EMPRESS OF CANADA

MEDITERRANEAN and GREEK ISLES Cruise

No-one can decide for you what is the most suitable clothing for a cruise, but perhaps a few hints with regard to climate and other features to be prepared for will be of use.

Warm clothing will be useful for the first and last weeks of the cruise, and, occasionally for evenings ashore.

ON DECK

"Carefree comfort" applies to deck wear. Slacks and sweaters, sports clothes for daytime will be appropriate and sensible.

DINNER AND DANCING

Social life aboard your Empress is like social life at home . . . the nature of the occasion decides the appropriate costume. The decor of the public rooms encourages "dressing" if you feel like it . . . but men who prefer a dark business suit will not feel conspicuous.

Ladies will probably wish to carry a pretty complete wardrobe . . . there are almost nine weeks to plan for . . . "basics", both for day and evening wear, are helpful . . . and careful spacing of cocktail, dinner and evening dresses will do wonders.

ASHORE

Clothing suitable for Spring and Fall is indicated for wear ashore. Topcoats and wraps are frequently necessary after sundown. Except at beaches there is a tendency to the less casual in attire in Europe and North Africa.

LAST WORD

Although laundry and valet services are available on board Empress of Canada it is advisable to consider the "drip-drys" when planning your cruise wardrobe. Stout shoes are essential!

denominations when exchanging these for cash on board the ship. Letters of Credit cannot be honored on board. Passengers holding such media of exchange must obtain the required funds at banking establishments on shore. No personal cheques can be cashed on board.

RELIGIOUS SERVICES: An undenominational Protestant service will be held on Sunday. A Roman Catholic chaplain will be aboard to celebrate Holy Mass.

ANIMALS AND BIRDS: No animals or birds will be accepted on the cruise.

BAGGAGE REGULATIONS: There is no restriction on the amount of personal baggage passengers may take with them. Personal baggage is to consist of wearing apparel and effects necessary and appropriate for the travelers comfort and convenience during the cruise. No responsibility can be accepted for fragile articles placed in baggage and passengers are warned against packing glassware containing liquids, since the contents of one broken bottle can ruin an entire wardrobe. Dangerous articles such as firearms, inflammable liquids, etc., must not under any circumstances be contained in baggage. Valuable pieces, such as jewel cases, etc., must be carried by the passenger and should be placed for safe-keeping with the Purser immediately after embarking. Large trunks and other luggage, not regularly needed, may be placed in the Baggage Room which will be accessible throughout the Cruise. On shore excursions baggage will be limited to hand baggage as specified in the shore excursion folder.

BAGGAGE INSURANCE: The Canadian Pacific Steamships, Limited's liability for damage, pilferage or loss of baggage is strictly in accordance with the terms of the contract clause on each cruise ticket. Passengers are strongly advised to insure all baggage prior to leaving their residences for the full time of their trip. A very comprehensive policy can be obtained through Canadian Pacific offices and authorized agents, providing a remarkably wide coverage at inexpensive rates.

BAGGAGE DELIVERY: Baggage should be labeled plainly with the name of the ship and date of sailing, the number of stateroom and the passenger's name. On arrival at the pier, a porter will assist the passenger with his baggage to a point adjacent to the gangway. Porter services are free. Passengers travelling to New York by train may forward their baggage for delivery directly to the pier under a 'special delivery' railroad check. If baggage is not checked in this manner, it will remain at the New York railway depots and arrangements must be made by the passengers for transfer to the pier.

Baggage will be received at the piers from 8 A.M. to 12 Noon and 1:00 P.M. to 5.00 P.M., day previous to sailing.
