West Creston

H. S. Peterman is getting ready to quite a stretch of new fencing, bringing home a supply of wire the early part of the week.

Corn Creek bridge, which has been in need of some attention due to a wrecked crib, is haying the necessary work done this week.

The ferry, which was out of commission for a while last week has been once more equipped with a new cable and is again in operation. With power equipment on the new ferry it is expected much of the present cable trouble will be overcome with the installation of the new scow.

C. Meakin is getting a considerable area in shape which he will crop to roots this year. If the prevailing showery weather continues he should have a banner yield.

West Creston can justly lay claim to being a health resort. Albert Moores of Coleman, Alta., who has been at the Halcyon hot springs for a few weeks seeking releif from rheumatism, claims that during his short stay here he feels better than when he was taking the baths.

W. B. Muir was up Corn Creek this week to bring home his outfit that he had at his trapping camp there. He had quite a good season's take of fur, getting, among others, fourteen mink and a number of smaller pelts.

Messrs. Meakin and Matt. and Jim Moores were Creston callers the middle of the week, stocking up with supplies to carry them over the high water season, which we seem to be sure to have.

Angus Currie was treated to an agreeable surprise on Saturday night when the members of the social circle happened along unexpectedly to see to it that Angus gave his new home on the Benney ranch a real old time house warming—and from all accounts this was accomplished in due and ancient form. The guests came well supplied with refreshments, and a thoroughly enjoyabla time was spent in games, music and dancing.

Wynndel

The first thunderstorm of the season visited Wynndel on Monday, accompanied by a gale of wind that exceeded in velocity anything experienced here for several years back.

F. E. Loveday, manager of the Fruit Growers Union, Creston, and Roy Sharpe, who travels for the Wood-Wallance hardware firm at Nelson, were both business visitors here on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Butterfield paid a flying visit here on Sunday with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Butterfield, to say good bye, as they are leaving the Valley to reside permanently at Fernie.

Spraying operations commenced here last Saturdny, Paul Hagen being the first to use the Co-Operative power outfit.

W. B. Muir of Creston was a visitor here on Tuesday, after spending the winter in the hills trappiug, and reports a nice take of furs.

Mr. and Mrs. Berringer, who have been here for a couple of months in charge of cooking operations for J. B. Winlaw, left on Sunday for the U.S.

James Butterfield spent the week-end here with his parents, returning to Balfour on Sunday.

The box social and dance at the Clubhouse on Saturday night was a huge success. The hall was crowded with guests and certainly the ladies provided all the newest creations in the way of baskets, the highest priced one going to $12.50, with E. Uri doing the buying. All the others brought very satisfactory prices, due largely to the eloquence and natural humor of Auctioneer James Butterfield of Balfour. The total intake from the auction of baskets was $142.

24th at Cranbrook

Those who are planning to take a day off on Monday, May 24th (Queen's Birthday) cannot connect for a better day's entertainment than is offered at Cranbrook this year. Those in charge have something on the go for morning, afternoon and night—and of sufficient variety to give any and everyone their money's worth. For the morning there will be a line of doings for the children particularly, while in the afternoon a fine line of athletic sports, including championship baseball games and fast horse races are provided. In the evening there will be at least three dances with the best of music for those who prefer to conclude their outing in this fashion, and for others the attraction will be the two boxing bouts for which big purses are offered and first class mitt artists matched. Music for the day will be furnished by the Nelson Veteran's band. The affair is being staged for the benefit of Cranbrook G.W.V.A., and special trains will be run from Sirdar as well as from points east, as well as from Spokane. Without doubt this is the biggest and best holiday attraction ever offered and from all accounts Creston and the other Valley centres will all send considerable delegations to the divisional city.

Supt. Maharg in Promising Humor

Positive assurance that a satisfactory auto loading and unloading platform would be provided forthwith, and serious consideration of the several other requests was the best Messrs. Rodgers and Adlard, the board of trade's transportation committee could do with Supt. Maharg of the C.P.R., who met the aforementioned gentlemen in official conference on Wednesday night last.

Mr. Maharg was rather easily convinced of the pressing necessity of better accommodation for auto shipping and has decided to place the unloading platform on a site near the Imperial Oil Co. warehouse. He gave good heed to the request of a water supply to the stock corall but would not comit himself until he had enquired fully into the quantity of stock loaded out and in at Creston.

As to telegraphic service he stated that with a staff of three men at the local station this season it would be aossible to arrange their hours so that a competent operator would be on the job from eight till six town time, and that the same excellent service would be provided for handling express and freight business.

The matter of increased freight handling accomodation was still before the company, which recognized that the volume of business originating here warranted increased warehouse space. Even at this season of the year it is sometimes impossible to find storage for incoming local freight, which has to be left in the cars and unloaded a day or two later when the room is to be had. In view of the possible placing of an agent at Erickson and the diverting of much of the fruit export to that point it is just possible the badly-needed increased freight shed space will not be forthcoming until 1921, when a new shed on the other side of the tract will most likely be built. As to an eave-through along the station eaves to prevent the water from the roof running into rigs unloading not much hope was held out for any improvement this season.

Vice-president Coleman was a Creston visitor the following day going east by special car behind the passenger, Mr. Maharg having gone through to Sirdar to confer with him, holding the conference here while the way freight crew was unloading freight for Creston.

Erickson

A number of the ranchers had their power sprayers in action the latter part of the week, the early apples being the recipients to their attention. From the showing of bloom on these it looks quite safe to predict an average crop.

Sunday was visitors day at the new Goat River bridge, residents from every point in the Valley being there to look it over. We understand the washing away of the false work will not stop construction, though it will extend the construction period a couple of weeks.

Work on laying the pipe of the water users' association is expected to commence shortly. The order for 15,000 feet of it was placed over two weeks ago.

Friends of Mrs. Henry Hamilton will hear with satisfaction that she is able to be around again almost as well as ever, after a very revere attack of rheumatism and heart trouble. Mrs. Kerr, who has been here from Kitchener with her, has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs, Fred Brownrigg and family of Red Deer, Alta., who have been visitors with his brother, George, have gone to Yahk, where he expects to open out an auto repair station.

Building operations are not very brisk in this section as yet, about the only lumber user being Cnas. Kelsey, who has had a new verandah put on his house.

