GOLD STICKS OUT

On Many Rich Properties in the Great Burnt Basin.

ITS BIG LEDGES ARE FREE MILLING

Brief Description of one of Cascade's Most Promising Districts.

If there is one locality more than another that is attracting the attention of mining men, by reason of its remarkable surface showings, that region is the Burnt Basin. This rapidly-becoming-famous locality is situated about eighteen miles north or northeast of Cascade, near the new town of Gladstone, being ten miles from Christina lake. It is close to the line of railway now under construction. The district now located occupies a territory three by seven miles in size, and is a plateau.

In the summer of 1896 the first locations were made there by Hunter, Gee and Henderson and were the Edison group of four claims. The ledges are from 25 to 40 feet in width, and carry gold in iron pvrites. Richard Plewman, of Rossland, who has become interested, expects to begin development in the spring.

The Mystery group of 10 claims, owned by Willardson and Johnson, has a large lead, the ore assaying $24 to $27 in gold, silver and copper. These prospectors cut the first trail into the Burnt Basin. The claims were under bond to an American Syndicate at the outbreak of the Spanish war. A deal is now pending.

Adjoining the Edison and Mystery groups is the Bryan group owned by Edward Burr and associates of Rossland, and having the same kind of a showing, with galena on one claim. The owners are waiting for the completion of the new railway.

The Solid Gold group of five claims, located by Fred Frederickson in 1897 and sold to Richard Cooper, of Rossland, is well named. There is solid ore on every one of the claims, being galena and copper. One lead is six feet wide. The Solid Gold claim is gold copper.

The Eva Bell, adjoins the Solid Gold on the west, and is owned by Mr. Rogers, of Grand Forks, and H. L. Jones, of Rossland. It is also a gold-copper claim with a galena lead giving assays of $77.

The Barrow is next to the Solid Gold also and is one of the best claims, being very high grade gold-copper. A Greenwood man is the owner.

Between the Edison and Solid Gold is the Ennismore, owned by Thomas Keller, assaying 40 oz. silver and 55 per cent. lead. Right here also are several claims owned by the B. C. M. & M. syndicate, of Cascade, with similar showings.

In the same belt and west of the Edison group, is the Lawless group, owned by Reid, McPherson, Roy and Greer of Rossland. The lead has been crosscut for 30 feet, and is now in solid gold-copper ore. On the same lead also are the Isabella, owned by the Lattah Bros., and the Blue Monday and No. 65, owned by Jack Singer, all of Rossland, both of which are promising.

GOLD STICKING OUT.

Separated by a ravine is another belt on which Mike Shick made his remarkable discoveries on the Mother Lode group, getting assays of $6,500 in gold. Dozens have seen it and picked out chunks of free gold as souvenirs. This was located last fall, the rock being a fine, pure, free milling quartz.

Next to Shick's claims are situated the famous Tammany group, owned by Reid and associates. Free gold can be readily seen sticking out of the quartz, and experts who examined it could hardly believe their eyes. Assays have gone over $5,000, in 50 lbs. of rock every piece showing the yellow stuff. The ledge is twelve feet wide and several outfits are figuring on the property and a deal will probably be closed soon

Two miles beyond the Tammany is the International group of four claims, which Fred Frederickson has recently sold to a German syndicate for $10,000 cash. The treasurer of the syndicate is now on the ocean, en route here, and pending his arrival work is going on. The ledge is something stupendous, being 200 feet wide.

The Tunnel Site and Kitty are also owned by Frederickson, the Mecklenburg, by C. Wallis, and the Monitor by C. H. Thomas, of Cascade. They are all most promising, having gold-bearing quartz.

The Red Chief group has three claims and gave assays of $28 in gold and 6¾ per cent copper. It is owned by Harry Denton, of Cascade, and J. A. Scaman, of Wenatchee, Wash. The lead is easily traceable across the three claims. Wm. Day has several claims on the creek bearing his name, which are said to have excellent showings. Dan Clark, of Rossland, owns the Hilltop, near the Tammany, and will begin work on it in the spring. Dr. McKenzie, of Rossland, owns the Hastings, near the Eva Bell, which has fine surface showings.

John L. White, a druggist of Slocan City, with W. E. Worden, secured a lot on First Avenue yesterday, near the post office, and will at once erect a store.

Assurances have been given that the licensing board, which sits on the 15th of December, will hold a session in this city. This will be a great convenience to Cascade's hotel keepers.

The Record has been informed by several persons of a dead horse being in the river at Edward's Ferry, which has been there for several days, and which if not removed at once will doubtless be the cause of sickness to the community.

ARE LAYNG STEEL

Iron Being Put Down at the Rate of 2,000 Feet Daily.

WORK STARTED AT WEST ROBSON

Workman Hanged Himself---Three Italians Injured by Premature Blast.

