MEETING OF COUNCIL

OLD BOARD MEETS AND WINDS UP BUSINESS.

A Balance ... after Wiping out all Bills—The Drill Man Asked to Explain Why He Attacked Council in Recent Issue of Paper.

The old council met in the city hall on Monday night, for the purpose of winding up the business of last year. Those present were Mayor McNeish, Ald. Smith, Henderson, Madden and Teeter.

H. D. Curtis, as returning officer, gave a return of the municipal elections held during the day. Accepted and filed.

Bills presented: Pioneer Livery, hire of horses, $3.50; D. Arnot, supplies to C. Liebel, $15.65; four months' rent of city hall, $30; Woodcock & Co., lamp chimney, 20 cents; H. D. Curtis, incidentals re tax sale $2.40, entering up taxed costs $20, services as clerk, etc., $15; H. R. Jorand, salary for December, $16.74.

The mayor stated there was $379.65 in the treasury in the treasury, $246.85 being the last school grant. After paying all bills and providing for the auditor there would be $93 left for the new board.

Ald. Teeter questioned Mr. Curtis' bill and asked for explanations. They had paid enormously for the taxed costs of sale and yet bills came piling in. The council wanted to see an end of it.

The mayor said the reason for entering up the taxed costs was that they might draw interest from the first of the year.

Mr. Curtis explained the items of his bill and stated that part of the work done was really that of the treasurer, who was drawing no salary, but did not have the time to attend to it.

Ald. Teeter wanted to draw attention to the point of the man who was not willing to do work for the city without pay, while the members of the council were called upon to labor without remuneration. This man had been drawing revenue from the city and when he could aid he wanted pay therefor. When a man labored he believed in paying him and not jewing down or scabbing. But this was an instance of where all should strive to help the city. The speaker objected to Woodcock & Co.'s bill, five cents too much being charged. He had respect for the big thief, but a lessening amount for the little thief. Excessive charges should not be made for any article and the council would not stand for it. The speaker wanted things at this last meeting to be thoroughly explained and understood, so that the new council might know where they were at. He drew attention to the city solicitor's big bill, which they had been led into unthinkingly, and the costs were still coming. It was a right due the city that all bills should be explained. The speaker did not like the idea of aldermen working for no pay and other people demanding pay for anything they did. The council had been played for easy marks, but they had learned by their experience, and in future they would no better. In the present state of affairs aldermen and citizens alike should work for the good of the place.

Clerk Curtis, Ald. Smith, and the mayor stated the treasurer had done much work without pay, and the reason for him not attending to the last job was that he did not have time.

Ald. Henderson and Madden moved payment of bills. Carried.

Mayor McNeish had talked with the new mayor and given him his suggestions as to a policy to pursue, which the latter admitted were good. He advised adjourning to Thursday evening, to meet the new mayor and aldermen.

Before adjourning Ald. Teeter would like to draw attention to the fact that there were two men above all others who had benefitted by incorporation, and who had profited greatly by the present situation—the city solicitor and THE DRILL man. He was sorry the solicitor was not present, but the scribe was and he would speak of him. The scribe had reaped a large revenue and with the solicitor had secured the principal rake-off. An injustice had been done the city, more so than the officials, by the scribe. The editor had allowed his temper to give way and had published a stricture on the council in a recent issue, which was uncalled for. The council had not published the nomination notices solely from economy, and there was no spirit of opposition in it. In view of the fact of the editor being a recipient of large sums from the city, the article in question came with ill grace. It had hurt him individually in feelings and no doubt others felt the same. The editor had been one of the principal beneficiaries from the city and an explanation was due from him and, if necessary, an apology. The editor of a local paper was not supposed to show feeling. He should take all and say nothing. The council would pay all its bills, but they were trying to economize, and the scribe should assist and not criticize.

On being called on, the offending scribe stated that from the very first individuals of the various councils had shown an unwarranted and uncalled for opposition to him and his paper, and that feeling was not only in public, but in private, and carried into social circles. He had tried to be a good citizen, owned property, paid taxes, and spent his money freely in the town. Their economy was not consistent, for while they objected to the paper's bills, those from other people were allowed to go unquestioned. True, big bills went to the paper for the tax sale, but the council had been informed beforehand what the costs would be and they went into it with their eyes open. If the scribe had taken advantage of a mistake made by the council, he could have charged them up with several hundred dollars more. The least they could have done was to have notified the paper of the special meeting. If they had explained the situation, the paper would gladly have helped by publishing the notices free. In view of past antagonism shown, the action of the council was construed into another blow at the paper, hence the article. The council could have avoided it by explaining things to the scribe.

Ald. Teeter replied at length, going over same ground as in his previous remarks. He contended the scribe had not fully explained himself, and that the council had been prompted by ideas of economy, not opposition.

Ald. Smith thought the scribe overestimated the opposition to him in the council. Objection had been made to some of the bills from the paper, but council did not believe in paying too much for a thing. He had felt a little sore over the item in the paper, but he passed it over, as he did not believe in personalities over public matters. He had moved not to publish the nomination notices so as to economize. The council of 1904 had worked hard and to the best of their ability.

Council adjourned to Thursday.

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS.

Mayor and Five Aldermen are Elected by Acclamation.

The unexpected has happened and Slocan stands a fine chance of having a full aldermanic board for 1905. Up to the last day it was the general opinion that it would be impossible to form a council of any size, but, happy to say, the difficult turn has been made and everything bids fair to go along swimmingly.

