Display of Valley Photos in London

The Board of Trade has communicated with F. Wade, British Columbia's agent general in London, England, to make arrangements for the prominent display in his office of the enlarged photos which Robt. Stark took along with him to exhibit with the Valley fruit which is competing at the big British Apple Show at Crystal Palace, London, at the end of this month.

These photos show an exceptionally heavy laden strawberry plant taken at the Monrad Wigen ranch. A heavy bearing limb of a McIntosh Red apple tree taken at the W. V. Jackson ranch, which also shows apples producing all the way out to the end of the wood growth made the season previous—a detail, we are told, that the English horticulturist will be quick to see and as fully appreciate. From the Jackson ranch also comes the photo of a McIntosh Red tree which is carrying an enormous load, as well as the picture of a peach tree limb that displays a nice crop. The peaches have been taken "close up" and show an exceptionally nice yield in every detail. A vine of grapes taken at the W. P. Stark ranch is equally as good as the peaches, and the pear tree on the Robt. Stark ranch certainly could not be excelled either for load or size of the fruit.

All the photos are the work of F. S. Turner who is deserving of highest commendation not only for his excellent photographic effort, but also for the time it must have taken in touring the Valley to locate the excellent horticultural views he secured.

Erickson

Joe Clubb of Boswell is a resident of Erickson at present. He has a contract to slash and clear five acres of the F. V. Staples land here.

Miss Beatrice Dodds was at Ringgate on Saturday, where she attended the dance given by the Banff orchestra.

Ray McKelvey is the first of the local gunmen to realize on his hunters' license. He got a couple of rather fine specimens of venison while hunting along Goat mountain last Sunday.

Road foreman Harris was operating in this section during the week, doing work with the grader following the rains on Monday and Tuesday.

Potato harvest is under way this week, Frank Putnam having a crew at his 18-acre patch of spuds at Canyon. He is loading a carload direct from the field into the car for shipment. Now that irrigation is available we hear he intends planting five acres of his Canyon ranch to berries and will overhead irrigate it.

W. G. Littlejohn appears to be having the best showing of potatoes of any of the local growers. He is now digging his area planted to the Million Dollar variety, and the showing, considering the season, is a remarkable one both for size and quantity.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Cretney, who were fair week visitors with Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Leveque, have returned to their home at Fort Steele.

Wynndel

The Wynndel Box Factory closed down last Thursday, after a very busy and successful season.

D. Sutcliffe, who has been in charge of the boarding house in connection with the box factory, left on Saturday for Nelson and other lake points.

Ed. Southwell, who has been here on business for the past week, returned to Spokane Tuesday.

Mrs. W. G. Topliss, who has been visiting her daughter and friends in the district for the last two months, returned to her home at Winlaw on Tuesday.

Monrad Wigen and his sister, Mrs. C. Ogilvie, left on Sunday on a business visit to Nelson.

F. and R. J. Chambers of Canyon City were visitors here over the week end looking out for the ducks.

J. C. Clark, who has been on a business trip to prairie points, returned to his ranch last week.

Burning operations and land clearing are now the general order of things, the L. A. Davis, Geo. Huscroft and J. Benadetti being amongst the former.

Local hunters are all reporting fine bags of duck and a few geese, and the good hunting that obtains in this section has attracted the attention of Nelson sportsmen, two prominent business men of that city, who spent the week-end here, returning home with fine bags.

J. Tyo has four men at work on his claim here—about two miles west of the depot, and figures on getting out a couple of cars of ore this fall.

J. Wigen has the cement basement in and the frame of his new barn up, and the finish up work on it is going at a fine rate.

Henry Begg, who has been on the box factory staff all summer, left on Thursday, and the town surely misses that cheerful voice of his which helped some in keeping the town alive.

The Women's Institute held their monthly meeting on Friday. Mrs. Lyne read a report of Mrs. Pankhurst's paper on immigaation given at the recent canference at Crawford Bay, in which she touched on the great possibilities of Canada, and how settlers were needed, particularly in the west. She spoke af the problem of the mixture of races and the question of Oriental labor. In this connection a resolution was afterwards passed that the Institutes take up the matter of Orientals not being allowed to buy land. As the Institute is giving a whist drive and dance on Armistice Day, the next meeting was put off till Nov. 18th, instead of the 11th. All members of the Institute are asked to bring a dozen sandwiches and a small cake on the night of the dance and will be admitted for 50 cents instead of 75 cents, which is the charge to all others.

Canyon City

Frank Putnam is busy harvesting his thirteen acres of potatoes at the Browell corner. The crop while light will likely be one of the best in the Valley, and will average about three tons to the acre. The spuds are going direct from the field into the car at the siding for immediate shipment.

At their next meeting the United Farmers will discuss the erection of a central packing shed at Canyon. With it erected the haul to Erickson would be avoided as shipment could be made in car lots at the siding.

The water which was first turned on in the irrigation system on Oct. 10 had to be shut off at the head of the supply a few days later in order to make some repairs in a section of the pipe which was leaking badly. Foreman Searle is making repairs and the supply should again be available any day now.

A. D. Pochin and little Miss Helen got back last week from a short visit with Nelson friends, at which A. D. attended the Liberal nominating convention.

The end of the week saw the finish up of picking the largest apple crop ever gathered in Canyon City district. While definite figures are lacking it is expected the yield may run as high as 10,000 boxes.

J. W. Wood is home again this week from Birchbank. He is another of our citizens who has added to his holdings by purchasing ten acres from the Land Settlement Board, his new acreage being back of the schoolhouse and Gilbert place.

Definite word was received a few days ago of the death of Walter, the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Lyon, his demise following closely on the death of Delbert and Elizabeth, the two older members of the family. The Lyon's left here about eighteen months ago and are now resident in California, and have but one boy, Percy, left of a family of four. There is no truth whatever to the story current about a month ago that Mr. Lyon had passed away.

Canyon City was put on the foreign export apple market map on the 7th, when a straight car of No. 1 McIntosh Reds were shipped from here direct to New York city.

