Wynndel

Mr. and Mrs. E. Uri returned unexpectedly on Friday from Spokane, where they had been on their honeymoon trip.

E. S. Butterfield spent the week-end at Proctor looking up old friends.

Mrs. R. C. Eakin arrived from Cranbrook last Thursday, and in future will reside permanently on the ranch here.

BIRTH—At Creston hospital, on April 6th, to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bathie, a son.

M. Wigen has his mill running at full capacity now.

The C.P.R. steel-laying crew that has been at Wynndel for a couple of weeks, pulled out on Tuesday.

Mrs. R. Uri has her mother, Mrs. Morrison, and her sister, Mrs. Walton, staying with her at present.

All the pipe equipment for the overhead irrigation sytems have arrived now.

M. Hagen and Uri have the contract for digging the ditch for Wigen's main feed pipe line, and are making good time at the work.

Mr. Stinson left on Tuesday for Nelson on a business trip and expects to be away about three days.

Major Mallandaine of Creston paid Wynndel a flying visit on Sunday.

H. Christie of the P. Burns Co. staff, Creston, was here on Tuesday on a beef cattle buying trip, and took back a fine steer with him.

Spring work is now getting under way here. Victor Johnson is busy ploughing the Paul Hagen place. John Bathie and Babe Carlson are shooting stumps, and Jack Brooke expects to start pulling stumps next week.

The whist drive and dance at the schoolhouse on Saturday night was attended by a large crowd. Nine tables of players and numerous onlookers were in evidence. The ladies prize was awarded Mrs. Walton with a score of 79, while Mr. Stimson took the gent's with 77. The consolation prizes went to Miss M. Ringheim and Baby Carlson. Dancing started at 11.30, with supper shortly after midnight and dancing again till 3 a.m.

Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Pitt-Brooke returned on Saturday from their honeymoon, but as their house was unfinished they left again on the afternoon train for Proctor, returning on Tuesday. They took in the Easter Monday dance at Proctor and had a very fine time. They got settled in their new home Tuesday afternoon.

Lister

Spring work of every description is in full swing here at present. Ploughing is much in evidence, crew is busy putting in fence posts on several of the allotments, while the stump blowing work has been resumed with all the old time vigor.

Lister misses Mr. and Mrs. S. Coop and family, who left a few days ago for New Westminster, where Sam has taken a position. The house vacated by him is now occupied by Capt. Rowbury and family.

Mr. Coop is succeeded by Geo. Paton who had been his assistant for the past six months, while J. Sibley has been promoted to the former position held by Mr. Paton—that of cost accountant.

The builders are busy at present putting up new houses on the farms of D. Chalmers and D. Sinclair.

A meeting is arranged for Saturday night at which a Ladies' Auxiliary to the G.W.V.A. will be organized. The meeting is called for at 7 o'clock, and at its conclusion the ladies will be guests of the Vets. at a social dance.

The annual meeting of Lister Local of the G.W.V.A. was held last week, the chief business of which was the election of officers. Jos. W. Bell was re elected president; Lance Lowes, first vice; and R. Milner second vice-president; with N. Stones, G. Bernhard and W. Wright named as the executive.

At the Peekin

Harry Carey, who made such a hit with the movie fans at the Peekin on Monday night, is booked to re-appear on Saturday night, April 17th, in "Riders of Vengeance." This is a thriller along the same lines as the "Gun Fightin' Gentleman"—only more so, and Peekin patrons should keep the 17th open in order to see it. A full synopsis of the several reels will appear next week.

William Farnum, the famous star of William Fox photoplays, will be seen at the Peekin Theatre next Wednesday in his latest de luxe production "Wolves of the Night", said to be the most powerful dramatic picture in which this great screen has been seen.

The story is of a mining engineer who, having sought in vain for copper ore in his land in the North-west, has converted it into a sheep ranch. Adjoinging is a mining plant in full operation, owned by three men who covet his property.

The hero, Bruce Andrews, portrayed by Mr. Farnum, is sent to Chile to investigate some mines. While there he is imprisoned in a mine through an explosion, and news is conveyed to his wife that he has been killed. He escapes after days, but is crazed by his sufferings.

The denouncement of the story according to report, is one of the most dramatic ever seen on the screen.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Soldiers' Memorial

EDITOR REVIEW:

SIR,—The committee of the Soldiers' Memorial would be glad if you would afford space in your columns to place before the subscribers the present position respecting this fund.

By a majority of subscribers it was decided that the memorial should take the form of a monument. The committee on appointment set to work to collect funds, get out a design and find a suitable site. As to a site it was decided after investigating several places that the only possible position was a spot close to the temporary memorial, opposite the Bank of Commerce.

On enquiry, however, it was found that this site, in view of the proposed extension of C.P.R. lines and freight sheds, and other possible developments nearby, it would be unsafe to utilize it for the purpose intended

The committee, at their last meeting, decided under the circumstances to call the subscribers together and, placing the facts before them, call for a decision from them as to the final disposal of the fund. A delay, owing to the influenza epidemic, arose in calling this meeting, but it will take place shortly.

Various suggestions have been made as to its disposal: To use it in the building of a public library and also in aid of a hospital; but nothing will be done until the subscribers have been consulted.

$1.54 Production Cost Box Apples

At the recent Western Canada Fruit Jobbers' convention held in Vancouver some interesting figures were given to the delegates by Dean F. M. Clement of the University College of Agriculture on the cost of production of apples in British Columbia. Dean Clement's address was listened to with rapt interest by the prairie fruit men, who in many cases had never heard just how much it costs to grow, pick, pack, market and ship a box of apples.

Amongst other things Dean Clement said that there were insofar as satistics could tell, between 3000 and 3500 orchards in the province. Speaking of the average investment per acre in apple-growing sections he quoted the following figures: North Yakima, $1000; Hood River, $990; Wenatchee, $1925; West Colorado, $625; British Columbia, $1162.22

The yields in British Columbia for a period of five years average as follows:

Trees five years old average 2.32 boxes per tree.

Trees seven years old average 4.32 boxes per tree.

Trees eight years old average 4.74 boxes per tree.

Trees nine years old average 6.14

After the trees have yielded for nine years there is practically no increase, having reached their maximum. This means, figuring on a basis of seventy-five trees to the acre, a yield of 480 boxes per acre.

In the figures showing the yield for the various orchards, varying in size from one to twenty acres and more, the following interesting figures were quoted by the professor:

Orchards, one to five acres, yield 6.6 boxes per tree.

Orchards, six to ten acres, yield 5.61 boxes per tree.

Orchards, eleven to twenty acres, yield 4.8 boxes per tree.