Since the inception of incorporation municipal politics have been divided into two hostile and determined camps, neither displaying much inclination to work with the other fellows. Due largely, however, to the efforts of Al Teeter and A. C. Smith, the breach has been filled up and an united body has been formed to administer the city affairs. Monday morning, after much parleying and negotiating, with more or less give and take on both sides, a council was got together, the following being the names handed into Returning Officer Curtis:—

FOR MAYOR

David Arnot, proposed by Messrs. Teeter and Smith.

FOR ALDERMEN

H. G. Aitchison, proposed by Messrs. McNeish and Smith.

A. Madden, proposed by Messrs. Smith and O'Neail.

T. McNeish, proposed by Messrs. Smith and Teeter.

A. C. Smith, proposed by Messrs. McNeish and Stewart.

A. E. Teeter, proposed by Messrs. Smith and McNeish.

FOR SCHOOL TRUSTEE.

P. Swan, proposed by Messrs. Smith and McNeish.

There being no further nominations the above-named persons were declared duly elected to their respective offices.

It is the intention of the new board to appoint a man to fill the sixth seat in the council, so giving Slocan a full set of aldermen, for the first time in two or three years. A policy of strict retrenchment and economy is to be followed for 1905, and every effort will be made to work together in harmony, so as to pull civic affairs through the trying situation they are now in with every advantage and benefit to the citizens.

A Hockey Challenge.

Angus McVicar has received a letter from the Nelson intermediate hockey team, asking for a match with Slocan next week, and offering to pay all expenses, a return match to follow. The local boys have had no chance to practice yet, but they will try and accommodate the Nelsonites.

The Chinaman Stops.

M. Davys, lessee of the Emily Edith, on Four Mile, has won out in his fight to employ a Chinese cook. The property started up last week with a crew of white men and the Celestial bossed things in the kitchen. Some of the men came from New Denver, but the whole bunch seemed to think jobs are scarcer than men.

CHAPLEAU IN HARD LUCK.

Lessees Are Obliged to Lay Off Practically the Whole Force.

Hard luck follows the Chapleau and each successive management fails to make things stick. Holman & Wing, the last lessees, have certainly tried hard to win success, but failure has come instead and practically all of the men have been given their time and have come down.

A little while ago a bunch of amalgam was sent to the bank and drawn upon, but the final returns did not cover the amount advanced. Then a car of ore was shipped and it, too, failed to come up to expectations, the reported returns being $37 per ton. When the overdraft was made good there was not much left, and the men were accordingly informed of the circumstances. Every effort will be made to redeem the timechecks given and straighten up all liabilities.

The lessees have worked hard and deserved success. The trouble has been with the mill in handling the ore, which requires skilful and careful sorting. Two or three men remain at the mine.

Wants Slocan Zinc.

The United States Zinc Co., of Pueblo, Col., is after a supply of zinc ore from the Slocan for their smelter. If the zinc ores of the country are found to be satisfactory, contracts are to be closed with all the mineowners. There is no limit to the amount of zinc the company can handle from the Slocan district and it will take all it can secure. The United States Zinc Co. is making every effort to secure ores for its new million dollar plant at Pueblo, and it is prepared to pay a price that will leave the producer a good profit. The company is an auxiliary corporation of the American Smelting & Refining Co.

Edwin Anderson, general agent of the United States Zinc Co., visited the Slocan this week, and this is what he told the Nelson News: "I have not been buying ore or trying to buy it, the trip having been one simply of investigation. We had heard that there was a plentiful supply of zinc ore up here and I came up to see. Now I am going back to report, and I think we will be able to do business. I have an idea of the quality and quantity and I think both are satisfactory. Our chief source of supply in the past has been Leadville. We can still get the ore from there, but we want other products in the ores to make values, and the Colorado mines do not seem to carry high values in silver. I am looking for ore that does carry it and I think I have found it in the Slocan. I understand the smelters here do not want zinc and penalize ores that contain it. We can offer better terms than that, as we are prepared to take the ore and pay for the silver and the zinc. We can't pay anything for the lead, as the duty and freight charges reduce its value to us to nothing. But we will not penalize ores that carry lead, as most zinc smelters do.

"As a rule zinc companies want ore carrying 50 to 60 per cent zinc, or even higher. We can treat it and will take it as low as 35 per cent, or even 30 per cent. I think the Slocan can furnish plenty of that proportion. I find that the mines in the Slocan are not being worked at anything like their full capacity, and I know there are a good many causes for this condition. But I believe that one of them, and by no means the least, is that at present there is no market for zinc. An intimation that such a market can be found will probably lead to renewed and extended developments. My own trip, I think has been of some service in conveying that knowledge to them. Soon, I expect, the company will locate a commercial agent up here, probably with headquarters at Nelson."

Two Per Cent Tax is Just.

On Tuesday the commission appointed by the provincial government to inquire into the working of the Assessment Act met in Victoria. Among those present to give testimony were Oscar White, superintendent of the Slocan Star mine, at Sandon, and N. J. Cavanaugh, accountant of the same. Mr. White stated he had no complaint to make against the taxes imposed by the province. He believed the two per cent tax was a very equitable one, as it did not tax properties not working, and it was better than any mode of taxation in the States of which he had experience. Mr. Cavanaugh supported that testimony, urging that the two per cent tax did not work any injustice to owners of low grade mines.

The St. Eugene mine, Moyie, had for its share, upwards of 50 per cent of the lead bounty earned last month.

WAS IN ITS GRIP FOR 25 YEARS.

