Red Cross Reorganized

At the public meeting on Tuesday night to form a Red Cross branch the following executive was elected: Mrs. Garland, president; Mrs. Henderson, vice-president; Mrs. Speers, treasurer; Mrs. Hamilton, secretary; and Mrs. F. Smith and Mrs. Peairs. These ladies were formerly the Public Health Committee and will continue their work as before under the name of the Creston Red Cross Public Health Centre. They hope to have a Red Cross public health nurse here to start duty by January 1st.

During the membership drive last summer for the Red Cross $204 was collected and forwarded to Vancouver to the head office of the B.C. Division, therefore there must be nearly 200 members in the Valley—some being junior members, who pay 25 cents. $200 only was acknowledged at the time in the Review as one of the can-canvassers, Mrs. Paul, had not quite completed her collecting at Alice Siding, and the amount of $4.74 was forwarded later, bringing Mrs. Paul's total up to $29.75.

VOTE FOR YOURSELF

Just how honest the people of this district are in their oft-repeated assertion that they want to see Creston Valley progress will be put to what might be termed the supreme test on Tuesday, December 6th.

For years back our farmers have complained that their interests have been neglected due to the fact taht they had no farmer member at Ottawa.

For just as long a period the business men have complained that commercial interests have been sadly neglected due to the fact that West Kootenay had not a West Kootenay business man in the Dominion parliament.

The fruit grower more especially has, long felt that if some one who had personally experienced the difficulties the orchardists has to encounter represented Creston at Ottawa what a difference it would make —for the better.

For ten years members of the board of trade have been devoting their time, energy and cash to get somewhere with Kootenay Flats drainage, and to date have made little if any, progress with the undertaking with the Dominion authorities.

On Tuesday next Creston will have its first opportunity of electing a Creston man to look after the Valley's needs at Ottawa.

In R. B. Staples there is offered a man who is on every hand conceded to have exceptional ability to look after the things that need attention in promoting the all round development and prosperity of this community.

He has demonstrated his ability both on the land as well as in business, while in community effort he has even more strikingly shown that he has the welfare of Creston at heart.

Opposed to him is a Nelson doctor who has never shown any sympathy with Creston Valley, for could one of his profession be expected to satisfactorily look after matters pertaining to the farm, while in the matter of advancing Creston's interests on Kootenay Flats drainage it is of record that he was asleep at the switch at Victoria on one very important occasion.

Mr. Staples other opponet is a railway engineer. His case is even worse than the opposing doctor's. If any farmer in these parts has any idea that Mr. Humphrey intends to go to Ottawa to revise downward the pay of the trainmen in order that the farmer may enjoy a little more prosperity, such farmers should certainly get up and shut the door; they are walking in their sleep; to say nothing at all of Mr. Humphrey's utter lack of knowledge of the farmer's problems.

What better friend could the Valley returned soldier have at Ottawa than R. B. Staples, who has gone through the hardships the inexperienced pioneer farmer must put up with and is therefore in the finest possible position to help shape up any legislation that may be enacted to improve the lot of the soldier-farmer—and this despite the sneer of the Farmer Labor candidate who advertises that while Humphrey war "over there" Staples stayed at home, sweet home.

Directly and indirectly Creston citizens have spent a lot of money to put Creston on the map. Last month we scored a remarkable triumph at the big British Apple Show in an effort to advertise Creston. No opportunity is overlooked to keep the name Creston as prominently as possible before the eyes of newspaper readers. Everybody, irrespective of poltics, rejoices when Creston is boosted.

And what bigger boost could Creston have than to send to Ottawa a booster such as Staples has always shown himself—combined with which is such outstanding ability to safeguard our legislative requirements.

On the score of service rendered this community as a citizen Roy B. Staples well deserves your vote on Tuesday next. He may have his personal faults and peculiarities. So have Dr. Rose and Mr. Humphrey. Surely you are not going to pass by the friend you know to fraternize with even a less likely stranger.

On Tuesday Creston has the biggest opportunity yet presented to put the Valley on the map. Will you, electors, let such a rare chance slip because of personal feeling or, worse still, political sentiment?

You are already assured that the Nelson politicians won't worry about you after December 6th; why let sentiment interfere with this district's advancement.

You vote for yourself when you vote for Staples.

Be good to No. 1 on Tuesday by voting for the Liberal candidate.

God helps those who help themselves.

A copy of the voters list which will be used at the voting on Tuesday was posted this week on the verandah of the Trading Company store. It shows about 125 names.

A large turnout is expected to-night (Friday) at the meeting at the schoolhouse at 8 o'clock, which will be addressed by Dr. Rose, the Conservative candidate, and G. Carmichael of Vancouver. The school will be heated. The ladies are especially invited.

Speeches, smokes, songs and supper will all be featured in the Liberal rally at the schoolhouse on Saturday night, starting at 8 o'clock. Local talent will furnish the musical features and the lunch, while the speakers will be R. B. Staples, the Liberal candidate, and a Mr. Turgeon, a former M.P.P. for Ribstone, Alta., who is an exceptionally fluent speaker. Everyone come and enjoy the evening and hear the Liberal side of the campaign presented by capable men.

Entirely New Treatment For Bronchitis, Catarrh.

