Grim Reaper's Toll Heavy One

In the death of Arthur O'Kell, which took place at the old men's home at Kamloops the latter part of February, the grim reaper has removed quite a familiar figure in the early history of Creston. Deceased, who was a native of Birkenhead, England, came here from Maple Creek, Sask., in 1898, and his first connection with Valley life was as assistant to E. Mallandaine, who was Creston's postmaster at that time, the postoffice then being located on the present site of the Mallandaine residence. In addition to his official position, which he relinquished a few years later, deceased was an accountant when such help was in demand, and also excelled as a photographer. Later on he was indentified with G. A. M. Young in the real estate business, dabbling to a considerable extent in mining claim development. He left Creston about four years ago for Kamloops, and news of his death came as a considerable surprise as friends here were not even aware that he was ill. He was 72 years of age. Burial was at Kamloops.

Mrs. J. H. Fulmer

Directly and indirectly the flu has laid a heavy hand on the home of J. H. Fulmer, death taking Mrs. Fulmer on February 27th, and four days later taking the infant son, Gerald, who was born hardly a week before the mother was summond away. Deceased was married to Mr. Fulmer at Lethbridge, Alta., in 1911, and they first came to Creston to reside in 1914, leaving again late the following year for Cowley, Alta., where they remained until 1917, when they again returned to Creston, and have practically resided in the Valley ever since. The funeral took place on February 29th, to Creston cemetry, Rev. T. McCord conducting the last sad rites. Deceased was in her thirtieth year, and besides a husband leaves a young family of two boys and two girls to mourn the passing of a devoted wife and mother, with whom the community mourns in their heavy bereavement. Mrs. Fulmer's father and two sisters, Mrs. Chugg and Mrs. Freeman, all of Macleod, Alta., were here for the burial services.

James McKay

The second death of the flu was that of James McKay, on Feb. 29th, who about six weeks ago arrived here from near Sherbrook, Que., on a visit to his daughter and son-in-law, Mrs. and Mr. D. Learmonth. The old gentleman, who was 85 years of age, was stricken with the disease along with several other members of the household, but at his advanced age the odds were against him, and he succumbed after about a week's gallant fight for life. The funeral took place on March 2nd to Creston cemetry, Rev. T. McCord having charge of the last sad rites. To Mr. and Mrs. Learmonth and those members of the McKay family who had come west with their father much sympathy is felt in the death under these unhappy circumstances.

Mrs. Robert Boadway

Equally as pathetic was the death at an early hour on Sunday morning of Mrs. Robert Boadway, whose demise was a paralell case with that of the late Mrs. Fulmer, coming within three days of the birth of a son, and while the deceased was ailing from a touch of the flu, aggrevated by her attendance on the younger members of the family who had first been laid up with it. The late Mrs. Boadway was in her thirty-second year, and was married to Mr. Boadway at Weyburn, Sask., in 1906, the family moving to Creston in 1909, and residing at a number of points in the Valley continuously ever since. The leaves to mother her untimely call a family of five girls and one boy as well as her husband. The funeral was on Tuesday to Creston cemetry, the services being in charge of Elder Bronson, who was lately here from Spokane conducting a series of special services for the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, of which deceased was a devoted member. Mrs. Boadway was a wife and mother of the finest type, and her untimely passing evokes the truest sympathy of the community toward those who directly mourn her death.

Charles Cotteril

A death that has cast a gloom over the community was that of Charles W. Cotteril who passed away on Thursday of last week, following a stubborn fight with an attack of flu that finally developed into a case of double pneumonia. Deceased was an Englishman by birth, who came to Winnipeg about eighteen years ago, and for about twelve years was in the employ of the C.P.R. as boilermaker, coming to Creston in 1913, when he purchased the Harvey Dixon place, about a mile from town, and by hard and intelligent work had developed it into one of the finest ranch properties in the Valley. The funeral took place on Friday, service being held in the Presbyterian church, with Rev. T. McCord taking charge, with interment at Creston cemetry, Messrs. John and Geo. Hobden, R. B. Staples, K. Andrew, W. and P. Truscott acting as pallbearers. Deceased was married in 1909 in England to Elizabeth Goodwin, and a widow and one son survive. The late Mr. Cotteril was but in his 39th year and his passing at a time when he was getting along where he could take life a little easier is widely regretted, and in their bereavement the widow and young son have the very genuine sympathy of many friends. Two sisters, Mrs. Barker and Miss H. Cotteril of Champlain, Ill., arrived on Sunday, but after spending a couple of days here returned home.

Erickson

M. McCarthy of Creston is now numbered amongst our permanent residents. He moved into the W. W. Hall place the latter part of the month. Mr. Hall expects to get into his new house on the ranch very shortly.

Erickson is having its full share of flu cases this trip, along with a mild type of scarlet fever in at least one home. The school has been closed since the first of the month.

Jos. Stinson, who has been occupying the house on Mrs. Brown's ranch for the past year, has just moved into the house on the R. B. Staples place.

The area of timber on Goat Mountain back of the Hamilton, Beam and Botterill ranches has been acquired by Mangan & Belanger, who will shortly put in a portable mill to cut the same.

Mrs. Botterrill got home from Cranbrook hospital a few days ago where she had been for an operation for appendicitus. Owing to the prevalence of flu patients in that institution she came home sooner than anticipated.

Mrs. Kelsey has been a Cranbrook visitor this month for medical attention, her trouble being neuralgia in the face, the attacks being very painful and altogether too frequent.

There has been a considerable move in Erickson land the past couple of weeks, the Lamont subdivision on the lower road doing considerable moving. G. Willson, who late last summer bought a five-acre tract there, is so well pleased with his holdings that he has acquired the five acres adjoining him. C. O. Quist of Creston has taken up five acres about opposite the Craigie ranch, and this week High Smith, a mine manager at Bellvue, Alta., secured seven acres close to Nr. Quist's boys.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Cartwright got back the latter part of the month from a three months' holiday trip to Ontario points, with a short stop at Regina, Sask., on the trip home.

Sirdar

J. Palmer of Calgary, Alta., travelling baggage inspector, paid Sirdar an official visit one day last week.

W. H. Morris was sojourning with friends at Cranbrook a few days last week.

Mrs. Jones of Kuskanook was a visitor the early part of last week, and reports all the signs are for the earliest spring this part of the Kootenay has had in four years.

