Hospitality Shown Brings Big Boost

Cranbrook Courier.

The annual meeting of the Creston board of trade was held Tuesday evening in Speers' hall, when about forty were present, including a number from Cranbrook and a representative from Nelson in the person of Mr. Fred Starkey. Those from Cranbrook were G. J. Spreull, president of the Cranbrook Board of Trade; J. P. Fink, representing the Cranbrook District Auto Association; F. M. MacPherson and R. E. Beattie. Following the regular business and election of officers a banquet was tendered the visitors. The arrangements were in charge of the Creston Women's Institute, who surpassed all previous attempts.

There was a warmth in the greeting extended Cranbrook visitors to Creston which will endure for some considerable time. It is pretty generally recognized that Creston is a city with a future and will in due course become one of the big financial and industrial centres of the Kootenay country. At present it has all the earmarks of experiencing a boom. Financially the ranchers are better off this year than ever. Good crops and favorable market conditions are putting every fruit raiser in the Creston Valley on his feet. And by the way, Creston fruit should be asked for in preference to any other fruit. As builders of this section we are in duty bound to eat more of the luscious Creston fruit. The Courier recently received a box of apples through the Creston board of trade, sent out by its wide-awake secretary, C. F. Hayes, of the Creston Review. The Creston fruit is the best flavored, best keeping and best colored fruit that comes into the Cranbrook market.

The surprise of the banquet was F. M. MacPherson. His subject was "Transportation". Frank MacPherson is what might be termed a long-distance orator, that is, he conserves all his good things for far-away delivery. A note from Creston to the Courier yesterday said that Mac's subject was very ably handled. His address was a masterly one and showed a knowledge of the intricacies of the whole problem of transportation. J. P. Fink, another live wire in publicity work, spoke on behalf of the Automobile association, expounding the results thus far obtained from tourist trade and dealing with the big publicity campaign now under way by Fernie, Windermere and Cranbrook. He urged the Creston people to take advantage of this scheme and unite with the towns along the Crow. President Spreull dwelt along the lines of closer co-operation with the residents of the Creston valley. He felt quite at home in the valley where the big red apples grow. He complimented the citizens on their progressive methods, their hospitality and their Women's Institute for serving the best meal he ever ate in his whole career. Mr. Spreull extended an invitation to the Creston board of trade to come to Cranbrook, where they would be given the time of their lives. He said during the next spring he would eagerly look for a big delegation of live wires to swarm into Cranbrook. R. E. Beattie, the 24-hour booster for East Kootenay, who is no stranger to Creston, was like Mr. Spreull, very much at home, having visited Creston time and again. He painted a beautiful picture of Creston in the next few years. The soldier settlement at Camp Lister, which was doing wonders in land clearing and building operations, means much to the making of Creston a hive of industrial activity. He advocated a development of the community spirit with Cranbrook. Creston, with its sixty car owners, [illegible] boars and he hoped to see them swoop down on this city in the very near future.

In the Creston Valley and immediate vicinity there are about 2500 residents and the district is fast settling up. Should the reclamation of the Kootenay Flats at that point prove feasible, and there is every reason to believe it will, Creston will lead all other cities in East or West Kootenay. It has the climate, it has the soil, it has the brawn and sinew and above everything else it has the boosters to show to the outside world the products of the famed valley. There are no dead ones in the Creston valley, outside of the cemetery.

Moving shacks is the order of the day here since the heavy fall of snow. About two a day are being moved to their permanent locations.

C. B. Twiggs, B.S.A., gave an interesting lecture here on Wednesday evening, with about fifty in attendance. Next Wednesday evening Mr. Twiggs subject will be Potatoes, the meeting being scheduled for the schoolhouse.

Harry Brown has bought a team of horses, which he will use in the clearing of his land.

Col. Davies, D.S.O., gave an interesting lecture on the land settlement work in the cookhouse on Sunday morning. Practically all the settlers were present.

The local entertainment committee staged an enjoyable dance in the recreation hall on Friday night last, with the Creston orchestra in attendance. A good number turned out from Canyon Erickson and town. Supper was served in the dining hall.

Another soldier farmer arrived on Tuesday, when the stork left a son with Mr. and Mrs. Beard.

Erickson

Mrs. H. B. Downs returned the latter part of the week from Cranbrook, where she had been visiting friends for a few days.

Miss Telford left last week on a short visit with friends at coast points.

J. B. Palmer of Treherne, Man., is a visitor here at present, with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Palmer.

Erickson town property is changing hands these days, a notable sale being made last week when W. W. Hall disposed of the hotel property, which includes an acre of ground, to Mike McCarthy of Creston. Mr. Hall is building a house on the five-acre ranch he has here.

Alex Duperry, who has been on an extended holiday trip to coast cities, returned home last week.

Erickson has a whist club this winter, embracing half a dozen families, at whose homes weekly sessions at cards are held. Last week's host was W. G. Littlejohn at which five tables of players participated. At the end of the season the experts of this club and the best of the boundary corner club may meet in a Valley championship contest.

Favor Municipal Government Here

Creston Board of Trade inaugurated its 1920 sessions with a sort of informal meeting on Monday night, called for the express purpose of deciding whether the board would hook up with Cranbrook, Fernie, Windermere and Golden in the expense of issuing and preparing a pamphlet for international circulation in an effort to attract tourists to see the Canadian Rockies and Banff by way of Creston and the other towns in the case of traffic originating south or west, or by reverse process with traffic originating north and east.

There was a fine attendance, President Constable, who was in charge, having an audience of seventeen members in addition to himself. This item of business was fully threshed out. All were agreed that the cost of the project ($150 for four pages in a booklet of 10,000 circulation) was a mighty fine investment, provided the roads east of here, particularly, were put in reasonably good shape for auto traffic. On the matter of highways it was pointed out that so far as grades are concerned the road east is in good shape, the only work being required now was the right finish-up to the new work, as well as some needed repairs on the older stretches. In this connection it has been learned that assurance has been given by the works department that undoubtedly the road between Creston and Cranbrook would receive the needed attention this year, while the road at least as far as Sirdar will also be similarly taken care of. The matter being put to the meeting the vote was unanimous to the Board participating, and Messrs. Mallandaine and Hayes were named delegates to attend a meeting at Fernie next week when the finishing touches will be put on the scheme. In connection with the cost of Creston's share of the pamphlet the Auto Club will be asked to defray part of the cost, if possible.

The co-operative library proposition, as presented by Miss Stewart, the provincial libraries organizer, was introduced by J. W. Hamilton, who stated in some detail the modus operandi of launching the project, along with the initial cost for a library of 400 books, which can be changed as often as desired from the central library for Kootenay, which will be located at Nelson. Everyone heartily approved of the library, and Messrs. Hamilton and Crompton were named a committee from the board to work with other committees which the Women's Institute, United Farmers and school trustees will be asked to name.

