Children Present "Stolen Prince"

Chinese Play Pleases Audience—Mission Band Girls' Drills are Applauded—Gym. Girls' Exercises Make Great Big Hit

An audience that comfortably filled Trinity United Church on Friday evening enjoyed to the full the novel entertainment provided by the play, "The Stolen Prince," which was presented in true Chinese costume and stage methods.

Billy Craig was announcer. The property man was Arthur Dodd. His part greatly appealed to the humor of the crowd and consisted of bringing out of a large box from time to time the properties, such as a river, a sail, a tub, a duck, etc., and his "Quack, Quack" was the source of much amuse ent.

Beryl Palmer, as Sing Lo, acted the part of the negligent royal nurse. Ruby Palmer, as Wing Lee, and Billy Kernaghan, as Long Fo, were conspirators who sent the stolen prince on his tub journey down the Chiang River. Betty Kernaghan. as Li Mo. and Gerald Phillips, as Ho Lee, were the humble fisher folk who rescued the stolen prince, Homer Bailey. Two Chinese soldiers, Billy Weir and Bobby Kernaghan, supported the executioner, Dorothy Palmer, who were cheated of their prey at the right moment.

A Chinese orchestra, which upheld the best traditions of that style of music was composed of Robert Dickson, Rachel Morrow, Norman Phillips and Doris Hendy The young artists in every case showed real histronic ability. Mrs. W. J. Craig is to be congratulated upon the enthusiasm and smoothness of movement which characterized the acting.

Mr. Larson's girl gym. class acquitted themse ves so well in their calesthenics as to call for a very insistent encore on the part of the audience. Those taking part in this feature were Olive Connatty, Nellie Payne, Mollie Moore, Jane Ross, Phyllis MacDonald, Mary Prentiss, Ruth Hare, Irene Bourdon and Marion Murray.

The Mission Baby Band gave a pretty drill with peach blossom wands, and the Junior Band followed with a scarf drill. Both of these numbers were well executed and were sponsored by Mrs. F. Bunt and Mrs. W. Kernaghan The girls taking part in the drills were Doris Hendy, Jean Donaldson, Rachel Morrow, Eva Phillips, Louise d'Felaise, Marguerite Grant, Hazel Beam, Charlotte Wilks, Ethel Morrow, Irene Pridham, Lorna Donaldson, Jean Bunt, Margaret Cribb and Jessie Beam.

A lovers' duett, rendered by Miss Violet Morrow, and Miss Evelyn Rogers, in Chinese costume, and later a solo by Miss Rogers, added greatly to the general motif of the evening. The committee in charge desire to express their appreciation of the assistance in properties on the part of several merchants in the village.

The Farmers' Institute April meeting is called for Saturday night at the hall at 8 o'clock, All members and their families are invited as future activities of the organization are to be planned.

Farmers were out on the land with the dics at the first of the week, which is almost a record for earliness in this district.

The Ladies' Aid of the United Church are having their usual Easter sale and cafeteria supper on Monday and in the evening the Sunday school is putting on a concert at the hall.

Lister

A. Domke, who has been a visitor at Edmonton, Alberta, the past few weeks, returned to Lister on Saturday.

E Stieb was a business visitor at Nelson the first of the week.

Rev. R. E. Cribb of Creston was here for United Church service on Sunday afternoon.

W. E. Rotzoll left a few days ago for Fife, where he expects to be employed on a C.P.R. section crew for the next few months.

Otto Wolfrum and W. Vollernhaus have left for Wynndel, where they have leased eleven acres of land from Gus. Steiner, and propose to crop it all to potatoes this season.

The small contingenet of Germans who were given a week's relief work at Washout Creek, came home on Sunday, and it is expected the work at that point will be shut down permanently at April 1st.

Commencing at April 1st the position of Land Settlement Board representative held for the past ten years by John Bird has been done away with. The policy of rigid economy inagurated by the department at Victoria is responsible for the action.

Adolf Hoehne, M. Riedlmayer and Jacob Hormann have taken a lease on some land owned by Chas. Kirk on the Reclamation Farm, and are going to crop it to onions and fodder corn.

Word reached here a few days ago of the marriage at Nelson toward the end of March of Miss Ivy, daughter of George Hurry, to Frank Goldsberry of Trail, in which town the newlyweds will reside.

The next effort of the Community Society will be a dance in the schoolhouse on Saturday evening, April 11th.

Another farm property sale was closed this week when the Land Settlement Board disposed of the former Geo. Scott 20-acre place, about opposite to R. Stevens, to Robert Merz of South Slocan, who will be coming here in the fall to take possession, but is at present having the usual spring work done on the place.

Land owners in the Waterworks District have just been advised that the trustees have decided to make a cut in the rates charged for 1930. The domestic rate is cut from $4 t $2 a month, an the flat rate per acre advanced from $1.35 to $1.70. On a 20-acre place this will mean $17 a year less to pay. The change will add somewhat to the load carried by the Land Settlement Board as many of their places are not at present in a position to claim the rate cut for domestic use.

Lutheran Church Opening, Monday

Calgary Pastor to Have Charge of Dedication—Edifice Interior Attractive—Church Erection Entirely by Voluntary Labor

The Lutheran chapel, newly constructed, will be formally opened for services, on Monday, April 6th, at 7.30 p.m. Everyone is cordially invited to attend the service. The speaker of the evening will be Rev. C. Thies of Calgary, secretary for the Alberta and British Columbia Board of Home Missions.

A service will be held in the German language at four in the afternoon. At this service Rev. C. C. Janzow of Nelson, visitor of the Kootenay circuit, will preach the festival sermon

St. Paul's congregation is affiliated with the Missouri Synod and adheres strictly to the confessional basis of the historical Lutheran Church. Lutheranism is frankly conservative in theology. It accepts the Bible as God's inspired Word and stresses as the dominant note in its message the Gospel truth that pardon for sin, salvation and life are the free gifts of God's mercy, offered to men in Christ and received by faith in the divine promises. It believes this Gospel to be "the power of God unto salvation" and relies upon its simple presentation to convert the hearts of men. Its preaching is neither sensational nor shallow, but aims to give to the hearers spiritual refreshment and instruction in he difficult art of applying the ethics of Christ to every-day living.

Everyone is cordially invited to attend the Lutheran services and get a closer acquaintance with Lutheran teaching and practise.

Birdhouse Fair Great Success

Women's Institute Sponsor Exhibition—Raffle Quilt, Sale of Cooking and Afternoon Tea—Afternoon Intake About $55

Creston and District Women's Institute scored a decided success at their annual birdhouse fair which this year was for boys exclusively and open to children attending Alice Siding, Erickson and Creston schools. It was held in Trinity United Church hall, and along with exhibit of bird homes went a sale of home cooking, a raffle and afternoon tea, the three latter features accounting for a cash intake of about $55.

