Oldtime Erickson Resident Passes

Death Summons Walter Hall Monday After Lingering Illness—Came Here from Somerset, England About 1907.

Death has taken another of Creston district's oldtime and highly respected residents in the passing of Walter W. Hall whose end came on Monday afternoon at his ranch at Erickson, at the age of 58 years, following an illuess that has confined him to his home for the past three years.

Deceased, who was born in 1872, in Somerset, England, was naturally venturesome, his seventeenth year finding him serving as a seaman in the United States navy, where he served for about four years. Shortly after his return to England he was married in 1894, and about 1907 they left for Canada, coming direct to the Creston district, and first locating on what was then known as the North place, about a mile east of the village.

In 1909 they moved to Erickson where he opened the Erickson Hotel, which he continued to conduct until 1917, about which time he sold the property to Mike McCarthy, and moved onto his ranch, which he had commenced to develop some years previous. He continued as an orchardist until 1924 when he went to Kimberley to take a position with the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Company, and two or three years later met with au accident that necessitated hospital treatment and it was at that time discovery was made of his impaired health, and on his doctor's advice he came back to the ranch to recuperate, since which time he has been almost steadily confined to the house. His wife predeceased him in 1919. One son, William, survives.

The late Walter Hall took a keen interest in educational affairs and was for many years on the trustee board of Erickson school. He was for a couple of years director of Creston Co-Operative Fruit Exchange, and took a prominent part in community activities up to the time of going to Kimberley.

The funeral took place on Wednesday afternoon from his late residence to Creston cemetery, with Rev. A. Garlick, Anglican rector at Creston officiating, and the pallbearers were R. J. Long, E. Cartwright, E. Haskins, E. J. C. Richardson, R. M. Telford and W. R. Long, with a large turnout of friends and acquaintances to pay their last respects, and the many floral remembrances bespeaking the high esteem in which deceased was held.

Mr. Blaine of Nelson, water rights branch engineer, was here on an official visit at the first of the week, taking measurements on some of the water springs in this area.

Repair work is complete on the hard surface road in this section and quite a good job has been made of it, considering the money that seems to have been available.

Mrs. J. E. Johnston and children of Pincher Creek, Alberta, arrived at the end of the week to join Mr. Johnston, and will make their permanent home in Creston. At Pincher Creek Mrs, Johnston achieved success as a teacher of piano and elocution and it is her intention to continue that work here. At the 1930 Crows Nest Pass Musical festival at Blairmore, Alberta, four of her pupils were winners of medals in the pianoforte competitions. Speaking of a recital given in the opera house at Pincher Creek by her pupils in December the Echo says: "An outstanding feature of the program was that it was not entirely instrumental, the readings and songs and dialogues in song and selections from light opera formed a very pleasing variety in addition to the excellent and varied selections on the piano. Mrs. Johnston in her work of instructing the children has proven her capabilities in the threefold, including piano, elocution and the development of the artistic sense."

1908 Canyon Residents Dine

Pioneers' Association Celebrate District's Twenty-Second Anniversary—Twelve "Original Firsts" Still Resident There.

The days af 1908 and immediate succeeding years at Canyon City were recalled in speech, story and joke at the dinner of the Canyon Pioneers' Association Wednesday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Bond at Canyon, the attandance being confined strictly to those now living in the district who were also residedts there 22 yeass ago, when land in that section was first thrown open to purchase by Canyon City Lumber Company, Limited.

Covers were laid for twelve and the only absentees were Robert Turner and "Shorty" Adams, who were unavoidably detained. The dinner had the real birthday flavor to it, Mrs. Bond providing the customary cake, with 22 candles, and all the other seasonable delicacies to which the pioneers did full justice.

The gathering was presided over in happy fashion by Hilton Young, who in his introductory remarks as toastmaster recalled that the first land buyer was T. R. Mawson, who purcnased in October, 1908, on his arrival from Okotoks, Alberta, although the first man to occup land was Robert Turner, who was residing at Creston at the time Block 812 was made available to purchase. The first pioneer, however, is "Shorty" Adams, who arrived in May, 1908, as an employee of the Company. The toasts, which were proposed and responded to in most interesting style, were:

The King.

Pioneers—Proposed by T. R. Mawson; response by D. Rogers.

Canyon City—Propcsed by W. E. Searle; response by F. Knott.

The Ladies—Proposed by Jas. Turner; response by Mrs. Searle and Mrs. Knott.

The Bachelors—Proposed by Campbell Blair; response by Jas. Turner, T. R. Mawson.

Our Hosts--Proposed by H. Young; response by Mrs. D. Rogers.

It is the intention to have these gatherings in the future and a committee of three, Mrs. Searle and Messers. Young and J. Turner, were authorized to take charge of a get-together in 1933, to observe the quarter century anniversary to which it is proposed to invite all the landowners of 1908 whether they now reside at Canyon or not.

What Is Right With Canada?

A moderate optimist, we are told, is one who sees both the good and the bad, the pleasing and the displeasing, the bright and the dark, the encouraging and the discouraging, but prefers to think and talk about the brighter and better things.

At the present time we have more than a sufficiency of pessimists, crape-hangers, disseminators of blue ruin gossip. We also have a few incorrigible optimists who shut their eyes and ears to the actual facts of any situation and cry "All is well."

What Canada and the world needs today are more moderate optimists, men and women who, looking at both sides of the pictures, refuse to be depressed by the darker colors and shadows and find encouragement and great promise in the brighter colors and the rays of sunshine breaking through the clouds.