Contractor Hendren has a crew of four men now on the work of erecting to new one-room addition to the Canyon school, and has the exterior of it well along toward completion.

"Dad" Browell is the first to get a building erected on land recently acquired here from the Land Settlement Board, Charlie McCullough having built a shack from the road in the standing timber. Fred Browell is expected back this winter.

F. W. Speaker is now the owner of the classiest auto in the Canyon section at least. A few days ago he traded in his Chevrolet at the Embree garage for a brand new Chevrolet Baby Grand.

Tom Hickey and Sergt. Smith of the R.C.M.P., Creston, had a successful deer hunt over the week-end, arriving on Monday, each with a fine sample of a buck.

Geo. Leach, who has been at Spokane for some weeks back, taking specialist treatment for his eyes, arrived home on Monday, accompanied by Mrs. Leach. At present he is deprived of the sight of one eye completely and the other is also dangerously impaired. Hope, however, has not been abondoned, and all will join in the expectation that the treatment he is taking will restore his seeing faculties at least sufficient to permit of his resuming his usual avocations.

Ballroom Provides Modern Facilities

Besides providing a theatre that will compare favorably with the best of them in B.C., the opening dance on fall fair night unmistakably reveals the fact that the Grand also provides on the second floor a ballroom of the same high class as the theatre, providing room and to spare for the largest crowd of dancers that Creston is likely to assemble for some time.

The splendid floor, which was danced into excellent shape at the fair night "hop," provides a space 38 x 62 feet. It is the popular four-way construction and the initial dance revealed the fact that in all its appointments the ballroom is ideally laid out, the location of the orchestra stall producing the best possible musical effect. With over 100 couples in attendance for the opener the seating accommodation was adequate and the two cloakrooms were quite equal to the heavy demand made upon them. The stock of plates, cups, etc., was not exhausted on this occasion, and the refreshment room is conveniently situated for the serving of supper.

There is an abundant supply of flags and bunting for effective decoration and that the ballroom lends itself admirably for artistic decoration was shown fair night when in addition to the drapery Manager Rodgers introduced a pleasing touch by suspending loaded apple boughs from advantageous points about the hall.

The management announces that the policy will prevail of giving one dance each month throughout the season, and for New Years eve a masquerade ball will be given that will be the premier dance event in the Valley's history. On every hand Manager Rodgers is receiving hearty and well deserved commendation for providing the town with the highest class dancing accommodation possible—enterprise that we feel sure will be rewarded by the fullest possible public patronage.

Lister

C. H. Phillips is a Cranbrook visitor this week, opening up an office for the handling of his business in that district.

A general meeting of the shareholders of Lister Trading & Supply Company was held on Monday evening, for the transacting of important business appertaining to the management.

The G.W.V.A. had their regular monthly meeting on Saturday night, with President Bell in the chair, after a visit to Cranbrook on district veteran business.

Lister Trading Company will be occupying their new store on the townsite this week, the carpenters being busy on the inside finish at the first of the week.

Jess Filmer and Chas. Burgess are back to camp again after spending a few weeks at apple picking near Creston.

A large crowd is expected at the schoolhouse this Saturday night, Oct. 22nd, for the concert in aid of the school funds. A first-class musical and literary programme has been arranged and a big half-dollar's worth of entertainment is assured all who attend.

The Literary, Musical and Dramatic Club, which suspended operations in April for the summer months, had a re-organization meeting on Wednesday last. The Newbury brothers and Brown orchestra entertained with a fine lot of popular airs and dance music prior to the opening of the business session. President A. R. Webb occupied the chair, and opened proceedings by explaining the aims and objects of the club, and referred to the success of last season's operatons when sixteen evenings of first-class amusement were provided, to say nothing of the successful dramatic presentation of "Tony, the Convict," both at Lister and Creston. It was unanimously decided to continue the work, and in the election of officers that followed the following were chosen. President, E. Langston; vice presidents, J. Bird and J. W. Head; secretary, T. Atkins; treasurer, Dick Peterson.

The Moderation League's attitude on the public demand for

Beer by the Glass

THE Moderation League has been asked to endorse several petitions which are at present being circulated asking for the sale of beer by the glass.

The consensus of opinion of the League, taken from its organizations throughout the province, has been and is in favor of the sale of beer by the glass under reasonable restrictions as being conducive to moderation. Prior to the passage of the present Act the League forwarded to the Legislature a resolution asking:

"That the commission be given power to provide for the serving of beer by the glass during limited hours in approved establishments where meals are served. Such privilege to be subject to cancellation in any locality at the discretion of the commissioners. No beer to served over a bar."

Since the passage of the Act public opinion has strongly substantiated the League's resolution, and it has been suggested that the League should urge the matter on the members of the Legislature at the present session.

This the executive of the League is prepared to do. It invites the co-operation of all in favor of a moderate law and holds itself ready to assist in the presentation to the Government of petitions and resolutions of organizations which have the above object in view.

All communications should be addressed to the Secretary

Perhaps it was custom and the subtle pullings of association that drew her feet down the path across the bench to the edge of the stream that gurgled gently in the still night. She stood on the gravel by the water's edge, packed firm by the wagon-wheels of twenty-five years, and watched her image as it swayed gently in the smoothly running current. There was no moon, but the stars shone down in their midnight brilliance, and the water lay white and glistening against the black vagueness of the bushy banks. She stooped and let it fondle her fingers. It was warm and smooth. . . . . But it was shallow at the ford. . . . . Farther up it was quite deep. . . . . The stars blinked a strange challenge from the sky, as though to say, "Here is the tree of knowledge, if you dare to drink thereof."

At length she turned her back on the stream and retraced her steps up the path. The house loomed very sombre and still in the quiet night. A light shone dimly from her father's window. At intervals a deep, contented sighing came from the cows in the barnyard. She took the path past the house and down to the corral, where she paused, her ear arrested by the steady drone of milking. A lantern sitting on the black earth, cast a little circle of light, and threw a docile cow in dreadful silhouette against the barn. And by that dim light Beulah discerned the bent form of her mother, milking.

"Mother, this is too much!" the girl exclaimed.

