ON MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP

The Rapid Development of the Principle in England.

BIRMINGHAM -A CONVINCING EXAMPLE

City After City Buying Up Gas and Electric Light Plants and Street Railways---Why Not Put Fat Dividends in Public Purse?

Socialism is no longer confined to the mouthings of long-haired men and short-haired women, as the following, clipped from the Nelson Tribune, goes to show:

The development of the principle of municipal ownership of public utilities grows apace in England. City after city, attracted by the profitable example of Birmingham, is buying up gas and electrtc light plants and street railways as fast as their leases to private corporations expire. The people are awake to the fact that the fat dividends earned by these private corporations represent just so much money that might have, under judicious management, gone partly into their individual purses and partly into the municipal purse.

Manchester, one of the richest and biggest manufacturing cities in the kingdom, quite recently determined that private ownership of public utilities shall no longer continue and that what of profit there may be in furnishing light, water and transportation to the people shall go into the public purse instead of insatiable private pockets. Wherefore the city authorities have decided to buy up all the present street car lines, build new lines and extentions of old ones, equip them electrically, and manage them for the general municipal good.

The Manchester project has been talked of and debated for many years; in fact ever since the authorities of "Joe" Chamberlain's town, Birmingham, demonstrated that municipal ownership was a profitable practicibility and not a socialistic dream. There is a great deal of hustle of the American sort in Manchester, and so when last year the matter of municipal ownership was again resurrected the members of the municipal council backed by the press and the people, took hold of the proposition and pushed it through rapidly.

They did not proceed without opposition, however, for the corporations owning the street railway franchises fought vigorously for the extension of their valuable franchises. They made all sorts of ofiers in the way of reductions of fares, better service and increased remuneration for franchises, but the council was obdurate. Finally the companies offered to pay into the city treasury twice the sum of money they had paid heretofore, but even that bait was not alluring and they had to relinquish their coveted franchise from which they had made large sums of money. As the lines under city ownership and management are to be operated electrically, a huge power house is to be built. The surplus current will be used for lighting the streets; and, in time, it is hoped the city will be enabled to provide current for house and shop illumination and for power purposes.

While municipal ownership is being adopted rapidly by all the cities and towns in England, there is also to be noted a drift toward measures of legislation that are in their essence pure socialism; measures that would make the average Canadian or American of substance rise up and emit loud cries of "Anarchy." Yet conservative old England accepts them without arousing the voice of demagogue to futile oratory. The leader in pronouncing this class of radical legislation is curiously enough, Joseph Chamberlain, the conservative secretary for the colonies in a cabinet that is ultra-Tory to the backbone.

It was Chamberlain, who in the hustings of '95 advocated a law under which employees injured in the performance of their work could hold their employers for damages. All the corporations and employers of labor in the kingdom fought the measure bitterly.

Chamberlain was denounced as a socialist and anarchist and a menace to that venerable old bulwark of greed, "vested rights." Nevertheless, the measure was enacted into law and has been found beneficial to all concerned—particularly the workman.

Not content with this measure and braving the taunts of "socialist!" and "anarchist!" Chamberlain ventured even further into the domain of sheer socialism. He engineered through the ministry and through parliament an act the object of which is to enable a working man to obtain public funds to aid him to purchase his modest little home. The law is known as the "Small dwelling Acquisition Act." It is not mandatory upon city and county governments but may be adopted by them if they see fit, and a surprising large number of them are seeing fit.

This law enables any municipal or county government to advance to any citizen within its jurisdiction applying therefor a sum of money sufficient to enable him to purchase outright and own the house in which he dwells. Of course the law provides sufficient checks and safe guards against fraud. It provides for the advance of four-fifths of the appraised market value of a dwelling, and restricts the advance to a maximum of $1500. Upon houses worth more than $2000 no advance can be made. The money thus advanced to the ambitious workingman or clerk to be repaid within thirty years, the city, of course, taking up a mortgage to protect itself. The rate of interest on the loan is carefully prescribed and is never to be more than one-half per cent above the rate at which the city itself borrows the money. The law also prohibits a man borrowing funds if he is already the owner of a house; it also prescribes that he shall occupy the house and not rent it. In essence, the act really establishes a government building association.

