Lieut. Eielsen today disclosed something of their plans for an antarctic exploration.

They will leave about October 1 for Panama and a Norwegian whaling vessel will carry them and their plane down the west coast of South America to Graham Land. From there flights will be made to the Ross sea and photographs taken of the coast line and unexplored antarctic territory.

Although Commander Byrd's antarctic expedition will leave about the same time, this is not to be a race for the antarctic, Lieut. Eielsen said, although some had so described it. The purposes are entirely different.

The annual treaty ration is almost negligible in providing a yearly sustenance, said Mr. Cummins.

MAKE WORK FOR THE HOME FOLKS TOLMIE'S POLICY

Plug Leak of Population to the States By Industries He Proposes

ENCOURAGE MINING AND AGRICULTURE

Leader Speaks at Nanaimo Upon His Planks; Maitland, Shelly Also

NANAIMO, B.C., July 15.—Hon. S. F. Tolmie, R. L. Maitland, W. C. Shelly and V. B. Harrison, local candidate, addressed a meeting of electors here Saturday night. Dr. Tolmie devoted some time to the work which he had accomplished while British Columbia's representative in the federal house, and speaking of the Conservative plans "when elected on the eighteenth".

Mining would receive more encouragement than in the past; the abolishment of the free miner's licence would be one step toward encouraging prospectors, and the non-taxation of mines until they were producing a net revenue would also be considered. Agriculture should be encouraged and scientifically catered to. He instanced the fact that with huge range lands available, British Columbia last year imported 75 per cent of its beef, paying $5,750,000 for meat which should have been spent in British Columbia.

MAKE WORK AT HOME

The leak of population to the States must be plugged, stated Dr. Tolmie, and the way to do this was to encourage the manufacture of British Columbia's raw products and furnish work for Canadians in Canada.

He favored the opening up of the province through good roads, but would not use a Scotch policy of seeing that a dollar's value was received for every dollar expended.

Civil servants, contrary to the predictions of the Liberals, would not be discharged when the Conservatives were returned to power, provided they were efficient. He would keep them on the job whether they were Conservatives, Liberals or Holy-Rollers, if they were efficient.

CLIMBED INTO PREPARED GRAVE IN ICE TO AWAIT DEATH; REFUSED TO GO ON

"At the Price of My Life, You'll Save All," He Told His Two Companions, Who Left Him Behind; Mariano Just Rescued in Time

THICK ICE FORMING ON ITALIA WAS CAUSE OF TRAGEDY; EYEWITNESS SAYS SHIP BLEW UP

Two Men Wandering on Ice Saw Six Airplanes, but Could Not Attract Attention; Graphic Account of Tragedy Told by Russian Relief Worker

MOSCOW, July 15.—A graphic account of the tragedy that befell Dr. Finn Malmgren, noted Swedish meteorologist, including his burial alive in an icy grave, is given in a radiogram to Tass, Soviet news agency, from Professor Samoilovitch, head of the Russian relief expedition aboard the ice breaker Krassin. Captain Mariano and Captain Zappi, companions of the scientist, were rescued by the ship last week and are now recuperating from their harrowing experience.

The three men left the main group of Italia survivors to try to find help and wandered aimlessly about in an ice-bound world until Dr. Malmgren could go no further. Acceding to Professor Samoilovitch request for details as to how Malmgren died, Zappi said.

"In our march landward, we suffered untold privation. For days we drifted on floating ice. Several miles northwest of Broke island, Malmgren was unable to march on and told us to go ahead and take all the provisions. Before leaving Malmgren asked us to dig a grave in the ice and he lay down quietly. He stretched out his hand bidding us goodbye and handing us his compass requested us to give it to his mother.

URGED THEM TO LEAVE

"We plodded on slowly and in 24 hours were only 100 meters from Malmgren. We saw Malmgren raise his head. Hoping that, driven by hunger, he would go on with us, we waited. Realizing this Malmgren cried: 'Go, go, at the price of my life, you'll save all.'

"We marched on, suffering great privation. One mile from Broke island, Mariano became blind and again we drifted with the ice. During our wanderings we saw six airplanes only a mile distant, but none save Chukhnovsky, Russian aviator, saw us, despite our frantic signals.

"For 12 days we did not eat anything. Mariano felt death approaching at the sight of Chukhnovsky's plane and begged me to place his body aboard the plane after death, should the flyer land. Upon seeing the Krassin, Mariano regained his ebbing life."

THE CRASH

The Italia crashed on May 24, according to the account from Professor Samoilovitch as related to him by Zappi. Thick ice formed on the dirigible and she sank earthward. When the gondola struck the ice two passengers were hurtled out and the meterist was killed and buried in the ice by his companions.

"The balloon was freed from the gondola," the radiogram continued, "and rose skyward into the distance and soon exploded and burst into flames. The man fixed the radio but could only hear, not send.

"On May 30, Malmgren, Mariano and I went in the direction of Cape Nord, hoping to meet Norwegian tradesmen taking provisions."

CRIES WHEN HER LAVISH PENSION IS SIX DOLLARS

Liberals Ask Her If Worth Party's While to Get Her Raise, Borden Tells

WOMEN SPEAKERS TALK UPON SOCIAL RECORD

Conservative Party Pioneered in That Field Long Before World Wave

How Mrs. Mary Ellen Smith, who was here in the Liberal interests at the byelection last fall, visited an aged lady and promised her an old age pension; how the pension, when after many months it came through, was for the princely sum of $6 a month, causing the recipient to yield tears in her disappointment; and how in the present election Liberal representatives went to her and asked her if it would be worth the party's while to get her pension raised to $20, was related Saturday evening by Dr. L. E. Borden, Conservative candidate, to a moderate audience at the opera house.

This illustration of the plane on which the government was administering the sacred trust of the old age pensions, half of the cost of which is borne by the Dominion, showed the government's debasement, Dr. Borden pointed out, and also showed what faith could be put in the hopes held out to unfortunates by those acting for the government.

As. Mrs. W. M. Gowans of Grand Forks, who made a splendid address on the subject of legislation of interest to women, and Mrs. R. W. Chalmers of Thrums, who at practically no notice was called on to give an address, both emphasized the subject of social legislation, as well as Dr. Borden, it became the main topic of the night, the women speakers pointing out that the Liberals originated very little of the legislation for which they claimed almost exclusive credit.

CONNECTIONS MISSED

Non-arrival until nearly midnight of the Crow boat, on which Mayor George H. Morden of North Vancouver, and W. K. Esling, M. P. for Kootenay West, were coming for the meeting, made it out of the question to hold the meeting for them, and it was brought to a close by Chairman R. G. Roy, vice-president of the Nelson Conservative association, soon after 10 o'clock, after a very effective hour and a half of discussion of public issues.

In everybody's mouth and wherever one went was the expression of opinion, "It is time for a change," Dr. Borden said. For such a universal opinion there must be a reason, and the reason was to be found in the misdeeds of the government. These misdeeds characterized every major aspect of the government's handling of affairs.

POCKETBOOKS HIT SAYS BORDEN

First was the pocketbook aspect, for when the net debt, the excess of obligations over the assets available to meet, was more than quadrupled in 12 years, rising from $19,000,000 to $85,000,000, the pocketbook of every taxpayer was affected. Taxation had also multiplied, and was the highest of any province in Canada by an enormous margin. He mentioned a lady on the outskirts of Nelson whose taxes were four times what they formerly were. These increases of debt and of taxes were brought about by a waste and extravagance that broke the pledges of the Liberals to reduce debt, reduce taxes and give economy and efficiency.

P. G. E. PLEDGES UNREDEEMED

Just as unfortunate was the dependence of the people on the government's P. G. E. promises, said Dr. Borden. The government, after years of broken promises and losses on the P. G. E., finally in 1924 made one more promise of completion, undertaking to complete it from Squamish to Prince George by September, 1925. At the ensuing session the King's Speech announced an agreement had been entered into for completing the road between those points. The year 1925 passed and no such occurrence took place but Dr. MacLean, speaking at Prince George, told the people of that district it was the government's policy to build the link from Quesnel to Prince George. Finally last session Premier MacLean and Hon. A. M. Manson told the house a solution had been arrived at, but would give no details. Later it was set forth that in view of fresh negotiations with the government at Ottawa toward getting the Canadian National to take over the road, it was "not advisable to begin construction at present."

After all these visions from Victoria, Hon. C. A. Dunning stated in the house at Ottawa on June 6 last, that the P. G. E. was in exactly the same position as numerous other railways throughout Canada, that the management of the Canadian National was not authorized to make a settlement, and that any deal that was made would have to come before parliament for ratification.

Crowning the government's record of years of broken pledges and unredeemed planks in connection with the P. G. E., Premier MacLean now insulted the electorate with the claim that his government alone could negotiate with Ottawa and made one more promise that if returned he would make a deal.

