VOL. XIII. CRESTON, B. C., FRIDAY, APRIL 8, 1921 No. 10

Erickson

F. V. Staples who has been operating a portable sawmill plant at Kitchener for the past year, has completed his contract cut, and is again back at the ranch work here.

Public school inspector Daniels of Fernie was here on Friday on an official visit and in conference with the trustees insisted on a census being taken of the children between the ages of four and six years. On prospective school population showing will largely depend whether the department will sanction the building of a one-room addition to the school.

A meeting of the ratepayers is called for Tuesday night at 7.30, at the schoolhouse when the whole question of increased school accommodation will be discussed. It is to be hoped at least all the parents will be in attendance.

Seeding operations were in full swing the latter part of the week. R. Lamont has seeded ten acres to clover while at the Long ranch 14 acres of spring rye was put in. This will be allowed to come along until the middle of May when it will be ploughed in and the area planted to spuds.

Frank Botterill met with a nasty gun mishap on Monday that will keep him on the cripple list for the next month at least. He had taken a shot at a hawk with his rifle and in reloading for a second crack at the bird the cartridge jammed and while endeavoring to extract it the gun unexpectedly discharged the bullet going into his right foot about an inch above the second toe and making an ugly looking wound. Dr. Henderson was immediately summoned and so far his recovery has been all that could be expected.

Sirdar

The saddest news that has reached Sirdar in many months was received on Monday, when word came of the death at Cranbrook hospital of Mrs. Richard Lane, to which institution she had gone from here about seven weeks ago.

Deceased, whose home was at Macleod, Alta., had spent most of the winter here with her sister, Mrs. Whiteside, and had also been a frequent visitor during the past three years, during which time she made many friends The remains were brought to Creston on Wednesday, and the funeral took place from the Methodist church in that town on Thursday afternoon to Creston cemetery, the funeral arrangements being in the hands of the G.W.V.A., Rev. G. Knox conducting the last sad rites, and Major Mallandaine, Major Garland, E. W. Payne and P. Mann officiating as pallbearers

The late Mrs. Lane was the fifth daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Simister, now resident near Creston, and was in her thirty-second year. To mourn her loss she leaves a husband, who served overseas, and two sons, besides her parents and several brothers and sisters, most of whom were at Creston for the funeral.

The popularity of the departed was shown in the floral tributes received, and to the husband and children particularly since great sympathy is extended in their heavy bereavement.

Kitchener

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Paulson of Spokane were Kitchener visitors on Monday,

Mr. Hathaway and daughter of San Francisco, Calif., were calling on friends in Kitchener last week.

Mr. Dunn and family have moved from Corn Creek to the McKay ranch at Creston, which he recently purchased.

C. C. French claims the Valley record for early potato planting, having seeded some of his Early Freeman variety on March 17th.

While reports are still coming to hand of the loss of livestock at various points in the Valley, the Reclamation Farm cattle, in charge of Frank Tompkins, have all come through the winter in very good shape.

Chas. Meakin has had the very bad luck to lose a couple of valuable work horses last month.

Mrs. C. C. French returned last week from a trip to Cranbrook.

Fred Hurry has just purchased from Geo. Seymour the latter's flock of poultry, includidg the thoroughbred Plymouth Rock rooster, the latter being from C. C. French's purebred stock of Shoemaker strain.

Now that we are having an early spring there should be no time lost in starting work on the high water road as promised last fall by road superintendent Moore, which would serve the Simmons, R. Sinclair Smith, French, Peterman, Callender, and Capt. Ermiston ranches to the Fass, Adams, Ingram and Wilson places.

Unless one of the bachelors of Corn Creek attends strictly to his own business and meddles less with that of his neighbor's, he will have the opportunity of proving some of his statements in the courts.

New U.F. President

A meeting of the Creston Local of the United Farmers was held on Saturday night, with a good turnout of members. The meeting decided to have the delegates attend the next meeting of the co-operative association project for the Valley and hear what had been done in this connection, the delegates receiving instructions to point out at that meeting that the United Farmers have no jurisdiction to start an organization of that kind until incorporated.

After the usual routine business had been disposed of President W. V. Jackson tendered his resignation, he feeling that he could not give the office the time and attention that it required After a discussion his resignation was accepted with regret.

On motion of H. Lyne, seconded by John Sherwood, A. R. Swanson was nominated to succeed Mr. Jackson as president, and the motion was passed by unanimous vote.—Com.

Kuskanook Wharf

From Kuskanook comes word that work commenced on Monday on the new wharf at that point, and the following day a small crew of men commenced the finish-up work necessary to put the new Sirdar-Kuskanook road in good shape for auto traffic, and that when this is complete the approaches to the wharf will be completed.

The wharf is the floating type, with the float 80x40 feet, and is of the same kind as the one just recently installed at Proctor, at which point the Kuskanook structure is being built in sections and then towed to Kuskanook for installation, some nine sections of it having already arrived and pile driving being rushed at top speed by Cogle & Leake, the contractors. At the speed they are now making the wharf will be ready for use not later than May 15th. Engineer Ramsay has just put in the stakes for the grade of the new road that will eliminate a little better than a mile of bad highway, beyond the old Bob Dixon ranch, and when this is completed and some needed fixing up done on the highway in the neighborhood of Kitchener eastern motorists will have a splendid highway for the trip to the coast via the all-Canadian route.

Wynndel

O. J. Wigen returned from Vernon on Saturday, where he had been a delegate to the meeting Central Co-Operative Fruit Growers Association. He reports that Wynndel is as early this year as any point he visited.

Mr. and Mrs. Anderson, who have been at Creston since the early winter returned to their ranch here on Saturday.

ONE NIGHT ONLY

Adults 75c. Children 35c

The dance under the auspices of the United Farmers on Saturday night was not overcrowed, but those present had a most enjoyable time. Look out for a big social evening on Saturday, April 16th. We are going to excel ourselves.

Wynndel Athletic Club had a business meeting last Thursday night with a fine turnout of members, D. J. Dewar occupying the chair. Several important matters were discussed, among which was the admission of lady members. A committee to look over the site for the tennis court was named and they will report on the work requiring to be done, with these grounds available meetings will be held outdoors which will certainly assure a better time. It was also decided to cut down the members's monthly dues from 50c. to 25c.

The directors of the Co-Operative Fruit Growers held a meeting on Tuesday to hear the report of the delegate Central Association meeting. As proceedings at the central get-together were of a more or less confidential nature no report is available for publication at this date.

