Creston, Aug. 11, 1911.

To the Editor of the Review,

Dear Sir:—

As I stated in last weeks letter that there were many things crowded out of Vital Importance, with your permission I will mention them now. They should be mentioned, but I dislike having my name in print so much and was going to write this letter under the Non-de-plume "Rancher", and merely made this statement to some of my neighbors who said "Sign your name its a good cause stay with it. When will that petition be around, we want to sign it."

Well! when neighbors appreciate information of so valuable a character, to the betterment of local conditions I will be as brief as possible. The most important item on hand is that of our "fire law" which absolutely debars man from clearing his land and if he should attempt to light a fire during what is known as the fire season he is fined $50 and shackled as a criminal. Perhaps there is nothing that cuts more deeply than to know your name is written down as a criminal, and yet we hold the constitution of British Law to be the fairest and most lenient of any Constitution on earth. By way of illustration, a chap from Creston who had been doing a good deal of petty thieving came before a Stipendary Magistrate at Nelson a short time ago. The Magistrate told him that he could send him to a Penitentiary for ten years but that he would fine him $50 with one day in jail See how this magistrate exercised the law of justice with mercy, but if that same man had wanted to clear a little land so that he could plant a few potatoes and vegetables etc., he would be fined $50 and now I understand that no matter who sets a fire so long as said is on a mans premises he is liable to this fine. There may be places in British Columbia where such drastic measures are needed but Creston certainly is not one of them. I understand some little time ago a Rancher in Creston was fined $50 for setting out fire contrary to the law, but if such Rancher was honestly and conscientiously clearing land for to make a home, I don't believe that the government of British Columbia has power to brand such a one as a criminal and subject him to a fine of $50 and I think if such was the contention of the rancher, that the people should petition the Attorney General to disallow such action and that the party in question be reimbursed every dollar of the fine. I would like, just now to do a little clearing while the days are long, before the fall rush of harvesting and housing the product of the ranch comes in, but the law says no. There could not be the slightest bit of danger of fire getting away. Well, if a man is to be branded a criminal because he wants to make a home for himself and family, we had better resurrect the old flint locks which brought justice to our fathers and see if they will bring forth the same fruits of justice. One thing we can do, one thing we must do, one thing we will do, and that is, to form a Muncipality and make our own fire laws and advance with the pace of other countries, who enjoy this freedom.

People are anxiously asking when this Petition will be ready for there signatures. I may say there is a good deal of work about this to fulfil all the requirements of the law, but the same will be submitted to you as quickly as possible.

With Kind Regards,

T. M. Edmondson.

Editor Review.

Sir:— Seeing an article in your paper in regard to the celebration on Labor day and noticing there was a difference of opinion regarding the best place to hold the sports. I, for one think the flats the most desireable place, there is not so much dust and the flats are suitable for horse races, while the Park is not level enough and as there is no seats provided it makes it bad for the ladies.

The Park Committee are entitled to great credit for opening up same, and if it is to become a Public Park for the benefit of the public and free of charge then the public should help put it in shape. If it is a money making scheme for the Promoters, (and I scarcely see how it can be) then the committee should fix up seats and make it comfortable. One more item and I will close. I notice when there is something of interest, like jumping, nail drawing etc, that some of the people think they have a monopoly on it on it and crowd up so close that only about 5 per cent of the crowd can see anything more than the backs of a lot of men, no ladies ever see the sports at all. If the men that stand so close would all stand back all could see and any one who cannot see a man jump, one hundred feet from him should get his eyes fixed, as labor day will be a great mulligan day I would advise every one to guard their chicken coops.

Yours Sincerely,
A. Subscriber.

Gentlemen:—

In order to secure a few representative exhibits from your district in commercial packages of Fruit, the Vancouver Exhibition Association have decided to act as selling agents for any fruit sent to our Exhibition, and any fruit entered in the ordinary way, and shipped prepaid to the Vancouver Exhibition Association, we will place on competion and at the close of the Exhibition will sell it to the very best possible advantage, and will guarantee the best market price for same; remitting promptly to the shipper the proceeds of the sales and any prizes won. In doing this the exhibitor will have no further trouble with his fruit and will get all the advantage of the Exhibition besides, probably opening up connections for the disposal of the balance of his crop.

Yours respectfully,
H. S. Rolston,
Manager and Secretary.

Sam Hatfield has now got the whole of his ten acres cleared, five acres of which are being cropped this year.

Messrs Leamy, Broderick and Tebu have now got some 300,000 feet of logs at the mouth of the Goat and from whence they will be boomed to Proctor for the Watts Lumber Coy.

Mr L. Farr is negociating the sale of ten acres of fruit land, to a prairie settler.

KOOTENAY SOILS AND CULTIVATION

We have this quality in the Legumous Family, Peas, Lupines, Clover, Alfalfa. Why does the Legumous plant take its nitrogen from the atmosphere instead of from the soil? The reason is, that associated with the clover plant, and living in business with it, we have another plant, so small that it cannot be seen with the naked eye, we call it Bacteria. How many of you ever found under the roots, tiny nodules, like very little potatoes, if not you should get one of these plants and look at same; because these are the little houses that the bacteria lives in, and if you have not these little roots attached to your plant, you will not get nitrogen from the air. If you wish to get clover to grow. you must have bacteria, with bacteria your clover will not turn yellow. Have you commenced to grow Alfalfa? (Mr. Heath interjects "Yes worse luck.) Well apparently your soil here is full of bacteria, if you could not grow alfalfa or clover, you would have to get soil from some other place where it was grown in order to get the bacteria.

It costs about $1 per hundred, to get nitrogen by growing clover, and this is far cheaper than Nitrogen of Soda which is costing you $4 per hundred, you will by turning under a crop of clover, supply nitrogen at one-quarter the cost of purchasing Soda, and you are also adding humos.

Where you have clay and humos, silt and humos or sand and humos, this would be sufficient, but you will notice that you must have Humos every time. You must have humos if you wish to have a complete soil, humos is one of the essentials that you must supply here. Sand is the coarsest of the mineral matter, Silt next then Clay.

Mineral Sandy Soil holds between six and ten percent of water. Silt holds from 15 to 18 percent, when in a good state of cultivation. Clay will hold about 33 per cent.

You will observe that sand being the coarsest holds the least, and clay the finest, holds the most. You have no irrigation here, the question arises, how are you going to increase the moisture holding capacity of your soil. The answer is, by cultivation, and here we get back to the man with the question mark after him. As a rule you have plenty of rain here, ample to grow your crops, if you have not sufficient moisture in your soil, do not blame the season or the weather, but put the big question mark down after yourself.

Humos will hold 100 to 150 per cent of water, and it has been known to go as high as 230 per cent. Thus a pound of humos will hold a pound and a half of water. To increase the water holding capacity of your soil, put in Humos.

Say you have a sandy soil, containing 95 per cent of sand and 5 per cent of humos. Each of these constituents will contain six and seven pounds of water respectively. Thus by adding five per cent of humos to a sandy soil, you have redoubled its water holding capacity, and even with a clay soil, you have materially increased it. Most of your soils here do no not contain one per cent of humos, so you will see that you can increase your water holding capacity greatly, one crop of clover will add about one-quarter of one per cent, of humos.

Mr. Fairhead asks, "What is the difference between nitrate of soda, and turning in a succession of clover crops?"

Answer, Nitrate of Soda or any other commercial fertilizer, does not increase the moisture holding capacity, but by clover or barnyard manure, you increase your moisture holding capacity.

THE BIG CIRCUS

The Great London Shows Consolidated will appear in Creston Aug. 12.

While the Glasgow World Famous $25,000 Prize Winning Horses are the great feature, the regular line of circus acts is fully up to the standard set by the Howe Circus in the past.

The Bartik, Parisian troupe, are seen for the first time in America, the original Eddy family are among the big acts; Marie Meers of the Meers Sisters, the Riding Rooneys; the Brono troupe of acrobats have no peers. The Kentucky High School Horses are seen only with this show. The clowns are funny, the gymnasts clever, the elephants numerous and the menagerie is large.

