POKANE INDIAN ONCE TERROR REFORMS

Spokane, Dec. 16.—Motanic, a bad Indian, terror of the Umatilla reservation, southwest of Spokane, and leader of pagan customs among the fierce braves, has embraced the Christian religion, and, as a consequence, there is rejoicing among the faithful in the Tutilla Presbyterian mission. The conversion of the chief was the dramatic climax to the ordination of Rev. Edward Conner, a half-blooded Cayuse, as minister of the gospel, a few days ago. Following the singing of the Cayuse version of "Washed in the Blood of the Lamb," which braves and squaws joined fervently, Motanic, dressed in barbaric splendor, arose from his seat, and, facing the congregation, declared his intention to live a better life. He said he would abandon the pagan rites, bid goodbye forever to the feathered headdress and the red and green paint, to participate no more in festival parades, nor partake of the white man's firewater. He would not gamble or cheat his fellowman or brother. Motanic has become a Christian. It was a fitting close to the ordination of Conner.

Mayor is Committed.

Glace Bay, C. B., Dec. 16.—David Churchill, former superintendent of mines for the Dominion Coal company and mayor of Glace Bay, has been committed for trial on a charge of embezzlement.

UNCLE TOM'S CABIN IS COMING HERE TOMORROW

Stetson's big production of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" will appear at the Opera House on Wednesday, Dec. 18th. It has been organized this season in a manner that will make it far superior to any previous production ever seen here. Special attention has been given to the staging of the piece and the scenery faithfully protrays several scenes of southern life during Antebellum days in the far south. A large number of genuine colored people, to introduce cake-walks, buck-dances, southern jubilee singing and fun; scenes in the cottonfields add materially to the production, Misses Kit-Morgan and Bertha Crosbie are the topsies; Messrs. George Harris and Nick Glinn are the two marks. Stetson's original Uncle Tom, Mr. Ed Bennett, will also be in the cast. It is doubtful if "Uncle Tom", even with a novelty and new to the stage, ever received the attention so liberally bestowed upon it as now during this sumptuous revival. A street parade will be given that is said to delight every juvenile spectator beyond measure.

CHILD LURED TO DEATH BY OFFER OF A DIME

Toronto, Dec. 16.—According to the statements made by companions of Clarence Ellis, the six-year-old boy who was drowned in the Don Saturday, the lad was bribed to go on the ice by two men, who offered him a dime. The same two men, according to stories of other lads, prevented Daniel Graham from jumping in after the drowning lad. The only motive that could have actuated the two in persuading the lad to go on the ice was their desire to see if it were safe.

The annual meeting of the board of license commissioners will be held on Wednesday afternoon, when the license inspector McIntosh's report for the past year will be received. As far as can be learned at present, the hotels will all be reported on favorably.

From ten to fifteen men are being refused work daily on the city board of works, according to T. Furness, city foreman, who stated yesterday that a large number were applying for work every day in the week.

Ralph Smith Takes Hand in Movement For Asiatic Exclusion

Ottawa, Dec. 16.—Ralph Smith, member for Nanaimo, moved in the house today that steps be taken to restrict the influx of Oriental immigrants into Canada, inasmuch as the policy of the government concerning Chinese immigration has to that power ben satisfactory, a definite policy should be immediately put into operation looking to the accomplishment of equal satisfactory results with regard to all other Oriental immigrants.

Smith spoke at length, ably and eloquently, on the whole subject. The question, he said, was not a provincial one, but a Canadian one. What was bad for British Columbia was bad for Canada and what was bad for Canada was bad for the Empire. To understand the Oriental question it had to be studied on the spot. Eastern men who were opposed to exclusion became converts after visiting British Columbia. It is generally said that that prejudice was stronger on the Oriental side than the Occidental. The question was not only a local one, but was Canadian and international as well. He was willing to look at it from all sides as well as local. It was an Empire problem. What weakened one link of the chain of Empire weakened all links. He had no belief in a military invasion of Canada, but a great labor invasion was within reach. There were eight hundred million starving in Asia, with this land flowing with milk and honey at their door.

In reference to the Chinese, it was only the industrial classes complained of the influx, but in regard to the Japanese, commercial were as much opposed to Japanese as the industrial clas.

After dealing with the restrictive legislation of the United States, Natal and Australia, he went on to show how Chinese legislation had effectualy shut out Chinamen, although recently they were beginning to come in notwithstanding the polltax. As to the Japanese, he said that from 1902 to a period in 1907 there was no demand made on them for further restriction. The restriction which was in force between Canada and Japan was satisfactory until a period in 1907.

During the past seventeen months, 9000 Japanese, 1000 Chinese, and over 3000 Hindoos had arrived in British Columbia. Coming to contracts with the Wellington Coal Company and the C. P. R. to bring Japanese into Canada, he said that it ought not to be possible in this country to make such contracts. Over the wellington Coal company there presided the lieutenant-governor of the province. The employment of Asiatics in the coal mines was the cause of disasters twenty years ago. He ridiculed the statement of Mr. Borden that Preston's presence in Japan was the cause of the influx of the Japanese.

B. C. MAN INVENTS BOILER TUBE STOPPER

A United States patent was received during the past week by Rowland Brittain, patent attorney, Vancouver, granted to S. Smith, boiler maker, of Surrey Centre, B. C., on an improved boiler tube stopper, devised to effect the closure of a burst tube in a steam boiler. It consists of two pistons adapted to the diameter of the boiler tube and connected together by a length of rod. Each piston is fitted with packing which is expansible, to fill the tube by a fluid pressure from between the pistons. In application the device is entered into a burst tube and is pushed along until the first piston passes over the leak, when the steam escaping from the leak being confined between the pistons exerts a fluid pressure to expand the packing of the pistons and effectually seals the tube. An interest in the patent is owned by H. A. Cadwell, of Ferndale, Washington, who will look after the manufacture and sale on the United States side of the line.

By the terms of the will of the late William Holmes, of Sapperton, who at the time of his death had attained the proud distinction of being the oldest Orangeman in Canada, the Royal Columbian hospital will benefit to the etxent of $95, and a check for this amount is now in the hands of the secretary, W. H. Keary. Mr. Holmes made provision for a gif of $100, but succession duties have absorbed $5 of the amount deeled by the old Orangeman. A check for $5, addressed to the board of managers of the hospital, has also been received by the secretary, from C. H. Richardson, of Annacis island. This will be formally turned over to the institution at the regular meeting to be held on Wednesday of this week.

A considerable amount of routine business was transacted at the council meeting yesterday evening, and a number of accounts, amounting to $8,492.57 passed for payment.

CLEVER CHINESE FAIL IN BOLD BLUFF

Seattle, Dec. 16.—Four Chinese, three of them disguised as Japanese and carrying Japanese passports, after sneaking across the American boundary line, were captured at Custer yesterday afternoon by L. J. Fuller, of the immigration department. The Orientals carried two shotguns and a rifle, and were heavily loaded with shells when captured. They were brought to Seattle last night and placed in the detention hospital.

When arrested the Chinamen protested that they were Japanese and held to their story until they saw that arrest was unavoidable. Two of them spoke English, but when they saw that their disguise was ineffectual, they refused to make any statement. Interpreters will cross-question them today and it is thought a carefully-laid plot will be unearthed.

During the Russo-Japanese war numerous instances of Japanese officers disguising themselves as Chinese were reported, but this is the first time the immigration officers have run across as smooth work in the line of disguise.

