THREE MONTHS OLD FRENCH MINISTRY RESIGNS

CAPT. D. H. JARVIS KILLS HIMSELF AT SEATTLE

"Tired and Worn Out---That's All" He Said in a Farewell Letter ---Old Alaskan Pioneer and General Manager of the North Western Fisheries Company, Was Well Known Here.

Captain D. H. Jarvis, general manager of the Northwestern Fisheries Company, committed suicide on Coronation night at Seattle. Captain Jarvis was very well known in the whole of this district, and had many friends in Prince Rupert. He visited this city about this time last summer with the Jacob Shift party of financiers, and the news of his tragic death comes as a shock to his business friends and the old timers here.

Shot Himself at Club

The captain committed suicide by shooting. He was staying in a room at the Seattle Athletic Club over night on the 22nd. On Friday morning the hall-boy could get no answer when he knocked to arouse the captain. At noon the door was broken open and the body found. Captain Jarvis lay on the bed fully clothed. A gaping wound, just over the left ear, a 32-calibre revolver with one empty chamber, and a brief note on the bureau told the story.

"Tired and worn out—that's all," was the penciled farewell message written by Captain Jarvis on a scrap of paper.

Has Been Notable Figure

The first custom house in Alaska was established for the United States government by Captain Jarvis.

This was when he was a captain in the revenue service. For his pioneer work in the frozen north, Congress voted him a gold medal, and when he quit the government service, scores of important posts were offered him.

When the Guggenheim syndicate financed the great Northwestern Fisheries Company, Captain Jarvis was appointed general manager, a position he held at the time of his death.

Friend of Roosevelt's

Captain Jarvis was a close friend of Colonel Roosevelt. Some years ago, while in the revenue service, Captain Jarvis was active in protecting the vast interests of the Guggenheims. He was investigated by Congress for his part in this trouble, but was vindicated.

Captain Jarvis was about 65 years old and is survived by a widow and several children. The Jarvis home is at 1122 Harvard Ave. N., Seattle.

Mrs. Jarvis is a niece of Hetty Green, America's richest woman.

KING AND QUEEN HELD SECOND BIG PROCESSION

Colonial and Indian Troops Were Prominent In It---Canadians Were Cheered All Along the Line---N. W. Mounted Police Were Most Popular---Naval Review at Spithead

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, June 26.—Their Majesties made another triumphant progress through the streets of the capital today and were given a wonderful reception by the great masses of people. A cavalcade more brilliant even than on Coronation Day, composed of colonial and Indian contingents led the way over the seven miles route.

Heavy Rainfall

Heavy rain which began at sunset brought bitter disappointment on the previous day to hordes of people bent upon celebrating the day as the climax to the royal progress of King George and Queen Mary. Despite the weather, however, a great and constantly changing throng remained around Buckingham Palace all the afternoon. The King and Queen and Prince of Wales several times appeared on the balcony and waved their hands.

Cheered by Crowds

The enthusiasum of the people each time was given vent to in a great roar of cheers. There was a great dinner at the Foreign Offices at night. Sir Edward Grey, foreign minister, entertained in state the King and members of the Royal family, all visiting royal personages and special representatives to the Coronation.

THREE PORTLAND FIREMEN BURIED BENEATH RUINS

Fire Chief Campbell is Among the Victims—Union Oil Co.'s Plant Caught Fire This Morning and Gasoline Tank Blew Up

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Portland, June 26.—Fire Chief Campbell and two of his men are believed to be lying dead in the ruins of a fire at the Union Oil Company's plant. They have not been seen since the collapse of a big brick wall early this morning, and their fate is looked upon as sealed.

Were Close By

When last seen the three men were standing close to a big gasoline tank which exploded with the heat and flame. In the excitement of the explosion they were lost sight of. Immediately after a big brick wall fell in close to the gasoline tank, and it is supposed the unfortunate men are underneath.

Flames Still Raging

It has been impossible to get close to the wreckage, as the fire started up again with a second explosion at eight o'clock. The whole of the plant is on fire and nothing can save it. The whole of the Portland Fire Brigade, assisted by a fireboat are busy trying to combat the spreading of the flames.

GOOD BOOST FOR PRINCE RUPERT

Pictures of First Passenger Train in Pulling out Appear in the Canadian and American Press Live Member of the Daily News Staff Saw to It.