While the trained wild beasts are a great feature, the regular line of circus acts is fully up to the standard.

The wonderful Eddy Family are a surprise and have no equals in the circus world, The Riding wallets are among the big acts: the Bertik Troupe, Flying Juniata Twins, the Bronze Troupe of acrobats have no peers. The Kentucky menage and High School horses are seen only with this show. The Glasgow Prize Team is also a great feature.

A free street parade will be given, which will leave the grounds at ten o'clock on the day of preformance.

BOARD OF TRADE

President C. O. Rodgers, took the chair for the regular meeting of Creston Board of Trade, in the Speers Hall, on Tuesday evening at 8.30 p. m., there being a good attendance of some 20 members.

The minutes of the last meeting were passed as read. Mr Mallandaine continues to show his interest in this district, as was disclosed by the first of communications, being a letter from him covering a circular requesting an apple exhibit for the New York exhibit of the C. P. R. Irrigation and colonisation Co., and which was referred to the fruit-growers associatton.

Another communication was from the Spokane Chamber of Commerce, re the coal strike, and was ordered fyled; a like fate befell the wires and letters concerning the luncheon to the Ohio Editors, those much heralded gentlemen having cut Creston and the Kootenays out of their itenary as soon as they had been informed that the free luncheon was off."

A letter from an advertising tout of New York, was ordered filed by request among the other relics of the skin game department.

"Directors Report"

The Directors report, very belated, regretted that it was now too late to exhibit at the Fall Fairs, and suggested a selected representative and exhibit being sent on a tour of the prairie points covering two or three weeks. Mr. R. M. Reid kindly volunteered to take a small exhibit with him to Ontario free of charge and also gave valuable information re the expense or the prairie exhibit scheme, which will amount to about $300.

After discussion, a motion was adopted that a Committee of Messrs R. Walmsley, Guy Lowenberg and R. M. Reid with two members to be added from the Fruit Growers Association, be appointed to make collections, secure exhibits and arrange details for the prairie exhibit, and to get to work at once.

The Secretary was instructed to write the "Review" re the disposal of cuts and photos collected in connection with the recent phamplet.

The question of fire protection was discussed, but nothing further was done.

A Resolution requesting the enforcement of the "Herd" law in this District was adopted.

Meeting adjourned at 10:15 p. m.

The effect on my mind was so strong that at last I said to myself: "I shall never know peace again until I am certain that Darzac is not Larsan. And I shall take means to make myself certain one way or the other on the first occasion."

Yes, but how? Pull his beard off?

Suddenly I threw off the bedclothes, jumped up and cried almost aloud, "Australia!"

An episode had returned to my mind of which I have spoken at the beginning of this story. The reader may remember that at the time of the accident in the laboratory I had accompanied M. Robert Darzac to a druggist. While his injuries were being attended to he had been obliged to remove his study coat, and the sleeve of his shirt had fallen back, leaving his arm bare through the entire session with the druggist and placing in full view just above the right elbow a large birthmark, the shape of which resembled that of Australia as it appears on the maps in the geographies. Mentally while the chemist was at work I had amused myself by trying to locate upon the arm in the positions which they occupied on an actual map the cities of Melbourne, Sydney, Adelaide, etc., and directly beneath this large mark there was another smaller one which was situated like the country known as Tasmania.

And in this sleepless night it was the thought of Australia that came to me. I had scarcely had time to congratulate myself upon having found a means to prove decisively the identity of Darzac and to try to devise some way of bringing it to an immediate test when a singular sound made me prick up my ears.

Breathless, I hurried to my door, and, with my ear at the keyhole, I listened. Some one was now ascending the staircase, and some one who desired his presence to be unknown.

All at once, as I was leaning on the broken balustrade, I saw the shadow again. It was lighted up by the moonbeams as though it were a flambeau. And I recognized Robert Darzac.

He raised his head and looked in my direction as though he felt the weight of my eyes upon him. Instinctively I drew back. And then I returned to my post of observation just in time to see him disappear into a corridor which led to another staircase winding up to the battlements. What could this mean? Was Darzac spending the night in the new castle? Why did he take such precautions not to be seen? A thousand suspicions crossed my mind, and I felt that I must set my spirit at rest immediately. I must follow Robert Darzac and discover "Australia."

I reached this door, and, finding it locked, I gave three little taps, certain that he was inside. And I waited. My heart was beating wildly. All these rooms were uninhabited, abandoned. What should M. Darzac be doing in one of these haunted chambers!

"Is it you, Sainclair? What is it, my friend?"

"I wanted to know what you could be doing here at such an hour?" I replied, and it seemed to me that my voice was that of another man, so great was my terror.

"You see, I am preparing for bed."

And he lit a candle, which was placed on a chair, for there was no night stand in this dilapidated apartment. A bed in one corner—an iron bed, which must have been brought there during the day—and a single chair comprised all the furnishings.

"I thought that you were going to sleep near Mme. Darzac and the professor on the first floor of la Louve?"

"The rooms are too small. I was afraid of inconveniencing Mme. Darzac," answered the unhappy man bitterly. "I asked Bernier to fetch me a bed here. And then what difference does it make where I am, since I do not sleep?"

We were both silent for a moment. I was ashamed of myself and of my wretched suspicions. And, frankly, my remorse was so great that I could not refrain from giving it expression. I confessed everything to him—my infamous ideas and how I had even believed when I saw him wandering so mysteriously over the new castle that it was upon some evil errand, and so had decided to go and look for the "Australia" birthmark.

He listened to me with such an expression of reproachful sorrow that it wrung my heart; then he quietly rolled up his shirt sleeve, and, bringing his bare arm close to the light, he showed me the birthmark, which made a sane man of me once more.

"You may rub it as much as you choose," said Darzac gently. "It will not come off."

I begged his pardon a thousand times over, with tears in my eyes, but he would not forgive me until he had the pull at his beard, which remained firmly attached to his chin, instead of coming off in my hand.

Then only he allowed me to go back to my room, which I did, cursing myself for an idiot.

CHAPTER XVI.

A Living Tomb and a Baffling Murder

MY thoughts turned to Rouletabille. What was he doing now? Why had he gone away? As I lay there puzzling my brain over the outcome of the affair I heard some one knocking at my door. It was Pere Bernier, who brought me a brief note from my friend which had been handed to Pere Jacques by a little lad from the village. Rouletabille wrote:

I shall return early in the morning. Get up as soon as this reaches you and be good enough to go fishing for my breakfast and catch some of the fine trout which are so plentiful among the rocks near the Point of Garibaldi. Do not lose an instant. Thanks and remembrances.

ROULETABILLE.

This communication gave me more food for thought, for I knew by experience that whenever Rouletabille seemed most occupied with trivial matters his activity was really most thoroughly engaged with important subjects.

I dressed myself in haste, provided myself with some old tackle which was furnished me by Bernier and set out to obey the request of my young friend. As I went out of the north gate, having encountered nobody at that early hour of the morning (it was about 7 o'clock), I was joined by Mme. Edith, to whom I showed what Rouletabille had written. The young woman was greatly dejected over the unexplained absence of her uncle, remarked that the letter was "so queer that it made her nervous," and she informed me that she intended to follow me to the trout streams.

We started to fish for Rouletabille's trout. Mrs. Rance and I both removed our shoes and stockings, but I concerned myself more about the dainty bare feet of my pretty hostess than about my own. She clambered into the pools and crept among the rocks with a grace which enchanted me more than I dared express. Suddenly we both desisted from our task and pricked up our ears at the same moment. We heard cries from the shore where the grottoes are. We distinguished a little group, the persons in which were making gestures of appeal. We hastily rushed to the beach, and in a few seconds we learned that, attracted by moans, two fishermen had just discovered in a cave in the grotto of Romeo and Juliet an unfortunate human being who had fallen into the chasm and who must have been there helpless for several hours.