Winnipeg Sells Treasury Notes.

Winnipeg, Dec. 16.—Mayor Ashdown has announced that treasury notes covering the $1,177,000 of city debentures, had been disposed of in London. The debentures are due immediately and will thus be provided for. Mayor Ashdown stated that he did not know what price had been received for the notes, but they were in denominations of $5,000 and $25,000.

Explanation.

The late appearance of the Daily News this morning is due to a breakdown in the mechanical department. The same reason compels the side-tracking of a large amount of news.

C. P. R. Agent Receives Handsome Purse From System No. 7, O.R.T

The Order of Railroad Telegraphers, System Div. No. 7, held a meeting Sunday night, at North Bend, at which E. Goulet, the C. P. R. agent at this city, was presented with a handsome purse, accompanied by the following letter:

"E. Goulet, Esq.,

General Chairman, Div. No.7, O.R.T.

"Dear Sir and Brother:

"It is with most profound respect that we present ourselves before you, our esteemed chairman. We are fully aware of your indefatigable labors in the past on behalf of our order, and the satisfactory results emanating from your strenuous endeavors in securing from the management the substantial salary increase we now enjoy.

"As a society, we feel ourselves under great obligations to you for your untiring efforts in our behalf. We are not unmindful of your constant watchfulness and diligent efforts to inspire in us all the true ideals at which our order aims. We admire you for the strong position you have always taken against the forces that would tend to enslave us. We thank you for all you have done for us and been to us as chairman of our system, and we pray the influence of your work will long be felt among us.

"We ask you to accept this purse as a mark of respect and esteem, and assure you that it can in no sense offset the great debt of gratitude System 7 owes you for your successful efforts in its behalf.

"In behalf of the members of the Pacific division,

"R. L. PALLIN, Secy."

The gift came in the nature of a pleasant surprise to Mr. Goulet, who wired his heartfelt thanks to Division 7 immediately on receipt of the good news.

FLAGGED HANDCAR BY BURNING PAPER MONEY

San Rafael, Cal., Dec. 16.—Stewart Dunbar, a prominent insurance broker of Honlulu, while on his way to meet a party of friends last night, fell through a cattle guard on the narrow guage tracks of the Northwestern Pacific railroad and caught his foot in such a manner that he would have been crushed to death beneath the wheels of an approaching handcar, had it not been for his presence of mind in igniting a clearing house certificate and holding it over his head as a signal of danger and attracting the attention of the occupants of the handcar.

How Ottawa Grows.

Ottawa, Dec. 16.—Ottawa's population will be swelled to 77,000 by the annexation of the suburbs of Ottawa east, Hintonburg, Ottawa south and Rideauville.

Strange Tattoo Marks

Cobalt, Dec. 16.—Paul Duigon, who was killed here last Friday by the north-bound passenger train running over him, may possibly have attached to his career a history in his native France. Besides several personal effects which helped to identify him, tattoo marks of a mysterious origin adorned different parts of his body. What writing is done is in Parisian French and was partly deciphered by the local police. "No Master, No God" was scrolled in clear-cut letters close to his throat, while "We Assemble" was boldly lettered across the stomach. A tattooed sketch of a pretty girl was found on the right shoulder and an ugly-looking crest in the form of a dagger on the left. All these insignia are clear cut and well defined. The police have made every effort to learn something of his past, and have written to France for that purpose.

Mrs. Asa Gordon, Dominion superintendent of the W. C. T. U., will address a number of important meetings in this city early in the new year, according to arrangements made at the monthly meeting of the local W. C. T. U. yesterday. A plan of campaign for the crusade against the sale of cigarettes was also laid out, and other important business transacted.

Stead's Son is Dead.

London, Dec. 16.—Alfred Stead, son of W. T. Stead, editor of the Review of Reviews, died today. He was born in 1877 and was associated with his father in the publication of that journal.

A petition is being circulated among the business men of the city with reference to the proposed raising of the grade on Columbia street by the B. C. E. R. Co., which intends replacing with heavier rails the 40-pounders now in use. This would mean that the track would be about an inch higher than is at present the case, and many teamsters and drivers are objecting strongly, contending that, even as it is, the tracks are so high that their horses often have difficulty in getting across the street.

It had been the intention of the prime movers in the getting up of the petition to present it to the city council last evening, but this did not materialize.

In the debate conducted yesterday evening at St. Andrew's church by the C. E. society, on the subject, "Resolved, that character is strengthened by coming in contact with temptation," the affirmative, upheld by L. A. Muttitt and others, secured the decision. H. O. Lamb upheld the negative side of the question.

WATTS CONVICTED OF MURDER OF GIRL

Bellingham, Dec. 16—Guilty of murder in the second degree was the verdict reached by the twelve men who heard the case of Harry Watts, accused of the murder of Addie Roper, on the night of January 19 last, at Blaine.

William Allen Dell, who was jointly accused of the crime, is now serving a life sentence in the penitentiary. Dell and Watts have been convicted of murdering Addie Roper. In order to conceal their crime, they burned the house in which the murder was perpetrated. The girl was struck down with a hatchet.

In her mouth was a red bandana handkerchief and with this bit of cloth was Watts convicted. It was maintained by several witnesses that this handkerchief belonged to Watts. The defense brought forth many witnesses who refuted this testimony, but the character of the witnesses was such that their testimony carried little weight with the jury.

Even Keys Cannot Click.

Spokane, Dec. 16.—The manager of the Western Union office at Wallace, Idaho, says he was notified today by town authorities that maintainance of the office on Sunday is in violation of the Idaho Sunday law. He has asked his superior for instructions. Wallace and Wardner were closed tight today.

COOKS AND WAITERS' UNION HAS ITS CHARTER

The Hotel and Restaurant Employees' International Alliance of America will hold a meeting in the small Oddfellows' hall this evening for the purpose of organizing a local union, all interested being requested to attend. The charter, which was applied for oevr the signature of twenty members, was received on Saturday afternoon, and will be formally presented to the local members this evening, after initiations have been carried out by J. H. Perkins, secretary of the Vancouver local, and organizor far the province of B. C.

The election of officers will follow the initiatory ceremonies, which will be concluded shortly after ten o'clock. Among the Vancouver members of the union who will attend will be Mr. Muller, ex-president of the union, C. Davis, chaplain, and several others.

ROYAL CITY HOMES

Opportunity Knocks at Your DOOR!

Will You Open It?

The owners of RIVER VIEW PARK, Sapperton, have decided to sell the whole of this beautiful park in block, at fully 50 per cent. under the present market value and to give those of limited means, the same chance as the millionaire, we will divide the block into parcels of say 4, 8, or 16 lots, at the same reduction. The only apology we have to make, for selling at such tremendous reductions is the fact that we need money. This property has only to be seen to be appreciated. The outlook is superb. There is not a nicer residential property in the Royal City---No---Not One. Some of the lots are beautifully treed, with a young growth of golden spruce. The balance of the park is cleared and much of it stumped, and all of the property slopes gently towards the grand old Fraser River and is only a block from the Columbia Street car line. To the north, east, and south, the Atlas, the Cascades, and the mighty Olympic mountains, tower in all their rugged grandeur. Sapperton is the manufacturing centre of Westminster and real estate is more active there than in any other part of the city. Although only here a few days, many lots have already sold. For full particulars, as to price and terms, apply to one of the owners, J. W. NEY, or to any Real Estate office in this city.

AN OLD STAGE LINE.

It Ran From Kansas to California in Thirty-five Days.