Various matters were advocated as being worthy of the board's attention this year, the foremost of which—judging by the extended expression of opinion—is the very great need of erecting the Valley into a rural municipality. All were agreed that it was high time the Valley looked after its own management, some of the canny ones, however, not wishing to comit themselves too solidly to the undertaking until the cost of operating such a municipaliey were ascertained. A motion that the board going on record as favoring such organization drew forth an amendment suggesting that haste be made slowly, both of which were withdrawn in favor of the following, which went through without a dissenting voice;

"Whereas this Board is of the opinion that many of the residents of this district consider that the time has arrived when it may be in the best interests of this district to incorporate as a rural municipality. Resolved, that a committee of this board to meet representative committees of other associations in the district to ascertain whether it is advisable or otherwise, in the best interests of this district to so incorporate."

The only new resolution that will be submitted at the Associated Boards of Trade convention at Trail next week will be one along the line of that passed at the Nelson business men's banquet last fall dealing with Reclamation; asking that the lands be turned over to the Dominion government for drainage under the terms of the Soldier Settlement Act. In connection with this convention C. B. Garland was chosen delegate in place of S. A. Speers, who will be unable to get away.

The committee submitted a statement of expense in connection with tht annual banquet, and the members of the board will be asked to pay the cost pro rata. The banquet committee was tendered the board's thaeks for the splendid way they handled the function.

The musical concert that everybody has been waiting for is announced for Tuesday night next at the Peekin theatre—the second of the series of entertainments under the direction of the Creston Concert Orchestra. There is a complete change of programme as compared with the concert put on during Christmas week, although four of the artists who appeared on that occasion will again favor with their services. The talent appearing on the 3rd is as follows: Mrs. Fred Lister, violin; Mrs. C. B. Garland, piano; Capt. Crompton, tenor; R. B. Staples, baritone; Mr. Walter Hall, guitar, and J. K. Chorlton, 'cello. The utmost care has been exercised in choosing the different numbers and those in charge assure that an evening of music that will amply satisfy the various tastes in that regard will be provided. All seats are reserved at 75 cents, with the plan at the postoffice to-morrow. A people's concert at popular prices. You'll be sorry if you miss it.

Unknown Quantity

Dan, just out of college, has $2,000,000 his father had crushsd out of poor East Side bakers by cornering flour. The old man died and Dan resolved to return the money to those who had suffered. His friends showed him by figures that restitution was impossible but Dan went ahead. How he succeeded is told in the "Unknown Quantity," the Corinne Griffith picture that will be seen at the Peekin on Saturday night. The picture is adapted from the famous O. Henry story of the same name and shows that where figures fail, that elusive and mysterious [illegible] alone can solve the great problems of life. Just what X really is none will doubt after seeing Miss Griffith, whose hate was changed to affection under its influence.

As Mary Boyne, the ruined baker's daughter, she has a role of tremendous appeal and is supported by a strong cast, including Huntley Gordon, H. Davenport, Jack Ridgeway, Fred Buckley and Jack McLean.

The Co-Operative Library Project

Briefly stated the Co-Operative Library organization, as outlined by J. W. Hamilton at Monday night's Board of Trade meeting, is as follows:

1.—Getting signatures to the Declaration required under the Library Act. The law requires only ten, but it is best to get as many as possible of those who will become members.

2.—Sending the signed Declaration to the Library Commission in Victoria. They will have it registered by the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies, free of cost, and he will issue a certificate of incorporation.

Within thirty days of the issue of this certificate, call a public meeting of the Association and elect a library board which will consist of five members, and will serve for one year.

This Library Board will then:—Decide on the financial policy, what funds will be available, how raised, and what proportion of such funds will be used for maintenance and what for book service. They will also decide as to whether a part of the funds will be raised by assessment. They will make rules and regulations for the local library, including suitable arrangements for housing and administering the books.

The Board can then make arrangements to join in with the Kootenay Co-operative Library system, with its centre at Nelson.

To do this, the Board makes a legal contract with the co-operative system agreeing to pay a certain sum of money in return for which certain definite library service will be supplied.

For example: If Creston agreed to pay $200 for one year, the cooperative system would give service somewhat as follows:—

1.—Establish in Creston a Branch Library containing about 400 volumes.

2.—These volumes to be selected by a professional librarian who would first come to Creston and get in touch with the interests of the people so that the books might be of the greatest interest and service.

3.—Local Board to have the right to exchange this collection of 400 books, in whole or in part, every two, or three of four months, so that the readers of Creston would be assured a constant supply of fresh books.

4.—In addition, if any Creston reader wished a special book, or books on any special subject the reader could put in at any time a request for such special book, and the local library would collect all such requests every week or fortnight, and forward them to the centre of the Co-operative scheme and they would there fill these requests and have the books sent through at once, if such were available. (The Cooperative centre would probably start with a stock of from 6000 to 7000 volumes). Postage on these special requests paid by the local library.

5.—If volume or volumes requested not available in the cooperative centre the requests would be forwarded to the Provincial Library in Victoria. This library has a general collection of from 20,000 to 30,000 volumes of well selected books on all subjects, toward the maintenance of which the people of B. C. have for some years been paying taxes. It is now the intention of the Commission to give these tax-payers a direct return on their investment, in the way above mentioned, and in other ways through the cooperative system.

6.—As a part of the cooperative system, special arrangements are being made to make available the best books possible for the help of teachers in their educative work, and for the use of children both for their own general reading and as a help with lessons.

Alice Siding

Alice Siding last week parted company with one of its best-known families in the departure of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Pease and family for their new home on Lulu Island, near Vancouver. Mr. and Mrs. Pease arrived here about twelve years ago, locating on a logged-off twenty-acre tract which they developed into one of the best proper[illegible] ly sold to L. McMurtrie at a price that fairly well reimbursed them for the pioneer and later days efforts spent on it. Mr. and Mrs. Pease proved themselves a type of all-round citizens that no goodly community can have too many of, and this part of the Valley very sincerely regrets their departure. The Review joins with a host of friends in wishing them well in their new home.

These two damsels, nothing loath, sprang to their feet and passed in review, though not with the majestic grace of their companion. Bulbul stifled a little giggle and turned away her pretty, soft-featured face. Rosa, who had quite recovered from her wave of emotion, sprang from the divan.

"I shall show mine, too," she cried eagerly, and began to march up and down, so trying to imitate Roxana that the others, even to the fair Caucasian, burst into peals of laughter.

Rosa did not seem to mind. "Is it not pretty, Ruggles Effendi?"

"It certainly is," Ruggles answered heartily, "just like the young lady that's wearing it." He looked at Miss Elliot. "My, but won't they make the Avenue du Bois sit up!"

"Too much so, I'm afraid," she answered, with a rather troubled face.

"Must we veil our faces in Paris?" Roxana asked.

"Not unless you attract too much attention," said Miss Elliot.

"That's it," said Ruggles. "If people stare, you must act like you did not notice them."

Roxana looked rather pensive. Miss Elliot ordered tea, and the awe inspired by Ruggles being by this time entirely overcome, all were soon chatting most naturally. The young man found it difficult to believe that he was being entertained in a Turkish harem. At the end of half an hour he rose to take his leave, shaking hands with each in turn. Roxana's little finger-tips felt cold as they rested for a moment in his palm. This ceremony was a novel experience to her and awakened odd emotions. At the door Ruggles turned to Miss Elliot.