The quick conjecture which rushed into both our minds at once proved to be the right one. It was Old Bob who had been fished out of the cave. When he had been drawn up on the beach in the full light of day he certainly presented a pitiable spectacle. His beautiful black coat was torn and covered with mud, and his white shirt was as black as tar. Mme. Edith burst into tears and nearly went into hysterics when she found that the old man had a broken collar bone and a sprained foot. And he was so pale that he looked as if he were going to die on the spot.

Happily the case was far less serious than it at first appeared. Ten minutes later he was, according to his own orders, stretched out on his bed in his room in the square tower. But could any one believe that he absolutely refused to be undressed, even so far as to have his coat removed, before the arrival of the doctors? Mme. Edith, more and more nervous, installed herself as his nurse, but when the physicians came Old Bob ordered his niece not only to leave his room, but to go out of the square tower altogether. And he insisted that the door should be locked after her.

This last precaution was a great surprise to us all. We were assembled in the Court of the Bold, M. and Mme. Darzac, Arthur Rance and myself, as well as Pere Bernier, who haunted my footsteps, awaiting the news. When Mme. Edith quitted the tower after the arrival of the medical men she came to us and said:

"Let us hope that his injuries won't be serious. Old Bob is solid as a rock. What did I tell you about him? I have made him confess, the old sinner! He was trying to steal Prince Galitch's skull, which he believed to be more ancient than his own—just the jealousy of one savant toward another. We shall all laugh at him when he is cured."

At that moment the door of the square tower opened, and Walter, Old Bob's faithful servant, appeared. His face was pale, and he seemed very nervous.

"Oh, Mme. Edith," he cried out, "he is covered with blood! He doesn't want anything to be said about it, but he must be saved."

Edith had already rushed into the square tower. As to us, we dared not utter a word. Soon the young woman returned.

"Oh," she sobbed, "it is frightful! His whole breast is torn open!"

Rouletabille reached the castle about an hour after these events. He cut short my demands for an explanation and asked me immediately if I had made a good catch.

"Oh, yes; a very good catch! I fished up Old Bob."

He started violently. I shrugged my shoulders, for I believed that he was counterfeiting surprise, and I went on:

"Oh, you knew very well what kind of fish I should find when you sent your message!"

"You certainly must be unaware of the purport of your words, my dear Sainclair, or else you would have spared me the trouble of protesting against such an accusation."

"What accusation?" I cried.

"That of having left Old Bob in the grotto of Romeo and Juliet, knowing that he might be dying there."

"Oh, nonsense!" I cried. "Old Bob is far from dying. He has a sprained foot and a broken collar bone, and his story of his misfortune is perfectly plain and straightforward. He declares that he was trying to steal Prince Galitch's skull."

"What a funny idea!" exclaimed Rouletabille.

"Do you believe that story? And—and that is all? No other injuries?"

"Yes," I replied. "There is another injury, but the doctors declare that it is not at all serious. He has a wound in the breast."

"And how was this wound made?"

"We do not know. None of us has seen it. He would not even permit his coat to be taken off in our presence."

A HUNGRY PYTHON.

The First Course of His Meal Got Him Into Serious Trouble.

In my travels I visited the jail at Thayet-Myo, in Burma. On the morning of my visit there had undoubtedly been an unusual occurrence. A python twenty-two feet long and twenty-eight inches in girth had entered the vegetable garden and crossed it to the fowl pen. Besides the fowls, there were some five ducks in the pen. Now, the front of the pen was fenced with diamond mesh galvanized wire netting of a strong type.

The snake could not resist a fat duck, so, putting its head and neck through the stout diamond frame, it seized and swallowed one. I have no doubt whatever that it would have "mopped up the bunch" inside the house, but that in adjusting No. 1 to make room for No. 2 it became aware of an uneasy feeling owing to the wire around its waist. Neither have I any doubt that in addition to becoming uneasy it became seriously alarmed.

Being now unable either to disgorge or to get away, it tore off the whole section of netting, 6 feet by 8, and returned with the necklace or waistband through the cabbages. Not unnaturally, I think, the sentry, seeing a 6 by 8 foot wire section of fencing marching through the cabbage patch without any visible means of support, gave the alarm and then opened fire.

The prison guard rushed out and also opened fire, and very shortly our hero lay dead in his frame. He was skinned and his skin cured and dressed in the jail, where they are noted for this kind of work.—Forest and Stream.

A COMPETENT WITNESS.

The Mule's Testimony Was Taken and Accepted by the Judge.

The originator of a widely known probation system, Judge William J. Pollard of a St. Louis police court, is the subject of a Boston Herald story which illustrates his unique way of dealing out justice to minor offenders. A driver had been brought before Judge Pollard, charged with cruelty to animals. He had been driving a galled mule, but he had an expert witness in a veterinarian who testified that the sore on the mule's back did not pain the animal in the least.

The judge listened attentively to the long technical opinions and then demanded to know the mule's whereabouts. He was informed that it was harnessed to a wagon which stood on the street in front of the courthouse. The judge then ordered that court to be adjourned for five minutes.

He took his cane and proceeded to the street, went up to the mule and with the end of his cane gently touched the sore spot on the animal's back. The mule promptly tried to kick the dashboard off the wagon. Once again the judge touched the sore spot with his cane, and the mule responded as before.

Judge Pollard returned to the bench. The prisoner was called before him.

"With all due respect to the expert testimony you have had introduced in your behalf to show that the mule's back does not pain him, I will fine you $50," announced the judge. "I asked the mule if the sore hurt him, and he said it did."

Punctuality in London.

There is plenty of rush and hurry in business London, just as in America, but the English ways seem to be much more systematic and dignified. The man of business is always attired with care—pink necktie, chamois gloves, frock coat, spats—for business procedure in England must be met with due compliance to English ideas of propriety.

Appointments must be made by written notes—not typewritten, mind—and when the appointment is made it is to be kept to the dot. I kept nine appointments in one day and found every man ready and waiting. When you think that old London is slow just wake up. They don't make much fuss about things, but they just plan and do what they set out to do.—Joe Mitchell Chappie in National Magazine.

The Egg and the Shell.

Eggshells are made chiefly of carbonate of lime, and the yolk is half water, half oil and albumen, while the white of an egg, as it is called, consists of water chiefly with albumen and a little phosphorus and sulphur. The yolk always floats at the top of the white, so to be as near as possible to the hen when she sits upon it to hatch it, while two cords attached to the yolk, one at each end, prevent it from actually touching the shell.

Ignorance.

A Scottish minister was asked to pray for rain. He did so, and the rain came down in floods and destroyed the crops. Irritated at the result, one disgusted elder confided to another that "this comes o' intristin' sic a request to a meenister wha isna acquent wi' agriculture."

NOW OR NEVER IS THEIR SLOGAN

American Speakers and writers Say We Must Get Reciprocity Now or Give it up Forever

"Now or never" is the slogan of the Reciprocity protagonist in the United States. President Taft expressed this belief in his famous speech to the New York newspapermen when he said: "The forces which are at work in England and in Canada to separate her by a Chinese wall from the United States, and to make her part of an imperial commercial band reaching from England around the world to England again by a system of preferential tariffs, will derive an impetus from the rejection of this treaty, and if we would have reciprocity with all the advantages that I have described, and that I earnestly and sincerely believe will follow its adoption, we must take it up now, or give it up forever."

Since President Taft has spoken many others have reiterated his words. The Boston Commercial Bulletin declares:—

"As Canada is undoubtedly destined to make as big industrial strides in the future as in the past decade, it is evident that with the lapse of time she will become less and less desirious of renewing negotiations with the United States. The time, therefore, has come for us to strike. Shall we let the opportunity pass?"