The workmanship on the birdhouses was uniformly good and the judges, Chas Moore, Vic. Mawson and Rev. R. E. Cribb, had quite a delicate task in most of the classes in awarding the red tickets, as follows: Class 1, 6 to 8 years—1st, George Cartwright; 2nd, Bert Macfarland. Class 2: 9 to 12 years—1st, Irwin Nickel; 2nd Richard Trevelyan. Class 3, 13 to 15 years—Robert Mather, 1st and 2nd. In Class 1 a well deserved special prize was given David Macfarland, whose juvenile effort at carpentry attracted the attention of most everyone present.

The drawing for the quilt on which tickets had been sold for some weeks was in charge of Mrs. Jas. Cook, with David Macfarland drawing out 298 for the winner, Mrs. D A. MacDonald. There was also a drawing on a setting of White Sussex eggs with Kathleen Joyce drawing the lucky ticket, which was held by Mrs. E. W. Payne.

The tea tables were very prettily decorated with pussy willows and carnations, and done in the institute colors, with Mrs. Rose, Mrs. Cherrington, Mrs. E. Johnson, Mrs. R. Stevens, Mrs. E. W. Payne, Mrs. F. C. Rodgers and Misses Marguerite Crawford and Beth Putnam in charge. Mrs. Mallandaine, Mrs. Hendy and Mrs. Putnam were in charge of the sale of cooking.

Mrs. R. J. Long Death, Tuesday

End Came Unexpectedly—One of Earliest Residents Kootenay Valley, Arriving with Parents in 1891—Funeral Today.

In the death of Mrs. R. J. Long, who passed away unexpectedly at the family residence, Erickson, at an early hour Tuesday morning, this district has lost not only a highly respected citizen, but also one identified with the very early history of Creston valley. Deceased was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Huscroft, who had the distinction of being the first white couple to locate with their family in the Kootenay valley, north of Porthill. This was in 1891, when they took up land on the flats, not far from the boundary, but which location they were forced to vacate with the coming of the usual flood conditions on the flats the following year, when they took up land in the Huscroft area.

Deceased was married in 1895 For about ten years the Longs resided at Creston, but in 1904 they moved to Erickson where they started in to develop the Woodbine ranch, which today is the finest orchard property in the whole district.

In addition to her husband she is survived by one daughter, Mrs. C W. Allan of Creston; and three sons, William R. of Erickson; Walter of Wenatchee, Wash.; and Robert, at home. Burial takes place today with servi e at the home at 2.30 p.m. and interment in Creston cemetery.

Active in the community and social life, the late Mrs. Long also very happily combined industry with a great love of home and family. As wife and mother she was an outstanding character, and in their unexpected and heavy bereavement the family have the sympathy of all.

A wedding of interest here was solemnized at Cranbrook on March 23rd, when our former townsman, Norman Backus was united in marriage with Miss Janet Smith of Vancouver. Rev. F. V. Harrison officiated at Christ Cnurch.

Frank Smith was visiting with friends at Cranbrook at the weekend.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

EASTER LESSON:

THE RESURRECTION

Golden Text: "Now hath Christ been raised from the dead, the first-fruits of them that are asleep." — 1 Corinthians 15.20.

Lesson: 1 Corinthians 15.1-8, 50-58.

Explanations and Comments

The Resurrection Of Christ the Most Vital Of All the Doctrines Of the Christian Faith, verses 1-4.—Paul reminds his readers, the Corinthians, of his teaching during his work among them, of the gospel, the good news, which they heard from him, on which their faith was grounded, by which they were saved, that is, "in the way of salvation, by faith in the crucified and risen Saviour," if they held fast to the word as he had declared it unto them, and had not believed in vain, "without consideration, and so without stability." "Unless, indeed, your faith was all haphazard," is Moffatt's translation. Paul's sentences are usually very involved: the next four verses form one sentence. First of all, as the most important of all the good tidings which I declared unto you, he writes, I told you that which I also had learned (probably from Peter and James, on his visit to Jerusalem recorded in Acts 9.27, 28), that Christ died to atone for our sins, in fulfilment of the Scriptures; that He was buried and was raised on the third day.

"O vanquished grave of Jesus whose chill could work no change upon His heart!
O deep, deep grave of Jesus whose depths can hide a whole world's sin!
O glorious grave of Jesus through whose gloom lies the pathway to Immortal Life!"

—Ralph Connor.

The Evidence For the Resurrection, verses 5-8.—Here follows the oldest account of the appearances of the Risen Christ. He appeared to Peter; then to the Twelve (Paul keeps the symbolical number, though Judas was dead and Thomas was not present at the first appearance); then to more than five hundred at once (probably on the mountain in Galilee, Matthew 28.16, 17), the greater number of whom are still alive—and you can have their direct testimony, if you wish, is the inference—but some are fallen asleep—(twenty-five years, at least, had passed since the resurrection of Christ); then He appeared to James (the brother of Jesus, Acts 15.13; Galatians 1.19); then last of all, as to a child untimely born, He appeared to Paul also (Acts 9).

The Resurrection Of the Dead, verses 50-58.—Human nature in its habitant of flesh and blood cannot take possession of the Kingdom of God; nor does corruption take possession of incorruption. "The argument is that such a spiritual body as he has been speaking of is absolutely necessary in the Kingdom of God." Behold, I tell you a mystery: some will be living at the last trump (1 Thessalonians 4.16; Matthew 24.31; Revelation 11.15), when Christ shall come again, and they will be changed in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet-call; and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed. Paul hoped for the return of Christ during his own lifetime.

When this has taken place, when this corruptible shall have put on incorruption, when the glorious body is received, then will the resurrection triumph over sin and death, they shall be no more, and law shall be no more, for it will not be necessary. Thanks be to God who gives us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. "The victory is ours, thank God! He makes it ours by our Lord Jesus Christ," Moffatt's translation.

Wherefore, let us be steadfast, unmovable, persevering in the work of the Lord, for we know that it will not be thrown away.

Acquire Velocity Quickly

Bodies Falling Through Air Move At Rapid Rate

Experiments have proved that the rate per second at which bodies acquire velocity in falling through the air is thirty-two feet. If a ball be allowed to fall from a tower, it is moving at the rate of thirty-two feet per second at the end of the first second after it has dropped from the hand; at the end of the next second with a velocity of sixty-four feet, and at the end of the third second at the rate of ninety-six feet per second.

Freight By Air

Freight by air is becoming an important factor of aviation in England. Nearly 2,000 tons of bulky articles were carried from Croydon aerodrome last year. These ranged from a lion in a cage to a consignment of several hundred pounds of gold.

Mid-Summer Cruise

All Europe Cruise Of the Cunarder "Lancastria" Offers Wonderful Opportunity

An important and unusually interesting mid-summer cruise to all Europe, sailing in the Cunarder "Lancastria" from New York on June 30th next, has just been announced by the Cunard Line, and Frank Tourist Company, joint sponsors of this new cruise.

The itinerary of the "All Europe" cruise reaches from the sunny shores of the Mediterranean to the beautiful Sogne Fjord, in far Norway, at its best and most beautiful at that time of the year.

