Land Clearing For Unemployed

Board of Trade Would Have Likely Government Land Put in Shape to Cultivate—Settle Recent Convention Affairs.

The June session of Creston Board of Trade on Tuesday evening was chiefly taken up with winding up affairs in connection with the Associated Board's convention here at the end of May. Expenses in connection with the conference, amounting to $203, were passed for payment.

The secretary will write the C.P.R passenger department thanking for the placing of a Pullman car at Creston to provide sleeping accommodation for some of the delegates. And a similar letter will go to the Masonic Lodge thanking or the use of the lodgeroom for convention sessions.

In connection with the convention a very fine group photo was taken and these can be purchased from Secretary Clowes at $1.50. At Tuesday night's meeting the local board decided to invest in one for the records.

The board has received an invitation to send representatives to Regina, Sask., in September for the annual convention of the Canadian Chambers of Commerce, and also has a "bid" to be represented at the convention of Similkameen associated boards of trade which meets at Keremeos on June 10th.

The secretary reported receiving several letters requesting information respecting the village ane district. Most of them were with reference to employment were advised to keep away for the present at least.

On the matter of unemployment a resolution was adopted and will be forwarded Victoria asking the government to size up the lands they own in this area and any acreage they have that lends itself to cultivation should be cleared and made available for settlement. Such a move would help take care of unemployment, though the board favored having the work done by contract, if possible.

Loose Plank in Sidewalk Cause of Trouble Have Offer for Town Lots—Dance Pavillion Floor Costs $625.

Correspondence of great variety that had accumulated since the May meeting furnished most of the business for consideration of the June session of the village council on Monday night at whic all members were present.

Reg. Watson had an application to rent the dance pavilion in the fall fair building for the nights of July 29, August 21st and September 7th. The council agreed to let him have it for the firstnamed evening at a rental of $35.

The Wildcats softball club were given permission to remove the basketball standards on the fair grounds so that the girls can develop a diamond on which to indulge in their favorite sport, provided the standards are put back in place should the basketball players require them. For this year the council decided not to make the usual contribution to the Salvation Army self-denial fund.

A. Brunham submitted an offer of $20 each for two lots on Third Street at Mallandaine Avenue, for which he will pay at the rate of $15 per month. These are two of the seven lots the village recently acqnired from the C.P.R. at a price of one dollar for the seven. Councillor Henderson will investigate and report at the next meeting.

The latter part of April Mrs. Connatty tripped over a loose plank in the sidewalk on Victoria Avenue and sustaining injuries that required medical treatment at the hospital, including an operation. The bill in this connection, amounting to almost $300, was submitted the council and after consideration it was decided to notify Mr Connatty that they could not see their way clear to pay such an amount and inviting him to attend the next meeting of the council to discuss the whole matter.

T. G. Berscht, a Calgary painter and decorater, wrote asking whether there was an opening for a tradesman in that line. The clerk will write him stating that at present prospects in his line are not at all good.

G. Sinclair, who is erecting a new hardware store on the east side of town, asked for permission to deviate from the building by-law in the coustruction of the store chimney, but will be advised he must adhere to the by-law regulations.

W. Bailey, who had been named temporary poundkeeper, had his appointment rescinded, and B Cripps has again consented to look after this work for the village. Disbursements in connection with April operations disclosed the fact that employees of the village had earned salaries that necessitated the town paying the provincial treasurer 76 cents of income tax.

Lister

Mrs. Hobded returned at the end of the week from a short holiday visit with her daughter, Mrs. Whittaker, at Cranbrook.

Mrs. Knott returned n Monday from Creston where she had spent the week a guest of Mrs. Boyd.

Otto Wolfrun, Hans Helwig, and Ed. Betker, who have been at Calgar for almost the past two months, have returned home.

Frank Hollis, who left about a month ago to work at tie making on the Kettle Valley, west of Penticton, has also returned.

R. T. Millner has the work well in hand taking the census in the Lister area, as well as Canyon and part of Erickson.

Col. Lister was at Robson a couple of days the latter part of the week, attending the semi-anuual meeting ot West Kootenay Farmers' Institutes.