Mr. Campbell of Bellave, Alta., who earlier in the month purchased ten acres of R. Lamont, adjoining the Palmer ranch, arrived last week with a car of effects to take possession.

Erickson is liable to be back to record production in the tomato line this season. Dong Barney, the Creston vegetable king, has leased the Lamont ten acres which Staples Bros. had two seasons ago, and if he can secure the plants will plant it to tomatoes.

Another tomatoe grower of some consequence is the Chink on the McLeod ranch, who has his plants already in the field and apparently coming along fine.

Erickson is also due to considerably expand her cabbage output this season. Sam Fraser has about 12,000 plants set out, and Messrs. Leadbeater and Pogle are into them on some considerable scale. With the right weather there should be at least three cars of early cabbage to ship from here.

Valley May Have District Nurse

The May meeting of Creston Valley Women's Institute, on Friday afternoon, was of a decidedly practical and interesting nature throughout, with a paper on the Public Health Nurse question by Mrs. Downs, and the attendant discussion, taking the most prominent place. In this connection a considerable correspondence was read by secretary in which was disclosed the terms and conditions upon which the provincial health authorities will secure a nurse for the district, The financial feature in this connection stipulates a monthly salary of $125 along with travelling expenses. In order to handle the undertaking systematically it is suggested that a health committee be formed, consisting of representatives of all local organizations, and under whose direction the nurse will labor. The institute is now at work asking the societies hereabouts to name a member for this committee, and the secretary is also arranging to send out cards to find out just how much people will pledge in the way of monthly contributions toward the $125 stipend.

If feasible the institute will have a flower show in July at which there will also be an exhibit of school children's work if it can be so arranged. And in connection with exhibition effort the institute unanimously voted $15 for prizes at the 1920 fall fair, apportioning it as follows: $8 in two prizes for knitted sweater with sleeves in the needlework section, and $7 in two prizes for the same article in the juvenile class.

Word has been received from the department which practically assures the annual convention of the Kootenay and Boundary Institutes for the second week in August or the first week in September, at Creston, and the president submitted a very business like statement showing just what effort the conclave would entail as well as outlining the probable expense in connection therewith, which totalled up along toward $200, including such items as hall rents for the convention sessions and banquet, the putting up of delegates for whom no billets could be secured, noonday meals for all the delegates as with both morning and afternoon sessions the getting of midday repasts would be out of the question in the average members' home, besides a string of incidental expenses attendant upon a well appointed gathering of this sort.

The president, Mrs. Lyne, along with Mrs. G. Cartwright were named as the voting delegates from Creston at the convention. It was also agreed to make the regular contribution to the federated institutes work. At the close Mesdames Thurston, Ebbutt and McMurtrie served refreshments, with the accompanying freewill offering amounting to $3.10.

"Well I do," said Ruggles. "Let me tell you something, Ruth. There's a lot more than we realize back of all this. We're not going to drown. My father and mother killed themselves working for your family, and your family never knew it. I guess the Ruggles were made by God Almighty to work for the Downings, and it's all just kismet as the Turks say. Now here I am working to save your life, and I'm going to do it, too. I saw you out there farther than you ought to have been, and went out to look after you. We got mixed up, I guess. What you took for an automobile was a motor-boat running down for Etaples. I thought about that too late. But never mind. There's a Ruggles on this job, and I've got a hunch that he's going to make good and get you out of trouble. I had the same hunch when I was a-straddle of Hamid Pasha, smashing the heads off the Bulgarians. All you have got to do now is to keep your courage up and stick it out. I guess we've got sand enough to keep us going or quite a lot of hours yet, and we're bound to be picked up as soon as it gets light. And let me tell you something else—" He laid his cheek against hers. "You've got a debt to pay to the Ruggles family. And I'm here to claim it. From now on you belong to me, living or dead—do you understand, dear?"

"Yes—I understand. How dark it's getting! Where does that light come from—or is it just the flashing in my eyes?"

"That's Le Touquet light," Ruggles answered. "I began to flash just before we found this crate. Only for that I might never have seen it. Ruth"—he raised her head in his hands—"Kiss me."

She raised her pallid lips to his; then let her head sink against his shoulder.

CHAPTER XXIV.

The small steam yacht Reveuse, nosing her way through the fog at nightfall, towards Boulogne, was hailed from the mark by distant cries for help.

The forward lookout heard them first on the starboard bow, and reported to the bridge. A moment later they came close aboard on the starboard beam, and Monsieur Pelleu, the celebrated etcher, who was on the bridge with his sailing-master, distinguished a dark floating object not far away. The yacht was promptly stopped and a boat lowered, Monsieur Pelleu himself taking the yoke-lines. Thus facing forward, he soon discovered a man and a girl in bathing costume clinging to what appeared to be a capsized boat or piece of wreckage. As his gig drew near, Monsieur Pelleu observed the man clasp his companion in his arms and kiss her repeatedly.

"Ha! They will not perish," said Monsieur Pelleu to himself.

Ruth and Ruggles were lifted into the boat by the strong arms of the Breton sailors, and taken aboard the yacht in so exhausted a condition that they had to be carried up the companion ladder. Yet, in spite of this fatigue, neither appeared to be in by any means a critical condition. On the contrary, there shone from the face of each a peculiar luminosity.

"Behold the power of love!" said Monsieur Pelleu to himself.

Madame Pelleu was aboard the yacht with her maid, and they took Ruth immediately in hand, giving her first hot water with brandy and sugar followed by a brisk friction, then to bed with hot-water bags and copious drafts of tisane. Ruggles, after a dose of cognac and a brisk rub by the steward, felt sufficiently restored to dress in a suit of flannels borrowed from his host, a man of about his build, and to go out into the saloon. The steward had informed him that the yacht was from Dinard and bound for Boulogne, to meet some guests expected to arrive from Folkestone the following morning.

They were even then cautiously approaching the Boulogne breakwater. Monsieur Pelleu was on the bridge with his sailing-master while madame was occupied with Ruth. Ruggles stretched himself out upon the cushions and tried to realize what had happened to him. He felt no great reaction from the mental and physical strain through which he had just passed. Some potent elixir strengthened and sustained him, and with it an emotion of wonder and awe and devotional gratitude. He felt himself to be a favored one of God.