CONSERVATIVES FOR GOOD ROADS

One of the great mediums of waste under the Liberals was the department of public works, said Dr. Borden, its methods being extravagant, and not giving a fair return to the public for its money spent on road construction, friends of the government often benefitting while the treasury suffered.

To place the department of public works on a public tender basis, and to give value for every dollar expended on the roads, was one of the objects to which the Conservative party under Hon. S. F. Tolmis was pledged, Dr. Borden said.

He said he would use every effort to improve and extend the provincial road system in this territory, would in particular work to have roads of a high standard between Nelson and Trail, Nelson and the boundary line, and Trail and the boundary line, and would press for the realization of all roads vital to the development of the district.

GOVERNMENT AND SOUTHERN ROUTE

Though Hon. Dr. Sutherland had given the boards of trade of the southern district innumerable assurances that the government would complete the southern route before commencing another transcontinental, he noted that the minister at Arrowhead promised connection from this district to the "main transcontinental," his reference being to one up north. "We have absolutely no desire to hurt Revelstoke," said the candidate, "but when Dr. Sutherland is making these promises of a new transcontinental up north, it is up to us to stand on our rights and demand fulfillment of the government's pledges to this district."

Dr. Borden declared that the province, under Dr. Tolmie, would have a mining, industrial and agricultural development that would bring the prosperity to which all had long looked forward.

MRS. GOWANS ON DICKYBIRD

Mrs. Gowans, justifying the women in taking every possible interest in politics, to help control conditions in the country in which their children would live, said a very large proportion of the social legislation in this province arose from movements undertaken by women's clubs and associations of a non-partisan character. Liberal promises in return for women's support, she said, were like the promises the photographer made to the child—"Now smile, and you'll see the dickybird."

"Have we seen the dickybird?" she asked, amid laughter.

"Don't accept Liberal claims to social legislation unthinkingly," she cautioned, pointing out that all over the world for the past decade ideals of social advance had been in the air, and the government that enacted social legislation was only going with the current. On the other hand, in a decade when the world was not thinking socially, a Conservative government in British Columbia was pioneering in social legislation, and putting on the statutes act an act that was basic to the welfare of working men and women and to the welfare of the humble home, and of the child.

CONSERVATIVES PIONEERED IN SOCIAL FIELD

Before any wave of social reform had started to roll over the civilized world, she pointed out, the Conservatives in this province legislated to safeguard wages to the family of a deceased workman; placed the anti-tuberculosis movement on a legislative basis; enacted a Factories act that protected workmen as to safetly and conditions of work, women and girls as to hours, health and permitted occupations, and children as to immunity from factory labor; brought in government inspection of hospitals and of like institutions; set up juvenile courts for the protection of young delinquents; ordained medical inspection of schools; placed employment agencies under a licence system; provided a provincial home for girls; arranged maintenance for deserted wives; admitted women to the practice of law; arranged for inheritance on a fairer basis; provided for better guardianship of infants; brought the moving picture industry under a censorship for the protection of the young; placed on the statutes the Married Women's Property act; enacted the Workmen's Compensation act; and placed on the statutes the Women's Franchise act, to become operative if favorably voted on by the electors, as actually occurred.

FOR MOTHERS' BENEFIT

Mrs. Gowans declared the Conservative party today strongly approved and upheld the splendid principle of mothers' pensions, and was on record by the Kamloops convention as seeking only to better it.

Further, the party proposed to bring in maternity benefits, applying the principle at first partially, and then giving it wide application as the province's finances improved.

Credit for first bringing up old age pensions was given by Mrs. Gowans to local union No. 6, United Mine Workers, at Nanaimo, which proposed this principle in 1906. It was next taken up by a Conservative federal member for Ontario, Mr. Pringle, in 1908, but Hon. Mr. Lemieux, then minister of Labor, claimed that the proposal was unconstitutional. Some eight years later Mr. Meighen gave the idea encouragement and promised his assistance, later fulfilled.

"Are we doing our duty when we allow our wonderful province to be placed under a great burden of debt, when we allow it to be overrun by Orientals, and when we consent to conditions under which our children are forced to go to other lands to find employment?" asked Mrs. Gowans.

She said she was just as good a poet as the author of the couplet who urged the electors to return Premier MacLean. Her version was:

"If we would happiness and prosperity regain,
On July 18 reject MacLean!
(Laughter.)

MRS. CHALMERS GIVES ORIGINS

Mrs. Chalmers, who spoke ex tempore for only a few minutes, said it was very amusing to hear the Liberals claim to have given women the vote, in view of the fact that the measure was on the statute-book at the end of May, 1916, while the Liberals did not come into office until September.

It was similarly hard for the women's organizations that had worked so hard to secure mothers' pensions to admit the sweeping claims of the Liberals for that legislation.

The real origin of the mothers' pensions movement in the province must be acribed, she said, to Miss Barrow of Chilliwack, who wrote a leaflet on the history of the new movement in some of the states, and broadcast it to the women's organizations. At first the organizations did nothing but note the matter, but after a while each began to find cases in which such a thing as a mother's pension would be just the thing.

Finally, said Mrs. Chalmers, to feeling on this matter was brought to a head by the local council of women in Vancouver, which requested all women's organizations in the province to join in sending a delegation to Victoria to take up the matter with the Oliver government. It happened that the organization representing the women's institutes was in session at New Westminster, Mrs. Chalmers being a member of it, and it was decided to cooperate, but in view of the expense, the delegation was restricted to one person. In view of Miss Barrow's grasp of the subject, her pioneer work in the matter, and the fact that she was a Liberal, she was sent.

Premier Oliver told her he would think about the matter and give her his view later, but Miss Barrow on the whole came away feeling rather depressed.

Then, as instructed, she also waited on Mr. Bowser, then leader of the opposition, who assured her that under no circumstances would be offer any opposition to a measure on those lines if properly worked out.

"That I believe to be the true story of the origin of mothers' pensions," stated Mrs. Chalmers.

THE CANCELLED PENSIONS

Mrs. Chalmers made mention of the cases of two women, who happened to be Conservatives, having their mothers' pensions cancelled, regarding which she said Dr. H. H. MacKenzie had attacked her from the platform in Nelson. She said she was a very good friend of Dr. MacKenzie, and regretted that he had allowed himself to be overcome by his political feelings. Dr. MacKenzie's explanation of the cancelling of one of the pensions—he did not deal with the other—was that the woman owned two pieces of property. His position apparently was that the woman should sell one piece, and survive as best she could while waiting for a purchaser.

When the Conservatives got into power, if a woman really needed help, even if she had two pieces of land that help would be forthcoming, for the Conservatives proposed to correct the weaknesses of the act, and to exclude politics altogether from mothers' pensions.

She was also attacked at South Slocan for mentioning this case. One Liberal speaker said he had investigated it, and sent the woman provisions. If this were the case, Mrs. Chalmers said, her calling attention to the matter had resulted in some benefit.

TELLS TRAILITES PRESS REPORTS ARE SCANDALOUS

Mrs. Rutherford Declares Reports Are Insult to the Electors

MacDONALD DISCUSSES LABOR LEGISLATION

Also Talks of Finances and Freight Rates; Present Mrs. Rutherford

TRAIL, B.C., July 15.—"It is an insult to the electors for the press, including the Nelson Daily News, to cry out the extravagance of the Liberal Government. They have held the Conservative party high up in an effort to put the Liberal party out of power. The press reports are scandalous," stated Mrs. William Rutherford of Nelson in addressing the Trail Liberal ladies at a social tea, on behalf of Donald MacDonald, Liberal candidate for Rossland-Trail riding, Saturday afternoon.

"The Conservatives have never done a thing to help the legislation of the province," continued Mrs. Rutherford. "What chance you have, among other candidates, for president of some club, if a friend reporter of one of the candidates attended every meeting. The propaganda written in the press is disgraceful."

CHANGES POLITICS

The speaker declared that when she came to British Columbia 31 years ago there was very little politics. The Conservative party had taken the reigns of power and carried on with extravagance. She said that she was a Conservative supporter but the extravagance was so great that when the Liberals took over the government in 1916 she turned Liberal.

She thought Premier J. D. MacLean was a man of good caliber and a good statesman and that he was the man to handle the affairs of the province.

In dealing with the Mothers' pension acts she said it was one of the finest acts on the statute books, and that the British Columbia government was first in Canada to indorse it. "We lead the way in health protection and as a consequence this province has the second lowest in mortality of any province or government in the world," she said.

ROADS ARE BETTER

Mrs. Rutherford spoke on road conditions in the province and declared they were in better shape today than they were 10 years ago. She remarked on the letter published by a Conservative engineer who stated that the Rossland-Cascade road was scientifically constructed.

The people didn't know the debt the government had to deal in 1916, and also the condition of the P. G. E., stated the speaker. Today the financial standing of British Columbia was such that this province could borrow money at lower rates of interest than any province in the Dominion.

