Creston Pythians Visit Spokane

Canadian Night is Outstanding Success—Patriotic Exercises, Banquet, Degree Work Features—286 Canadians P.esent.

The Canadian night put on by Red Cross Lodge, No. 34, Knights of Pythias, Spokane, on Saturday, attracted a turnout of almost 500 Pythians, of whom 286 were members of Canadian lodges; Rossland, Trail, Nelson Creston, Cranbrook Kimberley and Michel furnishing the major portions of the visitor from this side of the line.

Proceedings commenced at 5.30 when the half thousand members sat down to a splendid banquet, features of which were a flag drill in which the Union Jack and Stars and Stripes were displayed to equally good advantage by a flag drill squad from the Dokay lodge in Spokane. Music was supplied by a ten-piece orchestra, which also was heard during the degree work at the lodge session.

A galaxy of grand lodge officials participated in the speechmaking, the American orators being led by H. Lampert, grand chancellor of the grand lodge of Idaho, assisted by a number of past grand chancellors of both Washington and Idaho.

In this department Canada was ably represented by Noble Binns of Trail, a B.C. past grand chancellor and this province's representative on the Pythian supreme grand lodge. Another Canadian speaker was J. D. McKinnon, also of Trail, the 1929 past grand c ancellor from British Columbia, while Col. Mallandaine of Creston, the East Lootenay D.D.G.C., created a splendid impression in his address featuring international goodwill.

The crack degree team of Red Cross Lodge handled the conferring of the third degree on a class of sixteen candidates in faultless fashion, the impressiveness of the work being heightened by the musical background supplied by the orchestra.

Amongst the Creston Pythians who made the trip were Dr. Henderson, Col. Mallandaine, W. J. Truscott, Fred Hagen, R. Uri, E. Davis, Carl Carlson, Fred Hale, Joe Romano, Art Reed, Keith Littlejohn, Dick Penson, R. A. Palfreyman, Sam Steenstrup and C. F. Armstrong.

Four degrees of frost was registered here at an early hour on Monday morning, and it is likely damage has been done to strawberries as well as young garden stuff.

Chas. Pipe left at the end of the week for West Creston where he and Arthur Hurry are on forestry fire trail building in that section.

R. Lowerson left a few days ago for Michel, where he is at present working in a sawmill near that town.

Canyon school children had a holiday on Friday, which was Empire Day.

Jock McRobb has just purchased a rebuilt Chevrolet sedan from the Kootenay garage at Creston, and made his first trip in it to Kimberley at the weekend on a visit with his daughter, Mrs. W Hoale.

Hilton Young is the latest to take delivery of a new car, having traded in his Ford for a Plymouth coupe at Creston Motors.

Mr. and Mrs. Binney of Leshbridge, Alberta, were motor visitors here at the weekend, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Bateman. The ladies are sisters.

F. Knott received word at the first of the week of the critical condition of his brother, Kinnaird, at Cripple Creek, Colorado, who had just suffered a paralytic stroke. The unfortunate man was known to quite a number at Canyon as he was a visitor with his brother here about six years ago.

Wynndel

Picnic for all the children of the district on Tuesday, June 3rd. Meet at Irving's corner at 9 a.m. The outing will be at Kuskanook and will be under the direction of the Women's Institute.

Saturday, May 24th, was not exactly ideal weather for a holiday, but the United Church Sunday School picnic to the old mill was reported a most enjoyable affair. Heavy rain ended proceedings about 4 p.m., and towards evening an electric storm passed over the valley.

A heavy frost struck the district on Sunday night and it is feared many of the strawberry fields have suffered heavily.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Andestad, Mrs. Towson and Miss E. and A. E. Towson were Bonners Ferry visitors on Tuesday.

"Nothing But the Truth," June 4th

United Church Dramatic Talent Present Sparkling Three-Act Comedy at Grand—Popular Prices of Admission Prevail.

On Wednesday, June 4th, some of the younger people connected with United Church are presenting Samuel Frenche's clever comedy entitled, "Nothing but the Truth." This comedy has been in great popularity throughout Little Theatres along the coast this past winter. It was recently adopted to the talkies and met with enthusiastic approval.

Creston people will be glad to hear some of their former stars as well as new talent, in this kind of social activity. R. Maxwell plays the part of a somewhat cynical young business man, who becomes involved with the bishop over a deal in some phoney stock (which however, ends happily for the bishop). Harry Smith acts the part of Dick Donnelly, a junior clerk in the broker's office. Ben Crawford takes the part of Bob Bennett, and is the hero of the play. Being a young man of high ideals he undertakes to tell the truth for 24 hours.

The plot consists in the attempt of the men to force Bennet into situations where he will lose his bet. Some very humorous and somewhat awkwark situations arise. Particularly is this so with regard to Bennett's fiancee, Gwen Ralston, played by Miss Ruby Martin.

The other lady members of the cast are Mrs. Ralston, acted by Mrs. A Palmer, the mother of Gwen, and wife of E. M. Ralston, the astute stock-broker: Miss Marjorie Brown has the part of Ethel Clark, the daughter of a leading society lady, she hears the truth from Bennett, which creates no small stir; the role of two modern flappers, Sable and Mabel Jackson, is taken by Miss Violet Morrow and Miss Meldrum respectively, the appearance of these two young ladies at inopportune moments adds considerably to the fun. Miss Edith Cook fills the necessary part of the maid, an announcer of unwelcome guests. Wm. Truscott is Bishop Doran, who beneath an exterior of apparent innocence in the matter of transactions in stocks, creates an uproar and completely discomfits the wiles of Van Duesen and the stock broker, E. M. Ralston. The part of the broker is taken by Rev. R. E. Cribb.

Erickson

R. M. Telford, who has been a coast visitor the past week, arrived back on Sunday. He got to Sandpoint in time for the league baseball game on Sunday.

