COMMEMORATING A
Summer Cruise to Alaska

There's a land where the mountains are nameless,

And the rivers all run God knows where;

There are hardships that nobody reckons;

There are valleys unpeopled and still;

There's a land...oh, it beckons and beckons,

And I want to go back...and I will.

ROBERT W. SERVICE, 1874-1958

Robert Service's cabin, where he wrote many of his world-famous ballads, is still open for visitors to Dawson City.

autographs

The Princess Patricia is one of two sister ships built to Lloyd's highest specifications, and is a twin-screw, turbo-electric driven vessel measuring 374 feet in length, 56 feet in breadth, and is capable of 23 knots. As originally constructed, the 6,000 ton Princess Patricia and her sister-ship the Princess Marguerite, were intended primarily for daily service between Victoria, B.C., and Seattle, Washington. The Princess Marguerite is still in that service, but the Princess Patricia was withdrawn from daily service in the fall of 1962 and at a cost of over one million dollars, converted for summer cruise service between Vancouver, B.C., and Skagway, Alaska, which service she entered in June 1963.