Major Yeats-Brown, an Englishman, is the type of moderate optimist whose number should be multiplied. As an offset to the many things that have been said in answer to the query: "What is Wrong with England?" he advances the question? "What is Right with England?" and proceeds to answer his own question most entertainingly in the London Spectator.

Would it not be advisable for us in this country to also reverse the usual question we hear so often asked these days, and, rather, make answer to the query: "What is Right with Canada?" We may well do so, because there are so many things that are right with this Dominion, so many more right things than there are wrong things, that we are doubly foolish to ignore them and dwell upon the smaller ills.

Looking around Canada we can discover a multitude of good things, the very best things. We find, for example, one of the most healthy, robust people in the world, possessing an abounding vitality and charged with initiative and energy. And of all the blessings which can be bestowed upon a nation or individual, what other one blessing, or group of blessings, surpasses that of health? Possessing health all things are possible; lacking it all the wealth of the world is valueless to bring joy and happiness into one's life.

Looking at other countries, we find many of them filled wtih hatreds, with strife uppermost in the minds of the people, their thoughts and energies devoted to preparation for possible warfare. In Canada, on the other hand, we have a land occupied by a peace-loving people with a positive and growing hatred of war, making no preparations for war, but devoting their thoughts and energies to the arts and advancements of peace. No other country in the world is so "right" on the subject of peace and disarmament as is Canada.

Grouped with health and a sane viewpoint of man's relations to man we can place the moral and intellectual outlook of a nation. Looking over our broad Dominion we find a deep-rooted moral fibre, strong and sturdier than in most lands, with an abiding respect for law and order which no other country can excel, and which far surpasses that entertained by the people of any other country in either North or South America. We find Canada a a land of schools and universities, a land in the very front rank of all movements for social betterment, a land the very foundations of which are sound, strong and stable.

Generally speaking, too, Canadian institutions of all kinds, whatever their faults, are strong and sound, constituting a bulwark in defence of the people. A bank failure in Canada is a rare thing; our railways are progressive and efficient, fitting their programmes well into the life and needs of the Dominion. We are not—and never can be—immune from the vicissitudes and effects of world conditions and happenings, but, even so, we have it within ourselves, in our institutions and resources, to withstand the evil effects of world matters beyond our own direct control, and to rally from those bad effects more rapidly than any other land. At this present time, Canada, nothwithstanding its difficulties and business depression, is infinitely better off and stronger than most countries, and is suffering from less unemployment, proportionate to its population, than the United States.

Let us, therefore, dwell a little more on "What is Right?" and the effect of doing so will unquestionably be to lessen interest in the more depressing question "What is Wrong?" Isn't the search for right things most likely to expand and thus diminish keenness in the search for wrong things? And isn't it just possible that the volume of right things will grow and be properly recognized until presently the wrong things are forgotten, or at most given their proper relative place in the general scheme? Let us join the quest of the moderate optimist.

Western Orchards

G. F. Chipman, editor of the Country Guide, predicts that the near future will see orchards of standard eating apples in all parts of the Prairies where wheat is now grown successfully.

Ontario Gold Production

Gold production in the province of Ontario for the first eight months of this year is valued at $23,287,735, an increase of over $1,260,000 in value compared with corresponding period in 1929.

Sour Stomach

Just a tasteless dose of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in water. That is an alkali, effective, yet harmless. It has been the standard antacid for 50 years among physicians everywhere. One spoonful will neutralize at once many times its volume in acid. It is the right way, the quick, pleasant and efficient way to kill the excess acid. The stomach becomes sweet, the pain departs. You are happy again in five minutes.

Don't depend on crude methods. Employ the best way yet evolved in all the years of searching. That is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—any drugstore.

English Being Taught In German Schools

Classes Are Popular and Students Show Great Interest

Every boy and girl in Germany is being taught English, according to Prof. Max Zimple, author of English and German textbooks, who was in New York recently.

"Our students are tremendously interested in anything about America," he explained. "Every language teacher reports that the classes teaching English are very popular. We teach the same pronunciation heard in the South of England."

The school system in Germany is quite different to the United States, the visting professor says. Over there the aim is to have an aristocracy of learning. They do not desire to have every boy and girl graduate, but rather to make the work so difficult that only the brightest pupils can finish their high school course. Children who are backward in school are given a sound element-ary training and then the government apprentices them to a good trade for four years.

CONSTIPATED CHILDREN

Constipation is one of the most common ailments of childhood and the child suffering from it positively cannot thrive. To keep the little one well the bowels must be kept regular and the stomach sweet. To do this nothing can equal Baby's Own Tablets. They are a mild but thorough laxative; are pleasant to take and can be given to the newborn babe with perfect safety. Thousands of mothers use no other medicine for their little ones but Baby's Own Tablets. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A Refreshing Treat

Church Supper Gives People Opportunity For Sociability

The season for the church supper and the festival is here. These delightful events crowd the late summer and early autumn evenings. In this day and generation of so-called high-speed existence when we seem to depend so largely on manufactured enjoyment it is indeed a refreshing treat to attend the rural church supper or festival. At these events there is to be found wholesomeness and a plenty of food and association for greater values than the price paid for the ticket. These affairs are conducted for profit of course, but is a broader profit than monetary gain alone.