Orchards of more than twenty acres show that as the size of the orchard increases the yield per tree decreases. Basing his averages on a yield of 378 boxes to the acre, Dean Clement quoted the following figures. Labor cost $80.65 per acre, on a basis of 35 cents an hour; handling cost, $49.48 per acre; standing, packing house charges costs, $210.34 per acre; fixed cost, 6 per cent.; equipment cost, depreciation, insurance etc., $94.24 per acre. This makes a total cost of 378 boxes of apples, 459.40 or $1.21 1-2 per box. Adding to this the cost of management, etc., the cost per box is brought up to $1.54 1-2.

It is questionable if any of Dean Clement's listeners realized that the box of apples which they sold cost as much as they do. The figures which he had quoted, he pointed out, were average figures which he had gathered in an effort to find out just how British Columbia apple production compared with other sections.

Local and Personal

The boy scouts had planned two or three hikes for the Easter week holidays, but due to the snowstorm and subseduent slushy weather the tramp to the new high level bridge on Monday was the only feature of the programme they were able to execute.

C. W. Allen, manager of the Imperial Bank, is now entitled to membership in the local auto club. He took delivery of a new 1920 model Ford this week. Jas. Adlard is another of our citizens who has joined up with the auto-owing squad, driving a new Chevrolet.

Average weather prevailed on Sunday, but possibly due to the fact that there were no church services in the town the display of hats and new togs was hardly up to regulation Easter standard. Merchants, however, report that business in all lines was the heaviest ever.

The 10-acre S. Bysouth ranch (formerly owned by J. G. Smith) changed hands the latter part of the week, the the buyer being K. Andrew, who has just moved into the residence on it. Mr. Andrew owns a place adjoining it, and this buy gives him 19 acres of fine ranch property.

Rev. R. E. Pow, a former Presbyterian pastor here, now in charge of the railway Y.M.C.A. at Cranbrook, was a Creston visitor the fore part of the week. Two of the children, Cyrus and Naomi, accompanied him and are spending the week in Creston. Mr. Pow returned on Tuesday.

A shortage of instruments is holding up the installation of new telephones on the local line. There are about fifteen wanting phones put in but less than half that number of phones are to be had. At Fernie the company has orders for about 50 and can only supply fourteen at present.

With a considerable programme of repair work as well as new road construction planned some apprehension is felt as to being able to secure men for the work. Laborers in other lines can readily get as high as $5 a day, but as yet the government is not offering more than the old time $4 for the eight-hour day.

Geo. Cartwright has an interesting local announcement in this issue. He is manufacturing a quantity of sweet cider and those who have a weakness for this beverage should order early. The Review has sampled the product and can vouch for the quality. The price is 70 cents a gallon—the buyer to supply the container.

Death carried off another of Creston's quite old time citizens on Saturday last, when John Eckstrom passed away at the Cranbrook hospital, to which institution he was taken about six weeks ago. Deceased was 76 years of age, and came here in 1912 from near Wetaskiwin, Alta. He had a half-acre property next the Cherrington place on Hillside Road, and was very highly respected by all who knew him. The remains were brought to Creston for interment on Monday, Rev. R. E. Pow, of Cranbrook, accompanying them, and taking charge of the burial service.

To take care of the steadily increasing telegraphic business between Penticton and Vernon the C.P.R. will at once string another wire.

Owing to the attendance of members being less than a dozen the annual meeting of Cranbrook fair association had to be adjourned for a week.

United Farmers Want Hospital

A special meeting of Creston Local of the United Farmers was held on Saturday night, with President W. V. Jackson in charge, but with but a fair turnout of mdmbers. The chief business of the session was the report of the president and C. O. Quist, who were the local delegates to the annual convention at Victoria.

A brief, but interesting review of the business was giyen, the two delegates managing to cover the ground nicely without any overlapping in their remarks. Two of the resolutions sent from here were unanimously adopted. These had to do with the prohibiting of Orientals from acquiring new lands or leasing areas of any size in B.C., and the second was the one asking that the B.C. government speed up proceedings to determine the feasibility, or otherwise of Kootenay Flats drainage. The resolution from here requesting the B.C. Farmers to go into politics was not considered. Although the same request was made by many locals all over the province the convention decided to keep out of politics until such time as the farmers' movement was completely organized throughout the entire country. Several resolutions of one sort and another dealing with the prohibition question were all passed over without any action being taken.

A matter that provided considerable discussion was the question of letting down the membership bars so that others than those engaged in agricultural pursuits could become members. Opinion for and against any change in the present regulations in this regard was very evenly divided and it was decided to let the matter stand until a larger attendance was in evidence. At the last meeting the secretary having been instructed to enquire at head office as to powder his report to the gathering was that information had come that the U.F. and Institute prices would be the same, and it was agreed that the Institute might better be patronized.

The meeting enthusiastically and unanimously approved of having a hospital at Creston, and pledged the members to do all possible and the organization to support in every way any move to establish such an institution. It was also decided that a permanent resolutions committee should be appointed to whom matters of that nature can be referred. The members of this will be decided upon and announced at the next meeting, which is called for the 17th, the meeting deciding that in future the regular monthly meeting should be on the third Saturday of each month. A resolution of condolence in the death of Charles Cotteril was passed and the secretary instructed to forward the same to Mrs. Cotteril.

Oddly enough, Roxana's point of view was merely the Oriental adaptation of Ruggles's, and as such quite reasonable. She had belonged to Hamid Pasha, who had been as a father to her and had loved her for her beauty and attainments, which affection she rendered in kind. But now Hamid Pasha had been taken to the bosom of the Prophet and Ruggles was his heir. Ruggles had inherited her, Roxana, with other of Hamid Pasha's real and personal property. There fore she was his, and why in the name of all that was reasonable should he not enjoy her, just as he enjoyed the other benefits? The Occidental precepts of Miss E'liot and Miss Challand and Mr. Falconer and others had slipped from Roxana as rain from the back of a duck, not one drop soaking in. Theory was all right in its way, but facts were facts. She belonged to Ruggles and was glad of it, because he was beautiful and brave and kindly and generous—and young.

In her heart Roxana had been sorely perplexed at Ruggles's behavior toward herself. She understood quite thoroughly her worth and her desirability, and had no difficulty in translating the thoughts that were written in men's eyes as they met hers. She knew that her beauty was phenomenal, her voice a nightingale's, her mind vivid and alert; not like that of many women she had known in different harems—sordid, selfish, sensual, and cruel. She was a mountain girl and loved more the rush of free air and the tang of frost and the free use of her muscles and clear, cold water in which to bathe than sweetmeats and jewels and massage and heavy, exotic, stifling things. She was a maiden destined for the Yildiz Kiosk (the Sultan's harem) when given to Hamid Pasha by Abdul Hamid, and therefore her apple of knowledge still hung from the bough. She had never desired to taste thereof until Ruggles Effendi, late of the Walkeasy Shoe Company of America, had braved the wrath of Miss Elliot, that incomprehensible woman, and walked into the harem[illegible] of the departed Hamid Pasha.