In future the United Farmers meetings will be monthly, instead of fortnightly as in the past. The last Wednesday of each month will be meeting night in future.

Mrs. J. B. Rudd got back on Saturday from Bellvue, Alta., where she had spent three or four days business visit.

E. S. Butterfield returned from the west last Wednesday morning, after a visit of about three weeks looking up old friends.

Mrs. Hooke and family, who have been guests of Mrs. Grady, left on Wednesday for their home in Spokane

Misses Toplis returned on Sunday, after spending Easter week at their home in Creston. School re-opened on Monday with a full attendance.

Rev. J. A. James officiated at a baptismal service at the schoolhouse on Sunday afternoon when five infants were christened. The baptisimal feature was followed by a children's service which was largely attended.

Alice Siding

E. Jackson, who has been working at Kitchener the past six months, got back on Saturday, and has started spring work on his ranch on Barraclough Heights. Jack Hanson of Kitchener is spending a few days with him.

R. Stewart is hard at work stumping and clearing up a couple of acres on his ranch. M. Churchill is also looking after some land clearing.

Miss Alice Carr was a week-enk visitor with friends at Yahk, returning on Monday.

Alice Siding reputation for the earliest flowers was maintained this year, the tiger lillies being in evidence on March 30th.

The C.P.R. fencing crew is now at work stretching the wire but not very swift progress is being made. At $2.50 a day men are not very plentiful even this spring.

Jas. Compton took delivery of a new Fordson tractor from the Bevan garage on Monday, and on Tuesday had it pulling a ten-foot disc at orchard cultivation, handling the load at high gear eqcept in the exceptionally heavy spots.

Principal Steel of Alice Siding school got back on Sunday from his Easter holidays at Nelson and was accompanied by his mother as far as Creston where she met her daughter who was on a trip west from Moose Jaw, Sask.

Cranbrook Courier: A quiet wedding was solemnized on Tuesday afternoon in Christ church, when the rector, Rev. F. V. Harrison, united in the holy bonds of matrimony, John Leslie McMurtrie, of Creston, and Miss Eleanor Margaret Turner, of Winnipeg, Manitoba. The church was prettily decorated for the occassion with Easter plants. After a short honeymoon trip the happy couple will return to Creston, where the groom is a prosperous rancher.

Lister

Ronald Brain met with a nasty mishap on Sunday evening. While splitting kindling wood the axe missed its mark and landed against the sole of his foot, opening up a gash that required nine stitches. As the telephone was not available Chas. Faulkner had to ride into Creston for Dr. Henderson. The patient is coming along as well as could be expected.

Col. Lister, M.P.P., returned on Wednesday from Victoria, where he has been since the end of January, attending the legislative session, which ended on Saturday.

Mr. and C. T. Phillips of Cranbrook were week-end visitors at the C. H. Phillips ranch.

School re-opened on Monday, the principal, Miss Austed, getting back from her holiday at Trail on Sunday, accompanied by Miss Nellie Chalmers, who had spent Easter week at the smelter city.

The store closed, as per notice, on Thursday of last week, with practically all the goods sold off, and storekeeper Mitchell has now gone farming on his land here. The local syndicate are waiting anxiously for word from Col. Latta as to whether their tender to purchase the business has been accepted.

The April meeting of the United Farmers was held at the school on Friday night last, with President Fred Powers in the chair, and a good turnout of members. Wm. Mitchell and Langston were named as the Lister representatives to the meeting at Erickson on Wednesday when the proposition of starting a co-operative store for Erickson, Canyon and Lister districts will be finally disposed of. A. R. Swanson, the new president of Creston local, was tendered a hearty vote of thanks in appreciation of his report on the provincial convention, as well as for the enthusiastic support he has given Lister local since its organization.

A resolution was also drafted and forwarded the road foreman at Creston requesting that the two holes in front of the postoffice be filled in. One of these is directly in front of the postoffice, and the other about 100 yards south, and entirely cover the road, making the highway dangerous for the smaller school children, to say nothing about traffic—one of the trucks was hung up there for about ten days and was only pulled out late last week.

"Does my brother who speaks to the wild things, and they follow, sorrow, because the leaders of the wolf-pack have gone down?"

Dorkin turned quickly, his face aglow.

"Sagawa!" he exclaimed, and held out his hand.

The Algonquin took it, held it, as his dark eyes probed the woodsman's soul. An answering smile heightened the beauty of his features, as he said:—

"Two night ago, the white wolf spoke to Sagawa of his brother's danger, and he is here. He would have been here sooner, but Gitche Manitou willed otherwise. Now Sagawa's heart is at rest. He has not had to slay the man whose track he followed on the red trail. Manitou, the great and good, saved him that. But Sagawa was with White Hawk, the slayer of his aged brother, Farney, before his spirit sought its long trail, and listened to that which White Hawk wished to tell him."

"White Hawk!" cried Dorkin. "Then it was he who killed Daddy Farney?"

"It was White Hawk," said the Indian. "He wished to secure the box containing the shiny baubles of gold, which the aged trapper had taken from him eighteen summers ago. White Hawk stole the box, which two nights ago he gave into Sagawa's hands, with a message. Look, the box is here."

From his bosom the Algonquin took a small tin box and handed it to Dorkin.

The woodsman took it wonderingly, and turned it over in his hands. Yes, assuredly, it was the same box which Daddy Farney had told him contained something relating to Willow.

"Sagawa," he asked, "where did this box come from? How did your aged white brother, Farney, come to get possession of it?"

"I belonged to the man and woman who were drowned in H ll's Rapids, near the Basin of White Water, many summers ago," answered the Indian. "White Hawk and his brother, Darbo, were in the canoe with them when it capsized. The man and woman died of exposure, but the baby was saved."

"The baby?"

The Indian smiled. "Little Willow, the Wisp," he said softly; "why, surely, my aged brother, the trapper, told you?"

Dorkin did not answer. He stood, turning the box over and over in his hands. He remembered what the dying trapper had tried to tell him. He remembered what Dayton had told him concerning this man and woman who had lost their lives in the river near the Basin of White Water. But Dayton had said nothing to him of a baby being left behind. Could he have known? he wondered.

"Sagawa," he said slowly, "Daddy Farney wanted to tell me—but he died before he could say what I would now hear from your lips."

The Indian folded his arms.

"On the night Sagawa went to the rescue of the white people and brought them to the village of his tribe, a boy baby was born in Farney's cabin. Darwana, White Hawk's mother, was there at the time. But Manitou, seeing the trail ahead rough and uneven took the little spirit back to the place of sky-spaces and Himself. Darwana, who had a mother's heart, remembered the little one which had been saved from the waters. She took the dead baby away, and left the other in its place."