Sleep is the great nourisher of infants, and without peaceful sleep the child will not thrive. This cannot be got if the infant be troubled with worms. Miller's Worm Powders will destroy worms and drive them from the system, and afterwards the child's rest will be undisturbed. The powders cannot injure the most delicate baby, and there is nothing so effective for restoring the health of a worm-worn infant.

Conjuring Creek

Conjuring Creek, the curious name of a northern Saskatchewan river, was first suggested by that of Wizard Lake from which it flows. The Cree name is "Pawgomow."

Good-bye Asthma. Persons suffering from that extremely trying trouble known as asthma know what it is to long with all their hearts for escape as from a tyrant. Never do they know when an attack may come and they know that to struggle unaided is vain. With Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy at hand, however, they can say good-bye to their enemy and enjoy life again. It helps at once.

An Artist Without Arms

Henry Wiegman, a student artist of Cicero, a suburb of Chicago, was born without arms. But he is one of the promising students of an art school here. Wiegman holds the brush between his teeth and manipulates it with his tongue. He intends to make his living by commercial illustration or in his own gift shop. His ambition to paint dates from the time he learned to write by the same method. He is twenty-three now.

Temperature tests made in the region of a forest showed that the draft and heat from the flames caused a difference of ten degrees in temperature at some distance ahead of the advancing fire.

We all know health demands absolute inner cleanliness. But what we often don't realize is the risk we take when we use harsh, griping purgatives that create a strained, unnatural condition.

Impatient For Disarmament

League Of Nations Is Called Upon To Take Quick Action

A vehement and sometimes impatient demonstration, urging the hastening of the League of Nations' disarmament programme and early calling of a general conference for reduction and limitation of armaments, was witnessed in the League assembly's disarmament committee at Geneva recently.

From this rally there arose a promise of J. J. Loudon, chairman of the preparatory disarmament commission, that the commission would meet November 3 and fervidly seek to finish its task of clearing the way completely for a congress of all nations to construct a scheme of general disarmament. Voices from countries that were neutral during the World War, joined those from states which were disarmed by the war in the demand that the League should get along quickly with its long delayed purpose of inducing nations to lay aside their fighting.

Four Doses Relieved Bad Attack of Cholera

Mr. W. J. Cooper, Maughan, Alta., writes:—"A year ago last spring I arrived in Canada with my family, and one of my boys, aged six, was suffering very much with cholera. When we arrived I had a few hours to wait, and told one of the attendants at the station about it, and he asked me if I had ever tried Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. I had never heard of it in England, so he told me I could get it in Winnipeg. I am pleased to say I had only to give the child four doses and he got well and was quite cheerful by the next morning."

GOV'T PROGRAM ENLARGED FOR RELIEF PURPOSES

Ottawa, Ont.—Details of the Federal Government's campaign to relieve unemployment in Canada were outlined recently by Senator Gideon Robertson, Minister of Labor. Between $80,000,000 and $90,000,000 will be "put to work" to better distress conditions and provide work for Canadians, he said. This included the $20,000,000 supplied by parliament at the last session, the remainder being contributions from the provinces and the municipalities, and the $21,000,000 program of construction and improvement work to be undertaken by the Canadian National and the Canadian Pacific railways.

The Federal Government's scheme was not limited to setting aside money for construction in co-operation with the provinces and municipalities, the Minister of Labor declared. A sum of $4,000,000 would be set aside for "direct relief." The grade separation fund of the board railway commissioners would be augmented by a total of $1,000,000 for the benefit of any subway work undertaken. The government would contribute on a 50-50 basis with the provinces in building a trans-Canada highway from Sydney to Vancouver, and was prepared to pay 40 per cent. of the cost of general provincial highway work this winter.

There will be other angles to the government's relief program, Senator Robertson emphasized. Tariff changes made at the last session would afford immense stimulus to Canadian industry, he believed, and would result in the creation of more jobs. Restrictions had been placed on immigration for the benefit of Canadian labor. It was the minister's belief that the expenditure of from $80,000,00 to $90,000,000 throughout Canada in relief work by one kind or another, would reach every type of laborer, clerk or artisan.

The program of construction and improvements to be undertaken by the two large railroad companies, which has been formally approved by the cabinet, would result in the employemnt of 10,500 men for a year, Senator Robertson said. In addition, 2,000 teams of horses would be needed for grading purposes and this would be of benefit to great numbers of farmers. The whole program, he stated, called for the expenditure of $21,000,000 with work to start immediately. Orders would be placed at once for rails, Nova Scotia coal and other necessary supplies. Because these orders were not usually given at this time of the year, it would be necessary for the railroads to raise the money. Senator Robertson explained. Because of this, the government had decided to set aside $1,500,000 out of the $20,000,000 fund to guarantee interest and carrying charges to the railroads.

The first agreement with any of the provinces—Manitoba—has been concluded and awaits ratification by the cabinet. Representatives from Ontario have been in conference with the Minister of Labor and a start was made on negotiations with Alberta. New Brunswick representatives are in Ottawa and Prince Edward Island and some of the other provinces are scheduled to commence negotiations early this week.

Accompanying Dr. Manion were his deputy, D. I. Smart, Col. A. E. Dubuc, chief engineer of the department and Charles Haddow, assistant high commissioner for Great Britain.

Stresses Empire's Greatness

Hon. R. B. Bennett Addresses Brilliant Gathering In London

London, England.—With a brilliant gathering in attendance the delegates to the Imperial Conference were entertained at the Guildhall by the Royal Empire Society and other Imperial bodies.