THEN DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS CURED HIS KIDNEY DISEASE

Remarkable Cure Reported From Quebec—The Lesson It Teaches

HUNTERSTOWN, Que., Jan. 2—(Special.)—The thousands of Canadians who suffer from Chronic Kidney Complaint will be interested in the cure of Maxime Boucher of this place. For twenty-five years he suffered from Kidney Complaint. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him. Speaking of his case Mr. Boucher says:

"It was Dodd's Kidney Pills that cured me. For twenty-five years I suffered with the malady of the Kidneys. I felt always feeble and was often in pain. One day I received a Dodd's Almanac and read of many wonderful cures in it. Then I decided to give Dodd's Kidney Pills a trial. I took twenty-five boxes in all and now I am perfectly cured."

Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure sick Kidneys. If the disease has got a firm hold it takes them longer than if it is just starting. But there is no form nor no stage of Kidney Disease that cannot be cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

THE CORSET.

Placed on Trial and Found Guilty of Heinous Offenses.

Physical Culture magazine has put the corset on trial and found it guilty of even more heinous offenses than most of its ardent haters have ever dreamed. Here is the true bill found against this molder of the feminine form by the magazine:

It lessens and sometimes ruins the digestive powers.

It restricts development of the lungs to almost half their normal size.

It destroys absolutely the normal power of breathing.

It ultimately injures and makes shapeless, flaccid and nerveless the flesh of the waist line.

It destroys the beauty lines of the body, of the limbs, arms and bust by restricting nourishment, by interfering with normal circulation and thus lessening vital power, and by the continuous and unnatural support of the bust in an abnormal position.

It is absolutely in most cases the direct cause of weaknesses peculiar to women, from which every corset wearer suffers at some time in her life.

It greatly weakens, sometimes destroys, or makes abnormal the instinct of sex.

It produces tumors and the inflamed condition from which women so often turn to expensive and dangerous operations.

It causes serious displacement.

It prevents the return of the venous blood from parts below the waist line.

It weakens and sometimes kills unborn babies.

It is one of the principal causes of marital miseries and divorces.

BEFORE GOING TO BED.

What to Do to Secure a Refreshing Night's Sleep.

We are always dining into our children's ears that in order to carry a thing through properly they must devote their whole attention to the matter in hand, and yet we do not always set a good example. We retire for the night with the object of resting our tired bodies and brains, and instead of doing the latter we make up our minds for a good thing or indulge in a quiet read. Now, a book may have a very soothing effect on some people, but it is decidedly bad for the majority and only excites the brain, so that when we finally lie down sleep refuses to come to us. There is a time for everything, and after a long trying day it is most important for our own health and for the well being of our families that we sleep well, but to do so we must retire with this object only in view. We must make up our minds not to think, never to read, but to secure that refreshing sleep which is nature's way of preparing us for whatever vexations we may have to face on the morrow. Breakfasting in bed, also, unless one is really ill, is a most unhealthy habit and should not be permitted.—Exchange.

IN THE SICKROOM.

Wear soft shoes, but those which will not shuffle.

Write down the doctor's orders so as to allow of no mistake.

Wear plain wash stuff gowns which are at least two inches above the floor.

Do not have much starch in the wearing apparel or the rustle may annoy the invalid.

Remember that a sick person is painfully aware of disorder about the room or the nurse.

In any long illness keep plenty of disinfectant around the room to render it fresh and sweet.

Keep the patient well supplied with clean bedclothing, as it is not only sanitary, but refreshing, to have clean linen.

Be careful not to betray any nervousness or fuss about drafts or medicines. Do everything in a quiet but not stealthy fashion.

Napoleon Leads.

In the four principal encyclopedias of the world Napoleon occupies more space than any other man, Shakespeare second, Mohammed third, Voltaire fourth and George Washington nineteenth.

Tribute to a Dutch Smoker.

To pay due reverance to the memory of an ardent smoker named Ondersmans who had died in Rotterdam all his old cronies came to the funeral smoking long clay pipes. Ondersmans left a sum of money to pay the expenses of a yearly smoking concert to keep his memory green.

CUTS OF BEEF.

Some Information For the Housewife About Steaks and Roasts.

A carcass of beef is cut in nineteen pieces. All the pieces and the names are in the dictionary. Look at the list, and you will find the names "tenderloin" and "porterhouse," two names that the inexperienced buyer has always on his lips. The porterhouse is a delusion and a snare in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred. The tenderloin is the thick part of the sirloin after a few round bone steaks have been cut off and is called the filet de boeuf. It makes a choice piece for roasting, but if not sold in a lump is cut into sirloin steaks of three grades. The first and second grades are technically "hip sirloin steak" and "flat bone sirloin steak." These are the tenderloin steaks that the young housewife pays extra for. There are not over six of each kind in one carcass, so the chances are that she pays her good money for a third cut, or "round bone" sirloin, which is itself a capital steak.

Porterhouse steaks are cut from the small end sirloin steak, and one carcass contains but a few of them. Ingenious butchers understand the knack of cutting the small end sirloin so as to include other portions of the beef, thus enabling them to sell both at porterhouse prices.

