our best to swell the crowd.

There were 53 at Wednesday's dance. The three 50-50 winners were Karl Hollinder, Al Lane, Roy Anderson. The spot dance was won by Evelyn Janus and Del Overbeck. This week the Abbot Old Time Band will be playing on Wednesday and Saturday. Valley Ramblers provided the music for last weeks dances.

There were 56 at the Saturday dance; though the crowd was small it was very nice. Door prizes were won by Mabel Tour and Charlie Reid. The 50-50 draw went to Vern Nash, Anna Marie Jesse and Georgina Onstine. The two spot dances went to Evelyn Janus and Donald Wyers and Helen Souther and Jeff Johnson. Three birthdays were celebrated, Ed Sanders who is 95 years young, Bill Sutton, a mere lad of 60, and Pat. I didn't get her last name.

It was Helen and Cliff Southers third wedding anniversary.

Big week for the Thrift shop. Appreciation dinner for the workers Tuesday, and Saturday is the Fashion Show in the Mall.

This must conclude seniors activities for the week.

Wendall Holmes once said: A person is always startled when he hears himself seriously called an old man for the first time.

WATERMAIN FLUSHING

LANGLEY

WATERMAIN FLUSHING IN SALMON RIVER UPLANDS & TALL TIMBERS

As part of our Maintenance Program, the Municipal Water Department will be flushing watermains in your area on the dates shown below.

As a result of this flushing, you may notice changes in water pressure and there may be some discolouration or sediment in the water. However, this is a temporary condition and is not a health hazard.

To avoid inconvenience, check the water before doing laundry, and you may wish to keep water in the refrigerator for drinking and cooking.

For further information, please contact Mr. Nikkel, Superintendent of Utilities at 533-6009.

AIDS conference to offer wide range of information here

ALDERGROVE - Langley Health Unit is hosting a one-day conference on HIV, AIDS and the Community, April 28 at Aldergrove Community Secondary School. The school will be closed for Pro-D day that Friday, but students, teachers and others in the area are all welcome to attend the event.

LHU spokesperson, Carol Wong said the various workshop sessions will be of interest to everyone from professionals in health services to the general public. The program opens at 8:30 a.m. with speaker, Kim Richter, chair of the Langley Community Health Council, followed by a keynote address by Terrah Keener about global trends and issues that are coming closer to home.

This will be followed by twelve concurrent sessions on such issues as the disease's effect on the workplace, women, youth, as well as therapies, treatments and hospice services. The fee is $30, although those living with AIDS or HIV may attend free of charge. Lunch and refreshments are provided. Pre-registration is required by March 31; call the health unit office at 532-2300.

French contest here next week

LANGLEY – The annual French public speaking contest, le Concours d'art oratoire, takes place at Brookswood Secondary School on Wednesday, March 29, from 4 to 6 pm.

The objective of this event is to stimulate the interest of English speaking students in the learning of French. At all levels, Grade 6 to Grade 12, this contest gives students an opportunity to speak about a subject which is of particular interest to them.

The participants, 26 students from Grades 6 to 12, will be judged by three Langley School District teachers, and the winner in each category, cheered by classmates and proud parents, will be awarded a plaque. These students will go on to the provincial finals at U.B.C. on Saturday April 29.

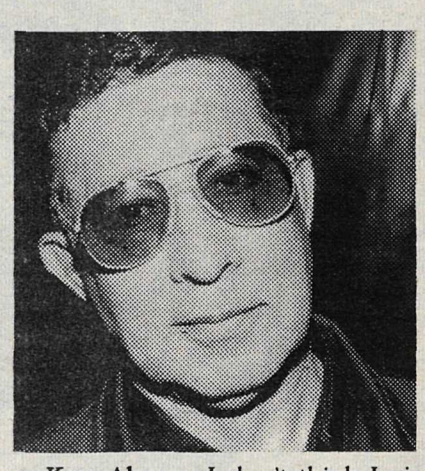
YOUR VOICE

Is Mikey in trouble?