No Internal Medicine to Take

Years ago the profession fought Catarrh by internal dosing. This upset the stomach and didn't remove the trouble. The modern treatment consists of breathing the healing, soothing essence of Catarrhozone, which goes instantly to the source and the trouble. Catarrhozone is successful, because it penetrates where liquid medicines can't go. The balsamic vapor of Catarrhozone drives out the germs, soothes the irritation, relieves the cough, makes Catarrhal troubles disappear quickly. For bad throat, coughs, bronchitis, Catarrhozone is a wonder. Two months treatment one dollar. Small size 50c. Sold everywhere or The Catarrhozone Co., Montreal.

Suddenly there was another stir about the door, and a young fellow in scarlet tunic and yellow-striped riding pants walked briskly in. His lithe figure, his clean boyish face, his military alertness, were in striking contrast to the ambling, carelessly-dressed crowd. He had taken in the situation at a glance and walked, neither faster nor slower, direct to the desperado. The latter found himself confronted by an unexpected dilemma. If he took his gun off the lumber-jack to cover the policeman he knew perfectly well that the promised slat-cracking process would begin immediately. If the policeman had only stood at the door and ordered him to put up his guns, or parleyed, or thought of his skin as a policeman should, he would have had time to plan his campaign. But this boy in scarlet was a revelation of something new in policemen. It was only eight steps from the door to where the outlow stood, and those eight steps at parade pace occupied about three seconds. The gentleman from Montana was quick enough with his gun, but not particularly nimble in intellect, and he never faced a situation quite like this before. What was this policeman going to do, anyway? Would he never stop and deliver his ultimatum? He had not even drawn his gun!

By this time the policeman was beside him. He did not seize him, nor shout at him, nor meanace him in any way, yet somewhere in his manner and bearing was a sense of irresistible power.

"Perhaps you don't know that it's against the law to flourish a revolver in this country," he said. "Better let me keep it for you until you are leaving town."

"Against the law!" said the ruffian, now recovering himself. "That's a good one. Why, ever'thin' I've done for twenty years has been against the law. I cracked up the law for chicken-grit years ago."

"Not the Canadian law," said the Mounted Policeman. "You'll only offend against it once, and it won't be the law that gets cracked."

"Thas' so?" sneered the other. "Then what'll happen?"

"I'll arrest you."

"You? I could eat you in three bites. I can lick you with one hand."

"How many like me do you think you could lick?" asked the policeman, with impertubable composure.

The man from Montana had removed his eye from the lumber-jack, who was now dancing about in menacing attitudes.

"Forget it, Pete," ordered the policeman. "Now how many like me can you lick?"

"About six," said the other, speaking with much deliberation.

"All right," said Sergeant Carey. "Then my chief would send seven. Now, will you come with me or wait for the seven? By the way," he continued, "the lock-up is a sort of beastly place to stow a man, especially when he's visiting the country for the first time. I think I'll let you sleep here, on your promise to appear at court at ten to-morrow morning. Let me help you to your room. But first, I'll have to trouble you for your gun."

"What if I clear out through the night?"

"You won't—not very far." There was a metallic ring in the last words that penetrated the shell of the man who had made a business of breaking law for twenty years, and he calmly handed over his revolver.

"Search me if I know why I do it," he said, turning to the bar-tender. "I could eat that kid in three bites."

"Yes," said the man behind. "But you couldn't digest the whole British Empire, and that's what you've got to do if you start nibbling on any part of it. Besides, he mightn't make as easy chewin' as you think. You'd find him more brisket than sirloin when you get your teeth into him. I've seen him throw an' handcuff a bigger man than you right in this room, an' never turn a hair in doin' it. An' take it from me, stranger, what he says about sendin' seven if the job's too big for six is gospel, an' the quicker you get that in your block the safer your hide'll be in Canada."

Sharp at ten the next morning the man who made a business of breaking law appeared before the magistrate, paid a fine of fifty dollars, and surrendered his weapon to the King's officers for good. When he returned to the hotel and demanded his bill for the night's lodging he was surprised to learn he had none.

"Sergeant Grey settled for you," said the clerk with a faint smile. "Said you were his guest last night."

It was the first time in a long experience that he had found that law could be rigorous and yet absolutely just. It upset his whole crude philosophy of his relation to society and the State, and stretched before him the straight and easy road to citizenship.

To return to the scene of the night before. When the bar-room had settled down to normal, and no one showed a disposition to do any general buying, Riles betook himself to his room. He had just got into bed when a knock came at the door.

"Who's there?" he demanded.

"Gen'l'man to see Mr. Riles," said the porter.

"Well, shoot 'im in. The door ain't locked," said Riles, in considerable wonderment as to who his visitor might be.

The door opened, and a well-dressed man of average height, with carefully combed hair and clean-shaven face, save for a light moustache, stood revealed in the uncertain glow of the match with which Riles was endeavouring to find his lamp. His visitor was a man of twenty-eight or thirty years, with clear eyes and well-cut face, and yet with some subtle quality in his expression that implied that under his fair exterior lay a deep cunning, and that he was a man not to be trusted in matters where his own interests might be at stake.

"Hello, Hiram," he said quietly. "You didn't figure on seeing me here, did you?"

At first glance Riles did not recognize him, and he raised the oil lamp to turn the light better on the stranger's face.

"Well, if it ain't Gardiner!" he exclaimed. "Where in Sam Hill did you come from?"

"It's a big country, Hiram," he said with a touch of bitterness, "but not big enough for a fellow to lose himself in." He sat down on the side of the bed and lit a cigar, tendering another to Riles, and the two men puffed in silence for a few minutes.