Every country in western Europe with the exception of land-locked Switzerland will be visited by the "Lancastria" in the 51-days of her "All Europe" cruise. Among the striking points in the plans for this cruise are included an excursion to Rome at no extra cost, a trip on the big Cunarder through the Kiel Canal which presents magnificent scenery on every hand, and a call at Copenhagen, the attractive and sophisticated capital of Denmark.

Liberal time at many places visited will permit not only of an unusually comprehensive programme of shore excursions without extra cost, but also a number of inland trips for those who wish to amplify or extend their visit, and will appeal greatly to the many Canadians who will be making the cruise.

Stainless steel as used for cutlery is difficult to work and cannot be used for making other domestic articles. The Best Of Luck

American Soldier Receives Fortune From Father Of Frenchman He Befriended

The best of luck, which soldiers used often to wish one another in the Great War, has befallen one of them who helped another when his luck was out. The luckless one was a French poilu who had been severely wounded in the last great move in 1918. An American doughboy brought him out of danger, bandaged him, exchanged cards with him, and wished him the best of luck. The American boy never expected to hear from him again. But he has just received a letter from Paris to say that the young Frenchman's father has left him $60,000 in his will. One American, at any rate, had the best of luck in the war.

A Hazardous Calling

Many Movie Actors Lose Lives In Making Pictures

Packing thrills and realism into the movies is fraught with deaths and accidents often as tragic and thrilling as the scenes depicted. During the last five years, fifty-five actors, extras and studio workmen have lost their lives in making pictures, and scores of others received permanent or temporary injuries in the effort to provide "hair-raisers" for movie fans. In addition, the California state industrial-accident commission paid out $421,850 to members of the motion-picture industry for deaths and accidents arising in the course of employment.

Canada's Poultry Industry

Phase Of Agricultural Activity That Is Rapidly Forging Ahead

Canada's poultry industry is one of the phases of agricultural activity which is forging steadily ahead. The poultry population of hens and chickens for 1930, numbered 56,247,000. This represents an increase of one million birds over 1929, and is in marked contrast with the total of 12,696,701 of 1891. Present indications are that Canada's poultry population for the present year will be practically five times what it was forty years ago.

Nearly forty tons of elephant ivory from Africa and Asia were sold recently at a special sale at Mincing Lane, London, England. Over seven hundred elephants contributed to this collection of tusks, which was valued at many thousands of pounds. The average tusk of an elephant is under fifty pounds in weight, and is worth about $150. London is recognized as the headquarters of the ivory trade, although of late years Antwerp has become an important centre for African ivory. Sales take place in Mincing Lane quarterly, and hundreds of manufacturers gather for it. Sales also take place in Liverpool.

"I suffered for some years from a bad stomach. I used to feel very miserable after meals. The doctor advised me to take Epsom Salts, but it did me no good. I decided to try Kruschen and am now taking it, and have done for the past 12 months, and I am very glad to tell you that my stomach is now in perfect order. I feel as young in spirit as I was 20 years ago, thanks to Kruschen." (W.B.)

You know how badly an engine runs when it gets clogged up. It's the same with your body when your gastric—or digestive—juices fail to flow. What you need is a tonic—Nature's own tonic—Nature's six mineral salts.

You get all these six salts in Kruschen. The first effect of these salts is to promote the flow of the saliva and so awaken the appetite. The next action occurs in the stomach, where the digestive juices are encouraged to pour out and act upon the food. Again, in the intestinal tract, certain of these salts promote a further flow of these vital juices which deal with partly digested food and prepare it finally for absorption into the system.

FREE TRIAL OFFER

If you have never tried Kruschen—try it now at our expense. We have distributed a great many special "GIANT" packages which make it easy for you to prove our claim for yourself. Ask your druggist for the new "GIANT" 75c. package.

This consists of our regular 75c. bottle together with a separate trial bottle—sufficient for about one week. CHAPTER XIII.—Continued.

Yet that is exactly what happened. It was the next afternoon that a taxi stopped before the Halliday door, and deposited Angela, accompanied by a rather sporty looking couple, whose tweeds appeared singularly out of place in the Bakersville heat. The nurse had gone out, and Halliday was in charge of the little patient whom he had just brought in from the garden. She was taking a few unsteady steps, clinging to his hand, when the door opened to disclose Angela, whose look of blank astonishment as her eyes fell upon her husband and the little girl, made her words sound mild.

"Where in the name of goodness did that come from?"

She made no move to greet Halliday, and the child, attracted by a beaded bag which swung from Angela's wrist, made a quick rush in her direction, stretching out eager hands which Angela evaded by a sudden backward step. Perhaps the little girl had unconsciously expected help at just this point, for she lost her balance and would have fallen had not Halliday caught her, lifting her in his arms while she buried a frightened face against his shoulder.

"We were not expecting you," he explained. Then glancing at the two figures behind her, "You might, my dear, introduce me to your friends."

In the tension of the moment Angela had forgotten her guests. Now she turned to them saying: "I beg your pardon. Let me present my husband. Jim, these are my friends the Myers, in whose yacht I had the pleasure of cruising. They wanted a taste of rural New England before going West again; so I brought them to Bakersville. Who is that child? She's certainly no beauty. Send her home, please; and would you mind asking Julia to put clean towels in the bathrooms? We're about to expire of heat."

Halliday moved forward, little Martha still in his arms, and stretched out a hand to the Myers, both of whom were obviously ill at ease.

"I'm sorry," he began, "but I shall have to ask you to cool off as much as you can down here, until I've had time to make some changes. Mrs. Halliday didn't warn me of her arrival, and we're a bit upset because of this small guest."

Guest!"

Angela faced him, and instinctively the child shrank back, clinging to her protector with a frightened whimper.

"It's all right, Baby," soothed Halliday. "Don't be afraid."

He looked steadily at his wife, as if taking measure of the circumstances. The guard of innocence had left her eyes, and he made a quick decision, turning to the Myers, as if an explanation were due them.

"You see, my wife had the misfortune to run over this little girl with her automobile. She was very badly hurt, and is just recovering. As she had no suitable home I brought her here to convalesce; but it will be a simple matter to arrange things if you'll give me an hour's leeway."

"Look here," protested the gentleman in tweeds, "it's absurd for us to upset your household. Isn't there a hotel nearby, or——"

"It is more absurd," broke in Angela suddenly, "to have the child here at all. She's only a State ward, and not used to such surroundings. We can easily return her to the woman she lives with. Come upstairs, Amy" (speaking to Mrs. Myer). "My room, at least, will be undisturbed."

She turned to Halliday, but did not meet his eyes as she added: "Will you see to sending the child back at once, Jim?"

Little Martha may not have understood what Angela said, but she sensed trouble and began to cry, clinging tighter to Halliday's neck.

"Hush, Martha," he said gently, "I shan't send you away. Angela, my dear, if you'll take your friends into the living room I'll ask Julie to make you a cold drink; and things will be straightened out upstairs in no time."

"But my own room," she began irritably, when he interrupted: "Your room is in use. You may have forgotten that it's the most comfortable in the house, and the weather has been unusually warm. If you had dropped me a line everything would have been ready. As it is, I fear I must ask you to be patient for an hour."