"Would you mind walking as far as the house with me?" he asked. "There are one or two things I'd like to talk to you about."

She hesitated for an instant, then agreed. Telling the girls to proceed with their sitting, she went out with Ruggles, who said at the end of a few halting steps:

"Say, Miss Elliot, I hope you didn't really mean what you said about leaving us."

"I most assuredly did mean it," she answered, in her low-pitched voice, "but I'm beginning to think that I spoke too soon. Your persistence made me very angry. I'm not accustomed to having my authority overruled, but as you say, yours is greater than my own, so I suppose that I must make the best of it, if you really want me to stay."

"Of course I do. We couldn't get along without you and you've certainly done wonders. Which ever ever taught that Oscar also, bright, laughing and bad boy, little better than slave, I can't imagine how you got it through his head. Why, they might be one of us instead of a lot of [illegible]."

"Hold on, Mr. Ruggles," he mutter [illegible] "Don't put ideas like that into my head. I'm not lively enough for you."

guarded," said Miss Elliot. "Turkish harem life is not what most people suppose, Mr. Ruggles—that is, nowadays. But I'm afraid that Roxana is going to be a handful. Sometimes she makes me feel as though I were training a sleepy, well-fed lioness which had not yet learned the strength in her teeth and claws."

"Well," said Ruggles, "with her looks and education and a million francs dot, I don't believe we'll have her very long on our hands. We'll get her safely married and after that it'll be up to her husband."

"What is troubling me," Miss Elliot answered, "is just how we are to go about it to find them the right sort of husbands."

"I've been thinking about that, too," said Ruggles. "When I reach Paris I'll see Mr. Falconer, that I spoke about the other day. He's a fine old gentleman and knows everybody. He'll help us, I know; introduce the girls to some nice people and get them invitations and all that. Then Pembroke has offered to give me some letters to friends of his. With two such backers as Mr. Falconer and Lord Pembroke, we can't go wrong."

"So it seems to me," Miss Elliot replied. "Then I can get some letters, too, from the superintendent of Robert College."

"How long have you been out here?" Ruggles asked.

"Nearly four years. During my senior year at Vassar there was a competitive examination to fill a vacancy on the staff of teachers at Robert and I was fortunate enough to win it. Girls tried for it from several of our American colleges. What helped me was that I'd taken an elective course in Oriental languages and had chosen Arabic, because at that time I was engaged to be married to a man who was in the consular service and stationed at at—at—on the Barbary Coast—." Her color heightened.

"Really?" Ruggles shot her a curious look and asked, bluntly: "Why didn't you get married?"

Miss Elliot pushed out her square little chin. "He jilted me," she answered, looking straight in front of her, "for a rich American girl he met on the ship when he was on his way back to America to marry me."

Ruggles stopped short and stood for a moment leaning on his stick.

"Then all I can say is that he couldn't have been much loss," he answered slowly. "All the same, it's pretty tough. I've been up against something a good deal the same sort. There was a girl in Paris I thought an awful lot about who turned me down when she found out that I was selling shoes for a living. I hadn't told her just what my job was because I was expecting every day to get the managership of the company's Vienna business. But even if I had it wouldn't have made any difference. Why, you'd thought from the way she talked that the shoe business was worse than running a dive. Believe me, Miss Elliot, I never got such a jolt in all my life. Then, just as if that wasn't enough, the company turned me down and gave the managership to a skunk that pretended to be my friend, but was working all the time to do me out of a job. That put me all off—and I went around to the shop and made a fool of myself. Lord Pembroke saw it all and stood by me and brought me out here with him."

Miss Elliot listened to this confession with the deepest interest. She had often wondered just what train of circumstances had brought Ruggles out to the Orient; also, who and what he really was. She had wondered also how it happened that he spoke such good French, for during his delirium Ruggles had babbled steadily in this tongue of a certain Ruth, the gist of his incoherent discourse being apparently an anxiety lest she think ill of him for his having got mixed up in some sort of a brawl.

"Once or twice in your fever you mentioned a girl named Ruth," said Miss Elliot, watching him narrowly. The sudden glow of emotion in Ruggles' face did not escape her.

"Oh, that's not the one," he answered quickly. "That was Ruth Downing, the daughter of our president of the Walkeasy Shoe Company"—Ruggles still used unconsciously the plural possesive in speaking of the company. "Let me tell you, Miss Elliot, when she was made, they only turned out one model and then broke the mould. Honestly, I don't believe there's another like her in the world."

Miss Elliot smiled. "I'm afraid you're in love with her," said she.

"In love with Ruth Downing?" Ruggles looked shocked — almost frightened. Then his transparent skin was transfused with a sudden flush. "Say, Miss Elliot, maybe you're right. But if I am in love with her, it's the same way that I love the sun—or one of those big stars in that old garden over there. Nobody could help but love Ruth Downing." He sighed, deeply.

"Then why not tell her so?" asked [illegible] "Why not take your courage in both hands and go in like a man to win her? She'll marry somebody, some day. Why shouldn't it be you?"

"[illegible] impossible."

"Don't put ideas like that into my head. I'm not lively enough for you."

and Emilio, the late Hamid Pasha's Italian chef, Ruggles landed at Marseilles and took the train for Paris. It was in early June and the gay capital was at its most brilliant season.

Ruggles went directly to the Carlton, to which hotel he had telegraphed for accommodation for himself and two menservants. Thence his first move was to call at the banking house which was the Paris correspondent of that which had for many years governed the affairs of the late Hamid Pasha, and establish his identity; no difficult task, the necessary papers and signatures having been already forwarded. Ruggles was amazed to discover how very easily everything is managed for a millionaire.

His next step was to visit an automobile palace on the Avenue des Champs Elysees, where he explained his immediate need of a large, six-cylinder limousine car of the latest vintage, to be delivered immediately and paid for in cash. This want was supplied as though he had rubbed Aladdin's lamp with the ring. A capable chauffeur came tumbling down from the blue, landing on the driver's seat so gently as not to break an egg. Ruggle's knowledge of motors, chassis and carrosseries was precisely the same as it was of locomotives. He had seen a great many of both pass at varying rates of speed. When asked if he might not prefer to order the chassis and have the carrosserie constructed to his taste, he answered that his needs were pressing and that the show car in the window looked perfectly good to him.

But hotel people and merchants were a bit too clever when they came to stencil Ruggles as the crown prince of some American pork, pastry or pickle king. Just when they thought to have "got his number" (as Ruggles would have expressed it) came Mustapha in sober black and a fez. "You are tired, effendi," quoth he, "it is time to rest." Ruggles allowed himself to be guided by this faithful servant, for a very little exhausted him.

He wrote to Mr. Falconer asking for permission to call upon him, and received a kindly note making an appointment. In it Mr. Falconer said he had received a letter from Pembroke telling him of the manner in which Ruggles had distinguished himself and of his change of fortune. He congratulated Ruggles most warmly, and expressed himself as inpatient to hear more of the details from his own lips.

German Trade Resumed.