Donald MacDonald, the candidate, discussed the labor legislation which was claimed by the Conservative party, and also dealt with the finances of the province. He also discussed freight rates.

On behalf of the Trail Liberal ladies little Miss Barchard presented Mrs. Rutherford with a lovely bouquet of flowers.

Mrs. D. Forrest, president, was in the chair.

VANCOUVER SURE OF CONSERVATIVE SWEEP WIRE SAYS

Coast Campaign Managers Wire Ewings, Trail; Libs Also Confident

TRAIL, B.C., July 15.—With fast approach of polling day, members of both political parties contesting Rossland-Trail riding are expressing confidence in the result.

Not only is the local outcome a matter of speculation and discussion, but province-wide predictions are being made that indicate that both parties are entirely confident that they will be returned to power on Wednesday.

Alex Ewings, president of the Rossland-Trail Conservative association, has received the following wire:

"After careful canvass, sure of electing solid six in Vancouver city by handsome majority. Reports from surrounding seats and Fraser valley indicate Conservative sweep.

"A. C. DesBrisay,
"V. A. Rollins,
"Campaign managers."

Fred Fraser, president of Rossland-Trail Liberal association and campaign manager for Donald McDonald, Liberal candidate, states that he has received reports from various parts of the province which indicate that the MacLean government will be returned with a clear working majority over all the parties in the house.

"Our leader and candidates throughout the country radiate nothing but confidence," stated Mr. Fraser.

Federal Member Discusses Social Legislation and State of Finances

ROSSLAND, B.C., July 15.—One of the pleasant features of the present provincial campaign was the smoker held in Velvet hall, Friday evening under the auspices of the Conservative association. W. K. Esling opened the affair with a brief address on the political situation, taking up the social legislation which had been passed from time to time, and dealing with the present financial position of the province. He laid special stress on the need of a permanent road between here and Trail, and of one from here to Paterson to match the one being constructed by the state of Washington.

Cards were played for a couple of hours, and social intercourse enjayed. Community singing added to the entertainment, James Vipond presiding at the organ.

W. J. Weir acted as chairman for the evening, the others on the committee being S. S. Jarvis, Horatio Cherrington, John G. Taylor, S. W. Forteath, Walter Sanderson, C. H. Clegg and M. E. Harper.

THE LADIES ARE ESPECIALLY INVITED

Leary Experienced in Legislature
Let Him Continue His Good Work For Kaslo-Slocan Riding

To the careful student of the business of government in British Columbia, the outstanding issue in the coming general election is the calibre of the party candidates, their business experience and their ability to place before the government and the legislature the needs and rights of their various districts.

An unbiased review of the platforms of both Liberals and Conservatives shows in clear manner that no new issues are at stake, that the present opposition has nothing to offer that has not already engaged the serious attention of the MacLean government. In other words, the Liberal platform is recognized by the Conservatives as all that it should be. The difference in opinion is that the opposition hold the opinion that they can carry out the program better than the present administration.

Can Inexperienced Men Do as Well?
In short, what concerns the electors most is the question: Can a new board of directors, mostly inexperienced men in the realm of public service, improve upon the management of British Columbia's affairs by the MacLean government?

We think not. The finances of the province are in excellent condition. This is indisputable and needs no further argument. British Columbia's credit is better than that of any other province in Canada. Such a condition reflects efficient and economical management in a pronounced manner.

Leary Has Demonstrated His Ability
In the potentially rich constituency of Slocan-Kaslo who is the man best fitted to fight for the interests of the riding at Victoria? The man who has already demonstrated in every way his ability to secure the utmost for his district, or the novice in politics who is sadly handicapped in his efforts by his very inexperience?

Secured Largest Appropriation in Province for His Riding
Mr. Leary has steadily forced his way in the British Columbia legislature, until today he is recognized as one of the strongest members in the house. His fight for improved forestry conditions has borne fruit. So clearly has he brought home to the government the need for immense sums for development that he has secured the largest appropriation in the province.

For Slocan-Kaslo's Greater Prosperity
Slocan-Kaslo's present member has produced results. The eyes of British Columbia and, in fact, the eyes of the business world of Canada are centered on the immense mineral resources of this district. The commercial world is coming to Slocan-Kaslo for metals. Roads and trails are being built. More are needed, and will be built. Prosperity is at our door and we need a strong man, an experienced parliamentarian, at Victoria to see that our progress is not impeded.

Vote for Sid Leary who has proved his ability to get results for Kaslo-Slocan

Cold Comfort for the Farmers in This Lawyer's Argument

At a Liberal meeting at South Slocan, J. W. DeB Farris, former attorney-general and one of the most brilliant political speakers in the province, developed an argument on the anti-dumping question along somewhat new lines.

He is reported as stating that "obviously this legislation was only intended for articles of merchandise, since the actual words used were 'used and unused goods'. Now, fruit," said Mr. Farris, "cound not by any stretch of the imagination be considered as goods."

That is a very clever lawyer's argument, but it is not very convincing in face of the fact that the anti-dumping act, ever since the Conservatives made it effective, HAS BEEN APPLIED against fruit which the Americans wanted to dump. That is, it has been applied until this season, when the Liberal government at Ottawa, defended by its government friends in this province, decided to throw overboard the interests of the fruit and vegetable growers of Canada to please its political supporters in the prairies.

Change of Government a Safeguard of People's Interests

It is now only two days to the general election, the most momentous general election since 1916.

In 1916, after the Conservatives had been in power for 13 years, the people decided on a change and they threw them out and placed the Liberals in power.

It is now 1928 and the Liberals have been in power for 12 years and there is every indication that the people have again decided that it is time for a change.

We possess in this British country a democratic system of government, one of the safeguards of which is the ability of the people to make a change in administration whenever they consider the government of the day has been there long enough. It is a fact, proved by history, that governments serve the people best when they are new. After they have held power for a number of years they develop weaknesses. They lose sight of the best interests of the people and get into the hands of what we call the party machine, selfish interests bent on their own profit and aggrandizement.

In the present house of 48, the Conservatives have 17 members, the Liberals, 24. It does not require a turnover in many seats to result in a change in government. Vancouver alone—and everyone knows how the government has lost the confidence of the people of Vancouver—will almost bring about an overthrow of the government. It is evident that other Liberal seats besides Vancouver are going to turn against the government in this election.

It looks as if only a miracle could save the government from defeat.

What the Press Is Saying

Fooling With P. G. E.

It is only a week now to election day, and still there is no useful word from Premier MacLean as to the status of his negotiations with Ottawa about the P. G. E. Either he has nothing to tell us—except the disingenuous and unintelligent plea that we should elect him because the Dominion government will deal sooner with him than with Dr. Tolmie about the P. G. E.—or else he is keeping something up his sleeve to make an eleventh hour election roorback with. And meanwhile he has infested some of his ministers—unless they had contracted it long ago—with the same malignant disease of narrow and intolerant partisanship which distorts his own outlook on his duty and responsibility and they go about the country saying things which they ought to be ashamed to say.

* * *

Mr. Attorney-General Manson, for instance, ought to be ashamed to say, as he remarked in a campaign speech in Princeton the other day: "If I, as attorney-general, were trying to win a case, I would select a lawyer friendly to the judge."

Mr. Manson, of course, was talking about the business of trying to make a deal for the federal authorities to take over the P. G. E. And all he could find to say was the cheap and unworthy thing said by his chief. We are not going to insult the intelligence of our readers, as Mr. Manson insults the intelligence of the electors, by assuming that they do not know why this bid for votes is an unworthy and a dishonest thing. But we say that if that is really the way Mr. Manson has been conducting his office as first law officer of the crown in this province, if he chooses his deputies in the courts on the qualification of their friendship with the judges, then it is high time British Columbia had a new attorney-general.

And if Premier MacLean is revealing the measure of his aptitude for office in this utterly unhelpful dealing of his with the P. G. E. question, we think it is time British Columbia got itself a new premier. He is playing politics with the P. G. E., and playing politics with the P. G. E. will never bring freight to its rails or dividends to its owners. The P. G. E. has indeed become an issue in this election. It has become the issue that the MacLean government stands self-revealed of incapacity to deal with it.—Vancouver Province.

In another bowl beat three egg yolks light and to them add three-quarters of a cup of cold, sweet milk, then stir this liquid mixture into the dry mixture. Now sift three cups of ordinary bread flour with six teaspoons of bakfng powder and stir this into the other ingredients. Last, fold in three stiffly whipped egg whites. Cream the mixture well before stirring in three slightly beaten eggs, one teaspoon of soda dissolved in a little warm water, one scant cup of chopped walnut meats, one teaspoon each of vanilla extract, ground cinnamon and salt, and, last, between six and six and one-half cups of ordinary bread flour. Form this mixture into two loaves with the hands, and let stand in your refrigerator overnight. Next morning cut into small strips and bake these in a hot oven. The Pilgrim's Way

By GERALD S. REES

Walking is a lost art. Babies, one assumes, will be born without legs, and with windshields over their eyes. Shanks' pony has been superannuated. It seems a pity. One at times, but not always, prefers to decline friendly "lifts" for sheer desire of walking.

