THE CRESTON REVIEW

Vol. XIII. CRESTON, B. C., FRIDAY, SEPTEMERB 30, 1921 No. 35.

Valley Apples Go Big British Fair

The fifty boxes of Creston Valley apples that are counted on to make the Creston orchard product famous on the English market—through the medium of the British Apple Show in London next month—are by now en route to Montreal on their overseas journey. The local fruit was expressed to Vernon at the end of the week, where it will be included in one of the two cars that are being shipped for the same purpose from various Okanagan points.

Three ranches are represented in this exhibition effort. The Littlejohn ranch is pinning his faith on Snows, Cox Orange, Gravensteins and Kings in the six-box lot Overseas class. The W. V. Jackson ranch will exhibit Wealthys in the same competition, while Robert Stark has Cox Orange entered in the twenty-box lot open-to-the-Empire competition, and another six boxes of Cox in the Overseas class.

In addition to these 56 boxes of specially select stuff several extra boxes have also gone along to replace any fruit that may get damaged in transit, though there is little liklihood of this as all the boxes were strapped, wired and double topped, and on the trip to Vernon the express officials gave it special attention in the way of handling and storage. From Vernon to the seaboard the apples travel in iced refrigerator cars which are attached to a passenger train, with a couple of expert fruit men along with the cars to give any needed attention either by rail or boat. At London the Dominion fruit commissioner will have men to receive it and take charge of placing it in the Canadian section of the big exhibition. From all accounts these men will comprise the whole B.C. exhibit at the fair.

The greatest possible care has been taken in the pack of the local apples, and in the Overseas class it is confidently expected Creston will compare equally favorable with the best of them. In the Empire section B.C. apples should prove superior to the British fruit in the matter of color and keeping qualities, while the Old Country product will probably prove superior as to texture and flavor—the latter superiority being entirely due to the fact that British fruit matures a couple of months earlier than the Canadian.

Robert Stark is leaving here on the 14th, for London, and will arrive a couple of days prior to the opening of the show. He will assuredly be given opportunity to see that the Creston display is looking its best and is also staged to the best advantage. He is taking along a splendid collection of photographs—many of them enlarged—depicting all the angles of horticultural development in the Valley, and as soon as the exhibition authorities will permit it is Mr. Stark's intention to attractively placard the fruit from Creston and be on hand to dispense information to all and sundry of those of the expected half-million exhibition visitors who may be wanting to know something of the Creston district.

While in London Mr. Stark will also arrange for the handling of a straight car of Creston Cox Orange which it is proposed to ship to the Poupart's for disposal at the annual apple auction at Covent Garden.

Canyon City

John Wood left at the end of the week for Birchbank to resume work as sawyer in the Deschamp mill at that point. The plant had been shut down for almost six weeks due to water shortage.

It is expected that water will be turned on in the irrigation system pipe line this week, and that all the ranchers on it will be taking the wet goods therefrom.

C. Blair has just finished the season's cut of hay at the Reclamation Farm, putting up about 300 tons of the finest feed of this sort he has ever harvested.

Contractor Hendren and his assistant, E. Taylor, of Creston, have the framework of the new one room addition to the school well under way, and should have the outside part of the job done before the colder weather happens along.

The Water Users' Community were successful in their tender for 3000 feet of half, three quarter and one inch pipe recently advertised by the Land Settlement Board at Lister. It will be mostly used for piping the irrigation water into the houses on the system.

The biggest looking bush fire Canyon City has had since the blaze at the Quail place almost ten years ago, was in evidence this week when Hilton Young put a match to the slashings on the 40 acres opposite the school, which he has just acquired. Due to unfavorable winds a scare was given nearby property ownerr but no damage resulted to anyone however.

Kitchener

Miss McArthur, who has been attending Mrs. B. Johnson for several days, returned to her home at Erickson on Monday, Mrs. Johnson being much improved in health.

Roy Sharpe of Nelson was a business visitor in Kitchener one day last week.

Dr. McClintock of Cranbrook was called to Kitchener on Sunday, on account of the serious illness of Mrs. Schonnert.

Mrs. E. McGonegal and two children were Creston visitors over the week-end.

A. Booth, who has been at Cranbrook for some time, returned to Kitchener on Sunday.

Mr. Owen arrived from Alberta on Friday, to join his family who have been resident here for several months.

Messrs. McKowan and Schonnert were motor visitors to Creston on Sunday.

Wynndel

J. Butterfield of Vancouver is spending a short holiday here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Butterfield.

Miss Crotch returned to her home here on Saturday, after a two months' visit at Nobleford, Alta.

Messrs. Pope and Downes spent the week-end in the woods looking for deer, but although they had a nice outing they returned deerless, and report not having seen even a track of one.

Matt. Prosen left on Tuesday for Fernie, where he expects to spend the winter.

The Athletic Club dance announced for last Saturday had to be cancelled owing to the fact that the Cubhouse was full of the big red apples that had to be packed.

Carpenters are very busy fixing up a temporary schoolhouse in one of the empty Winlaw bunkhouses, to be used until the additional room is put to the present school, work on which will probably be started in the near future.

Members of the Athletic Club are reminded that the secretary is now out after monthly dues, and he would be pleased if some members would assist him by seeing him in the store and so helping him out.

C. B. Garland of Creston was a business visitor here on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Walton, who have been visiting the latter's sister, Mrs. R. Uri, returned to their home at Burton City on Monday.

The local crop is now mostly gathered in, and all available packers are busy, and the crop shows up to a fine average, the only trouble being that the demand for this fruit is light at present.

Mrs. Topliss was here from Creston for the week-end with her daughters at the school.

Tom Kunst of Boswell, who has been working for Carl Wigen all summer, left on Sunday for Nelson, where he will probably spend the winter.

Local hunters are quite busy these days and some good bags of duck and chicken have been brought in, but so far no one has taken any deer.

Bob Muir, who has not been around Duck Creek since last spring, returned on Tuesday, and is looking up old acquaintances.

Fair Night Picture

Two of the greatest factors in life, today, heredity and environment, have been used by Douglas Fairbanks in supplying the theme for "The Mollycoddle," which will be the attraction at the Grand theatre fair night, Oct. 5th.

In "The Mollycoddle" Douglas Fairbanks, as Richard Marshall, the Fifth, is an offspring of many generations of fearless fighters. His ancestors fought all the way through the Revolution; all across the plains and all down the coast of the western country. They were not dainty or even civilized in their undertakings and it mattered little just how they gained a point, just so long as it was gained quickly.

