Canyon City

Dad Browell got back on Tuesday from Southern Alberta, where he had been for a few weeks helping with threshing operations.

Geo. Hurry is a visitor at Nelson this week, attending upon his wife who is a patient in the hospital in that city.

A number of sub-contractors are anxious as to the exact location of "Bolshivik Mike" who has been operating at Camp 3, and who pulled out unexpectedly a few days ago.

BIRTH—On Oct. 14th, to Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Strong, a son.

Bert Whimster left on Saturday for Fernie, where he spent the holiday with his parents.

According to an advertisement appearing in the Nelson News tenders for the erection of the one-room addition to the Canyon City school were due to close on Tuesday, 19th inst.

Mrs. Jos. Langlois of Kitchener was a week-end visitor with Canyon City friends,

Rev. G. Knox had a very large turnout here on Sunday afternoon, when he gave a timely talk on the issues of the plebiscite which was voted upon on Wednesday.

Phonse Huygens is taking a few days enforced vacation at present. While busy at wood sawing operations he had one of his fingers badly jammed between two logs, and even yet is not certain whether amputation will be necessary or not.

Pete Nelson, the Canyon City butcher, is doing something toward relieving farmers of the cattle they fear they may not get enough hay to winter. At present Pete is slaughtering about three beef cattle a week.

Tom Hickey is hoping for winter weather to set in early on the prairie in hope that it will drive a number of good bush workers out this way. Unless he can increase his help considerably he will hardly be able to deliver the quantity of logs he is under contract to get out.

Elder Reed had a fine turnout at the schoolhouse on Sunday night for his address on "Ancient America." This was an intensely interesting historical talk, the speaker starting as far back as the building of the tower of Babel and the consequent confusion of tongues and following down through the ages to the present time. For next Sunday evening he announces his topic as, "Why I became a Latter Day Saint."

A. D. Pochin was in charge of the voting here on prohibition on Wednesday and there was a full turnout of citizens to exercise their franchise. The majority in favor of the retention of the present Prohibition Act was 14.

Word from Cranbrook is to the effect that Mrs Geo. Strong successfully underwent the operation at the hospital on Tuesday of last week, and so far as we can learn is making a good recovery as can be expected.

Lister

Miss Austed, assistant principal of Lister school, is a Saturday to Thursday visitor with friends at Trail.

Mrs. Finlay, wife of mill engineer Finlay, has just arrived from Greenwood on a visit to her husband, and is the guest of Mrs. Jory.

Jas. Turnley has this week started work on the erection of a five-room house on the Horace Wright location, which is at the extreme southerly boundary of the camp.

Quite a number of the young people from here were at the dance at Porthill on Saturday night. With the T. & T. Company motor bus always available it is now possible to handily attend social doings at outside centres.

The dance on Thursday night last under the direction of Mrs. Noble and J. Turnley was quite a success both socially and financially, the affair attracting guests from both Creston and Canyon. After paying all expenses there will be at least $20 available for the purchase of new rolls for the piano player.

Haying operations on the flats have been decidedly successful considering the disasterous weather that has prevailed since cutting started about six weeks ago. We understand the crew has 90 tons out, 50 of which is stached, and the other 40 in stooks, and all standing the wet weather in pretty good shape. Those interested are hoping to be able to secure a baler to put it up before being hauled home.

The Veterens Implement Company has just been provisionally organized for the purpose of financing the purchase of implements for the settlers who wish to buy them under such auspices. Sufficient capital it is anticipated will be forthcoming to make the company's plans workable, and thus eliminate the necessity of having outside implement agencies solicit business in the camp.

The public school concert on Monday night attracted a very large attendance, and proved to be the best entertainment of the sort yet staged at Lisrer. Chairman McGee of the school board presided, and the first part of the programme was given entirely by the school scholars, who had been trained for the event by Principal Lewis, ably assisted by Mrs. H. Christensen, who played all the accompaniments at the concert as well as during the practices. Harry Brown also helped materially with the affair by taking full charge of the stage settings and decorations throughout. All the numbers were well received the pleasing effect of the different choruses being measurably enhanced by the smart appearance of all the children taking part. The young artists are Dora Millington, who contributed a recitation and song; Frances Malthouse, Eva and Jessie Brain, Annie Yewbury, Dorothy Weston, Flossie Evans, Murielle Millington, Ronald Brain, George and Gus Charleson, Alex. Mitchell, John Malthouse, Arthur and Edwin Thompson, Frank Alexander, Ernest Stevens, all of whom favored with recitations; and Doris Yewbury, Frances Malthouse, Flossie Evans, Merle Charleson, Cora and Bessie Frampton contributing songs. In addition to these numbers the scholars sang Red, White and Blue, Maple Leaf, God Save the King.

The second part was almost entirely given by the adults, the features of which were the address by Principal Lewis on the value of proficiency in both music and elocution in educational training. Miss Muriel Knott of Canyon favored with a vocal solo which was enthusiastically encored, and an equally favorable reception was accorded Harry Brown who contributed a couple of violin solos, and T. Yerbury's guitar numbers. Before closing Principal Lewis said a few words appreciative of the splendid co-operation parents and others are extending him in his work, and for the success of the evening he was particularly grateful to Mesdames Brain, Thompson, Frampton and Miss Lena Frampton for their good work in looking after the serving of the refreshments. Mention was also made of the two friends who had each donated $5 to the concert fund, as well as others who had helped out in like manner. The net intake of the concert is $38, which will be spent on improvements for the school by a committee of the senior scholars, after taking into consideration any suggestions the principal may care to make.

Brand new timber operations in the neighborhood of Kaslo has created a decided shortage of rooming accommodation in the city. If the pressure continues Editor Osler will be constrained to fit up the kennel of the office bulldog for rental purposes.