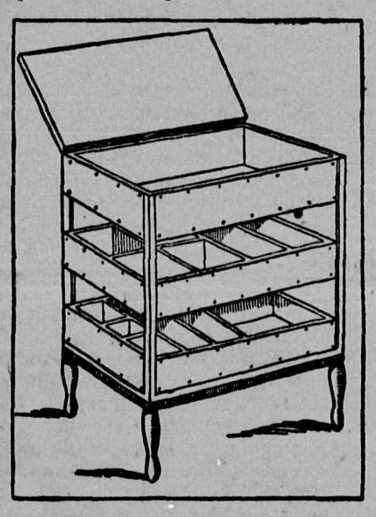
Good beef has a juicy or sappy appearance, with a fine, smooth grain, which is easily noticed. The fat, both outside and through the muscles, presents a clear, straw colored appearance. The flesh should be cherry red. When meat rises quickly after being pressed, it may be considered prime. When the dent made by pressing rises slowly or not at all, depend upon it the beef is poor.

SEWING TABLE.

How One May Be Fashioned Out of Ordinary Wooden Boxes.

Take three light wooden boxes, such as can be procured at any grocery store, all being the same length and width. One foot wide by two feet long is a convenient size. Have two of them three inches and the other six inches deep.

Use four upright strips for the frame and fasten the boxes one above the other to these corner pieces, the lower box being about nine inches above the floor and the others at such distance apart that the top one is at a convenient height to reach into when seated. The upright posts can be made as fancy as desired.



HOW TO MAKE A SEWING TABLE.

Have the deepest box at the top, and fit it with a hinged cover. It can be used to hold small pieces of unfinished work as well as the pieces of goods needed in the regular weekly mending. It should be lined with suitable material, pockets being made on each side to hold materials for fancy work, and a needle book and small pincushion should be fastened to the lining of the cover.

The second box should be divided into compartments to hold spools, scissors, papers of needles, pins, tape, knitting needles, crochet hooks, etc., while the lower one has one-half divided into small compartments to hold different styles of buttons, the other half being left undivided to hold the tools and materials for stocking mending. When completed, the whole affair should be stained with black walnut stain and then varnished, and casters be added or not, as desired.

What Is a Lady?

A lady is simply the highest type of a woman. She will be gentle and modest, mistress of her temper and curiosity. She will know and honor her own place in the social order as the divinely appointed molder, teacher and refiner of men, and out of this beautiful and noble place she will not seek to move. To fit herself for her place she will cultivate body and mind—the body in health and vigor, that she may take her share of burdens and be cheerful under them and that her work in the world shall be as fairly done as her hands can do it, and the mind in knowledge, accomplishment and taste, that she may be a delight and a help in her home.—American Queen.

To Clean Jewelry.

Any jewelry containing precious stones (not pearls) may be beautifully cleansed as follows: Rinse it in benzine, then wash it in soap and water, then in clear water to remove the soap, and put it in a cloth for a little while to drain. Then dip in alcohol to evaporate any remaining water and leave it in jewelers' sawdust till perfectly dry.

Kitchen Tables.

Kitchen tables are no longer considered desirable when they contain only the one drawer, as in years gone by. Many are quite elaborate cabinet affairs, while a happy medium has four drawers, with the lower ones rounding down to hold a whole bag of flour or twenty pounds of sugar.

DO YOU CHOOSE

YOUR MEDICINE WITH CARE AND INSIST ON HAVING

DR. CHASE'S SYRUP of LINSEED AND TERPENTINE

FOR AILMENTS OF THE THROAT AND LUNGS

You cannot be too particular in buying medicine.

It may be a question of life or death.

There are so many cough and cold remedies that there is a tendency to be careless in the selection of treatment, and yet what is more dangerous than a cold?

You would not think of taking any medicine that might be offered for heart trouble or kidney disease, and yet far more people die from the result of neglected colds than from these ailments.

INSIST ON HAVING A MEDICINE OF RELIABILITY AND REPUTATION, SUCH AS DR. CHASE'S SYRUP OF LINSEED AND TURPENTINE.

This great family medicine has stood the test of years, and never disappointed those who put their trust in it as a cure for croup, bronchitis, whooping cough, asthma, coughs, colds and throat troubles.

Do not be satisfied with substitutes and imitations, for they lack the curative powers which have given Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine its world-wide reputation.

MRS. R. D. TURNER, Broadview, N. W. T., writes: "We have seven children and have used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine for every one of them, and with good results. We get four bottles at a time and find it a good remedy to break up cold on the lungs."

MRS. A. A. VAN BUSKIRK, Robinson street, Moncton, N. B., writes: "For years I have used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine for my children when they have colds in the winter. I first used it with my daughter, who suffered from a severe form of asthma. The least exposure to cold would lay her up and she would nearly suffocate for want of breath. I must say I found it to be a most satisfactory treatment, and it has entirely cured her. It seems to go direct to the diseased parts and bring the desired relief."

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, 25 cents a bottle, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Fatal Good Fortune.

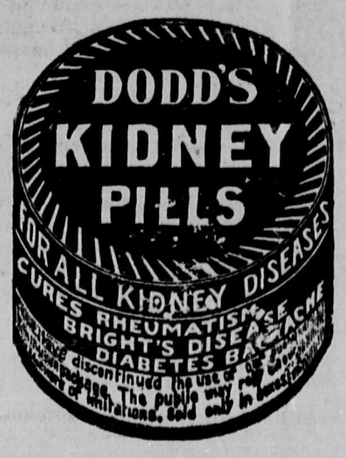
There is a story told of a miner to whom sudden good fortune brought as sudden death. He was a man who touched ill luck at the start and could not get away from it. Not a grain of gold could he find in his own claim; his capital was exhausted; he could not even obtain a livelihood as a laborer for others. In the depths of despair he went to the owners of a mine long worked out and begged permission to go down the shaft. It was granted. He went down, and 200 feet from the surface he drove in his pick and dislodged something. He came up with it and asked that his find might be examined and weighed. That was done. "Is it all mine?" he asked. It was, they told him. "It's not the government's?" No, it was not the government's. "Nor anybody else's?" No, nor anybody else's. "It all belongs entirely and solely to me?" It did. The nameless wanderer had found one of the biggest nuggets unearthed. It weighed 196 pounds of pure gold. They turned to congratulate him, to find that joy had killed him. The story is said to be true.