The United States and Great Britain have resumed heavy trading with Germany since the signing of the armistice. Exports from United States to Germany for the first 10 months of the year totalled $52,420,095, and imports from Germany $4,914,787. Great Britain, from the signing of the armistice to October 31, exported to Germany goods valued at more than $80,000,000, and received imports from Germany valued at $1,087,000.

Rosewood and mahogany are so common in Mexico that copper mines are timbered with rosewood, and mahogany is used for locomotive fuel.

HOW TO "BE FIT" AT SIXTY

BY DR. LEE HERBERT SMITH.

As our boys "came marching home," they brought a certain red-blooded doctrine, and showed us the glory of a perfect body. They will show us how to "keep fit," even if we have passed middle life and are beyond the athletic stage. For the tired business man, the man who feels the daily grind and the nightly fag, has meager appetite, headaches, nerves unstrung, is gloomy, ending in a soggy brain, try the right way. Get out of bed, open the window, breathe deeply, exercise the army "setting-up" exercise or use dumb bells, until in a warm glow.

Before breakfast take hot water, and occasionally castor oil or a pleasant laxative made up of May-apple, aloin, jalap, and sold by all druggists as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

As Prof. Strauss says, "The excretion of uric acid we are able to effect by exciting diuresis." Drink copiously of soft rain or distilled water, six or eight glasses per day, hot water before meals, and obtain Anuric Tablets, double strength, for 50 cts., at the nearest drug store and take them three times a day. If you want a trial package send 10 cents to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y.

"Anuric" (anti-uric-acid) is the recent discovery of Dr. Pierce and is much more potent than lithia, for it will dissolve uric acid as hot tea dissolves sugar.

Aliens in Salmon Fisheries

The Fraser River Fishermen's Protective Association has passed a resolution demanding that the salmon fisheries of British Columbia be reserved for white men and Indians. The resolution would restrict the fisheries to British subjects on the voters' list and Canadian-Indians, whether British-born or naturalized. Nearly 50 per cent. of the fishermen are Japanese, and they number among the most expert salmon fishers in the province. The government is prepared to prevent aliens participating in the industry, but hundreds of the Japanese are naturalized.

Sure! High Heels Cause Corns But Who Cares Now

Because style decrees that women crowd and buckle up their tender toes in high heel footwear they suffer from corns, then they cut and trim at these painful pests, which merely makes the corn grow hard. This suicidal habit may cause lockjaw, and women are warned to stop it.

A few drops of a drug called freezone applied directly upon a sore corn gives quick relief, and soon the entire corn, root and all, lifts out without pain. Ask the drug store man for a quarter of an ounce of freezone, which costs very little, but is sufficient to remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet.

This drug is an ether compound and dries in a moment and simply shrivels up the corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin. Clip this out and pin on your wife's dresser.

New Use For Echoes

Device Invented for Taking Soundings at Sea.

An inventor in Oakland, California, has found a new and practical use for echoes, and as a result the time may come when the practice of "heaving the lead" at sea will be known only in historical novels and old maritime history. The marimeter, as the new device is called, sends a sound from the keel of the ship to the bottom of the sea; the sound comes back as an echo, and the journey, automatically recorded on a diaphram, is translated into terms of length. The report shows the depth of water between keel and bottom, calculated from the known speed of a sound-wave in salt water, and the knowledge may be acquired at the rate of four soundings a minute, which is very much faster than by [illegible] meter, to be sure, has only recently gone to sea, if indeed the steamer Governor, which will carry the first of them, has yet left dry dock in Seattle, Washington. But the instrument promises to add materially to the security of ocean traffic. (Christian Science Monitor)

Manners to Animals.

A "Little Book of Manners" has just been published in Ireland which contains a chapter on "Manners to Animals." The author recognizes the fact that the real gentleman, however, would no sooner be rude or coarse in his treatment of animals than in his treatment of men.

Higher Pay For Teachers

Commenting on Mr. Rockefeller's gift of $100,000,000 to meet the urgent needs of educational institutions in the United States and Canada, A. H. Ball, deputy minister of education for Saskatchewan, declared that no more forceful or dramatic recognition of the existence of a grave emergency could have been given.

Only prompt action on the part of those responsible for fixing the salaries of teachers in this province, said Mr. Ball, can stop the present flow of the best material from the teaching profession into other and more lucrative occupations. Unless this action is taken, Saskatchewan will lose from its schools the intellectual cream of the province, and be forced to depend on second rate and third rate teachers for the education of its future citizens.

Basis of Canada's Future Success

Canadian Development Must Depend Upon a Constant Influx of Suitable Immigrants

Ernest H. Godfrey, of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, Ottawa, in a paper before the Royal Statistical Society on "Fifty Years of Canadian Progress as Illustrated by Official Statistics, 1867-1917," drew attention to the remarkable increase in the forestry reserves of the Dominion, due to the policy of the Dominion and provincial governments. From 1901 to 1918 the reserves had, he said, increased from 7,413,760 acres to 152,833,955 acres in addition to an estimated 20,000,000 of acres of unalienated land in British Columbia.

Discussing the future, Mr. Godfrey said that to a large extent Canadian development must depend upon a constant influx of suitable immigrants, and of capital. It was probable that settlement in well organized communities in which women would take their natural part would relieve the isolation of prairie farming. The opening of the Panama Canal and the construction of the Hudson Bay Railway should provide important new outlets for Canadian products. It would be bold to attempt to foretell the future effect of aviation on national progress, but it was already evident, he remarked, that exploration and prospecting in lands inaccessible by rail would benefit immensely by this means of locomotion. There was a practically unlimited field open to Canada in every direction, whether as regarded agriculture, forestry, fisheries, minerals or manufactures.

Mrs. A. Bernard, La Presentation, Que., writes:—"I have used Baby's Own Tablets for my baby and am well satisfied with them. I have recommended them to several of my friends who have also used them with beneficial results." The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which regulate the stomach and bowels and thus prove of benefit in cases of indigestion, constipation, colic, colds, etc. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A Tribute to Manhood

Prince of Wales Has A High Sense of Duty.

No visitor of any rank from any country ever had such a welcome from America as the young Prince of Wales. To what is all this due? It is due, in the minds of all who have studied the records of his tour, to qualities and ideals which would give distinction to the man if he were not the Prince. He has a charm of manner, sincerity, simplicity and a high sense of duty. He has brains. His speeches, which are his own, reveal some gift of oratory and a very hearty common sense. His actions show a level head on attractively young and unspoiled shoulders. He has, we are persuaded, done work of extreme importance for the Empire and for civilization. We may all pay him a tribute of quite genuine homage without suspicion of sycophancy or fear of turning his quite sane head.—London Daily Express.

Successes For Western Canada

Prizes Won at the International Exhibition Held in Chicago.

At the International Exhibition held at Chicago on December 2, competitors from Western Canada again demonstrated the superiority of their grains by carrying off, among others, nine prizes and several ribbons for hard spring wheat. The successful exhibitors, in order, were as follows: J. C. Mitchell, Dahinda; J. S. Field, Regina; Seager Wheeler, Rosthern; Ander Brothers, Wilcox; A. Tait, Semans; Robert Clark, Speers, and J. F. Cadora, South Forks, all from Saskatchewan; E. F. Young, Oak Lake, and Samuel Larcombe, Birtle, represented Manitoba.

