Institute Plan Egg Grading Depot

Believed Profitable Connection Direct with Retail Trade can be Established Fruit Committee Evolving New Policy.

Creston Farmers' Institute had quite a representative turnout at the quarterly meeting on Saturday afternoon with the president, Don. Bradley, occupying the chair.

The most important matter dealt with was the proposal to establish an egg grading station at Creston, and after a thorough discussion the meeting unanimously favored the move and the directors were authorized to branch out in this line just as soon as conditions warrant.

Reports submitted in this matter showed that most of the stores were very much in favor of the station, and the president was quite optimistic that if those prodncing eggs would give the requisite attention to the feeding of the flocks so as to provide a uniformly high standard of eggs it should be possible for Creston to sell eggs all year round without having to secure more than the minimum of storage at the peak of the producing season.

The matter of storage had been looked into and the investigation disclosed the fact that only limited storage was at present to be had and that was at Fernie, where local eggs would have to be handled in competition with Alberta eggs and would mean a loss on an average of possibly ten cents a dozen.

It was intimated that if the station is established it will receive eggs on two days a week, but no move would be made to open up until after the present glut season is over. Eggs will be handled for anyone desiring to use the station, with a grading charge made to those who wish to market eggs independently.

In the absence of a report from the fruit committee those present were asked to express their views on the marketing situation so that cognizance can be taken of these opinions in the report that will be presented at the next quarterly meeting. The committee has no confidece in the Board of Direction being continued in 1931, and the idea is to formulate a policy that should be of benefit in shaping whatever legislation is decided upon to meet the situation in 1931.

The secretary reported that C.P.R superintendent, T. R. Flett, had issued orders to the Institute to discontinue selling feed direct from the car to customers as the company's regulations do not permit of this form of retailing. To still give members the benefit of best possible prices it was agreed that on future cars a price delivered should be fixed and where feasible delivery established. For two days after any car arrives the delivered price will also be effective on feeds sold at the warehouse. The legality of such a ruling by the railway company will be looked into via the B.C. Farmers' Institute central executive.

Friends of George Wickhlom will be pleased to hear that he is up and around again after several weeks' illness.

W. Abbott, with two sons, Bill and Sidney, left at the first of the week for the Alberta section of the Peace River country, where he plans to reside in the future. Mrs. Abbott and other children are on a visit at Moosejaw, Sask., pending Mr. Abbott getting located. The Abbott's have been useful citizens of Canyon and all are sorry to see them depart.

Mrs. Jess (Ted) Strong was guest of honor at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Roy Browell on Friday night when a large number of friends gathered for a social evening and to present the bride of Monday last with a nice array of gifts for the new home. Mrs. Strong was united in marriage with George Bush of Creston on March 31st, and the newlyweds are to reside at Creston.

A surprise party was held on Monday evening at the home of A. G. Samuelson when about 50 of his Scandinavian friends turned out to help him celebrate his 70th birthday. There was a fine birthday cake decorated with 70 candles. During the evening a "cuckoo" clock was presented him, which he suitably acknowledged. The party broke up after midnight, after a most enjoyable evening, the guests departing with heartiest good wishes for many happy and healthy returns of the day.

Rodgers Sells Franchise

Official announcement was made on Monday that C. O. Rodgers had disposed of his electric light franchise, including pole line, wires, meters, etc., in the village to Creston Power & Light Company, Limited, effective April 1st. Just at present users of the Rodgers light are still being supplied from that plant, but it is expected the change over will be made in a few days. In the agreement entered into it is stipulated that Mr. Rodgers will continue to supply the Grand Theatre, the residence of F. C Rodgers as well as the Rodgers mill and yard from the Rodgers plant, but the balance of the business has become the property of Creston Power & Light Company. With the merger the latter company are now supplying a total of about 70 customers. Negotiations are pending whereby it is possible the Rodgers plant will be utilized to supply the "juice" part time and the Deisel engine plant given several hours off duty each day. Messrs. Simpson and Paulson of Creston Power & Light Company are at present in Spokane and as yet there is no announcement as to their prospective hydro power development, which is looked for very shortly.

Strawberries in this section appear to have come through the winter in good shape, and the warm weather now prevailing is putting the green color i to the vines.

The unfavorable weather on Saturday kept down the attendance somewhat at the auction sale at the Vaness ranch, but those who were out came prepared to buy and most everything was sold at satisfactory prices by auctioneer W. J. Truscott.

A meeting of those who use the express depot at the Webster crossing was held last week to consider a letter from the Express Company notifying that the depot must be moved to the north side of the road or the stop will be discontinued. It is likely the shift will be made next week.

The Whist Club wound up the season at Friday night's meeting at Mr. and Mrs. R. Stewart's at which five tables of players competed, and the high scores were made by Miss Jessie Parkin and Mr. Willis. Announcement will be made later as to who has won the grand prizes for high scores for the season.

Strong—Bush Wedding

A wedding of two well known members of Creston's younger set was solemnized at Christ Church on Monday afternoon when the rector, Rev. A. Garlick united Mrs. Elva Jess Strong, the third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hickey, in marriage with George Albert Bush, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Bush, the invited guests including just the immediate relatives of the contracting parties. The bride was given away by her father and was gowned in mauve rose satin and carried a boquet of carnations and maiden ferns, wearing a cream picture hat. The bridesmaid was Miss Helen Browell, whose dress was of green shot taffeta. Alf. Speaker supported the groom. After the ceremony the guests adjourned to the home of the groom's parents, where a buffet luncheon was served and later Mr. and Mrs. Bush left for Nelson and points west on a short houeymoon trip. On their return the young couple will make their home in Creston and best withes are extended for future happiness.