It was not alone for the preservation of his life and being the instrument for the preservation of Ruth. Something far greater than life had been vouchsafed him. Ruth had come to him as a divine gift. Elemental forces had bestowed her. He looked at the door of the stateroom from behind which came the low murmur of voices and his eyes gushed over. He thought of the briny kisses exchanged and his body shook with tremors compared to which all previous emotions were as the fluttering wing of a hummingbird.

These emotions were interrupted by the flashing of lights through a porthole and Ruggles saw that they were off the port. A moment later the engines stopped, went astern, stopped again, and the little vessel quivered as the anchor took the water and the chain cable spun out through the hawse-pipe. Monsieur Pelleu came below and expressed his gratification at finding Ruggles in so good condition. Then Madame Pelleu came out with the encouraging news that Ruth had broken into a gentle perspiration and had fallen asleep.

The gig was ordered at once and Monsieur went ashore in person to telephone to Le Tourquet the news of the rescue and to give orders that Ruggles car should be sent for him the following morning with such of his clothes as he needed. The kindly artist would not hear of Ruggles leaving the yacht that night, even insisting that he should have his dinner in his berth, in which excellent advice Madame Pelleu seconded him warmly. So Ruggles, who was feeling very drowsy, thanked them and retired, falling at once into so deep a sleep that he was with difficulty roused by the steward, who brought him a bowl of broth and a jug of milk.

When he awoke the next morning the light was streaming through the porthole. From overhead came the murmur of many voices. Ruggles rang for the steward, who came in at once with his valise.

"Mademoiselle Challand is on deck,' said the steward, "and wishes to see monsieur as soon as convenient. Monsieur Downing is there, also, and his son, the brother of mademoiselle."

In answer to Ruggle's question in regard to Ruth, the steward replied that she was entirely recovered and on deck with the others.

Ruggles swung his feet over the edge of his bunk and sat for a moment trying to collect his thoughts. The air was close, and, seeing that the stateroom had a deck ventilator, he opened it. As he did so, there came down to him a murmur of conversation, in which he recognized Ruth's voice and a resonant bass that he correctly supposed belonged to her father.

A sudden misgiving swept over him and his heart sank. He forgot his millions, forgot his notoriety, forgot his newly acquired position and his many new-formed friends. Or, rather, the moral support of all these things seemed suddenly to desert him. There, just overhead, was this man whom he had always so revered, Richard P. Downing, whom, but a little over a year before, he, Ruggles, had been serving on his knees—with button-hook and shoe-horn, the humblest of employees, and whom his parents had served before him as factory operatives.

Only the night before he had been actually in mind to ask this great man for the hand of his only daughter—and on what grounds? Merely because he had been swept with her out into the Channel and had encouraged her to cling to a floating box until rescued.

[illegible] was how the situation [illegible] fortune had turned his head. [illegible] one chance in a thousand [illegible] would so [illegible] to his demands? What did it [illegible] that Ruggles was a mill[illegible] but through a freak of fortune [illegible] unmarried position? What did that [illegible] for Ruth?

might have been different, Ruggles told himself. Instead of this he had disgraced himself in his occupation and brought himself discredit on his employers. He had shown himself a ruffian and a brawler. He was an adventurer, a parvenu—and with it all he was still Ruggles; formerly "No. 7" in the Paris store.

And what of Ruth? What right had he to take advantage of a girl who was at the point of exhaustion, and with death staring her in the face, to claim an obligation and demand so rich a reward? What if he had held her in his arms and prevailed upon her to receive his kisses and extracted a promise, the purport of which he doubted that, in her fearful stress of mind and body, she was able at the time to realiz[illegible]?

The Oldest Name

Three commercial travellers met at the hotel one winter evening and had a hearty supper together. The supper over, the three found some difficulty in allotting their prospective shares of the bill; but one of them at length cut short the dispute that whoever had the "oldest name" among them should go free — the expense being halved by the other two. This being promptly accepted. No. 1 produced a card inscribed "Richard Eve," which no. 2 met with "Adam Brown." Then no. 3, a portly veteran with a humorous gray eye, laid down his card with the quiet confidence of a great general making a decisive movement and remarked with a chuckle, "I don't much think you'll beat this 'un, gents." And he was right, for the name was "Mr. B. Ginning."

Even those who haven't any eye for beauty appreciate a handsome income.

British Minister Departs from China

Regarded As A Friend By Every Resident of the Far East

The coming and going of the foreign representatives is not often of interest to any but their own nations; but this is not true of the departure of the retiring British Minister, Sir John Jordan. He had spent 43 years in China and had risen from the lowest rank of a consular language student to the highest position in the gift of his government. He spent the last 14 years as minister in Peking, and came to be regarded as a friend by every resident of the Far East, irrespective of nationality. He was highly respected by the Chinese, even though he had known well how to maintain the interests of his own countrymen when they were in jeopardy. His long life in China has added much to the prestige of his country for fair dealing and upright living.

Desert Land and Desert Sea

A portion of the journey between Sydney, the New South Wales capital, and Broken Hill, the mining heart of Australia, lies over waterless, and hot country. Lieutenant Sydney Pickles, who has shown the feasibility of an air service between the two cities, saw no landmark as he crossed the barren stretch and so had to use his compass. Describing the pioneer flight, he compared the interminable rolling land before him to the gray, lonely wastes of the North Sea, which he had patrolled in his seaplane.

Air Force Applications

Fifty and Sixty A Day For Enlistment in Canadian Air Force

Applications are going in at the offices of the Air Board at Ottawa, at the rate of fifty and sixty a day for enlistment in the new Canadian Air Force. All the applications are from ex-officers in the Royal Air Force. Preparations are already under way at Camp Borden, Ontario, for the establishment of the first training camp of the force. Officers of the new force will train at camp Borden in periods of a month or so at a time. There are adequate facilities there for the training of nearly three thousand men at a time. The equipment installed by the Royal Air Force at Camp Borden has been taken over by the Canadian Government for the use of the Canadian force, including eighteen hangars and substantial permanent building. The building of this flying base cost the Imperial government $1,000,000 and comprises an up-to-date aerodrome and barracks.

A Terrible Penalty

frequently follows the neglect of an injury. Germs and dust get into the wound, it begins to fester, blood-poisoning sets in, and sometimes the loss of a limb is the result.

Safeguard yourself against such a possibility by applying Zam-Buk at once. This antiseptic balm destroys all germs and prevents festering and blood-poisoning. Then the healing essences promote the growth of new tissue and it is not long before the wound is completely healed.