It all seemed very simple to Roxana, while at the same time [illegible] ingly perplexing. Since [illegible] in Paris [illegible] only [illegible] and [illegible] her p[illegible] [illegible] away [illegible] of her. They encroached, on [illegible] upon her maiden [illegible] and been shipped into [illegible] by the maître d'hotel or chasseur, not only on leaving such establishments as the Ritz and Cecil [illegible] Avenue du Bois with Miss Elliot and the [illegible] impassioned contents and threw them away. Alessandra, Bulbul, and even that adolescent beauty, Rosa, would have kept them, read them over and over, dreamed of sentimental possibilities, shown them to the other girls, and possibly have bribed the little ladies' maid to have engineered a poste restante at the corner of the garden wall. Roxana consigned them to the famous sewage system of Paris, where no doubt they floated on their proper level. Some of them may have sunk.

Ruggles decided that the best method of procedure would be to come to a clear, mutual understanding. Roxana had just said that she loved—literally translated, liked—him. Ruggles took his point of departure from this reckoning. But before expressing himself, he decided that he had better put Roxana right on certain figures of speech, which might afterwards lead to misunderstandings.

"I'm mighty glad you think so much of me, Roxana," he said. "But you know there's a lot of difference between liking a person and loving him. And there are a good many different kinds of love."

Roxana's eyes glowed darkly from her pale face.

"I have them all for you, Ruggles Effendi," she said softly. "Why do you not love me, too? How happy we could be!" She sighed.

Ruggles felt the blood pouring into his face. "I guess you don't quite realize what you're saying, Roxana," he said.

"But indeed I do," she answered quickly. "Why should I not love you? And why should you not love me? Do you know any girl more beautiful than I? Do I not please you? I can sing for you and play for you and dance for you. I know the Circassian gesture dance and many others. And where could you find a girl with such hair as mine and such a skin and a body that is neither fat nor thin, and—"

"Roxana," Ruggles interrupted, "you mustn't say things like that."

"Why not, effendi?" she whispered softly. "Are they not true? And am I not yours? Did not Hamid Pasha give me to you? What may I not say to you, Ruggles Effendi? For your eyes, there is no veil across my face or across my heart."

Ruggles leaned back in his chair, breathing rapidly. There was a sweetness and a seduction in Roxana's voice such as he had never heard in any other, while the childish simplicity of her wooing cleared it of all immodesty. She spoke from no heat of passion, but plaintively, like a child hurt at having withheld from it something which it feels to be its due. The ravishing Roxana was begging for love as a little girl might beg for promised sweets.

Ruggles could find no words with which to answer her. And the sweetness of her as she leaned toward him entreating his favor was that of orange blossoms drenched in dew. Not one man in a hundred could have kept his head in the face of such an appeal from such a source. Some girls are fashioned for work, and some for play, and some to pass the time away; there are the true and the false, the motherly and the wanton-hearted, the artists and the earthy. Roxana was fashioned for love; her mission in life, for which she had been trained from childhood, was to please. Art and nature had combined to fit her for this faculty. And now, when she wished the most to fulfill this function, both failed her. Roxana was hurt and puzzled.

"What is it, Ruggles Effendi?" she asked. "Have I done anything to displease you?"

"Of course not," Ruggles answered. "But, you see, it's like this Roxana. Before Hamid Pasha died—"

He was interrupted by a light step on the gravel path, and a white-clad figure appeared. Then a voice that both recognized as Miss Elliot's called:

"Mr. Ruggles—"

"Here I am," Ruggles answered.

Miss Elliot drew nearer and stood for a moment looking at them as they sat close together on the wicker bench. It was too dark to see her face, but when she spoke, her voice held a peculiar cold note.

"Baron von Hertzfeld has called," said she. "I thought you might like to meet him."

"All right," Ruggles answered. "We'll be in directly."

Miss Elliot turned and went back to the house. Ruggles looked at Roxana.

"What I was going to say is this: Hamid Pasha left me a letter, when he died, asking me to look after you poor girls and see that you got started right in life and married in the proper way. He sort of felt that his harem was breaking up, I guess, and he didn't want you left without somebody to take care of you. He said in his letter that I was to consider myself just like your big brother, and that's exactly how I feel about you. If I was an outsider, it might be different, but, you see, Roxana, I'd have to be a pretty poor sort of a man to go contrary to his directions, after all he's done for me."

Roxana nodded her lovely head. "I see, Ruggles Effendi," she answered sadly.

"But you mustn't think about me that way," Ruggles went on. "I want to see you girls happily married to good husbands. Now, Bulbul and Alessandra will probably marry these two Montereau brothers. This Baron von Hertzfeld wants to marry you. What do you think about it, Roxana?"

The girl began to toy with the gravel with the tip of her little slipper.

"He is very nice," she answered in a low voice, "and very handsome. He is a Jew, but I have heard that the Jews are very kind to their wives and give them a great many presents. Besides, he is very rich. I will marry him if you wish me to, Ruggles Effendi."

"Now that's real sensible," Ruggles answered, greatly relieved. It flashed across his mind that perhaps he had been unjust to Roxana. Why, this girl whom he had regarded as a lioness was after all as docile as a kitten. "But before you marry him, you'd better find out if you really care for him," said he.

Roxana slightly raised her splendid shoulders.

"It does not matter," she answered. "If I am to marry like a European woman, I will do as they do. If I do not like him afterwards, I will take a lover."

Ruggles gasped. The kitten seemed to be showing a little claw at the end if its velvet paw.

"You mustn't say things like that," he protested. "Nice women don't ever think of that sort of thing."

Roxana smiled, and her white teeth flashed through the murk.

"If you loved me, I should never deceive you, effendi," she answered softly, and her lithe body swayed toward him. "You would never have to watch me. Aie—my dear—"

Her bare arms slipped up about his neck, and she rested her head for an instant on his chest. The odor of her hair was in his nostrils. Then she loosed him suddenly and rose with a little shudder.

"I will do as you tell me, Ruggles Effendi," said she.

CHAPTER XXI.

Ruggles met the brothers De Montereau and liked them, which sentiment was cordially reciprocated. "Un homme charmant et tres distingue," was the verdict of the Frenchmen. Madame de Montereau, with the family solicitor, had an interview with Ruggles, the marriage settlements were drawn up, and a formal betrothal was announced. The double wedding was set for the first week in September.

The suit of the young Baron von Hertzfeld was also approved by Ruggles. Not only did he like and admire Von Hertzfeld, and believe that he would make Roxana a kind and dutiful husband, but he was anxious to see the girl safely married and established. There was something in the expression of her tawny eyes, when for a second they flashed into his, that made Ruggles nervous and ill at ease. He felt that he was dealing with a priminitive nature, which he would never be able to understand and which contained high potentialities of mischief. He hoped that matrimony, with its attendant responsibilities, might tame the savage instincts that he was able to sense beneath his ward's quiet and self-contained exterior.