Rev. J. S. Mahood had a fine turnout for the English Church service on Sunday of last week. Sirdar is taking some interest in the Forward Movement and there is a prospect of at least $50 being raised at this place.

Mrs. Loasby and Mrs. McMasters were Creston callers one day last week. With the flu on callers at the metropolis are not numerous these times.

Kitchener

A. Purdie, an employee of the Sash & Door Co., had his leg badly crushed in a log-unloading mishap a few days ago, and has gone to Cranbrook hospital for treatment.

Quite a number of the men in the Paulson crmps have been off work of late, taking no chances with a mild type of la grippe from which they were suffering.

Provincial police Vachon of Creston was here the latter part of the month, his visit being for the collection of poll tax.

Z. Geroux and son, Victor, were business visitors at Salmo a few days ago.

H. A. McKown of the Sash & Door Co., was a business visitor at Spokane a couple of days last month.

Archie Kerr has about completed the erection of quite a comfortable residence for himself on the lot next the schoolhouse.

Old Anasta, the Creston Indian, who has been trapping up Leadville creek, came down one day last week with ten marten.

C. DeLeure was a business visitor at Salmo a few days the latter part of February, while Mrs. DeLeure and young son are away on a visit to her parents.

Jack Hanson got back from Cranbrook hospital on February 28th, but it will be a few weeks yet before he will be able to use his arm.

A. Miller, a well-known Calgary fur buyer, was here a few days last week, and is so much taken with Kitchener that he states he will build a store here shortly.

Wynndel

Mr. Elmer, who has been in Creston the past two weeks, paid his home a visit here on Wednesday last, returning the following day.

Mr. Anderson has the frame of his new house up, and is making good time with the sheeting. Mr. Bellamy's log house is also coming along fine. He is being assisted by Mr. Joy.

Mrs. T. Sadler has gone to Coleman, where she will spend a short holiday with her mother.

Miss M. Penson went to Creston on Sunday, on a visit to friends.

The concert and dance in the schoolhouse on Saturday night was a huge success. The hall was filled to capacity and quite a few had to stand. The musical numbers were greatly appreciated by all. Miss D. Butterfield was in charge of the music and is to be highly commended for her effort. The recitations by Miss M. Sutherland and Miss M. Hagen were received with roars of laughter and applause, while the dialogues were equally well ready. Total proceeds were $43.40 and after paying expenses there will be at least $35 to hand over to the United Farmers social committee The management would take this opportunity to thank everybody in Wynndel for their support and appreciation of the biggest event of the sort ever put on here.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Uri were at home on Tuesday night at a birthday party in honor of Elias Uri, which was largely attended in spite of the disagreeable weather. Cards and games were the features of the fore part of the evening, followed by refreshments, after which there were a couple of hours dancing. All present report a fine time.

Wynndel had two farmers' meetings on Monday night. At 7.30 the Co-Operative Fruit Growers had an important session at which fruit shipping and overhead irrigation was discussed. This meeting was held at the depot, and at 8 adjournment was made to the schoolhouse for a meeting of the United Farmers. The main feature was the reading of the delegate's report on the Victoria convention, which was very closely followed by all present. At its conclusion O. J. Wigen said a few words of appreciation of the excellent report that had been made and proposed a vote of thanks, that carried enthusiastically. A sick and welfare committee was also named, two members to constitute the committee and to be appointed for one month only.

The Flu Situation

With a death toll of four adults to date it looks safe to say that the flu epidemic has passed its worst stage and matters are now making rapid progress back to normal. To cope with the situation it was found nesessary to conscript the Methodist Church building for a hospital and it has been in use for that purpose since March 1st, seven patients having been taken care of in this way, with Mrs. Blackwell of Nelson in charge on the day side, and Mrs. J. P. Johnston in command of the night shift, the nursing staff being a volunteer lot of ladies secured largely through the efforts of Mrs. Mallandaine, president of the local Red Cross Society. The school has been closed since the first of the month, and public meetings have been likewise strictly prohibited.

Births

HURL—At Creston, March 10, to Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hurl, Lister, a son.

The Berry Market

The outlook for the small fruit grower for the coming season looks more than usually promising. It was said by many last year that the record price of that year could not be maintained, but it seems clear at the present time that not only will the old level be reached, but higher prices will prevail.

Growers of small fruit in the Gordon Head district state that they have already signed contracts for this year's crop of strawberries on a basis of 20c per lb. This is an advance of from 2 to 3 cents on last year's price, and it looked good enough for them to sign up for the delivery of at least 250 tons to a Vancouver factory. The price of strawberries last year ran from $3.50 to $4.00, but it is doubtful if the consumer will be able to get them this year at less than $4.25. Raspberries, too, are expected to be higher in spite of a largely increased acreage under crop.

Arrangements for united action of all the growers have also been made, and it is fully expected that acting as a unit all troubles arising from freight rates, labor troubles, sugar shortage etc., will be reduced to a minimum.

At Trail the school trustees have been given $4200 to purchase a site for a new high school but the council would not vote the $40,000 asked to erect and equip the new building.

1920 Fall Fair Needlework Prizes

Below will be found a list of the articles on which awards will be made at the 1920 exhibition of the Creston Valley Agricultural Association. The prize list committee have two objects in view in submitting this at so early a date. The main object is to furnish the ladies with the information so that they can utilize some of the spare time they have at this time of year to get their needlework articles for the fair under way. The other reason is to give people the information in the hope that if they have suggestions to make as to other articles that prizes should be offered for they will advise the prize list committee so that the articles may be added and appear in the printed prize list that will appear later on. Suggestions of this sort are specially solicited and will be cheerfully received by Mrs. Cook or Mrs. Maxwell, or can be left at The Review office. For the benefit of intending exhibitors we would like to say that arrangements are being made to pay even more attractive prizes than last year, especially in the sections that call for a show of a collection of articles. In the needlework class the awards so far arranged are as follows:

Tatting.
Half dozen buttenholes made on double white cotton.
Pair hand knit socks.
Pair hand-knit (men's) double mitts
Pair hand knit gloves.
Best darning on worn socks.
Towel with filet crochet.