Commenting on this utterance The American Economist observes:—

"This is another way of saying that if we are going to cheat Canada in a Free Trade reciprocity dicker we had best do it right now, because, if we wait too long, Canada will get her eyes open and refuse to be cheated. Is this fair or decent or is it merely a demonstration of Yankee smartness? The Canadians are not fools. They have developed their industries under a Protective tariff and now have an industrial future. The time for us to strike passed long ago."

Going further west we find The Minneapolis Journal echoing Mr. Taft's New York speech in this fashion:—

"The Taft policy spells not only North American commercial union, but also the doom of the British imperialistic unity. Too late, provided Congress acts, the British are awakening to the value of the prize they so fatuously rejected. Too late, if Congress rises to a level of this, perhaps the greatest piece of statesmanship effected by an American President since Thomas Jefferson annexed the West. Today England is our best customer, and Canada our third best. But our foreign trade wanes, and that of Canada grows. If we push Canada into England's arms, the trade arrangements between the two will tend more and more to shut us out."

WEAK STOMACHS MADE STRONG

THROUGH TONIC TREATMENT WITH DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS

After all has been said about indigestion and stomach trouble, there is only one way to get a real cure. The stomach must be made strong enough to do its own work. Indigestion disappears when the stomach has been made strong enough to digest ordinary plain food. This strength can only be given the stomach through the tonic treatment supplied by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which enrich the blood, strengthens the nerves and thus enables the stomach to perform the duties which nature intended it should. In every neighborhood you can find people who have been cured of indigestion or other stomach troubles after a fair use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and this is the best proof that they are the one remedy to successfully do this. Mr. D. B. McLean, Sterling, N.S., says:—"For a couple of years I suffered very much from indigestion with most of the accompanying painful symptoms. As a result I became very much run down, and as the medicines I tried did not give me any relief I grew melancholy and unhappy, and felt as though my constitution was breaking down. Quite accidently my attention was called to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I decided to try them, and I am happy to say that they effected a complete cure, and made my stomach as strong as ever it had been. I am glad to say a few words in praise of the medicine that cured me, and I hope my experience will benefit some other sufferer."

Enrich the blood and you banish most of the every day ailments of humanity, and you can enrich it quickest and best by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

RAPID GROWTH

The Following Figures Show the Marvellous Development of Canada

Twenty-five years ago today the first transcontinental train of the Canadian Pacific Railway pulled out from Montreal for the Pacific Coast. It was a memorable occasion, marking the consummation of the greatest work that Canada had ever undertaken.

For a country with less than four millions of people to build a railway across the North American Continent—the first, and still the only actual transcontinental line connecting the two great oceans—was a remarkable achievement whose importance was accentuated by the fact that for many hundreds of miles its lines traversed regions altogether unknown—where men did not live—around the rock-bound northern shores of Lake Superior, across the far western plains then in utter solitude, and over Nature's majestic sky-scrapers in the Canadian Rockies.

No less wonderful has been the growth and expansion of Canada's great national highway during the intervening quarter of a century. The company did not merely remain a common carrier—it become more—a developer and Empire builder—and so potent a factor in filling the wants of others as well as the vast army of travellers that both on land and sea the C.P.R. today is a name to conjure with. From comparatively small beginnings, as seen by twentieth century eyes, it has developed into a world encircling institution with magnificent fleets on ocean and inland waters—an immigration agency that has peopled half a continent, even to furnishing ready-made homes to the home seekers—a forceful factor in the development of mines and mining—an inaugurator of huge irrigation works where thousands are employed in building, its rolling stock, has its own telegraph and express services that reach everywhere, and a chain of palatial hotels to comfortably house those who travel, and it even employs Swiss guides to pilot daring mountaineers to dizzy heights and runs sanitariums and summer resorts where the pleasure seeker may holiday and the health of the invalid be restored. Its record fully justifies the name happily bestowed upon it by an eminent European — "Providence Incorporated."

A few figures will give some idea of the greatness of its growth:—

The total earnings in 1886 were a little over $10,000,000, and the net earnings less than $4,000,000, the surplus after deducting fixed charges being $653,444. This year's gross earnings will probably be over $104,000,000 and the net earnings about $37,000,000. The mileage then was 4,651 miles; today it is, including controlled lines, about 15,500 miles. The number of passengers then carried was 1,899,319 and the tons of freight aggregated 2,046,195. The approximate figures for the past twelve months are over 12,000,000 passengers, and 21,350,000 tons of freight. A comparison of the figures shows that a considerable reduction in the rates has taken place. In 1886 the average earnings per passenger per mile was 2.10 cents and freight averaged 1.10 cents per ton per mile. Today the figures are for passengers 1.93 cents per mile and for freight 0.800 cents per ton per mile. A comparison of the equipment then and today shows how the company has kept pace with the requirements of the traffic:—

	1886.	1911.
Locomotives	372	1,620
First and second class passenger cars and colonist and baggage cars	304	1,757
First-class sleeping and dining cars	47	311
Parlor, official and paymaster cars	27	63
Freight and cattle cars	8,523	50,863
Conductors vans	178	880
Boarding, tool and auxiliary cars	71	3,684

Still more marked is the increase in the marine department. In 1886 the C.P.R. fleet consisted of two steamers on the Great Lakes. Today it has fleets on many waters. Its red and white checkered house flag floats over sixteen Atlantic liners, four Pacific liners, twenty-two steamers on the Pacific Coast service, five on the Great Lakes service, twenty-two on the inland waters of British Columbia, and two in the ferry service on the Detroit river—a total of 71 vessels—and this number will be increased by the building of several new steamships for the ocean service and by the acquisition of the Dominion Atlantic railway and its steamships.

There seems to be no finality to the company's work. In addition to the large original cost of the railway and equipment hundreds of millions of dollars have been expended on improvements such as double tracking, reduction of grades, curves eliminated, replacing wooden bridges with steel structures, erecting new stations and enlarging old ones, etc., and the policy of extending branch lines wherever needed is still being vigorously pursued.

In one way only has the C.P.R. remained "as it was," and that is in the retention of the services of officials and employees. It is practically manned today as it was a quarter of a century ago, with, of course, the addition of many thousands required by the expansion of the road. The total number employed now reaches 80,000 and these are stationed in almost every civilized country on the face of the earth. There was no pension fund in 1886, for none was needed. Today there are over 500 of the old faithful workers on the pension roll, none of whom receive less than $20 a month—a positive contradiction of the proverbial saying that corporations have no souls.

All this show that the Canadian Pacific is, as stated, more than a transportation company in the generally accepted sense of the term. It is an Empire builder and its name will ever be remembered as the creator of Western Canada and a great developing factor wherever its lines penetrate.

Taft's Tight Trousers

When President Taft was seven years old his mother bought him a pair of short duck trousers. The first time they were washed they shrank badly. The boy was fat, but his mother wedged him into the trousers against his protests. He went out to play, but in a few minutes returned.

"Mamma," he said, "I can't wear these pants. They are too tight. Why, mamma, they are tighter than my skin."

"Oh, no they are not, Billy," returned his mother. "Nothing could be tighter than your skin."

"Well, all the same, these pants are, I can sit down in my skin, but I can't in these pants."—Knoxville Sentinel.

Edison's little daughter, when visiting a friend in the nursery, brought with her a doll fitted out by her father's magic with a phonographic attachment, which excited the wonder of her less fortunate playfellow, who exclaimed in amazement:

"Why, your doll can talk!"

The equally astonished reply of the inventor's child was: "Why, don't all dolls talk?"—Clark's Book Herald.

Clean Stomach, Clear Mind.—The stomach is the workshop of the vital functions and when it gets out of order the whole system clogs in sympathy. The spirits flag, the mind droops and work becomes impossible. The first care should be to restore healthful action of the stomach and the best preparation for that purpose is Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. General use for years has won them a leading place in medicine. A trial will attest their value.