Cranbrook city council is being urged to provide St. Eugene hospital with free light and water. The Courier claims the hospital alone spends $40,000 a year with city merchants and that indirectly it is the means of bringing at least another $200,000 into the city annually.

Valley Votes for Govt. Control

By a vote that has every appearance of running almost three to two government control of the liquor trade swpet the province in the vote on Wednesday, and in common with the other sections Creston Valley has also turned down the present Prohibition Act, though in this section the vote is not quite so decisive.

Just exactly how the Valley vote stands is not obtainable today due to the fact that Mr. Butler, who was in charge of the vote at Lister, neglected to hand out any statement of the voting in that subdivision. However, the prohibitionists concede that Lister will go in favor of government control by a majority that may run as high as 40, and as the vote in favor of prohibition at the other seven polls is only a matter of 13, it is generally conceded that the Valley may be counted as for government control by a majority of at least 25. The vote at the different Valley polling booths is as follows:

	For Prohibition.	Govt. Contr'l
Creston	162	118
Reclamation Farm	3	7
Erickson	31	22
Canyon City	31	17
Kitchener	5	35
Wynndel	18	23
Sirdar	6	21

A remarkably heavy vote was polled at all points, and assuming the turnout at Lister was in the same ratio as other places, it is quite safe to predict that at least 700 of a total vote of 800 in the Valley has been recorded.

The vote for government control was decisive in most of the cities. Vancouver had a majority of 10,000 in its favor, while in Victoaia it had a lead of almost four. Near home it also scored in Fernie and Cranbrook, while in Nelson the majority for the Prohibition Act was less than ten.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Library

EDITOR REVIEW:

SIR,—It seems the opportune time to bring to the notice of your readers the Creston and District Public Library which has recently received its charter from the government. The library is a development of the library of the Women's Institute and due to the generosity of that body already includes all its books (it should be understood that the old library is to continue as in the past until the new one is ready). In addition the library will have a certain number of books loaned periodically from the Victoria Public Library, as well as a larger number from that of Nelson. It is hoped also, when funds are sufficient, to purchase books periodically so as to gradually form a good, permanent library of standard and reference books.

Is it necessary to point out the advantages of a public library to Creston? At the question a vision rises of a fine brick building with stone steps leading up to the doorway, and within a handsome reading room permanently open, with thousands of books upon its shelves. We are not able to promise anything so splendid at present but we are trying to make an advance toward this. Supposing the people of Creston Valley give proper support to us there is every reason to think that Creston will have a fully developed and independent library. Proper support does not mean very much. It means from the individual a subscription of $2 or $3 a year, and the present committee are hoping that the people of Erickson, Alice Siding, Canyon City, Wynndel, Lister, and other near points will regard this library as their library, use its advantages, and come to its support. The more subscribers we get the better it will be.

The War Memorial Committee have found difficulties in securing a stone memorial. Could a better memorial be found than a small library building? Such a building could contain a tablet inscribed to the memory of those who have fallen, and on the walls there might be pictures representative of the war, as on its sheives a few books recording the same. The upkeep of such a building is at once secured. The idea needs development but the Library Board hope it will be a welcome one.

An eminent critic once said that he needed but three things for happiness: Food, warmth and books. Creston folks may not be as enthusiastic as William Hazlitt, but most of us value a good book. The Library Board say to you: Give us your support and we will give you good books. You ladies want the latest fiction. The latest fiction is just as important as the latest fashion, and we will supply it. Ranchers want a collection of books on all phases of agriculture; we mean to obtain it as soon possible. Housekeepers need books on cookery, canning, gardening and the hundred and one topics of the home. Students need reference books; children, juvenile ones; and everyone needs, or should need, general reading.

For the sake then of all these things we trust that as many as possible of your readers will join the new library.

Yours respectfully,
CRESTON & DISTRICT LIBRARY BOARD.

Better Than the Best

Cranbrook Courier.

"If you know a thing that's good tell your neighbor, so you shonld" is an excellent maxim, but at Creston they go it one better; they not only boast of the excellence of their orchard products, but from time to time send out samples to responsible parties in order to afford opportunity to "taste them and try them before you buy them." So outstandingly excellent was the display of box apples at the Creston fair last week that even a seasoned booster like the editor of The Review could not resist the temptation to again remember The Courier—this time with the first prize box of Gravensteins. This is a variety that Nova Scotia has always laid claim to producing of superior quality, but after some experience with the product of the land of Evangeline we have no hesitation in saying that the box of these just to hand from Creston will stand the analysis of experts as to flavor, color, size, etc. and score several points higher than anything any bluenose ever marketed. The Courier box is from the orchard of Ashley Cooper & Sons of Wynndel—the justly famous strawberry section. With orchardists producing such uniformly high grade fruit and The Review editor and the other boosters working twenty-four hour shifts nothing short of an earthquake in that section or the premature sounding of Gabriel's trumpet can possibly prevent Creston shortly fulfilling the fondest expectations of all who see in the Valley metropolis the city of destiny.

If a sufficiency of pupils indicate a willingness to attend the classes a night school will be started at Trail for the winter months.

Mrs. Bowen, who lives almost outside the city limits at Grand Forks, objects to having to pay dog taxes. She believes her canine should be duty free as he is urgently required to herd off stray cattle.

The smelter owners at Trail have made arrangements with the C.P.R. to run a special train so that residents of Rossland can work at Trail and live at Rossland and lose no time getting to and from work. Married men are supplied with tickets free.

Because the principal placed three of the scholars in a lower grade the other Entrance class pupils at Cranbrook went out on a sympathy strike last week. The affair was compromised by the trustees arranging to give the trio of slow ones a few more weeks to demonstrate that they were entitled to remain in the entrance class.

Sirdar

Those 14-foot sunflowers at Creston fair have nothing on the same product of Kuskanook. Mrs. Jones boasting some that stood as high as 16 feet, and had eight heads of flowers.