In the Durum classes, P. Keczek and E. F. Young, both of Oak Lake, Manitoba, won first and second, respectively.

In six-rowed barley, Seager Wheeler, Rosthern, Sask., was first, and Samuel Larcombe, Birtle, Man., second.

It will be remembered that Mr. J. S. Field was the winner of the sweepstakes and C.P.R. cup for hard spring wheat and first prize and sweepstakes for oats at the International Soil Products Exposition, at Kansas City recently, while the successes of Seager Wheeler are so well known as to need no enumeration.

A Nervous Wreck

BY DR. D. L. GRANTIER.

How many business men feel fagged out, nervous, with a "soggy brain"—worn out completely before the day and its tremendous tasks are half over? Try the right way! Clean the body first. That will help your nerves, your head and your circulation. Your doctor will tell you that anything from a headache or a common cold to grippe or a serious illness may result from allowing food to ferment in the intestines. Don't give the body a chance to absorb the poisons. Remove the toxins from the system and give the tissues of the body aid to resist disease by taking an occasional laxative such as castor oil, or a tiny pill made up of May-apple, aloin, jalap, and sold by most druggists as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

The kidneys and bladder suffer from the wear and tear, and we get chronic inflammations sometimes indicated by backache, painful voiding of water—dull, heavy feelings. Perhaps the uric acid is stored up in the system in excessive amount, and consequently when the urate salts are deposited in muscles and joints one suffers from lumbago (pain in back), rheumatic pains, gout, etc.

Nothing will act so nicely as "Anuric" (anti-uric-acid), a recent discovery of Dr. Pierce's which can be had at all drug stores. "Anuric" washes away the poisons, cleanses the bladder and kidneys—rendering them antiseptic—consequently one is soon cured of lumbago, rheumatism, gout, and the body is put into a clean, healthy state.

Germany Shipped Guns to Mexico

Exportation of War Material Is Violation of Armistice.

Two shipments of machine guns and machine gun accessories being sent to Mexico from Germany and discovered in transit, via Holland, have been held up by the Allied military authorities, according to information reaching United States officials at Coblenz.

The exportation of war material by Germany is a violation of the armistice and peace treaty. The German government has been asked to explain the shipments and notified not to attempt any similar exportation of such arms.

The first shipment consisted of four carloads of second hand machine-guns, all boxed and ready for ocean transport. This shipment comprised 2,695 machine guns and, according to Marshal Foch, the guns arrived in Holland on November 28, the senders being the firm of Brockleman and Senet Gunn, of Cassel. The consignee was the Johan Munts Arms and Trading Company of Amsterdam.

The communication to the Inter-Allied Armistice commission at Cologne, giving notice of these shipments, says that Marshal Foch has information showing that the shipments had been made "Across Holland, with destination Mexico."

Quite Progressive Though Imperfect

So much is heard these times of the sins both of omission and commission by the Oliver administration that some may be beginning to wonder if any good thing may be expected to emanate from that quarter at Victoria. That the governmental heads believe that they are not quite as bad administrators as their opponents would have people believe is indicated in the following article from the Cranbrook Courier, which deserves the careful attention of REVIEW readers, who, in most cases, like to have both sides to a controversy before coming to any final conclusions. Here it is:

Without in any way attempting to pre-suppose that every adult person in the Province of British Columbia is satisfied with the manner in which the Oliver Government administers the affairs of the Province, it should be safe to say, in looking back over the past year, that at least some of the fruits of progressive legislation already are being garnered for the benefit of all concerned.

When the electorate decided that the time had come to end the career of the late administration there was evident a general conception that as a corollary to the advent of a Liberal Government all wrongs would be righted and British Columbia once again would be a land flowing with milk and honey. There were those, of course, who were no strangers to public service and who chose to temper the hope for better things with an intimate knowledge of the state into which conditions generally had been allowed to drift.

An Empty Treasury.

Unhappily, the tide showed no signs of turning and after two years of war the stern facts confronted the people of the Province in dollars and cents. The Treasury was empty and financial obligations had leapt to many millions. A general house cleaning at James Bay was inevitable.

Admittedly, this brief retrospect discovers nothing new. The fact does remain, however, that the task which confronted the present administration when it assumed office in the waning days of 1916 was not the ordinary one such as successive governments have a right to expect to find. On that account its works in advance were penalized by heavy handicaps and the future already was heavily mortgaged.

Stocktaking Time.

It will [illegible] that the late Liberal [illegible] characterized the year 1917 as a year of stocktaking. [illegible] too optimistic in supposing that so short a diagnosis of the ills from which the Province was suffering would be sufficient upon which to prescribe the ingredients of a [illegible] remedy. It was not until after the session of 1918 had [illegible] the political guardians of the public weal to actually round their feet and were able to deal intelligently with an actual and properly estimated condition.

With the results [illegible] placed in their [illegible] perspective, therefore, the Government of the day is entitled to all credit for the excellent results from its labors which have won a potent [illegible] opponent and supporter alike through the year which is now ended.

Much Good Legislation.

[illegible] operation of a [illegible] of constructive legislation [illegible] of the Government [illegible] policy.

Nobody [illegible] time to time. The [illegible]

[illegible] The Provincial [illegible]

time, however, when that sort of thing must stop.

Nor is it necessary to emphasize that the countrys' obligation to the former members of the Canadian Expeditionary Force and the conditions resultant from five years of war are the responsible factors for a still more or less top-heavy policy of expenditure. These are, of course, uncontrollable features of government, which are common to the whole of the British Empire. They constitute the toll of war. Nevertheless it is a condition that is not calculated to add to the popularity of any Government, particularly when that Government has been obliged to follow a predecessor whose lavish hand in the matter of public expenditure was not hampered by considerations which have made themselves felt during the last twelve months.

Rehabilitating Credit.

Reversion to a policy which contemplates an even ledger balance, however, has been responsible for rehabilating the credit of the Province and the genuine endeavor on the part of the administration to get back to normal has been evident to those financial interests to whom the Province has disposed of its bonds from time to time. Recent flotations, moreover, have demonstrated to the country that British Columbia is keeping her house in order to the extent at least of cutting her cloth according to her measure.

Industries.

Perhaps one of the year's most outstanding patterns of progressive legislation which already has proved its merit is that which created a Department of Industries. Designed to benefit the returned man in particular, there is every indication that in a very short time it will become a not inconsiderable factor in developing the Province into industrial prominence.

Public Utilities

The Public Utilities Act has not been blessed with an altogether uncheckered career. The action of the Dominion Government in removing certain public utilities from its jurisdiction has left the Commission provided for in the statute somewhat in the air with very little to do. This is a matter, however, which throws Provincial and Federal rights into conflict and before the New Year is very old some understanding may be reached which will prescribe the fate of this new branch of the public service.

Community Settlement.

Another example of agricultural innovation associated with repatriation is the settlement by the Provincial Land Settlement Board of the community settlement scheme. Two colonies of returned men are navigating their way towards independence with the assistance of the Government at Courtenay and Creston. Although regarded as a Federal obligation, and accepted by the authorities at Ottawa as such, the Province has gone farther than "the trodden mile" in assisting the soldier-farmer.