As an example of the progress of the government in England this is a singularly appropriate one. It may be followed up by the passage of an old age pension act.

CAMP McKINNEY'S LATEST SENSATION.

Thirty-six Claims Located Around the Dayton, a New Discovery Assaying High.

A dispatch from Greenwood to the Spokesman-Review, states that James Kerr, of the firm of McIntire, McDonnell & Co., for himself and five other local mining operators, including Pat Welch of Spokane, bonded the Dayton claim in the east end of Camp McKinney for $54,000, and made a substantial payment, one day last week. The second payment is to be made in 60 days, and the balance extends over a period of nine months. Work will be started Monday with a force of 10 men. Supplies are to be sent up from here to-morrow.

The Dayton is a recent discovery and has little development to speak of. It has a big ledge of oxidized quartz carrying free gold and is extremely rich. Assays go into the thousands.

On account of the fine showing 36 other claims have been located around the Dayton. It was the most sensational discovery in the history of the camp. Not sufficient work has been done to determine the width of the ledge. The owners are Hughie Cameron, Charles Hamilton, William Younkin, of Camp McKinney and Harry McQuaig of Greenwood.

Last Saturday morning there were two inches of snow in the streets of London, England.

IN THE BURNT BASIN MINES

Development Work on the Mystery and Avon Progressing.

GRAVES BUYS A BIG GROUP IN PHOENIX

Superintendent St. Clair Writes that the Avon Tunnel is in 75 Feet---Supt. Thompson Reports Mystery Tunnel in 126 Feet.

Superintendent Thompson, says the Rossland Miner, has writen to E. N. Ouimette to the effect that the tunnel on the Mystery in the Burnt Basin section, is in for a distance of 126½ feet. The character of the formation being passed through is improving, and it is thought the ledge is not far away.

Superintendent St. Clair, who is in charge of the work on the Avon in Burnt Basin, reports that the development work on that property is making good headway, as the tunnel was driven a distance of 24 feet last month, and is now in 75 feet. It is expected that the first ledge will be encountered this month. As there are nine ledges on the property, they will be crosscut in the next few months. Then the full value of the property will be known.

In Phoenix camp the citizens are enthused over the fact that the control of the Grey Eagle, Banner, Tiptop and Triangle has passed to Jay P. Graves of Spokane and eastern Canadian associates. These claims adjoin and surround the Old Ironsides and Knob Hill mines and exploration work on these two has proved that the ledges pass through this new ground. Mr. Graves has completed the formation of a company in Montreal to acquire the group, which will also be developed on a large scale, adding quite a payroll to Phoenix. The new 40-drill compressor ordered by him is to be used jointly by all the properties in Greenwood camp under his control.

Recipe for Making Boers.

Max O'Rell's recipe for "making a Boer" is worth recalling just now, though one for making dead Boers would command greater attention at the British war office. Here's the recipe: Take all that is dirtiest, bravest, most old fashioned and most obstinate in a Breton; all that is most suspicious, sly and mean in a Norman; all that is shrewdest, most hospitable, most Puritan and most bigoted in a Scot—mix well, stir and serve, and you will have a Boer, or, if you will, a boor.

THE WORLD ITS AUDIENCE

The Local paper Has a Few Virtues Along Its Many Faults.

IT IS THE GREAT WIDE-OPEN WINDOW

Through Which the World Looks Into Your Town and Neighborhood---Don't Be a Clam---Give It a Friendly Welcome.

The time was when the country newspaper was as highly appreciated and of as much importance on its heath as the city journal in its sphere. Conditions have changed. Rapid transit, the wonderful development of "the art preservative" in populous centers by new inventions and greater ambitions, the improved facilities for gathering the news and distributing their publications has enabled the city journalists to so encroach upon and circumscribe the field of the country publisher his support is confined almost wholly to the community and immediate surroundings in which he labors. His income is thus limited, but his influence for local gain is not lessened. The publisher labors on patiently, and while he writes and prints, though its diction and classical elegance may not sparkle with literary worth his paper has influence at home and abroad. It goes out to all the world and is read everywhere either in its original form, or in its dissected parts as they appear in other publications. People many thousands of miles away learn of the town and commuity where it is printed to the latter's great benefit and upbuilding.