Leowna Heric was a holiday visitor at Yahk, arriving home on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Cartwright and family spent Saturday on a visit with Bonners Ferry friends.

Jean Ryckman of Creston was here for the weekend with her aunt, Mrs. Crisler.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Campbell, Mrs. Vincent and young daughter, of Bellvue, Alberta, were weekend visitors at their ranch here.

Quite a number of the Erickson young people were at Cranbrook for May 24th and helped with the rooting for Creston baseball team that played in that city that day.

Miss Walker returned home on Sunday after spending the holiday in Spokane.

Lee Heric arrived from Yahk on Saturday, and was a Sandpoint visitor on Sunday for the baseball game.

Messrs Dugdale of Bellvue, Alberta, were motor visitors here over the weekend.

E. W. Klingensmith is a Spokane visitor this week.

A sale of Erickson orchard property was completed this week when Vic. Mawson disposed of his ranch to Henry Cowling of Vancouver, who is expected to take possession late this summer. Originally this was part of the Kemp ranch, and latter was owned by the late W. J. Boyd and still latter by Mr. Davison, who about three years ago sold it to Mr. Mawson. It contains about seven acres, with five acres in orchard. The purchaser is father of Mrs. W. R. Long.

Mr. Doughty of Vancouver was a weekend visitor with Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Long.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Cartwright are at Invermere this week on a visit with their daughter, Mrs. F. V. Staples.

Miss Buelah Penson is a visitor with relatives in Spokane at present.

Miss Edith Palfreyman got back on Sunday from a three weeks' holiday visit in Chicago. She came back via Spokane motoring home with her father, who was a Saturday visitor in that city.

Alice Siding

Miss Ruth Gompton of Nelson spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Compton.

Alice Siding school children had a day off on Friday last, which was Empire Day.

Local cattlemen were busy on May 24th getting their cattle off the flats and into the hills for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Halko and two children and Frank Travis, of Michel, were weekend visitors with Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Parkin.

This section had a touch of 3 degrees of frost on Monday morning, but so far there are no reports of serious damage, a though strawberry growers at Wynndel in some cases complain of losses as high as 50 per cent.

Jonah Brubacher, who has been a resident in this area for the past few years, has moved into Creston. He has secured a new auto which he is rebuilding as a carryall, and intends to be the travelling dealer for Rawleigh products.

Kitchener

Mr. Parsons of the Naugle Pole & Tie Company, Spokane, arrived on Wednesday to ship out nine or ten cars of G. A. Hunt's cedar poles.

Mr. Porier of the Page & Hill Company was here last week shipping out a car of Paulson's poles, leaving on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. S nesael and family and friends took in the celebration at Cranbrook on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Boyd, of Creston, spent the weekend here, guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Hunt.

Mrs. B. Johnson left on Thursday on a visit with Spokane friends.

Mrs. Hunt spent a few days in Creston this week, a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Boyd.

Kitchener people were startled on Friday morning when they saw and heard an airplane coming out of the east with, evidently, a very bad case of engine trouble. Passing over the depot it turned north looking for a good landing place. Going up Goat River it altered direction to southeast, landing in one of the ploughed fields of the experimental farm of W. L. Hathaway. Elmer Blair, farm superintendent, and others, were quickly on the scene of the catastrophe, happily finding the pilot safe, but the plane upside down, and both wings and rudder demolished. R. E. Holley was flying the machine from Winnipeg to Vancouver, leaving Calgary on Friday morning. He said engine trouble developed this side of Yahk and finally forced him down. The plane was a Fleet fitted with dual controls, and residents east of here say she has a fine turn of speed. Holley is said to be sales representative for the firm making this plane; in fact he is on a sales trip and tried to improve the shining hour by selling the wreck to some local lads, but whether they were not sufficiently air minded or could not produce the coin could not be determined. The plane was shipped to Vancouver on Saturday, Holley having left previously for that city by train, leaving behind him fond memories of his generosity. Saturday being Empire Day quite a few took advantage of the special occasion to view the remains, the traffic cop at the corner of Bennett Avenue and Newman Street being kept busy replying to questions in addition to regulating the movement of traffic.

Sandpoint Again Downs Creston

Score is 2-0—Runs all Garnered One Inning—Fast Pitching Baffles Creston—Game Played in Idaho Record Time.

Allen, the hurling ace of the Sandpoint Eagles, and Fortin hooked up in a masterly pitching duel in the international league game at Sandpoint on Sunday, in which the former, with the help of some timely hitting, brought Sandpoint home winner by a margin of 2 to 0.

Although the winners only annexed four hits three of these came in succession in the third frame, a triple, double and single coming immediately after the fir t man up had arrived safely due to a dropped fly, and this batting spree was sufficient to give the Eagles a two-run lead, which was ample to win the contest.

Here's just how the runs were manufactured: In the high wind that was blowing Telford dropped Welo's long fly and the runner was safe. Tigglebeck banged out a triple, scoring Welo, and came home a minute latter when Rolph doubled Florea singled putting Rolph on third, but Romano gathered in Lepka's fly and by a perfect peg to the plate also retired Rolph who had tried to score on the throw in.

In addition to this piece of pretty work by Romano, Boffey turned in a great day at left field, his handling of fly balls into that territory being the feature of the Creston game. Allen's lightning fast delivery completely baffled the locals, with the exception of McKelvey, who got all three hits secured by Creston. Allen chalked up 11 strikeouts during the day.

Getting squared away after the third Fortin's performance was equally spectacular as only one more hit was register during the rest of the play. The game was one of the fastest in Idaho history, the full round of nine innings being played in an hour and a half

Sunday's defeat puts Creston in undisputed possession of the league cellar, as Troy triumphed over Bonners Ferry the same day by a 7-3 count. Sandpoint now leads with four winns and no losses. Creston's game is at Troy on Sunday afternoon, and if the locals display the same form they have shown the past two games they should just about annex a victory, and going at their present clip they should be equally successful in future appearances against Bonners Ferry. Sunday's score;

A Hobby Essential To Life

Every person, old or young, should have a hobby.

