DOMINION CENSUS RETURNS MADE KNOWN TODAY

LOCAL MINING VENTURE PROMISES TO DEVELOP INTO RICH PROPERTY

Mr. G. R. Naden, after Spending a Summer at His Alice Arm Property, is Optimistic About its Future—Two Shafts are Now Sunk and a Long Ledge Uncovered—Assays from the Shaft Run as High as 300 Ounces of Silver With Gold Values—Winter Camp is Built

Ore that has given assays of as high as 310 ounces of silver to the ton, in addition to $13 in gold values, with more in sight that promises even richer assays, is the lure than has deprived Prince Rupert of one of her best known citizens for the best part of the summer. Now that three months' work has proved that his claims have developed into the "prospect" class Mr. G. R. Naden is less reluctant to discuss them, though he still insists on the canny statement that mining ventures are divided into three classes, claims, prospects and mines. Not until he has more shafts sunk, and it is possible to measure and calculate the actual extent of the ore in sight will he allow his property to be referred to as a mine.

A Busy Summer

"Well, I've been spending my summer on the north bank of Alice Arm, not very far from Goose Bay," he said in answer to a question. "I started in June shovelling snow off the claims, and since then have been finding out what is on my claims. With my helpers, I have uncovered a ledge for between two and three hundred feet and sunk two shafts for a distance of twelve feet. Now I have come back, leaving a winter camp ready, and a gang of five men at work on development."

Up in the Hills

Mr. Naden's properties which he bonded late last fall, are known at the Mohawk group, and consist of an area nearly equal to four full claims. They are a mile from deep water, and at an altitude of 2,000 feet. This has made it difficult of access for packing, but when shipping starts will be a great economy, as it is a natural site for an aerial tramway right to deep water.

Some Good Assays

"At the time I bought the claims, I had two assays made from ores at the surface. One of these showed 90 ounces of silver and $7 in gold to the ton, and the other 120 ounces of silver and $14 in gold to the ton. This was very promising. Since development has started I have had three more assays made from the ledge at a distance down of from six to eight feet. One of these gave 70 ounces of silver and $6 in gold, another 200 ounces of silver and $20 in gold, and the third gave 310 ounces of silver and $13 in gold.

Looks Still Better

"Since then we have gone the shafts down still further, and after going through several feet of barren quartz in one of the shafts, we have come upon still richer ore. In the last four feet it is rich ruby silver ore, and should assay very high."

Geological Conditions

Mr. Naden describes the country there as being very rich in prospects. The Goose Bay mines themselves are undoubtedly very rich. The Granby Company did very extensive diamond drilling to prove the property before they gave $500,000 for it. His own property he describes as being geologically perfect, as it is on the east of the coastal granite and about half a mile from contact, with a true vertical fissure. The country rock in the immediate vicinity is slate, and the ledge is in the centre of a porphory dike that runs across the slate.

EDITH SING WINS PRIZE MEDAL FOR WRITING AN ORIGINAL ESSAY

Contest Promoted by the R. S. P. C. A. Among the Schoolchildren Brings Out Some Very Meritorious Essays—Alex. Hunter, Ruth Kenny, Willie Stephens Katherine Pillsbury, Ethel Gray, Bob Ritchie and Marjorie Sing Carry Off the Most Important Honors

Members of the Executive Committee of the Prince Rupert Branch of the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals met in the police court room last night to decide the prize-winner in the essay competition held at the public school for the Society's silver medal and prizes. Following is the award:

For Senior Competitors: Silver Medallist, Edith Sing; Second, Alex Hunter; Third, Ruth Kenny; and Special Prize, Willie Stephens.

For Junior Competitors: First, Katharine Pillsbury; Second, Ethel Gray; Third, Bob Ritchie and Majorie Sing (Equal Merit).

The essay written by the silver medallist is an original one of considerable interest, and of outstanding merit amongst the others, from the general style of which it is a distinct departure.

The other essays were all meritorious, the only matter to regret being a certain sameness apparent in the work of the younger essayists seeming to indicate that they all worked from the same stereotyped model which had rather retarded their natural originality.

