A. R. Swanson, who arrived about six weeks ago to take charge of the C.P.R. depot, has again heard the call of the coast, and expects to be leaving this week to take a similar post at North Bend, the first divisional point east of Vancouver. As yet there is no announcement as to his successor.

Pete Langueval, a Saskatchewan farmer, who has spent the last two winters at Kuskanook, has now been convinced that is the locality he has been wanting to settle down in, and has taken on the 20-acre Wright ranch. He expects a car of effects, including a few horses, to arrive any day now for ranch operations. Just now he is busy on the driftwood getting out a carload of posts for shipment to Saskatchewan.

The Rod and Gun Club has just been advised that game conservation board representative Guimont of Cranbrook cannot visit here until early next month, and in consequence the club banquet has been postponed a couple of weeks.

Fall Fair Whist Most Successful

The annual whist drive and dance and raffle by the directiors of the Agricultural Association in the Parish Hall on Easter Monday night will net the fall fair funds at least $75.

The turnout for cards was smaller than usual but by the time refreshments were served and the dance crowd had arrived the attendance was quite satisfactory, with a sufficiency of dancers that taxed the Parish Hall floor comfortably, with Mesdames Foreman and Lister and Al. Lidgate furnishing excellent music for the hop, which was in charge of C. G. Bennett.

The play at cards was very close for the high score honors with ties resulting in both the ladies' and gents. In the former Mrs. Foster cut high and took the prize over Miss Lillian Cherrington, whilst C. O. Rodgers had the same good fortune in the cut with J. D. Siddons. Low score trophies went to Mrs. J. E. Hayden and H. Christie.

Much interest was taken in the draw for the sheep, prior to which R. B. Staples auctioned off some unsold tickets at very satisfactory prices. Col. Fred Lister, M. P. P., made the draw of ticket 167, which was held by C. O. Rodgers.

Before announcing the prizewinners, President Mallandaine in a neat speech expressed the directors thanks to R. Comfort, Bert Norris, A.E. French, Mercantile Company, Creston Review, Beatie Oatway, Limited, Mawson Bros., S.A. Speers, Staples & Pierson, Lidgate Bros., and P. Burns & Co. for donations of prizes and refreshments, along with the ladies who were most generous in contributing all the cakes, etc., needed for the supper, and some few to spare, which were also auctioned.

Credit for the success of the evening is largely due to Mesdames, Bennett, Hayes and Johnson, who looked after the supper, and President Mallandaine, Directors, Allan, Bennett, Hayes, and Johnson, and E. C. Gibbs.

SUNDAY, APRIL 8

CRESTON	ERICKSON
8 and 11 a.m., 7.30 p.m.	8 p.m.

Mrs. John Bird left the early part of the month sor a visit with friends in Cranbrook.

Owing to a shortage of space this week the March report of Lister school is held over until next issue.

Several from here were at Creston on Monday night for the fall fair whist and dance in the Parish Hall.

Kitchener

Miss Hunter, principal of Kitchener school, is spending the Easter vacation with Creston friends.

Miss Edith Geroux is home from Nelson high school to spend the holidays with her parents here.

Mr. and Mrs. McKenna are Easter week visitors with friends in Spokane.

Reg. Hull, who has been with the Paulson-Mason Company for the past three years, is leaving the firm's employ to take a position with a lumber company at the coast.

Kitchener loses one of her best citizens in the death of Allan Cameron, who was knocked unconscious by a falling tree on Thursday last, while at work with his father-in-law, Omer Geroux, on a contract with the Paulson Mason Company. The accident happened just before the arrival of the eastbound train in Kitchener and the injured man was placed on it going to the Cranbrook hospital. Fortunately Dr. Henderson was also on the train, and he gave the case every possible attention but to no avail as Mr. Cameron never reached consciousness and died before the train reached Yahk. Of the deceased it can well be said he was honest, industrious, though of retiring disposition, and enjoyed the highest respect of all who knew him. Notwithstanding his love of the quiet life of his home he never failed to lend a helping hand in all deserving causes. He was forty years of age and leaves a wife and two small children to mourn his death. The high esteem in which deceased was held in the large attendance of Kitchener people at the funeral which was held at Cranbrook on Sunday who covered the coffin with floral tributes. The deepest sympathy of all goes out to Mrs. Cameron and the children, as well as her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geroux, who reside here.