There's "Gold" In The Golden Rule

A heading in a business magazine reads: "There's Gold In the Golden Rule," and the accompanying article proves it. There is no doubt that following the Golden Rule, in business as well as out of it, in the long run will be more profitable than otherwise, and by this we mean materially profitable. There is a principle recognized by modern business that the business man, to be permanently successful, must contribute to the profit and welfare of those who deal with him, those from whom he buys as well as those to whom he sells. And in a measure, this is recognition of the Golden Rule.

But here comes the rub. Is the Golden Rule observed, even to such a limited extent, for itself or for the "gold" which may be mined from it. Is it observed because it is the right thing to do or because it is is the more expedient, the more profitable thing? Are we to "do unto others" from pure delight in the doing, or because we wish to have them do the same to us? The real beauty, and force, and advantage of the Golden Rule lie in our attitude toward it. Its efficacy is in itself and in what prompts us to practice it.

Just to follow the Golden Rule because there is "gold in it," would be much the same as being honest because it is the "best policy." Neither impulse would rate high among the things considered admirable. To follow the Golden Rule because it charts the inherently right course in our dealings with our fellows and because we wish to be and to do right, is in the highest degree commendable. But to follow it merely or chiefly because "there's gold in it" is—well, not something we would care to boast about. The greatest profit which comes from living the Golden Rule cannot be set down in dollars and cents.

Throughout Western Canada our people have very largely accepted and adopted the principle of co-operation in connection with their economic relations and business. Unfortunately, it is not quite so generally accepted and acted upon in other community relationships. The question, therefore, naturally arises: Has this acceptance of one of the principles found in the Golden Rule resulted from a belief that "there's gold in it," rather than from a conviction that co-operation is indeed the better way for all concerned? Have we established, and are we maintaining, our great co-operative enterprises solely on a dollar and cents basis, or are a majority of our people earnestly striving to, in this way, make some contribution to the welfare of others?

Many fine and lofty sentiments,—the sentiments of the Golden Rule,—have been uttered by advocates of co-operation, and we are convinced that scores of men and women have joined co-operative organizations, not because they felt that they themselves would reap any particular benefits, but because they felt such organizations would be the means of benefiting others and the country as a whole. They are practising the Golden Rule because they believe it to be right, not because there may be some "gold" in it for them.

And if co-operation is to live and continue as a vital force in the life and activities of this country, if it is to grow and develop as a great compelling influence and force, not only in an economic sense but in all our community life, it must be through a general acceptance of the view, and its practice in everyday life, that selfishness is wrong and unselfishness is right; that the welfare and happiness of others is our concern as well as theirs; that the Golden Rule is to be practised not because there is "gold" in it for us, but because it is the only correct rule by which to measure our lives and acts; that we must be honest with each other, not because it is "the best policy" but because it is right. If we expect others to accord honesty to us in our convictions, we must likewise recognize and believe in the honesty of convictions entertained by others.

True co-operation is founded on the Golden Rule. It is its underlying principle. It is the only foundation upon which our great co-operative organizations can safely build, not because there is "gold" in it for anybody, but because it is the only safe rule for human conduct and intercourse.

A Matter Of Opinion

It is announced that Ontario and Quebec are to have "new penitentiaries which will be models for the world." This brings to mind the presentment some years ago of a Brantford, Ontario, grand jury, in which it was stated that conditions at the local jail were such as to make it "one of the most desirable places of residence in the city."

New Species Of Whitefish

Newly Discovered Member Of Finny Tribe Found In Manitoba

Discovery of a new species of whitefish in Clear Lake, Manitoba, is announced by A. Bajkov, of Manitoba University. The new species has been named Coregonus Odonoghuei, in honor of Dr. C. H. O'Donoghue, formerly of the faculty of Manitoba University. The newly-discovered fish is common in Clear Lake. It lives at a great depth during the summer, coming to the surface only in the spawning season.

DO YOU FEAR A HEARTY MEAL?

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Will Tone Up Your Stomach Making Mealtime a Pleasure

Are you afraid of meal-time? Does eating distress you? Would you rather go without food. That is the condition of many due entirely to indigestion. There can be no perfect digestion—hence no enjoyment of meal-time—unless you have rich, red blood. This pure blood is necessary to tone up your stomach and make it capable of properly digesting the food.

Many so-called stomach remedies merely try to digest your food for you. That is a mistake—nature should do that work and if nature does not do it serious results are bound to follow. Tone up your stomach by driving out the poisons that are in the blood. Make new rich blood and your appetite and digestion will soon be normal—meals will once more be a pleasure.

The one sure medicine to enrich the blood, restore strength and banish stomach trouble and indigestion is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Concerning them Mrs. Wm .T. Thompson, Brussels, Ont., says:—"For years I suffered with indigestion, headaches and dizzy spells. I tried a great many so-called remedies without relief. As a farmer's wife, with three little girls, it was almost impossible to be idle and I just dragged myself through my work. I suffered so I was actually afraid of meal time. A friend advised the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and although I had lost faith in ever being well again, I purchased a supply and began taking them. Gradually the dizziness and headaches left me. My appetite improved and soon I was able to enjoy my meals. I gained in weight and my health in general is better than it has been for years. I feel I owe much to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for they relieved me of all my misery."