Shrugging, Angela led the way into the living room followed by her guests, who exchanged bewildered glances as Halliday turned about. He had scarcely reached the improvised nursery, however, when his wife was beside him; and setting small Martha on her feet, he faced the woman's angry countenance. Her eyes swept round the room—past the small white bed upon the porch—back to where the grey kitten slumbered peacefully on a silken cushion, and her temper, already perilously on edge, gave way. Lifting the beautiful beaded bag she threw it furiously at the unconscious bit of furry innocence; while the little girl burst into wild weeping at the animal's squeal of fright and pain.

"You's bad!" she sobbed, facing Angela with tear-drenched eyes. "You hurted my kitty and he runned away. You's bad!"

Without a glance at his wife Halliday lifted the child gently, carrying her downstairs and across the garden where Gay sat sewing on the porch. Had he known all that his face revealed he might have found some other way; but his voice was steady and he had not counted on the havoc that ugly scene had wrought. Martha still wept, but her sobs grew fainter as she saw the little boys building block houses.

"Why, what's the matter?" asked Gay with ready sympathy.

"There's been an accident to the kitten," explained Halliday, after setting his burden down beside the boys. "I've come to ask a favor, Mrs. Hastings. I—my wife has come home unexpectedly, bringing guests. It will be necessary to have the rooms we have been using. I wonder if for a time you—you——"

"Of course!" smiled Gay, instantly grasping his dilemma. "We've plenty of room in this old house. Send the nurse over when she returns, and leave Martha now. I'm glad you asked me, Mr. Halliday."

She stooped, motherwise, dropping a kiss on Martha's flaxen head.

"Thank you," said Mr. Halliday, wearily. "Thank you for that, and —everything."

Then he, too, stooped above the child.

"I'm going to leave you here to play with Nick and Sonny, little girl. I'll come back soon."

She lifted a tear-stained face and would have clung to him had not Gay called her attention to the tower the boys were building.

"I'll show you how, little Marfa," said Sonny with importance. "I'll make a house 'most big enough for you to live in."

"Go now," Gay whispered, seeing that the child was occupied; and Halliday turned away.

He went straight to Angela's room. She stood almost where he had left her, and, closing the door, he faced her sternly.

"Angela," he began, "there are guests in the house, and I cannot say what I would say otherwise. There must be no scene; but once before I warned you to curb your temper. Do you remember why?"

She shrank from him, but he followed her relentlessly, and though she tried to look away the cold gleam of his grey eyes held her own while one might have counted ten. Then through the open window was wafted the sound of childish laughter—the tension of those clashing glances broke, and the woman regained her poise.

"Aren't you a trifle melodramatic, my dear husband?" she asked, shrugging. "After all, it was only a cat."

Halliday turned.

"Next time it may be a child," he replied sternly, and left the room.

CHAPTER XIV.

Angela's guests stayed but a short time, though, little Martha once disposed of, James Halliday tried his utmost to be agreeable, and make them forget the awkward moment of their arrival. He even suggested a small dinner to which their next door neighbors were invited, and at which Gay appeared in a charming sea-green gown that caused her hostess to stare almost rudely in surprise.

Angela thought she had taken Gay's measure when she described her as "that dowdy little thing next door." Now, watching Halliday's interested face as he talked with their surprisingly appareled guest, she wondered if by any chance she had been mistaken. Since the days of her own courtship she had never seen her husband treat a woman just that way. The sight piqued her—not because she had any romantic feeling left for Halliday, but because she had thought him incapable of being so interested. There might come a time, she thought vindictively, when the knowledge of that interest would be a deadly weapon in her own hand. The thought brightened her eyes, making them even more blue and luminous than before. Her husband saw it, and wondered wearily, what new trouble was brewing for himself; yet later, when in the cool of the dimly lighted living-room, Angela sang, her voice might have been part of some celestial choir.

"How gloriously that woman sings!" said Nick, when he and Gay made their way home together across the garden. "She seems to forget everything, and everybody, and give herself up to the expression of her real self. It's as if it were all her own—music, and words, and her lovely way of giving them life. I felt like a fool when she made me try that duet with her, my dear."

"You needn't have. Your voice isn't trained like hers, but at least it's—sincere."

Sincere? What do you mean?"

Gay drew a quick breath.

"You—you wouldn't understand if I told you."

"Why not? Am I really so dense as that?"

"Not in everything, Nick."

"Thanks." Nick laughed, and as they reached the porch, sat down in the hammock and drew her down beside him. "Let's stay here a while and enjoy the moonlight. I don't like those aspersions on my mentality. Why should my singing be more sincere than Mrs. Halliday's?"

Gay was thoughtful for a moment before she answered: "I can't help feeling that she's playing a part, Nick; and somehow I don't care for her friends."

"They're not exactly our sort—a bit blase and world-weary perhaps, though the woman had one lucid interval when she told me about her little girl. They must bore Halliday to drink. He may be a cynic, but he has brains in his head. Still, I think you're unjust to the fair Angela. I bet those things Julie told you have stuck in your crop. Say, Gay, I think you've made an impression on Halliday! He acted tremendously interested in you tonight."

"What an idotic thing to say!"

"If you're not careful, Madam," Nick retorted, "I shall sue you for slander. That's the second insult you've handed me in fifteen minutes. Besides, he'd have been the idotic one if he hadn't noticed you. You had those other women looking like tinsel in a jewelry shop."

A sudden smile lighted Gay's eyes. She said: "That's what I meant about the difference in your voice and Mrs. Halliday's."

"I don't quite—get you."

"I said you wouldn't, didn't I?"

Nick grinned.

"I believe you set that trap for me, my dear. But you'll have to admit that her voice is beautiful."

"Oh, I do! But unless there's a beautiful soul behind it——" She hesitated, flushed and added: "That may sound foolish, but——"

Gay paused again, and her husband said with a tender smile for her fancies: "Are you implying then, that my soul is superior to my neighbor's?"

"Yes," answered Gay seriously, "I am. Oh, Nick, I know you'll think me silly, but I do wish you'd be careful how you act with Mrs. Halliday. I don't trust her. Call it jealousy if you like, but it's not that; it's instinct. There! I wish I hadn't said it, though it's been on the end of my tongue for months. I knew you'd laugh."

"I'm not laughing," he protested, though he was shamelessly and obviously amused. "My mouth just naturally turns up at the corners! But, as I've said before, I don't think you do the woman justice. If she's not happy with Halliday (and honestly, I don't think she is), she'd naturally take more interest in other men than would a woman who was satisfied with her own. Don't you believe that, Gay?"

"Perhaps—but—but there's such a thing as legitimate prey, you know."

Nick did laugh now.