Roxana appeared to be quite content with the arrangement, and was much pleased with her engagement ring and its superb diamond. The wedding was arranged for October, when Von Hertzfeld's family would be able to assist.

Inventors Form Union

Numbers Amongst Members Notable People in World of Industry and Research

And so one of the latest additions to the ever-growing list of trade unions is an inventors' union. Such an organization was recently registered in Great Britain, and already numbers amongst its members some notable people in the world of industry and research. For the purposes of the new union, the word invention is to have the largest possible meaning. Every kind of forward effort, from a new educational scheme to a new device for utilizing a waste product, may consider itself an invention. Then, an effort is to be made to raise the whole status of the inventor in the public estimate, to insure, in fact, that invention shall be seen for what it undoubtedly is, "a distinct branch of technical research." All this is very welcome and commendable. Inventors are certainly entitled to much more protection and encouragement than they now receive. — Christian Science Monitor.

B. C. Dairy Produce

Great Opportunities for the Dairy Farmer in the Province

Interesting statistics of the dairying industry in the province of British Columbia have recently been given by the minister of agriculture.

There are twenty-two creameries manufacturing butter in various parts of the province, he says, four cheese factories and three farm dairy factories for manufacturing fancy cheese. Of dairies handling or distributing milk or cream, or manufacturing ice cream, there are in all 45.

During the past year the creameries produced 1,688,000 pounds of butter, valued at $1,018,197. In addition to this there were 630,000 pounds of dairy butter, giving a total butter production valued at $1,375,697. Apart from the 630,000 pounds of butter, the dairies supplied almost ten million gallons of milk and 217,000 gallons of ice cream. The output of the cheese factories was 304,502 pounds, giving in all a total dairy production valued at $7,148,688.

Great opportunities still exist for the dairy farmer in the province, however, for British Columbia still has to import, among other things, the greater part of her butter supply, as is evidenced by the fact that almost $3,000,000 worth of this produce alone were imported to supply the needs of her population.

Japan Denies Report

Story That She Bought Victory In 1904-5 "Preposterous"

London.— The Japanese Embassy here issued the following statement: "Referring to the news circulated in the last few days to the effect that Japan bought the victory over Russia in 1904-05, the Japanese embassy declares this is entirely groundless. Moreover we suspect there is some foul play involved in the rumor.

"The story, of course, is so preposterous and chimerical that it hardly deserves a formal denial; but in view of the fact that several papers printed it is well that it should be noticed."

Mr. Earnest Clark, Police Officer, 338 King St., Kingston, Ont., writes:

"For three years I suffered from nervousness and sleeplessness. I believe my condition was brought about by overwork. I had frequent headaches, neuralgic pains and twitching of nerves and muscles. I had indigestion, was short of breath and easily tired. I commenced a treatment of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and seven boxes of this medicine cured me of all my symptoms. Reconstruction in France

Large Part Will Be Restored By September

The rennaisance of France, after her devastation by the enemy, is beginning to be manifest, and when the "grape is full the vineyards will smile" and a large part of France will be itself again. So the French peasants are saying in their spring meetings. Facts support the optimism of their outlook. Out of 1,403 miles of railway lines destroyed during the war, France has made 1,267½ miles ready for use by the end of September. Out of 1,160 destroyed bridges, she had reconstructed 657. Out of 672 miles of canals, 437½ miles were ready for use by the end of August. Out of three thousand agricultural instruments destroyed or removed by the Germans, two hundred thousand had been replaced. Out of 550,000 houses destroyed, 80,000 have been sufficiently repaired to be utilized; 16,225 huts have been provided and 60,000 were in process of construction by the end of the past year. Out of 6,950 square miles of tillable land devastated, 1,540 square miles have been made fit for cultivation at the same date, and 74 million cubic meters of trench excavation have been filled in.

Sports Among Citizen Soldiers

Keenest Rivalry in Athletics Will Be Encouraged Throughout Victoria

Australia's cadets, the citizen soldiers who are trained under her compulsory home defense system, have a warm-hearted friend in Brigadier-General Brand, state commandant and one of the most distinguished Australian leaders in the late war. General Brand recognizes that routine is irksome, and he is popularizing senior cadet work by combining with it sports programs whereby the keenest rivalry in athletics will be encouraged throughout Victoria. General Brand's scheme has been enthusiastically welcomed by the boys and by citizen's committees, who have joined heartily in the sporting competitions between battalions, brigades and training areas. This new way of making soldiers means the introduction of a common interest among the units, skill, discipline and clean rivalry.

AFTER EFFECTS OF INFLUENZA OFTEN SERIOUS

Victims Are Left Weak, Tired and Mentally Depressed — Tonic Treatment is Strongly Recommended

No pestilence in years has caused more widespread suffering than the epidemic of influenza which swept over Canada in the fall and winter of 1918-19, and again this winter. The danger from this trouble is seldom over when the characteristic symptoms, the fever, headache and the depression of spirits have passed away. Influenza leaves behind it weakened vital powers, thin blood, impaired digestion and over-sensitive nerves. Men and women who were robust before stricken with influenza find their bodies racked by pains previously unknown to them. This condition is due to an abnormal thinning of the blood and leaves the system an easy prey to other serious troubles. This is the time when the convalescent from influenza should build up the blood with a reliable blood-making tonic such as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Weak blood means impoverished nerves, impaired digestion, a feeling of tiredness after even slight exertion, and sometimes even more serious symptoms. When the blood regains its rich red quality the nerves recover their strength and the organs of the body function naturally. In fact, building up the blood will vitalize the whole system.

The experience of Mr. Andrew Marty, Bathurst, N.B., will prove of value to a host of influenza sufferers who still suffer from the effects of the disease. Mr. Marty says:—"The new life and consequently new hope brought into my life through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is almost beyond my power of expression. Following a severe attack of influenza in 1918, I found myself rapidly failing in health, and was naturally much alarmed. I began to lose in weight, could not eat, did not sleep well, and in a word I was reduced to a mere shadow. I was forced to discontinue work because of my weakened condition, and things had a very blue outlook. I tried a number of suggested remedies, but without benefit. And then one day Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were suggested to me. I acted on my friend's advice, began taking these pills, and soon felt an improvement. Every day I seemed to grow stronger, and after four weeks' treatment I felt fully restored to my old-time health. From my own experience I feel that, if given a fair trial, there is no medicine superior to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in building up a run-down system."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a tonic, not a stimulant. They build up the blood, and not only the disaastrous after effects of influenza, but also troubles due to poor blood, such as anaemia, rheumatism, indigestion and the generally worn-out feeling that affects so many people, disappear. You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE CRESTON REVIEW

Issued every Friday at Creston, B.C. Subscription: $2 a year in advance. $2·50 to U.S. points.