Yet, despite these important facts, few people, as a rule, give their local paper the credit it deserves.

Below we reprint a portion of an article which appeared in The Record Nov. 18th last. It was copied from these columns by the Northwest Magazine, published in St. Paul, Minnesota. It is one instance of hundreds occurring every month. Outside of the little grist of local news the paper may carry, the impression it conveys to the great reading public, is wherein lies its true worth.

It is the open window through which the world looks in upon the community and its people. Following is the clipping from this paper which was printed in the Northwest Magazine, a high-class publication, with an ocean-to-ocean circulation:

The Cascade (B. C.) Record says: "The development and growth of the mining interests in this Province the past year or two has been of a most remarkable and surprising character. Places that were almost solely occupied by the animals and fowls peculiar to the locality then, have given place to man and his incessant enterprise and activity. Here and there and everywhere ledges carrying vast quantities of the precious metals have been laid bare and pierced at various depths, exposing fabulous mineral wealth, which is being extracted with all the push and determination that capital and labor can command. All over this section of country thriving and populous towns and cities are raising their spires and domes skyward. Churches, school sand great business marts are being established, and thousands of people are hurrying across the ocean, the continent, coming from the States, and from other Provinces to this to participate in our labors and the rich result thereof. As time goes on, new discoveries are made and new capital is at hand waiting for profitable employment. New railways, wagon-roads, and trails are being constructed, and viewing the phenomenal progress of the past year, what may we not expect for the year to come, since the impetus of past successes and growth has added to our courage and strength?

A RICH FIND OF ORE.

The First Thought Claim Yields Ore Assaying from $60 to $400.

The Rossland Miner of Feb. 2, has the following relative to the First Thought claim, which has heretofore been referred to in these columns, the same being located near Pierre Lake seven or eight miles in a direct line from Cascade:

About a year since Messrs. P. Burns and Blake Wilson took hold of a claim on the Colville Indian Reservation, which is located 16 miles west of Bossburg and between that place and Cascade City. There was a large surface showing on the property and since that time considerable work has been done. Among this was a shaft, which has been sunk to a depth of 100 feet. At this deph a large ore shoot has been met and assays show that the ore runs from $60 to $400 to the ton. The ore is identical with that found in Republic camp and particularly in the Republic mine. It can be reduced by the cyaniding process. The lucky owners of this property are to be congratulated, as it seems certain that they have in this property one that should make a valuable mine.

W. H. Jeffery has been appointed mining engineer of the Canadian Gold Fields syndicate.

The smelting rates at the Northport smelter have been cut down from $8 to $4.50 per ton.

A $2,000 gold brick was the result of the last clean-up of the Waterloo mine, in Camp McKinney.

Mr. Geo. Sumner of Montreal has been elected president of the Canadian Gold Fields syndicate, and J. C. Drewry re-elected managing director.

The War Eagle and Center Star, in Rossland camp, have closed down. These mines, it appears, got into a bad mix-up with imperfect and inadequate machinery. Only a few men will be kept on construction and development work until the machinery difficulty is overcome.

FRUIT-GROWING IN THE BOUNDARY.

Stanley Muir of Grand Forks and Matthew Burrell of Grimsby, Ont., have just purchased 150 acres of land from Mr. John Manly of the former town. The land formed part of Mr. Manly's ranch, and is four miles from Grand Forks. The object of the purchasers is to establish a nursery, where fruit trees, ornamental shrubs, and flowers will be grown on an extensive scale, and sold to the residents of this part of British Columbia. They will go extensively into fruit growing, and general gardening.

The Grimsby district, from which Mr. Burrell comes, is noted for its magnificent peaches and other fruits, and it is probable that that gentleman is an experienced fruit grower, and also that he will be followed to the west by other fruit growers from the same district.