"In the diversity of the peoples of our Empire, their talents and their resources, lies the real secret of the Empire's greatness," declared Hon. R. B. Bennett, prime minister of Canada, in his address.

The speech of the Canadian prime minister was greeted several times by cheers.

"Before us," said Mr. Bennett, "lies the task of Empire consolidation and with that task we meet in the heart of this great city, where trade, commerce, finance, and other great affairs engage the attention, to think of our Empire as an economic unit."

Mr. Bennett was cheered when he declared the nations of the Empire were not yet bankrupt in statesmanship. Men and women occupying a quarter of the land surface of the globe and comprising a quarter of its population, were still capable, by guidance and leadership, of achieving in the future what they had not already achieved, namely, the economic solidarity of the Empire which was as capable of achievement as the development of their constitutional liberties had been.

H.R.H. Prince Arthur of Connaught, former governor-general of South Africa, presided at the banquet.

But Woman Refused To Take Usual U.S. Oath For Naturalization

Lima, O.—Mrs. Carl Landis, Philadelphia, who refused to take oath to kill in defense of the United States, is now a citizen after a court battle lasting a year and a half.

She took the oath of allegiance still reserving her opposition to bearing arms; she would serve as a nurse and shed her blood if necessary in time of war.

Common Pleas Judge A. M. Rogers admitted the reservation and granted citizenship over the protest of the assistant supervisor of naturalization.

Mrs. Landis came from Alsace-Lorraine in 1910, and was married since she began her fight for citizenship.

Have Extensive Program

Railways To Proceed With Construction and Improvement Work

Ottawa, Ont.—Official announcement has been made by Senator Robertson, Minister of Labor, that the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific railways would proceed immediately with a $21,000,000 construction and improvement work. Employment for 10,500 men would thereby be provided for a year, and 2,000 teams of horses would be given work for a considerable part of the time, especially for grading purposes. The employment of teams will help the farmers in many districts.

Vancouver Wheat Exports

Shipments To Date Double the Amount Of Record Year

Vancouver, B.C.—Wheat exported from Vancouver during the current crop year to date totalled 8,283,378 bushels, double the amount shipped out during the same period of the record crop year of 1928-29 through Vancouver, when total shipments reached 100,000,000 bushels. Last year at this time only 2,679,378 bushels had been shipped.

To Teach Natives

Leningrad, Russia.—Geologists, pedagogues and other scientists have gone to northernmost Siberia where 5,000 nomads live in one of the remotest corners of the world. They expect to teach the natives how to fish better, to start reindeer farms, a chamois tannery, meat cannery and a plant to make iodine from seaweed.

Staff Reduced When Resources Handed Over

Accounts Can Be Handled By Smaller Number Of Clerks

Edmonton, Alberta.—No ceremony of any kind marked the formal transfer of Alberta's natural resources. Twenty-eight officials, clerks and stenographers in the Dominion Lands office here, found themselves out of employment, as transfer of the resources was made.

Regina, Sask.—Effective reduction of staff to permit financial savings by the administration of the natural resources is forecast by Premier J. T. M. Anderson in a statement issued as the provincial government took over the natural resources of Saskatchewan.

The transfer of the natural resources involves the transfer of about 20,000 accounts for grazing leases, mining claims, timber permits and contracts, land sales and contracts and school land contracts.

Hope Is Fulfilled

First C.P.R. Train Reaches Historic Town Of Battleford

Battleford, Sask.—Another page in the history of Battleford was written when the first Canadian Pacific railway train pulled into the depot at 12:30 on the afternoon of Sept. 30.

To the citizens who crowded the station platform, it was a fulfillment of a long cherished hope, which had its birth in 1875, when the first projection was made which was to carry the steel from Winnipeg, Fort Livingstone, Battleford, through the Yellow Head Pass to New Westminster.

In 1881 it was decided that the route should be diverted to serve the southern part of the province, and for nearly half a century citizens of this historic town have labored for the achievement marked recently.

Maritime Ports Are Important To Canada

Only Avenues Open On Our Atlantic Coast At Certain Seasons

Halifax, N.S.—Emphasizing the important position the ports of the Maritime provinces hold in relation to the Dominion at large, Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways, reminded his hearers at a luncheon given in his honor here, that, at certain seasons of the year the harbors of the Maritime provinces are the only avenues of ingress and egress on the Canadian Atlantic coast.

To contemplate any separation of the Maritimes from the rest of Canada, said Sir Henry, "would be to contemplate economic suicide." The position of the Maritimes economically, he added, was the best in the Dominion today. He pledged the fullest co-operation and support of the C.N.R. in development of the port and province.

Canada's Fire Loss Heavy

Total Of $47,000,000 Shown In Report For Last Year

Ottawa, Ont.—The fact that Canada's fire loss last year—$47,000,000—represented almost two and one-half times the amount the Dominion Government set aside to relieve unemployment, was called up by Premier John Bracken of Manitoba, to impress on delegates to the Dominion Fire Prevention Association convention the need for greater effort.

Prime Minister R. B. Bennett was named honorary member. W. H. Shapley, Toronto, is the new president.

Among the many resolutions given approval was one recommending that institutions receiving financial assistance from federal, provincial or municipal authorities be compelled to provide adequate fire safeguards.

Develop Wheat Markets

Federal Government Appropriates Sum Of Money For Practical Demonstrations

Ottawa, Ont.—In an effort to develop the markets for Canadian wheat, the Dominion Government has appropriated a sum of money to be used in practical demonstrations of the use of Canadian flours for baking purposes.