"And Darwana? Is she still living, Sagawa?"

"She is very old, but she still remembers, as does Sagawa and others of his people," answered the Algonquin.

Dorkin held out his hand.

"Sagawa has always proved himself a man," he said. "He and the brother, whom he has befriended, will keep what they know. He will say nothing until his brother speaks. Is it not so?"

"It is so," replied the Indian.

He looked down at the dead man on the moss.

"Sagawa's brother need not grieve, thus, for his hands are not red with the blood of the wolf who lies before him," he said, noting the pain in the other's eyes. "It was Darbo who killed him."

"Darbo!" echoed Dorkin.

"Darbo. Sagawa saw it, and Sagawa also saw him kill the leader of the pack, Dalton. Sagawa's canoe was close behind Darbo's. There was another with him. Darbo had sworn to kill Dalton. He fired, and their canoe sought the shadows above the lake, and landed lower down along the shore.

"Sagawa followed. The man with Darbo was not to blame. He could do nothing. Darbo entered the forest. His rifle spoke. Then he crept back again to the other. Sagawa heard him laugh and say to his trail-mate, 'The debt you owed Savage for what he did to your friend, is paid.' That is Savage, outlaw from the Hudson Bay district," pointing to the dead man.

"Then," said Dorkin slowly, gladly, "my men have spilled no blood. Oh, I am glad!"

"And Sagawa is glad with his brother," said the Algonquin. "Hereafter he will stay close beside him, and forget the read trail."

"Ah, Sagawa, that is good news," smiled Dorkin. "And Darbo?" he asked quickly.

"He has gone." The Indian pointed away. "Gone far off to other fields. Sagawa heard him say that, now he must go far away to the forest of Quebec, for his life here is worth nothing."

"And the other man, the one who was with him, Sagawa?"

"He disappeared into the forest."

"Come," said Dorkin, "let us go up to the cabin."

Dorkin skirted his own cabin and led Sagawa to that of his helper. "My brother must eat and rest," he said; and the Indian answered, "It is well."

He left Sagawa partaking of the food which the smiling French woman placed before him, and telling him that he would speak with him again, went out.

He still carried the little box, and his heart grew heavy as he realized what effect that which he must say might have on two lives, at least.

In the edge of the butternut grove he found the prisoners, still bound, being guarded by his allies from the valley.

He came up and spoke to them.

"You men have been guilty of a grave offence," he said sternly. "I could punish you if I so desired. But," his eyes sweeping the shamed faces of the prisoners, "I happen to know that, in coming here on the errand which has failed, you have been largely the dupes of another. Consequently, I am inclined to show you leniency."

He looked them over again, gravely. Some of the faces were sullen, but the majority of the culprits were, he knew, willing to accept liberty on his terms.

"You have your choice," he told them, "of being sent to jail or of leaving this district forever. Which do you choose?"

"We'll leave," they answered with one accord.

"Very well, then. It must be immediately, remember, and"—he paused, and his voice took on a new timbre—"you will be careful not to return, at any time."

He motioned to Washburn and LaPeer to untie them and passed on up to his cabin. He knew that he had nothing to fear from the men to whom he was giving liberty. Their leader was dead; they feared the law, and they feared him. If only he did not have this other task to perform—he would be happy.

Mr. Dayton met him at the door. The old banker's eyes were red and his face was still white. But there was a new light in his eyes, as he grasped Dorkin's hand and whispered:—

"I have told them everything. They have forgiven—I—" He dropped Dorkin's hand and groped his way outside.

Dorkin went to the room in which Timberley lay. Seated beside the bed he found another man, a tall, sallow-faced individual whose eyes were full of wonder as they met his own.

He stood up, gazing at Dorkin in amazement. "Frank," he said huskily, "don't you remember me?"

"Jimmy," cried Dorkin, wringing the hand held out to him—"Jimmy Haight! Who would expect ever to see you here?"

"Jimmy, like myself, has grown considerably since he came up into this world of yours, Dorkin," said Timberley.

Dorkin bent over and lifted Timberley's hand. "I want to thank you for the letter of warning," he said—"and I want to say that it was brave of you to stick up here so that you might help me at the last."

Timberley smiled. "I owe you something, Dorkin," he said. "Everything pays, sometime, you know."

"Which reminds me that I've got a few thousand dollars belonging to you," Haight informed Dorkin. "Our deceased aunt left it behind. It was rightfully yours, but—well, I got it, and I'm anxious to turn it over to you." He blinked up at Dorkin and took a generous chew of fine-cut.

Defence of Farmers

Charge of Profiteering Attributed to Ignorance of Facts.

"With unprecedented food prices and little public knowledge of farm finance, it is not surprising that the defenceless farmer should be classed as a profiteer," said Prof. Barton, of MacDonald Agricultural College, addressing the St. James Literary Society in Montreal.

"The city man, by his ignorance, talks glibly of farm wealth manifestations and hurls indictments at this narrow, selfish and ignorant, greedy monster who robs the poor man's child of its milk that he may drive an automobile."

Prof. Barton said the automobile was common on the farm because it had come to be necessary to the business and was only incidentally used for pleasure; and the automobiles very generally were possessed with a mortgage attached.

Japan Will Agree To Naval Holiday

Kato Says Present Programme Is Not Irreducible.

Assertions that the Japanese naval programme is being followed for the purpose of competing with the United States navy were denounced as "preposterous and absurd," by Vice-Admiral Tomosaburo Kato, Japanese minister of marine, in an interview with the Associated Press. He declared Japan was not trying to compete with the United States navy, and that the Japanese naval programme had been formulated so that the island empire could be defended against any emergencies arising in the Far East alone.

During the course of the interview the minister emphasized the fact that Japan's project to have a fleet of eight battleships and eight battle cruisers, not over eight years old, was not necessarily irreducible. He indicated that if all the naval powers would agree to a "naval holiday," he would be willing to enter into such an agreement, and would not insist upon the completion of the naval programme projected by the government.

Mr. Earnest Clark, Police Officer, 338 King St., Kingston, Ont., writes:

"For three years I suffered from nervousness and sleeplessness. I believe my condition was brought about by overwork. I had frequent headaches, neuralgic pains and twitching of nerves and muscles. I had indigestion, was short of breath and easily tired. I commenced a treatment of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and seven boxes of this medicine relieved me of all my symptoms. Shelter Belts of Trees

A Tree Planting Campaign for Prairie Provinces Again This Year.