The medal winning essay is here given:

The judge of the Animals' Realm, Richard Lion, requests all the animals of the domestic department to appear before him. A complaint had reached him that that particular part of his realm was deficient in work, as a whole, and was therefore treated with more than due kindness.

Judge—You are early, my friend.

Donkey—Yes, your Honor, I am Solomon, the Donkey your most humble servant.

Judge—Do you lead a merry life?

Donkey—Well, not a very merry one. When a lot of us get together in a big, green field, have a frolic and a fine supper to complete the day's pleasure; then we really enjoy that. We enjoy a ride on a sea shore or on a firm country road with a light youngster, who is not inclined to dig our sides so that they are very sore the next day. The real fact of the case is that we have rather a hard time of it, taken all together. People do love to beat us when we will not go. Maybe we would be less obstinate if we were more kindly treated. I know we are pretty stubborn at times, but the wiser ones, such as I am seldom are unreasonably so. We are patient creatures and do a lot of heavy work which mankind is glad to have done.

Judge—And who are you?

Horse—William Horse, Esquire. I have a lot to say for my kith and kin. A mighty fine race we are! What would man do without us? "Oh, he'd have an automobile," you say. And if he could buy such a machine, what if something went wrong with it on the road when you were in a great hurry? Then would the faithful horse be called forth! Can a machine be a friend and companion to a man? Can it speak, think and feel? As you can see I am a work horse, and so know something about hard lines. Like Black Beauty I have been with kind and indulgent masters and with the cruel and overbearing. I remember one of the latter, especially. His name was Mr. Snider. I used to go out to the field and work all day with

PRINCE RUPERT AMATEURS WILL STAGE TWO PLAYS

Society Does Not Propose to Have Understudies for "Our Regiment" so Extra Talent Available Will Blossom Forth in "Toys"

Whether the members of the Prince Rupert Amateur Dramatic Society should have understudies for their parts in the coming presentation of "Our Regiment" the play they are studying, or not, was the main subject of discussion at the meeting of the society held by courtesy of Mr. George Sweet in one of the rooms of the Grand Trunk Inn last night.

Considerable discussion was engaged in over the matter. While a number of the members present realised the advantage of having substitutes ready to take their parts in the event of any players being suddenly prevented from taking part, there was a strong opposition to the idea that the parts should be studied by two persons, the director of the play to select the best talent for the actual performance. Eventually the question was put to the vote Mr. J. Russell moving that there be understudies for all parts and Mr F. S. Long moving an amendment that understudies be considered only for parts the players of which desired an understudy in case of inability to take the part at the last moment.

The result of the voting was that the proposal to have understudies was thrown out by a vote of 9 to 7. All those present did not vote. As there are more members of the society than there are parts to the play those left out are going to start studying a play of their own entitled "Toys" under the direction of Mr. J. H. Thompson. Mr. W. Bullock-Webster, manager of the first play, will assist with this one later. Mr. Bullock-Webster presided last night, and amongst those present were the secretary, Miss Johnstone, Miss Milligan, Mr. and Mrs. Roberson, Miss Drummond, Miss Ellett, Miss Mercer. Mr. E. H. Mortimer, Mr. J. H. Thompson, Mr. F. S. Long, Mr. W. E. Williams, Mr. L. Crippen, Mr. Heward and Mr. J. Russell.

CHILLY BATH FOR MARK

Indian Named Mark Brown Got Wet Last Night and Lost His Purchase.

Down at the wharf last night where the Entwhistle Brothers' gasoline boat was lying it was pitch dark, and an Indian named Mark Brown coming down to board the boat after making a trip up town attempted to reach the boat without a lantern. He regretted it afterwards, for he walked straight off the wharf into the water, got wet through, and lost his hat and a treasured purchase of a pound of grapes.

He might have lost his life, too, but he could hardly have regretted even that more than he did the grapes for which he said he had just paid a dollar. Had the Children of Israel lost the grapes of Eshcol coming across Jordan they would probably have mourned them less pointedly than Mark did that pound of grapes. He was all wet, he had lost his hat, he was shivering with cold, but nothing would satify him until the men around who had rescued him all bubbling from the hungry deep, had got lanterns and helped him seek the vanished fruit.

