SUPERANNUATION REPORT, 1929-30.

REPORT OF THE BUSINESS DONE IN PURSUANCE OF THE "SUPERANNUATION ACT" DURING THE FISCAL YEAR 1929–30.

Section 5.—Contributions were made by the employees of the British Columbia Government of $162,059.19, by Municipal and School Board employees of $246,646.44, and by employees under Part V. of $1,017.92.

Section 6.—On March 31st, 1930, 425 employees of the British Columbia Government, 952 Municipal employees, and 100 School Board employees were contributing more than 4 per cent.

Section 7.—Contributions were made by the Government, by the Cities and Municipalities, and by the Employers under Part V. of a like amount to the contributions of their employees respectively.

Section 9.—There were forty-one contributors making voluntary contributions pursuant to this section as at March 31st, 1930.

Section 10.—As at March 31st, 1930, an amount of $1,732,811.47 had been invested in guaranteed securities having a par value of $1,898,370.98.

Section 11.—Interest was credited at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum on September 30th, 1929, and March 31st, 1930, on the credit balances of the previous April 1st, 1929, and October 1st, 1929, respectively.

Section 12.—A statement of all moneys received and paid out under the provisions of this Act and the assets and liabilities appertaining to the granting of superannuation allowances under its provisions is given in Schedule No. 1.

Section 13.—(1.) (a.) The sum of $38,524.21 was refunded under sections 18 and 19 to employees of the British Columbia Government, and $9,232.99 to employees of the Cities and Municipalities and School Boards, now operating under the provisions of the Act. Like amounts were transferred from the British Columbia Government Employer's Account, the Cities and Municipalities Employers' Accounts, and the School Boards Employers' Accounts to their separate accounts in the Special Reserve Fund.

(3.) The debit balance of the account of the British Columbia Government in the Special Reserve Fund amounted to $296,818.22 on March 31st, 1930. Interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum was charged on the debit balance of this account. Total debit balances of certain City, Municipal, and School Board Special Reserve Accounts amounted to $1,031,414.54.

Section 14.—Superannuation allowances were granted to 154 persons—22 British Columbia Government employees, 120 Municipal employees, and 12 School Board employees.

Section 18.—Seventeen British Columbia Government employees, 8 Municipal employees, and 2 School Board employees died during the year and refunds were made to their legal representatives.

Section 19.—One hundred and thirty-one contributors, on leaving the Government Service, secured refunds of the amount standing at their credit, also 126 Municipal and 5 School Board employees, on leaving the service of their employer, secured a refund of the amount at their credit in the Superannuation Fund.

Section 20.—One contributor who left the Government Service had made voluntary contributions under section 9, and secured a refund of these special contributions.

In presenting the Ninth Annual Report of the business done in pursuance of the "Superannuation Act," it will be noted that the number of contributors has greatly increased during this fiscal year, there now being 6,235, as against 4,939 at March 31st, 1929, and 3,180 at March 31st, 1928. Similarly, with the number of superannuation allowances which have been granted, the total number in force at March 31st, 1930, being 331, as against 173 at March 31st, 1929, and 100 at March 31st, 1928.

AMENDMENTS ENACTED, MARCH, 1930.

During the 1930 session of the Legislature certain amendments were approved which in their application will prove to be of vast importance to employers and employees alike.

Section 5 was amended to permit of contributions being made upon the value of emoluments, perquisites, or privileges incidental to the position held by the individual contributor. This amendment will have the effect of increasing the amount of allowance to be granted the employee, and such increase should meet the factor of the loss of perquisites upon being retired and superannuated.

Section 15A rewritten. This section as originally drafted provided that in the case of the contributor who had been in the service of his employer for a period of not less than fifteen years and who died in service, the widow, or a dependent who had been previously nominated, would, upon application therefor, be entitled to a monthly allowance equivalent to the allowance which the deceased contributor would have been granted had he been superannuated under the Joint Life and Last Survivor Plan the day before he died.

The wording of this section in its application was having a peculiar effect in as far as the widow or dependent of a contributor with only fourteen years' service or less was being denied the benefit granted to the widow of the contributor with the minimum qualification of fifteen years. Another peculiarity was that the allowances to be granted were to be calculated on the Joint Life and Last Survivor Plan, although the one risk (the expectancy of the contributor) had been removed. We are pleased to report that the section was rewritten, eliminating the fifteen-year qualification, and granting the widow or dependent an allowance based on the complete service record of the deceased contributor and the expectancy of life of the beneficiary.

Sections 20A and 20B.—These sections are correlated and provide a privilege which to say the least is rare if not unique, although quite in line with modern thought and opinion. Experience had shown that whereas a large majority of the employing agencies (Cities and Municipalities) throughout the Province had adopted the provisions of the Act, certain changes would be necessary before it would be possible to reap the fullest benefits coincident with the adoption of a sound retirement and pension scheme. One change seen to be necessary was the preservation of the pension benefits accruing to the individual if and when leaving the service of one employer to enter the service of another employer, both employers having adopted the pension scheme, and in this connection it is interesting to note the opinion expressed by the Royal Commission appointed by the British Government to investigate the experience gained from the administration by the "Local Government and other Officers' Superannuation Act, 1922." Under the heading "Mobility" we read:—

"If the Local Government Service is to attract the best type of recruit, it must offer a career to diligence, energy, and capacity. The service is split up among a great many authorities, many of them very small, and even in the case of larger authorities, it is split up among a number of departments between which transfer of staff is not usual or easy. It often happens, therefore, that an ambitious employee who has gained experience which fits him for a post of responsibility and has perhaps obtained a minor supervisory post sees no prospect of further progress in the service of his original employer. If he can find an opening with another authority only at the cost of abandoning superannuation rights which he has already acquired, he is seriously handicapped.