These demonstrations will take place first at different points in the United Kingdom, subsequently expanded to European countries.

Japan Taking Census

Tokyo, Japan.—Japan is taking stock of her manpower. A quarter million census takers have begun collecting data in the empire's second decennial census. Preliminary estimates stated the census would show the population of the whole empire at about 89,000,000.

ROBERT BUCK, TO ATTEMPT TO LOWER RECORD

Robert Buck, 16-year-old Elizabeth, N.J., lad who made his first flight eight months ago, will take off soon in his Pitcairn biplane in an attempt to lower the junior coast-to-coast flight record. He is a friend of Eddie Schneider, 18, present holder of the transcontinental mark.

ARE PLEDGED TO THE CAUSE OF EMPIRE TRADE

London, England.—The self-governing nations of the British Commonwealth pledged themselves to the cause of Empire trade. Throughout the speeches which marked the opening proceedings of the Imperial Conference the ever-recurring note was the desire to co-operate, to meet the common problem with common action.

"I should like to make this conference another turning point in the wonderful history of our people," exclaimed Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald in a radio broadcast. "Our weakness," he continued, "is in our psychology far more than in our skill, our material or our resources. It is a renewal of will that we need."

"What we have to consider," said the British Prime Minister, in opening the conference, "is, I would suggest, what practical means we can devise for helping one another, and thereby helping us all, always remembering the different world contacts and internal industrial circumstances to which we have to accommodate ourselves."

The conference, for the first time, met in the great Locarno room of the Foreign Office.

"At this table," said Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, "are the shades of many great men and of many great events which are enshrined in a history common to us all. They do not receive from all of us the same welcome or the same homage. But there are, dignified by time, their aspects and their results smoothed and mellowed by the passing of the years and by the progression of the pageantry of history which is now our inheritance for good or for ill.

"We are still in the flesh, with fate or destiny still unwritten regarding we who have to live and plan for the future. We face a world still unsettled; beyond us is a prospect of intangible fears, set purposes, unhappy suspicions, firm convictions, numbing experiences and yet defiant idealism, and it is our lot to try and find a sure way amidst the confusions—a way which those who will sit here after us will gladly pursue to the goals which are to us but promises. If it be our good fortune to find that way, it is only because we have confidence in each other, because we are inspired in all our deliberations by the spirit of free association, and guided by a will to co-operate not only in settling our own difficulties but in giving an example of autonomy within unity to the rest of the world."

And the sentiments voiced by Mr. Ramsay MacDonald were echoed in the subsequent speeches of the Dominion prime ministers.

"My colleagues and I represent the people of Canada," Mr. Bennett declared. "We come to this conference not only with a message of affection and goodwill, but in the strong belief that, by the concerted action of the whole, we can advance the interests of all sections of the Empire."

Pilot's Death "Misadventure"

Fort William, Ont.—"Misadventure while teaching advanced flying" was given as reason by a coroner's jury, for the death of Capt. James A. Dickie, Bishop's Field Flying Club instructor, who was killed when his 'plane crashed near here, September 9. Miss Marian Swaim, passenger in Dickie's Moth 'plane when it met disaster, was unable to testify. Suffering from lapse of memory, she said she was unable to remember anything of the fatal flight.

Eleven Burned In Explosion

Veleya, Guanajuato, Mexico.—Eleven persons were badly burned as 5,000 skyrockets exploded in San Miguel cathedral during the celebration of the San Miguel Saint's Day. The fireworks, which had been stored in the church for the celebration, were ignited by a skyrocket which exploded.

Found Water Too Cold

Dover, England.—Miss Mercedes Gleitz, British woman swimmer, failed in a new attempt to swim the English Channel. Entering the water she stayed in only about four hours, abandoned her efforts because of the intense cold.

Save service by saving the insulators

Breaking of insulators on one telephone pole can put as many as 15 long-distance telephone circuits out of order. This may mean more than an inconvenience to the Telephone Company and the public which it serves: it may also result in the loss of life, property or great sums of money by preventing importaut telephone calls from getting through.

The Telephone Company is asking the co-operation of the public in saving the service by saving the insulators.

Deliberate breaking of insulators is a criminal offence, and prosecuting will follow detection.

Cheaper Elections

The cost of winning elections in West Kootenay is coming down rapidly. W. K. Esling, M.P., is the first to publish his official statement of receipts and expenditures in connection with the midsummer campaign, and according to this he carried the riding at an outlay of under $5,000—more than half of which is listed as expended on advertising.

Four years ago campaigning was much more expensive, Mr. Esling's statutory declaration showing an outlay of close to $8,500, and his opponent, R. H. Gale, spending a similar amount.

Up to the present we have not come across the declaration of the 1930 loser, D. D. McLean, but we take it his outlay will be much the same? Certainly in this year's fight neither candidate used the newspaper space that was required in the Gale-Esling contest.

According to Mr. Esling's statement he received only one contribution to help defray the cost of the campaign. Mr. Esling has shown his customary shrewdness in publishing his expense sheet in the New Denver Record. If the party workers as a whole get wise to the bargain campaign our member got by with this year he is not likely to be quite so fortunate on his re-appearance four years hence.

Deserves Appointment

In connection with the new pensions tribunal the Ottawa government is setting up it is authoritatively announced that West Kootenay is to have the right to name a soldiers' advocate on the board, and the Review has no hesitation in putting forward the name of Col. Mallandaine for the position.