The Canadian Forestry Association, which conducted a very successful educational campaign in the three prairie provinces last summer, has decided to extend the enterprise this year so as to cover eight months. Mr. Archibald Mitchell, a veteran tree planter, will be again in charge of the Tree Planting Car, which made itself a welcome visitor in scores of prairie communities during 1920, is being refitted as a motion picture demonstration with a sloping floor and the most modern motion picture equipment. New picture films are being made ready for this year's campaign.

The direct object of the Canadian Forestry Association's campaign is not only to beautify the homes of prairie settlers, but to combat the increasing damage through soil drifting and the blowing out of crops by getting popular co-operation in the planting of wind-breaks of trees. The remarkable effectiveness of thick shelter belts of trees is now widely recognized by prairie settlers. Recognizing the great value of this enterprise to the southern portions of the provinces, the Saskatchewan Government granted the Forestry Association one thousand dollars to assist the campaign this year.

Ontario's Mine Output.

The value of Ontario's mine output for the year 1920 was $46,000,000, according to the report of the Provincial Department of Mines. This included 564,309 ounces of gold valued at $11,665,735, as against a total value of $10,451,709 in 1919. Silver production in 1920 was worth $10,819,673, which was about $2,000,000 less than during the previous year. The value of nickel matte product of 1920 was $10,685,500, as compared with $7,940,403 in 1919.

An excellent protection against worms can be got in Miller's Worm Powders. They render the stomach and intestines untenable to them. They heal the surfaces that have become inflamed by the attacks of the parasites and serve to restore the strength of the child that has been undermined by the draughts that the worms have made upon it, and that their operation is altogether health-giving.

Royal Fractions.

There is a general opinion that the Queen of England is a person of considerable strength and determination of character. That opinion is reflected in a number of more or less amusing stories. One of them relates that the Prince of Wales, while visiting the British forces at the front, saw in a dugout the pictures of his royal father and mother. Under the King's was written, "George, the fifth," under the Queen's, "the other four-fifths."

The Retort.

The black-haired boy had a mighty contempt for the tow-headed boy. "Huh," he said, "your mother takes in washing." "Of course she does," the tow-headed sartirist retorted. "You didn't think she would leave it hanging out at night unless your father was in jail, did you?"

BABY'S HEALTH IN THE SPRING

The spring is a time of anxiety to mothers who have little ones in the home. Conditions make it necessary to keep the baby indoors. He is often confined to overheated, badly ventilated rooms and catches colds which rack his whole system. To guard against this a box of Baby's Own Tablets should be kept in the house and an occasional dose given the baby to keep his stomach and bowels working regularly. This will prevent colds, constipation or colic and keep baby well. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Pyrites in Canada.

The total shipments of pyrites as sulphur ore from Canadian mines in 1920 were 174,744 tons valued at $751,009 and included 14,817 tons from Quebec, 148,652 tons from Ontario, and 11,275 tons from British Columbia. The total sulphur content of shipments was 67,627 net tons, or an average of 38.7 per cent. Of the total shipments 27,823 tons were sold for consumption in Canada and 146,921 tons for consumption in the United States.

Heart Weak, Nerves Shattered After the "Flu."

In a large majority of cases those who survived the last epidemic of Spanish influenza were left with weak hearts, shattered nerves, impoverished blood, and the whole system has been left in such a general weakened and exhausted condition that it has been impossible to get back your old health and strength.

If you are in this condition there is only one thing to do; take a course of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and see how quickly your heart will be strengthened, your nerves toned up and your blood enriched.

Mrs. W. W. Pearce, 14 Seaton St., Toronto, Ont., writes: "I was left with a weak heart and in a rundown condition from the "flu." My nerves were badly shattered, and I had such pains in my heart I could not sleep much at night. I took several doctors medicines without getting any better. My husband got me to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and after I took one box I got relief; after taking six boxes have been well and not bothered since."

An Evening Gown of Flamingo Satin

By Marie Belmont.

Among the colors that are especially liked flamingo stands pre-eminent at this time. It is shown in many different fabrics not only for the daytime clothes but particularly for those that are destined for evening wear. In the former realm it is chosen mostly as a trimming, while in the latter it is frequently favored for the fashioning of the whole garment. This lovely gown is originated partly in flamingo satin and partly in cream lace. The satin is draped effectively from the right shoulder toward the waistline, where it is slightly drawn in. From this point it falls gracefully toward the floor. The lace forms an interesting train and is also selected to veil the left side of the gown.

Its Quality Sells It.—The fact that so many thousand of intelligent people continue to use Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil speaks volumes for its healing efficiency. Every since it was first introduced it has grown steadily in public favor, owing entirely to its manifold usefulness in relieving and healing sickness. As a specific for cuts, burns, scalds and various inflammatory pains its record is beyond reproach.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Criticizing the Critic

Lister, March 31.

EDITOR REVIEW:

SIR—The writer sincerely appreciates the kindly interest shown by the people of Creston in our second attempt as players, together with "Footlighter's" favorable write up and frank criticism. If in their endeavor the Lister Dramatic Company pleased a critical Creston audience I can assure you, Mr. Footlighter, the honor is all ours.

You are entirely right in your criticism of the Warburton Lena part in the fourth act. This scene was weakened due to the lack of proper stage effect. The fault belongs to the director. I am not, however, wholly in harmony with some of your other comments on the Warburton part. Had you been keenly observant you would have undoubtedly noticed that Ivor Christensen was playing under the difficult handicap—as were a number of the players—of a part that was "off cast," in other words, Mr. Christensen's part as Warburton was entirely foreign to his natural bent or talent as an actor.

To assure an almost perfect production it is very essential that all the players be cast as naturally as possible. In this case the characters of "Tony, the Convict," were cast before I took charge, and for various reasons realized that it would be unwise to make any change.

Again, "Footlighter" says it was fortunate Warburton was supported by the supberb acting of Lena—or words to that effect. In my opinion this is not good criticism, because Mrs. Henry Christensen, as Lena, was not only cast rightly, but is a natural, gifted, versatile actress, having the inborn talent, with training, of taking the leading lady part in any drama suitable to her physique, and so the effect of two such opposite players working together as a rule causes too apparent a contrast.

However, knowing as I do the conscientious, painstaking work that Ivor Christensen put in on his part, and considering the fact that he was handicapped through the lack of good management on the part of the director in the fourth act, plus an "off-cast" part, and that "Tony, the Convict," is Mr. Christensen's first attempt as an actor, I want to say in closing that his work in Creston was I consider equal to the best in the entire cast, and had it been feasible to have continued the play I know that Ivor Christensen would have been, in the next production, if not flawless at least sufficiently creditable to support his fair companion in every detail.