In the title role, Fairbanks is transplanted in England at an early age. He arrives at his youth through the so-called hot house cultivation with the result that his early manhood found him gentle in manner; quiet of voice; fastidious in dress and addicted to such affectations as monocle, perfume and cigarette holders.

But something happens in his life and he gets back to America. A girl is the cause and for her he tries to crack the shell of his English exterior.

Biggest Fair Ever Now is Assured

If the weather man will kindly oblige with suitable atmospheric conditions on Tuesday and Wednesday next, there need be no hesitation in saying that the fourth annual fall fair of Creston Valley Agricultural Association on Wednesday, Oct. 5th, will be the biggest, best and most all-round satisfactory exhibition in the town's history.

In the matter of judges qualified outsiders have been secured to make the awards in every class, and as they will in most cases have part of Tuesday afternoon as well as all Wednesday morning to place the awards it is thought ample time is available for them to do the work satisfactorily without any local clerical or other assistance whatsoever, thereby avoiding all chance of the much too common complaint that judges were susceptible to hints or suggestions or pleas from those assisting them with the work.

In the fruit and vegetable classes the fair is fortunate in having secured the services of Mr. Hunter, provincial horticulturist for the Okanagan, and Mr. Black, who holds a similar position in the Grand Forks district. On the livestock, Mr. Newton, who has charge of the Dominion experimental farm at Invermere, will do the judging, while Mr. Greenwood, a recognized authority on poultry, will make the awards in that class. In the ladies' section Mrs. Rutherford of Nelson will judge the needlework, and Mrs. Kipp of Revelstoke will allocate the red and blue tickets on the cooking, preserves, etc.

In connection with exhibits attention is again called to the fact that all entries must be in the hands of Secretary Walmsley by 10 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 1st, and that all the exhibits that are placed in the main building must be delivered at the hall by noon of Tuesday, Oct. 4th. Livestock, of course, can be brought in up till 10 a.m., Wednesday, Oct. 5th.

A meeting of all those who will be in charge of the staging of the different classes will be held at the hall on Monday night. It will then be definitely known what entries are made and space will be allocated to take care of the expected exhibit. By having this detail carefully attended to it will be possible to more quickly place stuff as it arrives, and thus provide ample time for judging and assure an opening of the building prompt at 1 p.m. Wednesday.

Will the ladies again take notice that Class 13, Section 245A, is where they make the entry for the Purity flour special of a 98-lb. sack of Purity flour for the best two loaves of bread made from that brand of flour. In case the late frosts have destroyed the outdoor flowers it has been decided that should there be no exhibit in dahlias the $5 prize offered for them by Mrs. Mallandaine will be converted into a sweepstake and go to the parties scoring most points in the flower class.

In the way of outdoor attractions there will be a big list of races, etc., in front of the grandstand commencing at 2 o'clock prompt. At 3 p.m. Bonners Ferry and Creston will clash in a nine inning baseball encounter that should provide the best sport of the season, while at 5 o'clock the sports will be adjourned to Canyon street where there will be bicycle, pony and horse races.

At 4 p.m. Manager Rodgers will have a matinee showing of the well known film "The Mollycoddle," which will also be shown again at 7.30, and patrons are reminded that reserve seats for either show may be had at the postoffice. At 10 p.m. there will be a grand opening dance in the new Grand Theatre dance hall for which high-class music has been secured. With a perfect floor and the lunch in hands of caterer Norris it goes without saying this dance will be the best ever, and will round out a day's pleasure that will bring to town the biggest crowd Creston has ever seen for an occasion of any sort.

The Homesteaders

Perhaps it was part of the Plan that the diversion should come at that moment, but the rebellion in Beulah's heart was by no means suppressed. Pulling a sun-bonnet upon her head she called the dog, which came leaping upon her with boisterous affection, and hurried down the path to the field where the cows stood almost lost in a jungle of green oats. She soon located the breach in the fence, and, with the help of the dog, quickly turned the cows toward it. But alack! just as victory seemed assured a rabbit was frightened from its hiding-place in the green oats, and sailed forth in graceful bounds across the pasture. The dog, of course, concluded that the capture of the rabbit was of much more vital importance to the Harris homestead than driving any number of stupid cattle, and darted across the field in pursuit, wasting his breath in sharp, eager yelps as he went. Whereupon the cows turned oatward again, not boisterously nor insolently, but with a calm persistence that steadily wore out the girl's strength and patience. They would not move a foot toward the pasture unless she drove them; they would move only one at a time; as she drove one the others pushed farther into the oat-field, and when she turned to pursue them the one she had already driven followed at her heels. The sun was hot, the oats were rank, the wild buckwheat tripped her as she ran; her appeals to the dog, now seated on a knoll looking somewhat foolishly for the rabbit which had given him the slip, and her commands to the cattle alike fell on unheeding ears. She was in no joyous mood at best, and the perverseness of things aggravated her beyond endurance. Her callings to the cattle became more and more tearful, and presently ended in a sob.

"There now, Beulah, don't worry; we will have them in a minute," said a quiet voice, and looking about she found Jim almost at her elbow, his omnipresent smile playing gently about his white teeth. "I was down at the creek filling the tank, when I saw you had a little rebellion on your hands, and I thought reinforcements might be in order."

"You might 've hollered farther back," she said, half reproachfully, but there was a light of appreciations in her eye when she dared raise it toward him. "I'm afraid I was beginning to be very—foolish."

She tripped again on the treacherous buckwheat, but he held her arm in a strong grasp against which the weight of her slim figure seemed but as a feather blown against a wall. The life of the plains had bred in Beulah admiration for physical strength, and she acknowledged his firm grip with an admiring glance. They they set about their task, but the sober-eyed cows had no thought of being easily deprived of their feast, and it was some time before they were all turned back into the pasture and the fence temporarily repaired behind them.

"I can't thank you enough," Beulah, was saying. "You just keep piling one kindness on top of another. Say, Jim, honest, what makes you do it."

But at that moment the keen blast of an engine whistle came cutting through the air—a long clear note, followed by a series of toots in rapid succession.

"I guess they're running short of water,' said Jim. "I must hustle." So saying he ran to the ford of the creek where the tank-wagon was still standing, and in a minute his strong frame was swaying back and forth to the rhythmic clanking of the pump. But it was some minutes before the tank was full, and again the clarion call of the whistle came insistently through the air. Hastily dragging up the hose, he uttered a sharp command to the horses; their great shoulders socketed into the collars; the tugs tightened, quivering with the strain; the wheels grated in the gravel, and the heavily-loaded wagon swung its way up the bank of the coulee.