No man in the Kootenays has given more unselfish, enthusiastic and practical service to the militia cause than Col. Mallandaine, at home and overseas, in addition to which his wide experience with men in civilian life, as well as his connection with the dispensing of justice for a long period, admirably equip him for the work the new position entails.

Both on the score of fitness, and in appreciation of his long association with militia activities, he well deserves this practical recognition and should have 100 per cent. support from those in this community who have any say in this matter.

The School Sports

The school children's field day in connection with the fall fair is appreciated. This is indicated in the fact that notwithstanding the change in time for holding the contests there was the usual representative turnout for the sports this year.

With their popularity demonstrated the time seems opportune to point out that a change in conduct is advisable. In the first place the Jubilee funds, which have financed this feature, are now exhausted, and secondly there has been just a little too much loose talk about officials handling the event.

As the sports are indirectly sponsored by the fall fair management it was quite natural they selected Creston people to be responsible for running them off—and have been lucky to secure them.

With more money now required now is the time for reorganization, part of which should be to pass along to the trustees of each school district competing the task of appointing starters, judges, etc., as well as defining rules and regulations, especially as to ages of those eligible to compete.

If any suspicion of unfairness or favoritism prevailed under the old system, certainly the village residents, who in the past have had a hand in these sports, will be only too glad to be rid of a job that was at least thankless in spots.

Slingsby A dainty lunch was served about midnight; and the revellers on leaving wished the newlyweds all future happiness and presented them with some useful presents.

INDIGESTION

Banished by Kruschen

"I suffered for some years from a bad stomach. I used to feel very miserable after meals. The doctor advised me to take Epsom Salts, but it did me no good. I decided to try Kruschen and am now taking it, and have done for the past 12 months, and I am very glad to tell you that my stomach is now in perfect order. I feel as young in spirit as I was 20 years ago, thanks to Kruschen." (W.B.)

You know how badly an engine runs when it gets clogged up. It's the same with your body when your gastric—or digestive—juices fail to flow. What you need is a tonic—Nature's own tonic—Nature's six mineral salts.

You get all these six salts in Kruschen. The first effect of these salts is to promote the flow of the saliva and so awaken the appetite. The next action occurs in the stomach, where the digestive juices are encouraged to pour out and act upon the food. Again, in the intestinal tract, certain of these salts promote a further flow of these vital juices which deal with partly digested food and prepare it finally for absorption into the system.

MARY, THE MOTHER OF JESUS —AN EXAMPLE OF MOTHERHOOD

Golden Text: "Mary kept all these sayings, pondering them in her heart."—Luke 2.19.

Lesson: Luke 2.15-19; John 2.1-5; 19.25-27.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 67.

Explanations and Comments

The Mother Of the Babe, Luke 2.15-19.—The shepherds were amazed at the message which had come to them, but they were not incredulous, and they said, "Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing that is come to pass which the Lord hath made known unto us." Read the whole beautiful story in Luke 2. They went and found the Christ-child in the manger, and his mother Mary, and also Joseph. To Mary and Joseph the shepherds told what they had heard and all marveled, but Mary retained their words in her heart, pondering them over and over.

The Mother Of the Man, John 2.1-5.—The third day after Jesus' talk with Nathaniel, John 1.47-51. He came to Cana of Galilee, Nathaniel's home town. At a house where Mary was well known, wedding festivities were being held, and when her Son appeared with His followers they were invited to attend. Toward the end of the festivities, which lasted several days, the supply of wine began to give out. Mary saw this, and turned to Jesus for help, "They have no more wine," she told Him. She made no request; she simply told Him of the situation.

The Mother Of the Saviour, John 19.25-27.—Standing by the Cross of Christ were His mother, her sister Salome, Mary the wife of Clopas, and Mary Magdalene. (The two phrases, "His mother's sister, Mary the wife of Clopas," may be taken to refer to one woman, but in that case the two sisters were both called Mary, which is improbable.)

"O the weight of her affliction!
Hers, who won God's benediction,
Hers, who bore God's Holy One:
O that speechless, ceaseless yearning!
O those dim eyes never turning
From her wondrous, suffering Son!"

Jesus looked upon His mother and John ("the disciple whom He loved"—John never mentions his own name in his Gospel), and said to His mother, "Woman, behold, thy son!" and to John, "Behold, thy mother." Dr. F. B. Meyer suggests that Jesus would not call her "mother" lest identification with Himself might expose her to insult.

"In that hour of excruciating agony he did not forget his mother's need. No other person's sorrow was eclipsed by His own. He was never self-centered in His grief, so as to ignore the weakness of others."—J. H. Jowett.

And from that hour John took the mother of Jesus into his own home.

Conduct Mass On Eiffel Tower

A religious mass was said at the top of the great Eiffel Tower recently, the first time since it was built more than 40 years ago. It took place in the lofty wind-swept little cage 1,000 feet above the earth. A small table was used as an altar and the music which accompanied the liturgy was the breeze. Special tribute was paid to M. Eiffel.

Saving For the People

Says Saskatchewan May Save Over $300,000 In Connection With Freight Rates On Canned Goods

"People of Saskatchewan will save over $300,000 this year on canned goods," states Hon. J. A. Merkley, Minister of Railways and Labor. The figure $300,000 had been given to the department as the estimate of a large wholesale grocery firm with a warehouse in Regina, he said.

"The estimate will be very close to correct," Mr. Merkley said. The rates in effect would continue until the close of navigation on the great lakes and then the matter "will have to be fought out all over again," he added.