"Atchison to California in thirty-five days; fare, only $200 in gold."

This was the heading of an old handbill, yellow with age, which a traveler laid upon the counter in a railway ticket office the other day. It was an advertisement of a line of stagecoaches that ran from Atchison, Kan., to San Francisco during the gold excitement of years ago.

"People seldom stop to think what their poor ancestors had to put up with in the old days," the man said. He was comparing the old time table with a modern railway time table, which told of the luxuries one could have by traveling on that road, no dust, no jarring and all other disagreeable features eliminated.

The old time table was a double sheet of paper, torn and yellow with age. It was issued by the Atchison and California stagecoach line in 1857. The inducements it held forth were in strange contrast with those of the modern railroad advertisement. The stagecoach line advertised that it had recently refurnished the entire "road" with absolutely new wagonettes, and it told what kind of coaches they were, how the springs were made and of what strength they were. It even said that the coaches were painted in the "best manner possible." The horses that drew the coaches were described, too, as the best.

An inducement that was held out on the time table to prospective passengers was a stop over privilege.

"Passengers who had paid their entire fare from Atchison or other points to their destination," the paper said, "may register with our agents. A stop over privilege is then given for any place on the road."

The time of the stop over was unlimited. The time table provided that a passenger might resume the journey whenever there was an empty seat in the stagecoach.

"We make quicker time to California than any other stagecoach line and at a cheaper rate," the pamphlet stated. It went on to say that for $200 a person could ride all the way from Atchison, Kan., to the gold fields of California.

"The distance is 1,913 miles," was stated on the time table, "the longest distance ever attempted by a stagecoach line. Atchison to California in thirty-five days."

A boast was made that there were twelve telegraph stations on the road to California and that eating places had been established along the road where good meals could be had at the nominal price of $3. Every passenger was allowed twenty-five pounds of baggage, consisting of wearing apparel and other necessary baggage. All over that amount must be paid for at a rate of 50 cents a pound.

It was advertised that the risk on the return trip was very great on account of the amount of gold dust and nuggets being brought back from California. The company employed only the bravest men, fully armed all the time. But it declined to carry gold dust unless paid for at the rate of $3 a pound. The company refused to be held responsible for the loss of the gold dust by robbers, Indians or other means.

The pamphlet also advertised a fast freight line between Atchison and Denver. The round trip was made in the short space of twenty days. To ship by this method all merchandise had to be wrapped in waterproof packages. A package weighing ten pounds could be sent by that route for $5. All over that weight was sent at the reduced rate of $2 for five pounds.

In its advertisement for passengers to California the pamphlet, as stated before, allowed every passenger twenty-five pounds of baggage. However, it advised that as many persons wished to take more baggage than the weight limit it would be safer to send it to California by sea.

"And to think that we can get on a train tonight and be in Denver tomorrow," the railroad man said as he compared the time tables.—Kansas City Star.

Mistook Scripture For Science.

They were passing one of the Fifth avenue churches when the bulletin board caught her eye. "The Rev. Dr. —— will speak this evening on Deuteronomy." She stopped short and carefully read it a second time. "Well," she snapped, "I wish these preachers would stick to the Bible and let science alone. I don't believe Dr. —— knows any more about Deuteronomy or astronomy or any other onomy than I do."—New York Telegram.

Used to It.

After asking a great many questions of a lady a barrister felt that some apology was necessary, so he remarked, "I really hope I don't annoy you with all these questions?"

"Not at all," answered the lady quietly. "I'm used to it. I have a six-year-old son."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

A Nice Distinction.

I wonder if any of these purists could solve for me a problem which has long been worrying me. To what particular altitude must an individual attain before his murder is described as assassination? This is a matter that ought to be cleared up.—London Tatler.

The Opposite.

"Did he go to the dogs when you refused him?"

"No, quite the opposite."

"Quite the opposite?"

"Yes. He went and got himself engaged to Kittie Cutely, the little cat!" --Houston Post.

It is the quiet people who are dangerous.—La Fontaine.

Yourself.

If you wish to be miserable you must think about yourself, about what you want, what you like, what respect people ought to pay you, and then to you nothing will be pure. You will spoil everything you touch, you will make sin and misery for yourself out of everything which God sends you and you will be as wretched as you choose.—Charles Kingsley.

Pure Love.

When a woman chooses a man with a bald head, a pair of bowlegs and a Saturday night pay check of $10 you can't accuse her of marrying for anything but pure, unalloyed, uncontaminated, unquestioned and undying love. —Lamar (Mo.) Democrat.

The concessions of the weak are the concessions of fear.—Burke.

THE GILA MONSTER.

Strange Ways of This Dreaded and Hard Biting Reptile.

Of some of the strange ways of the gila monster, that little known creature of the southwestern deserts, a correspondent writes: "I have had some experiences with Gila monsters and can state that, no matter what scientists may claim, the Gila monster is a good thing to shun. Indians and Mexicans have a horror of it and fear it more than a rattlesnake. I believe that the bite of the Gila monster is dangerous because of the creature's habit of eating lizards, bugs and rodents and then lying on sand so hot that it blisters the hands and feet of men. The heat causes the food to putrefy in the stomach, evidenced by the fact that the teeth are often covered with a fermented, putrefied froth from the food. A bite has the same effect as the cut of a dissecting knife used on a cadaver—in other words, the inoculation of a deadly poison.

"When frightened or angry he can move quite rapidly. That short, thick, stubby tail is used in jumping, just as a kangaroo uses his tail. The Gila monster bites like a bulldog and has the tenacity of a snapping turtle. I once saw some men teasing a Gila monster brought to Tucson. A string was tied around his neck. The Gila monster was crawling around on the ground, trying to get away, but was pulled back by the string. This was carried on till the creature became furious. The crowd around the Gila monster knew nothing of his power to spring. Suddenly he sprung up and bit a man among the crowd on the hand, leaping fully two feet from the ground.

"Another instance, this of a man whose chief object seems to have been a foolhardy display of fearlessness. He was holding one of the monsters in his hand by the back of its neck, so it could not bite him. He dropped his hand to the side of his leg. The Gila monster shut his teeth down on his heavy duck overalls, taking a double piece out where the cloth folded as quickly as a pair of scissors could have cut the fabric and as cleanly."—Chicago News.

ABUSE OF THE DEAD.

Queer Custom of the Bagas Forehs of French Guinea.

The Bagas Forehs, who live in French Guinea, quit life in a manner anything but commonplace. When a man dies his wife and children do not lament him. Instead they are angry at having been abandoned. They prop the body up against the house with the forked branch of a tree and invite their friends and relatives to come, all of whom are furious that one of their own has left them. When all the guests have arrived the wife of the deceased advances and addresses what was once her husband in a way well calculated to scare his ghost away from the neighborhood.

"There now, listen! You'd leave me, would you? So you don't want to live with me? Why do you do this way? Haven't I always been a good wife to you? Haven't I been a good mother to your children? Haven't your rice and fish always been well cooked? Have you anything to reproach me with? Nothing. Then shall not you go? Coward! Traitor! You shall not leave without receiving the correction that such conduct deserves."

Then the blows begin to rain down upon the poor defenseless figure. Presently the tired wife gives place to the children, and they in turn to the relatives and friends, all of whom similarly abuse it. At length, with a natural human impulse, their fury spent, they try to make amends to the hapless corpse. They bathe it and bury it a meter deep inside the house, and each day at the dinner hour the family places on the tomb some grains of rice and a little palm wine for refreshment of the soul should it return.—Washington Post.