"I see. Well——"

Before Her Baby Came

"I have used several bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and find it helps me wonderfully, especially before childbirth. I have five lovely children. After my last baby came I had a miserable pain in my right side so I bought another bottle of the Compound and I feel fine now. "Flu" First Appears as a Sore Throat, but Gains Tremendous Headway in Six Hours

AN EFFECTIVE TREATMENT DESCRIBED

Nearly every case of "Flu" starts with a simple cold. At first the throat is sore—often just a little hoarse—soon the infection goes lower—then the chest is affected. A safe plan is to gargle the throat three times daily with "Nerviline"—this will keep the throat free from germs. If there is any sign of tightness in the chest, rub on Nerviline—every drop penetrates deeply—congestion will be relieved—the cold will break up quickly. Many a dangerous case of "Flu" can be avoided by this simple home treatment.

Experienced mothers know how valuable Nerviline is for Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, and the little ailments that arise in every family. Nerviline in most homes is called "Mother's Best Friend." 35c at all dealers.

CRESTON, B.C., FRIDAY, APRIL 3

HOME BREW

In a year when so much is heard about a possible breakdown in fruit marketing facilities due to the failure to enact central selling or some other sort of legislative control, Creston valley orchardists ought to feel particularly cheerful with three such firms as Creston Growers' Long, Allan & Long, Limited, and the Scott Fruit Company, already assuring that they are looking for more tonnage, while at Wynndel we have the long established, Co-Operative Fruit Growers' Association. On the theory that one should feel good because folks are worse off somewhere else, surely Creston valley growers should be able to keep that old smile smiling.

In these days when all departments at Victoria are supposed to be enforcing the utmost economy, a vote of $64,000 for road maintenace in Creston riding this year is not to be complained of—and would provide satisfactory travel if we were getting the same efficient supervision of expenditure as was evidence in 1927 and 1928, when the grant was somewhat less.

In trying to figure out just how much territory that $64,000 has to serve do not think it is for Creston Valley exclusively. The amount is for the whole Creston constituency, which extends from Goatfell to the U.S. Boundary at Waneta. Judging by results Creston Valley must have been short changed the past two years, so better things surely may be hoped for in 1931.

An analysis of the apples shipped from the 1930 crop is heartening, showing, as it does, that 33 per cent. of the outgo was McIntosh Red, 14.7 per cent. Wealthy, 14 per cent. Delicious, 10 per cent. Wageuer, 6 per cent. Jonathan, 3 per ceut. Rome Beauty, 2 per cent. Spitzenberg, and "other winters" 4.5 per cent. Summer varieties are shown at but 1.9 per cent., and "other fall" varieties at 1 per cent. When it comes to having the "wanted varieties" Creston valley's position is remarkably good.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

That Presbytery Resolution

Editor Review:

Sir,—In your issue of March 27th my attention was drawn to a resolution passed by the Kootenay Presbytery, "The Liquor Situation," over the signature of R E. Cribb.

The government control of liquor has been in force in this province for over ten years and the same conditions, practically, exist today as at any time since the act was put into force. What a azes me at this moment is that the Kootenay Presbytery has been all this time in finding that out, and in passing resolutions of condemnation of the present liquor control system.

One is almost inclined to believe that the Kootenay Presbytery of the United Church of Canada was on the verge of entering politics, and if so they would be well advised to join up with the other such churches as are already in politics, but none so openly as one may judge from the action of the Kootenay Presbytery.

If gentlemen of the cloth would preach and teach a little more of the laws, statutes and judgments as were handed down for man's guidance by God, through Moses, on Mount Sinai, sometimes known as the common law, instead of theories which lull congregations to sleep, but not advertised or displayed by the Liquor Control Board, or by the government of British Columbia, possibly their congregations would increase to be equal to the crowds that frequent Sunday ball games, bridge parties, or Al. Fredericks' get togethers, and the way thereby cleared to offer us light on how to deal with perplexing problems whether they be beer saloons or "Pyatiletka" (the Soviet five-year plan.)

It is gratifying to know that we have with us continuing Presbyterians. FED UP.

AU REVOIR

Thus on the eve of my departure for Cranbrook it is with sincere regrets that I have to leave Creston, which has been my home since I returned from overseas. Though I will still have the pleasure of visiting this section once a month or more, still after living among you for so long many kind memories will cling to the various occasions on which we met one another, the old familiar scenes and kind pleasantries will be long cherished and not easily forgotten.

You who still remain will always be deeply engrossed in growing orchard products, so just as a parting word it is always well to bear in mind a few of the essential requisites necessary to those who make a living from growing fruit.

First, never plant out apple trees closer than 30 x 30 feet; secondly, the first five years is the formation period In the life of a young tree during which the scaffold limbs are selected, laying stress on right angle growth from the centre outwards, at the same time remembering though that the more severe you prune your young trees the longer you delay fruiting.

Thirdly, maintain the humus in your soils at all costs. This is accomplished in the cheapest manner by growing cover crops.

Fourthly, trees depend for their existence on sunshine, which if denied them stunts their growth and hastens decay; therefore in those orchards where fillers still exist if the limbs are interfering with the neighbors', cut out the offending neighbor and allow the standard to grow as it is detrimental to its proper development to be continually heading in the lower limbs. It takes the labor of over 40 leaves functioning in the full sunlight to develop an apple to maturity, so how can a grower expect, while maintaining a hedge row of apple limbs supported every fifteen feet by a tree trunk, to produce uniformity and high averages in his crop returns, unless the tree has room to grow outwards. as well as upwards.

Lastly, it is essential in this section to afford some protection to tree roots in the winter, where we are subject to sudden changes and prolonged spells of low temperatures without adequate protection from winter snow, by either growing cover crops, mulching, or practising fall ploughing. Where irrigation is now available do not let the trees go into winter quarters with the sub-soil too dry. Start irrigating early in November, supplying what the soil will absorb readily.

C. B. TWIGG.

WE WISH TO THANK those growers who have signified their intention to ship through us the coming season for the confidence they have shown, and to assure them that it will be our earnest endeavor to merit a continuance of that confidence.

ANY GROWER who has not completed arrangements for the marketing of his crop, and wishing to discuss this matter, is invited to communicate with us.

Orchardists, Attention!

The Creston Growers, Limited, have been operating in the Erickson and Creston district for a period of eight years. During this period the Company has set up an enviable record of successful merchandising in fruits and vegetables.

Net Returns To Growers:
Over the period of our operation, we claim to have paid the grower a higher net return than any other firm in British Columbia handling like commodities in like volume. We challenge contradiction of this statement supported by figures.

PROMPT PAYMENT:
We have made a specialty of getting the growers' money into the growers' pocket quickly. Final payments on all produce, including Winter apples, have invariably been paid in full before December the 20th of the current crop year.

DISTRIBUTION:
The Company being entirely free of any wholesale or jobbing house affiliation has been able to successfully solicit business from practically every jobbing house of importance in western Canada. In addition our arrangements for distribution in Eastern Canada, New York City and Great Britain cannot be excelled. The latter distribution is always available when conditions indicate the necessity of making sales outside the three Western Canadian Provinces.

SALES:
Sales are invariably made f.o.b. shipping point on a cash or short term credit basis. During the period of our operation losses to the growers through bad debts has been exactly nil.

1931 POLICY:
We do not intend to canvas ranchers for business but will accept fruit and vegetables for handling on our usual charge of 10%, and our warehouses will be open for business regardless of the quantity of produce that may be available.