By LARA BRODIE
and LOIS BRONK

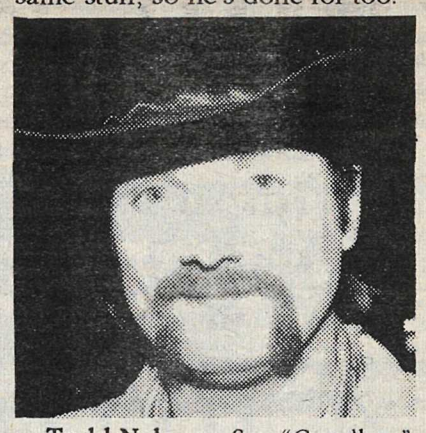
How do you visualize the future of Premier Harcourt?

Ernie Ingam: He's going down in popularity because of the cut backs in the medical.



Ken Akers: I don't think I visualize him too bad. He's got some bad press. We must remember our previous government, the decent, good ol' Socreds, where they led us. I think they're just making a lot of static to cover up some of their past goodies. I think the people are being misled a lot by the press...it's a little slanted. We're all innocent until proven guilty, this doesn't seem to be what's taking place.

Tony Bonderchuck: Short because of all his conflict of interest charges. He ran his election against Vander Zalm and his conflict of interest and he's doing the same stuff, so he's done for too.



Todd Nelson: Say "Goodbye", I think he's gone. I don't like the conflict of interest allegations against him and I think Gordon Campbell would make a better leader.

Linda Devitt: The way he's going he doesn't have much of a future. He's really screwing up and people are getting fed up with it. He's being caught in a lot of lies.

ALC to decide

LANGLEY - The township gave its endorsement to Philip and Beryl Oram's subdivision application to the Agricultural Land Commission. The 9.5 acres at 3636-254 Street would be split into two if approved by the ALC, as the township's rural plan designation and zoning allows minimum lot sizes of 4.2 acres in that area.

Hospice hopes for new north Langley home

LANGLEY - Hospice Society's executive director, Kay Johnson told the township that their plans for a four to ten bed facility for the dying may have land granted to them by either the Shepherd of the Valley church or Salvation Army Youth Centre in northwest Langley.

"By the time you're installing sewers there we'll be ready to plug in the toilets," she said, beaming. She gave council copies of the society's 63-page business plan which has been developed over the past year. She added that an offer of land near Langley Memorial Hospital had fallen through, but a more "pastoral" location was preferred for their "holistic approach" to caring for the terminally ill. "Hospices are not usually attached to a hospital."

The society, established in 1983, has 70 trained volunteers who provided care for 1,000 dying people and bereaving families last year. "We provide 4,000 hours of services monthly, and we're cost-effective," said Johnson.

Johnson said a hospice facility would only cost $200 a day per bed, compared to $600 to $1,000 for hospital care.

Help needed at hospice society

LANGLEY - The Hospice Society now has a new logo, created by Ernis Macina of Kwantlen College graphic design program. The four symbols represent the themes of change, sharing, support and caring.

The society also wants the public to know that they host meetings for grief support groups and volunteers every month at the Seniors' Resource Centre, 20605 - 51B Avenue. The groups are partly sponsored by United Way and details are available by calling the society office, 530-1115.

The support groups include meetings held the third Monday of the month, 7 to 9 p.m., as well as special meetings for parents who've lost a child at or before birth, on the first and third Monday of the month, 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Meetings for volunteers are held the last Monday of the month at 7 p.m.

They invite the public to become involved. Volunteers are always welcomed in helping support the dying and bereaved, or in office, bingo and other fundraising activities. Call 530-1115.

Big contract let for hospital expansion

LANGLEY – Future new facilities at Langley Memorial Hospital moved from planning to action this week with the decision to award the almost $ 10-million construction contract to Key Engineering Ltd. of Delta. The contract includes construction of a new maternity unit, expanded physiotherapy and occupational therapy space, the addition of a histopathology section to the laboratory, a new cafeteria and renovated areas to be dedicated to ambulatory (outpatient) clinics.

"These new facilities are an essential part of our plans to serve this community, and we're very pleased to have reached the construction phase of this project," said LMH president and CEO, Pat Zanon. "We're very much looking forward to when we can open these services for our patients."

The construction phase of the project is scheduled to start within a couple of weeks and will last about 20 to 24 months. Some disruptions will occur, as departments and services will be moved to accommodate construction activity. "Our goal is to keep disruptions to an absolute minimum", explained Karim Nurmohamed, director of planning for LMH.