Everyone interested in railroading has been inquiring of late when the laying of steel was likely to begin on the new Robson-Penticton line, now under construction through here. This important part of building this steel highway has at last commenced, though there is not much danger of hearing the screech of the iron horse in this town for some time yet.

Work commenced several days ago on the track-laying at West Robson, and has been going on at the rate of about 2,000 feet per day. There was some delay in getting started, owing to the fact that the locomotive to be used slipped off the barge in the Columbia while landing and had to be replaced. Just how fast the work will progress is difficult to state now, as there is still considerable work to be done on bridges, trestles and tunnels along Lower Arrow Lake.

THREE MEN INJURED.

Last Tuesday three Italians, whose names could not be learned, were seriously injured by a premature blast at the camp of McLean Bros., near Gladstone. It seems that the men had not taken warning by the foolhardy examples of several others whose rash acts have been recorded. They tried to load a hole that had been sprung and was still warm, and of course the blast went off prematurely and all three were severely hurt. They were taken to the company's hospital in Brooklyn for treatment.

CONSTRUCTION NOTES.

Snow to a depth of about a foot or more covers the tote road for many miles after the summit is reached.

Last Tuesday a laborer employed at Koykendall's camp, near Brooklyn, hung himself. The remains were taken to Brooklyn for the coroner's inquest.

Burns & Jordan, whose No. 2 camp is located a mile or two west of Gladstone, expect to shortly put in another camp between Grand Forks and Greenwood.

Tomorrow, Sunday, being the regular monthly pay day of the contractors, it is not expected that Paymaster Woodman, or his assistant, Arthur Smith, will start out on their monthly tour until a day or two later.

The first trial of the new patent steam scraper, recently built by McLean Bros., brought to their contract near Gladstone, was not a success, according to reports. The scraper proper has been sent to a machine shop at Nelson to have some alterations made.

D. McLeod, purchasing agent for Mann, Foley Bros. & Larson, was in town from Brooklyn, and informed the Record that there are now 246 horses employed in freighting his firm's merchandise from Bossburg to the storehouse in Cascade. Mitchell Bros. have the contract and are putting on new teams constantly.

IN AND AROUND CASCADE.

Mrs. Sam Vinson is expected in town in a few days.

T. H. Ray, a Burnt Basin mining man, was in town Wednesday.

J. B. Mitchell, formerly of Republic, has opened a barber shop in front of S. W. Bear's sign works on Main street.

Messrs. Adams and Imboly, contractors of Vancouver, arrived in Cascade this week and intend locating permanently.

Mrs. W. J. Francis, who has been very ill for the past week, is now gradually improving, much to the relief of her many friends.

Constable Dinsmore, of Grand Forks, has been collecting poll taxes from our residents this week, and left for Gladstone on yesterday's stage.

Rev. Father Palmer, from Trail, whose district runs to Greenwood, was in the city last Tuesday. He is scheduled to hold services here on Tuesday, November 29th.

Black Bros., of the hotel that bears their name, have shown their enterprise by placing a large lamp on their conspicuous corner, to guide the weary traveller from afar.

C, W. Hill, of the Cascade City News Stand, has sold out his business to James Walker, who will continue at the old location, having already built an addition to the store.

L. Ernst, of the California Wine Co., Nelson, was a caller at the Record office this week. Incidentally he sold several thousand of his choice Havanas to our wide-awake bonifaces.

A small fire occurred on Thursday in the store of Francis & Milne, due to a defective flue. The scarcity of brick has made it necessary in many cases to run stove pipes through roofs, and it is to be hoped this will soon be remedied.

John A. McMaster, one of the proprietors of the Columbia hotel, returned recently from Rossland after closing the deal for the sale of the Dufferin group, on Shuswap lake. The purchase was made by a New York syndicate, and the price paid for a four-fifths interest was $26,000.

Owing to a technical error in the papers of commitment, Mike Downey was brought back from Grand Forks by Officer Dinsmore last Wednesday, examined again before Justices Rose and Rochussen, with the same result, and sent over to the Midway jail.

IN AND AROUND CASCADE.

Julius Levy, of the well known wholesale firm of the same name in Rossland, was doing business in Cascade this week.

Travel over the Cascade-Brooklyn tote road is increasing every week. Gangs of laborers are constantly coming this way.

H. Y. Anderson, of the Anderson House, Brooklyn, has been in town this week, spying out the land, with a view to opening another hotel.

The steamer Myrtle B., which has already seen so much service in railroading, is doing an excellent business on the placid waters of Christina lake.

Robert Wills has established a stage line, to run between Cascade and Brooklyn. He is an old hand at the business, and will undoubtedly make a success of it.

J. C. Eckstorm, of the Railroaders' Headquarters hotel, of this city, is making arrangements to open a hotel at Minton, on Christina lake, in the near future.

Justice J. C. McGregor, of Brooklyn, partner of L. M. Livingston, of that busy town, was looking over this city this week, and expects to open up here in the near future.