Zam-Buk should be kept handy in every home, office, store and factory for cuts, scratches, burns, scalds and bruises. It is equally good for eczema, rashes, boils and ulcers. All dealers, 50c. box.

Canned Whitefish For Alberta

A Cannery Will Soon be in Operation On the Shores of Lake Athabasca

Canned whitefish from Lake Athabasca, in Northern Alberta, will likely be the next new idea in Alberta food products. Arrangements are under way for opening up the cannery on the far northern water, which is to form a part of the operations of the Mackenzie Basin Fisheries company. This concern was incorporated last year to take over the fishing interests of R. W. Jones on Lesser Slave Lake. The capital stock has been increased from $100,000 to $200,000, the intention being to prosecute the northern fisheries on an extensive scale, as well as Lake Athabasca.

A cannery site has been secured on Lake Athibasca, and some of the new capital is to be used in getting a plant ready for operation at as early a date as may be found possible. The remoteness of the northern fishing grounds and the lack of transportation facilities at the present time, are reasons for the company's decision to establish a cannery, tinned fish being more easily taken to market under existing conditions.

Naval Governor For New Zealand

Viscount Jellicoe is Appointed Governor General and Commander-In-Chief of Dominion

The Colonial office has announced that His Majesty King George has been pleased to appoint Admiral of Fleet Viscount Jellicoe to be Governor-General and Commander-in-Chief of the Dominion of New Zealand in succession of the Earl of Liverpool, who will shortly retire from that office. Lord Jellicoe was very warmly received in New Zealand last year during his naval tour, where he spent about six weeks.

In discussing Lord Liverpool's successor, the chief government newspaper, The Dominion, urged the appointment of an admiral in view of New Zealand's naval policy.

"There is obviously no reason why the King's representative should necessarily be an earl or a baron, as has been the case for the last thirty years," declares The Dominion, "and there is even less reason why the post should be used as a jumping-off place for the peerage by British party politicians. New Zealand does not want a purely ornamental governor-general, nor yet one with an ingrained and life-long habit of having a finger in the political pie." The Journal adds that a senior officer of the navy would make a good governor, since he could give some expert advice on naval defence.

The nomination method of appointing governors seems to suit the present organization of the Empire. But the governor ought to be a man of infinite tact, conscious that he occupies a somewhat anomalous position. He may have influence, but he must not try to rule. New Zealand has had governors of many types, and it has liked some of them much better than others. The governor who would be intolerable would be he who imagined that Downing Street had given him [illegible] the public affairs of [illegible]

A DESIRE TO EAT WHAT YOU WANT

How Stomachs Can Be Restored To A Vigorous, Healthy Condition

Not to be limited in diet, but to eat whatever he pleases is the dream of every dyspeptic. No one can honestly promise to restore any stomach to this happy condition, because all people cannot eat the same things with equally satisfactory results. It is literally true that "what is one man's food is another man's poison." But it is possible to so tone up the digestive organs that a pleasing diet may be selected from articles of food that cause no discomfort.

When the stomach lacks tone there is no quicker way to restore it than to build up the blood. Good digestion without rich, red blood is impossible, and Dr. Williams Pink Pills offer the very best way to build up and enrich the blood. For this reason these pills are especially good in stomach trouble attended by thin blood, and in attacks of nervous dyspepsia. Proof of the value of Dr. Williams Pink Pills in even the most obstinate cases of stomach trouble is given by Mrs. S. Morrison, Varney, Ont., who says:—"I shall always feel indebted to a friend who advised me to use Dr. Williams Pink Pills. I had been a sufferer for upwards of twelve years with stomach trouble which resulted in a general weakness of the whole system. My meals always caused me great discomfort, and at times I would go hungry rather than undergo the suffering which followed meals. I was constantly taking something or other recommended for the trouble, but without finding a cure, and often the trouble kept me in bed when I should have been about doing my housework. My friend, who had had a similar attack came to see me and urged me to try Dr. Williams Pink Pills which had cured her. I got a supply at once and began taking them, and soon found relief. By the time I had used eight boxes I was again enjoying the best of health, and with a good appetite and a stomach restored to normal. Had I know of this medicine earlier it would have saved me years of suffering, and I urge any who may be in a similar condition to try these pills at once."

You can get Dr. Williams Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail postpaid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Saskatchewan's Egg Industry

Export Business Has Been Steadily Increasing During the Past Year

At one time Regina, Saskatchewan, was a large importer of eggs and poultry, but now it is sending both to the markets of Eastern Canada, and also to the Pacific coast. According to the reports of L. T. McDonald, Commissioner of the Board of Trade of Regina, there were 900 cases of eggs shipped from this city during the week ending April 17. In each case there were 30 dozen eggs. This large export business has been steadily increasing during the past year and it is estimated that the farmers in the neighborhood who are raising poultry are earning a good sum of money in the business. The market demand for eggs continues to be good and there is practically no trouble in disposing of all the available supply.

Ambassador For Dominion

Canada Will Likely Have Own Representative in U. S.

Discussions are in progress between the United States and Great Britain which give substantial promise of ending in an agreement by which Canada will be represented in Washington by a diplomatic agent of high rank.

Such representation is understood to be desired keenly both by Canada and the United States and to be unopposed by Great Britain. The conversations on the subject are described as being actuated by the wish of all concerned to facilitate negotiations between Canada and the United States on question in which Great Britain is interested only by the fact that Canada is one of her Dominions.

So far as can be learned, the only difficulty that has been encountered to date is in fixing the exact status and rank that the diplomat would have and in determining in advance so as to avoid any chance of friction concerning the relations that he would bear to the British ambassador in Washington. The prospects are that the Canadian representative would have wide freedom of action in matters directly affecting the Dominion. A decision on this point may be expected soon.

Subjects of interest common to the United States and Canada at present frequently meet with long delays in settlement because of the circuitous route they have to follow in the process of negotiation through the British embassy. If a direct exchange of views might be arranged, it is thought by many officials, that much benefit would be derived by the United States and Canada and, indirectly, by Great Britain.

The duties would correspond in a large part with those of a high commissioner, and this is the title that may be given the new representative. During the war, Sir Richard Crawford, as a commercial attache of the British embassy, had Canadian possessions directly under his supervision, and was able to render an important service in the relations between the United States and Canada. It was partly because attention was called to the greater advantage of [illegible] between the two countries that the proposal for an exchange of high ranking diplomatic representatives is now being urged.—N. Y. Evening Sun.