C. F. HAYES, Editor and Owner.

CRESTON, B.C., FRIDAY, APR. 9

School Needed

A couple of our West Creston readers have already expressed the hope that when The Review's suggested round table conference on Valley needs, and how to overcome them, eventuates that the matter of school accommodation for the community resident across the Kootenay River will receive due attention.

At the present time there are about ten children of school age in that section who are denied that privilege due to their residing so far from any seat of learning that attendance thereat is out of the question, either summer or winter. We are informed that a school might be inaugurated at a minimum cost in that there is at least one building of suitable size and construction to temporarily answer the purpose of a school; all that is required, seemingly, is for some outside influence to get the West Crestonites directly interested into a frame of mind where they can agree to make use of these temporary quarters until such time as a permanent site and building is possible.

Owing to its peculiar location, even were the flats not to flood, West Creston could hardly figure in the central consolidated school which it is hoped will shortly be a working factor. In these times when much is heard about better university accommodation and more normal schools it would look as if those deeply interested in educational affairs might better employ their time in endeavoring to get proper school facilities at home before becoming over anxious about the higher education in the bigger centres.

Domestic Pack

A Review reader, who has had some recent experience in the building line, tells us we are entirely too modest in estimating that the proposed Creston hospital can be built and equipped for any such sum as $6000—that is if the institution is to provide even limited accommodation for further flu emergencies, a maternity wing, as well as a little space for the general run of cases. In his opinion a matter of $10,000 would be nearer the mark. In connection with the hospital construction at least one thing must be borne in mind and that is that no makeshift building should be tolerated. Whatever plan of building is eventually decided upon should be well and modernly constructed, and designed so that additions can be made as required without necessitating any reconstructing of any moment to maintain the maximum of efficiency of the institution. In this connection, too, it will be well to see that a site of ample proportions is secured. Certainly property values will never be any lower, and it is doubtful if building costs will measurably depreciate.

Talking of building reminds of the incessant shout heard these days for more houses to rent in Creston, and how the town is losing out in increasing its population by not having more residences to let. In the lack of citizens sufficiently opulent to embark in the house building line there seems to be only one way to meet the emergency and that is for the residents who happen to be in the tenent class to start in building their own homes. While it is true labor and building materials are high, it is equally true that most of us are earning more than we used to, and taking things as a whole it is doubtful if it costs any more to build today than it did ten years ago on the lower prices and wage scale that then prevailed. So far as Creston is concerned The Review believes no better move can be made by our citizens than to at once start in to own their own homes. As an investment it beats saving bank accounts or thrift stamps a dozen different ways. Besides, the property owner is, undoubtedly, the best type of citizen; he has a stake in the community and, naturally, is interested and active in seeing it progress and his investment consequently increase in value. Home owning is among the first principles of our democratic form of government, and is the very bulwark of our nation. As one humorist all too truly put it, "Whoever heard of a man who was willing to shoulder his rifle in defence of a boarding house?" Let the individual who wants a home instead of complaining about the shortage of houses. Get busy and arrange to build one.

Although Rev. T. McCord has gone away almost as quietly as he came here almost eighteen months ago, when he assumed the pastorate of the local Presbyterian Church, commendation is due him for a very real service rendered the community both in and out of the church. His arrival here in 1918 was about ten days prior to the outbreak of the first flu epidemic, and although almost a total stranger he did a magnificent work singlehanded ministering to the spiritual needs of the afflicted, as well as lending a generous assistance in the emergency hospital, as well as the homes in a time when such help was badly needed. Again during the flu outbreak this year he was again more than prominent in the same line of merciful endeavor. Aside from this he was equally active in lending a hand in any effort for the advancement of the community's varied interests. Although of but average ability, possibly, in the pulpit, any lack he may have shown in oratory he made up in good measure outside the church, and after all it is deeds, not words, that count. In Mrs. McCord he had a worthy helpmate in all his lines of endeavor, and Creston has, indeed, lost two good citizens in their removal. Very genuine are the wishes of our citizens that they may have happiness and prosperity in their new home and calling.

Fernie Board of Trade is seriously considering raising $1000 for publicity work this year.

NEWS OF KOOTENAYS

Spring has undoubtedly arrived at Cranbrook. A farmer in that section reports the appearance of wood ticks already.

According to the Cranbrook Courier the people of East Kootenay purchased nearly 10,000 head of sheep last season.

Rev. Mr. Batzold, pastor of the United Church at Fernie has resigned, after about two years in charge of the work.

Grand Forks Presbyterians are out to head off opposition. They have just purchased the old Baptist church building and site.

Cranbrook has a lady school trustee, Mrs. Miles, who was last week elected by acclamation to fill a vacancy on the board.

Last year the Cranbrook fall fair was not a money-maker and it is likely this year's exhibition will be at least a month earlier.

The Ledge claims gardening operations were started at Greenwood last week, while ploughing is quite general in that section.

Things are not so bad at Greenwood as they might seem. Ed. Stanway is moving there from Spokane and will open a garage.

Civic officials at Grand Forks are expected to earn their money, or at least work full time. Even the chief of police will have to do side-walk repair work and read electric light meters.

For the funeral of Father Pelltier, a well-known Catholic priest at Grand Forks, half a dozen choristers were brought from Nelson to assist with the musical features of the burial service.

The smelter people at Trail are encouraging their employees to own their own homes and announce their readiness to lend worth while prospects up to $2000 for house building purposes.

Leslie Grossmith tells Cranbrook that if the piano at the Auditorium had a new pedal, several new keys and was retuned it would be possible to produce something resembling music on it.

Trail has a small-sized epidemic of measles, and a quarantine of two weeks is imposed on persons in houses where the trouble exists—provided they have never had the measles previously.

Fernie had a snowfall of over a foot on April 1st, the peculiar feature of which was that the last inch was a dirty yellow in color, as if it had passed through a cloud of volcanic dust.

The Gazette hears that there is little probability of the Granby people reopening mining operations at Phoenix this year, although they still have half a dozen men on the payroll at that point.

Between them Silverton and New Denver Anglicans believe they can pay the salary demanded by a resident clergyman, and are asking Rev. B. Hall of Kaslo to consider accepting a call to the work.

Fernie council is out to increase efficiency in some of its utilities. The city electrician has been asked to resign, and it is likely a similar demand will be issued on a couple more of the power house employees.

The tourist trade into the Windermere country this year is expected to be very heavy, and at Invermere arrangements are now being made to set out about a hundred tents for the sleeping accommodation of the visitors.

It will take about $65,000 to finance Grand Forks this year. If taxes are paid promptly and other revenues are up to expectations the council hope to have $70,000 of revenue coming in, of which the police court is counted on for $2300.

Quite a number of dairy cows will be imported into the Golden country this year. That section is ambitious as to having a creamery but as yet there are not enough milk cows in the country to warrant such a venture—so the government experts advise.