Parts of several of the other ranches in the neighborhood of Grand Forks have been subdivided into ten-acre lots, and these lots have found a ready sale, as it is considered that there will be an unlimited market for fruit, vegetables, etc., in this part of British Columbia. There will also be a permanent and immense market in Manitoba, Assiniboia and Alberta, for all the fruit that can be grown in British Columbia, and we have no doubt that all the good land in the southern part of this province will some day be devoted to fruit-growing. As the wheat growers and the cattle raisers of the prairies increase in prosperity and wealth, they will be able to pay for more and more fruit, and will gladly buy more. No peaches, pears, grapes, apricots, prunes or other fruits requiring a moderately mild climate can ever be grown on the prairies of the Northwest, and the land in the valleys of southern British Columbia will in time be very valuable for fruit-growing purposes.

We are glad to see that eastern fruit-growers have commenced to come to the Boundary country for the purpose of settling here. These people cannot come to this district without seeing that there are many tracts of land in the vicinity of our own town suitable for fruit-growing purposes, and it is probable that many of them will settle here.

NOTE AND COMMENT.

The Silvertonian, published at Silverton, B. C., has discarded its patent insid, and is now all home-print.

"It took cycles of time for God to evolve a man from a monkey, but a man can make a monkey of himself in a minute."

It is statistically stated that in this century the Imperial government has expended $300,000,000 on the defenses of her colonies.

That substantial and valuable journal, the Greenwood Miner, has just entered upon the second year of its usefulness. It is a publication of merit, and enjoys liberal and well-deserved patronage.

It is proper, for the purpose of opening up new sections of the country, that the government should encourage railroad enterprises. But it should at the same time adopt some means to prevent the owners of these roads from scinching the business of such new territory by exorbitant freight rates.

The map printed in the Spokesman-Review of last Sunday to show its circulation field in British Columbia, gives Cascade as the only town in the Boundary west of the Columbia. The map is an old one, it is true, but that only emphasizes the fact that Cascade is not a town of mushroom growth, but has age to back its many other advantages.

It is a mistake to bring people into any town by exaggeration or outright misrepresentation. It may help a few who run skin games, but is bad for the town that does it, in the long run. The disappointed go away with bad impressions, of course, and make damaging impressions after they get away, too. Better tell no more than the truth, and that modestly.

Major R. G. Edwards-Leckie, Superintendent of the Republic mine, was appointed recruiting officer for the Strathcona Horse at Nelson and Rossland. From the various recruiting points in British Columbia the following number will be taken : Fort Steele, 40; Vernon, 15; Revelstoke, 10; Kamloops, Victoria and Vancouver, 15 each; Rossland and Nelson, 20 each; making a total of 160 men.

While you are hanging on by sheer doggedness and waiting for your town and business to improve, it is the gravest of mistakes to withdraw your support from the local newspaper in order to economize. That paper is the window through which the passing throng sizes up conditions. If the panes be samll and dirty, and an old hat has taken the place of glass in the sash here and there, no one will be tempted to look in. Make your local paper robust and healthy by giving it a liberal support.

IN AND AROUND CASCADE.

The Greenwood Fire department is arranging to give a ball on the eve of St. Valentine's day.

It is claimed that Grand Forks' new water-works pump has a capacity of 750,000 gallons daily.

The Miners' Union of Phoenix will celebrate the opening of its new hall on Thursday, Feb. 22, with a grand ball.

Mrs. Ben. Lavalley and family, who have been residing in Rossland during the winter months, returned to Cascade this week. Mr. Lavalley will come later, and they will go to their summer residence on the lake. Mr. Lavalley is one of the owners of the steamer, Myrtle B., which plies on Christina lake in the summer months, during which season the lake attracts many pleasure seekers and rusticators from all parts.

Edward Woolrich, the popular local representative of the Hamilton Powder company, surprised his many friends last week. He went to Cascade, ostensibly to see a car of powder, but returned on Saturday evening with a bride. Mrs. Woolrich was formerly Miss Mary Frizzell of Owen Sound. The happy couple were married on Wednesday at Grand Forks by the Rev. Mr. Robertson, Mr. and Mrs. White of Grand Forks supporting the bride and groom. Mr. and Mrs. Woolrich will make there home in Greenwood.—Daily Times.