Mrs. McCabe is able to be around again after her recent illness. Mrs. Geo. Cam of Taghum has been spending a few days with her.

Miss Margaret Johnson of Cranbrook is a visitor at Sirdar, the guest of Mrs. Loasby.

Mrs. Hopwood of Creston was a recent visitor here with her sister, Mrs. Whiteside.

Tuesday's eastbound passenger train was about the heaviest seen out of Sirdar for many months. In addition to the regular string of coaches there were four private cars—carrying members of the Railway Commission, who were in session at Nelson early in the week.

Joe Wolkley, the Cranbrook butcher, was a visitor at Lewis Island on Monday, on a cattle buying trip.

Mr, and Mrs. R. Dennes have been taking a couple of weeks' vacation, most of which was spent at Spokane, with a couple of days at Nelson.

Considering the number of growers at this point Sirdar is shipping fruit and vegetables in quantities that surprises everyone. The weather has been so rough on the lake at Kuskanook since early in the month that apple shipping at that point has been pretty much out of the question.

After a six weeks' absence Rev. J. S. Mahood was here for the usual Church of England service on Sunday, which was fairly well attended.

Mrs. Jack Cameron is away on a trip to Penticton, where she is visiting her sister.

On their return recently from a trip to coast points Mr. and Mrs. Moore of Cranbrook spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Leasby.

Creston callers are not numerous these busy times, Mrs. North and Mrs. Tuohey being about the only ladies to favor the metropolis with a call this month,

T. Rogers has been selected to take charge of the ballot box in connection with the prohibition referendum vote on the 20th. The printed list shows a matter of 37 names as entitled to vote here, of whom a dozen are ladies.

At Penticton it is now compulsory for bicycle riders to equip their machines with headlights.

The heaviest day's fruit shipping out of Vernon this year was 70 cars, the latter part of September.

It costs 25 cents for a shoe shine at Penticton nowadays. There is only one stand of the sort in the city.

About 65 acres in the Okanagan were planted to tobacco this season, and the crop is a very good one.

Business has so improved at the Home Bank at Fernie that two tellers are now employed—a paying and receiving.

Penticton council has just issued regulations that places that employ female help must not sell two per cent. beer.

During September Nelson had 17 violations of the Prohibition Act, as compared with 20 at Fernie and 29 at Cranbrook.

This year the cannery at Penticton paid 12 cents a pound for apricots, but only 4 cents a pound for peaches. This is said to account for the shrinking of the peach area, which is only about 60 acres in the southern Okanagan.

WARNING!

The big family who visit the Indian orchard and camp there in the owner's absence had better stop doing so. This has gone on for a year, and they have been seen several times.

Take A Look Ahead

Are the people of Canada animated by the same spirit which was so characteristic of them during the war, and which alone made possible the splendid contribution made by this Dominion to the winning of the war? In the dark days between August, 1914, and November, 1918, the national exisence of this Dominion was threatened and the liberties of the whole world hung in the balance. Our independence has been maintained and our freedom made secure, thanks to the patriotism and self-sacrificing efforts of the average man and woman. With the removal of the danger that threatened, have we lost that fine enthusiasm for Canada and the Empire which made us willing to bear all things with fortitude that victory might be achieved? In other words, while Canadians were willing to die for Canada, are they now prepared to live for Canada?

These questions force themselves uopn our consciences from a consideration of certain grave and serious facts. During the war Canadians sacrificed and saved. They economized and gave without stint in the national cause. There was nothing niggardly in their contributions to the national strength and they withheld nothing, neitheir their lives nor their worldly means, in the effort put forth to win. For these reasons the period of the Great War will always stand out as a glorious page in Canada's history.

Now that the impelling incentive of the war and the will to victory is removed, has that altogether worthy uplifting out of ourselves died? Or are Canadians as ready now to give of themselves and their means to carry the Dominion forward to the proud position it should occupy among the nations The war has left heavy national obligations which honor demands shall be met; it has created new problems which must be faced and solved; it has created new conditions calling for the best that each and all can contribute to the nation.

It was imperative during the war that all people should avoid extravagances in living and expenditures, that they economize and through their savings add to the national strength. It is equally important they should now continue to practice these same virtues in order that Canada may develop and prosper. Signs are not lacking, however, pointing to the fact that, unfortunately, many Canadians are not now being governed by the same motives which guided them during the war.

The trade returns clearly indicate that, taken as a whole, the people of Canada are spending too much and producing too little. At a time when Canadians should be buying as little as possible abroad in order to reduce our payments to other countries, the fact remains that we are buying more prodigally than ever before in our history, and that we are not producing for sale abroad anything like what should be produced. The result is, that whereas during the war there was a substantial balance of trade in favor of Canada, the reverse is now true, nd there is a heavy and increasing debit balance against this country. As a consequence, we are continuing to suffer the national humiliation and loss of Canadian money being at a ruinous discount.

At this time when work is plentiful and wages high, it is not only a national duty, but plain commonsense for the individual, to save every dollar he can. This can best be done by cutting out all extravagances, particularly in the purchase of luxuries from abroad. There must inevitably be a recession from present high prices. A time of business depression will come sooner or later, and indications are not lacking that such a time is approaching. The far-seeing financial magnates and keen business men are preparing for it; and it behooves the farmer, workingman and average citizen to do likewise.

During the war, and while the work of destruction was in progress, an artificial demand for goods of all kinds was created, especially when millions of men were withdrawn from productive enterprises. Following the war there was feverish activity to make good the losses occasioned by and in the war, and to restore the depleted stocks of goods the world over. The time approaches when this activity must cease because once again supply is overtaking the demand. Then must come reductions in prices and curtailment in work. A period of depression will follow.