Some of the German settlers are at work clearing land on the Jas. Duncan and J. W. Bell (Malthouse) ranches and in exchange for their labor they get the hay crop on the ranches mentioned.

F. B. McConnell, the B.C. director of the Canadian Colonization Association, was here during the past week, consulting with a number of the German settlers.

Mr. and Mrs. Tedford and family, who have resided here for the past few years, have moved to Canyon City, where they have leased the George Leach ranch for a year.

Lister-Huscroft Farmers' Institute basket picnic is definitely set for Sunday, June 14th, at the recreation grounds at Huscroft. The fun will commence at 1 p.m. There will be the usual line of sports for both children and adults. Visitors will be welcome but they are asked to bring a basket

A few of our residents have already left for Wynndel for the strawberry harvest, and more will be going as soon as picking gets well under way.

J. W. Bell and friend, Bob Robson, of Kimberley, were here for the weekend at the Bell ranch.

Mr. Marsack of Salmon Arm visited the area during the past week. He is in charge of potato bug control work and is arranging to have a supply of the powder mixture to cope with the pest.

Hon. Wm. Atkinson of Victoria, minister of agriculture, was a visitor at Lister at the end of the week, coming in with Col. Lister from Robson, where he attended the Farmers' Institute convention.

A meeting of the property owners was held on Tuesday evening last when arrangements were made to take care of some necessary work to protect the water supply. It had been found that cattle running at large in the area between the outlet and pipe line intake had been responsible for diverting the flow to a point where a real shortage was in evidence. Volunteer labor was forthcoming to fence in that particular spot, and the water supply is again almost normal.

There was a large and representative turnout of land owners at the meeting on Friday, May 29th, which was called to discuss school taxation matters. E. Langston occupied the chair, with A. R. Bernard, officiating as secretary. The complaint is that the old settlers are compelled to pay 100 per cent. of the school taxes, while newcomers supply more than half the school children and pay no school taxes whatever. It was decided to draft a letter setting forth the situation, which will be sent Premier Tolmie, the minister of education and the minister of lands The committee in charge of the work is R. T. Millner, A. R. Bernard and John Bird. Along with the letter will go a petition asking for remedial action, and this petition is now being circulated and is largely signed

Insurance Against Depression

A newspaper published on the Pacific Coast prints the following note received by it from a worker in lumber camps: "You need not worry about me. I have worked many years in the logging camps, saved my earnings. Now, during the depression, I am able to get along on three meals a day and a good place to sleep. I am a naturalized citizen. I will vote for the things that make my adopted country a better place to live in."

Commenting on this statement, a magazine writer says it would be difficult to condense the principles of sound economics and good citizenship into smaller space. Let us analyze it a bit.

In the years when work was plentiful this industrious woodsman labored and saved, for his common sense told him that fat years and lean years had alternated throughout the known history of man. They did in Egypt in the days of Joseph, when amid the scoffings of the masses he stored up grain during seven fat years as insurance against the succeeding seven lean years. Ordinary prudence told this Pacific Coast woodsman that in storing up from the surplus of the fat years he, too, would be able to meet the deficiency of the lean ones.

This woodsman had nothing but his labor to sell, so he sold it at a profit when the market was brisk and saved the profit to provide for his needs when the market should be dull. And "depression" finds him living comfortably and free from worry. He can afford to wait in philosophic patience for the sure advent of another period of fat years.

And, after all, who of us is really differently situated than is this woodsman? What, in the final analysis, has any person to sell but his or her labor? And having sold that labor in times when it is in demand and well paid for, whether in wages, or profitable production from farms, or turnover in business, it surely is the sane and sensible policy, in fact the duty, of the laborer to "save" against the day when there comes a decline in demand for his services and a resultant decline or stoppage in current income or profit.

Everybody but the wholly improvident and thoughtless insure themselves today against sickness, accident, death and old age. They insure their homes, businesses and belongings against possible loss by fire or other catastrophe. They regard these steps as not only wise, but a duty they owe to themselves and their families. In like manner, is it not the part of wisdom, and a duty, in the fat years of earning power to "save" against the lean years which the whole history of man teaches us will inevitably come?