Crochet trimmed nightdress.
Collection crochet work, 5 pieces.
Best pieced and quilted quilt.

Braided mat, 2 x 3 feet.
Pair pillow cases with crochet.
Pair pillow cases with knitting.

Collection five different kinds of fancy work.

Machine made underskirt.
Fancy tea apron.
Knitted sweater, with sleeves, in wool.
Collection of home mending— Darn on table linen, tare darned on woollen goods, patched hole on cotton goods, patched hole on woollen goods. Darning and patching to be shown on goods not less than 6 x 6 inches in size.

Half dozen butten holes in cotton.
Handmade camisolem of cotton.
Tatting-edged handkerchief.
Crochet cake plate doyley.
Patched hole on cotton goods.
Machine made underskirt.
Hand knit socks.

There will, of course, be prizes for juvenile cooking and in some other lines, and the prize list committee would assure that in the matter of prizes more generous consideration will be shown this year than was the case in 1919. Prizes in books and magazines will be entirely eliminated this year.

A February Wedding

A wedding of interest to Valley people was solmenized at the home of Mrs. H. Truscott on Saturday evening, February 28th, when Miss Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Waldie of Fairview (Nelson), was united in marriage with Percy R. Truscott of Creston, Rev. T. McCord officiating. The bride's costume was of white silk. The couple were unattended and the event was witnessed by only the immediate friends and relatives. A sumptuous wedding supper followed the ceremony. The happy event was originally planned for the bride's home but due to the flu epidemic in the Valley the happy event had to be transferred to the present home. The bride was on the Nelson General Hospital staff, while the groom is one of the Valley well-known younger set, and incidentally the first member of the Creston district brass band to join the ranks of the benedicts. Mr. and Mrs. Truscott will reside on Cornwall Ranch, and to them is extended heartiest wishes for a long and happy wedded life.

CHAPTER XVIII.

The old De Nitry place in Neuilly proved to be precisely what Ruggles wanted. The high walls about the grounds enclosed a little park with some fine old trees, a flower garden, a tennis court, stables, and a garage. The house was spacious and modern within, and there was a pavilion, of which the upper story was a roomy studio.

Ruggles was delighted with the place, and lost no time in securing it. Being personally recommended to the family by Mr. Falconer, an honored friend of years' standing, he was enabled to rent the house practically furnished.

In the meantime, Mr. Falconer called upon Miss Challand. At first she would not hear of Ruggles's proposition. Darthea's sense of the bizarre inclined her to favor the idea, but Miss Challand rather resented Mr. Falconer's suggesting such a thing. But when the old gentleman assured her that many women of his acquaintance, quite as well connected as she, were constantly filling such positions —which were, as a matter of fact, only open to people of birth and breeding—Miss Challand began to grow pensive.

For one thing, the lease of their apartment was to expire in the autumn, and they had been informed that the rent was to be raised a third. Miss Challand had not been able to see just how they were going to be able to afford to remain in Paris, and Darthea was very loath to return to England.

And then the astute old gentleman laid down his best card. Darthea was, of course, expected to remain with her aunt, and Ruggles would feel more than compensated for her entainment in having before the eyes of his wards such an admirable exponent of what a well-bred young lady should be. If Miss Challand and Darthea would consent to become members of the household, Ruggles would place at their exclusive disposal the pavilion, with its studio, and the apartment connected with it. He described the studio, with its spaciousness and splendid light, and the quiet beauty of the gardens.

Darthea's studio had been her chief despair. It cramped and stifled her. During the winter there were many whole days when she had not the light to work at all. But aside from the question of the studio there were other considerations which inclined Darthea to favor Ruggles's proposition. One was that she knew her aunt to be depriving herself of many necessities of life in order that her niece might not lack for the materials required in her work, such as good colors, canvases, brushes, and the like, all of which are dear when of the best quality. Miss Challand stoutly averred that she felt much better without such luxuries as juicy steaks, cutlets, chicken, sole, and the like, but it was evident to Darthea that her aunt had been for some time below her robust normal, and the girl ascribed this to the need of the proper amount of nourishing food, well cooked and served. The hope of selling a picture alone had prevented her from economizing in the matter of materials.

The other and lesser consideration was that Darthea had begun to find life deadly dull. Art is not everything, despite what artists claim to believe, and Darthea, being young and full-natured, sadly missed the recreations of most girls of her age. She was intensely interested in Ruggles and his unusual household, and she could not help but reflect on the diversion to be obtained from being a member of such an unusual menage.

So in the end, after many long and intricate arguments, the two ladies gave their official acceptance of Ruggles's offer and were in due time installed in the comfortable pavilion of the De Nitry place.

In due course of time Miss Elliot, with her four interesting charges, arrived in Paris, to be met at the station by Mustapha with the car, Ruggles preferring to welcome the party at the house.

Miss Elliot had also in her suite Selim, that incomparable dragoman and courier, Sarah, and a little ladies' maid of Levantine origin. The five ladies were placed in the limousine and dispatched immediately with Mustapha, the other servants following.

Four rather dazed and bewildered damsels offered their slim hands to the smiling Ruggles, though the eyes of one of them were not so amazed that they failed to light with a sudden glow as they looked for a swift instant into those of the master. The girls were then turned over to Sarah, to whom Mustapha had already indicated their apartments.

As they rustled up the marble stairway, whispering one to the other, Miss Elliot turned to Ruggles. Her bright face wore a curious expression of mingled pleasure and perplexity.

"It's stunning—perfectly stunning!" said she, glancing about her at the marble-columned ante-chamber and the stately chambers that opened off from either side. "Oh, if he could only have foreseen"—And she drew down the corners of her mobile mouth.

"Foreseen what?" Ruggles demanded.

[illegible] and I [illegible] get it off my chest. Where can [illegible] be alone for half an hour?"

Rather startled, Ruggles led her in[illegible] of the billiard room, [illegible] a heavy [illegible] armchair, Ruggles seating [illegible] opposite.

"[illegible] the matter?" he demanded.

"[illegible]," said she.

"All [illegible]?" Ruggles echoed, scarce[illegible] "[illegible] what's matter with all this?"

"[illegible] except that we don't [illegible]."