In the Spring Time

Any fool knows enough to carry an umbrella when it rains, but the wise man is he who carries one when it is only cloudy. Any man will send for a doctor when he gets bedfast, but the wiser one is he who adopts proper measures before his ills become serious. During a hard winter or the following spring one feels run-down, tired out, weak and nervous. Probably you have suffered from a cold, the Grip or flu, which has left you thin, weak and pale. This is the time to put your system in order. It is time for house-cleaning.

A good, old-fashioned alterative and tempérence tonic is one made of wild roots and barks, without the use of alcohol, and called Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, in tablet or liquid form. Sermonless Servicee

Verily necessity is the mother of invention. The most tangible evidence as to the efficacy of the old saying is furnished in a despatch from old London to the effect that at the meeting at Lambeth in July of some half thousand bishops of the Anglican church throughout the world the question of dispensing with sermons at church services will be seriously taken up.

The despatch in question goes on to say that "A section of churhcmen is declared to hold that if a man has not the gift of preaching it would be better for everyone that he should not preach. The 'two sermons each Sunday' custom, they say, imposes a great strain on the clergy—a strain equally if not more heavily felt by the laity."

As a means of coping with not only a shortage of men, but also a still greater scarcity of pulpiteers who can deliver sleep-defying dissertations on worth while topics, the Church of England has pit upon a plan that is entirely in keeping with her old time historic traditions, and one, which if followed to a logical modern conclusion, might well be equally efficacious in solving the equally pressing church financing problem.

Granted the sermon can be dispensed with, with its entirely ritualistic service throughout what is to prevent the installation of a goodly sized phonograph supplied with a series of records covering everything except the musical features of both morning and evening worship, and for country parishes where organists and other musical talent is a minus quantity, why not a series of discs that would include a standard set of chants and hymns along with the purely spoken features of the regulation services.

Under these auspicious circumstances the custom of having church services regularly would be a simple matter, indeed, and almost as economical as simple. In regularly organized parishes the duties of the church wardens could be made to include the handling of the services in this fashion, if need be, while in those districts denied public worship for any reason whatsoever granted a building is available the boon of regular meeting together on the Lord's day could be easily obtained.

In fact with the introduction of the phonograph there would be no occasion to dispense with the time honored address. If it is possible to transform the best in music to the phonographic record it should not be impossible to perform a like service with the gems of theologic utterance by the introduction of an exchange system as with motion picture films.

Now that the moving picture is being effectively used in portraying the gospel message it will not surprise all of us if in the not distant future the Master's voice should be fully as advantageously and more generally heard than is at present the case.

Temporary Failure

A correspondent, who it might appear is not in sympathy with the united church movement has sent us the following clipping from a recent issue of the Fernie Free Press:

With the departure of the Rev. Batzold from the pastorate of the United church, indications point to a breaking up of the union. Notwihstanding the financial success of the amalgamated churches there has been a number of stiff-necked Presbyterians and straight-laced Methodists who have never been satisfied with the arrangement and always considered that their particular denomination was getting the worst of the deal. The feeling seemed to more particularly exist among certain Methodists and they have been pussy-footing around during the last week or two in an effort to smash the union. It is a noticeable fact, however, that those who were active in financing the individual churches are not very keen on a division.

The situation in Fernie will not surprise anyone who has followed the united church movement so far as it has developed in Canada to date, and to our way of thinking it is but another sample of having a little evil happen in order that ultimate good may result.

If about seventy-five per cent of the paying church goes of Fernie are for union one does not need to be gifted with second sight to forsee the not very distant date when it will be realized in religious affairs there that there is a whole lot of truth in the observation that "united we stand, divided we fall."

In the fair old, rare old, golden days salvation may have been free but in these latter days the free list has been almost entirely suspended and religion may now be classed with irrigation—the water is free but you have to pay for the piping. Watch Fernie shortly demonstrate that the Lord loveth a cheerful giver rather than the slow-paying dogmatic denominationalist.

The Barrier

The story tells of the love for Merridy, a pretty young school teacher from Vermont, by two sturdy men, honest John Gaylord and gambler Dan Bennett. Both become suitors for the hand of thr maiden. Bennett wins her almost against her will, and Gaylord retires to his mountain hut, crushed and hopeless. The murder of Merridy by her jealous husband, who accuses Gaylord of the crime, after the latter has fled with the Bennetts' little daughter, that she may be saved from evil influences that surround her.

The chiid, Necia, grows up in the belief that Gaylord is her father, and that an Indian squaw, with whom he lives, is her mother. To the district comes a company of United States soldiers, and one of them, handsome young Lieutenant Burrell, loves Neeia, who worships him. But the indian blood that is supposed to run in her veins is "the barrier" between them. Poleon Doret, a big-hearted Frenchman, also loves the girl, and it is through his nobility and self sacrifice that happiness come to the girl and her soldier lover, after many exciting experiences for them all. The arrival of Dan Bennett, his recognition of his long-lost daughter, the renewal of the contest between him and Gaylord, and the participation in the plot of a number of other characters cause a succession of happenings that produce thrill after thrill. There are several terrific man-to-man fights, and many scenes of sentiment and humor. The mountain, desert, lake and river scenes are beautiful and picturesque, and the difficult characterizations are carried out in an able manner by a carefully selected cast.

By a vote of 59 to 4 Rossland ratepayers authorixed the city council to go ahead and spend $15,000 on improvements to the water system.

Cranbrook Methodist church raised a total of $5100 for all purposes last year—the biggest financial intake in the 21 years' history of the congregation.

Cranbrook has an overall club in the making, the members expecting to be out in force on May 24th. The membership will include at least half a dozen ladies.

Music comes high but you must have it for a big celebration. The Veteran's band of Nelson will charge $500 for their services at Cranbrook's 24th of May doings.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Layman's View

EDITOR REVIEW:

SIR,—As a subscriber and reader of your paper for several years may I hope you will find space for a few words on this stirring topic of Clergyless Creston by Adherent, in your issue of April 16th, and also the comments editorially, and by the pastor of the Methodist church in your last issue just to hand.