One ever pleasantly remembers the youthful country jaunts—ten miles and more, with double mileage on feast days and high holidays; one recollects less delectable "hikes" for immeasureable kilometres along the roads of war—ten minute halt—smoke! in fields of half grown beets. Yea, verily, walking as a fine art is in sad decay, except for bank messengers, and cross country votaries worship with uncrowded elbows.

If a man is as old as his arteries, the enthusiastic pilgrim is as aged as his calves or his "garteries." In the newer lands, treading afoot is less attractive than in older countries. Really, there is nothing finer than "the open road," say, across the springy turfed hills of the southlands through the vagrant heart of England, in the direction of salt water; across the great Downs rolling and sloping away in far distance to the sunlit sea, with beauty at every turn of the road—in the overhanging trees, the hedgerows, the murmuring stream, and the sudden breath taking revelation of a distant landscape through gap in fence or hedge.

All around, the rich browns and soft faded green of earth, turf and tree, and old world villages that were ancient when the Civil wars tore the country asunder; they lie folded snugly along the long white roads that hump their shoulders and twist their tails till they finally tumble down to an inn parlor behind red curtains, where, after the benison of hot water, Mistress Boniface offers homely cheer and a tankard of the best. Thereafter, when eyelids droop, the cool kindliness of sheets, and "the rough male kiss of blankets" that Rupert Brooke includes in life's blessings.

In the morn, a setting forth prepared to glorify the ways of God and man—later, the "tingling tremor of thigh and shank that comes from a dozen sturdy miles laid underheel."

"The highways and the byways, the kind sky folding all
"And never a care to drag you back, and never a voice to call."

One meets few people on the Downs; an occasional shepherd, a few pilgrims with fox terriers, a weather beaten farmer with laden country wagon. Animal life is scarce to the eye, save the gulls and the rooks, huge black fellows that make a dark patch on the sun as they wheel and caw their flight to pastures new. The Downs folk love the Downs, have learned their secrets, and whispered others to the wild thyme and the dewdrops. Exiled through the changing mutations of our common life, they held hungry hearts for a returning glimpse, and in Britain beyond the seas, ever cherish these happiest of memories.

And so I write my little hymn of praise and thanksgiving to the God of all good walkers, and the pedestrian's paradise, where the sky sits upon the shimmering water like a sapphire crown, the air a robe of State, and His sea a mighty minstrel.

Some day, perhaps, when my ship comes home
"I will hold my house in the high wood
"Within a walk of the sea;
"And men that were boys when I was a boy
"Shall sit and drink with me."

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

Nasal Obstruction

The septum, or the part that divides the nose so far as to give the two nostrils, is very often bent over to one side.

Now this in itself should not cause any uneasiness, because it is more frequently found than the straight septum.

Further, if it is bent over to one side, then, although it leaves less room on the side toward which it is bent, nevertheless it leaves more room on the other side. Thus one side has more room than when the septum is straight and the other side has less. If you add the two spaces together they will thus be equal to two equal spaces. However where the septum is over so far that it touches the outer wall of the nose, then there is considerable obstruction to the breathing.

Sometimes the mucous membrane covering the small turbinate bones in the nose gets swollen and causes obstruction. Also adenoids of a polypus (soft growth) may obstruct the breathing also.

Does this obstruction affect the general health?

An Italian physician, L. Crurio, point out that it aggravates any catarrhal condition and it is not hard to distinguish the characteristic signs of a mouth breather.

As considerable of one's enjoyment of food is due to the odor of food, the actual taste of food is considerably lessened where there is nasal obstruction.

When you hear one of these individuals speak you say he is "talking through his nose", whereas he is talking through his mouth because the obstruction is interfering with the sounding box in his nose.

Its affect upon the hearing is often marked because it interferes with the air going up the eustachion tube from the back of the throat to the middle ear.

Dr. Crurio has worked out a scale showing the disability from a work standpoint where there is nasal obstruction.

Where one side is completely blocked 10 per cent.

Where one side is half blocked, five to 7 per cent.

When both sides blocked, 20 to 25 per cent.

This disability may be due to an insufficient amount of air going in to purify the blood,, or by pressure on nerves of the nose causing neuralgia, dizziness and so forth.

So remember that a bent septum in the majority of cases requires no attention, and neither does slight nasal obstruction.

However, if there is any obstruction consult your family physician first. If you need special attention he will direct you to a competent specialist. This doesn't mean any operation in a great many cases. Where operation is indicated, it is only a matter of hours or a few days at most in hospital

Don't neglect any nasal obstruction.

MAJOR WAITE IS ARRESTED UPON A CHARGE OF FRAUD

Former Mine Promoter Held in Nebraska on Action By Berg

SOLD MOLLY HUGHES STOCK OVER AGAIN

Colorful Promoter Stocks Up on Gay Duds on Leaving Spokane Quietly

SPOKANE, Wash., July 15.—Richard K. Waite, a retired major in the British army, who is said to have been doing Spokane in a Cadillac auto and an outfit of 15 suits of fine clothes, was arrested Friday at North Platte, Neb., on a telegraphic warrant here, after F. O. Berg, a tent and awning merchant, had complained that Waite fleeced him out of $12,500.

FORMER RESIDENT REPORTS

Mr. Berg appeared at the prosecutor's office yesterday with a warrant from H. M. Stephens, a former Spokane attorney, now in New York, which he declared showed Waite had sold him mining stock which had already been assigned to Phillip M. King of New York.

Deputy Prosecutor Del Cary Smith took the situation up with Prosecutor Greenough and a warrant was issued for Waite. Sheriff Brower received word late yesterday that Waite was arrested on a Union Pacific train at North Platte. Waite will be returned.

Deputy Prosecutor Smith said:

"Berg says that Waite claims to be a retired major in the British army. Mr. Berg owned stock in the Molly Hughes mine in the Slocan district and Waite claimed he owned 321,000 shares.

HAD FINE WARDROBE

"Berg paid $12,500 to Waite for the stock but began an investigation when he learned Waite got out of town before he had said he would leave. Berg says that Waite had 15 suits of fine clothes and that he had four $100 suits made while here the last few days.

"Berg came to the office and demanded a warrant after H. M. Stephens made an investigation today at New York and found the stock does not belong to Waite. The stock was assigned to Phillip M. King of New York last December."

Prosecutor Greenough told Mr. Berg that the state would take no chances in the situation and that he must bear all expenses of the extradition. Mr. Berg agreed to do this and the warrant was issued.

Sheriff Bower will send a deputy after the major if extradition is permitted.

* * *

Major Waite is well-known in Nelson, which he made his headquarters for a year or two while engaged in mine promotion. He sold the Surprise mine in the Lardeau to Chicago interests and made a deal on the Howard in the Ymir section, to Cleveland interests. In connection with the Howard, now in other hands, a Portland moving picture operator to whom he sold an interest, later sued him for money advanced.

In Nelson at various times Mr. Berg has described Major Waite as his employee. The promoter is credited with having secured the listing on the New York curb, of the shares of the British Columbia Development corporation, the title under which the Molly Hughes operation is carried on.

He was in Calgary before coming to Nelson.

MORDEN FIGURES SOUTHEAST SEATS AS CONSERVATIVE

Creston and Cranbrook Are Sure for Present Holders; to Win Fernie

Expressing confidence in return of Conservatives, with a working majority Mayor George H. Morden of North Vancouver stated here yesterday that all indications point to a Conservative southern interior.

Mayor Morden, who has spent the past two weeks in Cranbrook, Fernie and Creston ridings, declared that N. A. Wallinger, member for Cranbrook in the last house, would probably increase his majority.

Col. Fred Lister, he declared, would undoubtedly carry Creston riding, in spite of Frank Putnam's strong opposition.

M. D. McLean, Conservative candidate in Fernie, expected to defeat Thomas Uphill, member in the last house, by a narrow margin. The North Vancouver civic head expected to see a big MacLean majority in Michel, exceeding a conceded majority for Uphill in West Fernie and Coal Creek.

CAMP LISTER, B.C., July 15.—A well attended Liberal meeting was held in the school house at Camp Lister on Saturday evening. Mr. J. Bird presided.

F. W. Hobson discussed at length the opposing views on the fiscal affairs of British Columbia and suggested to the audience that if they were unable to wade through the mass of figures and statistics presented to them from the public platforms and the press, they could with safety follow the lead of the big financial houses who employed highly trained actuaries to advise them and who were buying the bonds of the government at high prices whenever they came into the money market. The low rate of interest paid by the province indicated that our credit was good.