Death of R. Dalby Morkill, Sr.

The news was received last week by R. Dalby Morkill, jr., at Rossland, of the death of his father, in Sherbrooke, Que., at the advanced age of 81 years. During the period of the writer's five years' apprenticeship to the printing business, from 1863 to 1868, in the office of the Sherbrooke Gazette, he well knew R. Dalby Morkill, sr., whose death is above mentioned. At that time the deceased was the honored mayor of Sherbrooke, then a city of about 4,000 inhabitants. He was an active, public-spirited citizen and a most successful merchant, highly esteemed for his many manly virtues, and a revered leader in all that made for the advancement and uplift of his community in the moral, commercial and political walks of life. Mr. Morkill was a pioneer of Sherbrooke, and the early history, as well as that later on of that city will reveal the beneficial influence he exerted in starting it on the road to its future greatness. The Rocord tenders R. Dalby Morkill, jr., its sincere condolence, the editor having at one time enjoyed his companionship as a schoolmate.

TRUE CAUSE OF THE WAR

Tolstoi Blames Neither Chamberlain Nor Kruger.

UNEQUAL DISTRIBUTION OF PROPERTY

An Interesting Letter by the Russian Philosopher---Mondern Conditions are Responsible

Following is an extract from a private letter by Count Tolstoi on the war in SouthAfrica:—

"I cannot agree with those who attribute the cause of the present war to the behavior of this or that political leader. The real causes are perfectly evident in regard to the Transvaal war, as well as to all the wars which have lately taken place. These causes are threefold : Firstly, the unequal distribution of property—that is, the robbing of one part of humanity by the other; secondly, the existence of the military class, that is, men of education and foreappointed to murder; and thirdly, the fallacious, and for the most part, fraudulent religious teaching in which our young generations are forcibly educated. Therefore, I think it is not only useless but harmful to attribute the causes of wars to Chamberlains, Wilhelms and such like, thus hiding from one's self the true causes, which lie much nearer and in which we are ourselves participating. Chamberlains and Wilhelms we can only rage against and abuse. But our rage and our abuse will only spoil our own blood, without changing the course of events ; for Chamberlains and Wilhelms are but the blind tools of forces lying far behind them. They act as they are obliged to and they cannot act otherwise. All history is a series of actions on the part of politicians exactly similar to those that preceded the Transvaal war.

So long as we will profit by privileged wealth, whilst the masses of the people are crushed with labor, there will always be wars for markets, gold mines, etc., which we require in order to maintain our privileged wealth. So much the more will wars be inevitable whilst we participate in the military organization, allowing it to exist and refraining from combating it with all our power. We ourselves either serve in the army or recoganize it as being not only indispensable but praiseworthy; and then when war breaks out we condemn some Chamberlain or other. But, above all, war will exist not only as long as we profess, but tolerate without anger or indignation, that distortion of Christianity which is called the 'Christian church,' according to which such things are admissable as a Christ-loving army, the consecration of guns and the recognition of a Christian and righteous war. We teach our children this religion, we profess it ourselves, and then we say—some that Chamberlain others that Kruger, are to blame for the murder of men by each other.

These are the reasons why I cannot agree with you and cannot rebuke the blind tools of ignorance and evil, but see the cause of war in such a region in wich I can myself contribute either to the diminution or augmentation of the evil. To contribute to the fraternal equalization of property; to take advantage of the least possible extent of the privileges which have fallen to my lot; to refrain in any way participating in military activity; to destroy the spell which makes men, whilst becoming hired murderers, imagine that they are acting well by serving in the army; and, above all, to profess the rational Christian teaching and to endeavor with all one's might to destroy that cruel fraud of false Christianity in which young generations are forcibly educated—in this threefold work, as it seems to me, consists the duty of every man who wishes to serve that which is right and who is justly revolted by the present dreadful war."