Prince Rupert grows hourly in importance in the eyes of the world. The important stride taken by the city towards its goal as one of the great railway and seaport cities of the world when the first regular passenger train pulled out for Copper City has been appreciated to the full by the outside press.

Photographs, and special articles descriptive of the occasion were forwarded at once to leading newspapers in Canada and the United States, by a wide-awake member of the Daily News staff, and in Wednesday's Seattle Post-Intelligencer an enlarged cut of the first train steaming out, with a full size reproduction of the first passenger ticket issued at Prince Rupert, is given the most prominent position on the front page.

Canadian newspapers are not behind their American rivals in power to appreciate the importance of this great epoch in the life of Prince Rupert, and the advantage to the city of having live newspapermen sending out important local "boosts" is of course obvious. Let Prince Rupert prosper!

Stewart Man Hurt

While Jim Brennan was mounting his horse outside the Northern hotel, on Wednesday afternoon, his foot slipped through the stirrup frightening the animal which ran away dragging him with it for a distance of about 50 yeards. STEAMBOAT CAMP PROVED TO BE DISAPPOINTMENT

Shareholedrs of Steamboat Gold Mines Ltd. Call a Meeting to Discuss the Situation—Original Discoveries Have Disappeared

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Vancouver, June 26.—A report has been received here to the effect that the Steamboat mining camp has petered out, and that the Steamboat Gold Mines, Ltd., will call a meeting of shareholders to discuss the situation. The meeting is called for tonight, when some disclosures as to the failure of the camp are expected to be made.

Vein Disappears

The discovery of high gold values last July led to the supposition that a bonanza vein had been discovered on the company's property. Work has been done on the vein with the result that the vein has been found bared beneath the surface. The original discoveries at the Steamboat camp are said to have disappeared months ago.

Sale of Stock Stopped

Recent unfavorable reports led to the shareholders being called together. Suspicions being aroused that the company was not meeting with success in its property, the sales of stock stopped. The shareholders will meet tonight, and fully discuss the situation.

BIG PARTY OF TOURISTS DELIGHTED WITH RUPERT

State of California Landed a Bevy of Lively Excursionists Who Besieged the City

When the State of California came in last night and berthed at the wharf a party of some sixty to eighty American excursionists came ashore for a little sight-seeing tour of the town. Centre street and the business section presented a lively appearance as the party besieged the city, and the drug stores which happened to be open benefited considerably by the transient trade in picture post cards, souvenirs, and refreshments.

Charmed with City

At the close of a beautiful day Prince Rupert was looking her very best for the visitors, and the sunset over the mountains was one of those magnificent ones to which residents here have grown positively accustomed. But all was new and strange and lovely to the ladies of the American party. They wrote numerous P. P. C.'s in enthusiastic praise of the prettiness of Prince Rupert, and compared notes with each other to find terms rich enough to describe the sunset glow on the mountains and the harbor.

Tell Friends to Come

Certainly steamers landing tourist parties here in the summer evenings give them an extra banquet of beauty which our friends from the south evidently appreciate. "Don't miss coming here this summer," was the sentence most frequently used in P. C.'s sent to friends in the southern centres.

CHARGE AGAINST TWO CHINAMEN

Case Has Prolonged Hearing before Magistrate Carss Yesterday Afternoon. Did Dr. Lew Compel Girl to Write to Him?

For a considerable part of yesterday afternoon the hearing of the unsavory case against Dr. Z. P. Lew and Mah Hong, the two Chinamen charged with procuring, was continued in the police court. A few men besides those engaged in the case were present in court. A. Manson who is appearing for the defence, suggested to the Magistrate that it might be advisable to have the public and the press excluded, but City Solicitor Peters, for the prosecution, contended that the press in Prince Rupert might be confidently trusted to use discretion. Mr. Manson's contention was that in public court the girl witnesses might be inclined to with-hold evidence of moment. The case was not heard in camera, however.

Chief Vickers, who kept a quiet and close watch on the two Chinamen from the day of their arrival in Rupert with the girls until their arrest believes that the case against them is strong enough to secure conviction. The following letter purporting to have been sent by one of the girls to Dr. Lew while in Vancouver is entered as evidence. Chief Vickers says he has reason to believe this letter was written by the girl quite recently in Prince Rupert, under compulsion of the Chinaman. Chief Vickers can produce witnesses to prove this.