This is not pessimism. It is but a frank statement of sound economic truth. It is logical and irresistible. It is supported by all past history and every proven economic law. The wise man will be governed accordingly. Just as during the real estate boom, the far-seeing and wise man unloaded before it was too late and values began to decline, so today such men are not spending all their earnings but are preparing for the day when money will not come quite so readily. Furthermore, such men realize that [illegible] and saved by them now will have a much greater pur[illegible] when conditions and prices become more normal.

To the [illegible] that Canadians now practice economy, Canada will be [illegible] weather the storm and stress of financial and [illegible] comes.

GUARD THE CHILDREN FROM AUTUMN COLDS

The Fall is the most severe season of the year for colds—one day is warm, the next cold and wet, and unless the mother is on her guard, the little ones are seized with colds that may hang on all winter. Baby's Own Tablets are mothers' best friend in preventing or banishing colds. They act as a gentle laxative, keeping the bowels and stomach free and sweet. An occasional dose of the Tablets will prevent colds, or if it does come on suddenly their prompt use will relieve the baby. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Announcement of the betrothal of the Hon. Louis Chandos Francis Temple, master of Kinloss, to Miss Katherine Jackman is made in the London Daily Mirror. The former is heir presumptive to the title of Baron of Kinloss, having succeeded his brother, the Hon. INDIAN WITCHCRAFT

The strange experience of O-ge-mas-es when Wus-ke-ninge, an Indian sorceress, casts her evil spell.

By O-GE-MAS-ES (Little Clerk).

(Copyrighted)

In the early seventies, being in charge of a Hudson's Bay Post on Lake Manitoba, where poisoning by native Indian medicines was prevalent, evidence was brought before myself and the local missionary, making a serious charge against an old woman named Wus-ke-ninge who, it was claimed, had given poison to one of the tribe whereby he was in danger of losing his life and at that time was lying in a semi-paralysed condition. We considered the evidence justified us in laying the matter before the nearest magistrate, some 60 miles distant, and, if possible, procuring a warrant for her arrest. It was decided that I should go in with the papers. The time was dead of winter and the lake was frozen solidly from shore to shore.

I finally decided to start alone the next evening and being the fortunate possessor of a splendid train of dogs looked forward to the trip with enjoyment. My dog train, consisting of four, deserves some description. Part Esquimeaux, part wolf hound, tall, clean limbed animals, their usual gait was some six miles per hour, but if pressed they could easily outrun a horse. Once having passed over a route, the foregoer never swerved from a direct course whether a trail showed or not. Herod, Nero, Hero and Moro were their names and I loved them with a great love. Kindly natured and devoted to me, still they would attack anything I wished and were as courageous as lions. Often when viewing a wolf or fox on the ice I would let them out of their harness and if far enough from shore they would catch it and kill it before I could reach them. My cariole was, as usual, made from a birch toboggan with buffalo parchment sides and back, lined with fur, on its head a tripod with silver bells. On the collars of each dog were also tripods with bells, and Indian beaded saddle cloths made a very handsome outfit.

Amongst the hangers-on around the Post was a half-breed named James Sinclair who, speaking both English and Cree fluently, was often employed by me as interpreter, my knowledge of the native language being at that time limited. Calling at the office before my departure he appeared to be uneasy in his mind and on my questioning him as to the trouble, he replied by a question: "Is is true, O-ge-mas-es (little clerk), that you are taking in law papers about that Indian witch?" When I replied in the affirmative, he begged me not to go or, if I would, then to take a companion. After some further questioning the truth came out, he stating this woman was in league with bad spirits and that an evil influence would be sent with me or after me if I insisted on going. I naturally made light of this and, in fact, before starting out, had quite forgotten the matter. Evening came on and about 7.30 I whistled for my dogs which were trained to come to their places, hitched up and away we went. For some miles the trail ran through woods and then came the open lake, wind swept and some twenty-five miles of a traverse to a point called the Bluff. While I lay back in my cariole, comfortably wrapped in furs, the miles slipped by until I was about half way across. By this time a few fleecy clouds had come up, but the moon, stars and the northern lights made the sky still very light. A feeling suddenly came over me that I was no longer alone. Loth to disturb my comfortable position I lay still for a few minutes until the feeling of a presence became stronger, and on sitting up in my cariole I saw to the left of the foremost dog about three feet above the ice, a ball of phosphorescent light dancing along and keeping pace with the dogs, not more than thirty feet from me. This kept changing in size. At times as large as a football and at others not much bigger than a cricket ball. My first impression was that I was asleep, but rubbing my eyes, and kneeling up for a more careful inspection, I was convinced of the reality of it. Some minutes elapsed, when my attention was drawn to the way my dogs were travelling. Instead of swinging along in their usual free fashion with tails waving, they appeared cowed, and on my speaking to them and endeavoring to draw their attention to this luminous light and setting them on it, for the first time in their lives they paid no attention to me, but simply trotted a little faster. I then tried to stop them (as old dog drivers know, no reins are used, the train being governed and guided by voice alone) by gently calling "whoa!" Always they were delighted at this, would look around, stop and gently turn to avoid entanglement in the harness and then lick my face and hands. This time no attention was paid to my call. I was rather afraid they might run away, which would probably mean upsetting of the cariole and being left in the middle of the lake with my uncanny companion. This light, after the lapse of an hour, as nearly as I could judge the time, became more erratic in its movements, making dances in different directions; coming back quite close to the cariole and then flitting away. It struck me as remarkable, the dogs apparently would not look at it, and yet when it approached us closer I could see the hair bristling on their necks. Finally it began to move to the northeast towards a large bay called the Dog Hung Bay, where a poor white man was found frozen the winter previous; and finally, appearing no larger than a cat's eye in the distance, disappeared.