Another Daily In Grand Forks.

Vol. 1, No. 1, of the Grand Forks Daily Miner is before us. We admire it. It is well arranged. Its news columns overflow with up-to-date telegraphic and local information. Its birth occured on Tuesday last, Feb. 6th. The first appearance of a daily paper, of the character of the one mentioned, is an important event in any small town or city. Properly conducted no greater force for the general good and growth of its community could be brought to bear. A wise business locality need not be told this. It will prove its intelligence by liberal support. The Record extends the hand of welcome to the Grand Forks Daily Miner, and hopes to see it prosper.

E. H. Robinson came down from the lake Friday, and while putting his horse up in a stable back of the Gain & Roy house, made a discovery. He found the place occupied by two men, much to his and their surprise. When he had cared for his horse, one of the men said to him: "Are you all right?" He said, "I guess I am," whereupon they offered him some liquor, doing so the second time. Then they offered to fill a flask for him. Next came cigars, of which they had an abundance, and even offered to accommodate Mr. Robinson with a whole box.

Taking all into consideration he concluded there was a screw loose somewhere. He met Mr. G. Upton of the English store at the Hotel Cascade, and related to him the discovery he had made. Mr. Upton suspected possibly that the men had gained entrance to the Montana hotel, which has been closed for some time, and where quite a supply of liquors and cigars had been stored under legal restraint. Upon examination he found his suspicions well founded, and that much of the property was missing, and the back door of the premises open. Justice Rochussen was informed, and he, with Upton as a deputy, proceeded to the barn and arrested the two men, who were in a more or less stupified condition with liquor. They were taken into custody and marched to the city jail, Richard Darrow being appointed by the justice to hold and care for them till the law should take its course. They gave the names of Geo. Barrett and Patrick O'Hearn.

About $100 worth of liquors and cigars were recovered.

CASCADE CITY'S ATTRACTIONS!

MAGNIFICENT WATER POWER!

Now under development. Look at the immense dam, 400 feet long and 50 feet high, now under construction. The flume and tunnel to convey the water will be 16 feet wide, 13 feet deep and 1000 feet long. The water will be conveyed from the mouth of the tunnel to the water-wheels, through two iron pipes, each 8½ feet in diameter and 2000 feet long, with a perpendicular fall of 156 feet.

Excavation for a power-house is now in progress near the wagon road bridge, and the excavation alone will cost $10,000. Development of this power is now under construction and will be prosecuted as rapidly as possible. A 10,000 horse power will be obtained, which will be used in developing electrical power to be transmitted to all the mines in the Boundary and Christina Lake Districts.

Estimated cost of plant, complete, is $500,000.

Beautiful Christina Lake and Surroundings!

The fisherman's delight and the hunter's paradise. This lake is 18 miles long and from one to three miles in width.

The Mineral Wealth

About Cascade City, while practically undeveloped, is most promising, and marvelous wealth awaits the hand of man to reveal the country's hidden resources.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Mr. D. McLeod came over from Trail yesterday.

Work on the new depot and freight building is going forward rapidly.

The Greenwood Miner makes the Record say that 100 men will be emplyed on the water power works. We meant to and did say, on the various payrolls of our community.

Two Greenwood young men, one a nephew of C. Æ. Shaw, and Alfred Swinburne, offered their services, were accepted, and will depart soon for the Transvaal.

The war situation, so far as is known outside of the war office is little changed. It is said General Buller is reported to be still trying to force his way from the Tugela river to Ladysmith. At present Lords Roberts and Kitchner are out of sight.

The Mutual Aid Society Social.