And why a hobby? Because a hobby means an interest beyond the mere task of making a living and because an interest is necessary to the enjoyment of life.

Life without interest would be a dull, prosaic affair. Yet there are some people who keep their noses to the grindstone day after day, year in and year out in a dull routine to provide the wherewithal to feed, clothe and shelter themselves and their dependents, without a let-up from daylight to dark. They never look around for some interest which will serve to brighten their lot and bring joy into their lives.

There are, of course some men who are fortunate enough to have found in their vocation that keen zest which an outside interest gives to others, but it has been found by age-long experience that even such happily circumstanced individuals can and do pursue their work with better results and with greater contentment and less wear and tear when, to their work, they add a hobby.

"All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy" has been quoted so often that it has become platitudinous. Yet it is just as true today as when it was first uttered.

When the child puts his books away and closes his school desk for the day, he proceeds to enjoy himself with games and recreation in some form or another and in this manner revivifies himself for another day at scholastic tasks. Educationists have discovered that the child who plays in season brings to his school work an enjoyment which enables him in the long run to outstrip the pale faced bookworm. He has a balanced and therefore a happy existence and this reflects favorably upon his studies.

And so with the adult. But in place of flying kites or indulging in boisterous play, the grown up carries his enthusiasm into the field of some sedate, but just as stimulating amusement. It matters little whether it be collecting postage stamps, indulging in politics, plying saw and hammer or engaging in some form of academic study, so long as it is something which arouses the interest of the participant and whets his appetite for more; and so long as it is something different from the daily task.

It is this creation of interest which acts as a stimulus to the mind or a recuperative power to the physical being. It is at the same time restful and invigorating. This is why the individaul with a second string to his bow, even if it be only used for recreational purposes, is more likely to make a success of life than one without it. He is able to turn again to the serious work of making a living with the hope and joy which comes with a buoyant spirit, a rested body and a clear, refreshed mentality.

It is impossible to pursue a hobby without securing these results, provided it is kept within reasonable bounds, for recreation broadens interest and interest means life. Interest with existence is life. Life without interest is mere existence.

The time to develop interest is in youth. It is too late to wait until the pains and penalties of advancing years are taking their toll and forcing retirement from active work. The individual who waits until he is obliged to slacken the traces on which he has been pulling heavily for decades before looking around for an interest will find he faces an old age of misery, for he has developed nothing to which he can turn to make his declining years worth living.

The youth, the middle aged, the old, of both sexes should have a hobby and should develop a hobby in comparatively early life.

An Accidental Discovery

Scientists Find Fish Scales Can Be Used As Fabric Coating

For hundreds of years Eve has taken her clothes from the wool of sheep and the skins of animals, but now she has gone one better—she is to wear the scales of fish.

Soon the smartest Eves will shimmer like mermaids. A firm at Berlin has at last patented a process by which fish scales can be used as a coating for various fabrics. Among many advantages is that the new material has a remarkable power of keeping out heat.

It is intended, also, to use a coating of artificial pearl on thin oilskin coats. These latest rain-proof garments will be light and completely waterproof, and when wet they will have a beautiful pearly glitter.

The discovery that fish scales could be used for this novel purpose was more or less accidental. Scientists were endeavoring to improve the process by which artificial pearls are made when they stumbled across the new idea.

After several attempts they found a method of washing, drying and grinding fish scales which produced a fine crystalline powder. This is mixed with a solution of artificial silk in collodion, and can be painted thinly over the oil skin.

Reindeer Trek Halted

Will Not Resume Journey Until Fawns Can Travel

Three thousand reindeer, being driven across "the top of the world," into Canada, on the order of the Dominion Government, have halted their long march in the Hunt and Colville River sections, until the end of the fawning season.

The herd will wait there until the new-born deer are strong enough to join the drive, which follows a route north of the Arctic Circle across Alaska to the Mackenzie River basin, of the Canadian Arctic.

What's In a Name?

Not Very Much As Proved By Book Publishers

The answer to the question, "What's in a name?" seems to be clearly defined as the result of a questionnaire recently sent out by a firm of book publishers in an endeavor to ascertain what sells books.

The 10,000 replies received to date show that only 199 purchased the books because of their titles. More than 3,450 sales were attributed to reviews; 2,460 to advertisements and so on through the recommendation of a friend, reputation of the author, bookstore display, interest in subject, gift, lecture or sermon, with the title at the bottom of the list.

THE REASON WHY

Thin Weak Children Need Baby's Own Tablets

Malnutrition or inability to derive nourishment from food, is a common trouble with little children and is entirely due to stomach and bowel weakness. Another cause of loss of flesh and sleep is worms.

HOUSE UNITED IN ENDORSING PENSIONS BILL

Ottawa, Ont.—The government and the opposition united in expressing appreciation for the work of the parliamentary committee on pensions, when the bill to amend the pensions act was before the House of Commons in committee. The bill is to give legislative effect to the recommendation of the pensions committee decided upon after a lengthy enquiry into the claims of organziations of returned men for more generous treatment. The bill passed the committee stage quickly, and was then given third reading. It now goes to the senate.

When he arose to explain the bill Hon. Dr. J. H. King, Minister of Pensions and National Health, praised the work of the committee. He felt that not only would the returned men, but all the people of Canada, be pleased with the work which had been accomplished and highly appreciative of the untiring efforts of the members of the committee. The report of the committee had been unanimous.