Reaching the bluff I boiled the kettle and unloosing the dogs fed them a little dried buffalo meat; but they were not companionable, seemed oppressed and would not respond to my caresses. Hitching up again I made my destination at breakfast time and during the course of the meal related my experience with the mysterious light. Finally this was dropped and the conversation turned to the object of my visit. The magistrate, after carefully examining the evidence, submitted as to the poisoning, decided to issue a warrant for the detention of Wus-ke-ninge, and this I was to take back with me.

After attending to some other business I returned to my post and found that the Indian woman had fled to parts unknown. The same evening, James Sinclair called and congratulated me on my safe return from what he evidently considered a dangerous mission. He finally asked: "Did you have a good trip?" On my replying "Yes" he said: "Did you see anything?" and like a flash the thought of the mysterious light came to my mind. I then remembered his former prophesy and told him the facts. He did not appear at all surprised; the light, he stated, was an evil spirit sent by Wus-ke-ninge which, if you had followed, nothing more would have been heard of you.

Thinking it all over after Sinclair's departure; his first warning before I started, to the effect that some evil thing would be sent after me; again the extraordinary conduct of my usually fearless dogs and the uncanny appearance of the light which could not have arisen from the same cause as an "ignus fatuis" for there was from three to four feet of solid ice and a foot of snow all over the lake, made it one of the most uncanny experiences of my long residence in Northwest Canada.

I may add the old woman was not heard of again and we burnt her bark tepee with many medicine bags to the great satisfaction of all concerned. The poisoned Indian gradually recovered but never regained his former strength.

Carrying Dangerous Weapons

Local Authorities Should Check the Sale of Firearms.

Ottawa.—There is a law on the statute books to prevent the indiscriminate sale and improper possession of firearms in Canada, but it is doubtful whether that law is being properly enforced.

While protests against the increasing number of revolvers carried by persons in various cities of Canada are reaching Ottawa, officials here point out that there is a law to check the sale and carrying of dangerous weapons, if the provincial, municipal and city authorities wish to enforce it.

SHORT OF BREATH
Could Hardly Walk Without Resting.

When you go to a physician to be examined for any heart trouble one of the first questions he asks is: "Are you short of breath?"

Now, when the heart becomes affected there ensues a feeling of a choking sensation, a shortness of breath, palpitation, throbbing, irregular beating, smothering sensation, dizziness and a weak, sinking, all-gone feeling of oppression and anxiety.

On the first sign of the heart becoming weakened or the nerves unstrung Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are just the remedy you require. They regulate and stimulate the heart, and strengthen and restore the whole nerve system.

Mr. Stephen Crouse, East Clifford, N.S., writes: "I suffered for five years with heart trouble. I could hardly walk from the house to the barn without resting as I used to get so short of breath. Doctors could not help me, my wife told me to get a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and I felt better after taking them; three boxes made me quite well. I am now helping my son to work the farm, and can truthfully say I feel like a different man."

Price 50c. a box at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co. Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Drastic Measures May be Taken in Dealing With Ireland

Message from the King

His Majesty is Grateful for the Reception Given the Prince of Wales.

London.—The King has sent the following telegram to governors of Dominions and States visited by the Prince of Wales on his recent Australiasian tour.

"On the return home of the Prince of Wales I ask you to express to the people of the Dominion and colonies he visited, my heartfelt appreciation of the universal affection and loyal enthusiasm evinced towards him throughout his travels. These warm hearted and spontaneous manifestations of regard for our eldest son have deeply touched the Queen and myself.

"We have followed with pride and admiration the triumphant success of his mission and all the more so when we recognized that these happy results are chiefly due to his own personality, to the buoyant and jovial spirit in which he has played his part, to his sense of duty and to the unstinting manner in which he has given of his best.

"This and his previous tour have given him special opportunities to gain knowledge of our overseas Dominions and colonies and to become personally acquainted with their people.

"May such intercourse create fresh ties of confidence and devotion between the throne and the generations present and future of these great lands and thus promote the unity, strength and prosperity of the empire.

"To my son this wide and happy experience will ever be a priceless possession."

Foster Is Acting Premier.

Ottawa.—During the absence of Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen from Ottawa, Sir George Foster, as the senior member of the privy council, is acting as Prime Minister.

London.—Leaders of the Sinn Fein movement in Ireland say they regard the speech made at Carnarvon by Premier Lloyd George as "almost a declaration of war on Ireland," says the Dublin correspondent of the London Times.

There are many signs that the executive department in Dublin intends to bring things to a head as soon as possible by a concentrated campaign against disorder which, by inflicting general hardships on the country, may make crime and lawlessness truly unpopular.

Projected measures are said to include complete stoppage of the Irish railways, drastic reduction of the postal service until all railway workers agree to return to duty and until there is cessation of raids on the mails.

An Exchange telegram reports that the wives of British officers who are serving with their regiments in Ireland, have been directed to proceed to their homes in Great Britain.

It was stated at the War Office that this order had not been issued on this side. It has, therefore, emanated from the Irish command.

The order places the troops in Ireland on absolute active service conditions. It has created a sensation in the country, because the only recent equivalent was the order for women and children to be removed from Mesopotamia.

Prospects for Cheap Sugar.

Toronto. — One hundred and twenty-five carloads of number one granulated sugar, enough to supply the entire city of Toronto for some time, was offered to a local candy-manufacturing concern at 16 cents a pound in Toronto, and was refused. It is stated here that the state of the sugar market in Canada is more shaky than for many years. In some of the stores in Toronto sugar is being sold at 18 1-2 cents a pound.

IS THIS THE WAY OUT?

By MODERATIONIST

And Jesus knew their thoughts and said unto them,'Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation, and every city or house divided against itself cannot stand.'—Matt. xii. 25.

Considering the multiplicity of spiritual pastors and masters how shall the tired pilgrim, who is weary and heavy laden, find that satisfying religion which bringeth peace and joy to the soul? Not by looking to creed and sectarianism—of that fact rest well assured.