Brass Button Acts.

Acts were passed in the reigns of William III., Anne and George I. which made it illegal for any tailor to make or any man to wear clothes with any buttons other than those made of brass appended thereto. The law further enacted that not only should any tailor who committed a breach of it be fined 40 shillings, but also that he should not be able to recover from his customer in a court of law the price of the suit which he had adorned with the offending buttons. The whole object of the act was to protect the Birmingham metal button makers. A case which came before the courts in the year 1854 or 1855, in which a man, on being sued by his tailor, raised a successful defense relying on the acts in question, that the buttons on the clothes which he had ordered were bone and not brass, called attention to the existence of the anachronism, and the restrictions were soon after abolished.—London King.

Confusing the Court.

A man in an English court recently, who denied that a judgment summons had been served on him, produced his two brothers. All three were so like in appearance and dress that the plaintiff admitted he could not swear on which one he had served the summons. The judge ordered a fresh summons to be served.



HOUSEHOLD ACCOUNTS.

Just One Book and a Little Care Will Be a Great Aid.

Keeping accounts is as worth while to the woman who is trying hard to get along on "next to nothing" as to the woman who, like the westerner, scorns pennies.

Not accounts as business men keep them, with a wearisome amount of detail and "posting" from book to book until the matter of finding out where you actually stand financially becomes a hopeless task, but simple ways, with no secret, baffling methods of doing what no self respecting figures should do—seeming, if not actually doing it, to lie.

Have just one book—rather thick—that will do for everything. Turn the front part into a cash account. Open the book out flat. Write down your allowance or whatever money you get on the left hand page. Write down on the right hand page what you've paid the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker—everything, even to a postage stamp.

Then, as often as you've time, once a week anyway, whether your allowance is weekly, monthly or daily, balance. And balancing is nothing harder than subtracting the total of the money you've spent from the total of the money you've received. The difference is what you should have in cash.

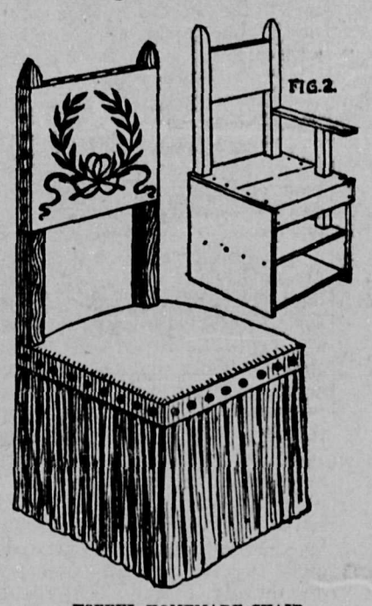
That is the only book you need if everything you buy is paid for as you get it. If you have accounts, keep a record in the back of your book of each man from whom you buy and make for yourself an unbreakable rule to put down everything you order from him as soon as it comes home. Then, when you compare your bills with your book, if there should be discrepancies, if it comes out a difference of dollars or cents, there's been some error on the part of the man who's sold you goods, and it is easy to straighten out.

That protects you against errors and results in an actual saving of money.—Exchange.

PRETTY BOX CHAIR.

One That May Be Made at Home With but Little Outlay.

The box chair shown in the accompanying illustration can be easily made at home from a box, two square sticks for the uprights and a board back, over which leather or fabric can be drawn and nailed. The under part can be used for books or papers. The back and seat should be padded, then covered with leather or fabric. If leather is used the ornament on the back can be drawn on with a hot point or tinted and painted with thin oil paints. If the covering is of denim the wreath and ribbons may be embroidered with linen floss or cut from other fabrics of a different color, then applied.



USEFUL HOMEMADE CHAIR.

The drapery may be of some thin goods that will hang well, and to be effective it must be gathered and tacked around the top edge of the box, over which a band of leather or gimp is stretched and nailed in place with large headed upholsterers' tacks about three-fourths of an inch in diameter. The back covering is secured with the large headed tacks also, which would look well if treated to a coat of the black preparation. Arms may be added to a chair of this design by inserting two upright sticks and arranging arms to cap them and extend back to the rear uprights, as shown in Fig. 2.—Woman's Home Companion.

Take Things Quietly.

Every one has a welcome for the person who has good sense to take things quietly. The person who can go without her dinner and not advertise the fact, who can lose her purse and keep her temper, who makes light of a heavy weight and can wear a shoe that pinches without any one being the wiser, who does not magnify the splinter in her finger into a stick of timber nor the mote in her neighbor's eye into a beam, who swallows bitter words without leaving the taste in other people's mouths, who can give up her own way without giving up the ghost, who can have a thorn in the flesh and yet not prick all her friends with it—such a one surely carries a passport into the good graces of mankind.

Betty's Jumbles.

The following recipe is quite famous in a Pennsylvania town, where an old negro cook makes what are known and delighted in as "Betty's jumbles." They are made with one pound each of butter and sugar, two pounds of flour, three eggs, nine teaspoonfuls of orange juice, three teaspoonfuls of baking power and salt to taste. Handle lightly, roll rather thin and sprinkle with granulated sugar before baking in a quick oven. They will keep—if locked up—for several months.—Harper's Bazar.