Alas, he found it not. The paper bag had melted in the water. The grapes had been gobbled by the fishes. Mark bemoaned them all night and probably half way across to Masset where he went this morning with the Entwhistle boys.

C. P. R. TO HAVE FINE NEW TURBINE FLYER ON COAST

Beautiful Clyde Steamer "Queen Alexandra" Purchased for Vancouver and North Run to Nanaimo —Steams Over Twenty-One Knots

Announcement has just been made by the C. P. R. officials, of a deal now consummated for the purchasing of the turbine steamer Queen Alexandra from the Clyde River Passenger Service. She will come to this coast to relieve the Charmer on the Vancouver-Nanamio run, and will most likely enter into that service next spring. Before leaving the Clyde she is to undergo alterations which will make her a most suitable vessel for the run for which she was purchased.

When the Queen Alexandra arrives at Vancouver the big three-funnelers will have to look to their speed laurels, as the new vessel can steam 21.6 knots an hour. She is also a larger ship, being 20 feet longer than the Princess May. Equipped with turbine engines she will be the first steamer used by the C. P. R. in its coast service that has this latest method of propulsion.

Besides being a speedy boat, the Queen Alexandra is one of the finest equipped vessels that have been turned out by the famous Denny Brother's shipyards. Everything has been arranged for the passenger's comfort.

The Queen Alexandra is a steamer with two funnels and one pole mast forward, 270 feet in length, 32.1 feet beam and 11 feet deep, and of 665 tons register. She is a triple screw steamer with one large double ended boiler. She has been most successful from an operating point of view, both on account of the economy of her coal consumption and the absence of the necessity for repairs. The owners report that the repairs to turbines and boilers have been practically nil.

DAILY EDITION. WEDNESDAY, OCT. 18

A SIDELIGHT ON RING METHODS

Our readers will remember that a week ago the exposure was made that the ruling element in the council had been quietly passing extensive advertising pap to the Journal, at double that organ's contract prices. Patronage to the extent of $682 had been given it during the year, and the "ring" in the council fought to give still more, without competitive tender.

As a result of the exposure, the council had to submit the improvement bylaw advertising to public tender. When the tenders came in that of the Journal was exactly half the rate it has been charging the city all the year without competition. Even after a lower tender was opened from another paper, Acting Mayor Hilditch sought to have competition eliminated and the work given to the Journal.

With any relations that may exist between the Journal and any member of the council the News is not concerned. There is no accounting for taste. A lickspittle press is invariably popular with incompetent public officials.

But when members of the council pay out of the public's purse double rates to a favored party organ the matter becomes a public issue. Advertising is a purchaseable commodity like groceries or lumber. It should be bought in an economic market, in the interests of the ratepayers. To distribute to a paper with a negligible circulation, large advertising patronage at double the price that should be paid, is the equivalent of making the party newspaper a grant out of the civic funds.

It is as indefensible to give a political friend $682 for $341 worth of advertising, as it is to give a political friend $682 for $341 worth of groceries or lumber. An opportunity should be given the Journal to refund $341 to the city treasury.

ITALY MAY HAVE HER HANDS FULL

The series of unchecked successes which have marked Italy's progress in the present campaign against Turkey, is liable to mislead the general public as to the magnitude and outcome of the task that confronts Italy. Turkey is no mean antagonist. She has great defensive strength and staying power, and if the campaign is a long continued one, Italy may yet find it impossible—certainly will find it difficult—to gain any practical benefits from her victories in Tripoli.

General Nelson Miles of the United States army has pointed out that the conquest of Tripoli may not end the war. Should Turkey still show fight Italy may be brought face to face with a much more difficult phase.

Italy having declared war she will have to bring it to a con clusion. No nation can afford to let a war drag on indefinitely. In this case, Italian finances would demand that the conflict be concluded. But to force Turkey to submission to Italian demands direct military pressure must be brought by Italy upon Turkey itself and Turkey is stronger in the field than Italy.