THAT AWFUL BACKACHE

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Morton's Gap, Kentucky.—"I suffered two years with female disorders, my health was very bad and I had a continual backache which was simply awful. I could not stand on my feet long enough to cook a meal's victuals without my back nearly killing me, and I would have such dragging sensations I could hardly bear it. I had soreness in each side, could not stand tight clothing, and was irregular. I was completely run down. On advice I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills and am enjoying good health. It is now more than two years and I have not had an ache or pain since. I do all my own work, washing and everything, and never have the backache anymore. I think your medicine is grand and I praise it to all my neighbors. If you think my testimony will help others you may publish it."—Mrs. OLLIE WOODALL, Morton's Gap, Kentucky.

Backache is a symptom of organic weakness or derangement. If you have backache don't neglect it. To get permanent relief you must reach the root of the trouble. Nothing we know of will do this so surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Our columns are open to correspondents on live questions of local interest. Contributions must be brief, written on one side of the paper only and signed, not necessarily for publication, but as evidence of good faith. Either the ranchers on the opposite side of the Kootenay are chronic kickers, or there is still something radically wrong with the Kootenay Ferry.

One of the leading citizens from "Across the river," called at this office and registered a big kick about what he described as "The desperate state of the approaches to the Ferry," especially the approach on the far side from Creston, and which he declared to be in such bad shape, as to be all but impassable.

Probably the recent heavy rains have something to do with the state of things complained of. The Government as everyone is aware, have from first to last, spent a lot of money trying to make this ferry efficient for the work it has to do, and if this expenditure could be made effective, by a judicious improvement of the approaches, the same should be done.

We learn that efforts are being made by interested parties, to have the Great Canadian Motor Road, diverted from the original approved route, which as we know, crosses the Flats at Creston, thence over the Kootenay and via Summit Pass. The scheme of the would be diversionists, is to have the road run on this side of the River to Kuskunook, and thence by a devious, mountaneous and impracticable route, connecting with the city of Nelson.

The only shred of justification we have been able to discover for this fantastic scheme, is the supposed political pull of the interested parties living outside the Ymir Riding who are fathering this precious scheme.

Any attempt to divert the great highway, should and will, be vigorously opposed by the people of Creston. The fact that a bridge across the Kootenay is guaranteed by the construction of this trunk road, whereas if the road be diverted the construction of such bridge is indefinitely postponed, is a sufficient reason why every citizen in the valley should fight against any attempt at diverting the highway. The original road survey, is not only the best most practicable and economical road, but is vital to this district, and there is going to be something doing from this district, if the road is arbitrarily changed.

Nothing definite is yet known, re the candidates for this division in the forthcoming general election, but we have reason to believe that A. S. Goodeve M. P., will again carry the flag of the Grand old Conservative Party to victory whilst he may be opposed by Dr, King or M. A. Macdonald of Cranbrook in the Liberal interest, and possibly by a Socialist in the person of Mr. Davidson.

The Ranchers around Creston, would like to know how it comes about, that whilst they are compelled to cut down the Canada Thistles, owners of adjoining semi-wild lands escape this duty, thus rendering fruitless any efforts to control this pest.

The Balm trees along the K. V. Track are full of Aphis and it is high time that steps were taken to have the bushes destroyed, as they are nothing but a breeding place for the fruit pests. It is useless the Creston Fruit Grower spending money and time spraying his orchard, if these pests are harbored on the Railway right of way, whence they may issue forth to plague the growers of the district.

THREATENED WITH PARALYSIS

BEFORE TREATMENT

Peter E. Summers relates his experience: "I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I lay it to indiscretion and excesses in youth. I became very despondent and didn't care whether I worked or not. I imagined everybody who looked at me guessed my secret. Imaginative dreams at night weakened me—my back ached, had pains in the back of my head, hands and feet were cold, tired in the morning, poor appetite, fingers were shaky, eyes blurred, hair loose, memory poor, etc. Numbness in the fingers set in and the doctor told me he feared paralysis. I took all kinds of medicines and tried many first-class physicians, wore an electric belt for three months, but received little benefit. I was induced to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, though I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I commenced the NEW METHOD TREATMENT and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—I could feel the vigor going through the nerves. I was cured mentally and physically. I have sent them many patients and continue to do so."

Spring Finds the Human System

Loaded With Impurities, Which Cause Pains, Aches and Feelings of Fatigue

When the Liver and Kidneys Are Overworked and Break Down Get them Right by Using

KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

In the spring the human system is loaded with poisons which have accumulated as a result of artificial winter life. There has been too much breathing of poisoned indoor air, too little outdoor exercise, too much eating of heavy indigestible food, especially too much meat and too little fruit.

The liver and kidneys struggle to overcome this condition, but the task is too great for them and they get sluggish and torpid, fail in their work and often become diseased themselves.

They must have help such as is given them by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. There is no great mystery of how these pills purify the blood and take away the cause of tired, spring feelings, backaches, headaches, bodily pains or derangements of the digestive system.

If the blood is to be purified the liver and kidneys must do it. And they will, if you awaken their action by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

It will not take long to get these blood filters into working order if you use this treatment. A few hours will bring improvement and you will learn how to keep these organs healthy and active. One pill a dose, 25c. a box, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Daughters of Mrs. Emmott

Cured Awful Ringworm

"Well over four years ago my two little girls were taken with a dreadful scalp trouble that the doctors called ringworm. They attended the —— Hospital as out-patients for a year. I had to apply their ointment with a brush, giving the children frightful pain. I also had to have their heads shaved every two weeks, but they got no better under the treatment. They used to cry with the tormenting itching, and their heads were covered with a thick scurf and dandruff.

"About a year ago I determined to try the Cuticura Remedies. I used plenty of Cuticura Soap and applied the Cuticura Ointment. I used only about three cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment and they were cured. Their hair is growing long and nice again. They had become so ill after their three years of suffering that I had to send one away to a convalescents' home as soon as she was cured, but now she is home, well and strong. My younger girl was away from school nine months with the disease. I am very grateful to Cuticura and for their children's sake I hope other mothers will try it. The Cuticura Soap I will always use for it makes the hair so lovely."

BLOOD CRYSTALS.

The Latest Scientific Discovery Causes a Sensation.

"Blood Crystals" are the latest scientific discovery, likely to have a distinct and important bearing in criminal trials of the future. It is now possible to state definitely, thanks to the crystallization process, to what species of living creature any specimen of blood may belong; a full account of the marvels of this discovery is contained in an article in Pearson's Magazine, from which we quote: "Probably the most epoch-making work in biology since the time of Darwin. That is how scientific men in various parts of the world regard the newest discovery in relation to blood. With as much certainty as you and I can say of a series of colors —that is, white, black, blue, red, yellow, and green—it is now possible to identify any number of specimens as the blood of a man, a horse, a dog, a whale, a sheep, a wolf, a fox, an orang-outang, a baboon, a seal, a sea-lion, etc., merely by considering the crystals which the coloring matter forms. More—and the fact is pregnant with meaning—it is possible to say whether the blood is of a white man or a negro.

How the discovery affects our knowledge of natural history may be told in two sentences. In the old method of classifying animals according to their tribes, the bear was always placed in the same family as the dog, the wolf, and the fox. By the new method of comparing the blood crystals of these animals it has been proved conclusively that the bear is closely related to the sea-lions and the seals, and is not related to the dog, the wolf, or the fox. I have already stated that, by reason of these crystals it is possible to distinguish the blood of a negro so clearly from that of the white man that the expert could make no mistake one from the other. The inference to be drawn from this fact—and it is one which involves no illogical optimism—is that experts will soon be able to distinguish the blood of the American from that of the Chinaman, the blood of the Italian from that of the Englishman, the blood of the German from that of the Frenchman, and so on."

Built In a Day.

What probably constitutes a record in the building of churches has recently taken place at Preston, a small town in the West of Australia. From foundation to weathercock the whole building was completed in sixteen hours.