Her mother started and looked up. "You're leaving us, Beulah?" she asked. There was no reproach in her voice, nor even surprise, but a kind of quiet sorrow. "I couldn't let the poor brutes suffer," she explained.

"Yes, I'm leaving," said Beulah. "I can't stand it any longer."

The mother sighed. "I've seen it coming for some time," she said, at length. "I suppose it can't be helped."

"You're so passive," returned the girl, with a touch of impatience. "You make me want to fight. Of course it can be helped, but it can't be helped by always giving in."

"Your father has met one of his own mettle at last," said the mother, and the girl fancied she detected a note of pride, but whether of father, or daughter, or both, she could only guess. "Well, it's all very sad. Your father is a good man, Beulah. . . . I should send you back to your bed, but somehow I can't. I—I don't blame you, Beulah."

She had finished the last cow. Beulah helped with the pails of milk, and the two women went back to the house together. When Mary had washed her hands she took her daughter's face between her palms and kissed her on the cheeks. Slowly Beulah's arms stole about her neck, and it took all the steel in her nature to prevent surrender.

"It's not you I'm going from," she managed to say. "You understand that, don't you? I'll write to you often, and we'll surely meet before long. . . . . But I've just got to. There's no other way out."

"Stay till morning, Beulah. Your father may be disposed to give and take a little then, and you'll do the same, won't you? . . . . Oh, my girl, don't break up our home like this!"

"You can't break up what you haven't got. Aside from you, why should I call this place home? I work here, and get my board and clothes. Well, I can work other places, and get my board and clothes. If I've got to be a cog in a money-making machine, I will at least choose the machine."

"What plans have you made? Where are you going?"

"Haven't made any plans, and don't know where I'm going. But I'm going. At present that's enough. The plans will come along as they're needed."

"Have you any money?" asked the mother, with a brisk effort at cheerfulness. She was already planning for her daughter in the new world she was about to enter.

"Enough to start me. That's all I need. I can earn more. It's not work I'm afraid of, although I suppose father won't be able to see it that way. He'll put all this down to laziness and obstinacy. It's neither. It's just a plain human craving to live."

"I sometimes wonder whether I'll be able to stand it through to the end," her mother whispered, somewhat fearfully, as though frightened by the admission. "I've—I've seen it coming with you, and I can't help feeling that perhaps this is only the beginning."

"Oh, mother, if you should!" cried the girl. "That would do it—that would open his eyes. He'd see then that there is something in the world besides wheat and cows, after all. You know, I think he's in a kind of trance. He's mesmerized by wheat. It was so necessary in those first years, when he was fighting against actual starvation, that it has become a kind of mania. Nothing short of some great shock will bring him out of it. If you would come—if you would only come too, things would be different."

"But I couldn't do that," said the mother, after a silence, and as though speaking with herself. "He's my husband, Beulah. You don't understand."

They talked then, in secret, sorrowful confidence, of many things, things for their ears only, and the grey was returning in the northern sky when the girl again left the house, and this time swung resolutely down the road that led to Plainville. Her heart was now at rest, even at peace. In the sacred communion of that last hour she had come to see something of her mother's problem and sacrifice; and although she was going out into the world alone, she felt that somewhere, some time, was a solution that would reunite the broken family and tune their varying chords in harmony. The North star shone very brightly amid the myriad finer points of light that filled the heavens. She raised her face to the cold rays. The stars had always a strange fascination for her. Their illimitable distance, their infinite number; their ordered procession—all spelled to her a Purpose—a Purpose that was bigger than wheat and land and money, a Purpose that was life, the life for which she groped vaguely but bravely in the darkness.

From an unhappy sleep in his room upstairs John Harris was awakened by the whine of the cream separator. A quiet smile stole across his strong, still handsome face. "Beulah has decided to be sensible," he whispered to himself.

In the morning the Harris household was astir early as usual. The farmer and his son gave their attention to the horses while Mary prepared breakfast, and it was not until they were seated at the table that Harris noticed his daughter's absence.

"Where's Beulah?" he demanded.

"I don't know," his wife replied.

"Ain't she up yet?"

"I don't know."

Harris arose from the table and went upstairs. He entered his daughter's room without knocking. The bed had not been slept in, and a strange apprehension suddenly tightened about his chest. He returned quickly to the kitchen.

"Mary," he said, "I want to know where Beulah is."

"I can't tell you where she is, John. She left here last night."

"Not just that, perhaps, but she has gone, and I'm not looking for her back for a while." The mother's voice was dry, and she talked in the restraint of subdued emotion.

"And you knew she was going?"

"I knew before she left. I didn't——"

"No. You didn't think it was worth mentioning to me. Just a matter we could talk about any time. I suppose you thought I wouldn't care."

"Well, you didn't seem to care very much, John. You gave your orders and went to bed. Beulah could obey, or get out. You might have known she had enough of your own spirit to soon settle that question. She settled it just as you would have settled it if you had been in her place."

"Oh, of course, I'm to blame for the whole thing," said Harris, and his throat was thick as he spoke. His daughter was very dear to him, and that she would leave him had never entered his head. Why should she? Wasn't he a good father? Didn't he give her a good home, with plenty to eat and wear, and a little money to spend from time to time, and no questions asked? What more could a man do than that? Already his heart was crying out for his daughter—the cry of broken strings which never knew their strength until they broke. But to show any emotion, or to express regret for anything he had done, meant surrender, and if there was one thing John Harris could not do it was surrender. Not that he felt he had done anything wrong, or even imprudent; he was sincerely sorry for what had happened, but not for his part in it. And, lest gentleness should be mistaken for weakness; he clothed his real feelings in sharp words to his wife.

"Of course, you must take her part. I suppose you advised her to go. It was an awful thing for me to tell her she must do her work, but a small thing for her to run away. Well, I hope she likes it. If she thinks I'm going to hitch up a buggy and go chasing around the neighbourhood, begging her to come back, she's mistaken. She's gone of her own free will, and she can come back of the same, or not at all."