CASH BUYING:
We will be in a position this year to buy all varieties of Winter apples outright for cash. Where market conditions at time of shipment permit we will extend this cash buying to other varieties of Apples, Pears, stone fruits and to vegetables.

Why France Is Economically Strong

Trying to ferret out the reason why France, of all the major nations, has no unemployment, but rather is importing 3,000,000 aliens to work in her fields, mines and factories, Freeman Tilden writes in the World's Work on "Why France is the Top-Dog."

All the chimneys of French factories are smoking. Portuguese workers have been imported in droves to supply the shortage of labor. Italians armed with picks and shovels follow Napoleon's trail over the Alps, in reverse order. Three hundred thousand Poles were given jobs last year. There are no doles, no Communists, no bread lines.

The findings run something as follows: Frenchmen are born marketers. They waste nothing. They know how to stretch French paper to make the two ends meet. Nothing is wasted.

Nor does this mean they have poor food. They furnish the chefs of the world. They do not dress shabbily. They dress the world. But they dress themselves first.

They buy for cash. They pay down in full for real estate. Not many know what call money is. Margins are on printed pages only. High-powered salesmen are an American institution. French cars seldom wear out carrying heavy mortgages around. Every large business concern has its economat. Employees get good meals at cost. The economats purchase at wholesale prices. Railway employees even get their coal and household supplies for a third what others pay outside of the economat. Companies do not exploit or commercialize their help.

The Frenchman hardly knows what a robot is. Almost everything is hand made. A country that is many times smaller than any one of our Western Provinces supports its millions by managing its individual affairs well. Thus the under-dog has become top-dog.

Is there not in the French situation as thus disclosed a suggestion of value worthy of the thoughtful consideration of the producers and workers of other countries?

Here in America, in Canada as well as in the United States, every encouragement, indeed the most striking inducements, are held out to people in all walks of life to buy on the instalment plan, rather than for cash. The use of credit has become almost universal, not only for capital expenditures which is justifiable and proper if the borrowings are kept within reason, and the capital expenditures to which they are devoted are of a revenue-producing character, but for current expenses. People are urged to buy not only necessities but luxuries on the credit plan, with payments spread over a term of months, or even years. The argument advanced is frequently to enjoy these luxuries now and while you are paying for them, rather than to wait until you have saved sufficiently to pay for them outright. It is a fallacious argument, a fatal mistake to make.

Complaints are fairly general that the banks will not extend credit at the present time. Possibly, however, the mistake by the banks in the past is that they extended too much credit too easily, coupled with the further mistake that they demand too high a rate of interest and thus make it next to impossible for the borrower to ever get out of debt once he is landed in that position. Many a man, both city residents and farmers, have told the writer that having got into debt to the banks or mortgage companies they had a long uphill struggle to get out. They found themselves working for these financial corporations to meet interest charges rather than for themselves. They vowed that once they got out of debt, they would never get in again, but rather would do without things until they could pay for them outright, tighten their belt if necessary, and carry on in the meantime.

It is the man who is carrying a load of debt, paying heavy interest charges annually, possibly on no-revenue producing expenditures made in the past, who finds himself in real difficulty in times of business depression. Any little cash he can get must be paid out again to keep himself solvent instead of being available to carry him along until the tide turns again. But the man who has followed the policy of "pay as you go," who is free of debt, is the man who can most easily weather the storm. Such a man can "carry on," but the man already heavily in debt finds himself in the predicament of going in still deeper, and the final result is, all too frequently, that he finds himself in an impossible position, so deep in fact that he can never get out.

Is the French way not the better way? Does it not make for greater contentment, a more consistent measure of good times, a more enjoyable, happier existence?

Should Look After Himself

A traveller in the Orient asked a pasha, "Is your civil service like ours? Are there retiring allowances and pensions?" "My illustrious friend," replied the pasha, "the public functionary here who stands in need of a retiring allowance when his term of office expires is a fool!"

Miss Theresa M. Ravary, Gallingertown, Ont., writes:—"I was troubled, for almost a year, with my heart and nerves, especially on retiring at night when I would be unable to sleep for hours. I was easily fatigued, and became very excitable and irritable. A friend recommended Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and after taking them for a few weeks I could enjoy a good night's rest, and rapidly regained my former state of health."

End Of Communism

McGill Economist Sees Soviet Despotism Foiled By Human Nature

"Russia is going to break, Communism will prove unavailing, the five-year-plan is doomed to failure, and the greatest despotism and tyranny that the world has ever seen will be foiled by human nature," declared Dr. Stephen Leacock, head of the department of political economy of McGill University, addressing the junior board of trade of Montreal recently on Communism.

The professor issued a warning that police batons were not the correct means of destroying Communism in Canada. "The needs of the people which lead them to seek after anything new must be satisfied as the first and only step required to do away with this evil," he said, referring to Communism in this country.

What was going to happen to Canada and other parts of the western world before Russia's five-year-plan failed, Dr. Leacock asked. "Are we going to sit back and condemn Communism and do nothing to cure the evils of present-day civilization? Are we to permit Russia to set us and the rest of the world an example in energy and determination in the exploitation of their country?"

Military Medal Law Revised

Holders Of V.C. Cannot Be Automatically Deprived Of Decoration

Holders of the celebrated Victoria Cross, highest award for gallantry in Britain's army, will not, in the future, be automatically deprived of the medal if convicted of "treason, cowardice, felony or any other infamous crime," as has been the case in the past.

This important change is one of the new provisions governing military medals announced in the London Gazette. It is stipiated, however, that the award of the V.C. may be cancelled by the King, who may also restore the decoration, if and when, the recommendation for annulment is withdrawn.

Scotland Boosting Aviation

Dundee, Scotland, recently held an informal jollification over the first business transaction carried out there by aeroplane. A business man had flown from Glasgow, landed in a field near Dundee, completed his deal and within an hour was on his way back by air. As a result of the visit, Dundee is joining the movement to provide an airport for every city in Scotland.

The worms that infest children from their birth are of two kinds, those that find lodgement in the stomach and those that are found in the intestines. The latter are the most destructive, as they cling to the walls of the intestines and if not interfered with work havoc there. Miller's Worm Powders dislodge both kinds and while expelling them from the system serve to repair the damage they have caused.

Half and Half

The passenger retorted, "Madam, if you were half a lady, you wouldn't need any help."

Proposes New Study For Canadian Schools

First-Aid and Home Nursing Useful Subjects, Says Colonel Hodgetts

First aid and home nursing should be made subjects in public schools, declared Col. C. A. Hodgetts, director-general of the St. John Ambulance Association, at the annual meeting of the organization in Ottawa. This type of training would, he said, be more useful than "some of the twaddle" now being taught.

The year 1930 was described as surpassing all other years in the history of the association. In the various courses, 23,398 persons took part and proficiency certificates were awarded in 12,855 cases. Certificates and awards had a grand total of 19,748. The annual report was presented by Hon. J. H. King, president.

Perhaps the world may owe you a living, but you will die of starvation if you sit down and wait for it to call and settle.