"We don't need it. Why don't we [illegible]?"

Miss Elliot stared for a moment at his round, astonished eyes, then dropped her face into her hands and her pretty shoulders began to shake. Ruggles gaped at her, too bewildered to speak. Miss Elliot's shoulders shook harder and she began to gasp.

"Say," said Ruggles solicitously, "don't do that. Here—stop it. What's struck you, anyhow?"

The only answer was a more violent convulsion. Ruggles reached out one arm, seized her wrist, and gave it a tug. Miss Elliot straightened up and looked at him with a flushed face and sparkling eyes. The gasping ceased.

"Why don't we need it?" Ruggles repeated.

"Because—because—they're—all engaged!"

"Wh-what?"

She nodded. "That is, they will be as soon as you give your official consent," said she, "and there's no reason I can see why you shouldn't."

"Gee!" Ruggles leaned back in his chair, speechless. "How engaged? Engaged to what?"

"Engaged to be married," retorted Miss Elliot, "and to four very desirable young men. Now, listen, while I check 'em off. First, there's Roxana. Who do you think wants to marry her?"

"Search me."

"Pembroke."

"P-P-P-Pembroke—"

"No less. He got to coming over pretty often after you left, and as he was so nice, and had been a sort of an executor, as you might say, I got in the habit of asking him for tea at the kiosk. To tell the truth,"—she drew down the corners of her mouth, —"I rather got the idea that he was interested in me."

"In you!" Ruggles's tone was not the height of flattery.

"Well, you needn't be so terribly complimentary. He'd been awfully nice to me, and I began to get ideas. But no such luck. He came to look at Roxana—and you really can't blame him much, considering that she was the pick of a section of country about the size of France. He talked to her a good deal, but that wasn't surprising, as she is far the most intelligent of the lot. Then one day she sang some weird little melancholy songs to the accompaniment of the harp, and—Oh, what was the use? He's crazy about her. The day before we left, he told me that he was coming on to marry her. He takes your consent for granted."

"Gee!—" Ruggles reached for his handkerchief.

"Rosa—that baby? Oh, say—?"

"That baby can walk and talk," said Miss Elliot dryly. "That baby drugged Hassan and climbed down a wistaria vine with the assistance of a handsome young Italian who lives with his invalid mother in one of those villas on the edge of the Bosphorus just below the palace. Fortunately I happened to be rather sleepless that night and heard the vine rustle and went out with Sarah to investigate. We caught them in each other's arms on the stone bench where you sat and waited that day. In spite of his indiscreet behavior, he seemed to be a nice boy, and after [illegible] I had a little talk with him. The upshot of it was he told me his name and how it all came about. The girls were on the landing one day, waiting for the launch. Hassan left them for a moment to get something which had been forgotten, and Selim was in the boathouse, his boy, whose name is Humberto, is the Conte del Castelfranco, and belongs to one of the best and oldest families in Italy—"

"Gee! He acts up to it, all right," panted Ruggles.

An English vicar and his curate had quarelled and the latter was requested to find some other congregation to minister to. The curate therefore preached his farewell sermon, and the parishioners came in crowds to hear him. Loyalty Impresses Jellicoe

Says Dominion Keen on Importance of Sea Power

Admiral Viscount Jellicoe says that he has returned to England greatly impressed with the loyalty of the dominions, where he found a very keen perception of the importance of sea power. The dominions fully realized that if they maintained their own naval forces they would require to act in close co-operation with the imperial navy should circumstances call for war operations.

DARTING, PIERCING SCIATIC PAINS

Darwin found parrots on the bleak rocks of Tierra del Fuego, but as a rule these birds, in the native state, are found only in the tropics.

It Works! Try It

Good news spreads rapidly, and druggists here are kept busy dispensing freezone, the ether discovery of a Cincinnati man, which is said to loosen any corn so it lifts out with the fingers.

Ask at any pharmacy for a quarter ounce of freezone, which will cost very little, but is said to be sufficient to rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or callus.

You apply just a few drops on the tender, aching corn and instantly the soreness is relieved, and soon the corn is so shrivelled that it lifts out without pain. It is a sticky substance which dries when applied and never inflames or even irritates the adjoining tissue.

This discovery will prevent thousands of deaths annually from lockjaw and infection heretofore resulting from the suicidal habit of cutting corns.

Government Disposes Of Land

Only Small Quantity Now Remains for Sale in Manitoba

Great increase in the sale of government lands during 1919 is announced in the report of Premier Norris, provincial lands commissioner, laid on the table of the legislature of Manitoba, which states that only a small percentage of really first-class farming lands remains to be sold. The report tells of a large influx of settlers, many of them from the Western Provinces, and points out that, owing to the institution of effective draining systems, wild land in parts of the province has practically doubled in value. In 1919, 16,151 acres were sold at $143,139. Only 50,592 acres of farm land remain to be sold, and the prices are given at from $4 to $17 an acre.

MUCH SUFFERING DUE TO THIN BLOOD

Rich ,Red Blood Necessary to Health And Strength

If more people knew how many ills and pains are caused by thin, watery blood a great deal of suffering would be avoided. Men and women often suffer for long periods from stomach trouble, headache, palpitation of the heart, and nervous complaints such as neuralgia, without suspecting that anaemia or bloodlessness is the cause.

The blood goes to practically every part of the body, carrying oxygen and nourishment. The efficient action of every organ is directly dependent upon the quality of the nourishment it gets from the blood. If the blood is thin it becomes weak in nourishment and health fails. The best way to keep the blood rich and red and thus enjoy good health is through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. At the first sign of weakness these pills should be taken and good robust health will soon follow. The statement of Mrs. J. J. Murray, Corbetton, Ont., shows the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in cases of this kind. She says:—"A few years ago my daughter, Lillie, was in a very badly run down condition. She was pale, thin, and scarcely able to go about. The least exertion made her heart palpitate so violently that we were actually afraid one of these spells might carry her off. She slept so badly that often she would lie awake until morning. Treatment did not seem to help her and we were almost in despair when a friend advised the use of Dr. Williams Pink Pills. A few weeks' use of this medicine showed a decided improvement, and a further use of the pills fully restored her to health, and she has since been a strong, healthy girl. Some time later I was taken ill myself, being badly run down from household care. A doctor was called in but his medicine did not seem to bring back my strength, and remembering what Dr. Williams Pink Pills had done for my daughter, I decided to drop the doctor's medicine and try them. The results that followed were like those in my daughter's case, and through the use of the pills I was soon a well woman. I am glad to give my experience in the hope that some other sufferer may find the way to health."