Sectarianism, creed and ritual ism spell death to real religious life. They are as the tree that bringeth forth corrupt fruit, therefore they should be hewn down and cast into the fire. They prevent the development of true spirituality which is the essence, the seed and the soil; the earth, the rain and the sunshine of genuine religious existence. Creed is the thunder and lightning, the storm and the cloud, the tempest on the great ocean of religion: it is the chaff that the wind scattereth upon the face of the earth. Sectarianism is without excuse.

Truth is one; always self-consistent; never self-contradictory, and truth teaches us from the moral department of man's nature that religion is an exact science; as much so, indeed, as mathematics. If religion is not a science then mathematics is not. If natural laws do not govern man's moral nature then they govern no part of nature. If natural law governs anything it governs all things, and religion just as much as the heavenly bodies.

Medical men disagree. Does this clashing of schools signify truth or error? If all were in the truth they would all agree. Further argument upon that point is unnecessary. We have today in the world hundreds of denominations whose creeds are almost as far apart and as diametrically opposed to one another as the two poles. We have had a Whitfield telling Wesley not to soil his surplice "Well. bishop," replied Wesley, "if nearly all are going to hell it is high time to awaken them from their awful slumber."

Compare the orthodox teachings of the men of the Billy Sunday calibre, who believe in hell and damnation, with those of the Universalists who believe that every man is too good to be damned; if not, then God is too good to damn them. Compare the Trinitarians with the Unitarians; Roman Catholic and Protestant; infidel and Jew; Buddist and Pantheist—all claiming to be ordained by God, and guided by inspiration.

The Pharisees and Sudducees were at war with each other regarding the resurrection of Christ—some being for and others against the resurrection. The Apostles also differed in their religious views; some being for Paul and others for Appolos, and the fathers quarrelled most violently, although they all belonged to the same sect.

No wars are quite as bloody and bitter as those on religion. Religious heresies were so numerous and dangerous as to institute the inquisition in order to repress them, and the agonies and tortures that emanted therefrom were the greatest man could inflict.

Beecher and Channing were both great religious lights in their day, to whom many millions of intelligent and well-meaning people looked for biblical interpretation. Both were eloquent speakers and writers and each according to the other taught the worst of heresies and all from the same identical passages.

The religion of Christian Science and New Thought, two of the modern religious sects, are also at war with each other. Their bone of contention is the evidence of the five physical senses; one favoring and the other denying this evidence, although in other respects they have much in common.

Now, as personality appertains to all things, both animate and inanimate, therefore every man and woman must eat and breath, enjoy and suffer for themselves, and these identical principles govern religion. Every man is religious for himself, but he that sinneth he alone shall bear it. Every individual must do his own thinking and praying; we must all worship under our own vine and fig tree.

Birds of a feather flock together. Religious societies come in this category, because of the combined actions of the social affections with those of the moral sentiments. Nevertheless voluntary associations should be their only bond principle, with no compulsion, expulsion or restraint. Man was never made to have others do his thinking for him, or pin his faith upon creed. Every man has, or should have, religious feelings, and exercise them for himself without let or hindrance and take the consequences.

Let those form themselves into religious societies whose natural sympathies draw them together. Yet let all go elsewhere or nowhere whose natural sympathies do not keep them together. Religious unity is the great need of the day.

Let the nations of today build their temple upon the following principles and generations shall arise and call them blessed—their church being erected upon the solid rock and foundation of truth: "We hereby solemny resolve to study God in his works, and obey him in his natural laws, and we will promote such study, and obedience among mankind." From the high church Anglicans to the Universalists, Unitarians, Trinitarians, Nothingarians; all Catholics and Protestants, Christians and Jews, Pantheists and Deists; all can kneel around this altar and say amen together whenever anyone can—all except the fool who hath said in his heart there is no God.

Brand new timber operations in the neighborhood of Kaslo has created a decided shortage of rooming accommodation in the city. If the pressure continues Editor Grier will be constrained to fit up the kennel of the office bulldog for rental purposes.

Cranbrook city council is being urged to provide St. Eugene hospital with free light and water. The Courier claims the hospital alone spends $40.000 a year with city merchants, and that indirectly it is the means of bringing at least another $200,000 into the city annually.

Because the principal placed three of the scholars in a lower grade the other Entrance class pupils at Cranbrook went out on a sympathy strike last week. The affair was compromised by the trustees arranging to give the trio of slow ones a few more weeks to demonstrate that they were entitled to remain in the entrance class.

The pack of peaches at Penticton cannery this year was hardly 40 per cent. of the tonnage put up in 1919. The wet and cloudy weather was largely responsible in that the fruit did not mature properly. The pack apricots was only about half of the 1919 output.

Timberley attempted a careless laugh, but it was a failure. With those grave, steady eyes boring into his soul, he felt strangely subdued, cornered, out of his element. Something like anger stirred in his breast. Once, a half-grown lynx had crouched in the crotch of a tree above him and watched him just as this girl was watching him now, and, having no rifle with him, he had backed away. Now he felt like backing away again, just as he had on the other occasion; but his obstinacy, his dislike of being forced to act, held him to his ground.

"I think I'll stick around here for a while yet," he said easily; "I like these woods."

"You'd best not," she replied calmly. "You don't belong here."

"Belong?" he asked quickly. "What do you mean by belong?"

She shook her hair back from her face and swept the water-shot forest with her arm. Then she stooped and picked up the fish lying on the moss beside the stream.

"This does not belong to that strong water," she said. "He lived in that white stream, fed in it with his nose against the current, forced his way through its pools as easily as I toss him [illegible] now. He belongs [illegible]

[illegible] any of the [illegible] by in the stream [illegible]

[illegible] that stream, that's all," she said grimly. "You'd best be goin' back to where you belong."

With the words she was gone; gone like a flash among the trees. Timberley waited until he saw the canoe shoot out on the lake and speed the blue-white span between the forests like a brown arrow.