Williams' Bossburg and Grand Forks stages now stop in Cascade on the up trips, to give time for passengers to refresh the inner man or woman, as the case may be, at the supper table.

Sam McOrmond, the merchant of Gladstone, who passed through here last week to secure a license, was successful in his mission, and will soon be able to care for thirsty as well as hungry travellers.

Cascade's hotel men are making application for a renewal of their licenses, which will be passed upon at the sitting of the board on December 15th. If granted, the licenses will take effect on January 1st.

Divine services will be held tomorrow, Sunday, afternoon at three o'clock, the sermon being preached by Rev. G. K. Bradshaw, Methodist minister from Grand Forks. A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend.

Last Friday evening about seven o'clock a small fire excited the neighborhood of the Cosmopolitan cafe, back of which was the house of Mr. Carter. It was caused by a defective flue and was quickly extinguished by a few buckets of water.

Max Heckman, one of the best known mining men of the Slocan, and who owns several valuable properties, came in this week from Brooklyn. He was accompanied by Tom Lake, a former Slocan hotel man. They are much pleased with Cascade.

Mr. Carruthers, travelling agent for Turner, Beeton & Co., Nelson, had a narrow escape one evening here recently, when some one accidentally shot off a gun in one of our leading hotels. The ball passed through a partition and through Mr. Carruthers' coat sleeve.

Slim Cosgrove, the genial typographical expert who so ably assisted in getting out the first issue of the Record, departed on Sunday's stage for his home in Kaslo. He is one of the best known followers of the art preservative in the west, and thinks of returning and locating in the Boundary country, where he has a host of friends.

Nelson & Bedlington Contract Let

The report has been sent out that the contract for the construction of the so long talked of Nelson & Bedlington railway has been awarded to Messrs. Foliet and Guthrie, the well known railway builders, who have been in this line of business in the Pacific Northwest for many years. Together they make an exceedingly strong combination. The price is not made public, but it is stated that the road is to be completed and ready for trains by May 1st, 1899. Contractors have had their eye on this piece of work for a number of months, but now all speculation is at rest, and it is the intention of those fortunate enough to secure the plum to push the work with all possible speed.

The road is to be operated by the Kootenay Railway & Navigation Co., the new corporation which has taken over the Kaslo & Slocan railway and the International Navigation Company steamers connecting therewith. As is now well known, James J. Hill, the Great Northern magnate is the power behind the throne in the new company, and this new connecting link will give him a new line into the heart of the rich Kootenay mining districts and also immediate connection with the Crow's Nest coal fields. The new road will be about 60 miles or a little less in length, and will for the most part follow up the Kootenay river from Kuskonook to Bonner's Ferry. There is said to be no serious obstacle to the work of construction over the surveyed route. That part of the country will doubtless present a scene of the greatest activity.

Heroism Among Miners

Heroes are to be found among miners as well as among soldiers. There have been several exhibitions of remarkable courage on the part of miners in this camp, says the Rossland Miner. One was that made by George Drewry a few days ago in the Sunset No. 2, in his rescue of Fred Holt from death, and his attempt to save the lives of William J. Cain and Patrick Nolan. The following incident occurred in a mine in Sumdum, Alaska, and is as great a display of courage on the part of miners in saving the life of a companion as ever occurred on a battle field:

Three miners had just spitted 11 holes in the bottom of a shaft and started for the surface on the edge of the bucket. The swing of the bucket threw one of them against a timber and he was knocked out, falling to the bottom. He was not seriously hurt and retained perfect consciousness. Death in a horrible form stared him in the face. "Billy! Billy!" shouted he to the foreman, "don't leave me here to die." "Pull that bell cord," said the foreman to his companion. "I can't find it," was the reply. "Pull that bell cord, damn you, or I'll knock you off the bucket." The cord was pulled and the descent, then 60 feet from the bottom of the shaft, was made. As the bottom was approached, the engineer slowed up as usual. Quick signals to lower, and, the bottom being reached, the two men jumped off, and grabbing the hurt man, jumped into the bucket. Signals to hoist at full speed started them upward. The explosion occurred just as the men reached the surface and safety. Who shall say that heroism of the highest kind was not here displayed?

STRIKE ON ELMORE

Twelve Feet of Fine Gold-Copper Ore Have Been Uncovered.

AND BUT ONE WALL YET FOUND

Frank Hutchinson Brings Down Samples and Tells the Record All About It.

A most important strike was made on the Elmore mineral claim this week by Frank Hutchinson, the locator, that is undoubtedly the best yet reported from the Christina lake district, and which means much to Cascade City. Twelve feet of good gold-copper ore have been discovered in crosscutting, and only one wall was reached.