Vancouver June 1st, 1911

Dr. Z. P. Lew.
Vancouver, B. C.
Dear Friend,

As you are going to Prince Rupert, and I would like very much to leave Vancouver, I thought I would write you a few lines to ask you to take me, because I want to leave Vancouver to get away from all the bad company I am in with here. I have had enough of it, and I want to go to Rupert to go to work and settle down and be good.

Winnie

The letter is written in copying ink pencil on a sheet of blue ruled essay paper, in the younger of the girl's school-girl hand. The paper is creased, but does not look as if it had ever come through the mail. "Winnie" is not the girl's real name. Two Comox avenue women are witnesses in the case which was not concluded yesterday evening.

SNEAK THIEF

Stole Half Box of Cigars from Little's News Stand

Some mean sneak thief broke into Arthur Little's cigar stand at the wharf on Thursday midnight and stole half a box of cigars. The light weight burglar was busy prying open the front of the stand when he was disturbed by Mr. H. B. Rochester, who occupies rooms in his office next door to Little's news stand.

The thief took to his heels. He was evidently a stranger here, for nobody who knows Mr. Little would dream of stealing his goods.

The 1911 model cork pill has got to go, according to experts—and the pitchers. A circular letter has been sent to all the directors and officials of the American and National leagues, asking for an expression of opinion on the new pill and it is said that more than half are opposed to it. They want it made just a little less lively.

Both the Camosun last night and the Prince George this morning brought full passenger lists, and heavy cargoes. Waterfront business continues steady though the absence of the Prince Rupert on Wednesdays tends to make things a little quieter at mid-week. The Camosun pulled out early for Stewart, and the Prince Groege makes her usual weekend trip on Sunday. Today at 1 p.m. the train for Copper City pulls out. This train running in connection with the Prince George from the south is well filled every time. Bookings this morning kept the G. T. P. office busy.

Scenes at Night

At night the throngs of people converged in front of Buckingham Palace until the throng reached such dimensions that it was impossible to move.

Acknowledged by King

A group of boys struck up the National Anthem. Instantly the strains were taken up by thousands. As the singing ceased, cheering again broke forth, the sound reaching the interior of the Palace, and his Majesty came out on the balcony to acknowledge the tribute.

The Prince of Wales also appeared at the window and waved his hand at the assemblage. They responded by singing "Rule Britannia."

A Quiet Evening

After luncheon, all the members of the Royal suites remained. Their Majesties spent the hours very quietly. In the evening they dined en famille, the only guests being Royal representatives residing in the Palace. The younger son of Premier Asquith by a telephone message from Downing St. gave the signal to the Crystal Palace to fire a gigantic rocket at 10 o'clock at night, whereupon a ring of bonfires around London burst into flames.

Crowds Retired Early

All the illuminations were extinguished by order of the police at about midnight, and the tired crowds retired early.

The actual hour of the Coronation was 12.27. The Queen was crowned half an hour later.

Day in Vancouver

Vancouver.—Never before in the history of the town did such crowds gather on any occasion as they did to celebrate the Coronation of the King and Queen. A civic celebration took place at the Recreation Park where after prayers and the singing of patriotic songs, George H. Cowan, M. P., delivered an oration, as did Mayor Taylor also.

Flags and bunting floated everywhere, and a general holiday was observed. In many churches, services were held in the morning, while a salute of twenty-one guns fired at 5.28 a.m. announced to the sleeping citizens that the great event in the Empire's history which had been eagerly awaited, had passed into history. The weather was all that could be desired.

TYPOS ACCEPT CHALLENGE

Royal Blue Ribbons are Preparing Their War-paint for Tuesday Night.

Valiant as ever the brave and brilliant band of Typographical exponents of indoor baseball in the city, have leapt forward with an answer to the challenge of the Royal Blue Ribbon team newly organised. The contest will take place at the Auditorium on Tuesday night. In their fortress the Royal Hotel, the Blue Ribbonites are industriously applying themselves to the preparation of warpaint and attire calculated to strike terror into the hearts of their opponents. The Typos are ready for them.

In preparation for the boat race on July first, the Longshoremen's sextette were out practising last night in their boat. The sextette represent the Longshoremen's Union and will meet half a dozen picked men from the crew of the S.S. Lillooet.

The course will be a half mile along the harbor and back.

Betting is in favor of the local boys.