Turkey, in her last great war, 1877-78, showed great powers of resistance. It was not until a Russian army had crossed the Balkans, captured Adrianople and was at the gates of Constantinople that they submitted. It took 350,000 Russians to do it and Shipka and Plevna are still military synonyms for obstinate defenses.

If Italy has to carry the war to Constantinople she will, no doubt, encounter as great, if not greater, resistance. But, holding the control of the sea, through the superiority of her navy, she may, if she must, land armies where she chooses. She might land in Albania just across the Adriatic from her own port of Brindisi, or she might transport an army to Salonica or at some point on the Turkish coast within 150 miles of Constantinople.

In the meanwhile her hands will probably be full in Tripoli. To conquer African provinces European nations have always had much blood to spill. The Italians themselves have suffered humiliation and great losses in Abyssinia, the French and English have fought to conquer Egypt for 100 years and at the end of a twelve-year struggle, France was forced to put 120,000 men into the field against the Algerians.

Turkey cannot invade Italy without crossing the sea or the neutral territory of Austria and both are closed to her. She may, however, incite a religious war in Tripoli which will keep the Italian forces under the guns of their fleet and at the same time, she can delay and prepare to resist an Italian invasion of her territory in Europe.

If the Young Turk party, so recently come to power, has a firm grip on the reins of government and can consolidate the nation for a war of defense, this course seems to promise as much as any policy of pure defense could hope for. If, however, she involves the powers by reprisals in the Balkans or in Greece, many complications may arise and when the day of stetlement comes she can hope only for the cold mercy that springs from the mutual jealousy of the European states.

MEANS MUCH TO RUPERT

Increasing Trade of Pacific Coast Ports Exceeds All Estimates.

If you ever had any doubt of the chances of Prince Rupert as a great port just consider this remembering that Rupert is two days nearer the Orient than Vancouver where the article was written: There is enough freight awaiting shipment from Vancouver and other Pacific coast ports that would fill the capacious holds of three ships the size of the Bellerophon, now in port.

More outward cargo than can be conveniently handled by the big steamship Bellerophon is stowed in the Evans-Coleman warehouses. The Blue Funnel liner, now discharging 4000 tons of British and Oriental cargo at Vancouver will be detained ten days owing to the exceedingly large outward cargo awaiting shipment aboard the freighter for transfer, principally to Great Britain.

When the freighter eventually sails from Puget Sound for the United Kingdom she will carry a cargo that will equal if not exceed the biggest cargo ever shipped by the Holt Line.

The liners Ning Chow and Antilochus are following the Bellerophon in order and these vessels will have capacity cargoes on the outward voyage. The Ning Chow is somewhat smaller than the liner now discharging here and is slated together with the Keemun and Oanfa for removal from the present trade route to another run. These three former China Mutual Navigation Company's vessels will be replaced by large and more modern freighters which will include the Cyclops—now en route here—and the Nestor, the latest addition to the Blue Funnel fleet.

MAGNIFICENT MT. ROBSON

Scenic Splendors of Country Traversed by the G. T. P. are Unrivalled.

In a letter received by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, from Mr. Arthur O. Wheeler, the well known mountain climber and topographer, who is at present in the Canadian Rockies making observations for the purpose of mapping out the district, says:

"We have a great amount of splendid material for publication, and a collection of photographs that cannot be surpassed. We have just completed what is very nearly a 100-mile circuit around Mt. Robson, the highest peak in the Canadian Rockies. The peaks and valleys, lakes and waterfalls, on all sides of it, and the glaciers are very fine. The region is immense, and there is work for years to come, exploring, mapping and depicting. There is a fine bunch of high peaks, and large snowfields and glaciers southwest of Tete Jaune Cache. There are also great peaks up the Athabasca and Fraser headwaters, tributary to your line. The most showy part of Mt. Robson is the Robson Pass and glacier, and Berg Lake."