The Elmore group, consisting of the Elmore and Corrydon, is situated on Shamrock mountain, at the head of Baker and Sullivan creeks, three miles due east of Christina lake and about seven miles from Cascade. The claims were located in the spring of 1897 by Mr. Hutchinson, and since then every foot of ground has been staked between that point and the lake. An immense iron capping is plainly visible on the surface for a distance of sixty feet or more. The locator worked all last winter on the property, sinking a shaft some forty feet and then drifting twenty feet. The showing was good, but the owners hoped for something better, and this fall perseveringly started at it again about twenty feet east of the shaft, where the surface was covered with gravel. Here Mr. Hutchinson crosscut on the surface, making an opening three to twelve feet deep and twenty-five feet long. At this point he went into clean chalcopyritic ore at least twelve feet, and without going further came to Cascade last Thursday to test his samples and relate his good fortune to the Record and the rest of the world.

About a year ago several Rossland capitalists became interested in the immense iron caps of Shamrock mountain, and Smith Curtis, of that city, organized the Belcher Gold Mining Co., with a capital of $1,000,000, to take over and develop the Elmore group. Mr. Hutchinson is president and Mr. Curtis secretary and manager of the company. Mr. Curtis is now in the district and will be made acquainted with the rich strike without delay, when a large force of men will doubtless be put to work.

Owners of claims on Shamrock mountain, realizing that if the Elmore did not prove up as anticipated, their properties were not likely to become valuable, have waited for the results of Mr. Hutchinson's work. They will be not a little pleased to hear of this strike, and there is little doubt but that a large amount of development will be done there without delay. The ore is almost identical with the gold-copper product of the Rossland district, and the importance of the strike to Cascade can scarcely be overestimated.

GLADSTONE GLINTS

James Cameron has charge of the development work being prosecuted on the John Bull group, close to town. A force of four men is now at work, the bunk house, blacksmith shop, etc., having been completed. A winter's stock of supplies have been packed and work on the claim proper will now begin in earnest. If the property shows up as its owners are confident it will, they will all be wearing diamonds one of these fine days.

J. S. Wisner has begun work on his new hotel, which will be located on McRae avenue, on the main travelled road from Brooklyn to Cascade.

Sam McOrmond has the frame oi his new hotel building up, and has it pretty well covered in. He expects to have it open soon, having already secured his license.

Several experts, representing syndicates, have been here examining Burnt Basin properties of late. They are universally well pleased with the result of their investigations and some good sales are likely to occur before long.

There is now nearly a foot of snow in the Burnt Basin, but access is not yet closed to that locality.

WATER POWER CITIES.

A student of the growth of cities that have their location where nature so arranged things that power can be had from the nearby water courses, will find in this a most interesting and instructive study. He will learn—if not cognizant of it before—that such cities have in due time taken on a substantial and permanent growth and have become great centres of industry and trade ; all of which was, in a large measure, due to the fact that power could be improved at moderate cost and practically in unlimited quantities. Numerous instances of this kind could be cited in the far east. But to come nearer home, we can take Minneapolis and even Spokane as bright and shining exemplifications of this now readily admitted fact. Each of these widely known places was founded and for years had its growth and prosperity solely by reason of the magnificent water power found at its doors ; and each is now a thriving community that is steadily growing in importance.

Cascade City today stands in relatively the same position that Minneapolis and Spokane did years ago. As a railway center this city has just as bright prospects as the cities mentioned had when their pioneers laid the foundations of the fortunes that awaited them. We might even go a little farther and say, without stretching the truth in the least, that today Cascade has some advantages over those cities at a similar age. We have here already a strong corporation, now at work improving the opportunities which nature has so generously provided, and the next few months will undoubtedly show to the world that in no section of the Dominion can there be found a more prosperous or stable young city.

This prosperity will undoubtedly flow largely from the fact that we have this huge engine that can and will drive the myriads of wheels of industry—aye, for scores of miles, to either side of us—and that capital and energy have been able, in their wisdom, to peer far enough into the future to appreciate its inestimable advantages, not only to themselves, but to the entire country immediately surrounding and tributary to it.

There are persons, living right in this city today who do not appreciate the magnitude and importance of the preparations now going on for the harnessing of the multitude of little drops of water that flow through the Kettle river. The possibilities were, however, freely taken into consideration by the townsite founders when they acquired the many broad acres here nearly ten years ago, and have had the faith to hold on, through all the hard times that have been experienced since then. It must be pleasant for them to note now that their judgment of that early day is being endorsed heartily and freely every day and every week. That they are entitled to and have earned the fruits of their foresightedness, no fair minded man will deny. Fortunately for the young town, they are liberal in their ideas, and are willing to do the fair thing by any man who comes here and means business.

Cascade's water power has already attracted hundreds. In the future it will attract many thousands, and before the Record has become a yearling this will become patent to the few who even now are posing as doubting Thomases.

IS A CRYING NEED.

If there is one thing more than another that Cascade and the Boundary country needs more than another—in these times when needs are so numerous—it is the establishment here of offices of some recognized express company. At present the nearest office of this kind is at Bossburg, not a convenient place for business men living thirty to fifty miles away to do business in. The Record was recently notified by the Dominion Express Co.'s agent in Penticton, 150 or more miles from Cascade, that a small package for this paper from Victoria had reached that office. This but illustrates the point here made.