"Yes, I've hit a lot of trail since I saw you last," he continued, "and when you're in the shadow of the Rockies you're a long piece from Plainville. How's the old burg?? Dead as ever?"

"About the same," sad Riles. "You don't seem t' be wastin' no love on it."

"Nothing to speak of," said the other, slowly flicking the ash from his cigar. "Nothing to speak of. You know I got a raw deal there, Hiram, and it ain't likely I'd get enthusaiste over it."

"Well, when a fellow gets up against the law an' has t' clear out," said Riles, with great candour, "that's his funeral. As for me, I ain't got nothin' agen Plainville. You made a little money for yourself, didn't you?"

The younger man leaned back and slowly puffed circles of fragrant smoke at the ceiling, while Riles surveyed him from the head of the bed. He had been a business man in Plainville, but had become involved in a theft case, and had managed to escape from the town simply because a fellow-man whom he had wronged did not trouble to press the matter against him. Riles' acquaintance with him had not been close; except in a business way they had moved in other circles, and he was surprised and a little puzzled that Gardiner should find him out on the first night of his presence in the New West.

Gardiner showed no disposition to re-open the conversation about Plainville, so at last Riles asked, "How d'you know I was here?"

"Saw your scrawl on the register," he said, "and I've seen it too often on wheat tickets to forget it. Thought I'd look you up. Maybe can be of some service to you here. What are you chasing—more land?"

"Well, I won't say that, exactly, but I kind o' thought I'd come out and look over some of this stuff the Gover'ment's givin' away, before the furriners gets it all. Guess if there's anythin' free goin' us men that pioneered one province should get it on the next."

"You don't learn anything, Riles, do you? You don't know anything more about making money than you did twenty years ago."

"Well, maybe I don't, and maybe I do, but I can pay my way, an' I can go back t' Plainville when I like, too."

"Don't get hot," said Gardiner, with unshaken composure. "I'm just trying to put you wise to yourself. Don't make any difference to me if you spend your whole life sod-busting; it's your life—spend it any way you like. But it's only men who don't know any better that go on to the land nowadays. It's a lot easier to make a living out of farmers than out of farming."

"Well, p'r'haps so, but that's more in your line. I never——"

"That's just what I say—you never learn. Now look at me. I ain't wearing my last suit, nor spending my last dollar, either, and I haven't done what you'd call a day's work since I came West. There's other things so much easir to do."

"Meanin'?——"

"Oh, lots of things. Remittance men, for instance. These woods are full of them. Chaps that never could track straight in the old ruts, and were sent out here where there aren't any ruts at all. They're not a bad bunch; brought up like gentlemen, most of 'em; play the piano and talk in three or four languages, and all that kind of stuff, but they're simply dangerous with money. So when it comes to hand, in the public interest they have to be separated from it."

"Sounds interestin'," said Riles.

"'Tis, too, especially when one of 'em don't take to the treatment and lays for you with a gun. But my hair's all there. That's what comes of wearing a tall hat."

"Tell me," said Riles, his face lit up with interest, "how d'ye do it?"

"'Twouldn't do you any good," said Gardiner. "You've steered too many plough-handles to be very nimble with your fingers. But there's often other game to be picked up, if a man knows where to look for it."

"Well, I wisht I knew," Riles confessed. "Not anythin' crooked, y' know, but something like—well, something like you're doin'. I've worked hard for ev'ry nickel I ever made, an' I reckon if there's easy money goin' I've a right t' get some of it."

"Now you're beginning to wake up. Though, mind you, some of it isn't as easy as it looks. You've got to know your business, just like farming or anything else. But you can generally land something to live on, even if it ain't a big stake. Take me now, for instance. I ain't doing anything that a preacher mightn't do. Happened to fall in with a fellow owns a ranch up the river here. Cleaned him empty one night at cards—stood him up for his last cent, and he kind o' took a notion to me. Well, he's the son of a duke or an earl, or some such thing, and not long ago the Governor goes and dies on him, leaving him a few castles and bric-a-brac like that and some wagon-loads of money. So he had to go home for the time being, and as he wanted someone to run his ranch, who should he think of but me. Suppose he thought if I happened to bet it at poker some night I wouldn't lose it, and that's some consideration. He's got a thousand acres or so of land up there, with a dozen cayuses on it, and he gives me twenty-five pounds a month, with board and lodging and open credit at the Trading Company, to see that it doesn't walk away in his absence. Besides that, I hire a man to do the work, and charges his wages up in the expenses. Got a good man, too—one of those fellows who don't know any better than work for a living. By the way, perhaps you know him—comes from Plainville part—Travers his name is?"

"Sure," said Riles. "He worked for Harris, until they had a row and he lit out. It kind o' balled Harris up, too, although he'd never admit it. If he'd Travers there it'd be easier for him t' get away now."

"Where's Harris going?"

"He ain't goin'; he's comin'. Comin' out here in a few days after me. I'm his kind o' advance guard, spyin' out the land.'"

Headaches Gone

Perhaps you can imagine what this means to one who had suffered terribly with headaches for ten years.

Read about it in this latter.

Mrs. Tena A. Smith, Country Harbor Cross Roads, N. S., writes:

"I feel that if anyone can recommend Dr. Chase's medicines I certainly can. I suffered for ten years from severe headaches, and although I took all kinds of headache powders they just relieved me at the time. I became very nervous and run-down, and everything seemed to trouble me. I have taken eighteen boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and it has made an entirely new person of me. I felt that I could not have lived without it. I do not have one headache now for every hundred I used to have, and my nerves are good and strong. I just weighed 109 pounds when I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and now I weigh 121. Knowing what this treatment has done for me, I cannot too highly recommend it to others."