Meanwhile other things were transpiring. Harris had returned from town the night before with the fixed intention of paying an early visit to the Farther West. He and Riles had spent more time than they should breasting the village bar, while the latter drew a picture of rising colour of the possibilities which the new lands afforded. Harris was not a man who abused himself with liquor, and Riles, too, rarely forgot that indulgence was expensive, and had to be paid for in cash. Moreover, Allan occasioned his father some uneasiness. He was young, and had not yet learned the self-control to be expected in later life. More than once of late Allan had crossed the boundary of modration, and John Harris was by no means indifferent to the welfare of his only son. Indeed, the bond between the two was so real and so intense that Harris had never been able to bring himself to contemplate their separation, and the boy had not even so much as thought of establishing a home of his own. Harris sometimes wondered at this, for Allan was popular in the neighborhood, where his good appearance, strength, and sincere honesty made him something of a favourite. The idea of homesteading together assured further years of close relationship between father and son, and the younger man fell in whole-heartedly with it.

"We'll hurry up the ploughing, Dad, and run West before the harvest is on us," Allan said as they rode home through the darkness. "We can file on our land and get back for the fall work. Then we will go out for the winter and commence our duties. The only question is, Can they grow anything on that land out there?"

"That's what they used to ask when we came to Manitoba," said the father. "And there were some years I doubted the answer myself. Some parts were froze out year after year, and they're among the best in the country now, and never think of frost. The same thing'll happen out there, and we might as well be in the game."

To do him justice, it was not altogether the desire for more wealth that prompted Harris. It was the call of new land; the call he had heard and answered in the early eighties; the old appetite that had lain dormant for a quarter of a century, but was still in his blood, waiting only a suggestion of the open spaces, a whiff from the dry grass on the wind-swept plains, the zigzag of a wagon-trail streaking afair into the horizon, to set it tingling again. The thought of homesteading revived rich old memories—memories from which the kindly years had balmed the soreness and the privation and the hardship, and left only the joy and the courage and the comradeship and the conquering. It was the call of the new land, which has led the race into every clime and flung its flag beneath every sky, and Harris's soul again leaped to the summons.

So this morning father and son were especially anxious that not a moment of their ploughing weather should be lost, and it was particularly aggravating when the hired man's long delay resulted in a bubbling sputter followed by a dry hiss from the injector, warning the engineer that the water-tank was empty. Allan shot an anxious glance down the road to the coulee, but the water team was not in sight. Seizing the while cord, he sent its peremptory summons into the air. Harris looked up from the ploughs, and the two exchanged frowns of annoyance. But the water stood high in the glass, and Allan did not reduce the speed, although he cut the link action another notch to get every ounce of advantage from the expansion. Down the field they went, the big iron horse shouldering itself irresistibly along, while the ploughs left their dozen furrows of moist, fresh soil, and the blackbirds hopped gingerly behind. But the water went down, down in the glass, and still there was no sign of a further supply. Allan again cut the air with his whistle, and at length, with a muttered imprecation, he slammed the throttle shut and jumped from the engine.

His father ran up from the ploughs. "What do you think of that?" the younger man exclaimed. "Jim must have had trouble. Bogged, or broke a tongue, or something. Never fell down like that before."

"Keep a keen eye on your fire," said Harris, "and I'll go down and see what's wrong with him." So the farmer strode off across the ploughed field. The delay annoyed him, and he felt unreasonably cross with Travers. As he plodded on through the heavy soil his temper did not improve, and he was talking to himself by the time he came upon Travers, giving his team their wind at the top of the hill leading up from the creek.

"What kept you?" he demanded when he came within a rod of the wagon. "Here's the outfit shut down waiting for water, and you——"

"I'm sorry, Mr. Harris——"

"That ain't what I asked you. You can't make steam with sorrow. What have you been foolin' about?"

"I haven't been fooling. As to what delayed me—well, you're delaying me now. Better jump on and ride up with me."

"So you won't tell me, eh You think you can do what you like with my team and my time, and it's none of my business. We'll see whose business it is."

Harris came threateningly toward the wagon, but was met only by the imperturable smile of his hired man. He thrust his foot on a spoke of the wheel and prepared to spring on to the tank, but at that moment the horses stirred and his foot slipped. Seeing that the farmer was about to fall Travers seized him by the collar of his shirt, but in so doing he leaned and lost his own balance, when the weight of the falling man came upon him, and the two tumbled on to the grass in each other' arms.

Allan, having satisfied himself that the engine would take no harm, had followed his father, and came over the crest of the ridge above the coulee just in time to see Jim apparently strike his employer and the two struggling on the grass together. In an instant the young man's hot blood was in his head; he rushed forward, and just as Jim had risen to his knees he struck him a stinging blow in the face that measured him again in the grass.

It was only for an instant. Travers sprang to his feet, a red line slowly stretching down his cheek as he did so. Allan came upon him swinging a tremendous blow at the jaw; but Jim guarded skilfully, and answered with a smash from the shoulder straight on the chin, which laid his adversary's six feet prostrate before him.

Allan rose slowly, sober but determined, and for a moment it looked as though a battle royal were to be fought on the spot, both men strong, lean, rigid, hard as iron, and quick as steel; Allan angry, careful, furious; Jim calm, confident and still smiling. But Harris rushed between them and seized his son by the arms.

"Stop it, Allan; stop, I say. You musn't fight. Jim didn't hit me—I'll say that for him. Now quit it. As for you" (turning to Jim), "I'm sorry for this, but you have yourself to blame. I'll give you one more chance to answer me—what kept you?"

"I don't choose to answer," was Jim's reply, spoken in the most casual tone. His eye was rapidly closing where Allan's blow had fallen on it, but his white teeth still glistened behind a smile.

"All right," said Harris. "You can go to the house and tell Mrs. Harris to pay you what is coming." And the farmer climbed on to the wagon and took the reins himself.

When Jim entered the kitchen he was received with astonishment by Mrs. Harris and Beulah. "Why, whatever has happened?" they exclaimed. "Has there been an accident? You're hurt!"

But Jim smiled, and said: "No accident at all. I have merely decided to go homesteading." And he went up the sairs to pack his belongings.