The Point of Resemblance

"You don't mean to say you gave that tramp something to eat?" queried Mr. Polk.

"Yes, I just couldn't help it," replied his wife, "for he reminded me so much of you."

"You mean he looked like me?"

"Oh, no! but when I asked him to do a little work for me he said he hadn't time."

THE MOST POPULAR PILL.—The pill is the most popular of all forms of medicine, and of pills the most popular are Parmelee's Vegetable Pills, because they do what it is asserted they can do, and are not put forward on any fictitious claims to excellence. The yare compact and portable, they are easily taken, they do not nauseate nor gripe, and they give relief in the most stubborn cases.

Distracting Attention From Bargains

Merchant—I begin to think it was a mistake, after all, to put those plateglass mirrors in our show windows.

Floor Walker—Why so?

Merchant—Why, the women spend too much time outside in front of them.

IT REACHES THE SPOT.—There are few remedies before the public to-day as efficacious in removing pain and in allaying and preventing pulmonary disorders as Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. It has demonstrated its powers in thousands of instances and a large number of testimonials as to its great value as a medicine could be got were there occasion for it. It is for sale everywhere.

Hurt

Mrs. Bilkington—Oh, I am so glad to see you're home. I heard you were in that dreadful accident. Were you hurt any?

Mrs. Bilkinton—Yes; I was considerably hurt. Charlie saved his English bulldog first and then came back after me!

Holloway's Corn Cure destroys all kinds of corns and warts, root and branch. Who then would endure them with such a cheap and effectual remedy within reach?

This Is Awful

The train was passing through a section devoted to the raising of live stock.

"I wonder why it is," queried the passenger who had a mania for originating fool questions, "that a cow has such a high forehead?"

"I suppose," replied the philosophical man in the next seat, "it is due to the animal's predilection for browsing."

TAKE NOTICE

During the next year the space devoted to advertising MINARD'S LINIMENT will contain expressions of no uncertain sound from people who speak from personal experience as to the merits of this best of Household Remedies.

An Idea of Heaven

"It was ridiculous of the minister to say that those things were 'as widely removed as heaven and hell,'" remarked the modern Pharisee.

"But the things in question were very widely removed."

"Oh! that's all right, but how could heaven be heaven if it were so widely removed from the other place that you couldn't see your enemies there?"

Such a Nuisance

"I'm glad to have your father come and visit us, my dear. But, really, he's the biggest smoke nuisance I ever met."

"Why, George! What do you mean by that?"

"I mean that your dad takes all the cigars I give him and hides them away, and then smokes an abominable old pipe that hasn't been cleaned since Walter Raleigh visited Virginia."

EARN A Comfortable Living WITH A Chatham Incubator

Poultry raising with a Chatham Incubator is a very profitable and easily managed occupation. Unless you want to go into it extensively it need take but very little of your time. Government reports show that the demand for chickens in Canada is greatly in excess of the supply and Great Britain is always clamoring for more. That means a steady market and good prices for chickens.

You cannot raise chickens successfully with a setting hen. She is wasting time setting when she should be laying. While she is hatching and brooding a few chickens she could be laying five or six dozen eggs. The percentage of chickens she hatches is much less than that produced by the Chatham Incubator.

It will pay you to own a Chatham Incubator.

Chatham Incubators contain every improvement of importance in Incubator construction that has been produced. They are made of thoroughly seasoned wood, with two walls, case within case. Between these walls mineral wool is packed forming the very best insulation. Each piece of the case is mortised and grooved and screwed, making the whole as solid as a rock. Chatham Incubators are equipped with scientifically perfect regulators which are an infallible means of regulating the temperature.

No cash to pay until October, 1905.

We will start you raising poultry for profit with a Chatham Incubator without one cent of money from you until next Fall. That means that you can take off seven or eight hatches and make considerable money out of the Incubator before the first payment becomes due.

We couldn't make this offer if we were not certain that if you accept it you will get complete satisfaction, if we were not positive that the Chatham Incubator will pay you a handsome yearly income.

This is a straightforward offer. We make it to show our supreme confidence in the Chatham Incubator. We want you to accept this offer as we are sure of the satisfaction our Incubator will give. Every machine we have put out so far has made other sales in the same neighborhood.

Our offer is to send you a Chatham Incubator at once, freight prepaid by us without one cent of cash from you. You make your first payment in October, 1905. The balance to be paid in October, 1906, or if a Cash Buyer you get it cheaper. Could any offer be fairer or more generous?

SMITH FALLS, ONT., November 19th, 1904.
The Incubator and Brooder that I bought from your agent, on time, I wish now to pay the whole amount this fall, if you will give me a discount. I am very much pleased with both Incubator and Brooder, and would not be without them, because I cleared this season, more than the Incubator and Brooder cost me.
Yours respectfully,
MRS. W. HYSLOP.

Write us to-day for full particulars of our offer and mention this paper. Don't put it aside for another time as this special proposition may be withdrawn at any time.

"Leonidas!" exclaimed Mr. Meekton's wife, on his return from a long journey; "I am at a loss to understand your conduct when we parted. I said good-bye to you."

"Yes, Henrietta."

"Why, didn't you say good-bye in response?"

"I was just about to do so, Henrietta, but I checked myself. I was afraid you would accuse me of trying to have the last word again."