Iron and Steel.

Mineral development has progressed under legislation designed to provide ore for experimental purposes, and although it is admitted that British Columbia possesses all the various ores incident to the establishment of an iron and steel industry, such anticipatory statutory provision must perforce await a number of dependent considerations such as, for instance, the cheapest and most practical modes of smelting, on which much opinion already has been expressed.

Housing.

At its last session the Legislature passed the Better Housing Act, which provides the machinery to dispose of British Columbia's share of the national fund of $25,000,000 for the purpose of aiding the soldier or his dependent to become the owner of his or her own house. The plan has been adopted in many cities and practically the whole of this Province's allocation has been absorbed, while many houses already are in course of construction.

Oil

Realizing the possibilities of the Peace River section as a fruitful [illegible] Act prescribing in [illegible] Gasoline tax [illegible] retained by the Government to make an initial [illegible] optimistically, so much so that it is probable than an additional appropriation will be [illegible]

Social Legislation

[illegible] prostitution and the of its outstanding examples is a statute which aims at the prevention and control of venereal disease. The Government is alive to the value of the human asset in general, and its Department of Health has taken its place in the van with the fixed idea that the conservation of life is an obligation of paramount importance.

Railways.

Railway construction this year has been marked by excellent progress on the Pacific Great Eastern Railway, the promise of the Premier made on the floor of the House that steel would reach Williams Lake on September 15 having been redeemed to the day. Further extension of the people line will form a part of next year's policy and preliminaries towards giving it effect already are under way.

Irrigation.

Irrigation matters have not escaped the Department of Lands, whose Minister has posted himself upon the complex situation existent in the dry belt of the Province. In spite of well-known difficulties, however, a solution has been found and the effect of policies designed upon the principle of helping those who help themselves already has begun to be felt. The creation of a conservation fund has enabled the Department to do much for a section of the Province whose water supply hitherto has been more or less in the lap of the gods.

Roads.

Public works, more particularly road construction, have been governed by a policy which has sought to eliminate waste and to substitute efficiency. Repatriation problems, too, were taken into consideration by the Legislature when the Minister of the Department introduced his measure to provide for an emergency fund of a million dollars. An example of the beneficial working of this provision was published in these columns recently in the case of unemployment reported to the Department. Foresight in setting aside a sum which could be drawn upon as occasion arose provided the means by which work could be started at once.

Liquor.

One of the knotty problems which has confronted the Government in diverse forms during the past year has been the operation of the British Columbia Prohibition Act. Flaws have developed to an extent that neither were anticipated by the framers of the original act nor were they so obvious that their correction could have been effected by the Legislature at its last session. It has been found that the prescription has become a popular means of procuring the banned liquor under an alleged "medicine label." This is a matter, however, upon which the public gaze is focussed at the present time and action has been promised.

Social.

An important commission has been set up recently whose duties include an inquiry into the feasibility of establishing a system of state health insurance, widows' pensions and public nursing facilities. At the time of writing it is touring the Province for the purpose of assembling the varied viewpoints of the people as a whole, so that it will be in a position to make its report to the Legislation next month. Upon its findings will depend the fate of this important question.

A Good Year.

There are many other important phases of development to which the Government has directed its attention. But as it will have been observed at the outset, the time for them to become obvious in their practical form and intent may yet be some distance away. Suffice it to say, however, that the year 1919 has demonstrated the value of a stocktaking programme which took every Cabinet Minister to different sections of the Province and provided him with first hand information upon its needs

NEWS OF KOOTENAYS

During 1919 at Cranbrook there were 117 births, 39 marriages and 31 deaths.

Nelson's fruit fair last year was a money-maker to the extent of $150. For 1920 it is proposed to have a class for the showing of cattle.

Cranbrook is to have a second dentist in Dr. Foggie of Vancouver, who will open out there next month for the practise of his profession.

Bee inspector Sheppard figures there are a few over 900 hives of bees in the Kootenay, and the average honey production was 50 pounds per hive.

Cranbrook jail officials had a unique experience last year. They handled 171 prisoners—exactly the same number as they had in charge in 1918.

Peace and Its Obligations

With the formal exchange of ratifications of the Peace Treaty of Versailles by Germany and the great powers, with the exception of the United States, and many of the lesser powers, the Great War came to an official and legal end on Saturday, January 10, 1920, and peace in an international sense once more prevails in a wold distracted by war for over five years.

This exchange of ratifications, and the official promulgation of peace, might have been accomplished much sooner but for the dastardly act of the Germans in sinking their surrendered fleet at Scapa Flow during the progress of the peace negotiations. As a result of that outrage, the Allies insisted upon a protocol to the Peace Treaty, and this protocol Germany was compelled to sign on January 10, before the exchange of ratifications took place.

Peace is now an accomplished fact, and with the coming into effect of the Treaty of Versailles the League of Nations also becomes an established organization. It is no longer merely a paper organization, a document of principles, outlining certain machinery for the preservation of the peace now proclaimed. It is a body officially recognized by most of the nations of the world, an organization in which the nations have membership, and to the carrying out of whose aims and objects they are pledged.

For the time being Germany and the other nations which were in alliance with Germany in the war are not admitted to membership in the League. They must first prove their sincerity and honesty of purpose in carrying out the objects of the League. Then and only then will they be admitted to full membership. The United States is not a member as yet, because, owing to political differences in that country, which are acute because of the approaching presidential election, the senate has not yet ratified the Peace Treaty with its League of Nations covenant. It is inconceivable, however, that the United States will refuse to ratify the Treaty of Versailles and join the League. Such a refusal would be a denial of [illegible] for which the American [illegible] to [illegible]

In [illegible] League of Nations [illegible] nations [illegible] nine [illegible] trial [illegible] world. Not only [illegible] for [illegible] the [illegible] of the [illegible] its care, and in the solution of which alone will be found a guarantee of permanent peace.

But while international peace has been again established, a gigantic task still confronts all nations in the bringing about of domestic peace and wholehearted co-operation among the peoples of their respective countries. The Great War created such a world upheaval, and resulted in such a loosening and breaking away from the foundations and accepted conditions of the past, largely destroying old political ties and changing economic conditions everywhere, that men today are more or less unsettled in their ideas. It is a time when great leaders, men of conviction and courage, are needed, and when all people require to exercise a large degree of patience and a high and lofty patriotism.

In the turmoil, suffering and sorrows of the Great War mankind hopes that many of the old abuses and evils of the past have been destroyed; that all the destruction that took place was not bad, but that much of it will prove to have been good. On the other hand, mankind also hopes that because of the sacrifices made, the sufferings borne, the patriotism and heroism displayed, there will emerge a nobler conception of man's duty to his fellowmen, a higher standard in religion, in intellectual attainment, in social relations, in community life and service.