The bill revises the machinery for dealing with appeals of soldiers from the pensions board. It provides a veterans' bureau to prepare the cases for soldiers. An important change gives a veteran the advantage when there is a reasonable doubt as to whether his incapacity was due to war service.

Congratulating the committee on the patient consideration and expert knowledge brought to this important question, Hon. R. B. Bennett said its members were entitled to the thanks of the nation. The committee was composed of men with first hand experience of soldiers' problems. He especially praised the chairman, C. G. Power (Liberal, Quebec South).

No difference of opinion existed among Canadian people, the Conservative leader declared, as to the pensions problem. They wanted a measure of generous compensation to all those who had risked their lives for this country. It assured the returned man the country was behind him, said Mr. Bennett.

There was nothing partisan in the bill or in the methods by which the committee had worked.

Considering Reverse "Rhodes Scholarships"

Would Permit English Boys To Attend Canadian Universities

Toronto, Ont. — Sir Robert Falconer, president of the University of Toronto, announces the establishment of a reverse "Rhodes Scholarship" is being considered by a committee of educationists to permit English boys to attend Canadian universities.

Dr. Cyril Norwood, chairman of the party of English schoolmasters which recently visited Canada, strongly advocated such an exchange of students, stressing his wish to see English boys specialize in economics and science. In praising the idea, Chancellor H. P. Whidden, of McMaster University, said, "I consider the point by Dr. Norwood, that Canada offers opportunities in the scientific and economic fields is well taken. One would hardly expect English students to study classics here when such excellent facilities are offered at Oxford."

Gen. C. H. Mitchell, dean of the faculty of applied science of the University of Toronto, termed the scheme of "Reverse Scholarships" practical and feasible.

Conciliation Board To Settle Dispute

Dockers At Vancouver Wish Alterations In Renewal Agreement

Ottawa, Ont.—A labor dispute involving 1,100 water front workers in Vancouver and district is to be settled by a board of conciliation under the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Labor, announced. The parties involved are the Shipping Federation of British Columbia and some of their employees who are members of the Vancouver and District Waterfront Workers' Association.

The men wish the renewal of the agreement with the employers covering wages and working conditions which expired November 30, 1929, with certain alterations. Two members of the board of conciliation have already been appointed; R. B. Pirie, of Vancouver, on the recommendation of the employees, and J. E. Hall on the recommendation of the employers.

Mr. Heenan is awaiting word from these two board members as to the selection of a third member who will act as chairman.

Change Will Assist Trade

Canadian Tariff Gives Many Advantages To British Manufacturer

London, England. — Hon. W. R. Smith, parliamentary secretary to the Board of Trade, said in the House of Commons, the changes in the Canadian tariff would affect business operations in a great many sections of the export trade of Britain. Every effort was being made to assist manufacturers and traders to take advantage of their new opportunities, he said. While the department of overseas trade believed no practical purpose could be served by such a conference it would be glad to adopt the proposals of particular groups if they felt that consultation would be useful, he concluded.

Wants Public Represented

People Interested In Veterans' Allowance Act Says Major-General MacDonnell

Ottawa, Ont.—Criticism of the plan to appoint the commission to administer the War Veterans' Allowance Act wholly of returned men was made by Major-General A. H. MacDonnell, a member of the Senate committee investigating the bill. Dr. J. A. Amyot, Deputy Minister of the Department of Pensions, informed the committee it was the intention to appoint veterans to the committee.

General MacDonnell did not contend that returned men could not fill the offices, but he believed the general public should be represented as well. County judges could be utilized, he suggested, and they would bring to the committee experience that the majority of returned soldiers lacked.

Toronto Man Killed When Parachute Fails

Was Making First Attempt To Jump From Airplane

Toronto, Ont.—Attempting his first parachute jump from an aeroplane, Kenneth Burgess, Toronto, was killed when the parachute failed to open. The aeroplane was at an altitude of 1,500 feet when Burgess jumped. The unopened parachute caught on a tangle of telephone wires, hurling him into the ditch. He was alive when picked up and a doctor was summoned, but he died a few minutes later.

The aeroplane was a Colonial Airways machine, which left the company's field near Dufferin Street in North York Township.

Burgess is survived by his widow and two children.

Suggest Advisory Board

Commission Would Help To Solve Problem Of Immigration

Ottawa, Ont.—Establishment of a permanent advisory commission on immigration, on lines similar to the tariff board, was one of the many suggestions dealing with the immigration problem at the annual meeting of the Canadian Political Science Association here. The suggestion was made in a paper by Prof. W. B. Hurd, of Brandon, Man.

In his opinion the regulation of immigration was a matter for scientific economists and sociologists, rather than politicians. A commission could make a continuous examination of employment and social conditions throughout Canada and could give expert advice to the governments on the number and type of immigrants which could profitably be admitted. Persons interested in securing immigrants for any district would have to make application before the commission adducing evidence of an economic rather than a sentimental character.

Naval Agreement Is Attacked By Admirals

Places Their Navy In Inferior Position Say U.S. Officers

Washington, D.C.—Two more admirals told senate committees that the London naval treaty would leave the United States in a position of inferiority.

Rear Admiral J. V. Chase, of the General Board, said the pact did not represent parity with Great Britain, and had many other flaws from the viewpoint of a navy man.

Although he was an adviser at the London conference, Rear Admiral J. R. P. Pringle said, he was consulted but once by the United States delegation. He advised the delegates against the cruiser arrangement they finaaly accepted.

Japanese Immigration

Ottawa, Ont.—Two hundred and thirty-four Japanese immigrants have been admitted to Canada since September 1, 1928, up to the end of the last fiscal year, according to a return tabled in the House of Commons. Of these 130 were males, and the balance females. Fifty-eight were agricultural workers, and 56 were domestics. The remainder were children. Only 50 Japanese are permitted to enter Canada annually.