Origin of Cork Legs.

"A cork leg?" said the dealer. "Why, man, a cork leg would crumble under you like a leg of bread. You don't want a cork leg, but an elm or willow one. A leg was never made of cork since the world's beginning. But many people think as you do, and I'll tell you how the fallacy originated. The inventor of the modern artificial leg—the leg instead of the stick—was John Cork. Cork's legs, or cork legs, were famous around 1810. And whenever a man makes your mistake he pays an unconscious tribute to Cork's skill."

Very Much Settled.

An elderly woman, on being examined before the magistrate of Bungay as to her place of legal settlement, was asked what reasons she had for supposing that her deceased husband's settlement was at St. Andrews.

The old lady looked earnestly at the bench and said:

"He was born there, he was married there, and they buried him there; and if that isn't settling him there, I'd like to know what is!"—London Telegraph.

A Correction.

Bertie—Father, what is an egotist? Father—He is a man who thinks he is smarter than any one else. Mother—My dear, you are scarcely right. The egotist is the man who says that he is smarter than any one else. All men think they are.

Small Himself.

"The trouble with that man is that he takes small matters seriously."

"Yes," answered Miss Cayenne, "but you could not expect him to do otherwise without sacrificing his self esteem."—Washington Star.

Strong minds suffer without complaining; weak ones complain without suffering.

ERROR IN JUDGMENT.

The stringing of railway steel and other material along the business section of Columbia street and the opening up of the street just at a time when for the Christmas trade we wish to see our city at the best, certainly shows an error of judgment on tht part of some B. C. E. R. official. It may be pleaded that the surplus of labor offering at this time is being relieved by thus providing work for the unemployed. Even so, why could not the work have been commenced at the east end of the line, near Leopold Place, and work toward the business section, reaching there when the rush is over. It is to be hoped that this material will be reloaded at once and taken off the street. The raise in grade is very perceptable, and we do not remember that any permission has been asked from or given by, the city council for raising the grade which has been creeping up steadily until the south side of Columbia street is so rounded as to make it dangerous for loaded wagons to use it. The rail being used would not be permitted in any other city without something being done to even up the centre and make it safe.

VOLUME OF GAS.

The electorate of the Dominion have their eyes on the exhibition the Conservatives are making of themselves on the floor of parliament since the snap vote was taken on the amendment to the address in reply to the speech from the throne. One would have thought that as their heaviest guns had fired with so little effect they would be ready to proceed with the business for which the House was called together. Not so, however, the hot air will have to continue to obstruct the legitimate business as long as any one of the small coterie of blue ruin artists wishes to appear before the footlights. The estimates are ready and when obstruction ceases, the government is ready to get down to business.

From the tone of the Columbian these days, it must be up against another heavy dose of dyspepsia. The government, the banks and the bench help a disordered system to relieve itself after a gorge in high finance. The government won't take a chill, the banks will not cease to do businesss, and the bench will still hold up its honored head and be respected by the people.

Mr. Staples said in the course of his speech in the Commons the other day that his constituency (Macdonald, Man.) was visited this season by the most blighting frost on record. R. L. Borden and R. P. Robin were up there, which in some measure explains.

One of the Conservative speakers in the Commons yesterday preached a blue ruin sermon and then complained because a constituent of his had been unable to secure an advance from his bank this fall, "although his security was better." How could his security be better if there had been such a blight over the whole land? —Ottawa Citizen.

Last Saturday a purse containing $30 cash was brought to the police station, and the same evening was returned to its rightful owner. There is at present a lady's purse, containing a considerable amount of money, and a check, awaiting identification by its owner at the same plact.

English Jurors' Remuneration.

The scale of remuneration of English common jurymen is absurd. In a civil case in England a common juryman is allowed 5 shillings ($1.25) a day for "a view"—that is, for inspecting any property or thing in dispute—but otherwise he is, in law, not entitled to any remuneration. It is usual, however, in the high court to give him a fee of 1 shilling and in the counties 8 pence. Special jurymen receive much higher remuneration. The fee in the county court is 1 shilling a case, in the mayor's court 2 pence and in the London sheriff's court 4 pence.—Chambers' Journal.

Not Hopeful.

"'Tis a fine, elegant husband you have, ma'am," said Maggie. "Him and me was talkin' about Ireland this mornin'. He's traveled as far as many a gentleman. And there ain't many husbands as good to their wives, ma'am. Look how he brings you lettuces and things from the market. But dear, dear! That kind never lives long."—Newark News.

Independent Criticism.

A little girl sat gazing fixedly at the new bonnet of one of her mother's visitors until the caller smilingly asked, "Do you like it, my dear?"

The child innocently replied: "Yes, I do. Mamma and Aunt Milly said it was a perfect fright, but it doesn't frighten me a bit."

Frank MacKenzie, formerly of Ladner, who has engaged the large store on the Columbia street side of the Dominion Trust building, which he has fitted up to conduct a general dispensing drug business, may flatter himself upon, having one of the most up-to-date establishments of its kind in the province. The store has been fitted with new fixtures throughout, all of the most modern style. The color scheme is worked out in several shades of brown, and is extremely artistic. The decorating was done by James Marshall. An entirely new stock of drugs and accessories has been laid in, and everything possible has been done for the comfort of patrons. At the opening, which will take place tomorrow, each visitor will receive a tasteful souvenir in the shape of perfume, or other toilet accessory.

While a small herd of steers consigned to McMenemy & Anderson were being unloaded from the steamer Transfer at the C. P. N. wharf yesterday morning, one of the steers fell and broke his leg. The animal lay in the pen for nearly five hours, before it was decided to put him out of his misery. Permission was obtained from the police to shoot him, and then the slaughter began. First some amateur rifle-shot fired twice through the head of the steer. Either the aim was poor, or else the animal had a decided objection to dying, but at any rate the shots failed of the desired effect. Next a butcher waded in with a broadaxe over his shoulder, and after skirmishing around the now dying bull, dealt him a tremendous blow between the eyes. The wounded steer looked up with a piteous expression, and was promptly struck again. Two more blows were necessary to finally give him his quietus.

PHOTOGRAPHING STARS.

When Done With Ordinary Camera They Show as Lines, Not Specks.

It is an easy matter merely to photograph stars. The trouble is to picture them as points and not as streaks, for as the earth rotates it carries the photographic apparatus with it, and the light from the star makes a line, while the astronomer wants a point.

He must therefore devise a machine that will counteract the movement of the earth and so keep the light steadily in the same place on the plate. Elaborate clockwork must turn the lens backward to keep it on the star and at the same rate as that at which the earth moves forward.

An astronomer at the Yerkes observatory at Williams Bay, Wis., is quoted in St. Nicholas as saying that "many of the most important results of astronomy have been derived from the use of an ordinary camera. On a clear night point one of these toward the north pole, and it will be found after an exposure of one or two hours that the stars which lie near the pole have drawn arcs of circles upon the plate. This is due to the fact that the earth is rotating upon its axis at such a rate as to cause every star in the sky to appear to travel through a complete circle once in twenty-four hours.

The mere act of photographing is not much more difficult than a short exposure out of the window of a moving car. Any one can try it.

Let the exposure be for at least five minutes if the camera is pointed overhead and for at least one hour if directed toward the pole star. The camera may be left out all night if pointed at the pole, but must be taken in just before daylight. The longer the exposure the longer the star "scratches." Develop the plate as long as possible.