In addition to the above, Mr. Wheeler reports that his party have collected over 600 specimens of animal and bird life, and a good botaincal collection as well. This expedition, which was organized by the Grand Trunk Pacific, has been a most successful one, and when its results are published, will be of great value. The facts now known bear out the general impression that the territory contiguous to the mountain division of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway will surpass in scenic beauty that which can be seen on any of the North American Transcontentinental lines.

"The Pillar of Light" and will start the story very shortly

Louis Tracy is the greatest writer of fascinating adventure stories in England.—His plots are vigorous.—His characters are lifelike. There is not a dull paragraph. His stories are models of good English too. . . . .

What The Pillar of Light Is

The "Pillar of Light" is a sea story of love and adventure. As you may guess the "Pillar of Light" is a lighthouse. The story concerns the romance of Stephen Brand the lighthouse keeper and man of mystery. It is a story of heroic deeds in many lands. It will hold you to the very last word and delight you all the time. In the end you will see the greater meaning of the title "The Pillar of Light. : : :

ITEMS OF .. SPORT

The New York Giants and the Philadelphia Athletics piloted each team by a man who is regarded by his friends as the greatest manager that ever presided over the destinies of a baseball team.

These two men are Connie Mack and John McGraw, leaders of the Athletics and Giants, respectively, two of the greatest strategists that ever led baseball teams to the championship of their leagues. The methods adopted by each man to put his team in the lead are vastly different. McGraw is a fighter "from the word go" and he has a team of fighters. Mack is the most peaceful manager known to the diamond. McGraw coaches his team from the third base line or the first base line, always out in uniform, except when he is suspended for a run-in with the umpire. Mack does all his coaching from the bench and never appears in uniform.

Mack, however, was not always the easy-going man he now appears. Back in the days when Connie was a member of the Brotherhood and later of the National League, he was just as big a "kicker" as McGraw is today. He fought for every possible thing he could get away with, but since taking up the managerial end of the game he has preferred to let his players do the umpire baiting and he takes care that they do not go too far.

Connie Mack, as he is known to the baseball fans, in private life is Cornelius McGillicuddy. Connie is a Massachusetts boy and was born in East Brookfield forty-eight years ago. He played his first professional game of ball with the Brookfield team, which was a member of a league composed of central Massachusetts teams. Connie had his first taste of a pennant winner while a member of his team, as the club captured the championship of the league, back in 1883. Connie played first base for the Brookfield team until he mastered the art of holding a curve ball. The regular catcher could not hold a curve and one day Connie was sent in behind the bat. He was a success from the first.

The next year, 1884, Connie was a member of the Meriden team, and later went to Hartford of the same league. He played with Hartford until the fall of 1886, and then joined the Washington team of the National League. He remained a member of the Senators until the Brotherhood was formed, and then joined the Buffalo team. This was in 1890. When this league blew up Mack cast his fortunes with the Pittsburg team of the National League. It was while he was a member of the Pirates that he had his first experience as a manager. He remained with the Pittsburg team until 1896, the last two years acting as captain.

In 1897 the Pirates sold him to Milwaukee of the Western League. He played first base for this team and acted as manager until the advent of the American League. In 1901, when the American League invaded the Quaker City Mack was offered the management of the team and he has been there ever since. Connie played his last game as a member of the Brewers back in the fall of 1898. The last two seasons he was with this club he directed the players from the bench.

Below is a record of the Athletics since their debut in the American League and under the management of Cornelius McGillicuddy, sphinx of the baseball world:

= THE COSY CORNER =

DEVOTED PRINCIPALLY TO THE INTERESTS OF WOMEN

This is a little section of the paper, which from day to day will be devoted to subjects of special interest to women. Any and all of the ladies of Prince Rupert are invited to contribute to its columns, and to take part in its discussions. Suggestions and criticisms are invited by the editor. The hope is expressed that "The Cosy Corner" will fill a social need.

TO SAVE THE BABIES

Mortality Amongst Infants Must be Combatted by Science.

The baby was really discovered within recent years by a Frenchman named Budin. It was he who realized that there need be no great increase in the falling birth-rate of his own country to prevent the population from dwindling, provided that the nation would but conserve those who were born. So it was that France began to "save the babies." There were established baby clinics, a "consultation for nursing mothers," and a number of other national institutions for the protecting and care of every baby born in France.