Passing the Buck

EDITOR REVIEW:

SIR:—In your issue of March 25 a well-meaning "Parent" expressed great concern as to what is to become of his or her children if they must go to a school where bullying goes on; where lunches are stolen, and bad language used. Neither this parent nor any other can "pass the buck"

Now, as a matter of fact, the home is the child's first and greatest school; and there receives most of those impulses to contrariness that are either developed or knocked out at the public school.

Does not a child learn bullying at home? There they bully the brothers and sisters, the dog, the cat, and the parents. These children with strong, self-assertive natures, may become useful and progressive citizens. At the same time "Parent" cannot pass the buck in the matter of responsibility for training and restraining such a bullying disposition.

I have observed that children often get their first impulse to falsehood and profane language at home A child may do wrong and, from sheer fright at the ungoverned anger of a thoughtless parent, may tell a falsehood as a convenient way of escape.

At the same time I know of cases where children learned lying from the falsehoods told by parents. This, along with profane language, which so many children learn at home, before they ever go to school constitute two of the worst crimes against childhood of which parents can be guilty.

Schools are good, and children are not all bad—as Parent admits—but, again, it is impossible to pass the buck to any institution in the hope that the infirmities and moral deformaties of the child may be corrected by proxy.

It is a good thing, as your correspondent suggests, to guard a child from bodily ill; but, I wonder, how much is "Parent" doing to plant and develop moral goodness around Erickson? For goodness is just as catching as badness.

I have observed that some parents, especially the fathers, seem not to be very anxious for, nor, indeed, very capable of, the proper moral training of their children; so much does this seem to be so that they ought to be very thankful that the children are not much worse than they are.

Many of the ills of the age have their main roots in the unspiritual and irreligious lives and homes of the parents and children. The original and permanent responsibility rests on the parent, and not without pains and penalties can that responsibility be passed to any institution however willing and worthy.

We need schools for children, but a school for "Parents" would serve a great and useful purpose. This need may be met in part by a Parent-Teacher Association. Here the parents would meet with the teachers of their children in a monthly conclave; when difficulties might be discussed, and, having come to a better understanding of the common task, the parents would be led to loyally back up the efforts of the teacher on whom they have sought to impose the duty of training the children.

OBSERVER.

Credit Never Overdrawn

Creston, April 4

EDITOR REVIEW:

SIR,—Below is a very short list of the slanderous statements that are being circulated among the growers of Erickson and Canyon City districts. This list was mailed to a Union director and handed to me:

Losing money on that milk business—must be.

Keeps two men all the time, instead of working himself as he ought to, and he only sells $190 worth of milk a month.

Takes a lot of money to feed those cows, and that with all the mortgages on the land—of which he bought too much—and the payments he has to make to Stocks; why, he can't do it, and so the Union is carrying him along for several thousand dollars while some of the small farmers, who cannot afford to do without their money can't get what is coming to them from the Union.

That's why he is so anxious to get contracts signed instead of going after co-operation; because if the Union were to re-organize he'd have to pay up and he can't. One of the directors is going to charge him with these things at the next meeting. He (W.J.) can't shut his mouth, though he might think so. He runs them all pretty much to suit himself

These insinuations are as vile and slimy as the authors of them, and would be beneath my notice if were not for the fact that they are circulated with the intention of harming the Union, and keeping the growers from signing the contracts

This ill-bred reference to my personal affairs is made, of course, to show that I have such a large debit account at the Union. This statement is absolutely false; nor have I ever received more credit than the amount of produce I ship entitles me to.

At the present time I do not owe the Union one cent, and I invite those who think otherwise to appoint an auditor who will be given every assistance to investigate the books as far back as he wishes, provided it is done in hours that won't inconvenience the business of the Union. This, perhaps, would be working too much in the open to suit the type of person making use of these insinuations.

As to the director referred to he will be given every chance to make those charges, because I would much rather he would talk more at the board meetings and less outside

Title cannot be obtained in less than 5 years, and improvements of $10.00 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years are required.

This privilege is also made retroactive.

GRAZING.

Chautauqua Due Here Early June

The dates for Creston Valley's premier entertainment attraction for 1921 have been fixed for June 9, 10, 11, 13, 14, 15, when the big six-day Dominion Chatauqua will make its first appearance in Creston, showing afternoon and evening on each of these days.

A couple of dozen progressive citizens are guaranteeing the appearance of the Chautaqua, and as this is the first time an effort has been made to put on entertainment on such an extended scale and presented by such high class talent, an early start is being made to place the proposition prominently before the public.

At a meeting of the guarantors a few nights ago C. W. Allen was unanimously chosen chairman of this year's Chautaqua organization, with C. F. Hayes as secretary, and S. A. Speers, treasurer. The same meeting delegated to the chairman and secretary the task of selecting several committees necessary to properly swing the affair, as well as to select the committe members.

So far four committees have been named, and the following have been chosen chairmen of them: Grounds, M. J. Boyd; Tickets, E. C. Gibbs; Publicity, C. F. Hayes; Transportation, Alex. Lidgate. While all of the committees are of importance the success of the Chautaqua will be considerably enhanced if the transportation committee succeed in getting a proposed jitney service working for the occasion; giving auto transportation from every point in the Valley at a nominal charge.

A partial programme has been announced already, and full particulars in this connection will be available in a few days. The talent already announced to play the B.C. circuit will include:

Miss Agnes C. Laut, Publicist and Canadian writer, will lecture on "Canada at the Cross-Roads."

Lieurances Symphony Orchestra with J. Horace Smithey, Metropolitan Operatic baritone.

Dr. J. L. Gordon, eminent Canadian divine.

Coffen Miller Players, in the Sheridan's greatest English comedy, "The Rivals."

Judge Geo. D. Alden, the Ambassador of Happiness.

Pitt Parker the Wizard with Crayons.

Bell Ringing Quartette.

Chautqua has been playing towns such as Cranbrook, Fernie, Blairmore, Taber, Pincher Creek and, in fact, almost every prairie town of any consequence, for the last three years, and advices from these places is to the effect that the list of talent so far submitted would indicate that the 1921 Chautauqua should be the best yet presented.