A giant X-ray tube, developing 600,000 volts, has been developed at the California Institute of Technology, for treating patients suffering from cancer, a formal statement issued by the Institute announced.

The statement said that. "As Dr. Robert A. Milliken has previously stated, the institute does not profess to have discovered a new cure for cancer; the principal hope is, that if results are favorable, other tubes of similar type will be placed in operation in hospitals in other sections of the United States."

SIR JOSIAH STAMP APPOINTED HEAD OF GRAIN INQUIRY

Ottawa, Ont.—One of Britain's leading economic experts, Sir Josiah Stamp, was recently named as head of the royal commission to inquire into grain trading in Canada. Premier R. B. Bennett told members of the House of Commons that Sir Josiah will sail this week for Canada.

It was known that the British economist had been invited to represent the Dominion Government, but the recent announcement carried the first intimation that he had accepted the post. The royal commission is to consist of three members, one of whom will represent the Grain Exchange and another is to be chosen by the prairie provinces to represent the farmers.

Rumors have associated the name of Premier J. E. Brownlee with the position of grain growers' representative, but Mr. Brownlee has denied that he would accept the post.

Sir Josiah Stamp has for many years been regarded as an outstanding expert in financial matters. He has had a distinguished academic career and has frequently represented the British Government on financial commissions. In 1919 he was member of the British royal commission on income tax, in 1924 he was member of the committee on taxes and national debt, and in the same year was British representative on the Dawes reparation commission. His most recent task has been to seek means of accomplishing economic co-ordination of British railways.

Appointment of the royal commission has followed expressions of opinion in Western Canada that trading in grain futures is detrimental to the best interests of the producers.

Present indications are that work of the commission will be confined to an investigation of this subject, although it appears possible the scope of the inquiry may be extended to include whole questions of marketing of the wheat crop.

Would Repeal Dry Law

Illinois Senate Passes Bill Repealing Enforcement

Springfield, Ill.—The Illinois Senate recently passed the bill repealing the state's prohibition enforcement laws. The measure, already passed by the House, now goes to the governor. The vote was 26 to 24.

The bill would repeal the state prohibition law under the Search and Seizure Act. In effect, it would withdraw all state support from the Federal Government in fighting illicit manufacture and traffic in intoxicating liquor.

Well-To-Do Farmers

Toronto, Ont.—The well-to-do middle class farmer had by no means disappeared. Hon. Duncan Marshall, former Minister of Agriculture in Alberta, told a meeting of advertisers and salesmen here when discussing farming conditions in western Canada. He believed that present difficulties would be overcome by the farmers. Generous loans to farmers by bankers at low rates of interest were a necessity, however, he said.

Drill For Oil

Winnipeg, Man.—It is understood here that an oil company, name unknown, will expend $250,000 in testing property in the town of St. Boniface, adjacent to Winnipeg, to ascertain if oil exists in the district. It was reported that a 60-day option has been let by the St. Boniface council on a block of 14 acres at a price of $2,000 an acre.

Wolves Terrorize Settlers

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.—Wolves in large packs, coming down from the hills in Moran township, east of the city, are becoming such a menace around the scattered settlements that bushmen and others no longer go into the woods except in numbers, according to word received here recently.

Disorders In India

Cawnpore Troops Shoot Down 30 Rioting Nationalists

Karachi, India.—Turmoil broke out again in India as Mahatma Gandhi, here for the Nationalist congress meeting, was jeered by Communists, and troops at Cawnpore shot down at least 30 rioting Nationalists.

The disorders grew out of the execution last week of three Indians convicted of the murder of a 21-year-old police official in 1928. Gandhi was taken off a train 12 miles outside of the town, but the thousands gathered here for the congress meeting spotted him as he rode into town in an automobile.

A group of 30 or more, known to be of Communist leaning, made for him with jeers and one even made as though to attack the frail little man with a flag staff. Some carried a tray with a gruesome mess of mud and blood.

"Here is the blood of our brothers who were murdered," they cried, referring to the three executed Indians. "Take it back with your truce to Delhi."

Gandhi's men drove off the assailants, and there were cheers for Mahatma.

The day at Cawnpore was even more serious. Rioting began during the night when Moslem shop-keepers refused to close their stores under a general strike order by the congress men. Troops came out when the fighting got serious, and before the worst was over, 30 had been killed, and at least 100 injured.

This trouble too, grew out of the executions.

To Dispose Of Wheat

Senator Borah Would Donate Surplus Wheat In United States To China

Washington, D.C.—Old suggestion that the surplus wheat held by the National Grain Stabilization Corporation, amounting to over 200,000,000 bushels, should be turned over to China, was made by Senator William E. Borah.

Such action would require an act of congress. Wheat held by the corporation has been bought and paid for, and the policy of the Farm Board is that it shall not be given away.

Borah's idea was that a gift of the wheat to China would create an appetite for wheat bread among the 400,000,000 Chinese which would result in largely increasing the market for wheat in that country.

Will Entertain Governor-General

Ottawa, Ont.—Canada's new governor-general—the Earl of Bessborough—will be the guest of honor on April 8, at a dinner tendered by Premier R. B. Bennett. Members of the government, the leader of the opposition, and members of the privy council will attend the function.

Honored By King

London, England.—The King invested the Earl of Bessborough, Governor-General designate of Canada, with the insignia of the Grand Cross of St. Michael and St. George. Lord and Lady Bessborough had luncheon with Their Majesties after the ceremony of investiture.

No Aid For Germany

Paris, France.—Denunciation of the commercial treaty with Germany and a decision to abstain from all financial aid constitutes the possible policy of France toward Germany if she persists in carrying out an economic pact with Austria, the Associated Press was informed in official quarters.

No Change In Construction Program

Prince Albert, Sask.—There will be no change in the $3,000,000 construction plans of the Canadian Pacific Railway in northern Saskatchewan, it was emphatically declared here by D. C. Coleman, Winnipeg, vice-president western lines, Canadian Pacific Railway.

Less Unemployed

London, England.—The number of unemployed persons in Great Britain on March 16, was announced by the government recently, as 2,639,633, a decrease of 52,104 under the previous month. The total figure is 1,017,875, more than at the same time last year.

May Increase Postal Rates On Newspapers

To Help Lower Deficit Of Post Office Department

Ottawa, Ont.—Voicing a protest against the projected increase of postal charges on second class mail matter, a delegation of over 20 members of the Canadian National Newspapers and Periodicals Association conferred here with Hon. Arthur Sauve, postmaster-general.

The government has had before it for some time the proposal to increase the mail rates on second class mail matter, under which category are included newspapers and periodicals. For the current fiscal year the deficit of the post office department will likely range between five and six million dollars, and the proposal to raise the rate on newspapers has been advanced in an effort to overcome some of that deficit.

Rioting In Madrid

Madrid, Spain.—Flying the red flag of the rebellion, students clashed with police at the San Carlos medical school, resulting in the death of two persons and serious injury to 14. Disorders had their origin in the refusal of authorities to allow the students to parade in behalf of amnesty for political prisoners.