The government had received the support of the boards of trade of Saskatchewan, the Retail Merchants' Association, and the United Farmers of Canada in the fights, which had been won on July 14 and September 16, Mr. Merkley said in conclusion.

Bore her—Nick, who had never said a dull thing in his life! And he really meant it. She could tell by the look in his eyes. He wasn't joking. It made her smile, even as she answered shakily, because she couldn't quite control her voice: "I always knew, Nick, that you possessed a streak of chivalry; but to have it carry you to this extent——"

"Chivalry be darned!" he interrupted. "That's tommyrot, my dear, and you know it. Come on, Gay. Be a sport. Put on 'your old grey bonnet' or whatever headgear you prefer—tie a few necessaries in a handkerchief, and——" He closed his eyes, folded his arms, and softly sang: "Oh, that we two were Maying. . . . ."

Nick's voice, sweet and true as a bird's, always stirred the girl. She turned now and laid her hand on his.

"You're a good friend, Nick — the best I ever had, or ever shall have. I'll never forget what you've done for me just now. Somehow, it makes everything easier; but I refuse to spoil your freedom, dear old boy."

Nick squeezed her hand.

"A half hour ago," he proclaimed loftily, "I stood in the orchard bequeathed me by my late uncle, and announced to all who cared to hear, that I could conquer the world. And now you imply that I can't conquer a slip of a girl in a pink gown. I refuse to be vanquished! Something tells me that you'd be able to put up with me. Without conceit, I think I can promise to prove a more thrilling housemate than Miss Sadie. Run along now, and pack your bag. I'll allow you a suitcase as far as State Line. In forty minutes—no, thirty, I'll be at the back gate in uncle's rusty flivver. We'll leave it behind us after the parson has done his worst. Be gone, girl. The hour waxes late."

"Are you really — proposing to me?"

Gay's cheeks burned, and the young man answered: "I am. Gee! I've always supposed it would be a fearful undertaking, and it comes as easy! For two cents I'd kiss you, if I wasn't afraid Selina was at the window."

To his surprise Gay stifled a sob.

"I—can't, Nick."

"Why not?"

"It wouldn't be fair."

"Not to you, perhaps," he agreed amiably. "For me, it would be a cinch."

"You're—so young," she hesitated.

"I'm older than you!"

"Not really," she contradicted. "Not in your feelings, Nick. You're just a kid."

"Before night," he announced proudly, "I'll be a married man; but not if you dilly-dally this way. My dear, it's the very top o' the morning. Let's be off."

He arose, pulling her to her feet, and at his touch something of his own buoyancy and enthusiasm swept through her. Her eyes sparkled. She said, her heart palpitating wildly: Oh, I'd love it, Nick, but——"

"'But me no buts,'" he quoted, and turned away, calling over his shoulder: "In thirty minutes—at the back gate. . . . ." And stooping to rescue the emblems of freedom that he had dropped for her sake, vaulted the low wall and disappeared.

CHAPTER II.

Thirty minutes!

Gay stood paralyzed in her own little room, to which she had fled when Nick strode away. "In thirty minutes," he had said, "at the back gate." How could one get ready to change one's entire life in a half hour? The idea was preposterous. There was so much to do: a note of explanation to Miss Sadie; a lunch (to save the price of dinner at a hotel, thought prudent Gay); a suitcase. . . . . What, oh what should she put into her suitcase?

Still dazed, she opened her closet door, where, as if in answer to question, hung a big bandanna that had adorned her shoulders when she acted as Gypsy fortune teller at a church fair. The sight brought an inspiration. Bother the suitcase! She would be as good a tramp as Nick himself!

Gay laughed joyously. She didn't know that this inspired decision was something Nick was never to forget; but she felt dazed no longer as she snatched the handkerchief and spread it on her bed. In five minutes she was out of the pink gown and slipping into a khaki middy. In fifteen she was tying a knot in a bulging bandanna bundle. In twenty she was scrawling a hasty note which was doomed to scandalize Miss Sadie Twichell; and in thirty, when Nick, true to schedule, arrived at the back gate, she stood waiting, breathless, to be sure, but waiting, her bundle tied to the late Grandpa Twichell's cane swung over on shoulder, a crimson sweater on her arm, a crimson tam upon her head, and a lunch basket at her feet.

"On time," said Nick.

His eyes, sweeping upward from the stout Oxfords on her small feet to the stick and bundle, widened with surprise. Gay never forgot that look. If, in those thirty minutes Nick had regretted his rash decision, his fears were put to flight. The smile he threw her caused Gay's heart to sing. Nick was pleased!

"Good girl," he said with vast approval, and was at her side. He lifted the basket questioningly.

"Lunch," Gay answered. "It'll save buying one."

Nick laughed. "I see I have chosen a thrifty wife," he said and proceeded without further comment to stow away her bundle in the back of the machine.

There followed a quarter of an hour that to Gay seemed breathlessly constrained. It wasn't the silence—she was used to silences with Nick; it was something within herself—something that asked: "Oh, have I done right? Is this fair to him?"

As for Nick, he appeared to be unnecessarily intent upon the familiar road. It was not until the town was left behind, and they had chugged to the top of Sunset Hill that he stopped the car, breaking the silence to say quietly: "Take your last look at our native heath, Gay."