If the Dominion Express Co. could have the facts and figures of the large business to be handled in here, presented to them, the matter would surely receive favorable consideration. When a business man orders goods by express, he does it with the expectation of getting prompt delivery and is willing to pay therefor. But a loss of three or four days, as is often the case, from the nearest railway office is a serious affair to him.

The concerns now handling express matter are doing all in their power to facilitate business, and are certainly most accommodating in every way. But, as a rule, an order must needs be sent, and this means aggravating delay. The subject is well worth taking up by our business men and working out. If it is gone at in the right way and in the proper spirit the Record believes that good will certainly come of the effort.

The intelligent editors of many journals hereabouts are saying kind things about the Record. The editor, business manager, advertising solicitor, collector, pressman and corps of compositors down to the devil himself, one and all unite in expressing appreciation of the kindly reception accorded this youngest of Yale newspapers. Gentlemen, may your shadows never grow less.

There is one way that the publishers of the Record object to receiving subscriptions—and that is by freight from Bossburg. If any are sent that way they are not liable to reach this sanctum on this earth. Prospective subscribers will please take notice.

With surveyors in the field for the extension of the Columbia & Western from Midway to Penticton ; with the contract let for the Nelson & Bedlington, and with good chances for the construction of the Kettle River Valley road next year, it appears as though there would be no abatement of railway building in southern British Columbia.

The Record regrets that the great demand for the paper last week far exceeded the supply. We expected a cordial reception, but the unusually warm recognition of the paper was a gratifying surprise to the publishers. Hereafter there will be plenty of copies for all, but the surest way to get it is to have your name on the subscription list. If need be, a web-perfecting press will be installed to keep up with the circulation.

BY THE WAYSIDE.

Notes by the Scribe.

The Wayfarer is neither a prophet nor the son of a prophet, but he will willingly risk the prediction made while he is sound in mind and in possession of his faculties, that Cascade City within two years will be second to no city in southern Yale. He is not paid for making this prediction, and he does it of his own free will, basing his belief on careful notes and observations made here. The facts contained in the two leading articles in last week's Record constitute a conservative statement of the situation here. No mention was there made of the growth of the last three months, which is a surprise to even those familiar with the Gateway City. These articles comprise what Shakespear would have called a plain, unvarnished tale, and are worthy a careful perusal by any one who has not happened to read them.

It should be distinctly understood that the Wayfarer has nothing to do with this great family journal further than to give vent to his ideas in this column. He makes this remark here because of the numerous congratulations received on the appearance of the first issue last week, which should have been bestowed upon the editor and publishers. However, the Wayfarer will gladly pass them along to those to whom they belong.

The cry of "fire" a few nights ago quite justly startled all within hearing, especially when it is remembered that all water has to be hauled from the river in barrels. Fortunately, it was nothing worse than a defective flue, which was quickly extinguished by a pail of water, little or no damage being done. But this little incident served its lesson in setting many to thinking, and the result in one direction will doubtless be the taking out of more fire insurance [illegible]. The maximum penalty for the offence is a fine of $500 and six months in jail for each trial. The Wayfarer is a bit of a sport. Therefore he read with no little interest of the intensely exciting race that took place in Greenwood. He refers here to the race of chartered banks to get opened up first in the Mountain City. Everyone in the Boundary country was an interested spectator—at a distance—and none more so than the people of Cascade. In this connection, our people will do well to keep a weather eye open, for the chances are more than good that a similar scene will be enacted right here in the near future; and this race, if it is pulled off, will be even more interesting to us than was that in Greenwood. The first institution of this character that opens up for business in Cascade will, beyond a shadow of a doubt, do an excellent business, and be received with open arms.

Another thing that is as sure to come, as that the day follows the night, is the establishing of a customs collector here in Cascade, instead of making this a sub port of entry, as at present arranged. Traffic from the States must come through the valley of the Kettle river, via Cascade, and when the Kettle River Railway is built, or before, Cascade will beyond question be given the recognition it deserves along this line. Such is the opinion of the Wayfarer, as well as of those whose foresight is said to be as good as many another man's hindsight.

THE WAYFARER.

The Dominion Supply Co. is the name of a new concern that expects to start business in Cascade about November 25th They have rented a large store building and now have a general stock of merchandise on the way here.

Mike Downey, who tried to hold up each of the houses with red lanterns one night last week for a contribution of $50, claiming to be an officer, had a hearing before Justices Rose and Rochussen and was committed to the Grand Forks [illegible] trial. The maximum penalty for the offence is a fine of $500 and six months in jail for each [illegible] some time.