An Emergency Umbrella

Top of Heavy Oiled Paper Sheds Water Effectively

Almost everyone has been caught unprepared by a sudden rain and has wished he might buy an umbrella, for the emergency only, without investing a dollar or more. An umbrella, which will meet that want, is described with illustration in the December Popular Mechanics Magazine. The top is of heavy oiled paper, which sheds water effectively, and the handle is of cheap wood. It costs far less than the pressing of a wet and wrinkled suit.

Pyr, Ecum Secum, N.S., writes:—"My baby was terribly constipated but Baby's Own Tablets soon relieved her and I now think them a splendid medicine for little ones." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Says Canada Is Workers' Paradise

Major Mary Booth Thinks Conditions Are Ideal

Canada was eulogized as a worker's paradise by Major Mary Booth, General Bramwell Booth's second daughter, who has returned to England from a visit to the Dominion. "Canada does strike one as a place to live in," she said in an interview. "All the houses seem to have telephones and electrical washing machines controlled by pressing a button. Even the mangles are worked by electricity. Everybody seems to have a motor car. One of the biggest shops in Toronto has a garage for its employees' cars.

Colic, Cramps, Stomach Pains Need a Quick Relief

Security against these sudden ills consists in always keeping handy a bottle or two of Nerviline. No family should ever go to bed unless Nerviline is in the house. It fulfils so perfectly every service as a pain remedy that once used, you'll never again be without it. Money can't buy much greater assurance against the many small ills that constantly arise in every family than you get in a 35c bottle of Nerviline. Sold everywhere.

More Creameries Needed

Despite the high cost of construction the demand for creameries in Saskatchewan is most urgent. While there are, it is estimated, fewer milch cows in the province than last year, the number of creameries register a great increase and represent a total investment worth $2,175,000.

Home-Visitors' Fares

A Trip Back Home Via the National National

At this time of the year, with the Christmas holiday season drawing near, the question of a winter holiday trip back home to see the "old folks" is uppermost in the minds of many Western people.

With this in view, the Canadian National Railways have arranged for considerably reduced fares from stations in Western Canada—Winnipeg West in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. The special fares may be taken advantage of any time between December 1st, 1921, and January 15th, 1922, and are good for return during three months from date of issue. Tickets may be purchased to any point in Eastern Canada. See any Canadian National Railway Agent for further particulars.

Miller's Worm Powders are a prompt relief from the attacks of worms in children. They are powerful in their action and, while leaving nothing to be desired as a worm expellant, have an invigorating effect upon the youthful system, remedying fever, biliousness, loss of appetite, sleeplessness and other ailments that follow disorders caused by worms in the stomach and bowels.

A Pretty Frock for the Small Girl

By Marie Belmont

Voile is an admirable fabric for the small girl's dress, as it is easily laundered and wears very well. A pleasing shade of tan voile is favored for the fashioning of this frock. It is designed with a square cut neck line, which is outlined with brown grosgrain satin ribbon. The ribbons are continued down the front and also trim the side sashes. They are used to simulate cuffs on the short sleeves, while the skirt shows an interesting ribbon trimming. Of course you might substitute bands of brown voile instead of the ribbon, and this would be equally effective.

The Terror of Asthma comes like a thief in the night with its dreadful throttling, robbing its victim of breath. It seems beyond the power of human aid to relieve until one trial is made of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy. Then relief comes promptly. Life becomes worth living, and, if the remedy be used persistently, the disease is put to rout. Take no substitute.

THIS WOMAN'S MISERY

Ended by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Remarkable Recovery of Mrs. Church.

Smiths Falls, Ont.—"I suffered with falling of my organs, pains around my heart and in bowels and down my legs, neuralgia in my face and head, and that terrible sinking feeling. I felt that I could not live and would fix my house in order every night so there would be no trouble if I dropped off in the night. My husband went to the druggist to get the best remedy he had and he gave him Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took six bottles and felt a lot better. I will always recommend the Vegetable Compound, and you can use these facts as a testimonial."—Mrs. J. O. CHURCH, Box 845, Smiths Falls, Ont.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from nervous prostration, displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion and dizziness. Staples, the Slacker?

"Vote for Humphrey, the only Farmer-Labor candidate, who went "over there," while Staples stayed at "Home sweet home." God Save the King.

The above excerpt from the advertising publicity of Farmer Labor candidate appearing in Saturday's Nelson Daily News will come as a distinct shock to many of the supporters of Mr. Humphrey.

When the Farmer-Labor nominee took the field ample assurance was given that clean politics would prevail—none of the old line parties' doubtful tactics were to be resorted to.

And yet, within one week of Roy Staples taking the field an attempt is made to discredit him on the score that he "stayed at home, sweet home, while Mr. Humphrey was "over there"—meaning in France, undoubtedly.

While, for the very best of reasons, it was not needful for a man of Staples' age, and family and business ties to volunteer for overseas service, yet on the off chance of taking a few votes away from him gentleman of this new party of so-called clean politics have no hesitation in resorting the lowest sort of politics that the campaign anywhere has so far witnessed.

Whether this wholly undeserved and contemptible attack on Mr. Staples was written from or inspired by the men who are handling the Humphrey campaign in Creston Valley matters not. Up to the present Mr. Humphrey has not repudiated it, and if he is willing to take such gain as may accrue from it in other parts of the riding, he likewise should not complain of the losses it will bring him in this district—if we can judge from the shout of disapproval that followed the publication of the paragraph.