Desired Tonnage Bookek

Up till Wednesday 195 of the desired 200 cars tonnnage desired by the Union had been signed up and no fear is entertained as to the required tonnage being booked. The big co-operative reached its objective on Friday night, with a showing of almost 84 per cent., and if the Creston offer is accepted it will mean the big new selling concern will have control of 90 per cent. of the B. C. fruit output.

Early Season at Kuskanook

Mrs. M. G Jones of Kuskanook, who was a week-end guest at the rectory with Rev. H. and Mrs. Varley, brought along proof positive that the season in that section is much earlier than here, in the shape of several bunches of outdoor grown green onions that showed a growth of at least six inches. They were of course, the winter variety, but she also has the spring planting of lettuce, radishes and onions up already.

Athletic Club Formed

There was a good turnout, particularly of boys from 11 to 16 years of age, at the meeting on Tuesday night in the Parish Hall for the purpose of organizing an athletic club. Until such time as more equipment is available the club will devote much of its effort to boxing, bag punching, etc., with plenty of road work as soon as the travelling is good. Fred Benhan was confirmed in the position of instructor and the organization gets off to a most enthusiastic start along lines that the boys have approved of.

Wynndel

There was a meeting of the Berry Growers' Co Operative on Monday night, at which the chief business was the signing of contracts.

G. W. Taylor arrived back from Lethbridge, Alta., on Thursday, accompanied by his family

Mr. Foxall returned to Kimberley on Tuesday, after spending Easter with his family here.

Messrs Douglas Butterfield and Cecil Moore were here for the masquerade on Saturday night, returning to Galloway on Monday.

Ken. Dewar, who was here for a few days last week, returned to Bellevue, Alta., on Sunday.

Miss Marie Hook and little sister, Ethel, arrived from Spokane on Sunday to spend Easter holidays with their grandmother, Mrs. J. J. Grady.

The Ladies' Aid had a most successful time with their Easter bazaar on Saturday, the intake being over $100. When all expenses are paid there should be a splendid balance which, we understand, will be used in the erection of a church.

The United Farmers masquerade ball on Saturday night was a most enjoyable affair. The costumes were many and varied and real good. Percy Owles as a darkie from "down souf" carried off the gent's comic prize, whilst the ladies' comic went to Mrs. Sadler and Mrs. Rosindale, as "Darby and Joan". They were well disguised and mystified many as to who they were. The prize for the ladies' best and prettiest costume went to Miss Butterfield, who was costumed as a Spanish Gipsy. The best dressed gent was Walter Carr, who was attired in full evening dress. He was certainly It, and the glad rags suited him to perfection.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at Bellevue, Alta., by Rev. H. Peters, on March 24th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Bathie, when Mr. Kenneth Dewar and Miss Merle Bathie were joined in wedlock. Mr. Dewar was supported by his brother, Donald, as best man, while the bride was supported by Miss Hilda Inglas. Mr. Dewar is one of the boys who helped make Bellvue famous in the hockey world. It is understood that Mr. and Mrs. Dewar intend to make their home in Bellevue for the present and their many friends join in wishing them a happy and prosperous married life.

CHAPTER VII.

The Old Trail

For another mile Wade followed the main road and then diverged sharply to the left into what was known as the old, or upper, trail. This had formerly been the valley road until made dangerous by a wash-out a year or two previous. In the following spring the wash-out had been partially repaired, but the going was still so rough that the new road was widened and had been used by preference ever since. The old trail, however, was nearly four miles the shorter of the two, and was still traveled in cases of emergency, although to do so at speed and in the dark was hazardous.

Wade's promise to Dorothy to take good care of himself had been made with mental reservation, for, obsessed by his anxiety over Santry, the young ranchman was in no mood to spare either himself or his horse. His going was marked by a constant shower of stones, sometimes behind him, as the wiry cayuse climbed like a mountain goat; but as often in front, as horse and rider coasted perilously down some declivity. The horse sweated and trembled with nervousness, as a frightened child might, but never refused to attempt what its master demanded of it. One might almost say that there existed a human understanding between man and beast as to the importance of their errand; a common pulse, which urged them onward.