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Test Is Satisfactory

The annual retest of the herds in the Fraser Valley, B.C., for T.B. is being carried on at present by about twenty veterinarians. More than half of all the dairy cows in the province (55,000) are located within this area and in the last test only three quarters of one per cent. re-acted.

The worms that infest children from their birth are of two kinds, those that find lodgement in the stomach and those that are found in the intestines. The latter are the most destructive, as they cling to the walls of the intestines and if not interefred with work havoc there. Miller's Worm Powders dislodge both kinds and while expelling them from the system serve to repair the damage they have caused.

Town Planning Advantage Shown

An Attractive Community Depends Greatly Upon the Appearance Of Its Streets

The following advantages that accrue from a systematic effort at town planning are given by Mr. Stewart Young, of the Town Planning Department of the Saskatchewan Government:

The general appearance of any community is most important, and if ways and means by which more agreeable surroundings can be produced are analyzed, it will be found that an attractive community depends greatly upon the appearance of its streets.

The appearance of a business street may be marred by the use of the sidewalks for storage or advertising purposes. Curb gasoline pumps do not add to the appearance of any street and should be prohibited. Electric light and telephone wires, when placed on a street tend to give it a ragged appearance. They should be placed underground in conduits or on lanes.

The appearance of the residential streets of any community reflects the mental attitude of the citizens. Every community should have a definite policy in respect of tree planting on residential streets. The boulevard system should be used.

Usually a sidewalk four and a half feet in width placed at a distance of about two feet from the street line with a graded roadway about twenty-four feet in width is sufficient to accommodate all traffic on residential streets. The intervening space between the sidewalk and the vehicular traffic way should be planted with trees spaced about twenty feet apart, and alternated slow and fast growing.

Several advantages are to be gained by this method of planting. Fast growing trees mature in a period of from twenty to twenty-five years, at the end of which time the slow growing tree has reached a stage where it becomes useful. Moreover, insects seldom attack more than one variety of tree in a season. The result is obvious where a street is planted entirely with one variety of trees.

Deliver Tea By 'Plane

Tea Freight, Begun On Oxen-Cart, Ends With Trip On Aeroplane

It is a far cry from the slow-moving, primitive, high-wheeled cart, hauled by oxen along the roads of Ceylon, to a speedy aeroplane in the winter sky over Lake Erie, but many of the people of Pelee Island are now drinking tea, carried there by air, that joggled along in an ox-cart under a tropical sun in Ceylon only a few weeks ago.

The Salada Tea Company, because of the freezing over of Lake Erie, between Pelee and the mainland, recently shipped several hundred pounds of tea by air, in order to replenish the diminishing stock of a certain grocer on the island.

Apple Trees For Prairie Farms

Sixteen Varieties Of Apples Found Suitable For the West

After fifteen years of seed planting the experimental work of the Dominion Department of Agriculture has developed sixteen varieties of apple trees suited to the climatic conditions of the Prairie Provinces. Of these varieties two have been graded "very good" and four "good." Horticultural experts point out, however, that it will take several more tree generations to evolve the ideal species. Prairie farmers can help in this work by getting seed from the Experimental Station at Morden, Man., for planting in their own gardens.

DEVELOP PUBLIC OPINION ALONG PEACEFUL LINES

Ottawa, Ont.—Contribution of moneys to Canadian universities for establishment of chairs in international relations is a field in which it might be better for the Dominion Government not to intervene, believes Dr. O. D. Skelton, under-secretary of state for foreign affairs. Dr. Skelton spoke before the House of Commons committee on industrial and international relations.

His comments referred to a resolution of Miss Agnes McPhail (Prog., South East Gray), asking that for every $100 disbursed by the Canadian Government for war, $1 should be spent for promotion of peace. The resolution favors setting up a chair of international relationships and institution of international scholarships in each Canadian university.

Cost of establishing such chairs was set at $3,200,000 by Dr. Skelton in answer to a question by A. W. Neill (Ind., Comox-Alberni).

Dr. Skelton thought that in some cases establishment of chairs of international relations would be desirable, but in most instances he believed it more useful to develop general knowledge of social science.

The question of what the Dominion Government should do in the way of establishing additional scholarships found Dr. Skelton of the opinion that, so much having already been done by individual and organized effort, the way was clearly indicated that this system should be continued.

As far as he could see, there were three specific points developed by the parliamentary debate. One was to ascertain how public opinion could be developed to deal with the big task thrust upon the people of Canada and what part the Dominion Government should play in shaping that public opinion. A second was how to train personnel in the conduct of international relations and what part the government should take in the training of that personnel.

The third envisaged the agencies the government should develop for carrying on the immediate and direct tasks of conducting the relations of foreign and inter-imperial governments.

Dr. Skelton felt that the elementary and secondary schools could do much to humanize the training of youth in international matters.

Another element was the press. A survey of the press of Canada, said Dr. Skelton, was not disheartening. It would compare very favorably with that of most countries, and the information supplied by the Canadian press was not only adequate but probably less biased and more objective than that published in the press of a great many other countries. The fact that in the past two years there had been established press bureaus in London, Paris and Washington indicated how much the press was contributing to the general knowledge of international matters.

Other factors in developing public opinion were the movies and radio. These were if anything "too international." International travel also furnished many opportunities for broadening the outlook of Canadian people.

Many organizations were doing valuable work. Such were the Association of Canadian Clubs, the Institute of International Relations, the Canadian Problems Society and the League of Nations Society.