If the Staples home were in danger of destruction by fire or other cause there is not an elector in the Valley who would refuse to lend a helping hand to save it.

And yet how far more important is the preservation of a friend's reputation. Scripture informs that "A good name is more to be prized than great riches."

Whatever other criticism R o Staples, now he is a candidate, may be subjected to, by no stretch of the imagination can even his worst personal enemy truthfully call him a slacker; the most distasteful epithet that can be hurled these times.

Both on the score of registering an effective protest against the despicable conduct of these alleged political puritans and at the same time proclaiming in no uncertain terms that Creston does not stand for this sort of personal election campaigning, the most effective way of registering disapproval is by rolling up such a majority for Staples that for many years to come campaign managers will not be likely to forget that while Creston may take its politics seriously it is far from being that partizan that any party can with impunity besmirch the good name of any citizen in the altogether dirty fashion that has been resorted to to defame Roy B. Staples.

If there are those herabouts who have been looking for a valid excuse for breaking either from the Conservative or Farmer-Labor ranks to cast their ballot for Staples surely no better reason could possibly be asked.

If tactics of this sort are to go unrebuked this election, what may we expect in the future. Strike a blow on behalf of clean campaigning, and in full assurance that your vote is in every way in the best interests of Creston Valley, by marking your ballot for Staples on Tuesday next.

Canada for the Canadians

What Is To Be Canada's Destiny?

Shall it be that through the destruction of the Tariff as proposed by both Crerar and King, the development of Canada is to come under the domination of the United States, to be followed by gradual financial domination and as a consequence, political domination?

OR

Is Canada's destiny to be that of a great free nation within the British Empire group of Nations, developing her boundless resources of mine, river, water power, forest, and cultivating her millions upon millions of acres of arable land? Is her development to surpass that of any other nation?

Shall her manufacturing industries develop her minerals and raw materials into implements and goods for the benefit and comfort of her people and for foreign trade?

Shall she become a self-contained nation within the Empire, her great railways interchanging, the products of factory and farm among her own people, and her ships sailing every sea?

Shall she maintain her integrity within the Empire and protect her farms and factories against unfair competition from foreign countries?

IF THIS IS TO BE CANADA'S DESTINY THEN CANADA NEEDS MEIGHEN.

On December 6th, Canada should once again protect her farms, her factories and her workmen against the unsound theory of Free Trade, and should hold fast to her reasonable Protective Tariff, her national entity and her British connection.

On December 6th Canada should declare with no uncertain voice that she will not tolerate the false trade theories of visionaries and group leaders which tend toward her economic destruction, toward the separation of her people and the weakening of the ties that bind Canada to the British Empire.

On December 6th Canada should demonstrate unmistakably to the outside world her fixed determination to keep Canada for the Canadians.

On December 6th Canada's destiny is at stake.

Where Has the Money Gone

Creston, B.C., November 25th, 1921.—According to the books and records of Creston Local of the United Farmers of B.C. there is no record of Roy B Staples being a member?

(Signed) William S. MacAlpine,
Secretary-Treasurer.

The above is from advertising publicity of L. W. Humphrey, appearing in the Nelson Daily News of Saturday.

As yet no denial has appeared of The Review's statement (on the authority of U.F. Organizer J. W. Humphrey) that any farmer is eligible for membership in the U.F. on payment of the membership fee.

Mr. Staples paid the $2 fee last March, after being canvassed to join up by the then president of the Creston Local.

To date his cheque has not been returned, nor has he been in any way informed that membership had been refused.

Since information has been given out that Mr. Staples' name is not on the roll will the Creston Local officials kindly inform as to what they have done with Staples' money and why the U.F. constitution is being subverted to debar from membership a bona fide farmer, while at the same time electing to its presidency a man who neither makes his living off the land, nor makes his home on the land.

Is Creston Local of the United Farmers playing politics, with its slogan, "No Grits need apply?"

Good News For The World

Christmas, 1921, gives promise of more nearly approaching to a realization of the song of the angels on the first Christmas morn, "Peace on earth goodwill to men," than any like season in years past thanks to the conference on the limitation of armaments convened at Washington. It is too early as yet to estimate the results of this epoch-making conference, but that it cannot fail to be productive of much good was clearly established at the opening session and subsequent days.

The Great War ended in the "scrapping" of the German navy, a big fleet created as an offensive weapon, a threat against all other nations and the peace and freedom of the world. The British and United States navies have been brought into being for defensive purposes, and the former has long been regarded as a world policeman and been responsible, not for precipitating wars, but in preventing them and maintaining order and extending liberty in all parts of the globe. When the German navy struck its colors and was ignominously scuttled, the Austrian and Turkish fleets met a like fate. And with the destruction of these navies the need for maintaining great defensive fleets by Great Britain, the United States, Japan and other nations passed, unless they, too, were to keep on building against one another.

The whole world rejoices at the evidence produced by the Washington conference that any insane, human, barbarous policy is not to be followed. Britain and the United States, the two greatest naval powers, are not distrustful of each other. Neither has any cause to fear attack from the other. And Japan, the third naval power, whose motives are not so well understood, has been asked to join in putting a stop to further construction of these huge and enormously expensive monsters of destruction and to "scrap" hundreds of millions of dollars worth of ships already built and building.