Have used Minard's Liniment in my home, hunting and lumber camps for years, and consider it the best white liniment on the market. I find that it gives quick relief to minor ailments, such as sprains, bruises and all kinds of wounds. Also it is a great remedy for coughs, colds, etc., which one is liable to catch when log driving and cruising during the winter and spring months. I would not be without MINARD'S LINIMENT and cannot recommend it too highly.

Regina Man Thinks He Would Be Selfish Not To Relate Experience

"When a man has been benefited by a medicine like I have been by Tanlac I think it would be selfish of him not to come out and tell what he knows," said Aleck G. Munro, 1261 McTavish street, Regina, Sask.

"I haven't words to describe what I went through with on account of indigestion. No matter how careful I was about what I ate or how little I ate, I was sure to be bloated up with gas afterwards. Sometimes my breath would be cut off so I could scarcely breathe. I actually got to the point where I dreaded to go to the table, and I shudder now when I think of how I suffered.

"I feel like a new man now, though, thanks to Tanlac. Actually this medicine has done me more good than I ever dreamed was possible. I never have any trouble from indigestion now, although I have a splendid appetite. I sleep all night long without waking once, and get up in the morning feeling fine and I work better than I have in years. I certainly advise people who suffer as I did to take Tanlac. I am confident it will help them."

Tanlac is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

The Empire's Growth

Poison of Bolshevism Has Not Hindered Britain's Advance.

Great Britain could not have obtained victory without the Dominions; and now that astonishing organism, the Empire—which has grown almost as hazard to its majestic strength manifests an integrity and vitality beyond the challenge of enmity or the spite of fate. But one imminent peril remains, the peril not of external attack, but of internal disease. Since war ceased we have passed through a crisis even greater than that of the war itself. The poison of Bolshevism has spread deep, if we may believe that its influence has begun to decline. "The eternal economic truth that men cannot reap where they have not sown" is beginning to prevail in minds which had been half persuaded that the distribution of wealth was all that mattered; and that the production of wealh would take care of itself. If this country has not been reduced to the condition of Russia today, it is not the fault of the disciples of Lenine and Trotsky.—From the London Morning Post.

CHANGE OF WATER WAS THE CAUSE OF DIARRHOEA

People moving from place to place are very much subject to diarrhoea on account of the change of water, climate, diet, etc. Prompt treatment with in such cases relieves the pain, checks the diarrhoea, and thus does away with the suffering, the weakness and often-times collapse associated with an attack of this kind. It does this by checking the too frequent and irritating stools, settling the stomach and bracing up the weakened system, thus rendering it without a peer for the treatment of all bowel complaints of both old and young.

Mrs. Ernest S. Beaton, Grayburn, Sask., writes:—"Coming out here from the East, my two little girls took very sick, the change of water, etc., giving them diarrhoea. They were so pale, and used to vomit everything they would take, so I finally got a bottle of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and I must say it certainly helped them. I have also used it when my children were teething and it is all you claim for it."

The public never tires of providing the Prince of Wales with wives; it is a favorite amusement not only with women but with men. World's Finest Diamond

Was Given to King Edward by Transvaal Government.

The largest diamond in the world is the Cullinan diamond, given to King Edward by the Transvaal Government in 1907. The stone was presented to King Edward in token of the loyalty and appreciation of the people of the Transvaal for the bestowal of the constitution on the colony. It was unearthed at the Jaegersfontein mine, Orange River Colony, South Africa, in 1905. In its rough state it weighed 3,025 carats, or 1 1-3 pounds. Amsterdam diamond cutters made nine large stones and several smaller ones from it. The largest still weighs 516 1-2 carats and is said to be the most valuable and brilliant diamond in human possession today.

Error In Report.

A discrepancy of 100,000,000 bushels in the crop yield estimate of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics is revealed by officials of the Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Company. Quoting the estimated wheat yield for the Dominion this year as 294,000,000 bushels, the Dominion Bureau's report says that the total may be greater than the aggregate in 1915, which, by the Bureau's own figures was 393,000,000 bushels.

A MOTHER'S ADVICE

Once a mother has used Baby's Own Tablets for her little ones she is always happy to recommend them to others. Her advice, given after a careful trial, can be readily followed with assured good results. The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which never fail to regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach. They always do good—they cannot possibly do harm even to the youngest babe. Concerning them Mrs. P. Laforest, St. Nazaire, Que., writes:—"For three months my baby was constipated and cried continually. On the advice of a friend I gave him Baby's Own Tablets and now at the age of five months he is perfectly well and weighs twenty pounds. I am delighted to be able to advise other mothers to use them." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Canadian Wool Has Good Reputation

High Quality Appreciated by States and Overseas Markets.

A virtual revolution has been wrought in the wool industry of Canada in the past few years. Whereas but a short while ago the wool produced in Canada was offered for sale in such an unsatisfactory state that the Canadian manufacturer looked with indifference upon the home-grown product, tody he realizes that Canadian wool compares favorably with that of any other country and more than half of the domestic production finds its way to Canadian mills. Not only is the high quality of the Canadian product appreciated locally now but in the United States and the overseas markets it is now generally recognized that Canadian sheepmen are producing wool the equal of similar classes and grades grown elsewhere in the world. Gradually but surely a reputation has been built up for Canadian fleece wools on the domestic and foreign markets.

The patriotic man is loyal to his country and to the community in which he lives. If he is consistent he will give first preference to Canadian made goods when making purchases. He will also stand loyally by his local dealer.

This youthful frock shows the effective use of cretonne as a trimming. It is fashioned on very simple lines that affect the much-liked chemise dress. The frock is made of orchid-colored gingham, although should you wish you might copy it in any other color that may be more becoming to yourself. It is fastened down the back with self-covered buttons. The deep border and flat collar are cut from cretonne which has a lavender and green grape design. The three-quarter sleeve is finished with a flaring cuff of the cretonne. A girdle of bright green ribbon encircles the waistline.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

New Arrow Creek Project

EDITOR REVIEW:

SIR,—In view of the reports published locally, and in the Nelson Daily News re the proposed change in plans of proposed new Arrow Creek irrigation area, I would like to state that the change is not made from any wish to deprive any portion of the Valley from obtaining the use and benefit of said scheme.

We believe that a scheme will be assured, if new plan is adopted; then it will devolve upon the district west and northwest to get together and find their own majority in favor of being incorporated in the whole system. It is a matter of general knowledge that in the inception of the Erickson Community system, also the Canyon City System, that all opposition ceased upon the assurance of those schemes going through, and that quite a rush took place to ask to be included within said schemes.