A GOOD OLD WORLD

(Detroit Free Press)

The green is back in the trees once more
And the blue is back in the sky,
And the sunbeams dance at the open door.
And the vines are climbing high,
A perfume sweet on the breeze is borne,
As it comes from the field and wood,
And the song birds sing at the break of morn,
And I know that the world is good.

The children play as they love to do
Bare-headed, out of doors,
They romp the fields and the meadows through
They're weary of hardwood floors
And over the grass their little feet
Now scamper in childish glee,
Their laughter rings like music sweet.
And the world looks good to me.

Yes, the world looks good to me today,
In the bloom is the apple tree,
And sweet indeed is the breath of May
As it whispers a song to me,
And glad am I that the children play
Out there where the sun is bright,
And I smile at the close of a wondrous day,
And whisper, "The world's all right."

"June Bride's" Answers

A Bride-to-be: (1) The bride, of course, removes her gloves at the wedding breakfast and throws back her veil or parts it and pushes it aside. (2) The maid of honor should wear any pretty, light colored gown which harmonises with the other gowns of the bridal party. Her duties are rather indefinite. She usually precedes the bride into the church or room, stands at her left, and is ready to be useful in holding the bride's bouquet or removing her glove at the important part of the ceremony. (5) The groom's man in the same way is useful to the groom, even looking after the minister's fee and making arrangements for the traveling. He and the maid of honor should help to make things pass off smoothly and pleasantly. (6) Yes, the groom usually presents his gifts to the assistants at the ceremony the night before.

HINTS FOR HOUSEWIVES

Many Suggestions which Busy Women May Find Useful

A little soap or black lead rubbed on the hinge of a squeaking door will often remedy matters.

Brown boots may be blackened by rubbing the blacking well into the shoes with a raw potato and then polishing.

A nut pick kept on the kitchen table is a most convenient article for removing the paper cover from the milk bottles.

Soak new brooms in strong hot salt water before using. This toughens the bristles and makes the brooms last longer.

A rusty grate can be cleaned with little trouble if it is blackleaded and then left for twenty-four hours or even for a couple of days. The black lead will absorb the rust, and the steel can then be polished in the ordinary way.

Some very charming looking parasols are of flounced white chiffon hemstitched with gold thread. These are more easily evolved by the amateur than are the veiled effects, as to put on the two or three flounces evenly it is only necessary to measure the distances between the top and edge of spreas and mark them with dark bastings. The veiled or flounced idea is equally good in the case of dark blue or brown, with or without a touch of silver or gold thread, and if a girl is inclined to freshen her grandmother's black sunshade she may veil it with black, white or magpie striped marquisette.

Hints on Hairdressing

There is no excuse for any woman having her hair arranged unbecomingly in these days, for so many different styles of hairdressing are in vogue that no matter what her features some one style may be found which will set them off to the best advantage. Very few women realise the important place that the arrangement of the hair plays in one's whole appearance. Hair unbecomingly worn, or in a disorderly, untidy, condition will ruin the effect of the most stylish costume. Perhaps the best way to do is to choose the style of hairdressing most suited to the face and then adhere to it. Even if one's profile be naturally poor it can be improved if the hair is arranged properly.

There are certain general rules in regard to the arrangement of one's hair that every woman should know. A round, full face invariably looks best if the hair is worn closely fluffed about it, with the coils placed high, or directly on top of the head. Some thin faces look well in this, but the majority appear at their best with the hair worn rather flat on top, but puffed loosely at the sides. This lends breadth to the face, and seems to soften the sharp lines. A parting in the centre or at one side, with the sides softly rolled, and the coils or braids worn low at the back of the head is nearly always becoming to a thin face. For such a one the hair must never be worn high, but always at or below the crown of the head.

In combs, barrettes, bandeaux and other accessories there is a wide range from which to choose this season, but it should be remembered that the fewer of such ornaments used the more refined and becoming is usually the effect. Such additions when too ornate or too numerous are in extremely bad taste, and will spoil the beauty of an otherwise attractive coiffure. The Grecian bands are still worn, though they are not suited to every face. The once oppular sidecomb is quite out of date. Jet is being very much used but is only beautiful on certain shades of hair. Puffs and curls are still very much in evidence, though less so than some time ago. The tendency seems toward simpler styles, which reveal the true outline and shape of the head.