I feel moved to write my thoughts, trusting that what I may have to say may in effect add further fuel to the fire, so that it may lead others to think and speak, and who knows that a real stirring up come about with a real gain on the side of the spiritual walfare of Creston people, of whom I consider myself one, for, indeed, I do believe we all ought to get a real interest in this most vital question: That of our duty to keep the Sabbath day holy and to give willingly and cheerfully, not alone of our dollars but of our time to think and get together and work for the upbuilding of His kingdom here on earth.

Now, Mr. Editor, why is it that we do not do this? It is that we do not believe in God? Surely not. We would not like it to be said of us, individually, that he or she is an atheist or an agnostic, or of us nationally that we are not a christian nation. Few there be today who will admit candidly that they just don't believe in almighty God. Do we seek membership in a fraternal order we are met at the threshold by the all important question. Do you believe in God, creator and ruler of the universe, and we must say we do, or stay outside. And why kiss the bible and say what we do say is the truth and nothing but the truth, if it were not a tacit acknowledgement of a supreme being, and the solemnity of our action.

The pity of it is that we do not think more deeply upon this subject, and ask ourselves sometimes how much we really do believe in God, and the works of His hands. If we decide that in spite of our disinterestedness we do, some, we ought to read more what is written in the best of books, and if we did read more of our bible we surely would think more and earnestly, and in the end we would find our way to church on each Sabbath day and then there would be no need to go begging for money to make up the minister's salary, or for a place the size of Creston to be dependent upon home mission funds to some extent for the carrying on of the church work.

Is the moral and spiritual walefare of the people of Creston, and of the boys and girls who are all too soon grown up and taken places amongst us not as important at the commercial and financial interest? Is the influence of the church of God of less account than a strong BOARD OF TRADE? I am sure that we all do agree with Adherent when he says that he would rather have his boy brought up to attend Sunday school than to play a game of poker. Nor is this all, for we would rather have the boy—as man—for our neighbor, and if he took his teaching at all seriously that boy could not help but grow up into a man of honor and good repute; a citizens to be trusted.

What we want in Creston is church union, insofar as the Protestant churches go. We ought not only to wake up to the importance of united action and the pooling of our resources financially, but to the need of giving willingly and more, for no man ever willingly gave of his means to the Lord's work but he received it back fourfold in riches that fadeth not away.

The real trouble is that we are just playing careless in this matter of church support, and it is not the preachers' fault that the churches are all too near empty, or the funds depleted. At some time in his life he has felt called to preach the gospel of Christ, of which none need be ashamed. He's human, and needs our sympathy and co-operation, rather than the too-often spoken criticism. He needs your hearty handshake and spoken appreciation at the close of the service as much as—and far more—than we need handshaking, and come again, and I say let us acquire the habit of coming again, and inducing others to come with us.

Let us endeavor to keep the Sabbath day holy, as the Lord commanded, even if the berries do get over-ripe or the hay get rain on it. What matter such small losses so long as we lay up treasure in heaven where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, nor thieves break through and steal. Do we not receive all the good things of this world from an all wise and loving father in heaven, and in return must we act like the nine of the ten lepers who were cleansed of their leprosy and only one was grateful enough to return thanks. Are we too busy to return thanks, or even acknowledge the existence of One in whom, if we will believe, we may have life everlasting. Thanking you for space, I am yours for helpful united action.

WM. E. SEARLE.

Revelstoke autoists claim that there is altogether too much broken glass thrown upon the streets of that town.

The Herald states that last month two trappers disposed of their take of 50 marten pelts at Cranbrook, the skins averaging $50 each.

The smelter at Greenwood, which has been shut down for almost eighteen months is now being dismantled, the machinery being shippped west.

May 1st was the biggest moving day Cranbrook has yet had. The Courier believes at least fifty families shifted quarters at the first of the month.

Rehabilitating the World

The Supreme Council of the League of Nations is making substantial progress with the difficult task entrusted to it of disentangling the complex races which for so long have been held subject to the Sultan under the tyranny of the despotic and murderous Turks. Europe and Asia present many international, racial and religious problems, but none quite so difficult of solution as that of the old Turkish empire. It is easy to criticize Great Britain and France because of the decision to leave the Turks in Constantinople, but it is not so easy to outline an alternative policy likely to prove successful and not provoke a still more serious situation, and one that might have far-reaching results of a disastrous character. However, the power of the Turk is destroyed, and an end is in sight to the long chapter of Ottoman misrule, rapine and murder.

Having been rescued from the domination of the Turks by the victorious British armies, Palestine and Mesopotamia have been entrusted to Great Britain to be administered under a mandate from the League of Nations, and a national home for the Jews is being established under the protection of the Union Jack. France is given a mandate for the administration of Syria, and the United States has been asked to accept the mandate for oppressed and downtrodden Armenia. Thus to the three most powerful of the allied nations, those enjoying the most democratic forms of government, and actuated by the loftiest ideals, is given the humane and civilizing work of bringing a new era of happiness and prosperity to millions of people who for centuries have been little more than slaves, with life and property in hourly danger of extinction by the unspeakable Turk.

In this column last week reference was made to the gigantic financial problems which must be solved by the people of Canada, and it is possible that before this appears in print the budget will have been presented at Ottawa and the policy of the Government indicated as to how the national obligations are to be met. It is inevitable that there must be a further increase in taxation and Canadians must be prepared for it. But grave as our position in Canada may be, and heavy the burden to be borne, they are slight in comparison to those of other lands and peoples.

The German budget was recently presented to the Reichstag. The financial burden which the people of Germany must meet in some form or another this year reaches the stupendous total of 52,500,000,000 marks, or, roughly speaking, $13,000,000,000, or more than four times the gross national debt of Canada. Dr. Wirth, the German Finance Minister, frankly admits he is at a loss to know how the money is to be raised or where it is to come from.

Italy is carrying an enormous debt. It was heavy before the war, and has been increased many times over. The government and people are meeting it courageously, and a loan of 20,000,000,000 lire has just been raised by the Italian people.

France, too, has recently floated a loan among its own people of 15,000,000,000 francs, or an amount equal to the national debt of Canada. The French parliament is now engaged in passing measures which will enormously increase the taxation imposed on the French people.

With a national debt of approximately $40,000,000,000, Great Britain has started on the great task of paying it off. No further borrowings will be made, but taxation is being substantially increased. This year British revenue is estimated at $7,000,000,000, or more than double our national debt. This great revenue will provide for a reduction in the British national debt of at least $1,000,000,000, while in 1921 it is estimated that a further reduction of $1,500,000,000 will be made.