Penticton cannery feels sure there will be ample sugar for 1920 operations, and is planning to considerably enlarge the plant at that place, as well as warning that if sufficient white help is not forthcoming Chinese crews will be employed this season.

The News doubts very much if any place in B. C. has worse streets than Nelson, and suggests spending $20,000 a year for at least five years on a system of permanent improvements.

As soon as the ice is out of the log pond the sawmill at Bonners Ferry will run both night and day.

Big Selling Already

That the 1920 season has opened with a rush is evident from the deliveries being made by General Supplies, Limited, dealers in Chevrolet cars and trucks. Their sales at this time of the year have exceeded those of any previous season.

It is not that the 1920 Chevrolet models embody any radical changes but rather that there is evidenced a continually growing popularity for these reasonably priced, comfortable cars. The fact that Chevrolet cars are built in Canada and not just assembled in this country, has made it possible to market Chevrolet products at a price which represents maximum value received.

The 490 model, first in the Canadian field, has shown year by year improvements in details of design and appearance, but always the one ideal of the engineers is apparent, to build a sturdy completely equipped and comfortable car of attractive appearance at a price which is not beyond the means of the average purchaser. This year there have been several detailed mechanical improvements. The mechanic appreciates the value of these changes. To the purchaser the new top, the baked enamel body and the improved upholstering make their appeal; but above all considerations the 490 sell on its performance.

Last summer the Chevrolet Baby Grand donned its new dress, a stream-line body with snappy lines throughout. On its appearance alone the average purchaser was attracted, but always the service man has the last word. He recognized that all the little improvements that his service experience had shown him to be desirable were embodied in this new Baby Grand. At the same time the engine was the same old powerful friend ready to climb the steepest hills with the best of them. The present model is remarkable for its seating accommodation. The "foreward" movement of clutch and brake pedals gives the driver considerably more leg room. The tonneau dimensions compare favorably with considerably more expensive cars, and lastly, a very happy relation of weight and spring suspension has been struck which adds to the comfort of the passengers.

Comment on Current Events

The world was given a surprise on Saturday, March 13, by the sudden outbreak of a counter-revolution in Germany which had an immediate initial success, the Ebert Government fleeing from Berlin, first to Dresden and later to Stuttgart. This counter-revolution was engineered by the militarists and the reactionary Prussians, and a new "Imperial" Government set up in Berlin under the chancellorship of Dr. Kapp, who was one of those who opposed the armistice in November, 1918, and wished to continue the war after the abdication and flight of the Kaiser. He is a Prussian of the Prussians. General von Luettwitz, another Prussian, and one of the military governors of Belgium during the German occupation, was named commander-in-chief of the army.

In an endeavor to defeat the aims of the military party, and a possible restoration of the monarchy, the Ebert Government called upon the Socialists and workmen of Germany to declare an immediate general strike and by tying up all means of transportation, coal mines, industries and business generally, cripple and nullify all efforts of the new Government. This was done, and with some effect, but at the time of writing it remains to be seen whether the horrors of civil war can be averted. Conflicts between the troops and the populace are reported from a number of places. Prussia may side with one party, and other states, like Saxony, with the other, thus leading to the break-up of the German confederation.

Political circles at Ottawa are all agog over the decision as to naval policy to be reached by the Government as a result of the recent report by Admiral Lord Jellicoe. In his report Lord Jellicoe declared emphatically for the establishment of a Canadian navy, and discarded the old idea of contributions of either ships or money to the British Admiralty. He submitted several alternative programs for a commencement in the work of creating a Canadian fleet, these varying from one calling for an annual expenditure of $35,000,000 a year to one providing for an expenditure of only $5,000,000 annually. Which of these to adopt, or whether to proceed with any of them at the present time, is the problem before the Government and Parliament. It is generally agreed that sooner or later Canada must, in view of her new national status, and the development of a large merchant marine of her own, provide protection for her own coasts and sea-borne commerce, but the question upon which opinion is sharply divided, both in the Cabinet and in Parliament, is whether a start should be made now, or the whole question postponed until national finances are in better shape, and further knowledge is obtainable in regard to the plans of other nations. One thing is generally admitted, and that is that Canada cannot, with self-respect, continue to rely solely upon naval protection provided by the already overburdened British taxpayer.

Developments in the controversy in the United States Senate over the question of ratification of the Peace Treaty and acceptance by that country of full membership in the League of Nations point to a second refusal on the part of that body to ratify, with the result that the whole question will become an issue in the Presidential elections next November, thus largely overshadowing all purely domestic issues. Canada is deeply interested in the outcome, because of the challenge made to Canada's right to full membership and voting powers in the League of Nations by the Lenroot amendment. The Canadian Government has made it clear both to Great Britain and the United States that it will never agree to any impairment of its rights as a member of the League, that it will refuse to accept the Lenroot amendment, and that if it is accepted by other nations, Canada will be obliged to withdraw from the League. Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and the other overseas Dominions of the Empire support Canada's stand, and it is inconceivable that Great Britain will do otherwise than support the contentions of the Dominions, which are founded on right and justice.

In proportion to population and wealth, Canada did far more towards winning the war than did the United States, and by the sacrifices of her people, the heroic deeds of her soldiers and her outpouring of blood and treasure, not only in the last year of the war, but from the day Germany flung down a challenge to civilization, this Dominion won for herself a place of equality with all nations. Canada will never relinquish the rights she has won for herself, and, unlike so many people in the United States, Canadians do not shrink from acceptance of the responsibilities which full and unrestricted membership in the League of Nations may impose upon them.

Minard's Liniment Relieves Neuralgia

Petroleum has been known from ancient times. It was put to practical use as a fuel around the Caspian Sea much earlier than elsewhere. Under the name of "Sicilian oil," it was burned in lamps in Rome in the days of Pliny. It entered into use in the arts of China centuries ago, and was discovered by the early settlers in America.

He said it is his intention to obtain, if possible, a block of properties for the cutting of wood pulp and also to arrange for the purchase of wood pulp for shipment to England, where it would be manufactured.

Trade Office in Russia Closed

Ottawa.—Owing to the chaotic conditions prevailing in Russia, the Canadian Government has decided to close the office of the Canadian Trade Commissioner at Vladivostok. This closes the last of the Canadian trade offices in Russia, the other two at Petrograd and Omsk having been closed owing to the advance of the Bolsheviki. Some unusually valuable reports have issued from the Vladivostok trade commissioner's office from time to time.

Which?

At an amateur performance an artiste gave imitations of several popular actors, one of whom happened to be present.

Afterwards the ambitious amateur sought an introduction to the star and asked hopefully:

"Did you see my imitation of you?"

"I did," replied the great man promptly.

"Then, sir," persisted the aspiring youth, "may I ask you to give me your opinion of my art as shown in that impersonation?"

"Well, my boy," the great man said, "one of us is rotten!"