This summer has seen a vigorous campaign waged in New York city by the health department, the New York Milk committee, the New York Diet Kitchens association, the Straus milk stations, and other bodies, working in co-operation, and the results have been most gratifying.

Almost the first thing the New York milk committee did after getting the thirty-one pure milk stations to working under full pressure was to investigate the "loose milk" supply of the city. This is milk that is sold in tin cans usually among the poorer districts, where its cheapness creates a demand. The cans are hardly ever covered, and contamination from flies and filth is the result. Some of the loose milk examined showed a bacterial count of 90,000,000 bacteria per cubic centimeter. The average contained 5,500,000, while the board of health allows 1,000,000 as a maximum for safety and decency.

In New York city alone this vigorous warfare has resulted in cutting the infant death rate 50 per cent, and greatly reducing the number of cases of infantile sickness and suffering during the heated months. Thus the New York milk committee feels that its claim that 50 per cent of the babies who die could be saved with proper feeding and care has been justified.

A WOMAN'S WAY

Sends Husband to Prison, Divorces Him, and Marries Him Again.

After having divorced her husband and caused him to be sentenced to the penitentiary for mistreating her, Mrs. Horace Schwartz, of Hutchinson, Kansas, married him again today in the warden's office of the Kansas state penitentiary. A year ago Mrs. Schwartz prosecuted her husband. After he was sent to prison she got a divorce, placed her two children in an orphanage and returned to her birthplace in the East. Last month she went to Topeka and obtained a pardon for her husband. After the wedding today Mr. and Mrs. Scrwartz departed for Hutchinson to get the children.

Buttermilk Pie

Beat two eggs lightly with 1-2 teaspoon sugar. Add gradually 1 tablespoon flour, 1 pint buttermilk and tablespoon of butter. Work all the ingredients together. Line a flat pie-dish with pastry, and pour in the filling after adding any spice preferred.

Rice, Ham and Tomato Suace

Wash a cupful or more or rice (a larger quantity when there are more than three at table) through several waters. Drop it into a kettle containing at least four quarts of rapidly boiling water, add a scant tablespoonful of salt and keep at a galloping boil until the grains feel tender when rubbed between thumb and finger. This will take from fifteen to twenty minutes. Put some lean, cold ham through the food chopper, heat some well seasoned tomato sauce and cut fine a little parsley. Drain the rice when done, and let the colander stand in the open oven for three or four minutes. On a hot platter spread half of the rice, over it sprinkle a third of the ham and about the same quantity of sauce. Add the remainder of each in the same order, and over all sprinkle the parsley. Serve quickly.

Maple Ice Cream

Heat quickly one pint of rich maple syrup, let stand off the fire for a moment, then pour in a thin stream over six eggs beaten until very light. Return to the fire in a double boiler and stir, lifting frequently, until the mixture is thick enough to coat the back of a spoon. Strain and stand aside until cold, stirring occasionally. Add one pint of good cream and one teaspoonful of vanilla and freeze.

New Dessert

A new dessert made of apples is as follows: Peel and core two pounds of apples, and cook until soft with 1-4 pint of water and a little sugar. Soak 1-2 oz. of gelatine in cold water, add the juice of a lemon, and dissolve it by heat. When the apples are quite soft, strain the gelatine into them, boil up while stirring, and when cool pour into a mould. Set on ice and serve with whipped cream.

FREEDOM IN DRESS

Still to be neat, still to be drest,
As you were going to a feast;
Still to be powdered, still perfumed
Lady, it is to be presumed,
Though wit's hid causes are not found,
All is not sweet, all is not sound.

Give me a look, give me a face,
That makes simplicity a grace;
Robes loosley flowing, hair as free—
Such sweet neglect more taketh me
Than all the adulteries of art;
They strike my eyes, but not my heart.