Canada has not yet made a start at debt reduction; on the contrary the debt is still increasing. This must stop, and the work of liquidation of the national debt begun. It can only be accomplished by this Dominion following the example of other countries—curtailing expenditures wherever possible and increasing revenues by increasing taxation. The people must be prepared for this and must accept it without any complaint. There is no other way out. The longer the debt is allowed to stand, the heavier the burden will become. People realize this in their individual affairs; they must appreciate the fact that it is equally true in their national business.

Notwithstanding the wholesale destruction of the last five years, and the enormous burdens of debt and taxation which must now be borne, the world is still the gainer, because the Great War was the operation whereby the cancer of militarism and the ever-increasing burden of military and naval armaments was cut out of the world's body. The cost of the operation must now be paid for, but the cure affected will give renewed life and vigor to the world, and, by relieving it of an intolerable burden, will ultimately add to its prosperity and the comfort and happiness of all people.

SHORT OF BREATH

Could Hardly Walk Without Resting.

When you go to a physician to be examined for any heart trouble, one of the first questions he asks is: "Are you short of breath?"

Now, when the heart becomes affected there ensues a feeling of a choking sensation, a shortness of breath, palpitation, throbbing, irregular beating, smothering sensation, dizziness and a weak, sinking, all-gone feeling of oppression and anxiety.

On the first sign of the heart becoming weakened or the nerves unstrung Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are just the remedy you require. They regulate and stimulate the heart, and strengthen and restore the whole nerve system.

Mr. Stephen Crouse, East Clifford, N.S., writes: "I suffered for five years with heart trouble. I could hardly walk from the house to the barn without resting, as I used to get so short of breath. Doctors could not help me. My wife told me to get a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and I felt better after taking them; three boxes made me quite well. I am now helping my son to work the farm, and can truthfully say I feel like a different man."

Stock Raising in B.C.

Breeders of the Province Are Going In For Purebred Cattle

The breeding of purebred stock for export, is believed to be a coming industry in British Columbia. Development of this new industry is bringing new breeders into the province. New herds are being brought together, the owners of which have a guarantee that there will be an abundant market for blue-blooded cattle, not only locally and in the other provinces and adjoining states, but as well in Hawaii, Australia and New Zealand.

Several head of purebred Holstein cattle have been sent to Australia from British Columbia recently, and it is said that Australian stockmen are planning to send their representatives to Canada for the purpose of securing registered Hereford, Holstein and Jersey cattle.

Korean Alphabet

Consists of Fourteen Consonants and Eleven Vowels

One of the first acts of Japan, upon taking over Korea, was to forbid the printing of books in anything but Japanese characters. On-mun, the script of Korea, is altogether different from the language of China and Japan, and was at first despised because it was "so easy that even women could learn it in a month." The script is ascribed by Korean annals to the year 1447, when the King of Korea, resolving to assert his independence by abandoning the use of Chinese writing as the official medium of correspondence, invented an alphabet to suit the special requirements of the vernacular. The Korean alphabet consists of fourteen consonants and eleven vowels. The characters are of an extreme simplicity, contrasting strongly with the complex Chinese. There are no pronouns of the first and second person, the third, with relational particles, serving for both.

Great Changes In Britain Are Wrought by War

Atlantic City, N.J.— Changes have been wrought by the war in Great Britain which "almost deserve the title of revolution," said Sir Auckland Geddes, British ambassador to the U. S., in an address before the annual convention of the United States, Chamber of Commerce. Vast new classes have been enfranchised, he said, and the working classes, strong-anti-militaristic, now hold "ultimate political power."

"They seek to limit the nation's power," he said, "to secure tranquility in Asia Minor, in Asia and Africa. Silently and without fuss, the army has been reduced to a strength which many think barely sufficient to police the empire. The people are determined to deal with problems of health, housing and education. They see clearly that to secure their purpose they have to end the rancors and animosities that have torn Europe and brought her to the brink of destruction."

Reports of dissensions between the representatives of Britain and France and Italy at San Remo were "fantastic," the ambassador assured the chamber.

"The great question you have to decide," he continued, "is this: Are you going to stand by and wait for Europe's troubles to come after you, as they will, or are you going out to help Europe — and remember, I am excluding the European part of the British commission of nations — to win through to reasonable conditions?"

Will Evacuate German Towns

Whole German Force in Ruhr District Must be Reduced to 10,00 by June 10

Paris.—Premier Millerand, in making a declaration to the chamber of deputies on the results of the supreme council meeting at San Remo, said that the Frankfurt and Darmstadt territories would be evacuated by the French as soon as the allied commissions had established that the German armed force over the number allowed by the convention of August, 1919, had been withdrawn.

The whole German forces in the Ruhr region, the premier declared, must be reduced to 10,000 men by June 10 next, and by July 10 all the German soldiers must be withdrawn and replaced by a police force of 10 thousand men.

"I said at San Remo," M. Millerand continued, "and I repeat it here, now, that it is a crime and stupidity to believe that France desires to annex any fresh German territory.

"The details of the treaty with Turkey cannot be divulged before Turkey's plenipotentiaries come to Paris on May 10, but I can say that the treaty is in conformity with the outline already made public, the Turks being maintained in Constantinople and in the territories in which they are in the majority.

"An appeal has been sent to President Wilson asking him if his country cannot take up the mandate for Armenia, at least to collaborate in the fixing of the frontiers of the new state."

In conclusion, M. Millerand declared that upon leaving San Remo, the allies were more united than ever.

"If I may be permitted to say it, especially the entente between France and her sister of the Latin race is closer than ever," he said.

The premier's remarks received deep attention, but no enthusiasm was displayed in the chamber.

May Redeem Property

Vancouver Court Refuses To Grant Foreclosure Before Opportunity is Given

Vancouver, B. C.—German holders of Vancouver property will be given a fair chance to avoid foreclosure and the right to redeem, according to a ruling made in the supreme court by Justice MacDonald. Before the war, Countess Mira Dorchoff, Countess Elsa Fornhoff and Count Bigoslav Dornhoff, of Berlin, Germany, purchased an apartment house in this city for $90,000, paying $36,000 cash and assuming a mortgage. The amount remaining unpaid amounts to $22,000, and today a local firm asked for foreclosure. The defendants are asking for delay to enable a defence to be entered, and this the judge was inclined to grant.