At six o'clock on the Saturday morning all that had been done was to set in the ground the four corner blocks on which the building was to stand. By seven o'clock sixty-five carpenters were hard at work. Shortly after half-past ten the floor was laid, and the four frames of the building were being hoisted into position. Now the skeleton of the church—66 1-2 feet long and 31 feet wide—was standing on the blocks.

Meantime dozens of painters were busy, and other helpers gathered from all parts were working with might and main to complete the outside, which was done during the afternoon. All the forces were then concentrated on the inside. By ten o'clock the seats had been installed, the matting laid, the platform and vestries carpeted, the preacher's desk put in, and gas and water laid on.

Midnight on Saturday saw the church, capable of holding 300 people, fully complete, and on the following day three services were held there, at each of which the "record" church was crowded to overflowing.

Rasp Got the Pig.

Surely one of the hardest tests of a sheep dog is to be put in charge of a pig. That, according to one of the contributors to "Shepherds of Britain," is what happened to Rasp, a famous Midlothian collie. The owner found on his return home one day that the pig had escaped and sent the dog to fetch it. "So off went Rasp in quest of what proved one of the most stubborn of the members of the bucolic family she ever encountered. Having been absent about twenty-five minutes, she at last appeared with a few sheep in front of her. But in the centre of the sheep was the pig, experience having taught her that the little rebel could not be driven alone."

Genesis of Life Insurance.

Life insurance originated in 1706 in London. In that year there was formed the first life insurance company. It was called the Amicable Society For a Perpetual Assurance Office. It was a mutual benefit concern. Each member, without reference to age, paid a fixed admission fee and a fixed annual charge per share on from one to three shares, and at the end of the year a portion of the fund accumulated was divided among the heirs of those who had died in accordance with the number of shares each dead person had held. Out of this company, with its crude and imperfect methods, life insurance as it exists to-day has grown.

Wasted Sympathy.

A kindly old lady who attended a performance at the Haymarket theatre in London was much impressed by the singing of a nightingale and a lark, which forms an interesting feature of the performance. In fact, she was so much impressed that she sent an agent of the Society For the Protection of Animals to see if the birds were properly fed and cared for. He found that both nightingale and lark were purely mechanical, in appearance only a small wooden box and key to wind the machinery.

Grand Advice.

A shoemaker came to the minister asking his advice because that sweep, his landlord, had given him notice to quit and he would have nowhere to lay his head. The minister could only advise him to lay his case before the Lord. A week later the minister returned and found the shoemaker busy and merry. "That was gran' advice ye gied me, minister," said the man. "I laid my case before the Lord, as ye tell't me, an' noo the sweep's deid."—Geikie's "Scotch Reminiscences."

The Stumper Stumped

A political speaker, while making a speech, paused in the midst of it and exclaimed: "Now, gentlemen, what do you think?"

A man rose in the assembly, and with one eye partially closed, modestly, with a strong Scotch brogue, replied: "I think, sir, I do, indeed, sir —I think if you and I were to stump the country together we would tell more lies than any other two men in the country, sir, and I'd not say a word myself during the whole time, sir!"

SAFETY FOR CHILDREN DURING HOT WEATHER

Every mother knows, or should know, the danger her baby runs during the hot summer months. Summer complaints come quickly and develop so rapidly that often before the mother realizes her baby is ill he is beyond all help. Every mother of small children should keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets in the house. A Tablet now and then will keep baby's bowels working regularly and his little stomach sweet—this is the secret of keeping baby healthy and of warding off cholera infantum, diarrhoea, dysentery and all other dreaded summer complaints. The Tablets are guaranteed free from all injurious drugs and may be given to the newborn babe with perfect safety. They are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Any woman who carries a parasol smaller than the hats she wears is too much given to exaggeration.

Regarded as one of the most potent compounds ever introduced with which to combat all summer complaints and inflammation of the bowels. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial has won to itself a reputation that no other cordial for the purpose can aspire to. For young or old suffering from these complaints it is the best medicine that can be procured.

The Pill That Leads Them All.—Pills are the most portable and compact of all medicines, and when easy to take are the most acceptable of preparations. But they must attest their power to be popular. As Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are the most popular of all pills they must meet all requirements. Accuracy compounded and composed of ingredients proven to be effective in regulating the digestive organs, there is no surer medicine to be had anywhere.

Couldn't Get In

Two Irishmen who had just landed in this country had become accustomed to sleeping in a hammock on shipboard, but they had had nothing to prepare them for a sleeping-car experience. They had a section, and after some difficulty Mike managed to get into the upper berth. After a while he leaned over and called to Pat below:

"Say, Pat, air ye in bed yet?"

"No," said Pat; "Oi've got me clothes off, but Oi can't git meself into this hammick."

Went Him One Better

Andrew's grandmother had been telling him Bible stories, his favorite being that of Daniel in the lion's den. At the age of four he was taken to a circus for the first time. When the lion tamer put his head into the lion's mouth Andrew's excitement knew no bounds.

Jumping up and down he gleefully screamed: "Gee, that knocks the spots off Daniel!"

The Point of View

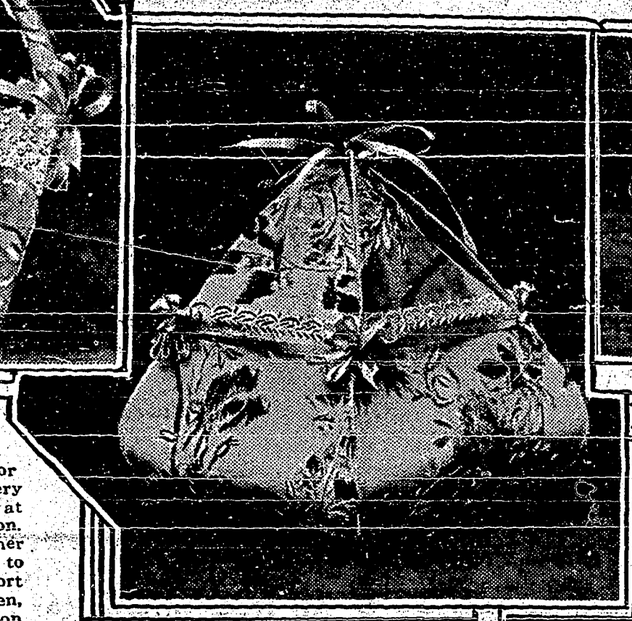
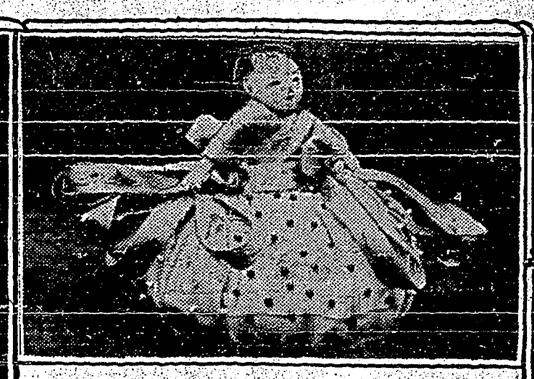
MADE FROM ENDS OF RIBBON

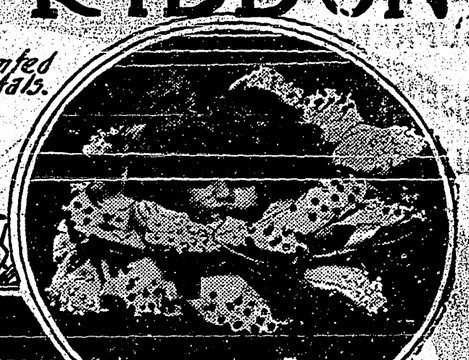
A basket of pins.

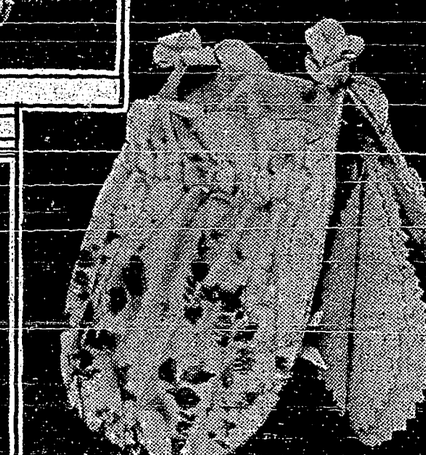


Built over a box.