Besides all these factors the Dominion Government and parliament did much through the utterances of its members. He did not approve of the Dominion Government entering into organized propaganda with a view to moulding public opinion.

One of the ways in which the government could help would be through aid to the league of nations society. The government might supply material to schools and colleges on international relations, but on the whole the task of developing public opinion was one for voluntary organized effort.

British Coal For Canada

Tonnage Chartered For Trade Says British Minister Of Employment

London, Eng.—Very considerable orders for British anthracite and soft coal have been obtained in Canada, said Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, lord privy seal and minister of employment, in the House of Commons. The minister was questioned by Sir Kingsley Wood, Conservative member for West Woolwich, who asked if anything had been done to secure westbound cargoes for the grain boats coming from the Dominion. Sir Kingsley suggested coal as the most natural article of cargo exchange.

"Yes sir," replied Mr. Thomas quickly, "my information is that very considerable orders for British anthracite and soft coal have been obtained in the Dominion and I am able to announce that a substantial volume of tonnage has been chartered for this trade to commence with the opening of the St. Lawrence to navigation."

Amendment Is Lost

House Of Commons Defeat Amendment To Bill Providing For Divorce Courts

Ottawa, Ont.—The House of Commons defeated the amendment of Thomas McMillar, Liberal member for South Huron, to the Woodsworth Bill providing for divorce courts in Ontario, by twenty votes. The vote stood: for 88, against 108.

The amendment expressed regret at the spread of divorce in Canada, and advised a campaign to foster the idea of the sanctity of the home in the Dominion.

After the vote on the amendment, there were calls for a vote on the main motion. Mr. Speaker Lemieux ruled that as the private members' hour had expired, it would not be possible to take this vote if any one objected. George Spotton, Conservative, North Huron, objected, so the vote was put over until another sitting.

Overseas Wireless Phone

Direct Wireless Telephone Service Between Canada and Britain Is Contemplated

Ottawa, Ont.—Confirmation of the statement of Hon. H. B. Lees-Smith, British postmaster-general, respecting the contemplated establishment of a direct wireless telephone service between Canada and Great Britain was obtained from officials of the Department of Marine. So far, however, the matter has not gone beyond the negotiation stage.

When the system is established it will operate through the Marconi beam wireless at Drummondville, Que., from where the transmission will be direct to Rugby, England. This circuit has been operating experimentally for the last year. It was employed recently in the broadcast of the King's speech at the opening of the naval disarmament conference. Officials were unable to say when the system will be inaugurated commercially.

Opened Exhibition By Radio

Marconi Spoke From Genoa, Italy, To Sydney, Australia

Genoa, Italy.—Short radio waves cutting across the Atlantic, America and the Pacific carried the voice of Marquis Guglielmo Marconi, inventor of wireless, from his yacht Electra here, to Sydney, Australia, to open the electrical exposition there.

Marconi spoke across 11,000 miles to Director J. Fisk, of the electrical association, reading a message which outlined what he intended doing later in the day—transmitting a small unit of power to Sydney in order to close a circuit there and light the electric lamps of the exposition.

Millions For Good Roads

Saskatchewan Government Has Ambitious Program For This Season

Regina, Sask.—Nearly seven millions will be spent on Saskatchewan roads this season, it was announced in the legislature by Hon. A. C. Stewart, K.C., Minister of Highways, during the course of the debate on the budget.

The total of $6,852,386 is to be divided as follows: On trunk highways, $2,963,585; gravel surfacing, $3,373,801; sundry grading, $395,000; colonization roads, $120,000. The latter refers to roads in newer districts of the province, part of the scheme of the new Anderson government.

Mr. Stewart assured the members that there was no intention on the part of the government to create a highways commission or of abandoning the present department of highways. Roads of the province, their construction and maintenance, would remain as they had always done, under the direct control of the minister.

British Companies Interested

May Invest In Oil Fields and Later Build Steel Mill

Calgary, Alberta.—Laying down of a million dollar stock and oil-well drilling and operating equipment in Calgary during the coming summer and later establishment of a steel mill in this city or at Vancouver if the market proves sufficiently attractive are being recommended to the large British financial and manufacturing interests represented by R. A. Raymont. Mr. Raymont has spent some time looking over the market provided by the Turner Valley field.

While declining to give out the names of the British companies which are interested, he stated that they are in a position to handle Canadian business in practically unlimited volume. And it was possible that a merger of a number of well-known firms engaged in the iron and steel manufacturing industry may be formed with a subsidiary Canadian company to handle the business in the Dominion.

Purchase Earnscliffe

British Government To Spend $125,000 For High Commissioner's Residence In Canada

London, Eng.—The governmental estimates for the coming year, tabled in the House of Commons, provide the sum of $125,000 for the purchase and adaptation of the British high commissioner's residence in Ottawa, "Earnscliffe."

Buildings in use by the diplomatic service will prove rather costly this year. The new Washington embassy will account for the expenditure of $170,000. The Tokio embassy, destroyed by fire, will be rebuilt at a cost of $330,000. The embassy at Moscow will call for $100,000.

West Grows Airminded

Western air mail service between Winnipeg and Calgary—over 800 miles in distance—has been inaugurated recently and the Canadian Pacific Express Company has renewed its contract made in 1928 to carry express packages in addition to the regular mail. This allows of a saving of more than 24 hours between the two cities. The package which pilot W. J. Buchanan is shown delivering to a Canadian Pacific Expressman, was mailed eight hours previously at Calgary and had therefore travelled at the rate of more than 100 miles an hour to reach Winnipeg, its destination.