You can procure Dr. Williams Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine, or they will be sent you by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing direct to The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Catarrhal Deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE acts through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces of the System. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing may be destroyed forever. Many cases of Deafness are caused by Catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the Mucous Surfaces.

A Happy Family

BY DR. S. C. BOWERS.

A happy family is one that can sit down to the table with keen appetites and good cheer. Plenty of the out-of-doors and cleanliness, inside and outside of the body, will make for health, wealth and happiness. Your doctor will tell you that anything from a headache to the most serious illness may result from allowing food to ferment in the intestines. The first thing to do in case you feel mean, logy, dull, perhaps feverish, is to flush the liver and kidneys, drink plenty of water, and take a dose of castor oil, or, something better, made of May-apple, aloin and jalap, and long sold by almost every druggist as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. This may save you from a fit of sickness, remove the poisons from the system and give the tissues of the body a chance to build up and resist disease.

People are realizing more and more that the kidneys, just as do the bowels, need to be flushed occasionally. The kidneys are an eliminative organ and are constantly working, separating the poisons from the blood. Uric acid backs up into the system, causing rheumatism, neuralgia, dropsy and many other serious disturbances.

This can be avoided by stimulating the kidneys to increased action, and because of its tonic effect on these organs I would advise any one to get Anuric (anti-uric-acid) which is to be had nowadays for fifty cents, at almost any drug store.

CRESTON, B.C., FRIDAY, MAR. 12

About Ourselves

To our readers, at outside points particularly, a word of explanation is due for the non-arrival of THE REVIEW of February 27th and March 5th.

The reason for this omission is not difficult to state. On the morning of February 23rd an overheated stovepipe set fire to the front part of THE REVIEW building, and before the blaze was extinguished, the business office and stockroom were totally destroyed, while the printery and pressroom in the back part were also messed up by the blaze and the efforts of the fire-fighters to confine the conflagration to the front office.

In addition to the fire damage the printery was badly disarranged owing to the hasty removal of the entire plant with the exception of the two presses and paper cutter, and pending the arrival of the insurance adjuster from Calgary to appraise the fire loss it was impossible to put the plant back in working shape.

To add to the trouble the adjuster was taken ill en route here, and did not arrive until March 2nd, and although he speedily and very satisfactorily arranged matters it was then too late in the week to handle an issue for March 5th, so there was nothing for it but the two weeks' skip.

In connection with our misfortune we take this opportunity to genuinely thank the able corps of volunteer fire-fighters who responded to the alarm and with nothing but a bucket brigade to cope with the situation fought the fire so successfully as to keep it from spreading into the printery, to say nothing of keeping it from catching on Orr's jewelry store, which is but three feet distant. We also equally fully appreciate the splendid and careful effort of those who helped salvage the type, etc. That they were able to successfully remove the quite complete plant we have with but one spill of type is the best testimony we can offer to their care and ability.

Our thanks are also due the Cranbrook Courier and Herald, both of which offices wired that their plants were at our disposal and that if we supplied the "copy" they would jointly or severally see to it that no issue of THE REVIEW need be missed.

In about ten days we hope to be occupying premises much the same as before the fire, which occasioned a loss of $800 fairly well covered by insurance. As soon as the front office is available and telephone reinstalled we hope to have THE REVIEW in its old-time shape to serve up the news while it is news of Creston Valley.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Creston Hospital

EDITOR REVIEW:

SIR,—A little over a year ago we had an epidemic of influenza, and again during the past two weeks we have had another seige of it.

Last year we were unprepared inasmuch as we had no hospital prepared, no regular staff of nurses and no regular system laid out to fight the complaint. The consequence was that temporary premises had to be obtained, hurriedly furnished and voluntary aid called upon, and the best possible done for patients under the existing circumstances.

In spite of this experience nothing appears to have been done in the way of preparedness for a recurrence, hence the same temporary expedients had again to be resorted to and through the energetic efforts of the ladies of the Red Cross aided by volunteer nurses with the supervision of our local doctor good work has been done, and all credit, praise and thanks are due to this unselfish little band of workers, many of whom have had to neglect their own homes.

But, Mr. Editor, Creston has grown out of its swaddling clothes and will continue to grow, and should stand on its own feet and not be dependent on the good nature of a few citizens only to take care of the sick. Is it not time a small hospital should be established and maintained? Many places smaller than Creston support small hospitals, and in looking over the Public Accounts of the Provincial Government I note some 68 hospitals receive aid in the way of statutory grants from the government besides which last year special grants were made. Why not Creston?

Of course it is necessary, no doubt that the public should make a start; first by way of subscription, and to this end I would respectfully suggest—having all due respect to our noble citizens who laid down their lives for our sakes in the late war—that the committee in charge of the Soldiers' Memorial Fund seriously consider whether the amount of money subscribed for a memorial would not be as well spent in erecting a small hospital building and dedicating it as a Soldiers' Memorial Hospital, thus accomplishing its purpose as a memorial to our dead heroes as well as being an aid to the living.

May I state, in conclusion, that I have taken upon myself to write to the Government for full particulars in reference to hospital grants, etc., and in the meantime I hope the citizens will give their earnest and serious thoughts to this very necessary institution.

Grand Forks Presbyterian church has a junior choir with 30 members.

Fernie council has cut police magistrate Whimster's salary from $100 to $50 a month.

This year the laborers employed by the Rossland city council will draw $4.50 per day.

The store clerks at Fernie have organized a union, with a membership of 25 to start with.

Even the clergymen at Cranbrook are receiving price lists from export houses in Alberta.

Nelson hospital has a nursing staff totalling twenty. Fifteen of them are nurses in training.

Trail smelter will enlarge its copper refinery to increase the output from 20 to 50 tons per day.

The school tax rate at Penticton this year will be 14 mills. A year ago 8 mills was ample.