"Similarly, as regards the employers, it is often difficult, especially perhaps in the case of the smaller authorities (municipalities), to fill posts of responsibility by promotion from the existing local staffs. But a local authority cannot draw candidates from the staffs of other authorities, which have established superannuation schemes, if it has no such scheme itself, or if there is no regular system of carrying rights of superannuation from one service to the other. Its field of choice is undesirably limited.

"From the point of view of mobility it is increasingly important in the general interest of Local Government Service to go on further, since it is not possible to go back. The restriction of movement which must result from the absence of a measure of superannuation generally applicable to the Local Government Service is unfavourable to efficiency in that service."

Sections 20A and 20B were written into the British Columbia "Superannuation Act" to provide the necessary medium for the transfer of the employee from service to service and the regulation of the contributions which have accrued on his behalf. While these two sections provide for the transfer of Municipal employees, they are unique in so far that they also provide for the transfer of the Municipal employee from the service of his employer into the service of the British Columbia Government, and in like manner, for the transfer of the British Columbia Government employee to the service of a City or Municipality which has adopted the provisions of the British Columbia "Superannuation Act," the principle having been recognized that the Government Service and the Municipal Service are one in Public Service.

Amendment to Section 33, Part II., being Subsection (e).—This amendment provides that a member of the Provincial Police Force will become entitled to a superannuation allowance upon attaining the age of 55 years. This change is consistent with the provisions of section 44 in Part III. of the Act, which is applicable to the members of a Municipal Police Force.

Section 34 amended. Previous to this amendment, when calculating the amount of the additional allowance which may be granted to a Civil Servant upon retirement, on account, and in recognition of, services rendered during the non-contributing period of service, it was necessary to arrive at (as a basis) the average salary which had been earned by the individual prior to April 1st, 1921 (in many cases a period of ten years), which meant a low average over the period from April 1st, 1911, to March 31st, 1921, and in consequence a smaller amount of allowance in proportion to the salaries earnable in these later years.

In the case of the Municipal employees, to determine the same factor, "average salary," it was necessary to base the average on the period of service either the full ten years, or whatever the period happened to be if less than ten years, immediately prior to the date of the agreement which is necessary before the provisions of the Act can be applied to the employees of a City or Municipality, and as the Municipalities had refrained from adopting the provisions of the Act for a number of years (during which time certain increases in salary had been granted periodically), the average salary in the case of the Municipal employee was very much higher than that of the Civil Servant for this particular purpose. The discriminatory nature of section 34 was clearly apparent, and the amendment providing for the calculation of the average salary in the case of the Civil Servant on the last ten years of service instead of as formerly was approved.

Subsection (2) of Section 34 is entirely new and provides a minimum allowance of $30 per month on the Single Life Plan to the Civil Servant who is past age 65 upon retirement and who has at least ten years' continuous service.

Section 41A is a new section and provides for the continuity of service of those members of a Municipal Police Force who may be appointed to the Provincial Police Force upon the taking charge of the policing of a Municipality, to which Part III. of this Act applies, by the Commissioner of the Provincial Police Force.

Section 41B is a new section and a very important one. The provision being that no superannuation allowance shall be granted to a Civil Servant on the Single Life Plan unless he has proved to the satisfaction of the Commission that the maintenance of the relatives of the Civil Servant who are dependent upon him for support will be provided for in the event of his prior decease.

GENERAL REMARKS.

After careful study of the foregoing explanations and the report in detail, it will become obvious to the reader that considerable time and thought has been brought to bear upon the various problems continually arising and confronting the Commission in dealing with the Government and Municipal services. The duties of the administrator have been lightened by the splendid co-operative spirit evinced by the various Municipal officials (permanent and elective) when the necessity for discussion of individual problems has arisen, and in the necessary collation of data covering the record of service of each contributor.

Before closing these remarks it becomes the duty of the Commission to sound a warning to those employers retiring employees under section 44B and section 48B, and in the event of an employee being declared unfit to carry on his duties in one department of Municipal service, the Commission seriously recommends that every opportunity be investigated to the end that the employee be transferred to another position in the service of his employer. The provisions of the Act are entirely adequate to provide for the employee who becomes incapacitated provided the expectancy of the individual is materially lessened, but where the disability is such that the expectancy is not seriously endangered a liability is thrown on the Fund which has not been contemplated nor provided for, and many cases of this kind would seriously affect the statutory rights of the great number of contributors under the Act, and it is in order to protect the majority of the employers and employees under the Act that this opportunity is taken to issue the warning against any laxity when interpreting the disability clause in the "Superannuation Act."

NORMAN BAKER,
Civil Service Commissioner.