The Memory That Failed

A well-known preacher was giving one of his stirring discourses, when he remarked:

"Ah! that reminds me of something I shall never forget."

Then he stopped and thought, and, after thinking and waiting a long time, greatly to the astonishment of the congregation, he said:

"Dear me, I can't think what it is!"

SPRING WEATHER HARD ON BABY

The Canadian Spring weather—one day mild and bright; the next raw and blustery, is extremely hard on the baby. Conditions are such that the mother cannot take the little one out for the fresh air so much to be desired. He is confined to the house, which is often over-heated and badly ventilated. He catches cold; his little stomach and bowels become disordered, and the mother soon has a sick baby to look after. To prevent this an occasional dose of Baby's Own Tablets should be given. They regulate the stomach and bowels, thus preventing or relieving colds, simple fevers, colic or any other of the many minor ills of childhood. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

"There's a Reason"

Allies Occupy Turkish Capital Without Trouble

Constantinople.—The city was occupied by allied forces under General Sir George E. Milne, of the British army. This long-looked-for military demonstration by the allies against Turkey was carried out with only one untoward happening, a serious clash at the war office, where the Turks resisted the allied troops.

The excitement caused by the occupation quieted down before darkness, which brought absolute calm.

The allies have occupied the ministry of war and navy, and assumed control of posts, telegraphs and telephones, which have been temporarily suspended. Shipping also has been suspended.

The landing of occupation forces was carried out under guns of the formidable fleet anchored in the Bosphorus.

The British dreadnought Benbow was moored at the Galata Quay, her guns trained on Stamboul. Another man-of-war faced the city in the Golden Horn, while all other warships in the Bosphorus were standing by with their decks cleared for action.

Except in the instance stated, however, there was no resistance. The population, in fact, showed little alarm, nor was there any sign of panic except in one section of Stamboul, as commanders of the allied troops brought their forces ashore.

These forces included four thousand bluejackets and marines from British warships and contingents from all the allies represented. Indian detachments, having Moslems on their rosters, were among the troops taking part.

Comprehensive military and naval plans had been made to carry out the allied measures and precautionary steps taken. A number of Turks and other persons, regarded as possible disturbers of the peace, were arrested, including the commander of the 10th Turkish division.

The proclamation was eagerly scanned by curious crowds, which after the landing took place wandered about the streets in a dazed manner. The French patrolled Stamboul with Senegalese troops; the British guarded Pera, the suburbs northwest of the Golden Horn; while Italians guarded Scutari, the portion of Constantinople on the Asiatic side of the Bosphorus.

The flutter that occurred in Stamboul as the troops marched in was by shopkeepers near the war office, where the clash occurred. They closed their shops in their first fright, but speedily reopened them. The allies are declared to believe their measures have provided amply for maintenance of security and order in Constantinople, and consider it questionable whether even the so-called Nationalist forces in Anatola are in a position to attempt anything serious.

She's up and at Her Work Again

THAT'S WHY MRS. KARGUS RECOMMENDS DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

Lynedoch Lady states that she was so weak she could not get out of bed till she found relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Lynedoch, via Wolfe, Ont., March 22.—(Special.)—"I feel like telling everybody about what Dodd's Kidney Pills did for me." This is the joyful exclamation of Mrs. Frank Kargus, a well-known and highly respected resident here. Mrs. Kargus gives splendid reasons why she is so enthusiastic over Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I don't know the cause of my trouble," she says, "but I know it dragged along for over a year. I had a bad pain in my back and I was so weak that I could not get out of bed. My heart troubled me very much and my sleep was broken and unrefreshing.

"I was always tired and nervous, and sometimes I was so bad I thought I could not live much longer. I tried two doctors and they did not do me much good, so I tried Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"They have done me a lot of good. I can do my housework again and I am getting along fine."

Mrs. Kargus' troubles are all symptoms of diseased kidneys. That's why she got such prompt relief. Ask your neighbors if Dodd's Kidney Pills do not relieve all kidney ills.

Japs Going To South America

In Future Will Avoid the U.S. for Settlement

Honolulu.—Japanese emigrants in the future will avoid United States territory, going instead to South America, according to a Tokio wireless message picked up by the Japanese Yakuma. The message, quoting a statement by M. Nagata, president of the immigration association of Tokio, indicated Japanese emigration to South America probably will centre in Brazil, where a Japanese colony is planned. Nagata is going to South America in the interests of Japan. It is believed that many Hawaian Japanese will go to Brazil, according to statements of leading Japanese here.

Increase Guard On Ex-Kaiser

Dutch Home of Former German Emperor Has Been Turned Into Prison Fortress

Amerongen.—Reinforcement of the Dutch guard at Von Bentinck's castle, which since the middle ages has been protected by moats and drawbridges, has made the former kaiser's refuge a veritable prison fortress, capable of defence even in the unexpected event of attack by raiders desiring to free the exile. The castle is situated in a big square. The four sides are posted, while two of them have additional walls.

Constables and military police patrol the roads night and day. To the right of the main entrance is a small building in which rest reinforcements. Here sentries are on guard. Besides this main gateway, a distance of 130 yards, is another gate, barring an inner driveway to the drawbridge. Here sentries are stationed. Still farther on, where the road bends at another gate, there is also a guard. Then turning to the right, a driveway leads to the terrace on which the castle stands. Police patrol this terrace.

Beyond the dyke in the rear of the castle is a meadowland crossed by ditches and hedges, and in the meadow are patrols particularly warned to guard against the landing of airplanes. So strict has the guard over the former monarch become that J. B. Kan, general secretary of the Dutch government, charged with guarding the Hohenzollerns, had to produce a pass before being admitted.

Sir Robert's Health Is Improving

Ottawa.—Latest information reaching Ottawa as to the health of Sir Robert Borden is to the effect that the Prime Minister is rapidly regaining his former health and recovery is being maintained. It is stated he will likely be in Ottawa about May 1. As the session is expected to continue for a couple of weeks after that date, the expectations are that the premier will take his place in the Commons Chamber before prorogation.

Armenians Ready to Help

Adana, Asia Minor.—The Armenians here have closed their shops and informed the French that they will send armed Armenians to the relief of Hadjin, northwest of Marash, where the Turks are reported to be terrorizing the populace, if the French do not dispatch troops. The villages of Romo and Yebakalara have been overrun and the Armenian inhabitants have fled to Hadjin.

Coal Located at Jasper Park

Winnipeg.—Bituminous coal deposits totalling nearly 30,000,000 tons, and lying within three feet of the earth's surface, so that it may be loaded on cars as cheaply as gravel can be loaded in a ballast pit, have been located near Jasper Park, according to Geo. E. McDonald, general manager of the Pacific Coast Eastern Railway, who was recently in the prairie provinces on a business trip.