[illegible] ence to the mana[illegible] nor to Dr. Foste[illegible] contractors' physician, who attended him. Two nurses were provided and every possible care given the poor unfortunate man, till he finally went to the great beyond. The expense probably amounted to over $200. It was a noble thing on the part of those who took care of him, and one that will not soon be forgotten by those who really appreciate such acts. Truly, as the poet hath said, "One touch of nature makes the whole world kin."

It may not be generally known, but it is a fact, nevertheless, that

WATER POWER CITIES.

A student of the growth of cities that have their location where nature so arranged things that power can be had from the nearby water courses, will find in this a most interesting and instructive study. He will learn—if not cognizant of it before—that such cities have in due time taken on a substantial and permanent growth and have become great centres of industry and trade ; all of which was, in a large measure, due to the fact that power could be improved at moderate cost and practically in unlimited quantities. Numerous instances of this kind could be cited in the far east. But to come nearer home, we can take Minneapolis and even Spokane as bright and shining exemplifications of this now readily admitted fact. Each of these widely known places was founded and for years had its growth and prosperity solely by reason of the magnificent water power found at its doors ; and each is now a thriving community that is steadily growing in importance.

Cascade City today stands in relatively the same position that Minneapolis and Spokane did years ago. As a railway center this city has just as bright prospects as the cities mentioned had when their pioneers laid the foundations of the fortunes that awaited them. We might even go a little farther and say, without stretching the truth in the least, that today Cascade has some advantages over those cities at a similar age. We have here already a strong corporation, now at work improving the opportunities which nature has so generously provided, and the next few months will undoubtedly show to the world that in no section of the Dominion can there be found a more prosperous or stable young city.

This prosperity will undoubtedly flow largely from the fact that we have this huge engine that can and will drive the myriads of wheels of industry—aye, for scores of miles, to either side of us—and that capital and energy have been able, in their wisdom, to peer far enough into the future to appreciate its inestimable advantages, not only to themselves, but to the entire country immediately surrounding and tributary to it.

There are persons, living right in this city today who do not appreciate the magnitude and importance of the preparations now going on for the harnessing of the multitude of little drops of water that flow through the Kettle river. The possibilities were, however, freely taken into consideration by the townsite founders when they acquired the many broad acres here nearly ten years ago, and have had the faith to hold on, through all the hard times that have been experienced since then. It must be pleasant for them to note now that their judgment of that early day is being endorsed heartily and freely every day and every week. That they are entitled to and have earned the fruits of their foresightedness, no fair minded man will deny. Fortunately for the young town, they are liberal in their ideas, and are willing to do the fair thing by any man who comes here and means business.

Cascade's water power has already attracted hundreds. In the future it will attract many thousands, and before the Record has become a yearling this will become patent to the few who even now are posing as doubting Thomases.

IS A CRYING NEED.

If there is one thing more than another that Cascade and the Boundary country needs more than another—in these times when needs are so numerous—it is the establishment here of offices of some recognized express company. At present the nearest office of this kind is at Bossburg, not a convenient place for business men living thirty to fifty miles away to do business in. The Record was recently notified by the Dominion Express Co.'s agent in Penticton, 150 or more miles from Cascade, that a small package for this paper from Victoria had reached that office. This but illustrates the point here made.

If the Dominion Express Co. could have the facts and figures of the large business to be handled in here, presented to them, the matter would surely receive favorable consideration. When a business man orders goods by express, he does it with the expectation of getting prompt delivery and is willing to pay therefor. But a loss of three or four days, as is often the case, from the nearest railway office is a serious affair to him.

The concerns now handling express matter are doing all in their power to facilitate business, and are certainly most accommodating in every way. But, as a rule, an order must needs be sent, and this means aggravating delay. The subject is well worth taking up by our business men and working out. If it is gone at in the right way and in the proper spirit the Record believes that good will certainly come of the effort.

The intelligent editors of many journals hereabouts are saying kind things about the Record. The editor, business manager, advertising solicitor, collector, pressman and corps of compositors down to the devil himself, one and all unite in expressing appreciation of the kindly reception accorded this youngest of Yale newspapers. Gentlemen, may your shadows never grow less.

There is one way that the publishers of the Record object to receiving subscriptions—and that is by freight from Bossburg. If any are sent that way they are not liable to reach this sanctum on this earth. Prospective subscribers will please take notice.

With surveyors in the field for the extension of the Columbia & Western from Midway to Penticton ; with the contract let for the Nelson & Bedlington, and with good chances for the construction of the Kettle River Valley road next year, it appears as though there would be no abatement of railway building in southern British Columbia.

The Record regrets that the great demand for the paper last week far exceeded the supply. We expected a cordial reception, but the unusually warm recognition of the paper was a gratifying surprise to the publishers. Hereafter there will be plenty of copies for all, but the surest way to get it is to have your name on the subscription list. If need be, a web-perfecting press will be installed to keep up with the circulation.

BY THE WAYSIDE.

Notes by the Scribe.