And the Governments of these three countries have agreed to stop the suicidal, war-provoking race for naval supremacy. Whatever the politicians, the militarists and armament manufacturers of these countries may think and desire, they fully realize that any Government which refused to entertain the proposal submitted at the Washington conference would be swept out of office by an outraged people. There may be changes in details of the plan submitted, but in the main it must be ratified because the people themselves so will it.

It will not be the first time that Britain and the United States "scrapped" their navies, or, at least, portions o fthem. More than one hundred years ago these two countries by treaty pledged themselves not to maintain naval forces on the Great Lakes between Canada and the States. That agreement has been carried out by both countries, in letter and in spirit. For over a century there has been no threat of one against the other along the long international boundary line. Nor has either country in naval expansion on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts created vessels of a design intended for use against each other.

What the United States and Britain could and did do over one hundred years ago, and what they have succeeded in doing throughout the years that have followed, all nations ought to be not only willing but able to do in this still more enlightened age. The saving in money and consequent taxation of the people will be enormous, but the greatest benefit of all will be the removal of a standing threat against each other and the peace of the world which these huge fleets of battleships constitute.

The United States demonstrated its good faith in calling the conference at Washington and in the proposals submitted to it. There was no compulsion on the United States to take such action. It is in a position to stand the strain of competitive naval armaments better than any other country. Britain has demonstrated her sincerity not only by acceptance of the programme submitted, but in taking immediate action stopping all work on construction of new ships, including the four powerful battle-cruisers of the Hood type, and in urging a still further reduction in submarine construction. The four Hoods alone would have meant a cost equal to three dollars per head for every man, woman and child in the British Isles.

Canada is deeply interested in the outcome. It means that it will not be necessary for this Dominion to even take a start at creating a navy—a course which would have been inevitable if the old race in battleship building was to be continued. It is a further guarantee of continued peace between the two great branches of the English-speaking race, the breaking of which peace would make Canada the battlefield for the contending forces. It will remove danger of Canada becoming involved in a struggle between the United States and Japan, because the Washington proposals are bound to remove much of the growing friction between those two nations.

It is far better for the nations of the world to scrap their navies than to have their navies scrap. It is a great forward step towards turning the instruments of war into the machinery and tools of peaceful industry. Peace on earth, goodwill to men will have a new meaning this Christmas.

RHEUMATIC PAINS HAVE DISAPPEARED

As a Result of Treating the Trouble Through the Blood

The chief symptom of rheumatism is pain. The most successful treatment is the one that most quickly relieves and banishes the pain. Many rheumatic people suffer pains that could be avoided by building up the blood; when rheumatism is associated with thin blood it cannot be corrected until the blood is built up.

Mr. Ed. Hall, Main-a-Dieu, N.S., suffered from rheumatism for years, but was more fortunate than many victims of the disease for he found a remedy that so built up his entire system that he is now free from rheumatism. Mr. Hall says: "I was taken down with rheumatism, and at times was under the treatment of several of the best doctors in Cape Breton, but they held out no hope for my recovery from the trouble. I was confined to bed for three years and a helpless cripple from the trouble. I could not move, and had to be turned in sheets. My legs and fingers were drawn out of shape, and sores developed on my body as the result of my long confinement to bed. I was in this serious condition when a friend advised the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I began taking them. The first benefit I felt from the pills was an improved appetite, and then I began to feel stronger, and was finally able to get out of bed and go about on crutches. I continued taking the pills for months, slowly but surely getting new strength, and finally I was able to lay the crutches aside. I will always be lame, as the result of my long stay in bed, my left leg has shortened somewhat, but otherwise I am feeling fine and able to do my work as Fishery Overseer. I may add that when the rheumatism came on I weighed 140 pounds, and when I began going about on crutches I only weighed 67 pounds, and now I am at normal weight. There are many here who know and can vouch for the truth of these statements."

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Mrs. Margaret Bond Says Troubles Cost Her A Small Fortune

"During the five years I suffered with stomach trouble and rheumatism I spent a small fortune trying to get well," said Mrs. Margaret Bond, of Riding Mountain, Manitoba, wife of a prosperous farmer well known throughout that section.

"My stomach was in such bad condition," she continued, "that I couldn't eat scarcely anything without suffering afterwards. I often had such painful attacks of rheumatism in my limbs that I couldn't help crying. I was so nervous that if I tried to take a drink of water my hands shook so the water would spill and I was never able to get a good night's sleep. I took all kinds of medicines and treatments, but nothing seemed to help me.

"During the 'flu' epidemic I was taken down with it. I was in bed five weeks and when I got up I wasn't able to leave the house for ten weeks and I didn't have any hope of ever getting well again.

"I decided to try Tanlac as a last resort. I have taken eight bottles of this medicine and the results have been just wonderful. My appetite began to improve after the first few doses and I felt hungry all the time. I am now able to eat anything I want and don't suffer in the least with indigestion, am no longer nervous and can sleep all night and when morning comes I am feeling fine and ready for a hearty breakfast. I haven't a rheumatic pain about me, in fact I feel as well as I ever did in my life and my health seems to be perfect in every way. I have gained eleven pounds in weight and am so much stronger that I can do my housework with ease."

Tanlac is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

Wisdom Of Limiting Land Armament Is Considered Doubtful

Washington.—When the arms delegates quit work for the Thanksgiving Day recess the following three considerations embraced the central points of interest in their discussion:

Whether the effort to apply generally accepted principles to specific cases in the Far East would bring definite accomplishments or only lead to futile debate.