"Good Lord!" he exclaimed. "What a girl, what a beautiful thing she was, with her big grey eyes and her mass of gleaming hair! And, great Scott, what a spirit she displayed!"

He stooped to pick up the fish she had cast back on the moss. He eyed it reflectively, then his eyes followed the pale wake which the canoe had left on the lake's surface, until they caught a faint speck vanishing about a distant bend of the shore. "She was perfect," he murmured, "perfect. Like this big trout, like this big wilderness—absolutely perfect. And, by God, she was right, I don't belong!"

CHAPTER IX.

Mr. Dayton sat at the dinner-table, a thoughtful expression on his aristocratic face, the tips of his slender fingers pressed together, as from the corner of his eyes he watched his niece pass absent-mindedly from the room, her portfolio and easel under her arm.

Ma Washburn, catching the smile that flickered across the banker's thin lips, thought: "My, it's lovely to see the way he worships that sweet girl!"

"Don't you care none to smoke arter meals?" inquired Pa Washburn of his guest, as he filled his pipe for the second time.

Mr. Dayton shrugged his shoulders.

"My dear sir," he replied, "my nerves will not permit of it; and even if they did," he added, with a grimace, "I should not smoke. I consider it a filthy habit."

"Some do," replied Washburn coolly, as he applied a match to the mouth of the blackened bowl.

Mr. Dayton rose and walked slowly towards the door, coughing significantly as he groped through the blue smoke that blocked his passage.

"Is this country adaptable to agriculture?" he asked his host who had followed him outside.

"Wall, yes," Washburn replied. "We raise potatoes an' sech garden stuff as we need, but that seems about all we find time to look arter. Some day, though, this country's goin' to be a big farmin' country, you can bet on that."

"It's pretty rocky," said Mr. Dayton dubiously. "I don't suppose anybody ever discovered any mineral deposits up here, silver or gold?" he asked with interest.

Mr. Washburn shook his head. "Not to my knowledge," he returned. "I guess Ma's silver teapot an' the gold fillin' in MacDonald's teeth is about all the minerals deposited up here in these parts; an'," with a grin, "knowin' the two properties as I do, I'll be everlastin' whip-sawed if I'd like to go prospectin' on their claims. No," he added, growing serious, "there ain't no precious minerals or any minerals up here as I've noticed, though I'm not sayin' the stuff ain't here. I will say, though, that we've got a mighty fine country fer stock-raisin'—Gosh all hemlock, I should say we have! Look down in that valley. How's that fer a spring catch o' grass, eh?"

"It looks fine," nodded Mr. Dayton. "Sheep would do well up here, I should say."

Washburn gave a grunt of disdain. "Sheep, ruthin'," he retorted. "Why Mister, sheep 'ud stand about as much show up here as a pack-rat among a bunch of huskies. The wolves 'ud snatch 'em up quicker 'n anythin'. No, this here country ain't no good fer sheep, an' it ain't good fer goats either, 'cause I tried 'em."

Mr. Dayton smiled at the expression of disgust on the man's face.

"And it didn't work, eh?"

Work? no, siree, it didn't! Why, do you know I lost more money in [illegible] raisin' goats than I've lost in other ways put together, an' I [illegible] as I've been what you'd call a successful speculator either.

"Tell you what I did. I got two [illegible] shipped in here to start with, two Nanny goats an' two Billies. Nanny goats were well-[illegible] an' quiet as pictures, but the Billies were simply awful. They [illegible] everythin' they walk [illegible] the rocks, an' they even [illegible] them; you can see th ir [illegible] on 'em yet. I stood it [illegible] 'cause I had brought [illegible] poin' to make outer [illegible] an' a [illegible] I had brought 'em [illegible] against her advice, I [illegible] two things a Billy-[illegible] down to the [illegible] that the at[illegible] event that a [illegible] blue apple blossoms, [illegible] that with [illegible] them Billy [illegible]

[illegible] myself beat, if them Billies hadn't took an unreasonable dislike to me an' tried to wipe me off this Gawd's free soil. Fust hint I had that they had made up their minds to do fer me was one night when I was beachin' my canoe down on the shore yonder. I'd pulled the boat up an' was leanin' over to get a skin rug, when, biff! Somethin' like a runaway locomotive hit me, an' I went sprawlin', a dozen yards away. Fust off, I reckoned that Old Creation Hills, yonder, must have slipped their moorin's an' I was the victim of a landslide; but afore I could find out fer certain just what had happened to me, I got a biff from another quarter that shot me clean under the canoe. From the density of the atmosphere I conjectured that one er both of them goats had seen fit to act a little playish with me, so I lay still. I lay still, an' dang me if them goats didn't butt that canoe all to splinters. I had to jump fer the lake an' swim fer it, and, when I got 'round Scragg p'int, yonder, I climbed up on shore an' made for the cabin.

"When I was loadin' the rifle, I heard a yelp, an' I looked out to see a big white dog—I don't know what breed he was, but a man had sent him to me to sled-break fer him—makin' fer the tall timber. Them two Billies were right on his track, an' makin' things warm fer him. I hollered up, an' I will say I did good shootin'. Them Billy-goats came back never more."

"And the dog?" inquired the banker.

Washburn shook his head and turned towards the mill, a short distance away.

"He never came back either. I've sorter thought as maybe he mated up with some fool wolf; they'll do that sometimes. Well, see you at supper, got to go down to the yard."

Mr. Dayton waited until the settler disappeared from view, then glancing furtively about him, he sought the valley path leading in the opposite direction.

It was late afternoon, when Edna, seated beneath a spreading tree, putting the last touches on a water-color sketch, saw him returning up the path to the cabin. He looked very very frail, very weary.

She dropped her sketch and ran forward to meet him on the path.