WILLING TO BE TAXED

I. Fisher asserted that the outcry against the increase of taxation did not come from the masses, who were prepared to meet the duties and obligation of their citizenship, but on the contrary emanated from the big interests who were making large profits from the exploration of the province's natural resources, but were unwilling to accept the position of the Liberal administration in its policy of obtaining a fair share of the profits made from the obtaining and selling of natural resources; and applying the money derived from this equitable taxation, in a democratic manner, to assist the people as a whole, to whom the resources rightfully belonged. Sketching many incidents which took place in the house and in committee when he was a member, he gave high praise to those who had conducted the business of the government in such a way as to enable them to finance the measures now enacted, such as mothers' pensions and old age pensions.

The expansion of the educational work was monumental, and the electorate must not "go back" on those who had served it so well.

PUTNAM ENCOURAGES SETTLERS

Mr. Putnam, the candidate, gave a heart to heart talk to the settlers, giving much time to a discussion of problems from the practical side, and urged them to have faith. He had already taken up some of their problems and promised them his whole-hearted support, should he be declared their representative next Wednesday. There were many things to which they were justly entitled, they could reasonably hope to obtain, and he hoped all would get together to that end. He was convinced that there was a future for the fruit industry, and as the only practical grower offering himself as a candidate in this election, he naturally would be interested in their problems, as in all questions relating to agriculture. He was a rancher and knew what it was to begin with a stump ranch. There were times no doubt when they were somewhat disheartened, but he urged them to stay with their task and expressed the hope that eventually success would be theirs. They could rely on him to be with them to give every possible assistance.

He was proud of his affiliation with the Liberal party, which he felt sure would be returned again to power, to give the people a continuation and development of the good government received for the past 12 years.

CHAPTER XXVI.

"MY GIRL!"

Landis and Lydia had dined often here together in the old days, and the staff recognized them. The head waiter led them to a table in a corner, specially designed for tete-a-tete.

"For four, please," Landis said, succinctly.

(Lydia decided she must make the best of that.)

A soft, golden light cast a becoming glow. Surreptiously she drew forth her tiny pocket mirror, and with a little sigh of satisfaction realized that never in her life had she looked lovelier!

Rupert had obviously played the game, and taken off the bride.

"I want some salted almonds, please Then, I think, iced canteloupe to follow—or will you have smoked salmon, Landis? That used to be a favorite dish with you in the old days, I recollect."

Yes, he would have smoked salmon. It was nice of Lydia to recall his predilections.

Her eye scanned the menu with a practiced glance.

"What about vol-au-vent for you? You always loved it. See how I have your weakness at heart!" She gave a little laugh as light and thrilling as a bird's.

"Curious how the other haven't come along!" He glanced at his watch again. Then, regarding her sharply:

"You didn't make any mistake about the rendezvous, did you?"

She raised her beautifully pencilled brows.

"Didn't Rupert phone you up, and give you time and place?"

"He did. Claridge's at eight."

"Then," said Landis slowly, "there isn't anything we can do but wait for them to turn up, and meantime enjoy ourselves as much as possible!" He gave her his first real smile of the evening.

("Thank heaven! he's thawing!" thought the siren).

She was very gay and amusing after that. More than once his laugh rang out. Lydia had wit and "bon camraderie," when she chose to give full play to these attributes.

He had contrived to bring along a bottle of sparkling muscatel. It wasn't merely the wine—of excellent vintage though it was—that went to his head a little. It was Lydia's amazing beauty.

She was a golden girl tonight, indeed! The old, despairing feeling swept over him.

"Are you glad I came, Landis? Or are you sorry?" Her voice had a sweet tremelo, like the wind-swept chords of a harp in some lonely forest. Her fingers, trailing on the tablecloth, contrived to touch his hand—or did he dream it?

"Lydia!" He trembled to that touch of hers. "Oh, Lydia—!"

"If you'd only waited, Landis. If you'd only believed me when I said—"

"Don't dear! I can't—bear it!"

"I haven't changed! I never shall! These other men are nothing, nothing to me!"

A fluttering breath came from her lips. He could feel the old, intoxicating perfume of it.

"Landis!"

"Yes, Lydia."

"There hasn't been a moment in all these long weeks—since we parted—that I haven't thought of you!"

Silence between them.

"Say you believe me, Landis! When I—I got the news of your marriage—I—I almost died!"

With sheerest misery in those handsome eyes of his—those restless, questioning eyes that so fascinated women—he turned his head away from her.

Her slender fingers touched his wrist.

"Oh, Landis! Please—"

The orchestra—as though in league with Lydia—broke into that trembling melody of passion, the great love-song from the opera "Samson et Delilah".

White-faced, he turned to his companion.

"I can't stand it, Lydia! It seems as though tonight fate were driving us together. Do you remember—the last time we heard that song?"

"Did she remember?

Scented night of June! The sweet perfume of the fields along the river's bank! Landis and she canoeing peacefully, after a long day spent together! They had moored under a drooping willow, and through its slender branches they had seen the moon come up—a big, white maddening moon—a honeymoon!

Against the polished wood of the canoe, the water had splashed a crooning melody.

And then—

From a house across the river there had come the cadence of that exquisite love song, gentle at first, then wild with passion and despair. A great operatic star, in melting baritone that moved vast audiences, was pouring out his heart to the summer's night.

Held close in Landis' arms, she could feel his heart, too, thudding against hers—

Perfume and song and passion! What a night of nights!

For a moment, here in the fashionable New York restaurant, Lydia closed her eyes and lived again through each pulsating moment.

Love! It beat about her like the spiced perfume of poppies, drugging the brain and setting the very soul afire . . . Compared to that wild ecstacy of the gods, what did money and position matter? They were trivialties, less than nothing . . . .

Ah! if only she had married Landis, and never need they separate again!

But it wasn't to late now. She'd win him back!

See how he trembled to her touch! See how the pupils of his eyes dilated when he met her glance!

Under her breath she half-whispered, half-sung the words of the aria:

"Say . . . just once again . . . . just once again . . . . that you adore me! Tell me . . . . once again . . . . Oh; once again . . . . I implore thee . . ."

To Landis it brought back pulsating memories, so that his breath caught in his throat.

Higher and higher, passion on passion, rose the throbbing melody.

Lydia's slim fingers touched his wrist. From the very tips of them flowed electricity, rushing to his heart and senses.

"Landis!"

Delilah's voice was never half so sweet, so beautiful.

"My . . . girl!" The passion in those two brief words! His fingers long and brown and sensitive, closed over hers with agonizing grip.

Here was his love beside him—his—and no one else's! As for his insane marriage with the inkeeper's daughter, that was nothing but a dream, a nightmare, from which he would wake to utter happiness!

A pulse was fluttering maddly in Lydia's white throat. He had kissed the rise and fall of it so often . . . . he would kiss it once again tonight . . . . would drown his sorrows in the mad intoxication of her kisses!

Tomorrow—Surprises for Rosilyn.

ROYAL FISHERMAN, SWEDEN, GETS PIKE

STOCKHOLM, July 15.—King Gustav V. of Sweden has left for his beloved summer resort, the picturesque Chateau of Tullgarn near Stockholm. Here he finds relaxation from his duties in quiet fishing trips together with his trusty servant "the King's fisherman," C. Eriksson, who has been in the employ of the royal family for 47 years and who invariably accompanies the king on his fishing excursions in the bay of Tullgarn. The King devotes the morning hours to his mail and starts out on his fishing trip at noon, if the weather is fine.

The King is especially fond of troll-fishing with small fish as bait and will for hours glide along the reed-banks of the shore with two trolling-rods in action. He mostly gets pike and sometimes big ones. The catch of one afternoon may run up into more than 20 pike. After a few hours of fishing the big motor boat of Tullgarn comes along at high speed carrying the provisions for luncheon and a number of attendants. In a picturesque forest glade on the shore a tasty meal is spread on the grass, and on these occasions court etiquette is replaced by merriness and pleasant conversation.

When the meal is over the ladies and gentlemen-in-waiting return to the chateau, while the King and his faithful Eriksson resume their fishing, which on fine days may last until seven or eight o'clock at night, interrupted only by a cup of tea from a flask. In order to relieve the strain on his arms in holding the trolling-rod the King invented a fork-shaped contrivance for supporting the rod. Occasionally, if there is a strong headwind, the King may be seen to help his friend Eriksson to row the boat back to the shore.

At eight p. m. the King takes his dinner and after dinner almost invariably enjoys a quiet game of bridge before retiring.

The Chateau of Tullgarn has a fine situation surrounded by a picturesque old park and glittering waters and also has an excellent garden, which yields a rich crop of flowers, fruit and vegetables for the numerous royal household. The King received Tullgarn when a Crown Prince 40 years ago, and it has ever since been his favorite summer residence, where he enjoys a simple and retiring mode of life with all the refreshing pastimes of a country gentleman.