No Press Men On Dirigible

London, England.—The only press information that will be given respecting the R-100 flight across the Atlantic will be that kept by Wing Commander R. B. B. Colmore, who will release it on the craft's arrival in Canada. On the return trip Canadian and British newspapermen will be carried.

Jolly Beggars Broadcast Joy

"The most truly poetical of all Burns poems," said Thomas Carlyle, "is one which does not appear in Currie's edition, but has been often printed before and since, under the humble title of "The Jolly Beggars."

With music revised, arranged and orchestrated from the edition of 1818 (harmonized by Bishop), by M. Wood Hill, in collaboration with J. Campbell McInnes, "The Jolly Beggars" was presented as a ballad-opera by the Alfred Heather Light Opera Company, in the Canadian Pacific Railway's programme of music from station WJZ and twelve associated stations of the National Broadcasting Company, from 9.15 to 9.45, Eastern Daylight Saving Time, on Sunday, May 18.

The following artists took part in the programme: J. Campbell McInnes as "the Narrator" (Robert Burns); Finlay Campbell as "A Maimed Soldier"; John Detweiler as "A Tinker"; Mrs. Davies Wynne as "The Widow of a Highland Freebooter Poosie Nancie"; Alfred Heather as "A Bard and Ballad Singer"; and Jean Haig as "The Soldier's Lass." The first song of this opera is of special interest as containing a reference to Canada: "When the bloody die on the Heights of Abram," referring to the battle between Wolfe and Montcalm.

NEW TARIFF ON FRUITS IS TO BE AMENDED

Ottawa, Ont.—Amendments will be introduced to a number of items in the tariff resolutions affecting fruits and vegetables. Hon. C. A. Dunning, Minister of Finance, announced in the House of Commons. The changes will apply to products which under the new schedule have ad valorem as well as specific duties. The specific will be made to apply only in those seasons of the year in which foreign importations come in competition with Canadian grown fruit and vegetables.

The announcement of the finance minister was greeted with applause by the Conservatives who expressed the opinion that he had become a convert to the seasonal tariffs they had been advocating.

When the uproar had quieted, Mr. Dunning explained that the decision to limit the specific duties to certain seasons instead of the entire year had come as a result of conferences with the fruit and vegetable growers. They had expressed willingness to co-operate in this connection. He could not promise that the seasons would suit all the growers from the Atlantic to the Pacific because of the many differences as to the dates when such products are marketed here, but an attempt had been made to deal as fairly as possible with all.

The House spent the entire day on budget resolutions, and some progress was recorded. The tea item, as amended by the budget, was finally approved. Under this item tea produced in the British Empire enters Canada free under the British preference, and is subject to duty of nine cents, intermediate, and ten cents, general.

Approval was also given to the resolution which declared that excise duties or taxes shall be disregarded in estimating the market value of goods for special duty, when these commodities come in under the British preference, or intermediate tariff. The resolution passed, however, only after protest by certain Conservative members that the Canadian silk industry would suffer through the admission of Japanese silks.

Ask Amendment Of Criminal Code

Christian Scientists Want Clause Introduced For Their Protection

Toronto, Ont.—A despatch from Ottawa to the Toronto Star, says that in a bill introduced by the government to amend the criminal code, a change has been made at the request of Christian Scientists, in three sections, which deal with the obligations of heads of families, people in charge of the sick, and masters and mistresses of servants and apprentices under sixteen. It is explained the purpose of the section is to permit Christian Scientists to practice their beliefs without fear of prosecution.

The new sub-section which is suggested for the criminal code in this regard is as follows:

"Any obligation which may be involved in this or the two preceding sections to supply medical or surgical attendance as 'necessaries,' or 'necessaries of life,' shall not apply to, or affect persons using or depending on prayer or spiritual means for the treatment of human ailments as an enjoyment or exercise of religious freedom."

Service at Princeton halted by fire

Fire in the building that houses the Princeton telephone office resulted in a cessation of long distance and local service there on May 7. The telephone equipment was not damaged by fire, but service was discontinued around 6 a.m. as a result of water and falling debris.

Telephone men acted quickly. Temporary long-distance service was given by setting up telephones in another building, and connecting the toll lines to them. Local service was resumed at 1 p.m., a temporary shelter for operators being provided by placing tents over the telephone equipment.

Poll Tax and Trade Licenses

"Rancher's letter in last week's issue urging immediate action on the part of the village commissioners to put the hard surface road east of town in first-class shape has proven a most timely contridution, and while the Review strongly favors the idea of securing a loan, if necessary, to get on with any needed improvements, still it is surprising to note just how many citizens there are who do not believe in the village borrowing money for any such purpose.

Likewise, "Rancher's" terse statement of case has given the commissioners the opportunity to point out that if citizens generally would pay their trade licenses and poll taxes when these are due, the village would have ample funds to carry on all needed improvements without having to wait until midsummer—by which time taxes have been fairly well liquidated, and the check for the first half-year's liquor profits has come to hand.

In looking up the balance sheet for 1929 it is found that almost $1000 was last year collected in trade licenses and poll tax and according to the by-laws authorizing these levies both taxes are payable at January 2nd, with the employer called upon to pay the poll tax on all employees who have been on the payroll for two weeks, and who are not paying rates to a total of $4 to the village in any other form. Say the commissioners: "With the $1000 aforementioned plus a more generous liquidation earlier in the year of ordinary taxes village affairs could be much more advantageously handled all round."

As to poll tax there seems no occasion for hesitation in making January payment. The money does not come out of the pocket of the employer and the more four dollars' he can turn into the village treasury from such a source so much the better for citizens as a whole. The amount charged is certainly not too high a sum to levy on anyone who is provided with a means of livelihood within the village boundaries. People outside the corporation are compelled to contribute and do not enjoy quite all the advantages afforded residents within the corporation of the village of Creston.