A MESSAGE FROM GEORGE LEEK

Prince Rupert's Coronation Representative on the Trip Across.

S.S. Empress of Ireland
June 9th, 1911

Now that we are within sight of land, and will soon be ashore. Our voyage across the ocean has been a pleasant one, but we will be glad to get ashore again.

During the voyage, the officers kept us all pretty busy drilling and training on the lower deck each day. On June 3rd, the King's birthday, we paraded in his honor and gave three lusty cheers.

Last night we had a concert on board, in which many of the men took part. The weather for the first four days out was very cold, but since then has been most enjoyable, though a few of the men have had a hard time in overcoming the effects of the sea. My wife and child who are on board, have enjoyed themselves. Mr. Griffin, an employee of the Daily News is also travelling on the same vessel.

Some copies of the Daily News that found their way on board the ship at Quebec have been passed round the ship, and a lot of people have asked me about the city, learning that I came from Prince Rupert.

I enclose two photographs, one taken outside my tent at Quebec, and the other a snap shot of the detachment on the main deck of the Empress of Ireland.

Hoping the boys are all well, and expecting soon to be in London town.

Yours truly,
GEORGE LEEK

Householder Now in Second Place—Netzel Going Down.

While Northwestern Leaguerers are not stinging the ball in any such outrageous fashion as they were for the first few weeks of the season, there are still many comfortably above the .300 mark. DAILY EDITION. MONDAY, JUNE 26

WHAT OTHER CITIES ARE DOING

There is nothing quite so helpful as to know what others are doing. This applies to cities as much as to individuals. The results of municipal electric lighting projects in British cities have already been referred to here. Municipal street railways are quite as interesting.

At the annual conference of the British Municipal Tramways' Association, held at Bradford last month, a highly interesting paper was read by Alderman Flint, chairman of the Leicester Corporation Tramway's Committee, on Ten Years of Municipal Tramway Working. The assertion has been made by opponents of public ownership that this principle is falling into disfavor in Great Britain. It is entirely without foundation; indeed, the exact contrary is the truth. This is strikingly shown by the remarkable expansion in municipal street railways during the period from 1899 to 1909. The number of municipal undertakings increased from 6 to 82, the track mileage from 53 to 2422 and the number of passengers carried from 38,432,470 to 1,933,118,206. The capital invested rose from about $3,500,000 to $200,000,000, the annual income from $895,000 to $43,000,000, and the net profits from $160,000 to $4,800,000.

During the same decade the amount placed in the reserve fund totaled $21,000,000 and the sum at credit of the sinking fund $33,000,000. In addition $12,000,000 was handed over in relief of rates. Not only this, but the wages of all classes of employes were substantailly increased and from 11 to 15 hours taken off the week's labor. The hours are now 54 for drivers and conductors and 48 for cleaners. These remarkable results were effected, too, from rates averaging less than two cents per passenger.

In the city of Liverpool, some quite startling results followed the taking over of the old street car company in 1897, and the institution of a municipal system. Not only have the hours of the men been reduced from about 17 per day to about half that amount, the service quickened, modernised and cheapened, but the service has become a revenue maker for the city.

The recently published annual report shows that the gross profits for last year were in excess of $962,000. Of this amount, $550,000 was used for the sinking fund, and repayment of loans and interest, leaving a net profit of $412,000. Of this amount $265,000 was placed to reserve account and $137,000 went directly to reduction of taxes.

Since the city took over the street railway system in 1897, $2,500,000 has gone to reserve, renewal and depreciation account; $3,589,000 has been set aside for sinking fund and redemption of debt, while the city has received $1,174,852 for reduction of taxes.

It will be observed that the sinking fund will take care of the indebtedness and in time wipe it out, giving Liverpool her street car system free from incumberance; while the ample sum charged to the reserve, renewal and drepreciation account will give a continually improved system—a property of ever-growing value.

Municipal ownership has certainly paid in the city of Liverpool.

"SABBATH DISREGARD"

It's All Right to Go Picnicing If—

In a thoughtful sermon last night on "Sabbath Disregard" Rev. F. W. Kerr expalined that if people who went picnicing and on excursions could do so and still realize the spirit of the day then it is all right for them to do so. "But," he said, "they must be very strong Christians to be able to do these things and still observe the spirit."

He spoke largely on the commandment "Remember the Sabbath Day to keep it holy."