"We've worked on arrangements to ensure that impact of noise, dust or diversions will be kept to a minimum," noted Nurmohamed. "The contractor has been given guidelines to follow regarding time restrictions on noisy work, maintaining safe access for patients and visitors, and requirements for sealed barriers around construction zones. We will also be careful to provide advance warning and additional signage when services have been moved from the regular locations.

Making sure everyone has an opportunity to find out about the construction project is another priority for LMH staff. As a result, regular progress reports will be issued for staff and physicians, as well as for the community generally.

Funds for this construction project have been provided by the Ministry of Health and the Greater Vancouver Regional Hospital District.

FVUS holds AGM

It will be held at the Fraser Valley Real Estate Board conference room, 15463 - 104 Avenue. Phone the society office for more information; 581-3363. All voting members and supporters are encouraged to attend. Coffee and tea will follow the business meeting.

Township council clarifies 1995 utility billings decision

LANGLEY – To help alleviate the concerns expressed by many people over the unexpected receipt of separate utility bills for the 1995 taxation year, township council has implemented the following changes:

- The penalty date has been moved from March 31, 1995 to July 4, 1995. The 10% penalty will only apply to those bills not paid by July 4, 1995.
- A 5% discount will be provided for those bills paid prior to or on March 31, 1995. If the bill has already been paid, the discount will be credited to the tax account.
- For those bills paid between April 1, 1995 and July 4, 1995, an interest rate of 1% per month from the date of payment to July 4th will be credited to the tax account.

Some residents have expressed an interest in paying early or alternatively, having their property taxes paid automatically by monthly pre-authorized charges from their bank account. If anyone is interested in tax payment on the instalment plan or wants more information about their utility billing, contact the collections department at 533-6005.

Council has taken note of the comments received from many residents and has taken the foregoing action to remove the inconvenience that may have been caused as a result of receiving the unanticipated separate billing rather than having it included as part of the annual property tax notice.

YOU CAN PARTICIPATE IN SETTLING LAND CLAIMS IN B.C.

All British Columbians will have an opportunity to be heard. When treaty negotiations are about to begin in your area, we will organize community meetings where you can speak directly with the B.C. negotiators.

We will establish local committees to advise our negotiators on local issues. Representatives of business, fish and wildlife, environmentalists, labour and other community groups will be included.

Your local government will work with our negotiators to ensure your community's interests are fully represented.

And, once an agreement-in-principle has been reached, you will have an opportunity to review and comment on it before a treaty is finalized.

WE'LL LET YOU KNOW WHAT'S GOING ON IN YOUR AREA.

It's our job to ensure that you hear about what is being negotiated, and where and when negotiations will take place - well before actual negotiations begin in your community.

When negotiations begin, they will be open and inclusive. You will be welcome to observe some main table negotiating sessions. Some may even be broadcast on local cable TV or radio. Watch your local newspaper for dates and times of treaty negotiation sessions in your area.

Spring the start of 'flood season'

OTTAWA – At the end of our long Canadian winter, the eagerly awaited "spring thaw" can also be accompanied by serious flooding.

Although floods can and do happen at any time of year, many parts of Canada are particularly vulnerable to spring flooding caused by combinations of prolonged rainfall, rapid thawing of snow and ice, ice jams on fast-flowing rivers and unseasonably mild temperatures. Usually, there is at least some warning before such conditions result in major flooding.

On the other hand, flash floods – as the name implies – start with little warning and the waters subside as quickly as they rose. Such flooding often accompany violent storms, hurricanes, dam bursts, earthquakes and torrential rainfalls. A broken water main can sometimes have the same effect.

Flooding, however caused, costs Canadians millions of dollars annually and often brings grief and hardship to those whose possessions, homes and property are destroyed or damaged.

We all have a basic responsibility to protect and prepare ourselves, our family and our property in the event a flood or other potential disaster threatens. The following is some advice from Emergency Preparedness Canada, the federal government organization responsible for promoting preparedness for all kinds of emergencies:

If a flood threatens:

• Do what you can to prepare and protect your home and property from the effects of flooding, such as moving electrical appliances, books, documents and valuables to higher ground and/or protecting them with plastic.