AFRICA'S VOLCANOES.

They Are of the Busy Order—Details of the Great Eruptions in Central Africa Last Spring.

A few facts have at last reached the outer world concerning the great volcanic eruption that began on May 13 last in the lake region of Central Africa.

The eruption was very severe for three days. The wide, lava covered plain in which the active volcanoes are found seemed to be covered with flames that poured forth from many fissures in the rock. What seemed to be a column of fire was maintained to a height of several hundred feet for several hours.

Near these volcanoes on the south is Lake Kivu, in one of whose northern bays occurred a terrific unaqueous eruption. The water for a mile around was turned yellow by the outpouring vapor heavily charged with sulphur. Many thousands of fish were killed and their bodies floated on the surface.

This region north of Lake Kivu and Tanganyika is the greatest centre of volcanic activity in Africa, and one of the largest in the world; and it was never heard of till ten years ago. The discovery of these volcanoes by Count von Gotzen did considerable damage to the theory that volcanoes are developed only in proximity to the sea.

These volcanoes are about 700 miles from the Indian Ocean, almost in the heart of the continent. The other great centre of present volcanic phenomena in Africa is also hundreds of miles inland, near Lake Rudolf.

Students of volcanoes now think it is better to say that they are found both on the margins of the sea and in the neighborhood of great depressions in the land surface caused by violent movements of the rocks, which have produced lines of weakness, through which volcanic energy is able to find vent.

There are eight volcanoes within sight of one another just a little north of Lake Kivu. They are in three groups. The two western groups are composed each of three extinct volcanoes, while the eastern group contains two towering mountains that are at times exceedingly active.

In addition to the lively ebullitions from these craters, the region is richer than most other volcanic districts in mineral and hot springs and other manifestations of vulcanism.

The two active cones are among the very largest in the old world and are almost unique in their great distance from the sea. The larger of the two, Kirungu-cha-gungo, is a single huge cone, rising to a circular and unbroken rim, 11,350 feet in height.

This rim encloses a vast crater over a mile in diameter that has always been full of steam and smoke when the visitors have peered over the edge so that they have been unable to learn the nature of the crater floor or of its interior walls.

It is inferred that the crater is of enormous depth, for stones rolled over the edge of the chasm have merely bounded from rock to rock, their concussions becoming fainter and fainter with nothing to indicate that they finally found a resting place.

Kirungu-ndogo, the other active cone, is at least 11,000 feet in height. It is likely at any time to be active; and recent lava streams around its summit have been giving out dazzling white jets of steam.

It is a wonderful region. Besides the great volcanoes, active or extinct, are large numbers of isolated lifeless craters, still perfect in form; and those that are furthest from the smoke mountains are terraced to their tops and covered with fields of beans and other native crops.

Twenty years ago no one knew that there was a single active volcano in Africa. Since then a number of very lively volcanoes have been discovered in addition to a number of the largest mountains on the continent now lifeless, but which were built by mighty outpourings of lava.

Anglesey Is Philosophic.

The Dinard correspondent of The London Daily Mail says: Though weak of health, the Marquis of Anglesey is, it may be surprising to hear, strong of spirit, and regards his temporary eclipse with a philosophy worthy of Socrates. The Marquis lives a retired life amid perfumes, hair tonics and cheap jewelry. A local tradesman has already sold him £100 worth of jewelry, while the hairdresser who attends him has been kept busy supplying hair washes, face creams, rouge and perfumes. The Marquis' greatest excitement is the anticipation of the arrival of a new stick or jewel from Paris. When I met him the other afternoon he apologized somewhat profusely for his appearance. He was attired in what I believe tailors call a lounge suit of tweed, and was sitting in a rather uncomfortable chair bound with red velvet by a fire that the weather scarcely warranted. "What are your present plans?" I asked. "I shall stay here for the time being. I like the place and the climate. Afterwards I may move on to Paris and London. But nothing is settled. I'm really very happy, though I suppose no one would believe it. I drive and do poker-work, and I'm writing a book—on myself."

Pat and the Peas.

In an Irish court of justice the judge recently found himself in a quandary. The dispute was about a coat, and the evidence was direct and positive for both claimants. After much wrangling, Patrick Power, one of the parties, proposed that he and his opponent should see whose name was on the coat. This was agreed to, and after the other claimant had searched in vain for any mark Pat took the coat, and opening a corner of the lining with his penknife, took out two small peas. "There, now, d'ye see that?" "Yes, but what of that?" "A dale it has to do wid it; it's me name—pea for Patrick and pea for Power."

The Warmest In its Praise are those who have used it longest.

Stale Bread Griddlecakes.

Soak two cups of stale breadcrumbs for one hour in a quart of milk which must be boiling hot. Pour this over the breadcrumbs. Separate the yolks and whites of two eggs and beat light. Into the soaked breadcrumbs add first the beaten yolks, then three ounces of flour, a tablespoonful melted butter, a small teaspoonful of salt. Beat these well; then stir in lightly two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and the beaten whites. Grease the griddle and bake quickly in small thin cakes until a golden brown. These are the most wholesome of all griddlecakes.

Jellies and Custards.

Almost every housekeeper knows the value of a wet hot towel in unmolding jellies and custards. They will appreciate the suggestion in Good Housekeeping of a cold towel to assist removing a cake or pie from the baking tin. Wring the cloth out of cold water, fold and lay on the table and set the hot baking tin on it for a few minutes, when the obdurate cake or pie may easily be removed.