To Preserve Supremacy Of The British Navy

Long Declares Nation Will Keep Up Power According to Other Countries

London. — Walter Hume Long, First Lord of the Admiralty, told the House of Commons that the government was firmly adhering to the traditional policy that the British navy should not be inferior to the navies of the other powers. Then, alluding to the United States as the only country whose navy approached that of Britain in strength, he said that the idea of competition in armaments between the United States and Great Britain was repugnant, adding:

"We hope and believe that if there is any emulation between us, it is likely to be in the direction of reducing that ample margin of naval strength, which we alike possess over other naval powers. This is the foundation of the British naval policy."

Bavarian Diet's New Premier

Kahn Will Fill Position Until New Premier Is Chosen in Next Election

Copenhagen.—According to a Munich dispatch received here, the Bavarian Diet has elected Dr. Kahn premier. Kahn declared himself to be a representative of people's sovereignty and said he would hold the place for the premier who is to be elected by the Diet in the next election.

The various political groups, the dispatch continues, declared that executive powers had been restored to the civil authorities; that the Imperial and state constitution would be inviolably respected, and that the full liberty of officials, workers and employees to unite would be protected.

Visit Ex-Kaiser

London.—A number of Germans of high rank have visited Amerongen during the last few days, the Central News correspondent at Amsterdam reports. It is not known whether they have been able to communicate with former Emperor William. It is declared, however, that none of them were allowed to talk personally with the former ruler.

Fuel Oil Contracts

Like a Tidal Wave

Heart Disease and Nerve Troubles Sweep the Country

Probably at no period in the world's history have heart and nerve troubles been so prevalent as they are today.

The heart can't stand the stress and strain of this busy, bustling age, and the care and worry, the anxiety and activity of business life constitute a serious drain on the nervous system.

The business of this work-a-day world goes with such a rush that the stoutest hearts and strongest nerves break down under the strain.

On the first approach of any breakdown of the system Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills should be taken. The reconstructive power of these pills on the heart and nerve system is simply marvellous.

Mr. W. A. Wright, Hopewell Ave., Ottawa, Ont., writes: "After suffering for some time with my heart, I consulted a number of doctors, but got no relief. However, I read what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills had done for others, who had the same symptoms and thought I would give them a trial. Believe me, six boxes cured me completely. I am feeling fine now, and can attend to my work every day. I can recommend your pills to anyone suffering as I did."

Kapp Regime Is Ended After Short Control

Opposes Franchise For Jap Veterans

B.C. Politicians of All Parties Protest Against Dominion Proposal

Victoria, B.C. — The government's proposal to grant the franchise to Japanese veterans of the Canadian expeditionary force is arousing strong protest from members of all shades of politics in the house, and when the debate on the motion for the second reading of the new Elections Act was proceeded with, it was made clear that when the bill reached the committee stage a determined effort to eradicate the provision will be made. W. J. Bowser, opposition leader, will move an amendment striking out the provision, and he will receive support from some government members, as well as the soldier representatives, the latter being against it.

Paris Threatened With Novel Strike

Citizens Walk and Chauffeurs Will Walk Out

Paris.—Chauffeurs threaten Paris with a novel strike, their demand being a diminution of fares. Since the law calling for increased taxation went into effect a few days ago a long line of taxis have been idle, the citizens having taken to walking. Chauffeurs claim their income has been decreased 50 per cent. because of the recent increase in their rates of 100 per cent., and they demand that the rates be brought back to the former scale.

Allies Forces On Rhine

American Army of Occupation in Germany Numbers 14,000

Coblenz.—The American army of occupation, numbering 14,000 men, is being issued full field equipment under orders issued before the German revolution. There have been no movements to reinforce any position or any military activity, except those concerned with policing the occupied territory. The allied forces along the Rhine are estimated at slightly more than 100,000 men.

Pacific Coast Airplane Race

San Francisco.—The Pacific Aero club has made an announcement for the first sanctioned air race ever held on the Pacific coast. It will be the Del Monte air classic on April 21.

Frederick Porter, chairman of the contest committee, has mapped out the air route and conditions for the race, which will be from San Francisco to Del Monte, with no stops. The return will be over the same route. The distance is approximately 100 miles each way.

Spaniards Seek Hidden Treasure

Madrid.—The newspapers are demanding of the government credit for the commencement of excavations in the province of Leon, to unearth Roman cities, which are believed to be buried there, and which tradition says contain great quantities of jewels and money and antiquities of great value. The papers desire that the task be assigned to experts who would be capable of making a success of it.

Boy Killed By Classmates

Pueblo, Colo.—Five schoolboys, arrested in connection with the death of Ted, the 11-year-old son of Mrs. H. A. Kuykendall, confessed, according to the police, that they kicked the boy to death because they were jealous of his high standing in the school the boys attended.

Execution of Alvarez

At a Pilete, Sonora, Mexico.—Jesus Alvarez, formerly a colonel in the army of Francisco Villa, and more recently operating as a bandit and playing a lone hand in the central and southwest sections of Sonora, has been executed by Carranza soldiers, according to military authorities here.

Berlin.—After holding the reins of power for less than five days, Dr. Wolfgang Kapp, self-appointed chancellor and dictator, has retired from office and control. He resigned, and an official communication explained that the chancellor considered his mission fulfilled when the old government decided to meet the most essential demands addressed to it.

He was also moved to this action by the extreme necessity of the Fatherland, which demanded union against the dangers of Bolshevism.

The real circumstances of Kapp's retirement are still shrouded in mystery. An important factor undoubtedly is found in the deliberations of the under secretaries and the imperial council, which Major-General von Luettwitz attended. The views of this conference were that both Kapp and von Leuttwitz withdrew in order to terminate an intolerable position.

Von Luettwitz agreed to this, but when he returned to the chancellor he allowed himself to be persuaded to change his mind and retain office. To him has been delegated the executive power by the former revolutionary chancellor, and it is difficult to say what will happen now that Von Luettwitz remains military dictator of Berlin.

Although the general strike dealt this government a mortal blow, the decisive fact is that Kapp and his supporters had no political prestige, their government being built only on machine guns.

The statements made at these conferences gave a strange impression, and caused a suspicion that the cry of alarm about the Bolshevists was preliminary to the announcement of retreat. The chief of the press bureau warned the correspondents against showing themselves in the streets as a communist revolt was expected hourly.

That any kind of compromise is out of the question now is undoubted. President Ebert, of the old government, is strongly entrenched at Stuttgart, where, according to semi-official dispatches, the council of the empire met and unanimously approved the old government and strongly condemned the military coup at Berlin.

Frightened Berliners were asking: "The White or Red terror? Which?" This was in consequence of an official announcement that the Reds were planning an uprising calling upon the people to save the country from Bolshevism.

Have Their Own Troubles

Washington. — Hastening to clear the way for final action on the peace treaty, the senate choked off a St. Patrick's Day debate on the Irish question by tabling, 54 to 21, a proposal to declare by reservation that Great Britain should proclaim Ireland free.