• Remove potential toxic pollutants such as pesticides and chemicals out of the basement and garage and off the ground, to where they are not likely to mix with and contaminate floodwaters.

• Be prepared to stay in your home without electricity for a prolonged period. Prepare a supply of food, water and other necessities.

• Have a battery-powered radio, a flashlight and spare batteries.

• Be prepared to evacuate your home on short notice. Assemble appropriate food, clothing, footwear, documents, medication and other essentials to take with you.

• Keep sufficient gas in your vehicle so you can try to drive out of the danger area, if advised to do so by emergency officials.

• Be prepared to shut off the electricity and gas supply in your home, if the utility company has not already done so.

During a flood:

• Keep a battery-powered radio with you at all times – or tune in the car radio – so you can listen to emergency instructions on a local radio station.

• If evacuating by car and the motor stalls in a flooded area, abandon the vehicle immediately and seek refuge on higher ground. You risk endangering your life by staying with a stalled vehicle in rapidly rising floodwaters.

• Do not attempt to shut off the electricity in an already flooded building. You risk electrocution.

After the flood:

• Do not re-occupy a flooded home or building until there is a safe water supply and a satisfactory system to dispose of sewage and garbage.

• If, when you return, the basement is still full of floodwater, drain it in stages – about a third of the volume of water per day. This will help avoid structural damage which can happen if the water is removed too quickly.

• Water in a flooded basement should be disinfected every three or four days – if the house is occupied – by adding liquid bleach to the standing water.

• Make sure all heating systems, electrical appliances and wiring touched by the floodwater are checked by a qualified technician before using them again.

• Dispose of all cosmetics, medicines, toiletries, food in boxes, contents of the refrigerator and freezer that have been in contact with floodwaters. Also dispose of food in jars and bottles if floodwaters could have seeped in or contaminated the seals.

Cadets down to the sea in tall ships

ALDERGROVE - Members of Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps Columbia here are spending their spring break in Comox, participating in the Pacific region Sailing Regatta hosted by national defence.

The annual training exercise will see 250 sea cadets sail in the tall ship Maple Leaf, train in sailing cutters and auxiliary craft, and 80 more wil participate in the sailing regatta. Army cadets are spending spring break at CFB CHilliwack and Cadet Camp Albert Head near Victoria, working on national gold star qualification, or else on marksmanship and parachuting. Air cadet squadrons are visiting air bases in both Canada and the USA.

In addition, a tri-service senior cadet music instructor band clinic was held March 18-19 in Richmond.

The sea cadet training establishment HMCS Quadra, near Comox, hosts an annual training exercise and sailing regatta, this year between March 17-24. The exercises, called Quest '95, allow landlocked cadet corps a sea training experience.

At the same time, 74 sea cadets from 17 corps throughout B.C. are competing in the 18th annual regatta. There are 37 teams of two cadets competing over the five days, with the winners taking the title of best in B.C., and representing B.C. at the national regatta to be held in August at Halifax.

Cadets are a national coed program for youths aged 12 to 18, co-sponsored by the civilian cadet leagues. There are 5,000 cadets in 118 units in B.C.

per hour.

Weisgerber accused the government of engaging in deceptive billing practices to hide the cost of the Government Communications Office.

"It's obvious to me they were using NOW to cover all kinds of activities probably very political in nature. Without proper fiscal controls, we'll never know," the Reform leader said.

His party has asked Auditor-General George Morfitt to investigate.

Lloyd told the press that his agency had never done anything deceitful or improper.

The cost of publicizing the two forest programs was always supposed to be split among the environment ministry, his office and the forests ministry with the latter, for simplicity's sake, paying all the bills.

"This came up when the people at the forests ministry got concerned because the money was slow in coming from the environment ministry. I don't believe the guy (Challenger) was even aware of the arrangement," Lloyd said.

The Liberals also released documents which, they claimed, showed Employment and Investment Minister Glen Clark gave two contracts worth $190,000 to NOW Communications in 1993, without tendering.

Liberal MLA Gary Farrell-Collins (Aldergrove-Fort Langley) said this violated the premier's 1991 campaign promise to tender all public contracts.