In all the volumes, and essays, and speeches, and editorials, and articles that have been written or spoken on economic topics, in all the speculations as to causes and cures for the present "depression," can any one find a surer specific for economic comfort and independence than that offered by this hard-headed, straight-thinking woodsman? Out of the abundant fat years lay up a store to bridge the shortage of the lean ones. It is simply the old, classic preventive of Industry and Thrift properly balanced. And whenever it has been applied it has worked.

Uniform Signs For Europe

Roadside warning signs in all Europe will be uniform if the countries accept the system adopted at the European Conference on Road Traffic which recently met at Geneva. Danger signs will be triangular, stop signs circular, and information signs rectangular. Should all the countries adopt it the change will mean the scrapping of thousands of signs now in use.

Inter-Provincial Traffic Council

Saskatoon Board Of Trade Voices Opposition To Proposed Plan

Opposition to the proposed prairie provinces inter-provincial traffic council was expressed at an executive meeting of the Saskatoon Board of Trade. The opinion was expressed that it would not be in the best interests of Saskatoon and Saskatchewan to enter this association.

It was stated that Saskatchewan was in a peculiar position in connection with freight and express rates, and that at present there was a Saskatchewan traffic council which was functioning in a satisfactory manner.

J. M. Stevenson, K.C., said Manitoba and Alberta were in far more favorable situation as regards rates than this province. The one had the rate from Vancouver, while the other had the special rate from the head of the lakes.

He said that owing to the geographical situation of the province, sandwiched between two provinces which enjoyed special facilities, it would militate against Saskatchewan receiving concessions. He said that if a move were made for a reduction in rates for Saskatchewan, the other provinces, if the association were formed, would oppose any concession which would give Saskatchewan any benefit.

He also expressed the opinion that Manitoba and Alberta should proceed to organize traffic councils to operate separately and that joint action could be taken on specific problems where there was common ground.

Credit Goes To Weir

Has Made It Possible To Retain Federal Tree Nurseries

The federal tree nurseries at Indian Head and Sutherland, Saskatchewan, from where trees have been distributed to prairie farmers free of charge, are to be carried on by the federal government. This service was cut out of the estimates tabled in parliament a few weeks ago, and would have been completely abandoned on July 31, had the government not reconsidered the matter and reversed its first decision.

Not an additional dollar is to be voted for their upkeep, but Mr. Weir will cut down on other expenses within his department to obtain the funds necessary for the work. The decision, favorable to the nurseries, was reached only after Mr. Weir had put the matter before Mr. Bennett on two occasions. On the first he was refused, on the second he obtained Mr. Bennett's consent. The announcement followed a question put to the government by Hon. W. R. Motherwell.—By Grant Dexter.

Made Interesting Flight

Professor Believes It Will Revolutionize Theories About Stratosphere

The London Daily Express, in a telephone interview with Professor Auguste Piccard, "stratosphere" balloonist, quotes him as saying that the results of his flight "are likely to revolutionize all previous theories concerning the stratosphere.

"The flight proved that the stratosphere is navigable," the Professor is quoted as having said, "and that man with modern technical methods will be able to master its low pressure and its cold.

Recovered from their perilous thrust into the upper reaches of the sky, Dr. Auguste Piccard has started compiling his scientific data, while Charles Kipfer, his assistant, took a three-hour climb to recover their balloon from the glacier in which it came to rest.

Dr. Piccard said, in conversation with Austrian newspapermen, that the stratosphere, which he claimed to have penetrated in an ascent of more than 50,000 feet, was the only practicable element for long distance aviation.

"This can be done, however," he said, "only if the cabins are as airtight as our gondola was."

Information received at Innsbruck, Austria, from Professor Auguste Piccard said that he and his companion, Charles Kipfer, suffered greatly from thirst during their balloon flight into the stratosphere.

They were forced to scrape the frozen moisture from their breath off the walls of the aluminum cage, the report said, and to melt and drink it.

"The fact that we carried a double supply of oxygen saved our lives," he said. "On landing we found there was left only sufficient for one hour more."

Believes Jazz Age Dying

F. Scott Fitzgerald, the novelist who gave the jazz age its name and "discovered" the flapper, believes that the age of jazz has ended, according to a letter received from him by his publishers, Scribners. Fitzgerald said the jazz age lasted ten years from the suppression of the May Day riots in 1919 to the stock market crash in 1929.