What Prominent Ontario Women Say

Tillsonburg, Ont.:—"I found Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription very beneficial during expectancy. I felt quite poorly, was nauseated and sick, could not eat anything and I was extremely nervous and weak. I took 'Favorite Prescription' and it soon stopped the nausea, my appetite returned, also my strength and I was soon feeling fine and strong. My baby was strong and healthy and has always been so. I consider 'Favorite Prescription' a great help to the expectant mother and am glad to recommend it."—MRS. AMOS MILLS, Box 238.

A HAMILTON WITNESS

Hamilton, Ont.:—"A few months ago I was stricken down and was confined to bed about ten days. My strength all left me. It was my first illness since a child. I lost five pounds and felt awfully weak afterward. I could hardly do my work. I was advised to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription in tablet form. I tried a couple of bottles and before I knew it, I was well and strong and had gained 9½ pounds. I can recommend Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription to build one up."—MRS. E. MARTIN, 397 Dundurn St.

After suffering pain, feeling nervous, dizzy, weak and dragged down by weaknesses of her sex—with eyes sunken, black circles and pale cheeks—such a woman is quickly restored to health by the Favorite Prescription of Dr. Pierce. Changed, too, in looks, for after taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription the skin becomes clear, the eyes brighter, the cheeks plump. It is purely vegetable, contains no alcohol.

Mothers' Advice

The responsibility for a daughter's future largely rests with the mother. The right influence and the information which is of vital interest to the daughter imparted at the proper time has not only saved the life but insured the success of many a beautiful girl. When a girl's thoughts become sluggish with headaches, dizziness, or a disposition to sleep, pains in back or lower limbs and a desire for solitude, her mother should come to her aid and remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, will at this time prepare the system for the coming change and start this trying period in a young girl's life without pain or irregularities. Thousands of women residing in every part of the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtues of this medicine, and what it has done for their daughters.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—"I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound enough for what it has done for my daughter. She was 15 years of age, very sickly and pale and she had to stay home from school most of the time. She suffered agonies from backache and dizziness and was without appetite. For 3 months she was under the doctor's care and got no better, always complaining about her back and side aching so I did not know what to do. I read in the papers about your wonderful medicine so I made up my mind to try it. She has taken five bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and doesn't complain any more with her back and side aching. She has gained in weight and feels much better. I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all mothers and daughters."—MRS. M. FINORE, 516 Marcy Avenue, Brooklyn, N.Y.

Canada's New War Vessels

Will Undoubtedly Prove to be Nucleus of Canadian Navy.

"I am much pleased with the vessels which the British Government has given to Canada and consider that they should prove a very efficient nucleus for a Canadian navy," said Capt. Hose, R.C.N., acting director of naval service, to the Canadian Press. Capt. Hose has just returned from England where he went to take over the ships from the admiralty, inspect them, and report to the ministry what changes were necessary before they would be ready for service in Canadian waters.

At present, the vessels are undergoing necessary repairs and re-fitting and the actual date of their sailing for Canada is uncertain. Capt. Hose said that the cruiser Aurora, and the two destroyers, Patriot and Patrician, were all oil-burners, which had given a very satisfactory account of themselves during the war. Although they were not engaged in any battles during the war, they were of the very highest type of their size in the English Channel. The majority of the officers, said Capt. Hose, would be Canadians, who had seen war service.

Stories of Indian Days

O-ge-mas-es Relates Many Incidents of Early Life in the West.

This paper has been very fortunate in making exclusive arrangements with Reg. Beatty, of Melfort, Sask., for a weekly article on Indian lore. Mr. Beatty has lived for many years in the west, and is the best informed authority on Indian ways and traditions living in Western Canada today. Mr. Beatty writes under the pen name of O-ge-mas-es, meaning in Cree, "Little Clerk." These articles should prove to be a valuable contribution to our knowledge of a race that is gradually disappearing. The first story appears on another page of this issue.

Prince Impressed With Tour

Remarks on Ties of Sentiment Binding the Different Parts of Empire.

Speaking on landing in England from the battle cruiser, Renown, the Prince of Wales said: "I have visited two great self-governing dominions and British colonies. British institutions are not in the same state of development in all these British lands, but everywhere, without exception, the spirit is the same. I return most deeply touched and impressed by the unity and strength of sentiment which binds all parts of the dominions to the crown and makes the future of the British Empire secure, so firm and clear is this devotion to this ideal and to the King. I am looking forward now to great developments in those dominions, and with these developments, restoration of our credits in the world's markets."

Germans Cannot Deliver.

The Argentina Government was notified by a German shipyard concern at Emden, which prior to the war undertook the construction of a 40,000-ton floating dock for Argentine at a cost of $300,000, that the dock was completed, but the shipyard was unable to fulfill its contract to tow it to Buenos Aires because of lack of shipping facilities. Unless the Argentine Government is willing to provide towage the shipyard says it will be obliged to retain the dock and refund half the cost which Argentina paid on account.

RHEUMATIC PEOPLE

Can Only Find Relief By Enriching the Blood.

Rheumatism is a disorder of the blood. It attacks people when the blood is overcharged with acid and impurities, thus setting up inflammation in the muscles and joints. Wet weather or cold weather may start the tortures of rheumatism, but is not the cause. The cause is in the blood and the blood only. Victims of this malady have every reason to fear the first dull ache in the limbs and joints followed by sharp pains through the flesh and muscles; these are the symptoms of poison in the blood which will shortly leave the victim painracked and helpless.

There is only one way to cure rheumatism, and that is through the blood. Liniments, hot applications, and rubbing may give temporary ease, but cannot possibly root the trouble out of the system. That can only be done by the rich, red blood which Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make. This new blood drives out the poisonous acid and impurities, and the rheumatism disappears. If you are a sufferer from this painful malady begin the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and see how soon the pains and stiffness of the joints fade away, leaving behind new energy and new health.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.