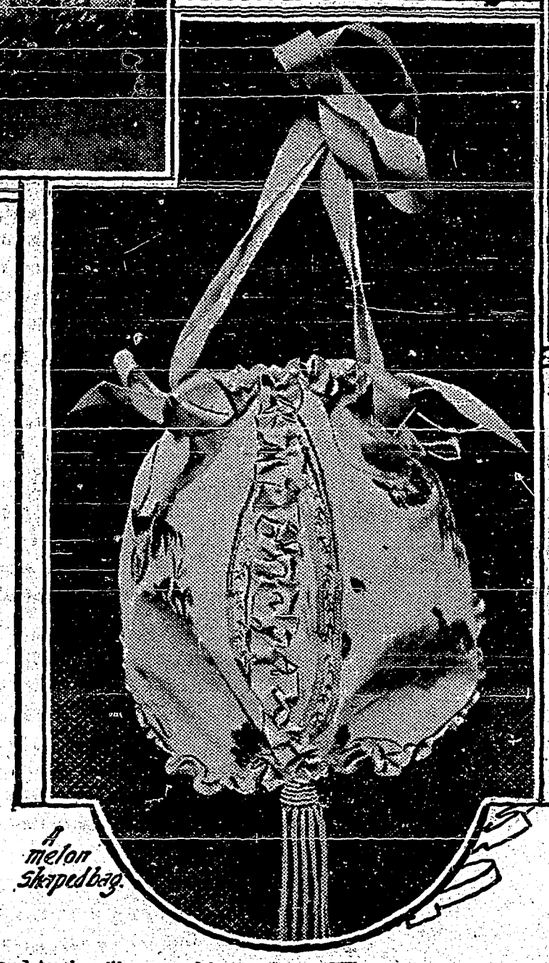
Scented petals.





Always in style.

For thread and needles.



A melon shaped bag.

The new square receptacle.

BEFORE you are suggestions for small pieces of ribbon that every woman finds herself possessing at the end of a dressmaking season. The silken strips left over from other fancy work are always too lovely to throw away and frequently too short for any large piece of work. Here, then, is the story that will clear the ribbon box and at the same time add to the number of dainty accessories that most women like to make.

For thread and needles there is a useful little case shown that any one can make. The exact size and amount of ribbon cannot be given here, for each woman's idea of a suitable case will vary; and, more important, the size of the odd pieces of ribbon will very naturally determine the cutting out of the cardboard foundations. All that this article can attempt is to show the construction of each hint. Of course, there are general rules that can be given. Any shirred pieces are sufficiently full if 1½ times a straight measurement be allowed. By that is meant that if the ribbon is to be shirred on a straight edge four inches long, a piece six inches long will be enough. This gives an easy fullness. If greater be wished, twice a length will be ample.

Cut out two oblong pieces of cardboard and round the lower ends. Cover with plain silk by whipping two pieces that you turn in at the outer edges. Baste the silk on the board before attempting to whip tightly into place.

Now cut a piece of contrasting silk, dresden in the picture, and let it be as wide as once and a half the width of the card foundation near the top, for this is to be a shirred outer pocket to hold the spools of thread.

Whip on the shirred silk. Make another form just like this for the outer "leaf" of this needle book. Cut out several leaves of soft French flannel, pink the edges and attach on the inner surfaces of these. Sew the stiff forms at the top and decorate with tiny bows of narrow ribbon. How much in each bow? you ask. Just as much as you wish or can use.

The melon-shaped bag is made of three strips of ribbon. The lower ends are pointed and the sides of the rather wide ribbon are whipped together. At each seam a little quilling of plain ribbon is placed. This also runs around the top edge. A gilt tassel is used to decorate the lower end of this bag, and ribbon strings are used to carry the receptacle for the handkerchiefs or sewing on the wrist. This can be a bag four inches long or fourteen, just as the ends of your remnants decree.

Here's a use for a candy box. You doubtless have seen unusual shapes in bonbon boxes and have never realized how well they can serve for foundations. The sides must be broken from the bottom and used for a pattern, from which you will cut silk forms and whip into smooth coverings. Then join together and to the silk-covered bottom by strong silk. Cut four pointed pieces, the bases corresponding with the sides of the box; cover and attach as shown in the photograph. At the pointed top of each flap sew a ribbon. The four strands must be tied together to close the box. Place a little gold or silver lace at the junction of the lower part with the top flaps, and finish with a line of ribbon and bows at the corners.

Outside pockets are suggestions worth while. The bag shown is made of wide blue ribbon sewn to a silk-covered square of cardboard. The top edge is turned in to form a full hem and a double drawing-string is run through a casing. On the lower part a straight piece of figured ribbon is shirred and then caught up at intervals by little rosettes of baby ribbon. From each one a line of backstitching drops down to the bottom, forming pockets all around the outside. In these thread, thimble, etc., can be carried.

A square receptacle is shown that suggests a use for part of an ordinary pasteboard box. The bottom and two long sides are used. These you must cover with figured silk. Then a little departure is made. Make a little bag of plain silk or ribbon that will exactly fit in at the short end of the box. Give it drawing-strings and sew it firmly in, so as to close one end. Another bag divided into two or three compartments will close the other end. The top, you will notice, is left open. The whole idea is unique and easily followed in large or small size.

But when pincushions are mentioned, then indeed are suggestions legion. The little doll's head with its surrounding petals is a hint for small pieces of ribbon. These straight ends are folded into points and merely tacked together. In each point there is sewn a little piece of scented cotton and pins are stuck in the ends. A double row of these useful forms is attached to the base of the head.

Always in style is the Japanese doll, with its little crossed kimono of ribbon and its padded base for pins. This latter can be a pincushion covered with gathered ribbon, or it can be soft cotton. Two bows of ribbon decorate each side.

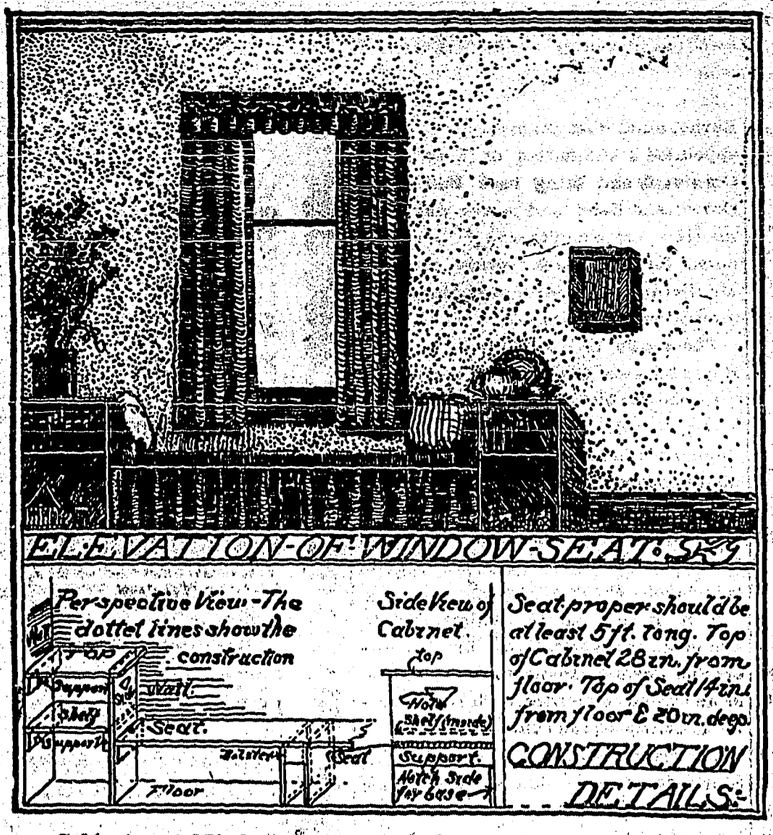
The little basket is the last idea for eager needlewomen. Cut pieces of cardboard with rounded tops and cover with silk. Then attach to a square base by whipping the edges together. Force into the basket a silk pincushion. The handle is of wire covered with cotton, muslin and finally wrapped with plain ribbon. It is attached to opposite sides, and bows of narrow ribbon are used to finish the useful idea.