SHORT LINE TO THE PAS WILL BE OPENED SOON

Winnipeg, Man. — Construction work on the Sturgis-Hudson Bay Junction branch line of the Canadian National will be finished about May 18, and the line will be turned over to the operating department on that date. An announcement to this effect was made by A. E. Warren, western vice-president of the Canadian National.

A very considerable saving in time and distance between Southern Saskatchewan and the Hudson Bay Railway will result with the completion of this line and the opening of it for regular freight and passenger service. Between Regina, Moose Jaw and other southern points in Saskatchewan there will be a lessening of 94.6 miles over the existing route from those centres to The Pas.

Intermediate points such as Melville and Yorkton will also be brought considerably nearer to The Pas and the Hudson Bay Railway.

Until the Sturgis-Hudson Bay Junction line goes into operation the route from Regina to Hudson Bay Junction is via Swan River, a distance of 429.6 miles. The distance by way of the new route which lies through Melville, Yorkton and Canora will be 335 miles.

Passenger and freight train services are now under consideration by the departments concerned and it is not expected that an announcement on train service will be made for a few weeks.

The Sturgis-Hudson Bay Junction line was one of those included in the three-year branch line program which was passed by parliament in 1927. Although it is practically the last item on that program to be completed the date upon which it is to be turned over for operation is more than six months ahead of that set by the bill.

Will Not Resign

Hon. Dr. Godfrey Will Stand Pat Over Famous Postscript Episode

Toronto.—Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey, Minister of Health for Ontario, has reiterated his stand that he will not resign because of the public rebuke administered to him in the legislature by Premier G. H. Ferguson, over the now famous "postscript episode." He also denied a rumor that he will take a long vacation. "Both are a pile of dreams," he declared.

It was for his action in adding a postscript to a letter written to a constituent of his in which an application for a mother's allowance, made by a woman residing in Long Branch, was refused.

The postscript reads as follows: "See her if you can and get her support the 30th (election day), and we will be able to take more time with the case."

Blasting is cause of telephone trouble

Blasting in the vicinity of telephone lines has been causing considerable trouble, many tieups in toll service being due to this cause.

However, serious interruption to the service can be prevented in such cases if those responsible for the blasting will notify the nearest telephone office in advance. A telephone man will then co-operate by stringing temporary lines around the scene and these will be immediately available for service if the explosion tears down the copper long distance wires, as it usually does.

When telephone men are not notified in advance it is often a matter of many hours befare service can be restored.

CRESTON, B.C., FRIDAY, APRIL 5

The Season's Roadwork

Now that April has arrived and money for government roads maintenance and new construction is made available, village residents, at any rate, are looking forward with interest to see how the district will fare this year.

In 1929 expectations ran high that the valley was due for a brisk season of highway betterments all along the line, following last year's announcements that $60,000 had been set aside for upkeep, and that up to $250,000 might be looked for from the big nine million dollar loan.

Just how poorly the area fared is noted in the annual address of President Mallandaine of the Creston Board of Trade, whose investigation of road expenditures up to the end of December revealed the fact that less than $35,000 had been spent in Creston Valley for the whole of 1929, and of this at least one-third was expended in the vicinity of Goatfell and in and about Camp Lister.

Whether the same discrimination against Creston will be shown this year remains to be seen, but with the sawmills closed down the local member will be shy the lame excuse tendered last year for not giving even ordinary upkeep attention to the Creston-Porthill highway via the old K.V. roadbed.

Cabinet Representation

The annual convention of the Associated Boards of Trade of Eastern British Columbia, which will convene at Cranbrook next month, is to have variety to its proceedings as Nelson board has notified of its intention to submit a resolution which, if passed, will be sent on to the Tolmie government, and which resolution demands that Kootenay be forthwith given cabinet representation in the administration at Victoria.

When the cabinet was constructed in 1928 the new premier had Dr. Borden of Nelson, Col. Fred. Lister of Creston and Capt. Fitzsimmons of Kaslo-Slocan to select a cabinet representative from, but as all were passed up it is safe to presume none of the trio were considered of cabinet calibre.

In almost two years that have intervened, certainly none of them have shown improvement and would in no wise strengthen a government that sadly needs bolstering up in every department.

Hitherto resolutions of this character have been given a wide berth by the Associated Boards and that it has seen fit at this time to give serious consideration to such a matter lends color to the suspicion that the move is "inspired" from the capital, and that before the last of the incident is heard of developments of particular interest to Nelson or Creston may be looked for.

Improving Egg Marketing

Commendation is due Creston Farmers' Institute for the very businesslike way if is attempting to solve some of the problems that confront local farmers..

While some may question the wisdom of the institute's 1929 venture into the apple marketing business, certainly none will wish them anything but the best of success in their proposed effort to find a profitable all year round market for Creston Valley eggs.

Wit a successful poultryman like Don. Bradley in charge everyone can look forward with confideuce to the success of the undertaking, if proceeded with—and the getting on with the undertaking will largely depend on the support that is given by those directly interested.

For two or three months a year there is always dissatisfaction with both the local merchants and the poultryman in handling an inevitable surplus of eggs.