When Wade reflected that Dorothy, too, had come over that trail by night in his interest, he thought her more than ever a wonderful girl. Even to one born and raised in the cattle country, the trip would have been difficult; but then he realized that Dorothy seemed much like a ranch-bred girl in her courage and frank womanliness, nor was she any less charming on that account. After all, he thought, women paid too highly for little accomplishments, if to gain them they had to sacrifice the vital points of character. He could not help but contrast Helen's insistence that she should be escorted back to the hotel with Dorothy's brave ride alone, and while he was too loyal to Helen Rexhill to blame her in this respect, the thing made a deep impression upon him.

The way was long, and he had time for many thoughts. It was natural, in the still night, with Dorothy only a little while gone, that he should think tenderly of her, for this cost Santry nothing. For Santry, Wade was reserving not thought but action. He was making up his mind that if Moran had taken the foreman into custody on a trumped up charge of murder, the agent should feel the power of a greater tribunal than any court in the locality—the law of the Strong Arm! Behind him in this, the ranchman knew, was the whole of the cattle faction, and since war had been thrust upon them he would not stop until the end came, whatever it might be. His conscience was clean, for he had exerted himself manfully in the cause of peace, even to the point where his own character had suffered, and now the hour of reprisal was at hand.

He rode, at last, over the top of the Divide and into the little draw that led up to the ranch buildings, in the windows of which lights gleamed. With an imprecation at sight of them, he tied his horse to a post, and, revolver in hand, crept toward the house as quietly as a Sioux.

Except for the light, there was no sign of life about the place, and Wade craftily advanced into the deeper shadows close to the wall of the house. Taking off his hat, so that the crown might not betray him, he peeped through a window. What he saw made him clinch his fingers and grit his teeth in rage.

Inside were half a dozen men, besides three of his own ranch hands who lay trussed up like turkeys in one corner of the room; doubtless they had been surprised by the posse before they had opportunity to run or put up a fight. Moran was there, stretched comfortably on Wade's own cot, smoking a cigar. Once, he looked directly toward the window at which the watcher had placed himself but the latter did not move. Instead he fingered his gun and waited; he was not sure that he really wanted to avoid detection; if it came, Moran would pay; and the rest; at the moment, did not seem to matter. He had forgotten Dorothy entirely.

But Santry was not there and this fact puzzled Wade. The Sheriff was not there either, and presently it occurred to the cattleman that a part of the posse, with Santry, might have returned to Crawling Water over the main trail. Probably Moran, with the rest, was waiting for him. The mere thought of Santry already on his way to jail filled Wade with a baffling sense of rage, and creeping from the house, he examined the surrounding turf by the faint rays of the moon. It was badly cut up by the feet of many horses, and several minutes passed before Wade was really sure that a number of mounted men had taken the trail back to town. Satisfied of this at length, he untied his horse and swung into the saddle.

Before riding away he considered the advisability of driving off the horses belonging to Moran's party, but there would still be others in the corral, and besides their absence, when discovered, would give warning of the impending attack. On second thought, however, he quietly made his way to the corrall and caught a fresh horse of his own. When he had saddled it he set out over the old trail for the big pine.

When he reached the rendezvous his men were not there; but knowing that he must meet them if he followed the road from there on he did not stop. He came upon them in a few minutes, riding toward him at full speed, with Tim Sullivan in the van, too drunk to stand erect, but able to balance himself on a horse's back, drunk or sober.

"We come acrost Santry and the Sheriff a while back," explained Big Bob Lawson, one of Wade's own punchers. "They must be in town by now. We was aimin' to light into 'em, but Santry wouldn't hear of it. Course, we took our orders from him same as usual. He said to tell you that you wanted to keep quiet, an' that's what he aimed to do."

"He said we wasn't to tell you that he didn't shoot them Swedes," put in another of the men.

"What?" Wade demanded sharply.

"He said—hic!" broke in Tim Sullivan, with drunken gravity. "He said—hic!—that if you didn't know that without—hic!—bein' told, you wasn't no friend of his'n, an'—hic!—you could go to hell."

"Shutup, you drunken fool!" Lawson snapped out.

"Jensen and his herder were shot in the back, they say. That clears Santry," Wade declared, and sat for some moments in deep thought, while the men waited as patiently as they could. "Lawson," he said, at last. "You're in charge for the present. Take the boys to the big pine and camp there quietly until I come back. I'm going into town."

"Hadn't you better take us with you, boss? We'll stick. We're for you an' Bill Santry an' ag'in' these—sheepherders, whenever you say the word."

"That's—hic—what we are!" Sullivan hiccoughed.