Automobile production shot upward in Canada during April. With a total output of 17,159 cars, the daily average of 572 cars was 37 per cent. higher than in March, although only about one-half the average during April 1930.

The index number of production computed by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, which started the new year at 60 per cent. below normal, was at the end of April only 26 per cent below normal.

WILL FIND A WAY TO BUILD TRANS-CANADA HIGHWAY

Ottawa, Ont.—Before long the government hopes to have a satisfactory solution to the problem of building a trans-Canada highway, Hon. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals, told the House of Commons. It was too soon, he said, to charge the government with failure to keep its election promises.

Dr. Manion was speaking in the debate on the highway started by J. A. Bradette (Lib., Timiskaming North) on a motion to go into supply.

Neither Mr. Bradette nor Hon. Peter Heenan, former Minister of Labor, had been consistent in their attitude towards the highway, said Dr. Manion. When the Liberal Government had been in power a motion had come before the House urging the government to make grants towards the construction of highways and both Mr. Heenan and Mr. Bradette had voted against it. They were in no position to accuse the present government of breaking its pledges so early in its term of office.

"I did not accuse you of breaking your pledges," said Mr. Heenan. "I merely asked you to fulfill them."

"The question of the trans-Canada highway is a very big question. It has not been overlooked. The government has it under consideration and we hope before long to have a satisfactory solution."

The record of the Liberal party had been consistent in matters of grants to provinces, declared Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King, adding it might have resulted in some political losses. When assuming office in 1921, deficits in the treasury were encountered, necessitating economy if the budgets were to be balanced and debt and taxation reduced. In one direction, this was done, namely, by refusing grants and aids to provinces in addition to the subsidies fixed at confederation.

"I am not opposed to subsidies to provinces," exclaimed the Liberal leader, "but I am opposed to sums of money being voted by this parliament to the provinces in addition to those subsidies." Such extra grants never were contemplated by the fathers of confederation.

"Where will the end be?" asked Mr. King, as he enumerated the grants paid during the past 10 years to the provinces in addition to the regular subsidies. They were for agricultural instruction, to co-ordinate unemployment offices, to encourage highway construction and technical education, combating disease, relieving unemployment; the old age pension scheme. The total was $57,-900,000. During that time, the statutory subsidies paid by the Dominion to the provinces amounted to $150,-000,000. "The principle of the old age pension scheme is thoroughly sound. In order to get the scheme in operation, I was prepared at that time to support the principle of grants to the provinces, which, I admit, is unsound."

The time had come, Mr. King repeated, when the federal parliament should vote 100 per cent. of the cost of the pension scheme, and centre administration in Ottawa. In his budget recently, Premier Bennett had continued this "unsound principle" of the federal treasury assuming a portion—75 per cent.—of the scheme.

Grain Shipments For May Were Higher

Larger Quantities Shipped Overseas Than In Previous Months

Fort William, Ont.—Canada's hold on foreign wheat markets remained firm through May, the Dominion shipping larger quantities overseas than in any month for more than a year. Clearances during the last week, according to the weekly report on grain movement by E. A. Ursell, statistician to the Dominion Board of Grain Commissioners, amounted to 6,853,553 bushels and swelled the five-week total to 34,180,796 bushels.

In the last two years 13,000,000 Russian illiterates have been taught to read and write.

Duty On Magazines

Educational, Religious and Scientific Publications To Be Exempted

Ottawa, Ont.—Officials of the Department of National Revenue will consider each magazine coming into Canada, and decide which shall be exempted from the 15 cents a pound duty which will be imposed under the provisions of the budget. The duty does not come into effect until July 1. The magazines to be exempted as defined by Premier R. B. Bennett will be educational, scientific and religious. The list prepared by the department will be submitted to the cabinet for final acceptance.

Some magazines coming into Canada weigh over a pound per copy, and, in some cases, the duty will be more than the present cost of the magazine. With magazines totalling several million copies coming in every year, the taxes from this source should be considerable.

The New Taxes

Income tax on foreign investments in Canada effective July 1.

Postage increase, July 1.