Whether, in view of the position of France and the general situation in Europe, any serious attempt should be made to agree on a limitation of land armament.

Whether a way can be found to hasten consideration of details on the naval limitation plan, which is proceedingly smoothly, but too slowly to satisfy some of the delegates.

Of these questions the first was brought sharply to the fore by several direct clashes of opinion regarding elements of the Far Eastern negotiations. At the executive session of the nine delegations, the right of the Chinese delegates to speak for the Chinese delegates was reported to have been questioned by France, and later a British interpretation of the general principles already adopted was challenged by some of the Chinese.

Earlier in the day the land armament problem had been debated behind closed doors by the delegates of the big five powers, without further result than the appointment of a subcommittee to consider collateral subjects like the use of airplanes and poison gases.

Premier Briand, of France, making his farewell speech to the conference, pressed his argument that his country dared not disarm unless he had guarantees from the other powers, and although the general discussion drew renewed expressions of sympathy from every other national group, no one proposed any formal joint declaration of policy.

Club Thrown At Prince In Bombay

Vancouver.—A special cable to the Vancouver World says that while the Prince of Wales was entering a building in Bombay a club was thrown at his head by someone in the crowd of spectators. The missile missed its mark and the Prince passed into the building unharmed. A great crowd had assembled to witness the visit of the arrivals for the ball, which was being given in connection with the Prince's visit to Bombay. The assailant escaped, so far as cables indicate, in the confusion which followed the attack.

Winter Work Will Avoid Delay

Year Would Be Saved On Big Irrigation Project

Calgary.—Representations will be made immediately to the department of the interior, Ottawa, by the Calgary Board of Trade in support of a resolution presented by the Hanna Board of Trade, urging that survey parties be continued through the winter months in the North Saskatchewan irrigation area, now known as the William Pearce irrigation scheme.

This action was decided upon by the council of the local Board of Trade after having the project outlined to them by William Pearce.

It was represented that should the survey parties continue working throughout the winter months, the necessary data required to estimate the approximate cost of the scheme would be available next spring, which would avoid a possible delay in operations of perhaps a year.

From investigations already made, it would appear to be practically certain that Sullivan Lake can be made an immense reservoir, requiring considerable dyking on the east side to render it so.

Moplahs Killed In Recent Fighting

Much to be Done Before Rebellion is Quelled

London.—Although the official report of the operations against the Moplahs in Southern India declares that considerable progress is being made in dealing with the rebellion, it is evident that the process of clearing up still involves severe fighting from the announcement that 233 Moplahs were killed and 54 captured, and on the British side one Gurkha officer and one British officer were killed in the drive north of the Beypore River. A large concentration of Moplahs under all the best known leaders, is reported as taking place at Bear Chembrasseries, and the British authorities think it would probably be most satisfactory, from a military viewpoint, if this force could be induced to give battle.

China's Financial Crisis Averted

Three Months' Pay Received For Police and Soldiers

Peking.—The financial crisis which threatened the stability of the government has been averted temporarily through remittances from the provincial military governors, totalling 7,000,000/taels. Such heavy remittances from the provinces are unprecedented.

The provincial funds are sufficient to pay the police and soldiers three months' wages, thereby averting the threatened looting of the capital, but will not provide for the civil administration. High civil officials are supporting the government banks by transferring their personal funds to Peking, and as a result notes are again negotiable.

Big Profit On Liquor Sales

B.C. Government Nets $541,606 In Three and Half Months

Victoria, B.C.—The British Columbia Government made a net profit of $541,606 on liquor sales for the first three and one-half months of operation under the Liquor Sales Board from June 15 to September 30, according to a balance sheet filed in the Legislature by Hon. J. W. de B. Farris, attorney-general, in accordance with the terms of the Liquor Control Act. This does not include the $121,000 received from the sale of permits.

Not Conference Result

London.—The partial suspension in the recruiting of seamen for the navy has no connection with the Washington Conference, but is due to the fact that the admiralty, for a long time, has been scrapping obsolete vessels and generally grading the personnel of the navy in pursuance of its policy of retrenchment.

Double Premium

London.—The Board of Trade announces that the German Government has doubled the premium levied when gold duties under the customs tariff are paid in paper currency. Thus four thousand paper marks must be paid for each hundred marks in gold instead of two thousand marks as previously.

Puts Responsibility On Alberta Doctors

Have Been Given Choice Regarding Liquor Prescriptions

Calgary.—Physicians and surgeons of Alberta have had it put squarely up to them by J. D. Brownlee, attorney-general, as to just how many liquor prescriptions each one shall write during a month. By giving the doctors the choice of writing anywhere from a minimum of 25 to a maximum of 100 prescriptions a month, the responsibility for prescribing liquor other than for medicinal uses is put squarely on the shoulders of the individual doctor.

There was some talk that the attorney-general's department was preparing to cut down the number of liquor prescriptions to 25 a month. Instead, the department chose the course of leaving it to the doctors themselves.

Australian Premier Introduces Bill to Extend Federal Power

London.—A Reuter cable from Melbourne says that Premier Hughes introduced in the House of Lords a federal convention bill designed to amend the constitution of the commonwealth to give greater powers to the Federal Parliament and lessen powers to the state legislature. The bill provides for the election of 111 members, comprising 18 elected by the Federal Parliament, 18 by the state parliaments and 75 by the adult franchise of the commonwealth. Within a year after the first meeting, the convention must report on constitutional amendments desirable and within 15 days the necessary legislation will be introduced.