MISS WOOD, BROWNSVILLE, ONT., FOUND HEALTH WITH DR. SLOCUM'S PSYCHINE

She writes: May 18, 1904: I have to thank Psychine for my present health. Two years ago I was going in decline. I could hardly drag myself across the floor. I could not sweep the carpet. If I went for a drive I had to lie down when I came back; if I went for a mile or two on my wheel I was too weak to lift it through the gateway, and last time I came in from having a spin I dropped utterly helpless from fatigue. My father would give me no peace until I procured PSYCHINE, knowing it was excellent for decline or weakness. I must say the results were wonderful, and people remarked my improvement. Instead of a little, pale, hollow-cheeked, listless melancholy girl, I am today full of life, ready for a sleigh ride, a skating match or an evening party with anyone, and a few months ago I could not struggle to church, 40 rods from my home. Have never had the slightest cause to fear any return of disease.—Ella Muriel Wood.

Trust Your Appetite

It Knows What is Best for Your Health.

Your appetite knows what is best for your health.

That is the theory of modern medicine—the doctrine of common sense.

Bread your appetite does not like is bread that is bad for your health.

How easily the human system assimilates good bread?

How hard bad bread is on health.

First, it's hard to eat the soggy, tasteless stuff, so many families call bread.

Your appetite rebels against it.

The appetite is wise.

It knows what's best.

You can trust it.

If it doesn't want a certain bread, make up your mind the bread is wrong.

The appetite is never wrong.

We can safely leave our bread to the judgment of the appetite.

Once one has tasted Royal Household bread, made just right by following the recipes, that person will accept no other.

Other bread is flat and tasteless compared to it.

Eating Bad Bread Sours the Stomach.

Bad bread sours the stomach—lies undigested—creates dyspepsia.

No dyspeptic can work well.

No dyspeptic can be happy.

Those with weak stomachs, the sick—invalids—convalescents, need and crave, most of all, thin slices of light, white well baked bread.

In the sick room Royal Household is indispensable.

What the Invalid Should Eat

Give the invalid the best bread you can secure.—give it to all your family and keep them well.

De Miracle

It is better than electricity, because it does not scar or produce a new growth. Better than X-ray, because it does not burn, scar or paralyze the tissues under the skin. Better than depilatories, because it is not poisonous; therefore, it will not cause blood poisoning, or produce eczema, which is so common with depilatories, and does not break off the hair, thereby increasing its growth.

Electrolysis, X-ray or depilatories are offered you on the bare word of the operators and manufacturers. DE MIRACLE is not. It is the only method which is indorsed by physicians, surgeons, dermatologists, medical journals and prominent magazines.

DE MIRACLE will be mailed to any address, sealed in plain wrapper for $1. Your money back without question if it fails to do all that is claimed for it.

EDITORIAL CROPPINGS.

R. F. Sutherland, member for North Essex, is to be speaker in the new house of commons at Ottawa.

Big Bill Galliher is being boomed for a position in the dominion cabinet. Of British Columbia's solid seven none is better qualified for such an exalted position than is Kootenay's member, and the appointment would be popular with the country.

The citizens are to be congratulated on the unexpected, but withal desirable, outcome of the civic nominations on Monday, almost a full set of aldermen having been secured to govern the city for the ensuing year. It took considerable engineering to unite the rival factions, but now it has been accomplished there is every reason to believe good fellowship will continue, to the lasting well-being of the city.

The Laurier government will seek the necessary authority to increase the representation in the senate up to 96, by adding 13 more senators to the territory west of Lake Superior, to be appointed in accordance with the increase of population. Time works wonders Once the Liberals wanted to abolish the senate; now they are in control they seek to increase its membership.

A movement is on foot in the east to prohibit the use of American silver in Canada. From a patriotic standpoint the move is all right, but in a business way it would work a great hardship. Canada, to her shame be it said, does not possess one-third sufficient coin to meet the popular needs, consequently recourse is had to the Yankee article. Prohibition of American silver would be welcome were it to galvanize the Canadian mint proposition into active life. Then Canadians could have their own money made from their own product, realizing at the same time that each ounce of silver purchased by the mint benefitted Kootenay mines that much.

Liberal boasts of ousting the Conservatives from power when the legislature meets have been proven unwarranted. They relied upon the Socialists for assistance, but the latter say nay. At the recent Socialist convention in Vancouver, Messrs. Williams and Hawthornthwaite gave an account of their stewardship as members of the legislature They unmercifully scored Leader of the Opposition Macdonald and his Liberal followers for their general actions and frequent votes against the interests of the masses; stating also that overtures for assistance had been made by the Liberal party and had been refused. So long as the Conservatives continue acting with justice with the people, the Socialists have decided to support them in the legislature. There will be no upsetting when the house meets.

The zinc deposits of the Slocan are meeting with general recognition and favor and numerous outside agents are seeking purchases. Perhaps the most important move of late has been that of the American smelting trust, which through a subsidiary company, the United States Zinc Co., is after an unlimited supply for its Pueblo works. For some years the trust has over looked British Columbia ores of every description, and the disposition now shown to again purchase local ores will undoubtedly be to the best interests of the country. The Great Northern railway people anticipate a great increase in the output of zinc from the Slocan and are prepared to give special service to accommodate the mine-owners. There promises to be an important expansion in the zinc industry this year, and it is not unlikely every property in the Slocan lake country carrying zinc, starting with the Mountain Chief, will be operated to their full capacity. Silver-lead must for the nonce give way to zinc, and the greater the prosperity the more people will welcome the change.