The big Swift packing house refuses to sell meat to those who have butcher stalls at the Rossland public market.

The hospital at Cranbrook is filled to capacity. Last week three of the nurses were numbered among the patients.

Saturday last was a busy day at Kaslo hospital. Dr. Martin was down from Nelson and performed three operations.

Since its incorporation in 1899 Revelstoke has had twelve different mayors. H. F. McKinnon has had the job for five years.

The Presbyterian pastor at Penticton reports that last year the Sunday school attendance averaged 98 pupils per Sunday.

Grand Forks claims its fruit export in 1919 was almost $260,000. About $45,000 worth of vegetables were also shipped out.

Vernon's 1920 mayor is a returned soldier. In a three-cornered fight he had a majority over the total vote of his two opponents.

Trail police court gathered in $2300 in fines last year, thereby reducing the cost of police protection to some $1700 direct from the taxes.

Oscar Erickson claims to have received $1900 for 36 marten skins which he trapped on Findlay Creek, a tributary to the Kootenay River.

Kaslo Presbyterians are out to raise $1500 this year for the pastor's salary and be thereby independent of any mission fund handouts.

At Revelstoke the farmers are asking the council to erect a municipal drive shed in which the rural visitors can put their driving rigs and nags.

At Fernie they are not hoping for much improvement in law observance. For 1920 the council estimates the police court fines will amount to $2500.

As only $140 was collected in fines last year Grand Forks council cannot see its way clear to give Magistrate McCallum a $600 a year boost in salary.

A religious census of Kaslo shows the town to have a population of just under 800. Included in the lot is a couple of dozen Chinamen and one Jap.

Things are running so smooth in other directions at Cranbrook that the board of trade will ask the council to oil rather than sprinkle the city streets this year.

At Trail a home nursing class is organized and about two dozen girls are receiving instructions to be ready for emergencies if the flu breaks out again in that city.

Notwithstanding anticipated substantial revenues from police court fines at their February meeting Fernie council decided to get along with one less policeman.

Principal Glaspel of Grand Forks public school wants a raise in pay from $174 to $240 a month. Failure to get the raise will see him quit teaching to go into commercial life.

The forward movement went off well at Penticton. The Anglicans got 50 per cent more than their quota, while the Presbyterians almost trebled the amount required of them.

Cranbrook needs more and better hotel accommodation and the board of trade will ask the C.P.R. to erect a modern and commodious hostelry in the East Kootenay metropolis.

If sufficient new business is furnished the telephone company at Fernie it is proposed to cut the rate on house phones to $180 per month and business phones will cost only $3.00.

Wisconsin and Michigan lumber interests are reported to have paid $400,000 for 10,000 acres of timber on the Moyie River, and may build a mill at Wattsburg or thereabout wherein to manufacture it. The timber is largely spruce.

The Presbyterian Ladies' Aid at Penticton, which has been out of business for five years, in order to allow the members to busy themselves at Red Cross work, has been reorganized and is out to get enough money to buy a new organ for the church.

The no-below-zero weather story emanating at Kaslo would not appear to be quite correct. At Shutty Bench, one of the suburbs, Mr. Shutty found it necessary to heat his hen house, and stoked up so vigorously one night recently that the poultry shed caught fire and was burned to the ground.

Life in the Old Land Yet

Filled with admiration as all Canadians were by the wonderful achievements of Great Britain during the war, and proud that the Old Land stood ready to sacrifice anything and everything to win victory for liberty, humanity and civilization, many people were apprehensive that when the war was over Britain would be so financially weakened, and so disorganized industrially, that it would have permanently lost its outstanding position among the nations of the world; that, in a word, British preeminence in finance, shipping and world trade would have passed beyond recall to the United States.

In order to carry on the war, Great Britain not only spent huge sums herself, but loaned hundreds of millions to nations upon rather doubtful security. In order to do this the Old Land disposed of her foreign-held securities, which constituted one of the large sources of her national income, and from being a lending nation became a borrowing one, obtaining enormous sums from the United States. In many quarters it was confidently predicted that, as a result, New York and not London would be the future financial centre of the world.

During the war British shipping was destroyed by the piratical submarines faster than new ships could be built, while practically all the shipping in existence was diverted from mercantile to war purposes. Coincident with this, the United States, which prior to the war had no mercantile marine worthy the name, seized the occasion to embark upon a great Government shipbuilding program, and in addition it secured the nucleus of a mercantile marine from the seizure of interned German ships.

In the third place, the whole of Great Britain's great industrial enterprises were diverted from usual peacetime manufacture and mobilized for the manufacture of munitions and other war material, while during the years from August 4, 1914, until the United States entered the war in April, 1917, the latter country was busily engaged in manufacturing supplies of all kinds at large profits for the belligerent nations of Europe, thus gaining enormously at a time when Great Britain's industries were devoting all their activities to war work.

It was but natural that, under these circumstances, many people should be fearful for Great Britain's future. And those fears were by no means allayed when, following the armistice, one great strike followed another in Britain, thus retarding the rapid reconstruction of British industry on a peace-time basis. Even today, the unheard of depreciation of the British pound sterling on the American money markets is regarded with anxious concern by people in this country as indicating a weakness in the British position.

These doubts and fears are further encouraged because of the fact that United States newspapers and magazines, filled with flamboyant articles predicting American supremacy in the world of finance, shipping, industry and commerce, are widely read in Canada. It is reassuring, however, to turn to well-informed British opinion on the outlook and to find that these pessimistic views do not find reflection in the Old Land itself. One of the best informed men in Great Britain is Lord Northcliffe, head of the London Times and a hundred other daily, weekly and monthly publications. He has avenues of information open to him which few men in the world enjoy. And Lord Northcliffe is the reverse of pessimistic.

In a recent interview with an American journalist he is more than optimistic over the labor situation in the British Isles, and lays particular emphasis upon the fact that while in the United States they have to deal with a large percentage of foreign-born workers, British labor is composed overwhelmingly of men and women of English, Scotch, Irish and Welsh birth. Great Britain is solving her labor troubles upon sound lines and in an efficient way. Nor does he fear the competition of cheap labor and long working hours in countries like Japan, where present conditions, he says, cannot last. Industrially, Lord Northcliffe backs the skilled British workman and mechanic against the world.