Rod and Gun Club

The meeting of Creston Valley Rod and Gun Club on Thursday night last was well attended. Matters in connection with trap shooting were discussed and the committee authorized to order a trap and 1000 clay birds. It is hoped as many members as can will take a hand at trap shooting, as the more there are the less the cost to each member. Those wishing to take up trap shooting may enter their names at Mawson Brothers' store, where there is already quite a list of names. Visitors who may wish to enjoy this sport may do so simply by buyidg ammunition from the club at 10 per cent. above the price charged members, or if they bring their own ammunition by paying the 10 per cent. extra to the club. The club badges will be ready in a few days, and may be had from the treasurer, Vic. Mawson.

Masonic At Home

Some thirty members of the Masonic fraternity with an equally large number of lady friends were out for the annual at home of Creston Lodge A.F. & A.M. at the Parish Hall on Friday night. The high scorers at whist were Mrs. Garland and T. W. Bundy, while second prizes fell to Mrs. Compton and C. W. Allan. Following cards there was a short musical programme to which Mrs. Johnston of Lister and Rev. J. S. Mahood contributed a couple of vocal numbers each, and Mrs. Garland a piano solo. A superb supper was served by Caterer Norris, and then dancing was in order until almost 3 a.m., with excellent music by Mesdames Lister and Foreman. Taken all round the affair was quite the finest social function that Creston has had for years, the finishing touch being the artistic hall decorations done by a committee of ladies.

A Real Club

The Creston Social Club is the latest development in local community effort, with the clubroom in the Mallandaine Building. The quarters are comfortably furnished and well supplied with reading matter, while writing materials and other conveniences will be added in due course. This modest beginning was decided upon in order to get the club started before the busy spring season got too far under way. The club is open daily from 1 to 11 p.m., and should be found particularly useful for people from the country who generally find some such central stopping or meeting place decidedly handy. For townspeople and those living not more than a mile out a membership of $6 is charged. For those residing further than a mile out the fee is $2 per year. Members must be over 18 years, and are accepted for membership by ballot of the executive committee. H. Venus is club secretary, and prospective members should make membership application direct to him.

The River's End

An unusual and quaint form of plotting is one of the more intensely interesting features of "The River's End," from the story by James Oliver Curwood, which will have its initial showing here at the Grand Theatre, on April 18.

The introductory scenes of the film find John Keith, haunted for years by the murder of Judge Kirkstone, captured by Derwent Conniston of the Canadian Mounted Police. A striking resemblance between the two men in build and facial characteristics leads the officer, when suddenly stricken with a fatal disease, to urge Keith to impersonate him and return to the Post with an account of Keith's death.

Shim Tung, a crafty Chinaman at the Post, alone suspects Keith of the impersonation and threatens to divulge the secret unless Keith influences Miriam Kirkstone, the murdered man's daughter, to marry him. A terrific mob fight follows in which the Chinaman is killed.

A younger sister of the dead officer arrives at the Post and unaware of Keith's impersonation, shows a sisterly affection for him. Keith finally makes a clean breast of the affair departs and journeys down the Saskatchewan. The climax of the picture is summed up in the surprise that awaits Keith—"At The River's End."

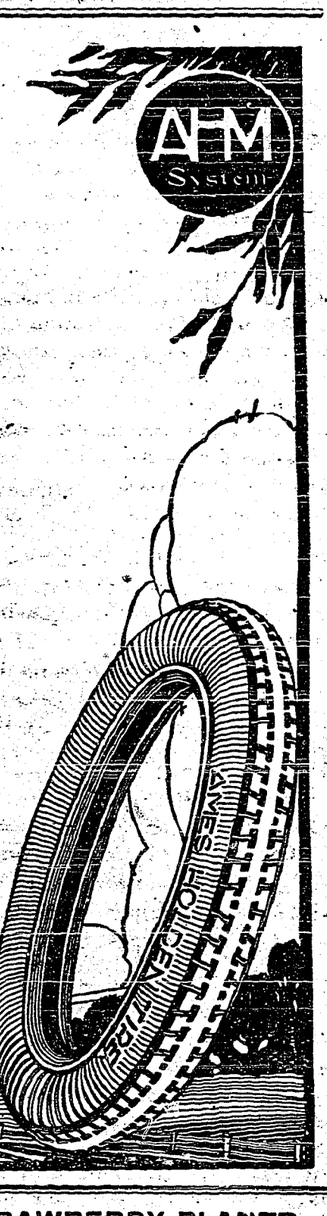
Why "Auto-Shoes"?



We figure that any automobile casing has a right to be called a "tire"—whether it's good, bad or indifferent. And we agree with the opinion that an exceptionally good casing deserves a distinctive name.

Ames Holden "Auto-Shoes" are miles better in performance than ordinary tires. That has been proved to our satisfaction. So we think it's a good idea to identify such unusual mileage givers by an easy-to-remember name—"Auto-Shoes."

The main purpose of the name is to help you to get cheaper mileage. The guarantee behind Ames Holden "Auto-Shoes" insures that you get it. If necessity for adjustment should ever arise you will find that you will get satisfaction without trouble or red tape.

They are the principal advantages that go with the name Ames Holden "Auto-Shoes." Drop in and let us show you the tires themselves.

Finding the Equilibrium

The slow and difficult process of getting the business and productive activities of the country back to a normal level, to which reference was made in this column last week, can, let it be repeated with emphasis, be only successfully accomplished through co-operation on the part of all concerned, and that means everybody. It cannot be accomplished by any one group in the State standing out and insisting on the acceptance of their own demands irrespective of the effect on others. There must be compromises, resulting in readjustments.

For one thing, it becomes increasingly evident that the Federal Government must revise their present systems and methods of levying taxation on business and productive enterprise, whether such business be agricultural production, industrial manufacturing, or commerce in its wholesale and retail departments. Present systems and methods are confusing, complicated and generally unsettling, and constitute a discouragement to enterprise, initiative and increased production. What is now required is something simple, inexpensive in operation, yet withal capable of producing a large revenue to meet the pressing needs of the nation. Such a system is to be found, we believe, in the removal of the present taxation levies on business profits, and the introduction of a general and uniform tax on all business turnovers—that is, a small tax on gross sales in all lines of business activity.

If the Federal Government will take this step, then all business will know exactly where it stands and can proceed to work out permanent policies with a view to expansion and increased production, thus reducing and gradually eliminating unemployment, increasing the purchasing power of the country to absorb the larger volume of commodities produced, and at the same time bringing about a reduction in prices which will place such commodities within reach of a much larger number of people.