—Ben Johnson

The Explanation

One of the young doctor's first clients was a fat girl. Her fatness weighed upon her, and she wanted to get rid of some of it. The young doctor drew up a careful diet. She was to eat dry toast, plain boiled beef, etc., and to return in a month to report reduction. At the end of the month she could hardly get through the doctor's doorway. He was aghast.

"Did you eat what I told you?" he asked.

"Religiously."

His brow wrinkled itself. Suddenly he had an inspiration.

"Anything else?" he asked.

"Only my ordinary meals."

DIES OF EXCESSIVE FLESH

George S. Schober, Who Weighed 650 Pounds, Expires from Illness Caused by Obesity.

The burden of carrying around 650 pounds of his own flesh and bone caused the death the other day of George S. Schober of Jersey City, N. J., at the age of fifty. Schober, as far as is known here, was the heaviest man in the United States. His obesity brought on an illness which began a year ago.

Got Excited About $5

C. W. Benson charged with being drunk and causing a disturbance at the Premier Hotel last night came before the magistrate this morning. His case was dismissed, but the magistrate read him a stern lecture on growing vociferous over a petty debt of $5 which he sought to recover from another man. It was a poker debt.

EDITH SING WINS ESSAY PRIZE

my head held high with a check-rein because it was the particular fashion among the farmers. This was very uncomfortable. Then I was trotted home into a cold barn and, being warm from the exertions of the day, I had a severe cold the following day, which made me rather irritable. My stall being filthy added to my discomfiture. Then you would think we might at least rest on the seventh day, but no, I was called out to go to town and that day was finished without any comfort to speak of. I guess you think I must be a crank but this is not all. However, I had a better master in the next one and I have concluded that some men are conscious of the feelings of the dumb. My sister was city-bred and she knows of that side of life. I have seen her dashing down the street with her head held high and her beautiful mane, of which she was once so proud, cut short and her tail suffering the same fate. One could not then see the sorrow she had gone through. She was a doctor's horse, and many times had to stand in the rain while her master visited his patient. Then she would hurry away again after the tiring wait. Then Charlie was a dray horse. He knew the meaning of having a heavy load going up grade or down grade, without a brake, and going thirsty all day.

Judge—Here comes Bowser.

Dog—Bow, wow, I belong to the Animals' Rights Society. Here are some pointers which belong to the society: First, if you want to keep us, feed us. We don't want roast beef and turkey twice a day, but plain, good substantial food three times a day. Then we get strong, healthful bodies and will do our work more successfully. You will find us faithful friends, and willing helpers if we get proper treatment. Our kennels should be clean and airy. If our master's house should be so why shouldn't our homes be the same? I have heard of many dogs who protect their master's dwellings, drive carts, who become venerable for their heroic deeds. Our baths should be frequent in order that our coats be respectable. If our baths were given more gently we would not do so much grumbling when that time comes. I know men know they should not beat us, so there is no need of saying anything about that, but they do get very angry with us. "What would you do when he runs away?" grumbles one. May I suggest that that dog might have been lonely. If we need punishing, maybe it could be given more gently and effectively. Remember a dog has intellect. Bow-wow.

Judge—Welcome, meek Mrs. Mooley Moodle.

Cow—First, let me have a drink of refreshing spring water for I have walked a long way. There! I feel better already. I think we are of as much importance as our friend, the horse, and surely as useful, and ought therefore to be given as much consideration as he. Our stables should be spotless, and our coats should be sleek and glossy. We should be fed well and our drinking water should be clean, no dirty scum to be allowed on the surface. What will be given in return? The very best milk and cream and a nice, kind disposition. What more could you want?

Judge—That will do for today. I think we are agreed that domestic animals, being all important to the human race, should be treated in return with kindness, since they, too, have feelings. So three cheers for humane societies!

AT THE THEATRE

"College Chums" Makes Good. Company Will Stay Till the Week-end

Amongst the excellent shows billed by the Williams Stock Company during their Empress Theatre engagement up to now, the performance last night of "College Chums" stands out as one of the best. This comedy drama of college life has a well constructed plot, and gave ample opportunity to every member of the cast. The play was received with great appreciation by the large audience, and the announcement made that the Williams Company will remain until the end of the week was welcomed.