Another one of those enjoyable Mutual Aid Society entertainments took place Thursday evening, in the large room adjoining the Townsite Co's office, the pleasures of which were participated in by many citizens. The following programme was rendered: Song, Mr. G. K. Stocker; instrumental music, Miss Darrow and Mr. McCoy; recitation, "How he saved St. Michael's," Mr. Ritchie; song, Rev. Joseph McCoy; reading, depicting New England character, Mr. G. K. Stocker; instrumental music, Miss Darrow; song, Rev. Jos. McCoy; reading, "Paddy the Piper, Mr. John Simpson; Song, Mr. G. K. Stocker; instrumental music, Mrs. Rochussen and Mr. McCoy. After the regular programme, came games, such as "Earth, Air, Water, Fire," "Spin the Plate," etc. Refreshments were then served, and the remainder of the time passed in social conversation and music, the latter being furnished by Mrs. B. Wilcox. Messrs. Reeves, Walling and others.

The next social will be held on Thursday, Feb. 22d, when it is expected that a number of charades will be presented, as well as a good programme of vocal and instrumental music, recitations, etc.

IN AND AROUND CASCADE.

Rev. Jos. McCoy will exchange pulpits to-morrow with Rev. J. R. Robertson of Grand Forks.

Dr. Joseph Schaich, of the Cascade Drug Co., paid Nelson a visit Saturday, and returned here Tuesday.

The Rossland Hockey club feels justly proud of its defeat of the Boundary club at Greenwood the other day. It was a great feat.

Mrs. C. W. Greer and family left on Wednesday afternoon for Phoenix, where her husband is engaged in business, and will reside there permanently.

Greenwood Fire department's new "hurry-up" wagon went through here on a flat car last Sunday. It's a dandy—good as any to be found in first-class cities.

The cold winds of Monday and Tuesday, and the sharp frost of the nights, has given us quite a taste of winter. Tuesday night the thermometer was down to eight above zero.

Postmaster Angus Cameron has been gazetted as justice of the peace of Gladstone, and Mr. Paul Rochussen for Cascade. These officials are also empowered to hold small debts courts, within a radius of ten miles of their official locations.

Church Service

Divine service will be conducted by Rev. Joseph McCoy, M. A. tomorrow (Sunday) at 11 a.m, and 7:30 p.m., Standard Time, in the new church. Sabbath school at 2:30 p.m. in the same place. All are cordially invited to attend.

The Quinlivan-Sullivan Nuptials.

Last Tuesday morning, Feb. 6, 1900, Mr. M. J. Quinlivan of Cascade, B. C., was united in marriage to Miss Hanna Sullivan, of Priceville, Ont., the ceremony being performed at Greenwood, B. C., by the Rev. Father Palmer. Mr. Phillip Reidy and Miss Burg, supported the bride and groom.

The bride arrived here from her Ontario home last Tuesday. Mr. Quinlivan holds the position of foreman for his brother, S. F. Quinlivan on the water power works here. The happy couple will make their home for the present at the Cosmopolitan hotel. The Record cordially proffers the hand of congratulation, and wishes for Mr. and Mrs. Quinlivan a long life of happiness.

Geo. McKugo Starts for South Africa

Yesterday afternoon's train took from our midst Cascade's first volunteer for the Transvaal war, Mr. George McKugo. The period between his acceptance by the examining board and his departure gave but little time to do him honor by public recognition. However, Mr. Stanley Mayall took the matter in hand and by personal effort secured from our citizens a nice purse of money In the evening Mr. McKugo was tendered a public reception at the Hotel Cascade. Toasts and responses befitting the occasion were in order, Mr. Angus Cameron presiding, and those present who had not before known Mr. McKugo, were introduced to him. Mr. Mayall, in presenting the purse, made a neat and very appropriate speech, which was highly pleasing to all who heard it. Mr. McKugo, in accepting the purse, thanked the donors, and said he would earnestly strive to perform his full duty, and do credit to Cascade.

Mr. McKugo left Nelson this morning on his way to Ottawa, where he will probably remain two or three weeks or until a transport is provided for the Strathcona Horse. He has been in South Africa before, having been in the employ at one time of the Treasury mine in Johannesburg, and at another time on the Beira railway in Portuguese East Africa. He is a native of Warwick, England, 27 years of age, and a blacksmith by trade. He had resided in this province three years, one of which was passed in and near Cascade. The Record, in behalf of itself and its readers, bids Mr. McKugo Godspeed and a safe return when the horrors of war shall have ceased.