ANTARCTIC AIR FLIGHTS WILL NOT BE A RACE

So Declare Byrd, Wilkins and Jeffrey Now Preparing For Trips

EACH WILL EXPLORE SEPARATE SECTIONS

Early Fall Will See Expeditions Under Way; To Select Ships

NEW YORK, July 15.—The prospective aerial expedition of Sir George Wilkins and Commander Richard E. Byrd to the antarctic are not in the nature of a race to the pole, says a statement by Dr. Isaiah Bowman, president of the American Geographical society, which has indorsed and is contributing to both expeditions.

Commander Douglas George Jeffrey, R.N., retired head of another antarctic expedition, which will attempt to define the boundaries of the elusive Graham land, which lies south of Cape Horn, has also stated there will be no spirit of competition with Wilkins and Byrd. On the contrary, he would compliment those south pole expeditions.

The Wilkins and Byrd flights will coordinate each other, Dr. Bowman said, the two flyers covering separate sections of the huge unexplored region. On one side of the great mountain range known to extend into the antarctic will be flying Commander Byrd, on the other side Sir George Wilkins, each gathering data to make a complete record of the country.

THE PLANS

The plans of Commander Byrd, he said, call for a flight from the ice barrier to the south pole and beyond to as to explore a part of the high antarctic plateau. Sir George is to fly from a point in the Ross sea near the ice barrier along the ice where the coast is believed to lie toward Graham Land. His plane is to be equipped with pontoons so that at the completion of his flight he can land alongside one of the many whalers which cruise in that part of the ocean and be picked up.

Sir George, said Dr. Bowman, will leave Panama on a Norwegian whaler about November 1 and will begin his flight about January 1, just as Commander Byrd begins his work on base stations at the ice barrier.

The antarctic flight of Sir George Wilkins will be equal to if not longer than his flight from Alaska to Spitzbergen. It is over dangerous, unexplored territory probably beset by dangerous fogs and strong winds swooping down off the ice cap.

"Wilkins in his long flight over the unknown coast of the Ross sea," he said, "will photograph the details of ice border, glacier tongues and mountains, visible from his plane. In this way he will be able to select sites for the meteorological stations which he has long planned to establish."

The object of those stations would be to coordinate weather reports from already established stations in the southern hemisphere, and establish a sounder basis for long range weather forecasts.

LEAVE IN SEPTEMBER

Commander Jeffrey, who is a veteran of the antarctic and who was a member of one of the expeditions headed by the late Sir Earnest Shackleton, will take a party of about 25 men and two planes and expects to leave for the icy regions in September, returning some time in May.

Other veterans of the Shackleton expedition, who Commander Jeffrey says will accompany him are George Vibert Douglas, of McGill university, geologist, Dr. A. H. Macklin, of Dundee, Scotland, who was lost with Shackleton on the spectacular 1916 attempt to cross the antarctic ice pack and who was surgeon on both expeditions, and J. W. S. Marpin, of Aberdeen, a biologist.

"While we may fly over the pole," Commander Jeffrey said, "the real purpose of the voyage will be to define the boundaries of Graham's Land, south toward the Ross sea, and to learn whether it is a big continent or actually two or more bodies of land. There is some scientific reason to believe there are as yet undiscovered lands in that direction.

"We will establish a base on the west coast of Graham's Land and from there strike out after completing whatever exploration we can do on that side, eastward toward Coats' Land, which is the southern boundary of the Weddell sea. There is much to be learned in those regions."

DEEP SEA TYPE

The ships to be used have not been selected, but Commander Jeffrey said they would be of the deep-sea minesweeper type, capable of bucking the terrific ice floes. One of the two planes is being constructed. It is a small amphibian, such as Sir George will use, with a gasoline capacity of 1500 gallons and a cruising radius of 6000 miles.

Commander Jeffrey pointed out that Shackleton lost two craft in the Weddell sea on his 1922 expedition and said he regarded his trip as a continuation of work done on that voyage. No vessel ever had survived the ice of Weddell sea, he declared.

The expedition, it is expected, may shed light on the extent of mineral deposits in the mountain ridge on Graham's Land, which, Commander Jeffrey says, is known to be a continuation of the Andes range in South America. Deposits of gold and coal have been found there, he says, but the extent of the mineral resources is unknown.

Commander Jeffrey hopes to verify the belief that the antarctic fur-bearing seals are not extinct, but have only fled south before the advance of man.

Commander Jeffrey said that on the eastern side of Graham's Land his expedition would be widely separated from those of Byrd and Wilkins. He expected, however, to be able to cooperate with them by radio in gathering and checking meteorological data. He also suggested that the bases of the three expeditions might be linked by flights across the antarctic land.

Commander Jeffrey is a navigator and meteorologist. At the beginning of the war he resigned from a south polar expedition under the leadership of Shackleton and was placed second in command of a destroyer. He was transferred to submarine work and was later given command of one of the British "mystery boats". He has been here since March.

Trade Winds

Breasting the trade winds, hulls deep with rich cargoes of Peruvian crude oil, Imperial tankers ply the two western oceans that Canadian motorists may have a better oil made from a better crude.

Out of the golden sand of far Peru comes the one crude that seems to have been stored by nature in anticipation of the demand for a better oil. Imperial enterprise discovered the superiority of this pure, sulphur-free and carbon-free crude—Imperial enterprise developed the Peruvian oil fields—Imperial enterprise transports this better crude to Canada—and Imperial enterprise makes it into a better oil—Marvelube.

Back of Marvelube are resources and facilities built up by Imperial Oil, Limited, during 47 years of service to the petroleum consuming public.

Cobb Did Job Right Players Backed Him Up

BY AL DEMAREE

(Former Pitcher New York Giants)

"Hack" Wilson of the Chicago Cubs leaped into the stands recently and administered a lusty thumping to an irate fan who had been "riding" him all day.

Ty Cobb pulled the same stunt in Philadelphia years ago and almost broke up the American league. Cobb jumped into the stand and socked his tormentor and was fined and suspended indefinitely for his escapade until he was reinstated. The officials wouldn't back down and neither would the players and the next day the Detroit team took the field with a team of "strike breakers", a motley crew of amateurs, semi-pros and bushers picked up overnight. The Athletics, needless to say, swamped them about 26 to 0. The strike lasted one day. Cobb asked the regular players not to jeopardize themselves on his account.

As Christy Mathewson said about a threatened strike of the players in the days of the "players' fraternity".

"Baseball is one profession where the employers can't use "strike breakers". If we go on a strike it will be a shame to take the money. It's too easy!"

FAIRVIEW SCORES SIXTEEN-THREE IN GAME WITH SALMO

Visiting Ball Tossers Go Down to Decisive Defeat in One-sided Game

Going on batting sprees in the fourth, fifth and eighth innings, Fairview senior ball tossers severely trounced the visiting Salmo nine to the tune of a 16-3 score in the first game of a home and home exhibition series at the Recreation grounds here yesterday afternoon before a small crowd of fans. Harold Chapman, on the mound for Fairview, pitched a good game and had good support.

HARLOW-DARR A SURE THING NOW AUGUST EIGHTEEN

Terms Accepted; Spokane Battler Will Be Here About August 18

"Greetings. Accept fight. Terms satisfactory. Letter follows," was the contents of a telegram received by R. E. Kirby, manager of George Harlow, Nelson heavyweight, from Rex. Farrell, manager of Orville Darr, heavyweight, of Spokane, in answer to a letter from Mr. Kirby stating terms and date of a return battle between Darr and Harlow here next month. The bout will be staged in the opera house on August 18, Darr coming to Nelson to finish his training about August 16.

These two boxers fought through 10 gruelling rounds to a draw here on May 30 before a record crowd. Darr, with a rapidly closing left eye, kept in the battle till the final bell and greatly impressed local boxing fans with his ability to take punishment. From the night of the battle fans have been asking for a return bout.

HARLOW STARTS TRAINING

George goes into light training today at the Canadian Legion, but will not start any heavy work until about a week or more, for fear of going stale before the battle.

Darr is reported to be in even better shape now than before he battled here last time and the cut over his eye, which was an old one opened up, is said to be completely healed.

ROYALS DEFEAT EDMONTON VETS

Blank Visitors in Firsts of Interprovincial Footer Series at Westminster

VANCOUVER, B.C., July 15.—Westminster Royals were too much at home on Con. Jones park on Saturday for Edmonton Canadian Legion eleven. They defeated them 4-0 before nearly 4500 people in the first of their interprovincial games for the Dominion football championship.

The teams meet again Monday.

Royals had plenty to go getting two goals in the first half, but in the second, after scoring two more, they gave the prairie visitors some lessons in dribbling and close passing movements.

Les Rimmer scored the first goal somewhat flukily. He lobbed a high one in and it bounced over Robb's head. Then Stoddart shot and Coulter rushed the ball through with the goalie on top of it. Chapman dropped one to Stoddart's head for the third goal, and Dave Turner drove a right footer through with terrific force from 20 yards out.

Edmonton were best served by McKeegan, Robb in goal, who had much to do, and the fullbacks.