Skill and Activity of the Expert Riverman In Action.

First and foremost your true riverman can ride a log. This does not mean merely that he is able to stand upright or to jump from one to another without splashing in, though even that is no mean feat, as a trial will convince you. That is the kindergarten of it. The saw log in the water is not only his object of labor, but his means of transportation. Your true riverman on drive seldom steps on land except to eat and sleep.

A journey down stream is to him an affair of great simplicity. He pushes into the current a stick of timber, jumps lightly atop it, leans against his peavy and floats away as graceful and motionless as a Grecian statue. When his unstable craft overtakes other logs he deserts it, runs forward as far as he can, the logs bobbing and awash behind his spring, and so continues on another timber. Jack Boyd once for a bet rode for twelve miles down Grand river on a log he could carry to the stream's bank across his shoulders. Fully half the time his feet were submerged to the ankles.

Nor does quick water always cause your expert riverman to disembark. Using his peavy as a balancing pole and treading with squirrel-like quickness as his footing rolls, he will run rapids of considerable force and volume. When the tail of a drive passes through the chute of a dam there are always half a dozen or so of the rear men who out of sheer bravado will run through standing upright like circus riders and yelling like fiends.—Stewart Edward White in Outing Magazine.

LAND REGISTRY ACT.

TAKE NOTICE that application has been made to register Joseph Tays as the owner in Fee Simple, under a Tax Sale Deed from C. C. Fisher to Joseph Tays, bearing date the 16th day of November, A. D. 1904, of all and singular that certain parcel or tract of land and premises situate, lying and being in the District of New Westminster, in the Province of British Columbia, more particularly known and described as Lot 13, Block 5, subdivision of Lot 201, Group 1.

You and each of you are required to contest the claim of the tax purchaser within forty-five days from the date of the first publication of this notice upon you, otherwise I shall register Joseph Tays as owner thereof in fee. And I hereby direct that publication of this notice for one month in a daily newspaper published at New Westminster will be good and sufficient service thereof.

Dated at the Land Registry Office, New Westminster, Province of British Columbia, this 26th day of October, A. D. 1907.

C. S. KEITH,
District Registrar.

To John Sirr, Esq.

All persons served with this notice, and those claiming through or under them and all persons claiming any interest in said land by virtue of any unregistered instrument, and all persons claiming any interest in said land by descent, whose title is not registered under the provisions of the "Land Registry Act," shall be forever estopped and debarred from setting up any claim to or in respect of the said land so sold for taxes as provided by the "Land Registry Act."

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

IN THE MATTER of the Estate of Alexander Ewen, late of the City of New Westminster, British Columbia, deceased.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN pursuant to the Revised Statutes of British Columbia, Chapter 187, that all creditors and others having claims against the Estate of Alexander Ewen, who died on or about the 8th day of July, 1907, are required on or before the 15th day of December, 1907, to send by post prepaid, or deliver to the undersigned, their Christian and surnames, addresses and descriptions; the full particulars of their claims, duly verified; the statement of their account and the nature of the security, if any, held by them, and FURTHER TAKE NOTICE that after such last mentioned date the executors, John Hendry and John B. Jardine, will proceed to distribute the assets of the deceased among the parties entitled thereto, having regard only to the claims of which they shall then have notice, and that the said executors will not be liable for the said assets or any part thereof to any person or persons of whose claims notice shall not have been received by them at the time of such distribution.

DATED at New Westminster, this 6th day of November, 1907.

A New Subdivision

Just what a good many people have been waiting for—

Mr. D. D. Bourke has just authorized us to sell in lots a portion of his Twelfth street property, bordering on Twelfth street, Fifth avenue, Thirteenth street, and a lane.

The property is all cleared, fenced, graded and in grass, and commands a charming view of the Delta and North Arm.

Heretofore this property could only be purchased as a whole, but now separate lots can be had at prices justified by local conditions, and upon easy terms.

OLD SAYINGS.

Dean Swift is credited with "Bread is the staff of life."

It was Keats who said, "A thing of beauty is a joy forever."

Franklin is authority for "God helps those who help themselves."

"Man proposes, but God disposes," remarked Thomas a Kempis.

"All cry and no wool" is an expression found in Butler's "Hudibras."

It was an observation of Thomas Southerne that "Pity's akin to love."

Edward Coke, the English jurist, was of the opinion that "A man's house is his castle."

"When Greeks joined Greeks, then was the tug of war," was written by Nathaniel Lee.

We are indebted to Colley Cibber, not to Shakespeare, for "Richard is himself again."

To Milton we owe "The paradise of fools," "A wilderness of sweets" and "Moping melancholy and moonstruck madness."

The poet Campbell found that "Coming events cast their shadows before" and "'Tis distance lends enchantment to the view."

His Last Retort.

The story is told of a well known Chicago criminal lawyer whose valuable services were retained by the wealthy relatives of a man accused of murder in a southwestern state.

The case was a bad one, for the evidence was overwhelmingly against the accused. Despite this fact the lawyer contrived by the skillful exercise of every trick and maneuver known to the profession to secure the disagreement of juries, delays, appeals, etc., till at last the case was brought before the supreme court of the United States.

One day in an interview between the prisoner and his counsel the former asked, "In case the supreme court should decide against me, what will be my next move?"

"To heaven, I hope," was the candid response of the lawyer.—St. Louis Republic.

Gent and Gemman.

This slang word seems to have come in at first as a mere written contraction. I have found the word laygents in law reports of the seventeenth century, particularly those of Popham and of Davis. In Sir John Northcote's "Note Book," Dec. 2, 1640, Lord Gray is described as saying of one Hallford or Holford "that he is no gent; that in memory of divers he kept hogs." The cognate word gemman can be traced about a century earlier.—London Notes and Queries.

LAND REGISTRY ACT.

Re Lots 22 and 27, Block XXII, City of New Westminster.

A certificate of indefeasible title to the above property will be issued to Agnes Blackie, on the 31st day of December, 1907, unless in the meantime a valid objection thereto be made to me in writing by a person or persons claiming an estate or interest therein, or in any part thereof.

C. S. KEITH,
District Registrar of Titles.

Land Registry office, New Westminster, B. C., 29th November, 1907.

The person or persons having in their custody or possession the following Title Deeds relating to the said property are requested to deliver the same to the undersigned:

15th December, 1862—Robert Kerr to John Cooper, conveyance in fee.

Martin & McQuarrie, solicitors for applicant, Trapp block, New Westminster, B. C.

LAND REGISTRY ACT.

Re Lots 1 to 9 (inclusive) of a portion of Lot 94, Group 1, Map 440, New Westminster district.

Whereas proof of the loss of Certificate of Title Number 15715a, issued in the name of Peter Latham, has been filed in this office.

Notice is hereby given that I shall at the expiration of one month from the date of the first publication hereof, issue a duplicate of the said certificate, unless in the meantime valid objection be made to me in writing.

"Are You Crazy ?"

"Are You Crazy ?" which comes to the Opera House on Friday, has but one aim, to make people laugh. A foreign visitor to this country once said that from his observations he had come to the conclusion that the reaso American people were so successful in heir business and were so possessed with energy, was that they relaxed so completly when they were through working and that they were fonder of fun and could laugh more convincingly than any other nation he knew of. Certainly in any event every one likes the man who laughs, and from this point of view "Are You Crazy" is a public benefactor. Be that as it may, it's a rattling good musical comedy with a greater proportion of originality than is usually allotted such productions. The action moves rapidly, the complications come quick and fast, and within the compass of three acts no time is lost.