As Jim Graham and Ned Bromley, the two rival chums, Messrs. W. S. Van Dyke and George L. Sweatman displayed much power. Arthur Cyril as Georgie Wall, Jim's friend, acted excellently, and as Gabe Higgins Dave Williams in a character part again achieved a triumph. As Martin Underwood, the hunchback with warped mind cherishing murderous ideas at every turn to advance Bromley's evil wishes, Byron Aldenn was terribly realistic.

Miss Pinkie Mullaly, who appeared first in a neat "trouserette" skirt which she wore very fetchingly, made a most attractive Dora Winsten. As Kate Blakemore Miss Marguerite Doyle had a part with much pathos to express, and she played it well. Miss Ora Wolff had a double role to fill, and quite excelled herself as "Miggins," the slangy wench from the city.

At the close of the second act Mr. Williams announced that a matinee will be put on by special reques. on Saturday afternoon to give those ladies and children who do not care to be out late at night, a chance to see the very popular play "The Sweetest Girl in Dixie." Tonight, "Roanoke," also a pretty Southern drama, will be staged for the first time in Prince Rupert.

TO THE EDITOR

In Favor of Woman Suffrage

Dear Sir,—Kindly give me space for a few words and some arguments in favor of woman suffrage.

Because there seems no sound reason why women should not vote.

Because those who obey laws should have something to say as to their making.

Because those who pay taxes to support government should be represented in government.

Because working women need to vote to regulate conditions.

Because 60 per cent of the women want the ballot.

Because the world could not continue without woman any more than without man.

Because government is a question of the people and should be by the people, not by men alone.

Because woman is an individual soul, and should be allowed to act for herself.

Because all women don't make marriage their only goal in life.

Because man has no rights to give her only what he took away from her and that too because he was physically stronger.

If we are lonely in our little room with no man to love us, we haven't one to find fault with us.

Yours truly,
A SINGLE WOMAN

"ROANOKE"

"Roanoke," a Southern comedy drama by Hall Reid, will be played at the Empress Theatre tonight because a previous Southern play, "The Sweetest Girl in Dixie," gave such good satisfaction. Mr. Williams feels safe in offering "Roanoke."

The story is entirely different but the Southern character predominates—and Aunt Dinah, the Southern mammy, as played by Miss Ora Wolff is said to be a great comedy character. Mr. Dave Williams as Col. Tom Bailey is exceptionally good while Miss Mullally in the Southern girl—is as always, charming.

A WATERFRONT DISPUTE

Cetriana Served with Writ in An Unconventional Manner. Skipper will Hire Longshoremen His Own Way Direct.

Because the skipper of the Northern B. C. Coast Steamship Company's steamer Cetriana wanted to hire his own longshoremen at 50 cents per hour (union rate) to help discharge his cargo of coal, and flouted the authority of the G. T. P. who as owners of the wharf insisted he should employ men engaged by the Pacific Coast Stevedoring Company, a writ was served by the sheriff upon the Cetriana yesterday afternoon.

After the G. T. P. had arranged for the writ to be served amusing efforts were made to effect the legal formality. When the sheriff sought the skipper he was no where to be found. The first mate, too, was missing, and the second had nothing to do with the business in question. So the sheriff served the writ upon a heap of coal, and the men gleefully dumped another bucketful upon it, burying it out of sight. So say the waterfront wags at any rate.

Sheriff Shirley's version is that the matter is entirely private, and that he served the writ by placing it in one of the vessel's coal buckets.

FIRST: "CATCH YOUR PRINTER"
DIRECTIONS FOR COOKING A HARE: FIRST:—"CATCH YOUR HARE"
To produce good printing you must "first catch your good printer. . . You can't get good printing from a poor printer, even if he work with never so good an equipment. If he lacks the "knack," the trained taste, the single-minded fondness for his work which real printers have, he will do poor printing for you. If he has all of these, and in addition to them adequate modern equipment, your printing will have distinction, salesmanship, the lure of type-beauty.
As this office produces good printing you may infer the presence of a good printer—who is "catchable."