BIRMINGHAM MAN PROVES WINNER OF KING'S PURSE

Lance-Corporal Lane Is Just 3 Points Ahead of Lieut. Burke, Ottawa

LATTER COMES SECOND SECOND TIME RUNNING

Successful Score Is 283 Out of Possible 300; Nine Canucks in the Money

BISLEY CAMP, England, July 15.—Lance-Corporal A. C. Hale of Birmingham is the possessor of the King's prize, the highest honor for any individual marksmanship in the British Empire, for the next 12 months.

Scoring 283 out of a possible 300, Lance-Corporal Hale won the prize on Saturday. He finished three points ahead of Lieut. Desmond Burke, of Ottawa, winner in 1924, whose score was 280. Lieutenant Burke therefore finished second for the second successive year, last year being runner-up to Vernon.

The final stage was witnessed by the largest crowd in the history of the shoot and was broadcast by radio for the first time. The weather was the hottest in many years.

BURKE'S CHANCE GOOD

Lieutenant Burke, who in 1924 provided Canada with its fifth victory in the classic of service rifle shooting, yesterday had a good chance to repeat, going in to the last of the five ranges which the marksmen fired at in the second and third stages. His score entering the 1000-yard range was 210, and Hale's score at the same point was 211. Burke, however, scored 70 out of 75 in the last distance, whereas Hale scored 72 to give him the three-point margin of victory.

Lance-Corporal Hale was presented with the King's prize of $1250 and the National Rifle association's gold medal and gold badge, by Lady Jellicoe, wife of the chairman of the N. R. A. council.

Lieutenant Burke received the N.R.A. prize of $250 for second, together with the N. R. A. badge.

Lieut. G. F. Booth, formerly of the Royal Air force, was third, to win $100. Sergeant French of the Hertfordshire regiment was fourth, winning $50, and Sergeant MacCallum, formerly of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders, was fifth to win $25

CANUCK SCORES

Nine of the 18 men of the official Canadian Bisley team shot in the final stage of the King's prize, 15 shots at 900 and 1000 yards.

Their final scores in the second stage on Friday when firing was at 300, 500 and 600 yards, were added to the third stage scores to determine the final standing.

The Canadians finished as follows:

Lieut. Desmond Burke, Ottawa—Second stage, 138; third stage, 142; total, 280; second place; won, $250.

Sergt.-Mjr. R. Kiddie, Toronto—Second stage, 136; third stage, 134; total, 270; thirteenth place; won, $25.

R. Stevenson, Montreal—Second stage 143; third stage, 127; total, 270; seventeenth place; won $25.

Sgt. C. W. Foam, Montreal—Second stage, 137; third stage, 132; total, 269; nineteenth place; won $25.

Pte. T. R. Davies, Vancouver—Second stage, 136; third stage, 130; total, 266; twentieth place; won $25.

Sgt. H. Burton, Victoria—Second stage 142; third stage, 124; total, 266; thirty-fifth place; won, $15.

Major Richardson, Victoria—Second stage, 137; third stage, 128; total, 265; forty-second place; won $15.

TRAIL SOCCERITES TOO GOOD FOR THE KOOTENAY CHAMPS

Take Nelson Eleven Into Camp 4-2 in West Kootenay League Game

In a game that was all their's from the first whistle but which they did not take until the dying minutes of the game, Trail representative senior soccerites beat the Nelson representatives, last year West Kootenay champions, 4-2 in the second round of the West Kootenay soccer series at the Recreation grounds here Saturday afternoon. Trail is now two games up, having won the first game of the series on May 24 by as good a margin.

Trail set out from the first whistle to make the Nelson team look foolish and unnecessary and but for the stellar game turned in by Hinges in the Nelson goal, must surely have trounced the local team severely. Seemingly confident of victory in the first few minutes, the Trail boys seemed to be in no hurry to put the game away. They shot repeatedly on Hinges and that player was called on to exert himself often—almost as often as if he had no other team mates on the field. Still the Trail boys on many occasions, did not shoot when that would have been the logical thing to do, and when there was no visible reason why they did not.

NO SCORE IN FIRST

While they ran rings around Nelson in the first half and allowed the ball down at their end of the goal only six minutes of the 45 minute, that period ended with no score for either team. Nelson made about a half dozen good rushes during the first half, all but one of which were checked before they got anywhere. On the one rush that was not checked well out, Nelson nearly scored and Marshall made a corner in saving what was the only one he was called upon to save in the first half.

NEARLY GOAL

Rothery received the ball on the right wing and close in, centered to Davidson. Davidson shot and it looked as though Marshall had been beaten. Marshall went down and succeeded in shoving the ball around the post. It looked as if the ball had crossed the goal line and many spectators claimed it had. Nelson was given a corner kick but the ball was grabbed by a Trail player and those boys once again took up the attack on the Nelson goal.

Just before half time McVie put the ball in the Nelson goal, but he was offside.

JEFFS SCORES FIRST

It looked as if that formation was the best one when Jeffs, receiving a pass from Bendy as the half started, made an individual rush, uncovered, up the field and scored the first goal of the game before the Trail boys knew what had happened. It was a pretty goal and beat Marshall all the way.

After that goal Jeffs was watched closely and did not get another opportunity, but the game became on more even terms and for a time seesawed. Marshall however was seldom in a dangerous position. Once he had to come way out to save and did it successfully.

McVIE, LAURIE, SCORE

Trail went down for five minutes after Nelson's goal and peppered them on Hinges. Finally McVie with a nicely placed, ground shot, beat Hinges a mile. Hinges never had a chance. From the center off Trail tore in again and Chandler shot just a little wide. Trail continued to press in and within two minutes of their first goal had added another when Laurie took a hot shot form a scrimmage. Again Hinges never had a chance.

The game livened up somewhat but still Trail held the upper hand and shot them in at Hinges at random and forced corners when the backs tried to intercept.

BENDY SCORES

Finally Nelson broke away and Bendy went clear up the field and shot. Marshall stopped the ball but not before it was well across the goal line. Davidson, to make sure, rushed in, and both he and Marshall piled up in the corner of the net.

The game again livened up but still Trail was doing all the work. The boys laid siege on the Nelson goal and finally, with less than 10 minutes to go, Laurie scored for Trail on an easy shot as Hinges came out to meet the ball and missed. There were cries of "offside" from the spectators and the Nelson lineman, George Wallach, but the goal was allowed.

McVIE AGAIN

About four minutes later Laurie had taken what looked like a sure counter and shot high, McVie bulged the net with another easy shot. Hinges had again came out to meet the ball and been beaten. McVie beat Roynon to the ball which had stopped just in front of the goal line and shoved it across for their fourth and last goal.

The teams were:

Trail—Marshall, goal; Kitchin and Cook, backs; Smith, Barr and Thompson, halves; Chandler, Ferguson, J. McVie, Lippe and T. Laurie, forwards.

Nelson—Hinges, goal; Roynon and McMann, backs; Fraser, Bradley, and Ringrose, halves; Rothery, Taylor, Davidson, C. Jeffs and Bendy.

Referee—Jack Draper.

SASKATOON WINS IN SOCCER GAME

Beat Winnipeg Westbrooks 1-0 in an Interprovincial Series

WINNIPEG, July 15.—After obtaining a one-goal lead in the first 15 minutes of play, the Saskatoon Thistles, champions of Saskatchewan, gave a remarkable display of defensive tactics and won the first game of the interprovincial soccer series from the Winnipeg Westbrooks 1 to 0 here Saturday. The second game will be played Monday evening, the winner to meet the champions of the Alberta-British Columbia series in the western Canada final and right to meet the eastern titleholders.

It was the first defeat of the season for the Westbrooks, a second division squad which has established local football history in winning a way to the championship series.

For the first 15 minutes the Thistles monopolized play, but after they had scored the local boys went on the attack and concentrated a fiery bombardment at the visitors' goalie, but were held in check by hardy defensive tactics employed by Saskatoon. Time after time, Westbrooks displayed beautiful combination plays. A fine chance to equalize was blocked when on a pass from Hutchison, the speedy Piercy of the locals shot a boomer from five yards out only with the Thistle goalie to beat. But the ball went straight for Hayes, who had no trouble in warding it off.

The defence tactics which proved so successful in the first half were brought into play again in the second by the Saskatchewan champions, but they got little chance on the attack.

MONTREAL PARTY IS ENTERTAINED NELSON, KASLO

Excursionists Enjoy Cherries During Trip Over the Main Lake

University of Montreal excursionists enjoyed a wonderful day on the main lake on Saturday, passing through on their way to the coast and return. They were guests at an excursion to Kaslo while their special train was being barged from Kootenay Landing to Procter. At Kaslo and Nelson citizens loaned cars to drive the easterners about.