We have good reason to believe that the same will take place with the Arrow Creek scheme, only that it will be advisable that not too much time be allowed to elapse before said application is put in, as dimension of pipe used will undoubtedly be that which will adequately supply the district included, and that only.

Ducks are reported unusually numerous for this early in the season, but as yet the corps of duck hunters operating at the Landing is not as numerous as might be expected.

G. T. Popell has re-opened the Creston Cafe in the former F. H. Jackson store on Wilson Avenue, and is prepared to serve meals from 6.30 a.m. to 9 p.m. He also announces that he is prepared to buy, sell or exchange anything of value, in addition to conducting a real estate business.

Members of Creston Valley Liberal Association are to meet on Saturday night, Oct. 1st, in Speers' Hall, for the purpose of electing delegates to attend the West Kootenay nominating convention in Nelson on Thursday next, Oct. 6th. Eight delegates are to be selected for the Creston Valley area.

Electrician Parker of Nelson was here at the beginning of the week installing the storage electric light plant in the Grand Theatre. With the placing of this supplementary lighting the Grand can now run its picture machine and light the house for eight hours without any need of utilizing the engine at all. For public meetings and concerts the new lighting plant will be welcome, as well as for the dances in the big new dance hall which will be opened on Wednesday.

Mesdames Lister and Foreman and Messrs. Chorlton and Lidgate who will comprise the orchestra for the grand opening dance of the Grand Theatre dance hall on Wednesday night, are rehearsing considerable new music for the initial dance in the big hall, and the very best of music can be assured, as well as the finest floor, and refreshments that will well sustain caterer Norris reputation as a supper provider. The dance will start prompt at 10, and the admission, which also includes lunch, will be $1.25 to gents, and 85 cents to ladies.

The display of Creston made candy in the window of the Norris bakery attracted no end of attention on Saturday. Now that there is some let up in the usual hot weather demand for bread and pastry Mr. Norris is finding time to devote a little attention to the homemade candy feature of his trade. On Saturday he had eight different sorts of homemade sweets on display, and from now on he expects to have them always on sale. While all these lines are in good demand he reports quite a decided preference for the Everton taffy, fudge and toasted cocanut tea cakes.

Wm. Ramsay of Nelson, public works department engineer for West Kootenay, was a Creston visitor on Sunday, where he met J. W. Philp, deputy minister of public works, who in company with some officials of the Dominion public works department had been looking over the highway from Moyie to Kuskanook by auto. On all new work on the transprovincial highway the Dominion stands 40 per cent. of the cost, and as a result of this visit of inspection it is expected more speed will be put on at getting to work on the diversions at Arrow Creek and Wynndel, and the new road from Goat River crossing in to Kitchener. If the Dominion would pay up the 40 per cent. it owes on the cost of the good road between Creston and Erickson it is likely the rock crushing plant will be kept running until late in the fall.

The West and Redistribution

It is altogether probable that, even before the present issue of this paper reaches its readers, the Dominion Parliament will be dissolved and writs issued for a new Parliament whose legal span of life will run until 1927 unless, because of some exceptional circumstance, it is deemed advisable to consult the people before that year.

In compliance with the terms of the constitution of Canada a census of the population was taken in the month of June last. It is also provided by the constitution that upon the completion of such census the representation of the several Provinces in the House of Commons shall be readjusted in such manner as to give to each Province equality of representation based on population such readjusted representation to become effective upon the termination of the then existing Parliament.

It is admitted by all people in Canada, from Premier Meighen down, that that portion of Canada west of the Great Lakes will be shown to be entitled to a larger representation than it now enjoys, and the fact is equally well recognized that Canada east of the Great Lakes will not be entitled to quite as many representatives as it now has.

Nevertheless, although it would require only a few months more to compile and tabulate the 1921 figures of population and thus make possible an early and fair readjustment of the representation of the Provinces in the House of Commons, Parliament is hastily dissolved, although no new or sudden issue has arisen, and writs for a new Parliament issued which will result in Canada for the next five years being governed by a House of Commons which is not truly representative of the country.

The action taken may be constitutional within the strict meaning of the law, but it seems a violation of the spirit of the constitution. Yet it is not the first time this has happened in Canada. In fact ever since the population of the West began to increase so rapidly, while the population of Ontario and the Maritime Provinces failed to keep pace with Quebec's increase in population, there has been a tendency at Ottawa to precipitate general elections in the year of the census taking right on the eve of redistribution but before making it effective.

Let us take a historical glance back over the past thirty years and the last three census enumerations. In 1891 the House of Commons consisted of 215 members representing the Provinces as follows: Ontario 92, Quebec 65, Nova Scotia 21, New Brunswick 16, Prince Edward Island 6, Manitoba 5, British Columbia 6, North West Territories 4. This was a census year but instead of a redistribution bill being passed before going to the country, Parliament was dissolved, the issue being Reciprocity with the United States. It was not until five years later that the country secured the benefits of the readjustment which was really due in 1891.

The next census came in 1901, but a general election had been held the preceding year, but as the result of the previously delayed redistribution Ontario was entitled to only 86 members instead of 92, the three Maritime Provinces lost 8, while Manitoba doubled its quota from 5 to 10, the North West Territories from 4 to 11, and British Columbia added one. In 1905 the new Provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan were created, Saskatchewan being given 10 members and Alberta 7. This additional representation became effective in 1908.

While the figures of the census of 1911 were being tabulated, Reciprocity with the United States again became a live issue and an Agreement signed with the United States came before Parliament for ratification. Strong opposition developed in Eastern Canada and the Opposition obstructed and blockaded the passage of the bill. The Government thereupon appealed to the country, and once again the West was deprived of its rightful representation on a question in which it was vitally interested, while the East was allowed a representation to which it was not justly entitled.

War broke out in 1914 and by agreement the life of the Parliament elected in 1911 was extended and it was not until 1917, therefore that the people secured the benefits of the representation to which they were really entitled in 1911. That long delayed readjustment further reduced Ontario's representation to 82, a loss of 10 members in two decades; Nova Scotia dropped to 16, a loss of 5 in the same period; New Brunswick fell to 11, a loss of 5; P.E.I. to 3, or only one-half what it had in 1891. On the other hand Manitoba increased to 15, or three times its representation in 1891; Saskatchewan got 16 and Alberta 12, as compared with 4 for the N.W.T. in 1891; British Columbia was accorded 13 as compared with 6 in 1891; and the Yukon was given one.