Income Tax Changes

Changes With Two Exceptions Based On Next Year's Taxes

Ottawa, Ont.—All the income tax changes brought down in the budget are applicable to next year's taxes based on this year's income, with two exceptions, it was explained by the Department of National Revenue. In the case of the increase in the rate from eight to ten per cent. on the income for corporations and joint stock companies, the additional two per cent. will have to be paid on the returns already in, based on last year's income. The other exception is a tax of two per cent. collected at their source on dividends payable to non-resident shareholders. This comes into force on July 1 next.

Export Market For Butter

Good Market For Butter and Cheese In Great Britain

Montreal, Quebec.—Canada will have a good butter and cheese export business with Great Britain this year, according to P. W. McLagan, Montreal butter and cheese exporter, who has just returned from a visit to Great Britain.

There was a place for Canadian butter in England, he declared, and as the market was not overloaded and as long as Canadian prices and quality were right, he thought that there would be steady sales throughout the 1931 season.

MAY RETIRE

Col. Grant Morden, well known Canadian residing in England, is reported to have decided to retire from his seat in the English House of Commons. At present he is recovering from a serious illness in his home in the British Isles.

Empress Greeted By Notable Canadians

Governor-General Attends Dinner Given On New C.P.R. Liner

Quebec, Que.—To join with the Prime Minister and many other distinguished citizens of the Dominion, in the general welcome which has been extended to the "Empress of Britain" on her arrival in Canadian waters, the Governor-General paid a visit to Quebec and attended a dinner held on the vessel on June 3.

President E. W. Beatty, of the Canadian Pacific Railway, presided over a company numbering some 500 which included, in addition to His Excellency and the Prime Minister, Sir Robert Borden, Gen. Sir Arthur Currie, Hon. Hanford MacNide, United States minister to the Dominion, Sir William Clark, British minister at Ottawa, Hon. E. Laponte, Premier L. A. Taschereau, Sir Joseph Flavelle, Sir Herbert Holt.

Lord Bessborough, commenting on the initial performance of the "Empress of Britain," said the "Empress" had proved herself mistress of the high seas and had entered the new world by one of the greatest and most spectacular highways.

Ottawa Honors King George

Ottawa, Ont.—The capital was in holiday dress June 3 in honor of His Majesty King George, who was celebrating his 66th birthday. Parliament Hill was almost deserted, the House of Commons and the Senate having taken a day off. All government departments were closed, as were also schools and many business establishments. A royal salute of 21 guns boomed out at 12 o'clock noon.

Trade With New Zealand

British Columbia Anxious For Consummation Of New Agreement

Victoria, B.C.—"It is important in the interest of our export trade that a new agreement with New Zealand be consummated in the near future," F. C. Brown, chairman of the British Columbia division, said in presenting his report to the convention of the Canadian Manufacturers Association.

New Zealand's action in withdrawing the British preference from Canada, combined with the Canadian budget provision placing a duty on tin plate, would hit the canned salmon industry hard, the speaker said.

Br. Brown's address forcibly directed the attention of the manufacturers across the Pacific. He was hoping from day to day to see announcement of the conclusion of a new agreement with Australia which would continue the present preference on paper, fish, and lumber, and extend that on lumber. Since the termination last October, of the agreement with New Zealand, trade with that dominion had fallen off rapidly.

The report of the prairie division, read by Arnold Smith, Winnipeg, said "the courageous manner in which our agricultural population has prepared for another crop should be a very definite corrective to those fatalists who appear to think that our economic fabric is irretrievably damaged."

"It is more than likely that the position of our overseas markets for grain and farm produce will steadily improve."

R. J. Hutchings, Calgary, said the farmers were buckling down to putting in a crop at half the price of late years, due to the cost of seed and other elements. The prairies, he declared, were going to maintain their position of growing the best wheat and supplying it to the world markets.