She arose and turned about, laying a steadying hand upon his shoulder. Something clutched at her heart as she looked down on the town that had sheltered her all her life. It had sometimes seemed a prosaic town to Gay; now, in comparison with a bewildering and unexpected future, it looked dear and friendly. Almost, she was sad to leave it. The grass of the common was so gaily green, topped by tender, uncurling leaves of elm trees that had stood there for a century. Blossoming orchards sloped to the quiet river; and everywhere was the sweet scent of spring.

Gay's hand tightened, and Nick covered it with his own.

"Homesick — already?" he questioned gently.

Gay shook her head as they began the descent of the long hill.

"No, Nick, I wasn't homesick, exactly; but it looked so natural; and what we're doing is so amazing. Why, even an hour ago I didn't dream——"

She stopped, as if it were difficult to express her thought; and Nick continued: "That before the sun was noon-high you'd be starting on your honeymoon? Well, Gay, we're both in the same boat. I don't wonder you feel a little dazed. I'm dazed myself; but you're not to feel lonesome. I shan't let you. I tell you what, young lady, we're lucky to live within forty miles of a state where we can get a license and be married all in an hour!"

"And how I've scorned the people who have done it!"

Gay flushed hotly at the memory; but Nick only smiled as he admitted: "Same here, old girl. We never know when the shoe may pinch the other foot, do we? But there's one thing I'll wager a bride never did before, Gay, and that's to start off on her honeymoon with her goods and chattels tied up in a bandanna."

He spoke so seriously that for a moment Gay forgot the look he had given her when they started. She wondered, with a little chill at her heart, if Nick would rather she'd have come to him as—well, as most girls would have come. Was there, perhaps, something in him that revolted at what might seem a lack of daintiness on her part. He didn't know what that red bandanna held!

"Nick," she began, as if she was just the least bit frightened, "did — did you think it wasn't nice of me to come this way?"

He turned to her, surprise written on his face. "Nice?—why——" (he put his foot on the brake bringing the car almost to a standstill), "why shouldn't it be nice? I think it was bully of you, Gay. Do you know, after I left you I wondered just how we'd manage. I'm not such an idiot as to think you could travel as light as I can; but a suitcase——Well, I'll say, Gay, that when I saw you standing there, not keeping me waiting a minute, and with that bundle on your stick, I said to myself: 'You haven't made any mistake in your girl, old man.' I wanted to cheer!"

He loosened his hold on the brake so suddenly that Gay lost her balance, and reaching out he put an arm across her shoulders, keeping it there until they reached the level country once again. It seemed to the girl an action wholly brotherly. Even after his reassuring answer to her question, she wondered if Nick felt for her the least bit the way he ought to feel, if she were to be his wife.

Her own emotions she did not analyze. Nick was just Nick to her—the finest comrade she had ever known. He was true blue. She could trust him forever and ever. Never could she love anybody else. That he had asked her to marry him out of a sudden impulse of his generous heart, she knew. Was she wronging him by her own impulsive yielding? Yet he had called her "his girl." . . . .

Demonstrates Invention

Woman Has Contraption Which Will Revolutionize Marbles and Miniature Golf

Mrs. Nora Payne, of Brighton Beach, New York, gave a demonstration of her new invention—a device which she hopes will soon revolutionize the game of marbles, the game of miniature golf and the game of darning holes out of socks.

Mrs. Payne, who is 26, has a 9-year-old son who inspired the invention. The boy used to come in with holes in the knees of his stockings and while his mother sewed them up, this idea of revolutionizing things suddenly smote her.

Her invention looks like a cross between a bicycle and a gearshift lever. It has a knob at the top, attached to a rod which runs down through a cylinder. At the bottom of the cylinder is an opening and a little flipper.

The marble player simply stands on his feet, clamps the thing down over a marble gives the knob a wham with his hand and the marble shoots out. Any self-respecting boy who owned such a contraption would not stoop to shoot marbles.

Little Helps For This Week

"And this commandment have we from Him, that he who loveth God love his brother also."—John iv. 21.

Lovest thou God as thou oughtest,
then lovest thou likewise thy brethren;
One is the sun in the heaven, and one,
only one is Love also.
Bears not each human figure the God-like stamp on his forehead?
Readest thou not in his face thine origin? Is he not sailing,
Lost like thyself on an ocean unknown; and is he not guided
By the same stars that guide thee?
Why shouldst thou hate then thy brother?
Hateth he thee? forgive! for 'tis sweeter to stammer one letter
Of the Eternal's language;—on earth it is called Forgiveness.
—Bishop Tegner.

Therefore come what may, hold fast to love. Though men should rend your heart, let them not embitter or harden it. We win by tenderness, we conquer by forgiveness.

—Frederick William Robertson.

A CRY in the night. Colic! No cause for alarm if Castoria is handy. This pure vegetable preparation brings quick comfort, and can never harm. It is the sensible thing when children are ailing. Whether it's the stomach, or the little bowels; colic or constipation; or diarrhea. When tiny tongues are coated, or the breath is bad. Whenever there's need of gentle regulation. Children love the taste of Castoria, and its mildness makes it safe for frequent use.

Feeding Laying Hens

Ten Year Average Cost Record Is Given By Experimental Station

The ten-year average of the cost of feeding laying hens at the Lennoxville Experimental Station of the Dominion Department og Agriculture is $2.43 per hen; which means that with eggs selling at an average of 35 cents per dozen it takes 6.95 dozen, or 81 eggs, to pay for the keep of the laying hen, eggs laid in excess of that number being profit.

Minard's Liniment has a hundred uses.