In regard to shipping, Lord Northcliffe is absolutely confident that Great Britain will retain her supremacy. In this connection he says: "We expect very heavy competition at sea, but it is not disturbing our able and far-seeing shipping men. We rely for our supremacy in shipping upon our superior knowledge of a business which we have understood for centuries. Our people like shipping. Our people like being at sea. I do not think you (United States) are going to get many American seamen from the majority of your states and territories. Why should you? There is abundant opportunity at higher wages to be had on land, which is not the case in a small country like ours. I do not think you will have any more chance of competing with us at sea than we have in competing with you in the erection of skyscrapers."

Lord Northcliffe advances a further reason in support of his belief that Britain will retain supremacy in world shipping, a reason of particular interest to Canadians, but an outline of this, together with his views on Britain's strong financial position, will be treated in a subsequent article.

HEALTHY CHILDREN ARE HAPPY CHILDREN

The well child is always a happy child — it is a baby's nature to be happy and contented. Mothers, if your little ones are cross and peevish and cry a great deal they are not well—they are in need of medicine—something that will set their bowels and stomach in order, for nine-tenths of all childhood ailments arise from a disordered state of the bowels and stomach. Such a medicine is Baby's Own Tablets. They are a mild but thorough laxative which regulate the bowels, sweeten the stomach, and thus drive out constipation, colic, indigestion; break up colds and simple fevers and make the baby healthy and happy. Concerning them, Mrs. Albert Hamel, Pierreville, Que., writes: — "Baby's Own Tablets are the best medicine I know of for little ones. They relieved my little girl from constipation when nothing else would and I can strongly recommend them to other mothers." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

He Played the Game

Duty Done With Devotion, and in a Human and Cheerful Spirit

The Prince of Wales has grown to full stature as a national, and more than national, personality; and no public event since the conclusion of the armistice has more strongly appealed to the general imagination than his visit to Canada, with its memorable conclusion in the United States. King George has said of that four months' progress what all of us have felt, that the Prince "played up from the beginning to the end." There is no statelier form of words which hits so precisely the mark of meaning for the British race as that simple phrase of sportsmanship. It signifies the thing that has brought both father and son, with all their family, so close as they are to the national heart. Duty done with devotion, and in a human and cheerful spirit, wing our regard as [illegible] peoples are rejoiced to see the virtue so especially prized embodied so completely in the Monarchy that is the symbol of their union.—London Daily Telegraph.

Order-in-Council Gives Greater Control to Minister of Interior

An order-in-council has been gazetted doubling the rental on oil and natural gas locations in the Western Provinces, and giving the minister of the interior greater control over oil and gas developments. The rental in future will be fifty cents per acre for the first year, and one dollar for each subsequent year, such increase to apply on all applications submitted after March 1, 1920. Section 40 of the petroleum and natural gas regulations is rescinded, and the following clause substituted therefor:

"A company acquiring by assignment or otherwise a lease under the provisions of these regulations shall be a company registered or licensed in Canada, and having its principal place of business within His Majesty's dominions."

No Very Drastic Liquor Reforms For Great Britain

London.—The parliamentary representative of the Pall Mall Gazette, discussing impending legislation with regard to control of the liquor traffic, says that the measures at present contemplated are not calculated to rouse any great feeling in the country. He points out that the government's plans provide for strict limitation of the hours of sale, but involve only minor changes in the present hours, which are virtually a continuation of the hours in effect under war restrictions.

One of the main features of the scheme is for improvement of the saloons, the correspondent says. The number of licenses will be reduced in certain districts. No attempt will be made to provide local option, but the future of this question will depend largely on the result of the Scottish experiment this year.

SHORT OF BREATH

Could Hardly Walk Without Resting.

When you go to a physician to be examined for any heart trouble, one of the first questions he asks is: "Are you short of breath?"

Now, when the heart becomes affected there ensues a feeling of a choking sensation, a shortness of breath, palpitation, throbbing, irregular beating, smothering sensation, dizziness and a weak, sinking, all-gone feeling of oppression and anxiety.

On the first sign of the heart becoming weakened or the nerves unstrung Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are just the remedy you require. They regulate and stimulate the heart, and strengthen and restore the whole nerve system.

Mr. Stephen Crouse, East Clifford, N.S., writes: "I suffered for five years with heart trouble. I could hardly walk from the house to the barn without resting, as I used to get so short of breath. Doctors could not help me. My wife told me to get a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and I felt better after taking them; three boxes made me quite well. I am now helping my son to work the farm, and can truthfully say I feel like a different man."

Amsterdam.—Former Crown Prince Wilhelm of Germany sent his telegram to the heads of allied governments offering to surrender in place of Germans demanded in the allied extradition list, almost on the impulse of the moment, according to an interview with Major Von Mulnheim, the former Crown Prince's adjutant, published in the Telegraaf.

The former heir to the German throne," said the major, after confirming reports that a telegram had been sent, "took his resolution without thinking long about it. The return of Baron Von Lersner from Paris and the serious situation which has arisen in Berlin in consequence, prompted the prince to send his telegram. He hopes by this to avert serious difficulties for Germany."

Borden May Retire

Dispatches from England Indicate That Premier's Health Is Far From Being Restored

Ottawa.—Doubt whether Sir Robert Borden will be able to resume the active premiership has been raised by press dispatches from London. The dispatches indicated that his health is yet far from restored. If such continues to be the case, his retirement from political life is regarded here as inevitable.

So far the government is without word of Sir Robert's intentions. He left for three or four months' holiday without any definite destination in view, although it was his intention to accompany Lord Jellicoe to South Africa had Lord Jellicoe gone there. No official mail is being forwarded to Sir Robert, as it is desired that his rest should be as complete as possible.

It is thought, however, that Sir Robert's stay in England will be of brief duration. It is regarded as likely that he will either go to the Riviera or perhaps return to this side of the Atlantic and go south. Should Sir Robert decide again to take up his active political duties, he will probably be back in Ottawa in the early summer. Unless the coming session of parliament is unduly prolonged, the expectation is that Sir Robert will be unable to be back in time to take active part in its proceedings. Among the advance guard of Unionist members already arrived there is much discussion over the situation and the possible outcome of the party caucus which will be called to discuss policy of the government.