Temperance Forces Defeated

London, England.—Rallying after their recent defeat in attempting to introduce prohibition into Great Britain by act of Parliament, the temperance forces sought to curtail liquor advertising which flares over towns and country throughout the Isles, but the House of Commons rejected the move by a vote of 127 to 112.

Tourist Traffic Slightly Less

But Figures For 1930 Place Value At $280,000,000

Ottawa, Ont.—Despite falling off from 1929 tourist traffic still remains a decidedly prolific source of income in Canada. Figures for 1930, estimated by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, place the value of tourist traffic at $280,000,000. This substantial figure, in the face of far-flung economic depression, was only $28,000,000 less than 1929.

Automobile tourists from the United States increased in numbers, but apparently did not spend as much money. The estimated expenditure was $202,409,000 as compared with $215,577,000 in 1929. The conclusion reached by the mathematicians at the Bureau of Statistics is that the relative cheapness of a motor trip through Canadian highways had appeal for those who in more prosperous times might have been inquisitive about the beauty of Monte Carlo. Total tourists from the United States numbered 5,400,000 as against 4,508,000.

Canadian tourists abroad also were watching their pocketbooks. Automobiles carried tourists to the United States who parted with $63,489,000, according to the estimate. This compared with 65,055,000 in the previous year. Total expenditures abroad of all Canadians is placed at $113,000,000 as against $122,000,000 in the year of booming stock quotations.

Must Serve Sentence

Sixteen-Year-Old Farm Boy Fails In Appeal To Higher Court

Toronto, Ont.—Robert Kitowski, 16-year-old farm boy, must serve his sentence of five years at the Stoney Mountain penitentiary and receive 20 lashes as imposed by Magistrate Cruso for the holding-up and robbing of the Dominion Bank at Fort Frances, on February 11 last. This was the decision of the First Appellate Court of Ontario, at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, following an earnest plea for "a more humane punishment" from A. A. MacDonald, counsel for the young prisoner.

Youthfulness of the prisoner which brought forth a "popular clamor" following the sentence, did not appeal to the first divisional court, the chief justice, Sir William Mulock, declared in announcing their judgment.

Followed Nurse Cavell

Brussels, Belgium.—It was belatedly learned here that Miss Anne Scott-James, 56, who gained fame as a nurse in the Great War, died March 21. Miss Scott-James assumed the mantle of the English nurse, Edith Cavell, shot as a spy by the Germans during the war. Following Miss Cavell's execution, she assisted Allied soldiers to cross the Dutch frontier.

No Samples Yet

Edmonton, Alberta.—"Not a single flake of platinum has been received yet for test purposes," declared Dr. J. A. Allan, head of the department of geology at the University of Alberta, when asked regarding reports of a strike at Obed, on the C.N.R., west of Edson.

MELODY MIKE FAN MAIL

From the far northern prairies, from city, town, village, isolated farm house, right across the Dominion from Halifax to Victoria, letters are pouring into Canadian Pacific Railway radio offices, at Montreal, from admirers of the genial old soul who sends out his message of goodwill and kindly humor every Monday night. In one day in March, no less than 1,361 such letters were received and from 15,000 in a month, the figure has risen to close on 40,000. Photograph shows a portion of the radio department staff dealing with this huge fan mail as it comes in each day. The Melody Mike feature is declared by competent judges to be one of the most popular radio offerings on the continent.

MANITOBA POOL ELEVATOR PROBE IS UNDER WAY

Winnipeg, Man.—Surrounded by prominent counsel, including T. J. Murray, K.C., authority on the legal aspects of co-operative marketing, E. K. Williams, K.C., commenced a royal commission investigation into the operations of the Manitoba Pool Elevators Limited.

Procedure to be adopted in presentation of evidence has been settled. Commissioner Williams gave a compromise ruling which will permit Pool counsel to present documentary evidence, and, in special cases, evidence of company officers in explanation of financial reports submitted.

It had been the intention of Mr. Murray and his associate counsel, Travers Sweatman, K.C., to present oral testimony on each document submitted, but this was objected to by A. B. Hudson, K.C., representing James R. Murray, Winnipeg grain authority, whose charges made to Premier John Bracken brought about the appointment of the commissioner.

Under the compromise ruling, agreed to by all counsel, the Pool elevators will file documents, and opposing counsel will be permitted immediate cross-examination of witnesses. The same ruling will apply when witnesses for Mr. Murray testify on the filing of documentary evidence.

Mr. Murray, who charged extravagance in the operation of pool elevators, and under-grading to the detriment of the farmer shareholders, was in attendance at the sessions.

In the country there are 11,000 farmer shareholders, operating 156 country elevators, who are vitally interested in the probe, which is expected to last at least three weeks.

Both sides made clear that "a complete picture" of the pool elevators operations must be presented.

Mr. Murray, senior counsel for the pool, feared it was the intention of Mr. Hudson to call officers and employees of the elevators only to substantiate the charges, and not to bring out the complete facts relevant to the whole case.

A wrong impression might be created with the examination of only one document or witness, said Mr. Murray. Incomplete examination might at least cause suspicion, and with keen rivalry existing between pool and non-pool elevator agents, lead to the circulation of propaganda calculated to break the confidence of shareholders.

"Confidence of shareholders is the life blood of the Pool Elevators, Limited," he said. "It must be maintained."

J. T. Thorson, K.C., associated with Mr. Hudson, declared it was not intended to create any unnecessary disturbance in the minds of shareholders. Everything must be presented in detail, not summaries, and not piecemeal.

It is expected a good turn out will greet his appearance.

Owing to the late shipment of the Towner cover crop disc it has been found necessary to hold tractor demonstration on Tuesday, April 7th, instead of Monday, the 6th, as previously advertised. We have been asked to demonstrate this disc with the tractor. Now that we have irrigation in the valley cover crops will be essential and there is nothing better for working these crops into the soil than these heavy discs with their 22 inch blades spaced 9 inches apart to give ample clearance.

The special services at the Full Gospel Tabernacle are very encouraging in their increased interest. Sunday evening saw a number of strangers in our midst and a keen interest prevailed during the entire service Miss Williams sang by request, "When they ring those golden bells for you and me." The evangelist spoke on Heaven, answering in her message questions which are continually arising in the hearts of men, and pressing for an answer. Good times are expected during this coming week when the services will be in keeping with the spirit of Easter.

Athletics o a much larger scale than ever before will feature high school activities this year. This was decided upon at the re-organization meeting of the H.S. Word reached here last week of the death at Chapleau, Ontario, of Mrs. Wm. Miller, a former well-known resident of Creston, who passed away on St. Patrick's Day. The Millers were residents of Creston from 1907 to 1916, in which year they moved to Alberta, where they remained until about 1921, when they returned to the valley and took up residence at Erickson, remaining until 1926, when they moved to Chapleau. Deceased was in her 73rd year, and her husband predeceased her about two years, both being buried at Chapleau. Deceased was the step-mother of Mrs. Maxwell and Mrs. Tom. Hickey of Canyon.