"I wouldn't look for her back too soon," remarked Allan. "Looks to me as thought this thing had all been figured out ahead. Jim went yesterday morning; Beulah goes last night. Just a chance if they ain't amrried by this time."

"So that's it, is it?" exclaimed Harris, jumping up from his untouched breakfast. There was a fierce light in his eye and a determination in his face that boded ill to any who opposed him. He seized his wife roughly by the shoulder. "And you were a party to this, were you? You—you wouldn't even stop at that? Well, I'll stop it. I'll stop him, if I do it with a bullet. I'll show him whether any—any—hired man—can cross me in a matter of my own family."

His wife had risen, and was clinging to his wrists, half for protection, half in suppliance. "Now, John," she pleaded, "don't be rash. You don't know that Beulah's gone with Jim, and you haven't a word of proof of it."

"Proof! What more proof do I want? When did ever Beulah carry on like this before? Didn't she always do as she was told? And haven't they been thick as molasses this while back? Wasn't it over wasting time with her that Jim got fired, and not a word of admission of the real facts from him? What more do you want than that? And on top of it all you help her away, and keep it a secret from me as long as you can. I daresay you knew their plans from the first. You thought I wouldn't be interested in that, either."

Headache

Recurring headaches usually come from an exhaustion of the nervous system, and they do not disappear until the vigor of the nerve cells is restored by such upbuilding treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Temporary relief by use of powders is often obtained at an enormous expense to the nervous system and the general health.

Mrs. W. J. Pearse, Nunn St., Cobourg, Ont., writes:

"My system became run-down and I suffered greatly with pain in my head. This was so severe that I would have to bind a cloth tightly about my head so that I could get my work done. A friend advised the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and after taking the first box I found quite an improvement in my condition. I continued using them until I had taken about seven boxes, and they strengthened and built up my system splendidly, completely relieving the pain in my head."

Tanlac Accomplishes Remarkable Results In Geo. H. Nickels Case

Prominent Wisconsin Man Says Tanlac Promptly Relieved Him of Bad Case of Stomach Trouble of Six Months' Standing---Gains 27 Pounds and Feels Fine As a Fiddle.

It is an unquestionable fact that Tanlac is now being more widely endorsed by well known men and women than any other medicine on the American market. One of the latest to testify is George H. Nickels, well known lecturer, residing at 227 Wells St., Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

"Tanlac has not only completely restored my health, but I have actually gained 27 pounds in weight," said Mr. Nickels in referring to the remarkable benefits he had derived from the medicine.

"For something over six months, my stomach was very badly disordered. I suffered terribly from Indigestion and Dyspepsia. At times I would be in great distress and I would invariably experience an uncomfortable bloating feeling for hours after eating. I had no appetite scarcely and the little I ate would often make me deathly sick. My head ached until I felt like it would burst and I was so nervous I trembled like a leaf. When I got up in the mornings, I was so weak and dizzy, I couldn't trust myself to walk around and I just hurt all over.

"Tanlac has brought about a wonderful change in my condition for I am now enjoying the very best of health. My appetite is splendid. I relish my meals. Everything agrees with me perfectly. The nervousness, headaches and dizzy spells are all gone and I never have an ache or pain. I am only too glad to tell others about the wonderful good Tanlac has done. It has no equal."

Zam-Buk
PILES

Mr. WILFRED AMEY, 42, Lyall Avenue, TORONTO, writes: "On active service with the R.F.C. I contracted piles through sleeping on damp ground. Treatment by the M.O. brought no relief and various "pile remedies" I tried proved equally hopeless. Shortly after my discharge from the service a friend strongly advised me to get Zam-Buk. One box of the balm brought such benefit that I determined to continue the treatment. In a few weeks Zam-Buk caused the piles to completely disappear. All other sufferers should know of this wonderful herbal healer."

World Happenings Briefly Told

Capt. Thomas Edwards, of Viola, Wis., is dead at the age of 105. He was said to be the oldest man in Wisconsin.

The change in the rule of the road, as it affects Vancouver Island and that portion of the mainland not already adhering to the "turn to the right" provision, will probably be made effective about Jan. 5, says Hon. Dr. King, minister of public works.

Though the bill for free canal tolls through the Panama Canal passed the Senate, it will be blocked indefinitely by the House and may not be enacted at all. President Harding is opposed to stirring up the question while the arms limitation conference is pending.

It is reported that the Vladivostok Government gunboat Batavia, recently fired on the British steamer Baltimore, which, it was alleged, was transporting supplies for the use of the Bolsheviki at Petropavlovsk, Asiatic Russia. Both vessels have put into port at Muroran, Japan.

A crack in a bathroom pipe may have been the cause of the flooding of the freighter Canadian Importer, which drifted about the Pacific Ocean for weeks disabled and waterlogged, was twice lost and found again, towed nine hundred miles to port and then was found to be practically intact as far as her hull was concerned.

Who can live under the cloud of recurring attacks and keep body and mind at their full efficiency? Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy dissipates the cloud by removing the cause. It does relieve. It does restore the sufferer to normal bodily trim and mental happiness.

Internally and Externally it is Good.—The crowning property of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is that it can be used internally for many complaints as well as externally. For sore throat, croup, whooping cough, pains in the chest, colic and many kindred ailments it has curative qualities that are unsurpassed. A bottle of it costs little and there is no loss in always having it at hand.

A WOMAN'S HEALTH NEEDS GREAT CARE

Every woman's health is dependent upon the condition of her blood. How many women suffer with headache, pain in the back, poor appetite, weak digestion, a constant feeling of weariness, palpitation of the heart, shortness of breath, pallor and nervousness? Of course, all these symptoms may not be present—the more there are the worse the condition of the blood, and the more necessary that you should begin to enrich it without delay. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a splendid blood-building tonic. Every dose helps to make better blood which goes to every part of the body and brings new health to weak, despondent people. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are valuable to all women but they are particularly useful to girls of school age who become pale, languid and nervous. There can be neither health nor beauty without red blood which gives brightness to the eyes and color to the cheeks and lips. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills build up the blood as is shown by the experience of Mrs. Jos. E. Veniotte, West Northfield, N.S., who says: "For several years I was in a bad state of health. I was pale and nervous, my appetite was poor, and I suffered from weakness, headaches and a feeling of oppression. I got so nervous that I was afraid to stay in the house alone. All this time I was taking medicine, but it only did not help me, but I was growing weaker. Finally I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and after using six boxes I felt much better. I had a better appetite, slept better and felt stronger. However, I continued taking the pills for a couple of months longer and now I am feeling as well as ever I did. I give all the credit to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and hope that my experience may be of benefit to some other weak woman."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Taking Reindeer To Baffin Land

Hudson's Bay Company Purchased Herd From Norway.