In connection with failure on the part of any "merchant, trader or employer of labor" to pay poll tax for every male person in his employ the Poll Tax By-Law provides penalty, upon summary conviction, of a sum not exceeding $100.

With trade license payments a rather loose system has been allowed to continue since incorporation that is not in accord with the by-law. This laxity has to do with the manner of payment. Before incorporation the provincial police came around every six months and personally collected the trade licenses. Under the village legislation there is no stumpulation that the village clerk shall call, although this system of personal call by the village clerk has been followed, but it should be understood that this is a courtesy that has been shown—and a courtesy that has not infrequently been not at all kindly received in some cases and suggested date for deferred payment somewhat lightly regarded by others.

According to the village By-Law No. 3 trade licence money must be paid in precisely the same fashion as ordinary taxes which are liquidated by a call at the clerk's office or sent by mail, and it may be of interest to know that failure to pay on due date renders delinquents liable to a penalty, upon summary conviction, of a sum not exceeding $250.

Better results in gathering in trade licenses, however, may be looked for when the commissioners amend the by-law so as to make it necessary to take out a licenses for the full year. At present a six months' licence is provided for and in that way gives opportunity to split the payment iuto half-yearly instalments. For those wanting short-term licenses provision can be made for rebate if business is only conducted for the half year.

Whether one does or does not approve of the pay-as-you-go policy of the commissioners it must be apparent that greater effiency may be expected in the handling of municipal affairs where revenues due the village are promptly available, and right now is just as good a time as any for the commissioners and all others interested to inaugurate minor regdjustments to make effective the desirable and necessary change in the system of trade license payments. The benefits accruing from the prompt payment of every dollar of poll taxes are too obvious to necessitate greater urge to action.

THE ANAEMIC GIRL

Who Has Lost Her Charm and Beauty

"She seems to be losing her looks." This remark is often heard about girls who were once noted for their sparkling eyes, their rosy cheeks and their vitality. The cause is not far to seek—they have become anaemic; that accounts for the pallor and the loss of charm. The anaemic girl, if she neglects her health, may be a sufferer all her life.

Take heed, you pale, anaemic girls. Plenty of fresh air, nourishing food and rest will help you, but what you need most is good blood. Those wretched headaches; that fickle appetite and those terrible heart palpitations can only be banished if the blood is rich, red and pure.

Good blood—the kind that brings good health is created by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The whole mission of these Pills is to build rich, red health-giving blood. The Pills are sold by all dealers in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

New Use For Wheat

Light Crop Can Be Made Profitable By Feeding To Poultry

With the present uncertainty which prevails in the wheat market the Dominion Department of Agriculture finds that farmers are paying more attention to the marketing of grain crops through live stock. Some important and interesting results have come to light, and not the least interesting is the experience of an Alberta farmer who had a light crop which he could not sell at the elevator. He had a flock of poultry and started feeding the wheat to them and marketing it in the form of eggs through the local egg pool. When the winter was over he figured up his costs and found that he had sold the wheat thus fed at an average price of $5 per bushel. Another western farmer with a modest flock of 150 birds kept his family throughout the winter on the income from the eggs, and he states that his gross income for the winter from the flock averaged $200 per month.

Plan To Encourage Community Progress

Canadian National Railway Will Give Prizes For Competition

Plans which seek to provide a substantial contribution to the encouragement of community progress and development, and the attainment of the fullest possible measure of Canadian citizenship by those rural communities in Western Canada which are of European origin, have been developed by the Canadian railways according to an announcement just made by Sir Henry Thornton from the head offices of the railway company at Montreal.

These plans initiated and developed by Dr. W. J. Black, director of the Departments of Agriculture and Colonization, of the National System, involve the carrying out of a series of competitions among such communities in the three provinces, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, to be held annually for a period of five years, for which one set of three prizes will be awarded in each province each year. These prizes will be substantial, the first being $1,000, the second $500, and the third $250, and they will be awarded on the understanding that the money be utilized in community work of some progressive nature. It is planned to have the competitions commence this year.

The Departments of Agriculture and Colonization, of the National Railways, will assume the responsibility of conducting the competitions, but hearty co-operation and support in the carrying out of the entire scheme has been offered by various departments of the provincial governments which have chiefly to do with matters of rural community progress and welfare. Leading men and women in western life also intimated that the project has their support and approval. For the judging of the competitions in each province, a committee of three outstanding citizens will be selected.

It is proposed to confine the competitions to rural municipalities, or groups of school districts within municipalities in which the population is made up of people of continental European origin, first or second generation. It is recognized that the interest which these people take in co-operating to make effective the policies of such departments of government as have to do with agriculture, education and public health, may be regarded as an index of the people to the advantages of what the Dominion provides towards influencing their status as good citizens. It has, therefore, been decided that emphasis shall be placed upon the things which these departments regard as of greatest importance. Consideration will be given to such matters as percentage of school attendance, efficiency of the school, percentage of young people attending secondary schools, colleges or universities, evidence of interest in matters relating to public health and social welfare, percentage of membership in farmers' organizations, such as the co-operative marketing pools, agricultural societies, womens' institutes, etc., and evidence of general progress towards improvement of agriculture methods, throughout the particular community or area involved. Special consideration also will be given to evidence of community interest in music, arts and handicrafts. In respect to all this, the competitions will take into consideration the full calendar year and awards will be made at the end of each year. In discussing the project, Dr. Black said: "It is recognized that the people in a great many of the communities of European origin in the prairie provinces of Canada, have been showing an exceedingly fine interest in making full use of the facilities and influences which our Canadian institutions provide in agriculture, education and otherwise. It is the desire of the railway company, in undertaking to direct these competitions for a period of five years, to give encouragement to such communities as are showing a determination to make use of and emphasize to the fullest extent the best that our country provides in the development of citizenship."