Surely there are profitable hints for every reader. From odds and ends of silk or ribbon many attractive bags and boxes can be made. These but show the way to a profitable expression of needlecraft.

Goldfish

IT IS not generally known that if a sick goldfish be put for a minute or two in salted water it will recover health and animation—that is, if it be simply "droopy" and not affected by a serious disease. Never, however, put a fish that is well in anything but fresh water, for salt water will surely kill it.

THE HOME DECORATOR



Cabinet and Window Seat

THE arrangement of cabinet and window seat shown in the illustration provides an excellent lounging place where one may read with a good light from the window and favorite books conveniently at hand, while the children can stow their toys under the seat or in the lower portions of the cabinet.

An exact dimension for the length of the seat cannot be given, because rooms vary in size. However, as it is a lounging place, five feet for the seat proper should be allowed at the least. The cabinet to the left in the illustration is supported on one end by the wall at one of the angles of the room. Should you wish to build the seat and cabinets away from the wall at the ends, add a side piece and one support to the bill of material.

Material

Poplar, white or southern pine, 1 inch in thickness, will answer. Have the mill cut these pieces to the required sizes and plane them smooth:

2 cabinet tops	21 by 30 inches
2 seat boards	10 inches wide by any required length
2 shelves	16 by 30 inches
2 bolsters	14 by 20 inches
2 supports	3 by 20 inches
3 cabinet sides	27 by 30 inches

18 pieces is the total.

Lumber for construction, purchased and planed at the mill, of course, provides this ideal seat; however, any person clever with tools can make such a seat with odds and ends of stout boxes and the like.

The appearance of the sides of the cabinet will be improved if an inverted triangle or heart shape be cut in the space midway between the shelf and the top. The notch depicted in the illustration in the lower inside edge of the cabinet side is to allow the passage of the baseboard. Draw a full-size plan of the side of the cabinet, showing triangular cut or heart and the notch drawn like the profile of your baseboard; then let the mill people follow this drawing. The seat should be bolstered at least once near the center, and twice if the seat is long.

The flounce under the seat should be made of green denim, the same olive [illegible] suggested for the complete and harmonious ensemble of the room. This flounce is supported by a brass rod and carried along just beneath the seat, affording a good hiding place for toys and the like.

The cushion on the seat should be at least three inches thick. The outside covering of olive green denim should conceal an inner cushion made of muslin, thus keeping the stuffing from working through the outer cover. This muslin cushion may be stuffed with cotton wadding, tow or hair. (Full directions for making such a cushion will be given in the article to follow, describing the making of slip covers, etc.) Should the seat be a long one, it will be advisable to make it in sections, as it is easier to clean when so constructed.

WITH ONE STRING OF PEARLS

Knotted and hanging

Forming a collar.

A Grecian Fillet.

WHEN one string in its time plays many parts it is due to the cleverness of the owner. If you are clever, you probably will enjoy a resume of the protean string; if you never could do things, here is the story.

If you own a long string of pearls or coral beads, or, in fact, of any kind, do not let it stay in its one form. Use it for three or four different purposes.

First, it can be twined around the hair in three bands quite like the Grecian headdress. If too long, knot the beads in two or three places at the top. Clasp the ends of the string at the back and pin the hair over the clasps. When worn with a convincingly beautiful result, you can unclasp the ends and straighten out the beads.

Now they are ready for the next change.

Do you need an ornament in the form of a cabochon on fichu or hat? Just cut out a circular disk of net or scrim, cover it with maline or silk and wind the string of beads so that a rosette will be formed. This can be caught in place by a few stitches in a few minutes.

The main use for a string of beads is, of course, decorative, but it need not hang in one straight line of color around the neck. Knot the strings halfway up, making a double string.

For a change, wind the string about the neck in eight or nine strands to form a dog collar. In other words, a string of beads need not remain in its original state. Turn it to another use if you wish.

And just as a parting suggestion, buy a string of beads and break the thread. Use the little forms for embroidery in this great season of embroidery. It is much cheaper than buying them by the dozen strands at exorbitant prices per strand.

White beads can be colored by applying stencil dyes or paint.

PLAY BALL

On Monday evening, the series of games for the Harum Cup, for this year, were closed, and the Single men of Creston, by a sweeping victory of 14 to 3, won the baseball championship and the title of cup holders for 1911.

There was a lot of preliminary skirmishing before the game commenced, the Married men waited until almost dark, in the hope of putting in a strong team, and finally took the field with Malone, Pitcher, Robinson, Catcher, Mead, Burton, Huber, Reid, Henderson, Johnson and McCreath. The Single Men were well represented by Buff Mc Peak, Pitcher, R. Telford, Catcher, Bundy, Tucker, Broderick, Madere, Tardiff, Burton, Arrowsmith. Sam Hatfield acted as Umpire.

At the end of the first innings, the score stood nothing 'all,' but in the second the Singletons scored two and the Married also got two men home in the third, the Kids responded with four, thus making the score at the end of the third innings six to two in favor of the Singles.

In the fourth, Madore got in a mighty swipe and a succession of men got home three being registered before the married men could get the ball.

In spite of the good work by H. Mc Creath, the married men dropped further and further behind, errors and bad play in the field completed the sad story, and the game wound up with the Singles Winners by 14 to 3.

Well that is the way of the world, the kids will always wallop the old ones, if we only wait long enough.

These games have been played throuout in the best sporting spirit, being far an away the most genuine contests which the base ball fans of Creston have had an opportunity to witness, and the married men, far from being downhearted ought rather to be proud that they have succeeded, without practice and teamwork, in putting up close games with an organized team of ball players.

We do not believe there is another town in the country which possesses a better bunch of real sports, than the married men of Creston.

The baseball game, Scouts v Shamrock resulted in a victory for the scouts by a score of 21 to 11.

CRESTON LABOR DAY CELEBRATION

The meeting called for at 8 p. m. and at about 8. 48 p. m. when the interesting subjects of "Worcestershire Sauce" and the "High Price of Beer" had been threshed out on the main street, the citizens made their way into the Hall.

President Billie Crawford took the chair, and all the aristocracy were there; after the Sec had waded thru his opening remarks, the minutes of the last meeting were euthusiastically adopted as read.

The finance committee reported $400 in sight amid loud applause

Bevan, amid tumultious applause, was appointed a committee of 1 to go to Cranbrook and bring back Ball Team Crowd and Band, and power was given the transport committee to put up guarantee for Cranbrook special provided Mr. Bevan is successful, and there is no celebration at Cranbrook.

Those who had anticipated a battle Royal between the Sharps, beg pardon we mean the Parks, and the Flats, were dissappointed, the report of the Grounds Committee in favor of the Park, being unanimously adopted.

A sporting committee of R. Fitzgerald R M. Reid, Ed. Johnson, A. Miller, and S. H Sarkissian was appointed, amid tremendous cheers.

R S. Bevan and R. Walmsley with one member each from the Fruit Growers and Farmers Institute were named as an exhibit committee, with R. Walmsley in charge of the exhibit.

The fireworks then commenced. The Secretary rose to deliver his Heroic address entitled "Did I Not" and with his hand resting gracefully over his breast pocket commenced those immortal lines "Water." Water everywhere but not a drop to drink." By this time the adjournment was in full swing, and the footsteps of the meeting echoed down the stairs.