It should be clear to all people, and especially to Governments, that the secret of national prosperity is to be found in well balanced industry. That is, that the production of every branch of industry in which people are engaged shall be in proportion to the wants and buying power of the people in all their other occupations. In other words, a national balance between occupations in which people are engaged must be found and maintained.

An expert on economics in the United States sets forth the situation quite clearly when he says that the number of people that can be employed in any industry depends upon the amount of the products that can be sold, and that depends upon the price which the consumers have to pay for them. For any commodity there is at any given time a certain price which will secure a larger net result to the producers than any other price. That is to say, if the price be lowered the additional distribution will not compensate for the sacrifice, and on the other hand, if the price be raised the loss of distribution will exceed the gain in price. For example, there is a point where railway freight rates will produce a maximum of revenue, but, increased beyond that figure the rates charged operate to decrease the volume of freight carried so that the higher charges actually mean less revenue.

It must be borne in mind that everything that is offered for sale, whether it be an article of goods or the services of an individual or corporation is in competition, not only with like goods or service, but with all the multitude of attractions that are appealing to every consumer. Under these conditions it is folly on the part of an individual or group of individuals to think that he or they have it in their power to arbitrarily fix wages and prices for themselves. They may have the power to fix, and even maintain, wages, rates and prices, but they cannot escape the effect it will have upon employment or upon sales.

A striking example of the truth of this statement was shown in New York City last fall. The printers there wanted more wages and a board of arbitration awarded it to them, without, apparently, taking into consideration the state of the printing business and its relation to the general business situation. The result was that the wage increase, by increasing the cost of printing at a time when the public had less money to spend for printing, aggravated the situation, resulted in such a substantial decrease in work that hundreds of men were laid off, and the actual amount paid in wages was smaller and not larger than before the increase was made.

That illustrates the whole situation. It is shortsighted to be always thinking that wages are fixed by simply an agreement between employer and employee, and that the employer can either pay it out of his own pocket or pass it on to the consumer. If the consumer cannot pay, the employer will not long be able to do so, and unemployment is the inevitable result. There is a relationship between industry and all the other industries which must be taken into account and maintained.

There is also an equilibrium, a natural balance, which must be maintained between the occupations in which people are engaged. That balance must be sustained in order that the products or services of each group may be absorbed by all the other groups. When the balance is lost, unemployment results and continues until a redistribution is worked out, so that again everybody is at work and all the products are absorbed, either at home or abroad, a state whdich we call prosperity.

The co-operative efforts of all organizations and individuals must be directed towards finding that equilibrium in occupations, in wages, in production, in order that prosperity may be established. It can only be accomplished by concession and compromise on the part of both Capital and Labor, employer and employee.

EXTREME MISERY DAY AND NIGHT

Follows a Breakdown of the Nervous System.

Misery day and night is the lot of hosts of men and women who are to-day the victims of weak nerves. Thin, pale, drawn faces and dejected attitude tell a sad tale, for nervous weakness means being tortured by morbid thoughts and unaccountable fits of depression. These sufferers are painfully sensitive and easily agitated by some chance remark. Sleeplessness robs them of energy and strength; their eyes are sunken and their limbs tremble; appetite is poor and memory often fails. This nervous exhaustion is one of the most serious evils affecting men and women of to-day. The only way to bring back sound, vigorous health is to feed the starved nerves, which are clamoring for better blood. This new blood can be had through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which have a direct action on the blood, and through the blood on the nervous system. That a fair use of this medicine will bring satisfactory results is shown by the experience of Mrs. Marsh, Bass River, N.S., who says: "Following a run down condition, I became practically a nervous wreck. The doctor who was called in said the trouble was inflammation of the nerves. It grew so bad that practically I had no control of my lower limbs, and had to go about with crutches. Quite aside from my suffering I had a small family and a baby in arms to care for and I became much discouraged, as I did not appear to be growing better. One evening my husband met an aged doctor on the street and told him of my condition. He asked my husband who was attending me, and when told said: 'I don't want to interfere, but why not try Dr. Williams Pink Pills.' My husband got me a supply of these pills and after taking a few boxes I was able to go about with the use of one crutch. Continuing the use of the pills I was able to discard the other crutch as well, and was as active as ever I had been. There are many in this neighborhood who know what my condition was when I began the use of Dr. Williams Pink Pills and who know what this medicine did for me, and I hope my experience may help some other sufferer."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers in medicine, or may be had by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Suction of Rubber Tires Said to be Destructive.

Old Roman roads which had stood up under the wheel traffic of 2,000 years were domolished in ten years by the destructive suction of rubber tires. The road from Durham to London, more than two hundred miles long, was known as Watling street, ran to the Roman wall along the Cheviot Hills which kept out the invading Picts and Scots. Having a perfect foundation, the road was easily surfaced and maintained through all those centuries. But the motor car made necessary its complete re-construction. It was the same with the more famous Appain Way out of Rome.

A Friend of the Family

Over fifty years ago a young physician practiced widely in Pennsylvania and became famous for his uniform success in the curing of disease. This was Dr. R. V. Pierce, who afterwards established himself in Buffalo, N. Y., and placed one of his prescriptions, which he called "Golden Medical Discovery," in the drug stores in the United States and Canada, so that the public could easily obtain this remarkable tonic, corrective, and blood-maker. Dr. Pierce manufactured this "Discovery" from roots and barks without alcohol—a corrective remedy, the ingredients of which nature had put in the fields and forests, for keeping us healthy. Introduce pure red blood into the system, and health is assured. When you feel run-down, out of sorts, blue and despondent try the energizing influence of this reliable tonic. You can obtain Golden Medical Discovery in tablet or liquid form at all drug stores, or send 10c for a trial package to Dr. Pierce's Laboratory in Buffalo, N. Y.

Old Fort Ellis and Sioux Indians

Crossing the Plains to Fort Carlton

Summer 1875.

By O-GE-MAS-ES (Little Clerk).

(Copyrighted)

I had wintered at Fairfort on the north end of Lake Manitoba and had just closed up the business in the spring, when I received orders to report at Manitoba House and superintend a small sugar making plant which the Hudson's Bay Company had undertaken on an island in the lake just out from the post where there were several thousand ash-maple trees. Our methods were very primitive. An old pony and stone-boat with a barrel to gather the sap, birch bark rogans and wood troughs for containers, and a string of large-sized open copper kettles for boiling the sap. An old and wrinkled Indian woman attended to the boiling and sugar making, and when the season ended we had several thousand pounds of sugar, sugar-pitch and syrup. After keeping enough of this for home use, the orders were to send the balance up to Fort Qu'Appelle, and there it would be traded to the Plain Indians who were excessively fond of it, and the price to them was, I think, a skin a pound.