Wade shook his head.

POPULAR GIRL IS PRAISING TANLAC

Miss Ions Declares It Completely Overcame Indigestion, Restoring Lost Weight and Full Strength

"I never gave a statement for any medicine in my life, but Tanlac helped me so much I think it is only right I should tell about it," declared Miss Margaret Ions, 440 11½ St., N.W., Calgary, Alberta. Miss Ions served overseas in the war and is a highly-respected and popular girl.

"I was in a badly run-down condition for a year," she said. "I fell off fifteen pounds and felt tired and worn out all the time. My appetite left me, the little I did manage to eat didn't seem to do me a particle of good, and I suffered terribly from indigestion. My nerves were all unstrung, I could get no restful sleep, and I really don't believe I ever saw a well day.

"But two bottles of Tanlac changed things completely. I began to pick up at once, have gained five pounds, and never felt better. My nerves are steady, I sleep soundly, and my indigestion is gone. It is a pleasure to recommend Tanlac."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists.

Over 35-million bottles sold.

STORMY WEATHER HARD ON BABY

The stormy, blustery weather which we have during February and March is extremely hard on children. Conditions make it necessary for the mother to keep them in the house. They are often confined to overheated, badly ventilated rooms and catch colds which rack their whole system. To guard against this a box of Baby's Own Tablets should be kept in the house and an occasional dose given the baby to keep its stomach and bowels working regularly. This will not fail to break up colds and keep the health of the baby in good condition till the brighter days come along. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CRESTON, B.C., FRIDAY, APRIL 6

Give Credit Where Due

Now that the fruit selling situation as it effects the whole province is looking much brighter, due the successful flotation of the Co operative Growers of B.C., Limited, and with contracts coming into the Union in quantity that assures that Creston Valley will have co operative selling through one organization of at least 80 per cent. of the local tonnage, the present would seem to be opportune to give credit where credit is due, for in some measure at least, for helping bring about the present satisfactory looking state of affairs.

While individual ranchers, and those serving on the two growers' committees, have all lent a very helpful hand, yet it seems to us much credit for giving the right turn at the right time to events that have since developed into the present satisfactory local marketing situation in full measure belongs to retiring president Constable of Creston Fruit Growers Union.

Both at the annual meeting of the Union as well as the first big growers meeting his advocacy of "whatever marketing policy you may adopt do it 100 per cent. strong in the valley," had a marked effect in tempering the ardor of those who at the first would have nothing but the big co operative, whilst his stand at the first growers meeting that he was not at that time convinced that the Co-operative Growers, Limited, would be the marketing cure-all many at that time insisted he should proclaim it, due to his heading co operative selling in the Valley as well as being on the temporary directorate of the big co-operative, was a still more decisively contributing factor in accomplishing the present splendid Valley get-together.

Or, to state it briefly, had Mr. Constable come back from Vernon detirmined to have the big co-operative or nothing—as many demanded he should—the Review has no hesitation in saying that the present merger of local selling agencies would have been quite impossible.

And the Review has no hesitation in adding that Mr. Constable took the stand he did, fully knowing the consequences and some unpopularity, in order to promote the much desired unity that has come about, and insists that when credit is being given for the favorable state of affairs that obtain in the Valley the former Union manager shall have a full share of that credit.

Whatever his shortcomings in other directions Mr. Constable has done the Valley a service all too few seem to appreciate—a service that should assnre harmony and prosperity where nothing short of ill-will and disaster must have ensued had he acted other than he has done.

EDITOR REVIEW:

SIR,—Just a few lines to say how much I appreciated your editorial, "Now is the Accepted Time." It is worthy of being extensively copied. There is no argument of real value against union. The spirit of the New Testament and the force of social gravity cannot be much longer withstood. But the issues are such that anything with the least suspicion of undue haste alarms some nervous souls who believe in safety first or wait and see. I am glad to know that the special services have at least proven that the two different congregations can worship together with profit.

Yours sincerely,
ROBERT HUGHES.

The Creston Point of View

[Penticton Herald.]

Since Mr. D.W. Sutherland's return from Creston, when he gave us the information that the Kootenay district merely desired the right to sell directly through its own local to the adjacent mining districts, we have receved a copy of the Creston Review.

The Creston paper contains an account of a recent meeting in Creston and indicates exactly what it is that the Creston growers desire.