It is not expected thae this dissatisfaction will be done away this year, the institute's plan being to get into action just as soon as the glut season is past and by shipping only eggs true to grade in the intervening mon hs, establish a connection with the egg buying trade that will enable the institute to dispose of Creston's yearly egg supply on a cash basis, without having to resort to storage which on last year's shipments would mean putting 300 cases into storage, at present not locally available; and if secured outside would mean a considerable loss to the egg producer and a temporary suspension of the always desirable cash marketing.

Right Sort of Advertising

Creston Board of Trade is another organization that is starting off 1930 in very practical fashion and on every hand is being commended for the move it proposes to make (funds being available) to advertise Creston Valley fruit by making displays of the local horticultural product at a number of fairs in southern Alberta territory.

Just what can be accomplished in this line will depend on the dates set for fairs in the sister province. At present the schedule is not available but it is hoped at least a number of the bigger towns in the country east to Medicine Hat and north to Calgary will be having their fairs in September so that it will be possible to exhibit the early fall varieties of apples and all other seasonable fruits.

It is specially desired to educate the prairie f.rends as to what constitutes Extra Fancy, Fancy, C. Grade and Household packs, and to give them a close up of the goods Creston markets in these lines.

Now arbitary f.o.b. shipping point prices are fixed by the Board of Direction, Creston should be able to capitalize to some advantage on the advantageous freight rates that obtain on Creston fruit in the territory just mentioned, and no more effective method to accomplish this good work can be evolved than taking a worth while display of local fruit at every possible worth while centre.

DIVIDENDS FROM THE FARM

A GOOD farm, representing invested years of effort tilling the soil, should pay dividends. And it will—to the farmer who is a keen business man.

The dividend is the earnings over and above wages for the farmer's work. Too many farms fail to earn even these wages.

The right Banking connection will prove invaluable to the farmer who plans for dividends. He should discuss his business freely with the Bank Manager.

Members of the Rod and Gun Club, which organization was responsible for securing the supply, helped with the work of placing the fry in the streams.

A change in Creston's business circle took place at the end of the month when the Pacific restaurant and rooming house business on Wilson Avenue was purchased by Mat Mah Hee of Cranbrook, who has taken possession. Jan Hing, the former proprietor, is not enjoying the best of health and is planing a holiday trip to China. The new owner is not exactly a stranger in the district, as he was cook for two years when C. O. Rodgers was operating his mill at Arrow Creek three or four years ago.

Tennis Club Organized

There was a very representative turnout on Wednesday night at a meeting of the tennis enthusiasts at which the formation of a club and the securing of permanent grounds was fully discussed. It was the opinion of the meeting that possibly 35 playing members could be secured and a committee was named to look over all the likely sites reasonably well located and report at a meeting to be called as soon as a report is ready for submission. The meeting was presided over by H. Purchase, and Ben Crawford acting secretary, and in the election of 1930 officers the followiug were chosen:

President—A. E. Whitfield.
Vice-president—Dr. McKenzie.
Secretary Treasurer—H. Purchase.
Executive—Miss Nora Payne, R. Crawford and E. Wheeler.

Messrs. Forbes Clowes and Wheeler were named a committee to interview the board of trade and the village council seeking practical co-operation, and all who would like to join the club are asked to leave their names with Mr. Purchase at the Bank of Commerce. What is desired is a piece of property big enough for at least two courts which can be leased and which the club purposes to fit up in first-class shape for fast tennis.

Saskatchewan Will Fight Cancer Scourge

Legislation Provides For Commission To Administer Act and For Diagnostic Clinics

Saskatchewan, first of Canadian provinces, has made preparations to tackle the growing menace of cancer as a public health problem.

The necessary machinery is provided in a Bill to establish a permanent Cancer Commission in the province, which has just been passed by the Saskatchewan Legislature. In this advanced legislation, Hon. F. D. Munroe, M.D., Minister of Public Health, in the Co-operative Government, has enhanced the already high prestige of Saskatchewan in matters pertaining to the public health. Incidentally, too, he has, thus early in his ministerial career, ensured himself of a permanent niche in Canada's hall of medical fame.

In piloting his first major legislation through the House, Hon. Mr. Munroe emphasized the necessity of co-ordinating efforts and providing the means to combat the scourge. Backing his arguments with a wealth of statistical information, the minister emphasized the fact that a comprehensive anti-cancer programme must provide three main features: The education of the public, facilities for diagnosis and the means for treatment. All three factors are provided for in the new Act.

Stressing the importance of the educational factor, Hon. Dr. Munroe declared that "the one great handicap under which all physicians labor at the present time is the delay on the part of the patient in consulting them." Early diagnosis and treatment were essential requirements of a successful campaign, he added.

Provision is made in the Act for the establishment of consultative diagnostic clinics in the province wherein facilities will be provided for early diagnosis of the disease. Then, in order to overcome the prohibitive cost of radium required for treatment, statistics relative to the efficacy of which were cited, the Act provides for the purchase of a quantity of radium by the Government.

In discussing this phase of the matter, Dr. Munroe stated that "radium is used in the treatment of cancer in two ways. In the great majority of cases the radium salt is used in various types and forms of containers and needles, but there is also a field for its use in the form of gas. The gas is collected from a quantity of the radium salt in solution, into very minute tubes of gold, called 'seeds.' A somewhat elaborate apparatus is required to generate and purify this gas and, as well, to collect it and regulate the dosage in each seed.