The officer in charge of Manitoba House at that time was the late Isaac Cowie, and he fitted out five Red River carts with ponies, detailed a half-breed named Charlie Anderson (generally known as Charlie-Man) for guide, had the carts loaded up with sugar and syrup, and issued us rations for the trip. Unfortunately a gun was not included in the equipment and at that time I did not own one. He then gave orders for us to proceed direct to Fort Ellis. It was a wilderness we had to traverse, and in fact on the whole trip we never saw or tracked a human being. The ponies we were using had wintered out and as the green grass was only just coming in they were in poor shape for a long trip. Our progress was very slow, not more than eighteen to twenty miles a day, and at first we had to make a number of detours to avoid bush and brush, but gradually as we got further away from the lake, the country became more open. We had no tent, but just a covering to sleep under. One night we had camped rather late on a dry looking knoll, and after supper soon went to bed, as we made a point of starting early, spelling our poor ponies twice in the day to give them the best show possible.

Charlie-Man will now tell the story:

"We had put up the usual willow frame and over this drew our covering and went to sleep, when in the night I was awakened by Ogemases grabbing me fiercely, moaning and shaking his head from side to side. Though I was considered a strong man it took me all my time to hold my own with the little clerk, and I thought he must have gone suddenly mad. In our struggles we smashed our rude camp to pieces, rolled some distance down the knoll, and at last I managed to hold him down firmly with my knee on his chest and asked what was the matter. He was not conscious of my voice, but still kept throwing his head from side to side and moaning. It struck me at last there was something in his ear, and dragging him slowly back to the camp, I found our dunnage sack, took out a bottle of Painkiller, pulled the cork with my teeth, turned him on his side, and poured the pure stuff into his ear. He collapsed as if you had hit him with a club, and finally I noticed a small red ant float out with the Painkiller. He remained unconscious until morning when he woke up all right, though for several days he was quite deaf on that side.

* * * * *

So much for Charlie-Man's yarn. And now I take up my narrative again. I was suddenly awakened that night by what I thought was a tremendous blow inside my head, followed by another, and another until I lost consciousness, and then you have heard Charlie-Man's story as to what happened. Talk about grizzly bears or timber wolves, a little tiny red ant is much more to be dreaded when in your ear, and for years afterwards when sleeping out on the prairie I stopped my ears with cotton wool.

Our rations consisted of Pilot bread biscuit, large and very hard, with a small amount of buffalo Pemican. Unfortunately, owing to the weakness of our ponies, the trip was taking us much longer than Mr. Cowie allowed for, so we had to limit our fare. Of course, there was plenty of maple sugar and syrup and we rather unwisely ate too much of this which caused dysentery. Finally, by Charlie's rough count, we should be within some thirty miles of Fort Ellis. But, alas, our ponies had played out entirely. Charlie was very much weaker than myself owing to the effects of too much sugar, and we held a council over night as to the best procedure. The question arose, should we kill one of the ponies, and after some discussion we decided against this, they of course being company's property. There were only two large biscuits left, no Pemican, and then the sugar, which by this time we were afraid to touch. It was finally decided that I was to start out early next morning taking an easterly course, marking my trail constantly (so that Charlie could be easily found), and three or four hours should bring me to the main cart trail from Ft. Garry to Ft. Ellis.

I was pleased with the prospect and taking half a biscuit for my breakfast away I went, warning Charlie to eat no more sugar, and assuring him I would have assistance back as early as possible. After some three hours steady walking I struck the main trail close to Birl Tail Creek. I was by this time hungry as a bear, and here on the light soil banks of the creek were hundreds of prairie gophers, fat and saucy, the first we had seen. They looked good to eat and after vainly pelting them with stones an idea struck me. Sitting down I took off my moccasins pulled out the long deer skin thongs and made a snare, and in a few minutes I had a couple of fine big gophers. Making a fire I skinned and cleaned my game, fixed up what Indians call a Ponask, viz.: The game is stretched on a stick with skewers across and roasted before an open fire. I quickly polished one off. Very good and sweet it was, and was just started on the other one when I heard a rig coming from the east, and who should it be but Molyneux St. John and his wife en route to Ft. Ellis on Indian Department business. Nothing would do but my having a good dinner on the spot and then a comfortable drive to The Fort, where I at once reported conditions and saw a relief party with provisions sent back to poor Charlie-Man, who arrived that night, and after a day or two's rest was all right again. The ponies were left to do their own recuperating and would be brought into the horse guard later.

Rumour of Return Of Hapsburgs

Monarchists Are Not Taken Seriously By British Authorities.

London.—British official circles expressed the opinion that former-Emperor Charles in his attempt to regain the throne of Hungary, was misled by Monarchists who advised him that the time was ripe for his return to Hungary. The advice of Regent Horthy to Charles to leave the country immediately, is regarded here as substantiating the view that there is no support for a Monarchist coup in Hungary at present.

It is believed here that Charles will enter Switzerland or some other neutral country, and not make a further attempt to return to Hungary.

If he should try this course, the Allies would do nothing aside from applying moral persuasion against his return to Hungary.

Germany Lodges Complaint

Teutons Protest Sale of Coal Delivered to Allies on Reparations.

Berlin.—Protest against the sale, by allied governments to neutrals, of coal delivered by Germany on the reparations account, is made in the note addressed to the Reparations Commission and the Belgian cabinet, by the German Government. It is asserted that Belgium is disposing of German coal in Holland, and the coal aggregating several thousand tons has been offered for sale abroad at prices below those Germany is able to quote.

As a result, the note declares, German interests are being severely injured.

Government Extends Further Relief to Disabled Soldiers

No Further Assistance, However, Will Be Granted to Single Men Without Dependents.

Ottawa.—An order-in-council has just been passed extending the relief granted to disabled men by the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment until April 23, subject to certain modifications. It is now provided that the men for whom assistance shall be granted, shall be married or single with dependents who have received assistance as such prior to March 31. After March 31, the maximum amounts which may be expended on behalf of any case are:

Man and wife, $60; first child under 16 (girl 17), $12; second child, under 16 (girl 17), $10.

Maximum payable, $85.

No further assistance will be granted to single men without dependents after March 31.

This extension will enable the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment to deal with the most needy cases during the next three weeks. By that time, it is hoped that a majority of the men who are now receiving assistance will be able to secure employment. It will be noted that no new cases for relief can be taken on under this extension, only those who have been carried prior to the end of March being eligible.