"Glen Clark has been caught red-handed violating the tendering process," Farrell-Collins said.

Museum opens next week

FORT LANGLEY - The B.C. Farm Machinery and Agricultural Museum will be open to the public daily from Saturday, April 1 until Thanksgiving weekend. Fifteen volunteers have been working Mondays throughout the winter months and many days in between, preparing new exhibits and restoring farm equipment.

The wooden Dempster windmill has been powered by an electric motor through a reduction gear to lift water from the lower floor by way of a jack pump to a tank on the main floor. Part of the flow returns to the tank while another part of the flow is delivered to a hydraulic ram which in turn lifts water up two stories to power a small water wheel.

The buggy collection will be displayed on a raised platform with other exhibits below. The Tired Iron crew have restored a three-wheel David Bradley row crop tractor ready for the Fort Langley May Day parade, and are currently restoring a 1929 Minneapolis tractor. A recently restored Farmall International tractor is also ready to make its debut on May Day.

A restored log boring machine and turning lathe, first used to make the wooden pipe used in laying irrigation water on the upper Arrow Lakes benchland will be working on opening day. Similar machines were used to manufacture wooden water pipe in towns like New Westminster, Hope and Quesnel.

The front entrance has been spruced up with a new paint job and new shingles. The ladies have been busy craeting a farm kitchen display near the entrance to entice passersby into the museum.

The museum is entirely operated by volunteers and has to depend on admission fees to pay the bills and keep the doors open. Without the Langley Township government grant in lieu of taxes annually, it would be impossible to remain open and expand their exhibits and restoration projects.

The museum directors encourage school tours by appointment. They also invite volunteers to join them in work projects once a week or month. Those interested should call Bessie Shuman at 888-4779.

Trip to Lummi

Teacher fights Goliath

From front....

Canadian citizens are functionally illiterate, it is unconscionable as professionals to withdraw services."

The LTA wanted a 100% closed shop and that is what they got, by pressuring the board into helping them.

When the whole thing started she had prepared herself, knowing that the union would probably back the board into a corner. She said there was a tacit agreement that if the board didn't meet the union's demands they would shut down all schools, a risk they could not afford to take.

She understand the board's and the union's stances, and doesn't blame anyone specific for her dismissal, but says it could have been handled better.

"The situation is a war, and in all wars there are casualties. They could have been more apologetic and understanding about it," she said.

Janzen prepared herself for the possibility of losing her job by opening up a tutoring clinic during the summer of 1990. She kept it going by working with students on weekends and when she was finally fired, it became her full-time career.

"For a while I was teaching at Shortreed Elementary during the week and at the clinic on Saturdays, trying to get enough students to make this a full-fledged venture." Currently she has about 45 students enrolled in various courses in Math, English, French, English as a Second Language, and other classes.

She also has 10 student teachers, from Trinity Western and Simon Fraser Universities, in their third year of education, working as assistants and trying to increase their chances of being accepted into the professional development program.

Janzen herself is highly educated, having a Bachelor of Education Degree from UBC and a Masters in Teaching Exceptional Children and a Masters in Elementary Administration from Western Washington University.

"I like having control over the running of the clinic without having to cater to anyone except the needs of the students and parents."

The children vary from the exceptionally bright to the learning disabled and everything in between.

"Some children are very gifted in some areas and a little slower in others, so we concentrate on what they need."

Each student is assessed when they come to the clinic, with a learning style inventory and then each student is set up an individual plan designed for their needs, and a copy of the assessment is given to parents.

Some students come for a month, and some come for years if they need the help.

For now Janzen hopes to proceed with her court case, and she hopes that Harcourt will listen to her plea and change the laws. The National Citizens' Coalition is helping her with her case but they cannot afford to lose to the CLC either

"Until the laws are changed I cannot proceed because I can't risk the millions of dollars involved.

"I hope not only for my sake but for others as well that I can proceed with my case. It's not just teachers but people across Canada in all walks of life that are forced to unionise as a condition of employment, where they may not want to."

Janzen said it will take a long time before she may be able to get her job back, at which time she will be close to retirement age, but the fight is not just for her, it's for everyone to practice their rights under the Charter of Rights and Freedoms as set by the federal government.