The Hudson's Bay Company steamer "Nascopie," which will carry 700 reindeer from Norway to Baffin Land, is on her way to Cardiff, according to A. Brabant, fur trade commissioner of the company. After landing supplies she will proceed direct to Norway, where the animals already purchased by a representative of the company will be loaded.

Wireless Device In Operation.

The first modern device for directing steamers by wireless on the British Columbia coast has been erected at Tatoosh, and is now in operation. It is claimed that this contrivance will direct steamers in a fog as easily as they could find their way in broad daylight. All shipping masters are invited to make full use of the apparatus.

Wise and experienced mothers know when their children are troubled with worms and lose no time in applying Miller's Worm Powders, a most effective vermifuge. It is absolute in clearing the system of worms and restoring those healthy conditions without which there can be no comfort for the child, or hope of robust growth. It is a most trustworthy worm exterminator.

A Japanese woman can tell her husband's approach by the sound his clogs make on the sidewalk, for each piece of wood in the heel of his shoe has its peculiar timbre and pitch.

Gray Embroidery On a Green Duvetyn Suit

By Marie Belmont.

Embroidery is a noticeable addition to many of the smart suits for Fall. This model is cut from a pleasing shade of dark green duvetyn, for this color is one that will have many admirers during the Fall season. The skirt is straight and rather tight, for simplicity is usually a feature of the new suit skirts. The coat has a deep border of the gray embroidery and it also enriches the front. The fold-over collar is lavishly embroidered, and barrel buttons of bone are selected for the fastenings. The sleeves, rather narrow in cut, have wide embroidered cuffs, while the green velvet hat is similarly adorned.

Minard's Liniment used by Physicians

Refined Punishment.

A schoolboy, being asked by his teacher how he should flog him, replied, "If you please, sir, I should like to have it on the Indian system of penmanship, the upward strokes heavy, and the downward ones light."

A Power of Its Own.—Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil has a subtle power of its own. All who have used it know this and keep it by them as the most valuable liniment available. Its uses are innumerable and for many years it has been prized as the leading liniment for man and beast.

In four States of Mexico, the law prohibits anyone from taking the place of an employee on strike.

Why should you follow a crooked path?

Often a cowpath has been allowed to become a village street, and as the village expanded, tradition has made the winding way an expression of a cow's will.

Habit is always forging chains to enslave us, so that what has been found bearable by the fathers is accepted by the sons.

As children, we were not permitted to drink tea or coffee, because it would stunt our growth or make us nervous and irritable. When older, however, we craved a hot drink with meals, and custom gave us our tea or coffee.

Finally upon the instructions of the doctor, Mother gave up her tea and coffee. But that meant nothing in our young lives. Our vitality was then strong enough to throw off any ill effects.

But our time came, and we learned by experience that we could not drink tea or coffee. When we had it for breakfast it put our nerves on edge. When we drank it at the evening meal, we tossed about in wakefulness most of the night.

And then we found Postum, a pure cereal beverage, free from the harmful drug, caffeine, in tea and coffee. We liked the rich, satisfying flavor of Postum—and also the better health which resulted. And, too, we were surprised to find how many of our neighbors had made the same discovery—had learned the value of "health first."

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes. Sold by all grocers.

A Reply in Prose

EDITOR REVIEW:

SIR,—The reply in rhyme is just what I expected. Finding no further argument with which to holster up his "safe and tangible" irrigation scheme, Mr. Edmondson drops that subject and attempts ridicule by attempting secondhand verse.

It is on a par with a simpleton schoolboy's shrug of the shoulder or sneer; it is pitiful, and as the Frenchmen says, "Cest a rive."

The local apple crop is all picked and packing operotions are now in full swing. At the Compton ranch a staff of eight are busy putting up wrapped apples.

Dick and Jack Smith have been keeping up their old time reputation as duck hunters this season, and bring home the daily bag-limit almost every trip they make to the flats.

The annual roundup of cattle in the hills is under way at present with quite a number of the animals turned out in the spring still unaccounted for.

Victor Carr is now able to be around again as usual following his mishap of a month ago, when he sustained a broken collar bone.

Guy Constable was a Bonners Ferry visitor a couple of days early this month taking in the fall fair at that town and making an inspection of land cultivation operations on the 2000 acres along the Kootenay near Bonners Ferry, known as Drainage District No. 1.

Jas. Compton was a business visitor at Nelson a couple of days the fore part of the week.

A fire in the slashing of the three acres Mr. Osterburg recently purchased from E. L. T. Taylor got of hand on Thursday and in its ramapage destroyed the owner's winter supply of stovewood and but for speedy and efficient fire fighting would also have burned his newly-erected shack.

The J. H. Webster residence will be the permanent future abode of the Stockbreeders' Association silver cup, awarded for the best beef type animal at the Creston fair, Mr. Webster having now won it two years in succession. As the livestock centre of the Valley assuredly Alice Siding is the peer of them all.

The biggest and liyliest juvenile afternoon Alice Siding has witnessed for some time was in evidence last Saturday at the Norris & Wood ranch, when Mrs. Wood assisted Rita and Jack Norris to celebrate the former's birthday surrounded by a small army of friends both from town and this section. A great variety of games and amusements put in the afternoon handily and the end of a perfect day was evidenced in the big supper spread and the demolishment of two birthday cakes. At least one birthday a month in the Norris family is the worst luck that was wished the juvenile host and hostess by the numerous youngsters present.