In this new peace era,—in this dawning in the twentieth century of a changed period in the world's history,—the people of all nations should turn their backs on the past, and, forgetting those things which are behind, press onward with faces alight and eager hands to grasp the more glorious things that lie ahead. The old ignominious strife in party politics, the cruelty and oppression and ruthlessness in business competition, between Capital and Labor, between the classes and the masses, should be superceded by a new spirit and a ready willingness to co-operate the one with the other for the good of all.

We have undergone all the sufferings, the horrors, the losses of the Great War. We have borne up and worked together with a national determination to achieve victory for the right. We have accepted our losses in a splendid spirit. Now, in the interests of all and of our common country which by our efforts we have saved from enemy despoilation, let us remain united, united more firmly than ever, in cordial co-operation to bring out of the Great Sorrow the maximum of blessing to all.

ARE YOU WEAK AND RUN DOWN?

In This Condition Only a Tonic Medicine Can Renew Your Health.

The condition of being "run down" is one that doctors do not recognize as a disease. The physician of today who gets his training in a hospital where only severe disorders are encountered knows little about it. But those who are run down in health know that it is not a fancied affliction.

The expression "run down," applied to health means a condition in which all the bodily functions are enfeebled. Appetite fails, the digestion is impaired, the nerves are impoverished, the complexion becomes pale or waxy, there is no animation, but rather worry and mental depression. Fatigue is a constant symptom. No particular organ being affected, you must look for relief to the blood. As it circulates through every part of the body, any improvement in the condition of the blood is quickly felt throughout the entire system. As a restorer of the blood and builder of weak nerves Dr. Williams' Pink Pills stand at the head of all tonic medicines. Every dose of these pills helps to enrich the blood and strengthen the nerves, and thus the various organs regain their tone and the body recovers its full vigor. Ample proof of this is given in the statement of Mr. William Devine, Gerard street east, Toronto, who says: "Two years ago while employed as a conductor on the Toronto Street Railway, I became much run down. I consulted a doctor who gave me medicine, but it proved fruitless as I was constantly growing weaker. My appetite completely failed and I fell away in weight until I only weighed 125 pounds. I was sometimes taken with fainting spells, and finally felt compelled to resign my position. I tried what I thought was lighter work, but with no better results. I was growing weaker and weaker. One day a chum urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, but by this time I was heartily tired of medicine, as nothing I had taken did me any good. Finally he bought me a box of the pills, and I could no longer refuse to try them. After a time I felt they were helping me and then a gladly continued their use, with the result that I was finally enabled to go back to my old position fully restored to health. I owe this splendid condition to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and can strongly recommend them to any one suffering as I did."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can be obtained through any medicine dealer, or may be had by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Elephants Good Workers

Drivers Have Special Language Which the Animals Understand.

Elephants do their best work in driving timber, working it with the current, releasing logs from jams and rolling the stranded logs back into the water. The elephant drivers have a special "elephant" language which the animals understand—a special elephant vocabulary with such terms as "Push sideways," "Roll," "Pull out," "Stop," "Lift your chains." They are magnificent swimmers. When they swim from bank to bank, herding the logs that require their special attention, you see nothing of them except the tips of their trunks through which they breathe and the mahouts or drivers, who are generally in water up to their waists. If a big stack of jam breaks suddenly where elephants are working, they know the danger of being overtaken. They trumpet and clear off to either bank or swim downstream as fast as they can go.

Further Trouble Appears To Be Pending in Egypt

Cairo. — A conversation between Viscount Milner, special British commissioner, with the Grand Mufti of Egypt, who is the religious chief of the Mohammedans in Egypt, is reported in the newspaper El Misr, in which the Grand Mufti attributed the present troubled spirit to the country's disappointed expectation regarding its independence.

Lord Milner contended that a protectorate was necessary to Egypt's interests and that a discussion could settle nine out of ten disputed points. The Mufti replied that no Egyptian would enter into a discussion except on the basis of independence. Lord Milner maintained that some Egyptians were willing to discuss the subject, but fear deterred them.

The Grand Mufti declared that every country has its traitors but every patriot would refuse to enter into such a discussion.

The commissioner sought to convince him that Great Britain was actuated by friendship and did not wish to impose her will forcibly although able to do so. To this the Grand Mufti replied:

"As religious chief, I can only say and affirm that it is impossible to convince a nation of the futility of a thing of which I myself am unconvinced. The entire nation claims its independence and it would therefore be useless to speak in any other language. I do not forget your power, but if Egyptians bend today before force they will seize the first occasion to revolt. The guarantee of force is not eternal.

"Between Syria, occupied by France, and Tripoli, occupied by Italy, it is better for you that Egypt be independent and friendly."

Lord Milner contended that the Mufti's arguments did not prevent a discussion and asked him to discuss the questions. But the Mufti replied: "We can have no discussion until the protectorate is withdrawn."

AN IDEAL TONIC FOR WEAK PEOPLE

Food is as important to the sick person as medicine, more so in most cases. A badly chosen diet may retard recovery. In health the natural appetite is the best guide to follow; in sickness the appetite is often fickle and depraved.

Proper food and a good tonic will keep most people in good health. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the most popular tonic medicine in the world, harmless and certain in their action, which is to build up the blood and restore the vitality to the run-down system. For growing girls who become thin and pale, for pale, tired women, and for old people who fail in strength, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are an ideal tonic. Thousands of people have testified to the health-giving qualities of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and in many homes they are the only medicine used. Among the homes in which the benefit of this medicine has been proved is that of Mr. E. A. Underwood, Kingston, Ont., who says:—"I have used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with the most beneficial results. As the result of hard work I was very much run down, and my appetite was very poor. I got a supply of the pills which I used regularly for some weeks with the result that they restored me to my old time strength. They also proved a blessing to my daughter, who was in a very anaemic condition, and who seemed not to get more than temporary relief from any medicine until she took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She took the pills for about three months, and is now enjoying the best of health. For these reasons I can strongly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

At the first sign that the blood is out of order take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and note the speedy improvement they make in the appetite, health and spirits. You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Italian's Death Is Causing Trouble

Native Trying to Turn Incident to Political Uses.

Cairo. — Italians here are greatly excited over the killing of an Italian musician by a British soldier and are getting the sympathy of a section of the natives who are trying to turn the incident to political uses. A military picket was holding up traffic to allow troops to pass. The Italian tried to break through, but was thrust back, whereupon he struck a soldier. Another soldier inflicted injuries on the Italian from which he died.

The students of Alahzar university threatened a demonstration at the funeral, but the Italian consul, who accepted the British official explanation, diverted the procession. A few hundred Egyptians demonstrated in the streets, denouncing Great Britain and cheering for Italy.

Ottawa. — Prospects for Canada's overseas trade, both in Great Britain and other European countries are excellent, according to W. C. Nixon, who was a member of the Canadian trade mission in London with Lloyd Harris, and who is in this city in conference with Sir George Foster and other members of the government and the Canadian trade commission in regard to overseas trade matters.

In the conference held a plan for continuing the trade representation and activities in Great Britain and other countries is being formulated and it is believed will be satisfactorily completed within a few days.

Mr. Nixon expects to return to London about the end of the month. While in Canada he will also confer with Lloyd Harris.

Thirty Million Russians Have Died

Death Toll Exclusive of Five Million Men Killed on the Russian Front.