To Break Deadlock

Negotiations Being Carried On Between Vatican and Italian State

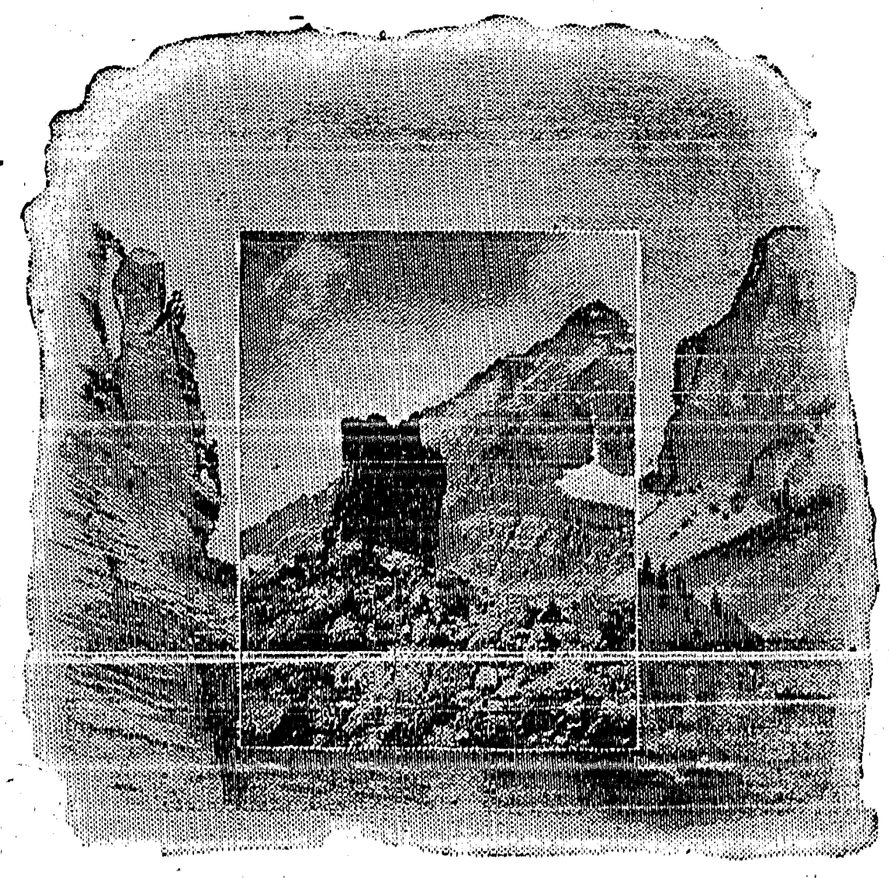
Rome, Italy.—Secret negotiations to break the deadlock between the Holy See and the Italian state in the present crisis is in progress.

Following the closing of Catholic youth clubs by the Italian Government, it was learned from a good source that conversations are being conducted by Cardinal Gasparri, who signed the Lateran treaty and concordat in 1929 with Premier Mussolini.

U.S. Debt Increases

Washington, D.C.—After government finances had been discussed by President Hoover and his cabinet the White House announced the national debt would be increased $500,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, because of falling revenue and increased expenditures.

MOUNTAIN PEAKS BECKON ALPINE CLUB



Among the mountain peaks that will beckon to Alpine Club campers this summer are the Tower of Babel (right), reflected in beautiful Moraine Lake; the craggy summits above Lake O'Hara which invite the intrepid (left), and picturesque Eagle's Eyrie (centre), just a step from Prospector's Valley, where camp will be struck. Standing stark against the sun, the Eagle's Eyrie is startlingly like the king of birds, but fashioned in stone, serves merely to provide shade where mountaineers halt to drink tea.

DEPORTATION BILL IS OPPOSED BY MINISTER

Ottawa, Ont.—A measure preventing the deportation from Canada of persons who have been resident here more than ten years, was "talked out" in the House of Commons. The bill, which came up on second reading, under the sponsorship of J. S. Woodsworth (Labeor, Winnipeg North Centre), may possibly be reached again this season.

From Hon. W. A. Gordon, Minister of Immigration and Colonization came a clear and emphatic statement in opposition to the proposal. The effect of the bill, Mr. Gordon declared, would be to destroy sections of the Immigration Act for the deportation of prohibitory classes, including idiots, imbeciles, insane and feeble-minded persons, diseased persons, people of unsavory character, and other physically or mentally deficient.