The wages of all civic employees will be paid on the 23rd of this month Christmas coming two days later, the reason is obvious.

A MANCHURIAN INN.

Chinese Food and Beds—High Walls to Protect Against Thieves.

The inn at Tieling, which was similar to the inns all over northern Manchuria, had a big compound surrounded by a high mud wall with gates. The long distance carts going down the country with beans and bringing back goods are driven inside these compounds for safety from robbers each night, says the South China Post, and during the great hauling season in winter these inns are crowded.

The walls of the inns are of mud plastered on a center wall made by weaving reeds together. The windows are mostly of oiled paper, with possibly one small pane of glass in the center. The rafters are rounded timbers on which are spread reeds, then a layer of coarse matting and then packed mud. In the cities the better inns have brick walls and tiled roofs, but are otherwise about the same.

It was necessary to sleep on the "k'ang" and eat Chinese food. In these inns the first place entered is the kitchen, a square space with mud floors and raised mud ovens with clay and iron pots. From this one passes through a cloth hung doorway into the inn proper. At Tieling this was twenty to sixty feet, down the middle of which was an eight foot aisle with packed mud floor.

On each side were ranged the "k'angs," raised mud embankments, brick faced, some thirty inches high and six feet wide. On these are spread mattings, and here all guests roll themselves in their own blankets and sleep side by side, with their feet to the wall and their heads to the center aisle. A fire underneath runs the length of each "range," and a fire at one end furnishes the hot air, which passes through and out at a mud chimney and warms the sleepers.

The meals are served on these "k'angs" on little tables about a foot high. At these inns a teapot is always kept warm over a fire in a raised mud embankment in the middle of the main aisle.

IN WRECKS AT SEA.

The Way Men Act When They Lose Their Heads and Nerve.

What has most struck me in my many experiences of shipwrecks has been the strangely diverse ways in which the passengers acquit themselves under intense excitement and panic, said a lifeboat man to the writer.

Women cry, faint and cling to each other, but are least trouble. Men often act very strangely. I remember one man throwing into the lifeboat a heavy trunk which he wanted to save, but which we promptly heaved overboard.

Some men become quite panic stricken. I've seen strong men, probably brave enough in other cases, fighting fiercely for the life buoys and thrusting the women and children aside in frantic endeavors to leap into the boat first; yet, strangely enough, one man who thus disgraced himself has since obtained the Royal Humane society's medal for saving life at sea, thrice volunteering with a scratch crew in aid of a distressed vessel.

DOOR KEYS IN SWEDEN

Curious Custom of Hanging Them Outside the Doors.

HOUSES LOCKED, YET OPEN.

The Dangling Key Informs You the Tenants Are Out, but Friends Who Call Are at Liberty to Unlock the Door and Enter and Rest.

When the Swedes go calling, they lock up and then hang the door key on the bell or the doorknob or some other conspicuous place. When they go visiting for a few weeks, bolts and bars are slid into place, and then out goes the key. If the house is shut up for an entire season or a full year, the gayly swinging door key says "Not at home" to passersby.

There is no kicking your heels on the doormat in Sweden while the bell or knocker awakes the echoes in an empty house. Agents, peddlers, friends and relatives all know this message of the door key and seeing it out pass by.

As can be readily imagined, this strange custom has been put to good use in many instances when visitors were not wanted. Instead of telling the maid to inform callers that Mrs. Jones is not at home the mistress says to Jennie: "Hang out the door key at 3 o'clock this afternoon and bring it in at 5. I don't wish to see any one for a few hours."

About the first of the month in certain districts door keys swing to the breezes in great numbers, and collectors, knowing the custom and also its misuse, scratch their heads in perplexity at this not at home signal.

Many amusing stories are told of creditors sitting down to await the return of their man while the debtor sat on the other side of the locked door and chuckled. There have been instances where a collector has taken the key, unlocked the door and entered the house to be met by the owner, who calmly laughed over his ruse. Again a creditor has entered a house in which he supposes the owner to be hiding only to find it vacant and to be caught by the irate master, arrested and made to pay a fine, while the debtor got an extension of time on his bill.

These illegitimate uses of this very old custom of not only leaving the latchstring out, but also putting the door key at the disposal of all who pass, are not discovered at first glance, and they are really very much in the minority, for Sweden is pre-eminently an honest land. In and around about Stockholm there is very little need of policemen or strong boxes, for every man, however low down in the social scale, seems to have due respect for another's property.

Although a few of the more suspicious, or the foreigners who have not been brought up in this strange custom of leaving the door key out, may lock up with bolts from the inside and use another door for exit when they leave home for an extended visit, the old residents actually leave their homes at the disposal of any who may care to enter.

Friends who call and find the key out feel at perfect liberty to unlock the door, enter and rest a bit before passing on. Strangers seldom misuse the confidence.

The custom started ages ago when it was the usual thing for "holy men" or priests to travel through Swedish villages, stopping to leave their blessing on the households of the neighborhood. These visits were looked forward to with eagerness by the pious Swedes, and it was considered an act of grossest discourtesy to bar the door, for whatever reason, against a holy man. Consequently if a family left home the key was always put out against the arrival of the priest. Meat and drink were left, and should the holy man stop at a vacant house he entered, refreshed himself, left his blessing in the form of a candle or a bottle of holy water or a bit of consecrated green and passed. Thus the custom originated, and, although these quaint villages have become towns and traveling priests have passed away and the influx of other nations has modernized Sweden and brought the evil of theft with it, the door keys still hang out as evidence of trust and open doored hospitality.

A thief seldom takes down one of the keys and enters, for there is the uncertainty about the absence of the residents spoken of to hold him back, and the knowledge that an exposed door key may merely mean that the owner has stepped across to the store and will return any minute makes tampering with property risky business.

These facts, together with the big one that Swedes are one of the most honest people on the face of the globe, make a custom safe there which would be a foolhardy tempting of misfortune in our "land of the free."—Los Angeles Times.

Found an Excuse.

One Easter a Methodist minister in the south wrote to J. Pierpont Morgan and asked him to subscribe to the erection of a new church.

"Since I am an Episcopalian," Mr. Morgan wrote back, "I can't conscientiously join this Easter subscription to the building of a Methodist church. Before erecting your new church, though, you are going, I understand, to tear the old church down. For that purpose I gladly inclose my check for $250."

To please will always be the wish of benevolence; to be admired, the constant aim of ambition.—Dr. Johnson.

ROQUEFORT CHEESE.

How the Green Mold and the Flavor Are Produced.

A cheese expert has the following to say about Roquefort cheese:

"To make Roquefort cheese we must have the proper raw material—sheep's milk. Of course we have sheep in America, but show me a Yankee farmer who would go to the trouble of milking sheep! It is even too much for him to milk cows, and it is the standard lamentation of all our farmers that the boys, even if they stay on the farm, do not want to do any milking. Before they do such kind of work they would rather go to a business school or a college where they study agriculture, chemistry, etc.

"How is Roquefort cheese cured? The mold in the cheese is produced by moldy breadcrumbs which are ground to a green dust and mixed in the cheese curd. The country around Roquefort is very rocky. The limestone rocks are full of crevices and caves, which draw in the warm air in summer, give it out in winter, and vice versa.