The Wayfarer is neither a prophet nor the son of a prophet, but he will willingly risk the prediction made while he is sound in mind and in possession of his faculties, that Cascade City within two years will be second to no city in southern Yale. He is not paid for making this prediction, and he does it of his own free will, basing his belief on careful notes and observations made here. The facts contained in the two leading articles in last week's Record constitute a conservative statement of the situation here. No mention was there made of the growth of the last three months, which is a surprise to even those familiar with the Gateway City. These articles comprise what Shakespear would have called a plain, unvarnished tale, and are worthy a careful perusal by any one who has not happened to read them.

It should be distinctly understood that the Wayfarer has nothing to do with this great family journal further than to give vent to his ideas in this column. He makes this remark here because of the numerous congratulations received on the appearance of the first issue last week, which should have been bestowed upon the editor and publishers. However, the Wayfarer will gladly pass them along to those to whom they belong.

The cry of "fire" a few nights ago quite justly startled all within hearing, especially when it is remembered that all water has to be hauled from the river in barrels. Fortunately, it was nothing worse than a defective flue, which was quickly extinguished by a pail of water, little or no damage being done. But this little incident served its lesson in setting many to thinking, and the result in one direction will doubtless be the taking out of more fire insurance

ence to the mana
nor to Dr. Foste contractors' physician, who attended him. Two nurses were provided and every possible care given the poor unfortunate man, till he finally went to the great beyond. The expense probably amounted to over $200. It was a noble thing on the part of those who took care of him, and one that will not soon be forgotten by those who really appreciate such acts. Truly, as the poet hath said, "One touch of nature makes the whole world kin."

It may not be generally known, but it is a fact, nevertheless, that the Wayfarer is a bit of a sport. Therefore he read with no little interest of the intensely exciting race that took place in Greenwood. He refers here to the race of chartered banks to get opened up first in the Mountain City. Everyone in the Boundary country was an interested spectator—at a distance—and none more so than the people of Cascade. In this connection, our people will do well to keep a weather eye open, for the chances are more than good that a similar scene will be enacted right here in the near future; and this race, if it is pulled off, will be even more interesting to us than was that in Greenwood. The first institution of this character that opens up for business in Cascade will, beyond a shadow of a doubt, do an excellent business, and be received with open arms.

Another thing that is as sure to come, as that the day follows the night, is the establishing of a customs collector here in Cascade, instead of making this a sub port of entry, as at present arranged. Traffic from the States must come through the valley of the Kettle river, via Cascade, and when the Kettle River Railway is built, or before, Cascade will beyond question be given the recognition it deserves along this line. Such is the opinion of the Wayfarer, as well as of those whose foresight is said to be as good as many another man's hindsight.

THE WAYFARER.

The Dominion Supply Co. is the name of a new concern that expects to start business in Cascade about November 25th. They have rented a large store building and now have a general stock of merchandise on the way here.

Mike Downey, who tried to hold up each of the houses with red lanterns one night last week for a contribution of $50, claiming to be an officer, had a hearing before Justices Rose and Rochussen and was committed to the Grand Forks jail for trial. The maximum pen-

CHRISTINA MATTERS.

The town of Christina, or Moodyville, is gradually growing and there will soon be quite a settlement here.

Redfield & Wilson, of Waterville, Wash., are now en route with their sawmill, and have written Mr. Moody that they expect to be ready for business by the 25th inst. This will relieve the lumber famine.

Stewart & Co., who will open a general store at once, have a large stock of general merchandise on the way, which is looked for any day.

Mr. Moody is now putting up a hotel and livery stable, which is expected to be completed in about two weeks. A Mr. Waterman, of Vancouver, has been engaged to run it.

The steam yacht, Myrtle B., now makes two regular daily trips to the Cove, besides several extra runs.

IN AND AROUND CASCADE.

Greenwood has decided to borrow $10,000 more to finish the street grading now in progress.

W. Forrest, J. P., of Gladstone, was in the city early in the week en route to Grand Forks.

The work done on the streets of Cascade during the last week has resulted in a great improvement in the general appearance of the town.

Horace W. Buck, mining engineer from Kaslo, who has been looking over some Boundary Creek properties, was in the city last Saturday.

Geo. B. McAuley stopped over in Cascade on Tuesday night on his way from Camp McKinney to Spokane He is interested in the dividend paying Cariboo gold mine, of that camp.

The Exchange and Safe Deposit Co. will open up in Grand Forks shortly. The concern has been doing business in East Kootenay for a couple of years. C. M. Keep is to have charge of the new branch

If there is a man in Cascade who is not anathematizing the difficulties of getting goods in from Bossburg, he is yet to be heard from. He surely must belong to a different order of beings than most of us.

S. W. Meek, formerly of Rossland, has arrived in the city and accepted a position with the Cascade Drug Co. This concern expects to move down on First Avenue in a short time to a new location.

The business men of Grand Forks have subscribed a fund of $500 to shorten the wagon road to Niagara, thus diverting the trade to the Forks. It will bring the distance down to less than six miles.