The minister then stated that it was proposed to establish an emanation plant of this nature at the University of Saskatchewan, whenever there was assurance of a sufficient demand for the gold seeds to keep the plant in operation. Dr. Munroe stated, in this connection, that medical men in neighboring provinces and in Alberta already had informed him they would welcome the opportunity of procuring these seeds. The Act also makes provision for the regulation of the sale of radium emanations and derivatives.

Operation of the Act will be assigned to a permanent Cancer Commission.

One and one-half grammes of radium will be procured, according to present intentions, at a cost of $105,000 to $115,000. It is not, however, the intention that the diagnosis and treatment of cancer will be a free service, but definite assurance was given by the Minister that the charges would be reasonable and that provision would be made so that "everyone may receive the necessary service able to pay for it or not."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE LAW OF THE CROSS

Golden Text: "If any man would come after Me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow Me."—Matthew 16.24.

Lesson: Matthew 16.13 to 17.27.

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 53. 7-12.

Explanations and Comments

The Law Of the Cross, verse 21.—Before this Jesus had referred to his approaching death (Matthew 9.15; John 2.18-22; 3.14), but from now on He spoke plainly about it, declaring that He must go to Jerusalem, there to be ill-treated by elders and chief priests and scribes, and be put to death. "He must die because He would save. The great "must" which ruled His life was a cable of two strands—obedience to the Father, and love of men. These haled Him to the cross, and fastened Him there. This verse covers an indefinite time, during which Jesus gradually spoke about His coming sufferings. Ordinarily we exaggerate the suddenness and therefore the depth of Peter's fall, by supposing it took place immediately after his confession." —Alexander Maclaren.

"And the third day to be raised up." "The Evangelists, indeed, write it down in plain language, as fully taught by their later experience, that He was to be rejected by the rulers of Israel, slain, and to rise again the third day. And there can be as little doubt that Christ's language (as afterwards they looked back upon it), must have clearly implied all this, as that at the time they did not fully understand it. Otherwise they could not afterwards have been in such doubt about His death and resurrection. He was so constantly in the habit of using symbolic language, and had only lately reproved them for taking what He said about "the leaven" in a literal, which He had meant in figurative sense, that it was but natural they should have regarded in the same light, announcements which, in their strict literality, would seem to them well-nigh incredible. They could well understand His rejection by the scribes as a sort of figurative death, or violent suppression of His claim and doctrines, and then, after briefest periods, their resurrection as it were, but not those terrible details in their full literalness."—Alfred Edersheim.

The Law Of the Cross For All Disciples, verses 24-26.—Then Jesus said unto His disciples, "If any man would come after Me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow Me." Not only must Jesus, Himself, endure the cross, but Peter (and all true followers) must be ready to deny himself, yield his will to his Master's, and take up his cross, accept the persecution in store for him, and follow his Master.

Jim replied, as he put a generous slice of shortcake on Grandma's plate: "You're right .The committee thought the fireworks would bring a crowd to the supper, and took up a collection for the cause. They got two dollars out of me, and I don't intend to miss the show. I tell you what, Grandma! you needn't miss it, either. I'll take you down in the car soon as it gets dark."

"My soul!" breathed Grandma. "I haven't been out in the evening since I don't know when. I donno what Charmian would say, or the doctor either, but," recklessly, "I'm going to do it! You finish up that shortcake, Jim. It's no good left over and 'twould be a shame to waste it. Charmian made it after Emmy Bascomb's recipe, and it's worth feeling a little sick next day over. Pour me another cup of tea, son. I must be fortified if I'm going gallivanting all the evening. I haven't got any green hat," she added with a twinkle, "but I'll wear my Sunday bonnet and put Great-grandmother Davis's gray crepe shawl over my coat, so you won't feel ashamed of your company. That shawl came clear from China, and a summer boarder who stopped in one day for a skein of embroidery silk, offered me three hundred dollars for it when she saw it hanging over my chair.

Jim whistled expressively as he arose to clear the table.

"I'd like to see the shawl I'd refuse three hundred for!"

"So would I," agreed Grandma, "but Charmian was mad at the woman for even offering it. She's got the Davis pride. You can set the dishes in the sink, Jimmy; and I'll go get ready if you'll help me into the north room. There's that dog again with another bone! I'd like to see where he's planning to put it, but there isn't time. It looks as if Gyppy was something of a miser; but at any rate, he won't be dependent on his relations in his old age! Here, Jimmy, lend me a hand. I'm all excited."

"So'm I," said Jim, "going out with a new girl this way!"

Grandma chuckled. "Say!" she called, as leaving her at the door of the north room. Jim departed toward the kitchen, "Charmian said to leave the dishes in the sink; but you'd better set that pat o' butter in the icebox, and the cream, too. I'll be ready in a jiffy. Maybe I'll lie abed all day tomorrow to pay for it; but what's the use o' living if you aren't reckless once in a dog's age?"

"No use at all," grinned Jim, "and now you've set my feet on the downward path I don't care if I paint the town red. Take your time about getting ready, Grandma. There's not a bit of hurry."

He was still in the kitchen when the old lady appeared at the door again.

"My sakes! you've washed all those dishes!" she exclaimed, "and the dish towel, too. You'll make some woman a good husband, Jimmy, I'll say that."

"Aren't you ashamed, vamping a young feller this way," Jim bantered, as he wiped his hands on the roller towel. "Here, you hang onto me till I get you safe in that car. What'll I do with the door key, Grandma? Take it along?"

"You put it under the door mat, just where anybody who comes along'll know where to look for it," she responded whimsically. "It's a lovely evening, isn't it? I wouldn't mind riding a little way before the fireworks, if we've got time."