Japanese Massacred

Warships Are Rushed to Eastern Siberia With Troops

Washington. —Japanese guards in the district of Nikolaevsk, eastern Siberia, are believed to have been annihilated and several hundred Japanese residents, including the Japanese consul there, massacred, according to an official statement issued by the Japanese foreign office, and made public today by the state department.

The Japanese statement says the suspension of communication with the district rendered it impossible to get at the real state of affairs, but that it was evident that a serious upheavad had taken place. Efforts of the Japanese to despatch military relief expeditions into the district had failed because of the ice. Meantime, however, the Japanese have sent an expedition to Alexandrovski, accompanied by the warships Mikasa and Mishima. The forces reached their destination on April 22 and found the Japanese residents in that district safe Most of them were taken aboard the Mikasa.

Lord Mayor of Dublin Returns

Released from Wormwood Scrubs; But Was Threatened With Rearrest if he Returned

Dublin.—Tom T. Kelly, lord mayor of Dublin and Sinn Fein member of parliament, who was released from Wormwood Scrubs prison in England because of ill health, has returned to Dublin. It is said that he will not be able to take office because of the effects of his incarceration.

He had been under arrest since May 25, 1916, on charges growing out of the Irish revolt of that year.

A despatch from London February 17, said Kelly's release was due to his state of health. Order of internment, it was added, was not revoked, and it was stated that Kelly was informed he would be arrested again if he made attempt to return to Ireland. During his convalescence Kelly was ordered to report his movements to the authorities.

Says She Cannot Praise Them Enough

MRS. GAUVIN TELLS OF DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

She Says Her Back Was So Weak She Could Hardly Walk, But Now She Is A Different Person.

St. Jeanne d'Arc, N.B.—May 3rd.—(Special.) — Among those in this neighborhood who are enthusiastic in their praises of Dodd's Kidney Pills is Mrs. Joseph Gauvin, a highly respected resident here.

"I cannot praise Dodd's Kidney Pills enough," Mrs. Gauvin states "My back was so weak I could hardly walk. I took six boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and now I feel a different person.

"Dodd's Kidney Pills have done me a tremendous amount of good."

Of the many persons paying their tribute of praise to Dodd's Kidney Pills, it is noticeable that the great majority are women. The reason given for this is that the majority of women's ills come from the kidneys. Dodd's Kidney Pills act directly on the kidneys. Healing and strengthening them, they enable the kidneys to strain all the impurities out of the blood. Pure blood is the foundation of health.

Ask your neighbors if Dodd's Kidney Pills do not help weak or sick kidneys.

Make Increased Demands

Advance in Wages of 25 Percent Is Demanded by the Winnipeg Building Trades

Winnipeg.—Demands for a straight increase of 25 percent in wages was made by the building trade workers before the public meeting of the provincial fair wage board held today. General dissatisfaction was expressed against the proposed schedule of wages arrived at by the board. A. Cameron, of the carpenter's union, made the declaration that unless more wages are granted the building trade workers of the city, there will be a general migration to the States and other centres where the wages are higher and the cost of living lower. It was claimed that the costs of living had increased 133 percent since 1914, by delegates to the meeting of the board. Working on this basis the general rate of wages should be $1.50 per hour instead of around $1.25.

The fundamental cause for all strikes, said James Winning, former president of the Trades and Labor council, is the long time that is taken by various boards in conducting negotiations and arriving at some decision. He objected to the fair wage board making its findings public until after the builders' exchange has presented its schedule to the workers.

Fiume Again Blokaded

Communications to the Town Have Now Been Completely Severed

Trieste. — The blockage which Fiume is now undergoing is admittedly the most severe to which it has been subjected. The communications of the town have been completely cut off, regular Italian troops tearing up sections of the railway and bringing up numbers of machine guns to guard the frontiers. Passage in and out of the city is absolutely forbidden, not even milk going in, and connection with the outside world by the sea route has been completely severed. Gabriele D'Annunzio, the insurgent commander-in-chief, is threatening counter action.

Canada's Assets Have Increased

Ottawa. — A return tabled in the house of commons shows that Canada's total assets at the end of 1919 were $1,087,537,461.27, on which the country received as interest $15,732,-775.29 or 1.46 percent. This rate was more than twice as high than in 1918, when the country received as interest $7,421,001.58, on total assets of $1,102,-104,692,33.

Allies on Rhine

London.— The number of British troops on the Rhine is approximately 14,000 according to a statement made in the house of commons by Winston Spencer Churchill, secretary for war. There are 25,000 French troops in that district, 16,000 United States and 20,000 Belgian.

New York.—Letters received here state that M. Zinovieff, Bolsheviki governor of Petrograd, has been assassinated by a Russian workman.

London.—The United States senate Irish resolution was brought up in the house of commons and drew several pointed questions. Ronald MacNeil, Unionist member for the Canterbury division of Kent, asked the government if it had "any official information regarding a manifesto to be issued in Washington by an organization known as the Phillipine's Commission for independence, in which it is maintained that American belief in the principle of self-determination would be demonstrated more impressively by conceding the repeated demonstration for independence by the three and a half million inhabitants of the Phillipines, than by passing resolutions in the senate expressing sympathy with the cause of Irish independence," and whether "as a mark of respect for the Americans," the house of commons would be enabled to follow the precedent set by the senate by moving a resolution in sympathy with the Phillipine demand for self-determination.

Andrew Bonar Law, replying for the government, said he had no information on the question, which did not seem to be one in which the British government was concerned.

Numerous other requisitions followed, and Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster Unionist Leader, asked whether it was not better for each country to leave the other alone.

Mr. Bonar Law replied he thought that, in other words, it was his answer.

Resolution is Sent to His Majesty on Behalf of Convicted Winnipeg Leaders

Winnipeg.—King George has been appealed to by the labor leaders' defence committee for the release of the convicted strike leaders.

A copy of a resolution passed at the recent convention has been forwarded to His Majesty and copies have also been sent to the minister of justice and the governor general of Canada. In the resolution it is claimed that the trades unions of the city voted for the strike and were therefore responsible for the same. There was no intention whatever to overthrow the existing forms of government and that an injustice has been done to labor and the men convicted.