For the benefit of our readers, we reproduce the Creston story in another colomn, because the Creston area, although representing less than five per cent of the total tonnage in the Cooperative's area, is at the present quite an important factor. With the Co-operative just on the verge of eighty per cent, each additional possible gair is naturally of considerable interest.

This is about what Creston desires: The right to use the well known "O K brand," freedom from any necessity of pooling its fruit with any other district under a district name (presumsbly any other Kootenay district is meant), freedom from the proposed charge of five per cents per box for the purchase of packing plants of the holding company and one per cent per box reserve account, freedom to make sales of produce, the preservation of any geographical, freight and other advantages which it may have, also that any sales made by the Co-operative on account of the Creston local shall be paid directly to the local and not through the Central.

In other words, the Creston union would be willing to have the big Co-operative sell what fruit it can for Creston on an agency basis for which it would receive commission. Creston fruit would have the benefit of the Co-operative selling organization and the "O K" label, but Creston would preserve its own identity and would not share any of the expense or responsibility in connection with the holding company or the reserve account.

We do not see very much co-operation in such a proposal as this, and in reply to the suggestion from the Kootenay centre about its geographical location, it is readily pointed out that the Pentiction area, for instance, has a geographical advantage insofar as the Coast or export trade is concerned, but we do not demand any particular concessions on that score. We have gone into the Co-operative whole heartedly and with no reservations.

However, it is better to have some sort of a selling arrangement with and for Creseon rather than to be "bucking" Creston growers on the open market, even although the amount of fruit from that section is not a large factor.

It will be interesting indeed to follow the attitude of the Co-operative committee in taking up the Creston matter seeing that the growers in that section have framed their own special agreements and desire a sort of Co operative membership which apperently will give them all the benefits of Co-operation without any of the risks

COMMENCING April 2nd The Review will inaugurate a new policy in connection with Pay Reading Notices

In the past the plan has been to charge up the nominal half-dollar or six bits —according to length.

So long as payment is made in advance these charges appear to be satisfactory all round.

But of late there is a tendency, particularly with church organizations, to have these notices charged, and "duns" mailed.

And, worse still, on more than one occasion we have had to wait three months or more before payment was made.

The Review hates bookkeeping, but if people insist on having credit in cases of this sort they must pay for it in future.

With the issue of April 6th the rule will be to CHARGE DOUBLE PRICE for all Pay Notices on which accounts have to be mailed at the end of each month.

People who have occasion to telephone Pay Notices must settle for same before the end of the month.

Death of Mrs. Stinson

The people of Erickson were shocked on Saturday morning when word came of the death of Mrs. Joseph Stinson, which occurred the evening previous, after an illness that lasted hardly more than a week. Deceased had been a resident in the Erickson district since 1910, and had just attained her fifty-ninth year at the time of death. Coming here from Oklahoma they for a few years occupied a house on the Timmons ranch; about four years ago purchasing land and building a residence in the east section of Erickson. Deceased was essentially a home maker and very highly respected by all who knew her. Two sons, Paul Ernest, and three daughters, Mrs. Albert Stewart of Creston, Mrs. Geo. Leadbeater of Erickson, and a younger daughter, Sylvia, at home, along with the husband, are left to mourn the passing of a tried and true wife and mother, and to them the sympathy of the community is extended. Burial took place at Creston cemetery on Sunday morning.

Card of Thanks

Mr. J. J. Stinson and family take this means of expressing their very full appreciation of the many kindnesses and sympathy shown them in the recent death of their wife and mother.

Valuable Recipes For the Busy Housewife

Sun-Maid Filling

2 cups chopped Sun-Maid raisins.
¾ cup sugar, ¾ cup boiling water.
1 tablespoon lemon juice.

Cook raisins, sugar and water until thick enough to spread. Add lemon juice and spread while hot between layers of cake.

Cream Puffs

1 cup washed butter, 2 cups flour.
2 cups boiling water, 6 eggs.