CONTRAST BETWEEN FAITHFULNESS AND SLOTHFULNESS

Golden Text: "Well done, good and faithful servant: thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will set thee over many things; enter thou into the joy of thy lord." Matthew 25.21.

Lesson: Matthew 25.14-46.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 40.1-8.

Explanations and Comments

The Commission Received, verses 14, 15.—The situation as regards the Kingdom of Heaven, said Jesus in His parable of the Talents, is comparable to that of a man who, about to go to another country, calls together his servants and delivers to them his goods. In the interpretation of the parable, the "man" represents Christ; his "goods," all possessions—life, physical and mental powers, etc.,—which are represented as God's property, entrusted to men, His servants, as a loan.

The Commission Carried out, verses 16-18.—The one who received five talents lost no time, but straightway went and traded with them, and made other five talents. In like manner he that received two talents doubled them. But he that received the one talent went away and hid it in the earth. It was a common practice in the East to bury money for safekeeping, but his lord wanted increase as well as safety.

The Faithful Ones Rewarded, verses 19-23.—After a long time the lord returned and made a reckoning with his servants. The one who doubled his five talents he recommended in these words: "Well done, good and faithful servant: thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will set thee over many things."

The Slothful One Punished, verses 24-30.—"Lord, I knew that thou art a hard man" (austere man, Luke 19.21), said he who had received one talent, "reaping where thou didst not sow, and gathering where thou didst not scatter." He uses proverbial expressions for an unscrupulous, grasping man. It is "all work and no pay" in his lord's service, his lord "takes all the increase and gives the laborer no share in the reward," he thus says. "And I was afraid," he continued, "and went away and hid they talent in the earth; lo, thou hast thine own."

"Thou wicked and slothful servant!" exclaimed his lord. "You called me hard. I call you a churl.—A. B. Bruce. "Out of thine own mouth will I judge thee, Luke 19.22. If thou knewest this, thou oughtest to have put my money to the bankers, and at my coming I should have received mine own with interest."

The Judgment, verses 31.46.

Persian Balm is irresistible. Fragrant as summer flowers. Cool as a mountain spring. Wonderfully invigorating. Softens and whitens the hands. Makes skin soft-textured and youthful. London's Privilege

A privilege which belongs to the City of London is that its maces and its swords may be carried upright. This privilege was granted to the city in 1354, and where other corporations slope their maces and their swords, the City maces may be carried upright, and the City swords generally are so borne, in the same way as the State sword is borne before the King, as an emblem of sovereignty.

London's Moving Stairways

Will Be Speeded Up To 150 Feet a Minute

The moving stairways connected with London's famous underground railways are to be speeded up. At present this speed is 90 feet per minute. Experiments are being made with a stairway travelling at 150 feet a minute. Regular passengers who nip on and off the escalators with agility, would be glad to have them go faster, but the many who still regard them as perilous innovations will be more inclined than they are now to use the omnibuses.

As the Scots Said

The news that Weihaiwei is being relinquished by Britain to China may recall to a few old-timers Punch's cartoon of more than thirty years ago, showing two aged Scots engaged in the following dialogue: First Scot—"Ah see wa hae Weihaiwei." Second Scot—"Hae we?" First Scot—"Aye, we hae."

A year before there had been talk of building a main schoolhouse in the center of the town; but the plan had been abandoned because so many of the children came from farms outside the village that it would have been necessary to send a bus to collect them, and the old way seemed easier. Thus Charmian began her duties as teacher in the very room where she began her school days nineteen years before. The small, brick building was unchanged save for an impressive sign over the door which read, "Lincoln School." This replaced the battered, weatherworn board that had designated "District Four," and was a concesion to the daring souls who declaored that district schools had "gone out of fashion," and that Wickfield would be a laughing-stock to the entire country unless some change in its educational system was made.

"You'd think to hear 'em talk," raged Deacon Purdie, who always flared into speech at any mention of spending money, either by the town, himself, or one of his neighbors, "that we folks that went to the old schools ain't eddicated! I guess what was good enough for us is good enough for the smart Alecks that folks is raisin' these days. I caught that Eldridge boy makin' a—a disgraceful—er—gesture at me the other day!"

"If he'd caught all the people who would enjoy doing the same thing," grinned Jimmy Bennett when Grandma related this piece of gossip, they'd reach from here to the district school that he's so keen about! The darned old hypocrite!"

But this time the deacon's faction had triumphed.

"If it hadn't," said Grandma regretfully when Charmian told her that the coveted "job" was landed, "it would be a sight easier for you, child. You'll have to start the coldest part of the day to walk that distance. It makes me shiver just to think about it. I wish Ed Purdie had to walk it for you. He'd soon change his mind about whether young folks deserve a better school building!"

"Now don't begin worrying about next winter," laughed Charmian. "I dare say the exercise will do me good. I don't get half enough as it is now."

It was the first of August when Charmian was notified of her appointment. Other events followed quickly on its heels, the most astonishing of all being the Sunday morning when Deacon Purdie surprised the congregation by walking proudly into church followed by the blushing Luella (wearing the much-talked-of yellow beads) and her six little olive branches.

"I feel sort of responsible, chuckled Gam Garfield, who had stopped in after divine worship to talk the matter over with Grandma Davis. "I laid it on so thick about the cost of settling the thing by law, that I guess Edgar decided it would be cheaper to get hitched. Anyway, they went over to Eastboro yesterday afternoon and tied the knot. I haven't heard what bribe he used to make Luella change her mind, but she was simpering enough this morning to please any one."

"He might at least have given the wedding fee to Mr. Merry," complained Grandma. "What was the idea of going clear to Eastboro?"