A new town has been started on the North Fork of Kettle River, at the foot of Pathfinder mountain. It is called Timvile, after Tim Townsend, who has put up a log building at that point. The place already has several buildings, and is beginning to put on airs.

A mile and a half north of the new town of Niagara still another townsite has been surveyed and called Virginia City. It is near some mineral claims, and there is also some heavy railway work there that will keep a large force in the neighborhood all winter. A two-story log hotel is already in course of erection.

Forty Loads at Once.

Monday was one of the busiest days thus far experienced in the Cascade custom house, and Collector Rose had his hands full every minute of the official day. Some forty four-horse teams were assembled in a phalanx, four or five deep, the driver of each waiting more or less patiently to get clearance papers for his particular load of merchandise. The quantity of merchandise coming in at this subport is increasing fast each month, and the government should add to the already overworked force without further delay.

New Express Line

Messrs. Williams & Elkins, of the Boundary Stage & Express Co., are deserving of great credit for their efforts to establish a reliable express service between Bossburg and Cascade. They are now making regular trips with good teams and in excellent time. It is yet a question whether there is business sufficient to warrant this service, but it is believed that if our business men will unite in giving their express business to this firm, it will be sufficient to ensure its continuance. It is a great accommodation to the people of Cascade and should receive hearty support.

FATHER OF CASCADE HERE.

Hel is Much Pleased at the Results of Four Months' Development

Aaron Chandler, the father of Cascade, returned on Wednesday night from his old home in Gardner, N. D., and will remain here for some time.

It was nearly ten years ago when Mr. Chandler first saw the present site of Cascade and was so pleased that he immediately proceeded to get title to the property. At first the progress was slow, for years in fact; but now his wisdom and judgment are being verified to the fullest extent, and the place is growing as fast as is desirable. It is four months since Mr. Chandler left here, and he informs the Record that he is surprised and pleased at the changes that have taken place since then. Mr. Chandler is president of the Cascade Development Co., owning the townsite, a corporation with a capital of $500,000. He has always been a pioneer in the far west, having been in Tacoma two years before the present populous city was started on Puget Sound, and also coming to Spokane in early days, where an addition, now worth an immense sum, bears his name.

Thanksgiving Proclamation

The governor general has issued the following proclamation:

"Whereas it has pleased Almighty God, in his great goodness, to vouchsafe this year unto our Dominion of Canada, a bountiful harvest and other blessings:

"We, therefore, considering that these blessings enjoyed by our people throughout the Dominion do call for a solemn and public announcement, have thought fit, by and with the advice of our Privy Council for Canada, to appoint, and we do appoint Thursday, the 24th day of November next, as a day of general thanksgiving to Almighty God for the bountiful harvest and other blessings with which Canada has been favored this year; and we do invite all our loving subjects throughout Canada to observe the said day as a day of General Thanksgiving."

Cascade's Public School.

Among the public institutions that all well regulated cities are blessed with, Cascade has a good public school, D. J Matheson being the instructor in charge. He has been here now for some eighteen months, and informs the Record that there are some twenty scholars at present, the number constantly increasing. Periodical examinations are made on the last Friday of each month. The school keeps open the year round, and has the usual vacations. Next Thursday being Thanksgiving day there will be no school. The Christmas holidays will begin on December 15th, and continue until the first Monday in January.

NEWS OF THE KOOTENAYS.

Rossland is taking measures to prevent the spread of contagious diseases.

Trail, since the starting up of the big smelter, has been picking up in a business way.

J. H. Gray, land commissioner of the new Kootenay Railway and Navigation Co., has completed the surveys for the Lardo-Duncan railway. It will have easy grades and is expected to be built next year.

It is given out that the Nelson Miner, which has been in the market for some time, has been purchased by Mr. Beeton, formerly of the Winnipeg Free Press.

The Bank of British Columbia will open a branch shortly in Rossland, which will make five of these chartered institutions to be located there.

Fred Mountain, chief of Provincial police in Nelson, whose position as previously announced is to be taken by W. H. Bullick-Webster, has been promoted. Mr. Mountain has not as yet received any instructions from headquarters as to his duties.

The C. P. R. will soon put on a new, light draft steel steamer, to be called the Minto, after Canada's new governor-general. It will take the place of the steamer Rossland and is an exact duplicate of the Moyie, recently launched at the Nelson shipyards.

A local paper, says the Nelson Miner, gravely announces the birth of a child in this city two weeks old. This extraordinary occurrence shows the phenominal fecundity of this neighborhood. The ozone in the atmosphere is believed to have something to do with it. But scientists aver that it is entirely due to the latitude. After a while, when this grand province gets a good start and shakes off the inertia that now restricts its powers, children will be born here big enough to vote.

If you want the news of this important section, and want it fresh, the trick is easy. Just place a $2 bill in an envelope, with your name and address, and send it to the Cascade Record, Cascade, B. C.