Place butter and boiling water in a saucepan, bring to a boil and add all at once the flour. Stir until it forms a ball that will not stick to the sides of the pan. Place the cooked paste in a bowl and beat in, one at a time, the eggs. With a teaspoon place the mixture in little balls on buttered pans, two inches apart. Bake 20 to 30 minutes in a moderate oven. When cool cut a small slit in the side and fill with whipped cream mixed with seedless Sun-Maid raisins, or chocolate filling with raisins. Dip top in white frosting. For the chocolate filling: Add to one and a half cups of scalded milk, half a cup of flour mixed to a smooth paste with half a cup of cold milk. Place in a double boiler and cook 15 minutes, stirring constantly. Beat the yolks of four eggs with one cup of sugar and a quarter teaspoon salt and stir into the hot mixture. Add two squares of melted chocolate and one tablespoon of butter; cook until well blended, remove from fire, cool and flavor with vanilla or almond.

Children suffering from worms soon show the symptoms, and any mother can detect the presence of these parasites by the writhings and fretting of the child. Until expelled and the system cleared of them, the child cannot regain its health. Miller's Worm Powders are prompt and efficient, not only for the eradication of worms, but also as a toner up for children that are run down in consequence.

SUFFERED SO FROM HEART AND NERVES LIFE WAS A BURDEN

Mr. A. H. Lee, Beamsville, Ont., writes:—"I am delighted to let you know what I have to say regarding the good Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills did me.

A short time ago I suffered with heart and nerve trouble, and was so bad I could not sleep, only about two hours each night. My heart was so bad I had spells when driving on the road and would faint away, and neighbors would carry me in from my wagon. I also took these spells in the night and during my daily work on the farm. My nerves were so bad I would jump out of bed, and was then compelled to walk the floor before I could settle down again, but after taking a few boxes of

YOUNG DAUGHTER MADE WELL

Mother Tells How Her Daughter Suffered and Was Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Vancouver, B.C.—"My daughter is a young girl who has been having severe pains and weak and dizzy feelings for some time and had lost her appetite. Through an older daughter who had heard of a woman who was taking it for the same trouble, we were told of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My daughter has been taking it for several months and is quite all right now. It has done all it was represented to do and we have told a number of friends about it. I am never without a bottle of it in the house, for I myself take it for that weak, tired, worn-out feeling which sometimes comes to us all. I find it is building me up and I strongly recommend it to women who are suffering as I and my daughter have."—Mrs. J. McDonald, 2947 26th Ave. East, Vancouver, B. C.

From the age of twelve a girl needs all the care a thoughtful mother can give. Many a woman has suffered years of pain and misery—the victim of thoughtlessness or ignorance of the mother who should have guided her during this time.

If she complains of headaches, pains in the back and lower limbs, or, if you notice a slowness of thought, nervousness or irritability on the part of your daughter, make life easier for her.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is especially adapted for such conditions.

Aim Of Colonization Body To Bring Under Production Great Tracts Of Idle Land

According to officials of the Canadian Colonization Association, that organization begins 1923 with an active force in the field, a large area of listed lands and a considerable number of prospective settlers waiting to come in the spring. M. A. Brown, Vice-President, and Seward Everett, have issued the following statement:

"The obstacles of the success of the association are being steadily overcome. If the officers of the association have remained silent for some time past it has been because we have been engaged in solving difficulties partly of this character and partly arising out of existing conditions.

"We are making satisfactory progress in working out the national land settlement plan which was given to the public in September. Listings of privately owned land along the railways are coming into our head office at Winnipeg in good volume. Owners of several hundreds of thousands of acres have placed their properties with the association for sale on the 32-year payment plan, so that we can already offer incoming settlers a wide choice of location. Thus in a few weeks it has been amply demonstrated that our long-term sales plan is acceptable to a large number of owners and more are falling into line every day.

"The settlers also can be obtained. The sales department of the association already has applications from a large number of farmers who will look over the listed lands with a view to purchase as soon as the weather permits in the spring. In addition to nearly 200 prospects thus secured, the association is in touch with 500 Norwegian-American tenant farmers possessing stock and implements and with 400 American Poles possessing from $1,200 to $2,500 each. One hundred Danish-American families are also available. With a view to securing these settlers the association is co-operating with the national societies interested.

"In the last few weeks our association has made marked progress in building up an effective land settlement. It has already in its service several hundred Canadian land agents. It has 130 agents actively at work in the United States and will appoint several hundred additional representatives. The British field is recognized as highly important from the national standpoint as we should draw an adequate proportion of our new population from the United Kingdom. In accordance with the national land settlement plan, the Dominion Government is carrying on an energetic campaign to acquaint the British people with the farming opportunities to be found in Canada.