"These caves have been provided by nature and improved by cellars that have been built in such a way that these natural currents of warm and cold air pass through them, where Roquefort cheese is cured. This is the way that Roquefort cheese is ripened and gets its peculiar flavor and character. It is all very well for the scientists to study the chemical process which the cheese is undergoing, but to produce this process in an artificial way is another question. Nature is the best chemist.

"The manufacture of Roquefort cheese has been tried in America, but the manufacturers did not make much of a success. Nobody manufactures Roquefort in America at present. We know of one manufacturer who tried to make Roquefort cheese of goats' milk. He boasted especially that he would use only the milk of 'imported' goats. Just think of the idea! Imported goats grazing on American pastures were expected to give better flavored milk than domestic goats. It is the climate, the special soil, atmospheric influences, etc., which produce the fine fragrant grass. The milk of the cows or goats or sheep is naturally the product of the grass they are eating, the water they are drinking, and neither this nor the climate nor the country can be imported to America—only the product which the climate or country produces. That is why neither the American Camembert nor Roquefort ever has the flavor or fragrance of the imported article in spite of all the imported goats or imported cattle or even of imported microbes."—Chicago Record-Herald.

BOOMERANG INVENTIONS.

Clisthenes introduced the custom of ostracism and was the first to be banished thereby.

Matthew Hopkins, the witch finder, was himself tried by his own tests and put to death as a wizard.

Ludovico Sforza, who invented the iron shroud, was the first to suffer death by this horrible torture.

Perillos, who invented the brazen bull for Phalaris, tyrant of Agrigentum, was the first person baked to death in the horrible monster.

The Regent Morton of Scotland, who invented the maiden, a sort of guillotine, was the first to be beheaded thereby. This was in the reign of Queen Elizabeth.

The bishop of Verdun, who invented the iron cages, too small to allow the person confined in them to stand upright or lie at full length, was the first to be shut up in one.

The perriere was an instrument for throwing stones of 3,000 pounds in weight, and the inventor fell a victim to his own invention by the accidental discharge of a perriere against a wall.—Scrap Book.

Old Time Bank Sinecures.

In the old days the Bank of England was paternal in its treatment of its clerks. One young fellow was distinguished only for his zeal as a member of the volunteer corps which now is defunct. His clerkly services were negligible and neglected, but when it was brought to the notice of the directors they remembered his martial ardor and gave him a nice little sinecure. Another clerk was reported to them as a really clever amateur painter. They saw his pictures. "It is a pity that such talent should be wasted over ledgers," was the kindly verdict. So they gave him a room at the bank for use as a studio and appointed him to the post of superintending the burning of canceled bank notes every Friday afternoon.—London Chronicle.

The Greek Figure.

Greek figures of men appear taller and more graceful than those of moderns. Modern artists make the upright figure seven and one-half times the length of the head. The Greeks made it eight times, lengthening the shin, and the longer sweep from knee to heel gave the figure increased grace and dignity. The same plan was frequently adopted by Lord Leighton, in whose paintings the same effect is obtained.—New York American.

Made a Difference.

Teacher—If one servant girl could clean two rooms in two hours, how long would it take two servant girls to do it? Little Girl—Four hours. Teacher—Wrong. It would only take one hour. Little Girl—Oh, I didn't know you was talking about servant girls that wasn't on speaking terms!—London Tit-Bits.

A WEIRD RACING TALE

How a Horse That Couldn't Run Came In a Winner.

PULLED OFF AT GUTTENBERG.

The Story of the Way That Jockey Hugh Penny Repaid an Impecunious Owner Who Had In Days Gone by Helped Him on In His Career.

St. Louis, long a center for merry-go-round tracks, having at various times fostered the East Side, Madison, Sportsman's park and South Side tracks, has had many a weird racing tale unloaded upon it. Stories of horses at the night track being run in on the last lap under cover of semidarkness and the like have been common.

Here's one, however, that comes from the days of the old Guttenberg course, which seems able to hold its head up in almost any disreputable turf company:

When prosperity commenced shining on the Gut a little rat faced jockey began to attract the attention of men who wanted to get their horses home in front. He was quick at the post, had fair judgment, did not know what fear was and was willing to take all sorts of advantages, whether fair or not. This was Hugh Penny.

Penny had another virtue that is rare in jockeys in these days. He was grateful. When he was making a reputation a certain owner went out of his way to give him a mount.

This was the making of the jockey. The experience he got on this man's horses taught him a whole lot, and finally his services were in such demand he was able to pick his own mounts. Money was flowing into his pockets. He wore diamonds, drove fast trotters and was one of the few visitors to the hill able to afford fur overcoats.

In the meantime the man who had given him his start had fallen into a ruck and could not win a race. He owed every one who would trust him, the feed box was empty, and his stable consisted of one plug that could run a bit in the mud, but on a fast track couldn't beat a ten-year-old maiden.

This was the state of affairs when one night after the races he approached Penny and asked him to ride his horse in a six furlong race the next day. "What's the use, Bill?" asked the diminutive jockey. "He can't run fast enough to keep himself warm."

"You're right, Jock, but I've just got to take a chance. I'm down and out, and it is possible the old horse will be lucky enough to squeeze into third money."

The next day came. There was a fog surrounding the course that you could cut with a knife. In fact, it was so bad a bugler went to the post with the horses and with a loud blast announced when the flag fell. There was not a foot of the track that could be seen from the grand stand, and the judges had to leave the stand and go out on the track to tell which horse had won.

As Penny was mounting his horse in the paddock he was greatly excited.

"How much have you bet?" he asked the owner.

"Not a cent, son," was the reply. "I haven't got a cent to bet with, and, besides, the old horse can't win."

"Yes, he can," said Penny. "He'll win by a block. Here's a hundred. Hurry up and get it down."

The hundred was bet, and the horses went to the post. In a few moments there was a loud blast of a bugle, and the race was on. It was a half mile track, you understand, and the start was about where the mile and a quarter would be on a full mile track.

In a few seconds the splash of horses' feet could be heard from the grand stand and a few shadowy forms seen passing along the stretch. Then everything was silent until again came the faint patter of horses' feet. These grew louder and louder until finally they were right in front of the stand. Then it was seen that one horse was ten to fifteen lengths in front of the field. In a few moments it was announced that Penny's mount was the one that was so far in front, and the race was given to him.

Penny dismounted and made his way back to the paddock. He did not have a speck of mud on his clothes.

"The old horse was a runner today, wasn't he, jock?"

"Runner nothing," answered Penny. "Why, he couldn't run fast enough to beat me."

"How in blazes did he manage to beat that field, then?" was the query.

"He didn't," replied Penny. "I stood still when the flag fell, and when I heard the field coming after making the circuit of the track I drew the whip on the old dog, and even then it was all he could do to get home in front."

And that was one way of winning races at the hilltop track.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Antiquity of Slavery.

Slavery is pretty nearly as old as the race. It began so far back that the memory of man, assisted by the still greater memory of history, can recall no time when it did not exist. It would be difficult to say who were the first slaves. In all the nations around the Mediterranean, where civilization is supposed to have started, the institution began early to flourish and held on right down through feudalism to modern times.

Meet the pessimist with a smile. It is his worst medicine; but, bitter it is, it usually does him good.—Oklahoma State Capital.

BEYOND THE GRAVE.

Victor Hugo's Views on the Question of a Future Life.

Victor Hugo's opinion on the question of life beyond the grave was a remarkable one. The great Frenchman was firmly convinced that he would meet all his friends in a future world. He was equally sure that he had always existed from the antediluvian times, when the Creator placed him on earth. He believed that he would exist forever, inasmuch as he felt in his soul thousands of hymns, dramas and poems that had never found expression.