Numbers of Nelson people, guests of the Canadian Pacific railway, met the excursionists at Kootenay Landing and traveled with them to Nelson. They included Dr. E. C. Arthur, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Gelinas, Mrs. M. J. Vigneux, Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Poulin, Mrs. Joseph Sturgeon, Mrs. H. Gagnon and Mrs. I. Bourke, Mrs. Walter Wright, wife of Captain Wright, Captain Douglas Brown, Gerald Rees and J. S. Carter.

PRESENT CHERRIES

Nelson board of trade presented the excursionists with cherries at Kootenay Landing, P. E. Poulin, who was in charge of the reception, making the presentation. C. F. Sedgwick and H. W. Robertson were in charge of auto transportation at Nelson.

The excursionists also enjoyed half an hour at Procter. The trip was made in leisurely manner so that the boat would arrive here at its scheduled time, 4:30.

As the special train pulled out of Nelson the visitors sang a French-Canadian version of "O Canada." One young man, waving his cap, dropped it. The train waited while he recovered it, however.

A telegram expressing thanks was received yesterday from Canon Charritier, who was in charge.

Nelson C.P.R. first aid team, champions of British Columbia, leaves this morning for Regina to compete with the championship teams of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba for the championship of the western lines.

Fred Blakeman, captain of the team, was very optimistic last night. He hopes the team will come out on top, for, if it does, it means a trip to Montreal to meet the eastern champions for the Canadian title. He believes the team will do well, for in provincial contests its score was two points higher than any of the teams it is to meet.

INDIANS REVEL IN FERNIE DISTRICT

Tobacco Plains Reserve Is the Scene Annual Revival of Native Dances

FERNIE, B.C., July 15.—Indians of the Tobacco Plain's reserve have been holding their annual dance at Edwards lake this week. They have had many visitors from other reserves. Day and night for miles around their encampment the throb of drum and the plaintive vibrating waves of their chant could be heard.

The camp was located on the hilltop overlooking Edward's lake in a park-like country, backed by a panorama of mountains. The teepees were arranged in a grand circle of 400 feet radius, in the center of which was the dancing pavilion—a primitive structure of posts covered by green branches. Braves and squaws wore their best, brilliant colors and wonderful bead work. This tribe is noted for the excellency of its bead work.

The brilliantly colored garments, the somber faced natives, the picturesque circle of tents, in a setting of natural beauty, spoke plainly of the Indians' appreciation of the romantic and the beautiful.

APATHY ENFOLDS TRADE ON STREET

Prices Head Upward at Opening But Rally Peters Out at Once

NEW YORK, July 15.—Extreme dullness characterized Saturday's irregular stock market. Prices headed upward at the opening, but the rally quickly petered out under week-end realizing sales. Total sales of 477,800 shares were the smallest of any session since the middle of 1926.

Fears that rediscount rates may again be advanced, with a 6 per cent charge talked of in many quarters, kept trading in check. The weekly trade reviews were generally favorable and held out hope for better business in the last half of 1928. An increase in the Atlanta Federal Reserve rediscount rate brought the number of central institutions charging 5 per cent for rediscounts to four, with the other eight expected to follow suit.

A brisk buying movement in Atlantic Refining, which was bid up 5 points to 143½, the highest price since 1923, was the outstanding feature. Indian Refining preferred soared 16¼ points to 220¼, after having sold as low as 180 earlier in the week.

Most of the standard industrials, including U. S. Steel comman, General Motors, Chrysler, General Electric, Montgomery Ward and Radio, lost ground. The net recessions ranged from fractions to 2⅝ points. Selling pressure also was effective against American Encaustic Tiling, Case Threshing, Corn Products, Davison Chemical and International Telephone.

Dupont jumped 5 points to 375 on one sale, and moderate advances were recorded by American Radiator, Hoe & Co., International Harvester, Mathieson Akali and the U. S. Leather issues. Little speculative interest was manifested in the rail group, in which the general tendency was downward.

Grads Win First Game in France; Whew, It's Hot!

EDMONTON, Alta., July 15.—The Edmonton Grads opened their European tour yesterday with a 65 to 18 victory over the French Racing club at Paris, according to a cablegram received by the Edmonton Journal from Percy Page, coach of the Canadian basketball champions.

The game was played under very trying conditions with the temperature registering 95 in the shade. The usual brilliant team work of the Grads was too much for the French girls who are greatly improved since the last Olympic games, according to Coach Page.

BIG MISSOURI IS THE FEATURE OF TORONTO MINING

Kootenay Florence Unchanged at 27c; Pend Oreille Scores a Further Gain

TORONTO, July 15.—Stocks on the Standard Mining exchange showed a rallying tendency in Saturday's session, but activity was not very great, sales amounting to only 605,650 shares.

Western Canada Golf Tourney Is at Edmonton

EDMONTON, Alta., July 15.—Play in the fifth annual tournament of the Western Canada Golf association gets under way here Monday morning with as classy locking a field as has ever started in the event.

Sixty-four of the west's best professionals and amateurs will start in quest of the open title, included in the list being Fred Fletcher, Moose Jaw, present holder. For the amateur championship there are 151 starters, among them Jack Cuthbert of Winnipeg, who won the title last year at the Moose Jaw tournament. Both these champions are conceded a chance to repeat, but the odds appear to be against them, considering the ability of some of the contenders they will have to stand off.

Fifty entries have been received for the ladies' championship event and five for the junior championship.

The Mayfair and Country club courses are in fine shape for the tournament and some of the best golf ever seen in this part of the country is looked for.

FARRIS TELLS KIMBERLEY THE LIBS WILL WIN

Claims MacLean Must Be Retained If P. G. E. Be Success and Pensions Stay

ATTACKS CONSERVATIVE METHOD OF FIGURING

Candidate McPherson Predicts His Election; Connection With Windermere

KIMBERLEY, B.C., July 15.—At a well attended meeting at Kimberley Saturday, J. W. DeB. Farris, K.C., and Mrs. H. A. McKowan addressed the electors in support of the candidacy of F. M. MacPherson. Many ladies were among the audience.

A. R. Swanson, president of the district Liberal association, occupied the chair.

CANDIDATE SPEAKS

Mr. MacPherson expressed his confidence in Dr. MacLean and his prospects of his return, and spoke of his own residence in this district for 20 years.

Mr. Swanson mentioned an alternative entrance to town from the new road to the Banff-Windermere highway, and voiced the cooperation of the government to that end.

Mrs. McKowan in a very interesting speech mentioned the confidence of the women in Mr. MacPherson and the MacLean government and its enactments for the benefit of women and children.

Mr. Farris said no change of government was needed unless Conservatives could prove that they could improve on the present one. He claimed that the Liberals could do nothing but take over the P. G. E. contract and its great liabilities. He also said if Conservatives used the same principle in figuring the last Conservative budget as they did in criticizing Liberal finance, the Conservative debt would have been even larger than they claim the Liberal debt to be.

DANGEROUS TO CHOOSE CONSERVATIVE

He claimed that old age pensions were in danger and the P. G. E. project a failure if Hon. S. F. Tolmie took the place of Premier MacLean in the conference room at Ottawa. He declared that there was no chance of the government being defeated, as he predicted the election of six Liberals in Vancouver and four in Victoria.

The speaker stated that Conservatives claimed their own last debt as $20,000,000, and the Liberal debt as $102,000,000, by taking the Conservative net debt and the Liberal gross debt, and adding to the Liberal gross debt the P. G. E. bonds, although these bonds had been incurred by the Conservatives. He also mentioned a $5,000,000 bond issue for the Canadian Northern which would place the province in the same position with regard to it as with regard the P. G. E. He also claimed the Conservative party was responsible for the liabilities of the P. G. E. It was necessary to borrow $20,000,000 to put on this road.

Mr. Farris stated that Mr. Tolmie declared the old age pensions a federal matter, but that it was not, as Canada had no jurisdiction to do anything but supplement the act. He also said that Dr. Toimie's leader declared old age pensions a provincial matter.

Dr. MacLean said the province was going to have state health insurance, and pledged his word as prime minister that he could accomplish that.

MERCURY REMAINS HIGH WITH A LIGHT BREEZE

Hundreds of kiddies and adults swarmed to the lakeshore over the week-end, while the sun was at its warmest. A light breeze, which blew most of the day, lessened the heat considerably. During the 24 hours the mercury ranged between 46 and 84.

The humidity reading showed that the moisture in the air was at 80 at 8 o'clock in the morning. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon it had dropped 30 degrees to 50. It was back to 53 at 5 o'clock last night.

THE INFLUENCE OF OPTICAL DEFECTS UPON THE GENERAL SYSTEM

Any decided derangements in the build of the eyes, or in the proper balance of the ocular muscles may, depending upon the degree of impressionability of the nervous system in each individual, exert a profound influence upon the general system.

Of the twelve pairs of caranial nerves, six pairs have some connection with the eye, and several of these have relationship with nerves supplying other important organs of the body.

So it is that other organs can and do effect the eyes, and the eyes likewise can and do have an effect on other parts of the body if not functioning proper.