New York. — Thirty million men, women and children have died in Russia from violence, famine and disease in the last three years, according to a statement on present conditions in the once-great empire, which was made by Princess Cantacusene-Speransky, grand daughter of Ulysee Grant, in an appeal in behalf of the American Central committee for Russian relief. The tremendous death toll mentioned by the princess was exclusive, she said, of five million men who had laid down their lives on the Russian front, fighting for the allies.

Food Situation Bad in Berlin

Authorities Charge That Present Supplies Are Mere Patchwork.

Berlin. — Papers discuss at great length and with much concern the food situation of the immediate future, so far as Berlin is concerned. Mayor Wermuth and his associates in the municipalities are not satisfied with the assurances given them in the course of their conference with the government. They assert that the government is unduly optimistic in view of the actual conditions.

The national grain bureau is disposing of only sufficient wheat supplies to ensure flour deliveries for fourteen days. Unless stocks are quickly moved, it is admitted that the capital is facing a genuine catastrophe at the beginning of February. The municipal authorities charge that the present makeshifts are mere patchwork and that they merely suffice to tide over the provisional shortage.

The city of Berlin is allowing a two-pound turnip ration as a partial offset to the potatoe shortage.

Declares, However, That He Has Not Made Himself Candidate.

Paris. — The exact words of Premier Clemenceau on his return to Paris, with regard to the presidency, was thus described by Gustave Herve's newspaper Victoire: "I have not declared myself a candidate but if I am borne to the presidency of the republic I will accept."

The Echo de Paris quoted the Premier as having said: "The truth is the presidency of the republic is being forced upon me. I am being carried to the post."

Lenine Makes New Peace Offer.

Stockholm. — Nicolai Lenine, Russian Bolshevist premier, has made a new peace offer to the allies, which is being taken to London by Colonel Tallents, British representative in the Baltic states. Among other conditions included in the offer by Lenine is a promise to abolish terrorism and the activity of revolutionary tribunals, according to an Esthonian newspaper.

London. — Bolshevik agitators in this country were working energetically along lines similar to those projected by the radicals in America, namely, the overthrow of the government and the establishment of a soviet form of government. It is thought probable that the plans on this side of the Atlantic have not yet reached the point achieved by those in the United States, but it is believed that the radicals here are rapidly reaching the point where they might seize upon some big labor strike as an opportunity for starting a revolutionary movement.

While these facts are common knowledge to close observers of the situation, it is said to be impossible for the British authorities under the present ultra-Liberal laws of free speech to do much more than watch the progress of events. In other words, it is declared the British, broadly speaking, cannot take preventive measures, but must be content to deal with some actual event.

Great Britain can and does deport undesirable aliens, but in the case of British subjects the situation is more delicate.

There are only a few big Red leaders, but they have a sufficient following to form a goodly sized nucleus for organization. Their whole effort now is centred in sowing the seeds of discontent and they are banking on the employment of mob psychology in starting trouble in the event of a widespread strike, according to the authorities.

The Red idea, it is asserted, is to work for affiliation with existing organizations, rather than for the creation of new ones. The agitators cannot be reached by the law except for direct indictment to revolt or for some other breach of the peace.

Famous Albert Hall, with all its historic associations connected with the throne, has been used for what virtually were Bolshevik meetings at which extremist speeches were delivered and the "Red Flag" was sung to the accompaniment of the great organ. Similar meetings are regularly held in Hyde Park and other places in London and the police are bound to protect the speakers so long as there is no actual breach of the peace. Still Great Britain seemingly is not unduly discouraged at the trend of events, believing in the power of the law to cope with any actual attempt to use force and trusting in the good sense of the public not to be misled by propaganda.

Prince May Visit Japan.

Vancouver. — Information has been received from Tokio by S. Ukita, Japanese consul here, to the effect that the Prince of Wales probably will visit Japan this spring. He will extend his tour of Australia and India so as to embrace Japan. The compliment will be returned by the Japanese Crown Prince visiting Great Britain, if plans now under consideration of the emperor mature.

Canyon City

The Latter Day Saint revival meetings closed Sunday night. They were a marked success. The attendance held up to a full house during the entire three weeks. All kind of weather was had but the Canyonites showed their characteristic stick-to-tive-ness. One of the small streams was dammed for baptismal service in which Elder Bronson baptised four of his converts. Several were converted and expect to join the church later. Elder Bronson made emphatic distinctions between the "True Latter Day Saints," known as tee "Reorganized Church", and the "Utah Mormons" showing plainly that they, the Mormons, left the true church and fell into false doctorines, one of which was Polygamy. A collection was taken up the closing evening to pay the one dollar per night rent for the school house. A liberal sum was given.—Com.

Canyon City section is convinced of the value of having a local of the Unit-Farmers of British Columbia judging by the good turnout on Saturday night, despite the stormy weather, at the meeting called to re organize the United Farmers of Canyon City, which came into existence a little over a year ago. President John Wood was in charge of the gathering, and after he had explained the aims and objects of the provincial united farmers the meeting unanimously decided to re-form the old body into a local of the U.F. of B C. Twenty of the farmerss present immediately joined up and there is every prospect of the membership going up to at least forty. The officers chosen for 1920 are: President, John Wood; Vice president, Hilton Young; Directors, Campbel Blair, A. R. Swanson, William Brow ell, Geo. Davie, E. VanAckeran. It was agreed that regular meetings should be held on the third Monday of every month, and everybody is invited to attend the February meeting, especially the ladies, as the community is ambitious to see Canyon with a branch of the United Farm Women of B.C., or failing this to have the ladies join with the in making the local just formed the biggest and best in the Valley. At the close of the meeting the directors met and selected E. VanAckeran as secretary for the year. In addition to the good attendance the meeting was very enthusiastic and it seems safe to predict that as Canyon is the first to organize so will it be first in point of membership as well as in all-round useful effort to improve conditions generally.

Booked Fine Films

Manager Rodgers of the Peekin theatre got back the latter part of the week from a business visit at Calgary, most of his stay in that city being devoted to witnessing a show of films that he proposes booking for the Peekin, as well as discussing film service generally with the firms in that business in that city.

Peekin patrons will hear with pleasure that considerable big stuff has been booked to show here within the next two months. Amongst the pictures secured are "Destiny," with Miss Dorothy Phillips in the leading role. Miss Phillips will be recalled as the leading lady in "The Hearts of Humanity," which pleased Peekin patrons so highly at New Years. Monroe Salisbury, another local favorite, will be seen again in the "Blinding Trail," while both Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Chaplin have been booked, the latter in "When a Girl Loves," while the inimitable Charles will appear in one of his biggest laugh-making comedies. Mae Murray will make her bow to Creston in "Modern Love," and Joe Martin the only monkey comedian in pictures at present, will be seen in "Monkey Stuff."

Manager Rodgers found things very unsettled in the matter of films and consequently no extensive bookings could be made for the future. The tendency of prices on really worth while pictures is upward, but the Peekin management is determined to maintain high standard of excellence that has always prevailed in the pictures shown. In this connection patrons may look for announcement shortly as to changes in programmes and dates.