When the atheists would say to him, "The proof that you will not exist in the future is that you did not exist in the past," Hugo would answer:

"Who told you I did not exist in the past centuries? You will say that is the legend of the ages. The poet has written, 'Life is a fairy tale twice written.' He might have said a thousand times written. You do not believe in the doctrine of surviving personalities for the reason that you do not recollect your anterior existence. But how can the recollection of vanished ages remain imprinted on your memory when you do not remember a thousand and one scenes and events of your present life? Since 1802 there have been ten Victor Hugos in me. Do you think that I can recall all their actions and all their thoughts?

"The tomb is dark, and when I shall have passed the tomb to emerge into light once more all these Victor Hugos will be almost wholly strangers to me, but it will always be the same soul."—Scrap Book.

He Could Walk.

All are not soldiers who wear a uniform, as General Lew Wallace found out at Fort Donelson. He saw four soldiers carrying a fifth, who seemed to be wounded.

"Can't that man walk without assistance?" asked Wallace.

"Oh, no!" said the men. "He is dying."

Just then a shell exploded near by, and the four men dropped their burden and fled. The man who was supposed to be wounded leaped to his feet and ran even faster than the others.

What Chance Had He?

A physician tells of two young friends in his city who entered simultaneously upon their respective careers of physician and lawyer. Late one afternoon the newly made medico dashed into the room of his legal friend, exclaiming:

"Great luck, old man! Congratulate me! Got a patient at last! On my way to see him now!"

Whereupon the legal light to be clapped his friend on the back saying, "Delighted, old chap!" Then, after a slight pause, he added, with a sly grin:

"Say, let me go with you. Perhaps he hasn't made his will."

MAKING THINGS DO.

Willing Sacrifices People Will Make In Time of War.

Not the only heroes of war were those who bore the musket and sword. The women and children who stayed at home and kept up heart in spite of the privations of siege are to be numbered among the valiant. A glimpse of some of the southern domestic economies during the civil war is given by Miss M. J. Walsh in her personal recollections printed by the Mississippi Historical society:

Among the glorious achievements of that time the makeshifts at home deserve recognition, for they represent ingenuity and willing sacrifice. As various articles gave out substitutes were found. If no substitute could be invented for an article we simply did without.

Coffee, the southerners' daily beverage, was manufactured from parched corn, burnt corn bread, even burnt molasses. Sweet potatoes cut into small squares, dried, parched and ground were also used. The stimulating effect was lacking, but it was all the better for our nerves. For tea, young raspberry leaves dried were used.

Sugar was a serious problem, and molasses was as precious as sugar.

"What shall we do when the present supply of Louisiana molasses gives out?" was a burning question, and the only answer was, "Do without."

Grits were eaten for rice. When we wanted soda we swept the fireplace clean and burned corncobs.

Mustard and pepper were made of home grown products. Salt was costly. Every bit was shaken off dry pork and used. All brine was boiled down and dried. Still the supply grew lower and lower. Some one discovered that the dirt floors of the old smokehouses were salt mines, so to speak. The dirt was put in hoppers and run down, the brine boiled and dried.

All new cloth had to be manufactured at home from raw material. The dyestuffs were made from roots, bark, walnuts and indigo.

Shoes were rough affairs made from the hides of beeves, cured by the negroes. Buttons were made of coarse thread or persimmon seeds. Caps were cut out of cloth and hats plaited from palmetto.

Letters were written on the blank leaves of books, the wrong side of wall scraps or old envelopes turned and pasted together.

Thorns and Roses.

How true it is that there is no rose without a thorn. Even the rocking chair is not an unmixed blessing, as anybody who has run his ankle against one of its rockers is amply able to testify.

MAKING A BALLOON.

Precautions Taken to Keep the Gas Bag From Destruction.

It may interest the reader to hear something about the construction of a big modern balloon and its equipments. It is made of what is known as balloon cloth, which sometimes is of silk and is sewed in small sections of about a yard square, so that if one of the sections should burst the whole balloon would not collapse and destroy the aeronaut.

At the top of the bag is the valve to let the gas out when one wishes to descend. A rope for opening it runs from this valve through the center of the balloon to the operator in the basket. The balloon is filled through the neck, and this is left always open, so that when the gas expands from the heat of the sun or the lesser pressure of high altitudes the gas may escape and not burst the envelope.

As soon as the balloon is sewed together it is blown full of air and given three coats of varnish. Each coat must be allowed to dry thoroughly before the next is applied, or else they would never become perfectly dry, and the balloon would be likely to be destroyed at any minute from spontaneous combustion. This spontaneous combustion is not a bursting into flame, but a kind of exceedingly quick dry rot. I myself have lost three balloons through it. Once in my factory we were looking at a beauty when some one sniffed the air and remarked, "Thomas' balloon is gone." And so it proved to be. Five minutes saw it destroyed—rotten so that you could poke your finger through it.

Sometimes the balloon is so affected in only a few sections, and a man may make an' ascension thinking his balloon is all right. Protected by the fine netting which envelops the balloon itself, he may even get up to some height before discovering his danger. In former times there were many fatal accidents from this cause.

When a balloon is packed, talcum or some other powder is sprinkled over the folds to keep them from adhering to each other. If this is neglected the balloon will be ruined, especially in hot weather.

As I said, a fine netting covers the balloon proper both to strengthen it and to carry the weight of the basket and its contents. All the strands of the netting come together in the "concentrating ring," just above the basket, in which the aeronaut stands. The anchor and guide ropes as well as the basket are fastened to this concentrating ring.

All modern balloons, besides the valve, have a rip cord fastened to a long patch sewed in the envelope, by means of which the balloon can be cut in two and brought to earth instantly. This is never used except in case of extreme emergency and where the basket is within ten or fifteen feet of the ground.—Dr. J. P. Thomas in Appleton's.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

We all need things we can plug along without.

If you are right, don't let a clever man persuade you out of it.

The thoughts you can't express without profanity are not very important.

Apologies are like family skeletons. They should not be taken out before company.

Half our bad temper comes through our inability to see the justice of the other side.

When you think you have done your best the chances are that you have only started.

This would be a more comfortable world if people would listen to reason as readily as to gossip.

Some people have an absurd notion that unless they are always gabbing they will be considered dull.—Atchison Globe.

The Old Bedlam.

Bethlehem (pronounced Bedlam) is the London lunatic asylum. It was originally founded in 1247 as a priory, but is spoken of as a hospital for lunatics in 1472, and when the church was despoiled it was granted to the city of London as such an asylum. At one time the wretched inmates were exhibited to the public like so many wild beasts, as Pepys notes in his diary and Hogarth shows in one of his sketches. Patients that were harmless or half cured were given badges and released to beg in the streets. Edgar in "King Lear" impersonates one of these wandering Tom-o'-Bedlams.

Marriage Expenses.

Careful observation, extending over a period of forty-two years and supplemented by thousands of interviews with storekeepers, hairdressers, modistes, milliners, collectors and others, leads us to believe that the average cost of a bride's trousseau in this country—taking the rich with the poor—is the sum of $66.38. Equally careful observation convinces us that the average cost of a bridegroom's sartorial outfit is slightly less than one-third that amount, or, to be exact, $22.01. Thus we have $88.39 as the cost of the garments worn by bride and bridegroom at the average wedding and in the course of the average honeymoon.—Baltimore Sun.