Vernon citizens are paying this year's taxes much more promptly than was the case in 1920. Over $60,000 was taken in a in single day.

Where pre-emptor in occupation not less than 3 years, and has made proportionate improvements, he may, because of ill-health, or other cause, be granted intermediate certificate of improvement and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued, provided applicant makes improvements to extent of $300 per annum and records same each year. Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. Title cannot be obtained in less than 5 years, and improvements of $10.00 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years are required.

Pre-emptor holding Crown grant may record another pre-emption, if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land.

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites; title to be obtained after fulfilling residential and improvement conditions.

For grazing and industrial purposes areas exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or company.

Mill, factory or industrial sites on timber land not exceeding 40 acres may be purchased; conditions include payment of stumpage.

Natural hay meadows inaccessible by existing roads may be purchased conditional upon construction of a road to them. Rebate of one-half of cost of road, not exceeding half of purchase price, is made.

The scope of this Act is enlarged to include all persons joining and serving with His Majesty's Forces. The time within which the heirs or devisees of a deceased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from for one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the present war. This privilege is also made retroactive.

No fees relating to pre-emptions are due or payable by soldiers on pre-emptions recorded after June 26, 1918. Taxes are remitted for five years.

Provision for return of moneys accrued, due and been paid since August 4, 1914, on account of payments, fees or taxes on soldiers' pre-emptions.

Bank Commerce Unveils Memorial

Quite a large and thoroughly representative turnout of citizens was in evidence on Friday afternoon at the Bank of Commerce to witness the unveiling of the bronze memorial plaque erected to commemorate the men who enlisted for service in the great war direct from the Creston branch, or whose homes are at Creston—the local memorial having inscribed on it the names of John Campbell Dow and Milton Harold Davis.

Major Mallandaine presided at the ceremony and opened proceedings by calling attention to the fact that from the several branches spread clear across Canada, the Bank of Commerce employees to the number of 1701 had served overseas, of whom 258 were killed in action or had died of wounds, and mentioned that the plaque about to be unveiled here was a replica of the larger one erected at the head office in Toronto, which showed the names of all the soldier employees below the inscription "In memory of the 1701 men of the Canadian Bank of Commerce who served in the great war 1914-1918."

The unveiling ceremony proper was entrusted to Col. Fred Lister, M.P.P., whose remarks were largely along orthodox lines for such an occasion, it being specially pleasurable to be reminded of the very large number of employees of a single Canadian institution who had heard and answered Canada's call for troops. — In proportion to men employed Col. Lister doubted very much if any other concern in Canada could equal the Bank of Commerce showing in this respect. He also observed that highest commendation was deserved by the bank for so fittingly commemorating its soldier clerks, not only at the head office but by the installation of these smaller sized plaques at the many branches all through the Dominion.

In closing Col. Lister hoped the good example set by the bank in providing a suitable memorial to its overseas veterans would be emulaced in the same whole hearted fashion by the innumerable Canadian communities which up to the present had been long on talking about erecting memorials but exceeding slow in getting on with actual construction.

Prior to Col. Lister's effort Manager Bennett briefly sketched the bank's several wartime and after-war activities, supplementing Chairman Mallandaine's figures by adding that the bank employees fought on every front on which the British arms were represented, and that the honors won by the men included everything on the British list of awards from the coveted Victoria Cross down through the entire list. Of these honors it will be particularly gratifying to know that the Military Medal with bar was won by Corp. Campbell Dow, whose name appears on the plaque suspended in the Creston branch.

Corp. Dow, who is a son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Dow, enlisted 10th June, 1915, at Revelstoke, in 54th Kootenay Battalion, with the rank of private. Transferred to 30th Canadian Battalion, 23th July, 1915; Canadian Engineers, 10th January, 1916; 2nd Canadian Divisional Signal Co., 15th August, 1916. Promoted lance corporal, April, 1918, and corporal, August, 1918. Principal actions: Third battle of Ypres, Somme, 1916; Arras Lens, Passchendaele, 1917; Amiens, Arras, Cambrai, Valenciennes, Mons, 1918. Awarded the Military Medal for bravery in field in maintaining telephone communications during enemy counter attacks, Hill 70 August, 1917. Bar to the Military Medal for bravery in the field in maintaining uninterrupted communication during the advance on Cambrai, Sept., 1918.

Pte. Davis, the other name shown on the plaque, endeavored to enlist on several different occasions between 1914 and 1917, but owing to an injured arm was termed unfit for field service. In the latter year, however, he was accepted for the Royal Flying Corps, which he joined as a flight cadet in December, 1917. He was transferred to the Royal Air Force, 1st April, 1918, but was retained in Canada as a flying instructor very much against his will. Mr. Davis joined the Creston branch staff about six months before being accepted for overseas service, coming here from Nakusp.

The National Crisis

"My appeal is to the whole people; to every man and woman who wants to do right by this country; to everyone who breathes the spirit of our fathers who founded this British Dominion."
—ARTHUR MEIGHEN

THE Election to be held December 6th will be the most momentous in Canadian history; for as men and women vote will depend the economic stability, the political stability and, indeed, the national stability of this country.

Today we find group striving against group, class against class, the industrial and financial structure of the country assailed by false and unsound doctrines and theories, while our great neighbour to the south has adopted a trade exclusion policy directed against Canada's vast agricultural interests.

The currencies of nearly every country in the world are depreciated. The Canadian dollar in the United States is subject to a heavy discount causing a loss of over one hundred million dollars in exchange annually.

Europe is overwhelmed with war debts—unemployment is acute—and the restoration to pre-war conditions is slow.

While Canada is in a much more favorable condition than many countries, yet there is evidence of stagnation, instability, unemployment and lack of confidence.

Taxes are heavy because of the country's efforts in the Great War, but have become burdensome on account of the misconceived policies and blunders of Governments that directed Canada's affairs prior to 1911.

These conditions are largely the direct aftermath of the war, but they must be dealt with fearlessly and constructively. This is no time to consider experimental changes, or the theories of visionaries.