Montreal Man Sent Hound to Assist Woman

Montreal.—The sagacity of a Belgian police dog, belonging to Joseph Cote, led to the arrest of Arthur Leblanc, who snatched a purse from Mrs. MacFarland as she was walking home. The astute hound first seized the stolen purse and dashed back with it to his master. He then ran back and, cornering LeBlanc, held him until the arrival of a police officer.

Another Letter to Farmers
Answering that of Nov. 25th

The above letter alluded to, signed by the Liberal Publicity Committee, is best answered by asking, "Why the attempt to make a cleavage between farmers and labor." To a person of only average intelligence there must be a great danger to apprehend from the unity of the farmer and labor bodies.

To whom would this danger apply? This is clearly answered by the signature of the Liberal Association. Firstly they state that they "the Liberals and Conservatiyes" are always with us, like the poor, and their aims and objects are quite well known to all. Quite so. They are. And in this fact lies the reason of the beginning of this same Farmer-Labor movement.

We grow the apples. They eat them. Brother farmers the danger lies in the fact, that if the farmer once learns what can be done by unity in one thing, he will quickly realize that the same effort devoted to other directions will quickly bring about better conditions for himself and his wife, "who they state—and who does, in many instances, work the full twenty-four hours," and the country at large. For he who denies thefact that a prosperous farming community means a prosperous nation, confesses himself a fool.

They state the term "farmer" is well-defined as to its meaning. It is. And is generally accepted as meaning one who gains his livlihood by tilling the soil. But, there are farmers and farmers of the farmers. In which category do you think the Liberal and Conservative parties stand?

As to the difficulty of uniting the farmer and labor interests, the best evidence of that being possible is the fact that it has taken place, and with God's help will carry us to victory.

The delgates to the convention represented farmers, prospectors, miners, railroad men, lumbeemen. etc., and if our representative should not fulfill his pledges we have the power to recall him. Does the Liberal or the Conservative candidate give us this security?

They speak of the wage of a conductor as $4000.

Will they kindly give the name of one conductor who gets this salary? They also state as official figures an average wage for railroad men for 1920 as being $1447, including callboys, pick and shovel men, etc. But they do not state that it also includes a rail road president at $100,000 per annum; a vice-president at $50,000; other high officials at $10,000 and so on down the scale.

They tell us the cost of wages is the chief item in the high cost of transportation. It is more than probable that if there was no "watered stock" in these transportation companies, nor such a large "sinking fund" illegally held, that it would be possible to double the average wage of employees, and still reduce the freight rates to half of those applying at present, and still return a good interest on capital actually invested.

Fellow farmers, if you study these points you will not find it difficult to realize why the effort is being made to keep separate the elements of farmer and labor. It spells FEAR.

The farmer is the best financier in the country today. He can make a dollar go further than anyone else, because he has to. Does it not appeal to you that, considering the harsh training they have had, and realizing the condition of the nation's finances, when 140 or 150 of these men go back to Ottawa that they will tackle these problems in a sane and sensible manner, and an economical one, for the welfare of the nation as a whole.

Wherever we turn these days a notice greets our eyes—even on our gate posts—"Time for a Change." We have had both Liberals and Conservatives with us too long. On December 6th don't vote for a return of the old parties, but "vote for a change" to Honesty, Truth and Justice, by marking your X for L. W. Humphrey, the Farmer-Labor candidate. The Conservatives offer a doctor as candidate; the Liberals, a merchant; the Farmer-Labor, an intelligent fellow-worker.

Facts concerning the Liberal candidate, who was selected by a few Nelson and Trail Liberals:

1. The Staples Fruit Company of Creston, of which Roy. B. Staples is manager, is a subsidiary company of the Mutual Brokers of Calgary, this being part of the Nash Bros., Minneapolis, AMERICAN CAPITAL, AMERICAN OWNED, which firm is an obstacle to Provincial co-operation in fruit distribution.

2. Staples is an employer of Asiastic labor on his ranch and in his warehouses.

3. While the masses of our Canadian people have to tolerate the Asiatics for the PRESENT, we do not approve of a man who desires to represent the people in Parliament being an employer of Asiatic labor while numbers of our citizens, and especially RETURNED SOLDIERS, are without employment.

4. Among the delegates appointed for the Farmer-Labor convention from the Creston Valley were the manager of the Wynndel Co-Operative Selling Agency, Mr. O. J. Wigen, Mr. A. H. Piggot, a director of the Wynndel Co-Operative Store; Mr. Guy Constable, of Alice Siding, past president of the Creston Board of Trade; Mr. W. V. Van Eckeun, secretary of the Canyon School Board and member of Canyon Local, United Farmers of B.C., and Mr. A. Huggins, member Canyon Local, United Farmers.

5. Creston, B.C., November 25th, 1921.—According to the books and records of the Creston Local of the United Farmers of B.C., there is no record of Mr. Roy B. Staples being a member.

(Signed) WILLIAM S. MACALPINE,

6. The farmers were not consulted or asked to attend the convention and did not attend convention when Roy B. Staples was made the last resort.

7. Staples has no idea of being elected, his is a move to endeavor to camouflage the farmers, to try to divert their support from the only Farmer-Labor candidate, Mr. L. W. Humphrey.

8. No one knows better than "Farmer?" Staples that "Heaven helps those who help themselves," as he demonstrated when he quit the Creston Fruit Growers' Union to slide into a business detrimental to the fruit growers and beneficial to himself.