In other words, although the membership of the House of Commons only increased from 215 in 1891 to 234 on the strength of the census of 1911, the representation west of the Great Lakes rose from 15 to 57, while the representation east of the Great Lakes fell from 200 to 177.

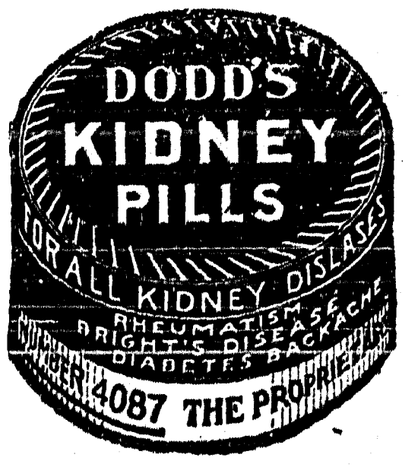
It is generally agreed, both East and West, that the same evolution in the political power of the country is taking place; that is, that the representation of the West will be increased and that of the East decreased when the final figures for 1921 are tabulated. It means that for one-half of the whole period during which the readjusted representation should be in effect the West will be under-represented.

Scottish Castle Sold

Has Secret Chamber and Walls Ten Feet Thick.

Viscount Cowdray has bought the estate of Castle Fraser, Donside, Aberdeenshire, for £48,000. Castle Fraser is reputed to one of the finest specimens of the Flemish style of architecture in Scotland.

The castle has a secret chamber in which the master of the house could overhear the conversation of his guests in the dining hall. This is supposed to have suggested to Sir Walter Scott a similar contrivance in "The Fortunes of Nigel." Walls throughout the building, which stands upon arches, are from 6 feet to 10 feet thick.



Many Uses For Paper.

In the art of making and using paper we are not in line with the Chinese and other Asiatics, who not only make the finest paper in the world, but apply it to all sorts of uses, making window panes, umbrellas, fans, sandals and even cloaks and garments of it.

The Many-Purpose Oil.—Both in the house and stable there are scores of uses for Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. Use it for cuts, bruises, burns, scalds, the pains of rheumatism and sciatica, sore throat and chest. Horses are liable very largely to similar ailments and mishaps as afflict mankind, and are equally amendable to the healing influence of this fine old remedy which has made thousands of firm friends during the past fifty years.

A Disappearing Island.

One of the most famous of disappearing islands is Expedition Island, situated off the northwest corner of Australia, and which was visited as lately as 1892. Today it has disappeared, and is now fifty feet below water. The island was 13 miles long and famous for its beauty.

"I see ye have a new hired man, Ezra," said Eben Potter. "How is he doing?"

"Resting considerable easier than the other one did, thank ye!" replied the disgusted farmer.

A Growing Union

Movement In Progress to Extend Union of South Africa.

The Union of South Africa, over which General Smuts presides, contains four provinces, but is only a third larger than British Columbia, or two-thirds the area of Quebec. The movement now in progress for the annexation of the colony of Rhodesia, at present administered by the British South Africa Company, would nearly double the area of the Union by adding 450,000 square miles to the 473,000 now administered by the Union Government. It would add 1,500,000 to the native population, with some 40,000 Europeans.

The Government of Mr. Smuts is also administering the former German protectorate of West Africa, an estate of 320,000 square miles, with a small European population and several hundred thousand natives. The number of the natives was greatly reduced, and some races nearly exterminated during the German occupation. General Smuts is thus likely to have under his jurisdiction 1,200,000 equare miles of territory, with a 000 square miles of territory, with a total population not much less than that of Canada.—The Daily Province.

BARELY LIVED THROUGH IT

A terrible experience had Edw. J. O'Connor, of Sault Ste. Marie. From boyhood he writes: "I have been a constant sufferer from Asthma and Catarrh. My nose and throat was often stopped up, and I had disagreeable droppings from my throat. When an attack of coughing came on, it seemed as if I would barely live through it. I would gasp for breath. Catarrhozone made me well. It's soothing healing action was exactly suited to my case." To those who suffer from Catarrh, Asthma, Throat Irritation and Bronchitis, Catarrhozone is highly recommended. DELICATE GIRLS NEED NEW BLOOD

Rich, Red Blood Means Health and Strength.

The anaemia of young girls may be inherited, or it may be caused by bad air, unsuitable food, hasty and irregular eating, insufficient out-of-door exercise and not enough rest and sleep.

It comes on gradually, beginning with langour, indisposition to mental or bodily exertion, irritability and a feeling of fatigue. Later comes the palpitation of the heart, headaches, dizziness following a stooping position, frequent backaches and breathlessness. In a majority of cases constipation is present. There may be no great loss of flesh, but usually the complexion takes on a greenish-yellow pallor.

Cases of this kind, if neglected, become more serious, but if taken in time there is no need to worry. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which are free from any harmful or habit-forming drug, are just the tonic needed to remedy this wretched state of health. Though it is not noticeable, improvement begins with the first dose. As the blood is made rich the pallor leaves the face, strength and activity gradually return and the danger of relapse is very slight.

If any symptom of anaemia appears, prudence suggests that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills should be given at once, and the sooner they are taken the more speedily will their action improve the blood. You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A Pertinent Question

Why Did Kaiser Run If Troops Were Never Vanquished.

With his old-time grandiloquence the former German Kaiser sent a message to the Junker meeting held by his son and Ludendorff in Berlin recently, in which he exclaimed: "With proud and warm gratitude I think today of my brave comrades, never vanquished in the field." But if they were never vanquished in the field why is it that the puissant partner of "Me and God" so unceremoniously skedaddled from the field and scurried into hiding in Holland, whence he has never dared poke his head across the border since?—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Rooms With Baths Are Scarce.

In London and Paris there are several hotels which have rooms with private baths, but there are very few bathrooms in the average European hotel. It is always an extra even when used with cold water. Hot water is dificult to obtain in winter, and in some hotels, where it is worked by a slot machine attached to a gas geyser, the guest has to feed it with 20 cents for every quart of water.

Paring a corn is both risky and ineffective. It is much better to use Holloway's Corn Remover and eradicate them entirely.

Steel Shipped By Airplane

Was Required In a Hurry For London Depot.

Two cwts. of steel were conveyed from Manchester to London by aeroplane for use in connection with the completion of the steel work construction of the new depot of the London General Omnibus Company at Chiswick, W. The aeroplane, an Avro, was chartered by Lambourne and Co., Ltd., Victoria Steel Works, Openshaw, Manchester, who are responsible for the work, the steel being urgently required for certain vital parts of the building. The machine left Manchester at 9 a.m., reached Croydon, London, at noon, and by about four o'clock the steel was in position at the new depot.

Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil offers a simple remedy. A few drops upon a piece of lint or medicated cotton and placed in the ear will do much in relieving pain.

Industrial Ontario

Has More Than 50 Per Cent. of Dominion's Manufacturing Plants.

Ontario is the richest province of Canada. Of the Dominion's wealth, estimated at 2,801,000,000 for the year just past, Ontario's share was $1,267,000,000. Consistent with the remainder of the Dominion, agriculture asserts its superiority over other lines of activity and maintains the premier place in provincial assets. Ontario is, however, the first industrial province of Canada, considerably more than fifty per cent. of the product of the Dominion's manufacturing plants being attributable to this province.

LETTER FROM MRS. WAKELIN

Tells Remarkable Story of Sickness and Recovery.

Toronto, Ont.—"I suffered greatly from weakness, seemed to be tired all the time, and had no ambition to do anything or go any place. My nerves were in bad shape, I could not sleep at night, and then came a breakdown. I read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the newspapers and several of my friends advised me to use it, and it surely put new life into me. Now I am quite able to do all my own work, and I would strongly advise every suffering woman to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial."—Mrs. CHARLES WAKELIN, 272 Christie St., Toronto, Ont.

The makers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have thousands of such letters as that above—they tell the truth, else they could not have been obtained for love or money. This medicine is no stranger—it has stood the test for more than forty years.

If there are any complications you do not understand write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass.

Terrific Explosion Wrecks Chemical Plant At Oppau, Germany

Mayence.—A great explosion at the chemical products plant of the Badische Anilinfabrik Company at Oppau, on the Rhine, wrecked the town and spread death and destruction on every hand. The number killed is variously estimated at from 1,000 to 1,500, and the injured close to two thousand. One report says that there were 3,000 men on the spot at the moment of the explosion and it is believed that about half of these were killed.

The town of Oppau is a scene of utter desolation, more than a third of the houses having been completely demolished, while the roofs of the others were swept off as if by a whirlwind. Here also many were killed or injured.

The explosion is attributed by some to excess pressure in gasoline meters, the whole of this part of the works being literally pulverized. Where the gasometers stood is now a funnel shaped hole 130 yards wide and 45 yards deep, while twisted girders and debris of every description lie scattered about. For a distance of several hundred yards, not a wall is left standing.

The directorate of the company is quoted as saying that the explosion occurred in a storehouse containing four thousand tons of nitrous sulphates, which had previously been examined and was believed to be free from danger of explosion. All the workmen's dwellings in the city were razed to the ground. At Mannheim, on the opposite side of the river, 35 persons were seriously injured and two hundred or more suffered minor injuries. Ludwigschaffen reports say that three workmen's trains were buried under the wreckage, and many children on their way to school in that town were injured.

Mayence.—A late statement issued by the management of the Oppau factory says that the explosion occurred in a reservoir containing 200 tons of ammonium sulphate. It adds that all necessary precautions had been taken during the process of manufacture and storing the product, so that an explosion appeared impossible.

Russian Scouts Ask For Famine Aid

Send Appeal For Starving Children to Canadian Scouts.

Chita.—The Russian boy scouts are sending a message to the Canadian scouts apepaling to them to organize famine aid. Many children have been sent here from the Volgo country this month. They will be apportioned among private families as the Chita Government is not able to provide for them owing to its lack of funds.

The children coming from the interior of Russia brought a little food with them. An analysis of their bread shows that it was made of a mixture of sorrel, grass and a trace of bran.

According to reports received here in the ten governments in the valley of the Volga there are 90,000,000 persons starving.

Food Is Cheaper In England

Shopkeepers Also lowering Prices of Dry Goods.

London.—While the general tendency of retail prices in England is downward, complaint has been made that the licensed victuallers are now charging more for beer and whiskey although the cost of brewing materials has decreased. Shopkeepers are generally lowering their prices of foodstuffs and dry goods in consequence of the announced drop in current wholesale quotations.

In many cases this means a sacrifice of profit on the retailers' part, but it is pointed out that many of the retailers who are most reluctant now were among the first to mark up their existing stocks when prices were rising.

Plan To Reclaim Lands In B. C.

Would Bring About Thirty Thousand Acres Under Cultivation.

Recently there appeared in the press a despatch from Victoria, B.C., stating that at a joint conference of the drainage officials of the State of Idaho and the Province of British Columbia, an agreement had been entered into which would assure finish-up investigational work to determine the feasibility or otherwise of draining 60,000 acres of land in the Kootenay River Valley, approximately half of which area lies in Idaho and the other half in British Columbia.

Looking solely at the 30,000 acres on the Canadian side of the boundary line, to the average prairie dweller the bringing of this area—less than 50 sections—under cultivation is a matter of hardly more than passing moment; in many parts of the west the swinging of such a project nowadays would get scant attention except for local publicity purposes.

In British Columbia, however, where 30,000-acre tracts of continuous agricultural land of outstanding fertility is very much the exception, rather than the rule, the probability of ultimately bringing such an area under production is attracting almost province-wide attention; in some measure due to the fact that the to-be reclaimed lands are located in the very heart of a territory that rather badly needs agricultural products of the sorts this overflowed territory can produce in both quantity and quality.

The cause of this annual overflow of the area is simply a matter of too large an intake of water and too small an outlet for the spring floods. The Kootenay River, with its tributaries, draining the whole of the western slopes of the Rocky Mountains in B.C. and the Selkirk ranges, after a bold sweep southward running into the United States as far as Bonners Ferry, Idaho, from that point turns directly north again to B.C. and Kootenay Lake. At the same time the Lardo River and others run into the lake at the other end and the combined volume of water passes out toward the centre of the lake by a passage called the West Arm, like the downward stroke of a gigantic T, past Nelson and Bonnington Falls to join the Columbia River.

The reclamation has solely to do with the enlarging of the lake's outlet. In 1913 a preliminary survey was made by Engineer Muerling, who in his findings reported favorably on the project but asked for a more thorough examination of the whole territory before making a final decision. With the outbreak of the war the next year the scheme was, for the time being, abandoned. American engineers have also spent two seasons on the work, and their report made public two years ago, was strongly in favor of the work being proceeedd with, the estimated cost being a little over $2,000,000.