Most people know what they don't want also that they don't often get what they do want.

Livestock Contract Is Discussed by C.P.R. Heads

Railways Would Need New Department to Care for Cattle En Route

Ottawa.—In the opinion of Mr. Chas. Murphy, general manager of the Canadian Pacific western lines, the railways should not be required to take care of cattle en route. In a somewhat lengthy statement which he made to the railway commissioners when the livestock contract case was continued. Mr. Murphy argued this was the responsibility of the shipper and not the carrier.

The railways, he said, would need an army of men for the sole purpose of caring for cattle if they were required to do so, and as agreements with the trainmen and agents precluded their being asked to do this kind of work, it would mean the creation of an entirely new department by the railways. The expense of this would be prohibitive.

Mr. Murphy opened his statement by emphasising the point that the C.P.R. was interested in the development of the livestock industry and anxious to give the shippers the best possible service. He drew attention to the difficulties which the railways had to contend with in the shipment of cattle during the winter owing to the very severe climate in the West, and stated that sometimes when cars containing cattle were shipped across the line it was difficult to get them back. Turning to the question of attending to the cattle en route, he emphasised the possibility that this should be the shippers' responsibility, and stated that the Canadian Pacific Railway was running special stock trains with a coach attached for accommodation of attendants. The railwaymen, said Mr. Murphy, were willing to help out in caring for the animals when delays occurred, but they would resent having to do this as part of their duties. He caused some amusement by suggesting to Mr. George Henderson, who was examining him, that Mr. Henderson interview representatives of the trainmen's unions and see if they would accept the proposition that their members be called upon to care for the cattle en route.

Chief Commissioner Carvell asked Mr. Murphy for an estimate of the number of men who would be required to care for cattle en route on the main lines of the Canadian Pacific Railway in the West, but Mr. Murphy was unable to answer this.

The protection of attendants travelling with the cattle should, he thought, be provided for through the insurance companies.

Suggest Holding Conference On Exchange Rate

London.—J. Austen Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, has announced that the government was willing to participate in an international financial conference if invited by one of the neutral nations or by the League of Nations, on being satisfied that the conference would assume a really representative character.

The announcement of Mr. Chamberlain was made in reply to a recent memorial from bankers and others.

The Chancellor said that the government wished to make it absolutely clear that in the event of Great Britain's participation the government could not support or take a share in any scheme involving an addition to the liabilities of Great Britain for expenditures in the United States.

Mr. Chamberlain agreed that the picture drawn by the authors of the memorial was not exaggerated. He declared the attitude of the United States government was a matter of first importance, as it seemed doubtful whether the United States' participation could be obtained, and this must gravely affect the influence and utility of such a conference. The government, however, was unwilling to omit any act calculated to alleviate the situation, and, therefore, would participate on the stipulated conditions.

The government, Mr. Chamberlain continued, was impressed with the futility of attempting to solve the problem by new borrowing, either by internal or external loans, the cessation of which had been laid down as the cardinal feature of its own policy; nor could the government grant further advances to other countries.

"The government feels the need of contributing to the reconstruction of Europe," Mr. Chamberlain added, "and is inclined to make certain exceptions to the general principle that loans from government to government should cease. The government at the present moment is engaged in discussions with the governments of Canada, United States and France, and certain other countries, including some which did not share in the war, with regard to the provisions of government credits to Austria and Poland for the supply of foodstuffs and raw materials sufficient to enable these countries to avert famine and restart their industrial life."

Opposition to State Ownership

Conference of Miners and Producers Objected to Nationalization of Any Industry

London. — After considerable discussion of the question of nationalization of mines, the conference of miners and producers convoked by the federation of British industries passed a resolution against a state ownership, and state ownership of any branch of industry.

Sir Sam Nimmo, vice-president of the Mining Association of Great Britain, who presented the resolution, said that the meaning of the demand of miners for nationalization was an effort to seize the vitals of the community and force out of the community conditions as to wages and employment which the miners believed they ought to obtain.

After nationalization of mines, Mr. Nimmo stated, labor intended to nationalize the land, shipping, banking and insurance, and ultimately secure in their hands the whole means of production of the country.

As Might be Expected

King's Speech Is Not Favored By the Irish Press

London.—Irish press comment on the King's speech follows:

The Freeman's Journal: "The references in the speech to Ireland are a mockery of public intelligence."

The Irish Times: "The government is treating the Home Rule Bill as no government has ventured to treat any of its predecessors. No party or interest in Ireland has been consulted about it. The government clearly intends to rush the new bill through parliament, and regards the emptiness of the Irish benches as a stroke of good luck rather than a misfortune.

The Irish Independent: "The bill is for the partition of Ireland, and, moreover, will withhold all the essential elements of self-government. The Irish people will not give the bill a moment's serious consideration."

Bad Breath IS CAUSED BY CATARRH

Canadians suffer more from Catarrh than from any other disease. On this account Catarrh is dangerous and should be checked at the outset.

It isn't necessary to take internal medicine to cure Catarrh. There is a far better method.

Doctors now treat Catarrh by sending a purifying, healing vapor through the breathing organs. In this way the germs of Catarrh are destroyed.

The only successful vapor treatment is CATARRHOZONE, which the patient breathes through a special inhaler to the real seat of the trouble. The rich, piney essences of Catarrhozone heal and soothe all inflamed surfaces. They effectively treat the nose, throat and lungs with a powerful antiseptic that destroys irritation at once.

Catarrhozone brings into the system the balmy air of the pine forest. It cures completely colds, coughs, catarrh, weak throat, and bronchitis.

Once tried, Catarrhozone is always used. Nothing so pleasant, so simple, so quick to relieve, so absolutely sure to permanently cure. Accept no substitute. Large size lasts two months, and costs $1.00; small size 50c; sample trial size 25c; at all dealers.

Do you realize that the Balance Wheel of your Watch makes 432,000 revolutions every day in in the year?

And the fittings are so delicate that the 100th part of a hair would interfere with its performance.

The friction from accumulating dirt, lack of oil, etc., destroy these fittings. Do not let your watch run to ruin from neglect just because it don't stop.

Remember our business is the care of watches, and our opinion costs you nothing.