"There is no salvation for the west or for Canada as a whole save that of bringing under production the great tracts of idle land lying close to transportation facilities. The association is now doing its part in performing this invaluable service. While governments and farmers' organizations are grappling with the question of improved conditions for those already on the soil, our organization is striving to better the economic condition of a whole people by introducing desirable settlers and establishing them on a satisfactory basis."

Airplane Aids Firemen

An airplane effectively co-operated with firemen at a big fire in the upper stories of a building near the Arc de Triomphe, Paris. The machine, equipped with a wireless outfit, hovered over the building and informed the firemen as to the progress of the flames. The airman gave the location of a stock of petrol which had exploded and reported that the roof was about to fall in fully ten minutes before it happened.

Canadian Export Eggs

Take First Preference on British Market According to Statement

Production of eggs in Canada during 1922 was almost double that of the previous year, R. B. Hunter told members of the Winnipeg Poultry Association in an address on the subject "Canadian Eggs." The number of dozens produced was 250,000,000. Exports totalled 3,619,000 dozen, and imports approximately 7,500,000 dozen. The people of Canada consumed, he pointed out, about six eggs a week per capita, as against 3½ of the year before.

Canadian eggs on the English market took first preference against all others, Mr. Hunter mentioned. The great need today was better handling of eggs, he emphasized. Speedier marketing was necessary to prevent deterioration between the producer and consumer.

The Boy Scouts

In the Public Interest that Association Should Receive Support

In accepting election to the Provincial Council of the Boy Scouts' Association, General Sir Arthur Currie has set an example of active support which more public men would do well to follow. The organization needs both leaders and patrons. Much of the early interest that accompanied the rise of the Scout movement has subsided. The uniform has become a regular feature of the streets, the wearers have ceased to be a butt for good-natured jests, and the Boy Scouts are now so firmly established that it occurs to few that continuous support is needed from the public. Yet without the active interest of representative men the interest of the boys would soon flag and one of our most valuable institutions would be in danger of becoming moribund. That this would be infinitely regretable is no exaggeration. The code of honor and duty up to which the Scouts must live, and actually in most cases do live, not only makes for a better citizenship in times of peace and prosperity, but bears rich fruit when war and disorder are abroad. No one who saw it will forget the devoted loyalty of Boy Scouts during air raids in London. Moreover, a Scout's training is not forgotten afterwards. It is generaly safe to say that if a man has been a good Scout, he will be a good citizen. It is, therefore, to the interests of the community in general that the Association should be supported. Britain Stands Alone Among European Belligerents In Balancing Her Budget

While the German mark has collapsed and the French franc has depreciated alarmingly, the value of the pound sterling has steadily advanced in dollars and cents, and the rise in sterling has coincided with a substantial improvement in Britain's credit abroad. The reason given for this by British economists is that that country alone among the European belligerents, has succeeded in balancing her budget and that they have repaid various foreign loans incurred during the war.

One English authority states that "Notwithstanding the deep depression in trade from which we are slowly emerging, we have been able to begin the payment of interest upon the American debt, amounting at par of exchange to $62,692,000 pounds. This involves a payment of nearly 25,000,000 pounds every half year and it might have been supposed that the necessity of purchasing dollars to this amount would have resulted in a decline in the New York quotations, more especially as the passing of the Fordney tariff has at the same time made it more difficult for foreign goods to enter the United States.

"So far, however, from this being the case, the exchange has improved from the lowest point of 4.18, marked in January, to 4.50 in June, and after falling to about 4.37 in September, steadily improved during the next two months and at the close of November was within 9 per cent. of the old gold parity. In the early days of December the improvement continued and by the middle of the month the value was within five per cent. of the old gold basis.

"The movement was largely helped during the summer and early autumn by the long continued strike in the American coal fields and by the stoppage on the American railways. The coal strike resulted first in the gradual loss of the American export trade in coal, British coal taking its place in all the large markets of the world, where we had had in pre-war days a practical monopoly, and later in the shipment of several million tons of coal and large quantities of pig iron from this country to the United States and Canada.

"An important factor in the recovery in sterling has been the considerable rise in gold prices which has taken place in America.

"A notable feature in the exchange during the year was the restoration of the Canadian dollar to parity with the American. This was achieved in August last after the Canadian dollar had been at a varying discount since November, 1917. The improvement was brought about in large part by heavy borrowing by Canadian provinces, municipalities and commercial undertakings in New York."