"Plenty of time. We'll run round past the Bascombs so you can see Emmy's new windows. They look corking."

Grandma sighed. There it was again—the thing that kept Charmian from loving this nice boy. He couldn't see that those big panes of glass no more fitted the old Bascomb house than she herself would fit that cheap new bungalow by the station.

"I don't want to see Emmy's windows," she replied, as the engine started. "They don't belong in that old house; but I'd admire to ride round the cemetery till it's time for the show. I haven't seen the monument that Deacon Purdie put up for his fourth wife. It's dreadfully expensive burying four wives, Jimmy. I suppose if he'd foreseen how things were going he could have had 'em all engraved on one stone, and saved a sight."

"If he's not careful," Jim responded soberly, "he'll have to invest in a bigger lot or be crowded out himself when his turn comes. They say he's making up to the Widow Moore, over to South Wickfield."

"My stars!" cried Grandma. "She must be thirty years younger than Edgar Purdie, and has got six children!"

"Sure!" smiled Jim, as he slowed up on entering the cemetery gate. "If those kids should all pass out in an epidemic, Grandma, we'd have to call a town meeting and enlarge the cemetery."

"I'm afraid," said the old lady, trying her best to look severe, "that you're making light of serious things, Jim."

"It sure is serious barrying a wid-

"It sure is serious marrying a wid-

"Here we are, Grandma. It's almost too dark for you to see it, but that's where the deacon laid his Sarah. Want to get out?"

"Good land, no! I can see well enough from here; but I wish you'd tell me what's engraved on the stone, Jimmy. The deacon always puts on some sentiment. The first one was, 'The price of a good woman is above rubies,' though every one in town knew he begrudged the money for the medicine that Edward Howe prescribed in Emma's last sickness. For his second (she was Carrie Hopkins, from over Templeton way, and could stir up as much trouble at a parish meeting as if she'd thrown a hornets' nest into the vestry), he put 'Blessed are peacemakers.' And when Eva, his third, was taken without leaving a friend in Wickfield because of her sharp tongue, he had engraved for her, 'A good name is better than precious ointment.' I declare, Jim, I've been curious to know what he'd say for Sarah. They fought like cats and dogs."

"I'll allay that curiosity in two minutes," promised Jim, as he alighted and crossed the patch of grass on the Purdie lot. He was shaking his head soberly when he returned and said: "It looks to me, Grandma, as if the deacon had run out of Scripture verses and taken to the poets. He says of his last departed, 'A sweeter woman ne'er drew breath.' Can you beat that?"

"No," Grandma admitted gravely, "I can't, and I won't try. Seems sort o' like tempting Providence, uttering untruths like that, especially on a tombstone. While I've been sitting here, Jim, it came over me what he might say about Luella Moore, if she was taken first: 'I have commanded a widow woman there to sustain thee.' What you grinning about, sonny? It would be the truth, which is more'n the others are."

"That's right," said Jim, as he resumed the place beside her. "Or if he wants a change from the Scriptures, as we might suspect after what he says about Sarah, he could just put 'An old man's darling,' and be done with it."

Grandma endeavored not to laugh, but at last gave way to her natural impulse.

"I ought to be ashamed, thinking such thoughts and letting a boy like you think 'em too," she said regretfully, "but I never could bear Ed Purdie. He was a mean boy, always putting snakes and toads down the girls' backs; and once he hung little Willie Kingsbury down the schoolhouse well by the heels, and the child was never the same again. My! isn't that bed of pansies handsome? Is it time for the fireworks to begin?"

"It's time we were finding a place to park; but we mustn't get so near that the sparks will fall on that three-hundred-dollar shawl! You warm enough, Grandma? If I let you take a cold, Charmian will give me fits."

"She's liable to have fits herself if she sees me out this time o' night," chuckled the old lady. "Let's stop near the church, Jim, so I'll see her face when she comes out and finds me. Here we are at the common, and Ezra Bascomb is bringing out a box—fireworks most likely. That's right," as Jim stopped at the head of the Common. "This is a splendid place to see. And there's Charmian, and Doctor Carter along with her. Hasn't he got fine straight legs, Jimmy? There! he sees us. They're coming this way!"

CHAPTER VIII.

If Jim Bennett had been purely altruistic when he took Grandma Davis to see the fireworks that night, he was amply repaid when, the old lady safe home again, Charmian followed him to his car and detained him with an impulsive hand on his shoulder.

"It was dear of you, Jim, to give Grandma such a good time," she began ardently. "I don't know how to thank you."

He faced her, and at something in his eyes she dropped the friendly hand that rested on his new, well-fitting coat.

"I don't need any thanks," he said, honestly enough. "Your grandmother's more fun than any one I know—present company excepted. And the shortcake was bully."

"What shortcake? I didn't see you at the church."

He laughed.

Needless Pain!

Nowadays, people take Aspirin for many little aches and pains, and as often as they encounter any pain.

Why not? It is a proven antidote for pain. It works!

And Aspirin tablets are absolutely harmless. You have the medical profession's word for that; they do not depress the heart.

So, don't let a cold "run its course." Don't wait for a headache to "wear off." Or regard neuralgia, neuritis, or even rheumatism as something you must endure. Only a physician can cope with the cause of such pain, but you can always turn to an Aspirin tablet for relief.

Aspirin is always available, and it never fails to help. Familiarize yourself with its many uses, and avoid a lot of needless suffering.