This is no time for Crerar and his Free Trade policy.

It is the time to cling to orderly, stable Government in the interest of all the people; to be guided by the experience of the past, proceeding upon lines that have been proven sound.

It is the time to place the destinies of Canada again in the hands of a Government led by a sane, courageous Canadian who has safely brought the country through the trying years of reconstruction, and upon whom we can rely to retain and initiate policies in the interest, not of a group or class but of all the people.

It is the time to support Arthur Meighen and his Candidates.

Good Roads Throughout The West

Visitors from Europe to America, and the thousands of our Canadian boys who went overseas between 1914 and 1918, cannot refrain from noting the sharp contrast afforded by the character of the roads in European countries with those which so generally prevail on this side of the Atlantic, and the contrast is by no means favorable to America.

It is recognized, of course, that the older civilizations of Europe, with their teeming millions of people, and their comparative small areas as contrasted with the enormous extent and sparse population of Canada, do not present parallel cases, but, after making due allowance for these conditions, it must be admitted that it is time that the people of Canada seriously grappled with the problem, huge as it is, of providing better highways.

Poor roads, or none at all, are inseparable from pioneer countries. The untrod spaces must first be explored, trails broken, and very ordinary routes of travel provided. Only with the influx of population and permanent settlement can the work of first class road-making be carried on. But despite all the handicaps of an enormous extent of territory and a small population Canada has led the world in the construction of railways, and its pioneer railway, still young in years, is a marvel of efficiency, a source of national pride, and of admiration in other lands.

But Canada's roads! Taken as a whole they are execrable, a source of national humiliation and shame, unworthy of an intelligent, enterprising people. Whatever excuse there may have been in the past for the neglect of the primary arteries of transportation and communication, the excuse will no longer hold good. The urgent need of dealing with the problem in a big, intelligent and aggressive manner is now clear. It has been recognized in the United States where great strides in the work of improvement have been made in recent years. It is now time that Canada woke up, and especially the Western Provinces. Quebec and Ontario are tackling the problem, and the West must do likewise.

The introduction of the automobile and its now almost universal use has forced the importance and value of good roads upon the attention of all. Important as good roads have always been in the internal economy of the country, they have taken an added importance and value with the coming of the motor driven car. Poor roads were never cheap at any time, and the cost of building good roads and maintaining them is small in comparison to the cost of bad roads in these days of the automobile.

It is false economy, penny-wise and pound foolish, to refrain from the necessary expenditure for good roads and then, as individual citizens and taxpayers, pay out many times the amount in loss of valuable time, huge bills for repairs to expensive cars, and enormous waste in the use of gasoline and oil, all of which is the inevitable result of bad roads. And every farmer knows the loss he sustains when forced to haul a half-load of grain many miles to an elevator because of the state of the roads, as compared with the hauling of a full load in less time, and at less labor for his horses, over a good road.

Two main things appear to be required. First, that the haphazard method of road building by municipalities, oft times with inexperienced men in charge, be replaced by systematic planning and work carried out by the Provincial Governments under the direction of qualified engineers and road-making experts. To some slight extent this better method is being followed, but there is still room for its extension. In fact, in all Provinces throughout the West the Provincial Governments should be responsible for the proper construction of all main highways, leaving only the minor local arteries leading into those highways to the care of the municipal councils.

Second, and of equal importance, is the question of the maintenance of the roads once they have been built. Hundreds of thousands of dollars spent in the construction of fairly good roads have been lost, owing to failure to provide proper maintenance and upkeep. There is hardly a district in Western Canada which does not provide such object lessons of almost criminal mismanagement and waste.

The present time, when there is considerable unemployment throughout the country, would seem to suggest itself as a most opportune occasion to embark on an active and well-considered programme of good roads construction throughout the West. True, road-building cannot be carried on during the severe winter months when the ground is frozen, but the programmes could now be made and orders placed for necessary materials, thus providing winter employment in the manufacture of such materials, and then with the completion of seeding next spring thousands of men could be put actively at work and kept steadily employed until harvest and threshing called them into the fields, instead of, as now, bringing tens of thousands of harvest hands into the country for a few weeks' work at high wages right on the eve of winter setting in, hundreds of whom find that their harvest wages are not sufficient to carry them over the winter and they, therefore, become a charge upon the cities and towns into which they drift when threshing is completed.

According To Statistics Improvement Is Shown As To Employment

Ottawa.—The employment situation in Canada registers an improvement. Returns of the employment service, Department of Labor, show that for the two-week period ending September 10, the volume of employment reported by employers showed expansion, the index number standing at 89.6 as compared with 88.7 in the preceding fortnight. Since the beginning of April, in fact, employment has shown a slightly upward tendency, although in volume it still continues on the mid-winter level.

For the two weeks ended September 10 returns were tabulated from 5,240 firms with an aggregate payroll of some 669,201 persons. For the two weeks ended August 27 identical firms reported 660,274 employees, the difference representing an increase of staff of over 8,900 workers or a little less than 1 1-2 per cent.

Sixteen industrial groups registered expansions in payrolls as compared with the preceding fortnight, amounting altogether to nearly 11,000 persons. On the other hand, there were recessions in 15 groups aggregating over 2,600 workers. The most important factor in the net increase was the re-opening in railway car shops following a temporary shutdown. Without this recovery, however, employment would still have shown an upward tendency as compared with the preceding fortnight.

Manitoba's Road Problem

By A. C. Emmett, Secretary Manitoba Motor League.

The absolute lack of proper maintenance of the highways is the curse of the present system of municipal control. Until such time as sufficient public interest can be aroused to secure the adoption of a more centralized system of control, just so long will the taxpayers money be prodigally scattered in patchwork roads and maintenance.

The Brandon and District Good Roads competition provided, those who were acting as judges, an excellent opportunity of securing a first class object lesson as to improper construction and maintenance. On many of the main routes where large sums of money have been expended on construction, the value of the work has been partially lost by the lack of maintenance. This was especially noticeable five miles west of Brandon to the village of Kemnay. This stretch of road is full of deep ruts and pot holes. Unless given immediate attention the road will soon be in such a condition that regrading will be the only means to restore its usefulness as a transportation artery.