The land is in one of the older settled parts of B.C. interior, already supplied with railway communication by the Crow's Nest line, has good highways, educational facilities and every modern convenience, so that the province would be at no expense in providing these. The bench lands surrounding this to-be-reclaimed area is one of the finest fruit areas in all B.C. The climate is ideal.

The entire area in B.C. is government-owned land, and the Board of Trade at Creston which for years has been urging its reclamation expects the provincial lands department—if the lands are drained—to adopt a policy of selling the tract in not larger than 40-acre farms to bona fide farmer settlers, at a price that will just nicely suffice to meet the full cost of draining the area. As to the cost of the work it has been agreed that the U.S. and British Columbia interests will pay this pro rata on the basis of acres reclaimed.

British Government Charges Russian Soviet With Breach Of Faith

London.—The British Government has despatched a strongly-worded note to Moscow calling the attention of the Soviet Government to alleged breaches of faith involved in the pursuance by the Russians throughout Central Asia and Afghanistan of a campaign of intrigues hostile towards Great Britain. An eplanation is demanded.

The note details fully the alleged hostile acts complained of. Most of them were in Afghanistan.

The note, which was written by the foreign minister, Earl Curzon, details a number of flagrant violations of Russia's undertaking under the trade agreement with Great Britain to cease anti-British propaganda and particularly enumerates the activities of the Third Internationale of Moscow in India and Afghanistan, quoting in substantiation thereof a statement by M. Stalin, president of the eastern section of the Third Internationale, urging the eastern secretariat to devote itself to undermining the external power of England and France.

The gravest charge pertains to the Russo-Afghan treaty and M. Chitcherin's insistence upon a clause in this treaty providing for the opening of consulates in Eastern Afghanistan.

Lord Curzon says the Government possesses indisputable evidence that these treaties are regarded by the Soviet Government as prospective centres of propaganda and also has evidence of the activities of Jamal Pasha sent to Afghanistant by the Soviet to provide the hostile tribesmen with funds, arms and ammunition. The British foreign secretary asks for definite assurance that these activities, constituting breaches of the trade ageement, shall cease.

The note declares that the Soviet used every persuasion to prevent the Angora Government from arriving at a peaceful solution with the Entente powers and assembled considerable forces on the borders of Anatolia, suggesting that they should be sent into Anatolia for the support of the Kemalists.

Canadian Loan To China

Agreement Recently Signed Has Raised Important Issues.

London.—The Times correspondent at Pekin says that important issues have been raised in the agreement recently signed in that city by which a Canadian banking syndicate will lend the Republic of China $3,000,000 gold against one-year bonds, secured on various enterprises. It is noted that the discount and interest give a return to the Canadian investors of a rate exceeding 20 per cent. per annum.

The correspondent says that the transaction seems to be in order except that the concertium of the powers formed to regulate the question of a loan to China has not been consulted and that the loan is a direct negation of the British Government's policy in China.

It is pointed out, however, that the Canadian Government is not a party to the concertium agreement between Great Britain, United States, France and Japan, and may feel under no obligation to observe its terms. Nevertheless, foreign parties to the concertium will naturally take the view, says the correspondent, that if the Canadian loan goes through the British Government will be subscribing to one policy with the right and totally different policy with the left. The concertium agreement must end if all parties to it do likewise.

Disorders In Vienna

Crowd Incensed At Profiteering In Foreign Exchange Values.

Vienna.—Serious disorders occurred in this city following the closing of the bourse. Many rushes were made upon the entrances to the building, but these were checked by the police. The crowds then wrecked the shops of several money changers in the vicinity, while a few men suspected of speculating in foreign exchange were dragged from their automobiles and beaten.

Impromptu mass meetings were addressed by speakers, who declared the bourse would be closed permanently if profiteering in foreign exchange values did not cease.

Will Not Visit Canada.

London.—There is no question as to the Prince of Wales visiting Canada on his return journey from his tour of India as he will follow the same route homeward as on his outward voyage, namely, via the Suez Canal.

Warns Irish Taxpayers.

Belfast.—Irish Republican authorities have warned the people of some of the districts of Ireland to refuse to pay income taxes to British collectors until the Dail Eireann has reached a decision on that subject.

Fire Destroys Lumber Stocks

Loss of Ontario Company Will Be Heavy.

Parry Sound, Ont.—Fire destroyed the mill and lumber stocks of the Conger Lumber Company, as well as a large number of boats, canoes and boathouses, along the waterfront. For a time the town itself was threatened with destruction, but the wind that blew from the southeast aided the fire fighters.

Besides the mill and machinery, the loss includes six million feet of lumber, four million pieces of lath, piles, slabs or other mill products, as well as barns, stables, dwellings, tramway and railway spur lines. The extent of the loss, which has not yet been estimated, is partly covered by insurance. About eighty men will be thrown out of employment.

Five Days On Wreck

Fisherman Rescues Woman, Sole Survivor of Sloop.

St. Vincent, Windward Island—A woman passenger was the sole survivor of the sloop Coronation, wrecked while bound from St. Lucia to Grenada. The sloop encountered a terrific storm September 8 and was dismasted. The woman remained clinging to the hull after all the others had been swept away. Drifting through high seas, the vessel finally stranded on a reef on the Grenadines, and after five days in her perilous position the woman was observed by a fisherman, who rescued her.

Due to the last-minute rush of advertising the Review this week is decidedly short of news reading matter, and amongst the things crowded out is a letter from Mr. Leveque in reply to Mr. Edmondson's letter which appeared in our last issue.

R. G. L. Clarke, Vancouver, chief fruit inspector for B.C., was here on an official visit on Monday. He states that at some points in the Okanagan selling agencies found a slow demand for Wealthy apples this year, apparently due to the fact that the fruit was shipped before it had colored up to the usual Wealthy standard.

The biggest crowd ever seen at an entertainment in Creston was in evidence at the Grand on Saturday night for "Pollyanna." The amusement tax collections showed that there were 353 paid admissions. Without exception this was the most popular film Manager Rodgers has shown in the two years he has had the theatre open.

Now that central pack is established and the heavy yield of winter apples is being picked Sunday operations have been commenced at the Union warehouse in order to keep even with the arrivals of fruit for packing. The power grading machine is running in splendid fashion and readily put through a little better than a box of apples per minute.

Messrs. Reid and Heathersage headed a delegation from Bonners Ferry that was here on Tuesday doing some publicity work in connection with the fall fair in that town on Oct. 6, 7 and 8.