"Search me!" replied the little lawyer, throwing out his hands in an expressive gesture. "Maybe luck. Mr. Merry performed the last two ceremonies, and the brides up and died on him, as Lizzie Baker says. Anyway, Grandma, that lets you out of any trouble. Now that he's nothing to gain by it the deacon will never let it be known that you got the better of him in a deal."

Grandma laughed as she glanced from the window.

"Here they come now!" she exclaimed excitedly." They must have gone to meeting the long way 'round, for I've been here every minute since breakfast and never laid eyes on 'em before. It looks sort of like a bridal procession, Gam, with all those children attendants. My stars! I should think even Luella Moore (and she's a fool if ever there was one), would know better than to give her babies such a stepfather. I pity the poor little things; but I suppose their mother is counting on Edgar's joining his other wives in Kingdom Come, seeing he's so much older, and then she'll come into the Purdie property. Just look at how Edgar struts! He did the same when he married Emma Dodd, but with Carrie and Eva he was sort o' drooping, they not being so handsome as his first. I don't suppose you know if Luella got on a new dress, Gamaliel?"

The lawyer shook his head.

"That's beyond me; but here comes Charmian and the doctor. Perhaps they can supply the missing details."

He arose as the girl and her companion entered, and said triumphantly: "I beat you to it, Charmian! Skipped out as soon as I decently could and made a home run with the news. We've just been watching the bridal party from the window."

"Doesn't it beat all?" cried Grandma. "Did Luella have on a new dress, dearie? It looked to me like her old blue made over."

"I can't say," laughed Charmian. "I was far too thrilled watching the bridegroom to have any eyes left for Luella's raiment. The children spilled over into the Merry's pew, Grandma, but they behaved well."

"I saw their new papa give one of 'em a dirty look when she dropped a hymn book," proclaimed another arrival who proved to be Jim Bennett.

"I got that, too," declared John Carter. "I wonder if any one in church can remember the text," he added with a quiet laugh. "The center of attraction was certainly not the minister."

"Well," said the old lady, "I've no doubt that Mr. Merry understood and made allowances. Probably he had considerable trouble keeping his own mind on the sermon. Mr. Merry is real human if he is a minister. Did you know if Luella had a new dress, Jimmy? I'd admire to find out."

"Mother said it was an old one, fixed up," replied Jim glibly. "Guess Edgar sprang the ceremony on his love so suddenly (considering their recent quarrel), that she didn't have time to visit her modiste."

Charmian giggled, while the doctor reproved her by saying: "I'm shocked at your levity, Miss Davis. This is a serious matter—to Luella."

"I'll say it is!" said Jim; and added, with a glance at the lawyer, "and it's cost you a good case, Gam. I'm surprised you should let such an opportunity slip through your fingers."

"It was a sacrifice on my part," replied Gamaliel, sighing. "I did it, Jim, to save an old friend from getting into trouble."

"He's joking," nodded the old lady, "but there's a sight o' truth behind the joke. You'll get your reward in the next world, Gam, if you don't here. He's referring to a business transaction I had with the deacon, Jimmy," she explained. "I presume Charmian told you about it at the time."

"She did," grinned Jim. "My sole regret is that I wasn't behind the door with these precious eaves-droppers."

"Same here," asserted the lawyer, rising. "I'd have given ten dollars for the privilege of a front seat. Well, Grandma, I must run along or be late to dinner. All's well that ends well, and so long as Luella thinks she's adorning her beauty with some costly product of the Orient, why no harm's done. You going my way, Jim? I'll give you a lift."

"You're a dandy matchmaker, Grandma," remarked John Carter, as the callers departed and he took the chair beside her.

"Matchmaker!" echoed Grandma indignantly. "If I thought I'd had anything to do with giving those Moore children such a mean stepfather, I'd never rest easy in my grave. There goes George K. and Selina. They're waving. A nice couple if ever there was one, and successful, too. Selina can wear a silk dress every day if she wants to; but when they were married George K. was just beginning at the bank and earning less'n ten dollars a week. Now he's president, and his three boys all went to college and are a credit to him and their mother. One of 'em writes poetry, and gets it printed in the magazines. I've always thought that if Charmian had more time she could be a writer. Once she wrote a real pretty piece about—"

"Grandma Davis!" reproved Charmian from the doorway. "I forbid you to boast about my youthful literary efforts. The subject is painful, and I haven't a doubt that the doctor wrote better ones himself in his early days."

"I can't vouch for comparisons," smiled the doctor, "but in my twelfth year I produced a masterpiece that caused a riot in the family. It began:

"The sun was setting o'er the battlements.
It shone on ladies and on gents. . . . ."

"It was a ballad, dealing with love and covering six pages. My mother treasured it for years."

"Of course she did," said Grandma seriously, though her lips twitched. "Don't giggle so, Charmian. You'll turt the doctor's feelings. Is dinner ready? I feel hungry after so much excitement; and I presume Lizzie Baker'll be over soon as she eats."

One new auxiliary and one new mission band were formed last year. Competition for a banner among the mission bands of the Kootenay has been revived, and knowledge of study book, contributions, attendance and deportment are the main facts to be considered by the bands. Mrs. Dow and Mrs. Boyd of Creston and Mrs. Colvin of Kimberley are the committee in charge of this feature. Progress has been made in all departments.

Rev. P. McNab officiated at a quiet house wedding on Saturday, 24th, when Miss Anna, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Axel Anderson, was united in marriage with George H. L. The bride's costume was of green and brown flowered crepe, and she was attended by Miss Florence Rentz, who was gowned in green crepe. Canute Anderson, brother of the bride, supported the groom A wedding luncheon was served following the ceremony, and later Mr. and Mrs. Dewfirst left by motor on a wedding trip to Banff and Calgary, Alberta, and on their return will reside at Kimberley. The bride is a deservedly popular member of Creston's younger set and the newlyweds have the best wishes of many friends for a happy and successful future.