Wallace municipality is still the banner municipality as far as good roads are concerned, but even on its excellent gravel roads the want of proper supervision of the maintenance work is becoming apparent through the narrowing of the grades by the encroachment of weeds and grass. The dragmen have been satisfied to keep the centre ten to twelve feet in good shape and have therefore lost some six feet of good road which was originally there when the first construction work was finished.

The municipality of Sifton is making very good progress on the improvement of its roads and will undoubtedly carry off the premier honors in the Brandon and district competition.

In the earth roads class a special example of work was found in the municipality of Woodworth. Special praise is undoubtedly due to the contestant who has had charge of this two mile stretch, as, not only was the surface of the road kept in splendid condition for its full width, but the sides were also well trimmed and free from weeds, high grass and rubbish. An added touch of neatness was given by the whitewashing of the culvert walk. This latter feature was noticeable on practically all the prize winning stretches.

Oakland municipality showed well in the awards with a very fine stretch of earth road close to the town of Wawanesa and a stretch of gravel on the Brandon-Carroll road. The latter stretch was only gravelled last July but has been consistently dragged and put in excellent shape by the contesting dragman.

A final consideration of the tour of the district undoubtedly impressed the judges with the necessity of some improvement in the system of construction and maintenance in order to provide some means of securing a continuous system of highways in place of the patchwork system which prevails under the present system of municipal control.

In the opinion of the writer, this can only be secured by Government control of at least the main trunk highways of the Province. Such a system would provide a basic system of highways covering the Province in all directions and would then become not only main transportation arteries, but would also provide a real object lesson in road construction for the municipalities when constructing their market or feeder roads to connect with the main routes.

Government control of the main highways would also tend to economy in construction cost as with centralized control, the planning of the work and the actual construction can be carried on in such a manner as to make it possible for the contractors to bid on long continuous stretches instead of scattered sections which entail a very large outlay in the moving of men and equipment over long distances.

Many contractors of skill and experience would turn their attention to good roads work if all the work was controlled by one central board instead of the hundred and one municipalities that they would have to deal with under existing conditions.

U. S. Delegates Begin Work

Washington.—A month of careful preparation for the United States Government's part in the armament conference began with the first meeting here of the four delegates selected by President Harding to speak for the United States. Diplomatic, military and naval data of a specific nature already had been compiled for the guidance of the delegations, but the real task of fitting the whole mass of information together and building upon it a constructive programme remained to be done by the delegates themselves in the long series of meetings that will precede the opening of the conference on November 11.

Final Decision Reached On New Frontier Line For Upper Silesia

Geneva.—The Council of the League of Nations has reached a final decision on the Upper Silesia question, and has thereby accomplished the greatest task yet set for its consideration with greater dispatch than many expected. The solution reached by the Council involves a new frontier line, together with certain measures providing for guarantees against the dislocation of existing economic conditions.

The members of the Council are confident that this solution is the only possible one, and that it will at the same time roll away one of the dark clouds hovering over Europe and firmly establish the prestige of the League.

A statement issued by the League says that, confronted by the extreme difficulty of conciliating the economic elements of the question, the Council first of all charged a committee, composed of Belgian, Brazilian, Chinese and Spanish delegates, with the study of the problem. The committee reached the conclusion that a frontier drawn either in accordance with the plebiscite or the economic conditions without other stipulations, was bound to have unfortunate results.

The committee accordingly recommended a new frontier, together with a guarantee against the dislocation of existing economic conditions extending over a period long enough to permit the region to adapt itself as completely and effectively as possible to the new economic situation. The committee also requested experts to study general measures, the application of which would assure continuity of the economic life of Upper Silesia and reduce to a minimum the difficulties during the period of change.

The economic stipulations formulated by the experts provide for the application over a fixed period, in some cases extending to 13 years, of a series of arrangements respecting railways and water and electric supplies, as well as the suppression of custom duties on numerous articles, including wine and coal, and the maintenance of the German mark as legal currency in the regions ceded to Poland.

The Council recommends with adoption of these plans together with that of a guarantee relative to political minorities, believing the latter to be an essential compliment to the establishment of a political frontier.

Aland Islands Problem

Neutralization Left With Britain, France and Italy.

Geneva.—The international conference for the neutralization of the Aland Islands adopted a proposition put forward by Prof. Simon Askenazy, the Polish delegate, providing that Great Britain, Italy and France—the three powers not possesing territory bordering on the Baltic Sea—should work out a compromise plan for the settlement of the question. The conference was called here in accordance with a decision of the Council of the League of Nations.

They were captured by a posse of farmers, headed by A. Bherer, manager of the bank. The amount taken from the bank was between $1,000 and $1,200, all of which was recovered. THE MISERY OF BACKACHE

Removed by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Meaford, Ont.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for backache, and I also had a female weakness. I felt dizzy and nervous, and was without energy. I had to force myself to do my work, and was always tired. Saw a Pinkham advertisement which induced me to take the Vegetable Compound, and my back gradually stopped aching and I felt lighter in spirits. I am recommending the Vegetable Compound with pleasure to all I meet who complain as I did."—MILDRED BROOK, Meaford, Ont.

Woman's Precious Gift

The one which she should most zealously guard is her health, but she often neglects to do so in season until some ailment peculiar to her sex has fastened itself upon her. When so affected women may rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a remedy that has been wonderfully successful in restoring health to suffering women.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

The Public Health Committee will call a meeting toward the end of the month which all are invited and urged to attend in order to find out the feeling of the people on the question of engaging another nurse. The street alongside the Grand Theatre has been graded up and is now in shape for the placing of the granite shaft.

Miss McLuhan, the Valley's Red Cross public health nurse, who has been forced to relinquish the position, and who returned on Wednesday from Nelson, where she had been undergoing medical treatment, was most agreeably surprised the same evening to have an informal call from the members of her Junior and Intermediate classes in nursing, the import of the visit to present her with a nicely worded address along with which went a cut glass flower vase.