Dealing with "prohibitive classes," Mr. Gordon remarked that migrants who became mental cases in Canada were not cared for by the Dominion Government, but the burden fell upon the municipalities and the provinces. The provinces of Canada, had expended millions upon millions of dollars for the care of these people. Ontario, with which Mr. Gordon was most familiar, had invested some thirty-eight million dollars of capital expenditure in institutions to take care of the sick and afflicted at the present time. Canada's neighbor to the south had many thousands of cases with which the Department of Immigration is dealing every day, who, if we let down the bars, would be sent back to Canada, where they have no right to come."

Mr. Gordon emphasized the deportations were only ordered after the fullest inquiry. Many people of a splendid type had come to Canada who were an honor today to this country; but there were some within our boundaries who, under careful selection and the discipline of immigration, never would have been permitted to come into Canada.

A. A. Heaps (Labor, Winnipeg North), who, in the absence of Mr. Woodsworth, moved the second reading, said it was "most unfair" to deport persons from Canada who had been resident here for many years. In recent months many persons, the majority born in Great Britain, had been deported. Some had been here as long as 18 years, had raised families in Canada and, late in life, becoming ill, had become public charges. He believed the 10-year limit suggested in the bill was too long and that five years' residence in Canada would be sufficient. Men and women born outside the British Empire might be naturalized in Canada after five years' residence and escape deportation. This was an injustice to British subjects, he believed.

Duty On Anthracite Coal

Revenue Of $1,250,000 Is Expected From This Source

Ottawa, Ont.—The duty of 40 cents a ton on anthracite coal announced in the budget would result in a revenue of a million and a quarter dollars if the purchases of this type of coal from the United States continues at the same rate as last year. In the calendar year 1930, Canada bought from the United States 3,235,-032 tons of anthracite.

The duty on bituminous coal has been increased from 50 cents to 75 cents a ton. Canada imported 13,-764,563 tons of bituminous coal last year from the United State, but considerable of it came under the drawback which returns to importers using soft coal for smelting purposes 99 per cent. of the duty.

In the last fiscal year Canada imported from the United States 1,156,-363 tons of coke free of duty. Under the new tariff this will carry a duty of a dollar per ton.

CRESTON, B.C., FRIDAY, JUNE 12

School Financing Helped

After a somewhat long wait Creston school district has now arrived at the stage where at $50 per pupil the school district can make ends meet in taking care of students from outside districts who pay this fee.

At the last session of the legislature the amount of aid extended rural schools was increased to the point where, on the present operating cost, high school material can be educated at slightly less than $50 per annum.

And better still, the legislature also amended the school taxation regulations whereby parents residing outside any high school district can no longer acquire say, a $100 bit of property within the boundary of a high school area, and secure attendance for their children by merely paying taxes on the $100 worth of real estate.

From this year on they must either pay $50 fee or its cash equivalent in school taxes collected by any high school district.

A Sound Investment

In some quarters quite vigorous criticism is heard of the action of the village commissioners in flooring the main building on the exhibition grounds and making it available for dances and other activities.

The Review cannot understand this attitude. By now the village has at least $2000 invested in the property and it looks to us like good business to inaugurate an effort that will produce interest on the investment.

A mighty good stroke of business was done in connection with the floor, which was laid at a labor cost of but one man, who supervised the job.

If the structure is suitable the council should keep up the good work and make the hall habitable for gymnasium, basketball and badminton activities as well.

If those who are interested in outdoor sports would do as well by the village as the Legion and fall fair directors it would be a fine thing to complete the proposition by fencing in the area and making the grounds as well as the building revenue producing.

We trust too, that in due course, our suggestion of a year ago as to painting the big building will have effctive consideration. In addition to adaptability the building snrely deserves attention in the way of outward appearance. If there is to be a fall fair this year possibly the agricultural association can accomplish the transformation a la Tom Sawyer, or any other similar inexpensive arrangement.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Need an Instructor

Editor Review:

Sir,—Why did the local athletes fail to win at the Kootenay-Boundary schools' track meet at Nelson last month? Was it a lack of training, that is trained by an expert up to date.

Watching closely one felt sure that Norman Nickel was going to clear the bar at the pole vault. Maurice Kelsey put up a good showing but somehow they were not quite good enough.

A trainer could teach them how to toss themselves over without touching that bar, and how to land on all fours so as to distribute their weight, lessening the jar, and avoiding possible injnry.

In the 100 yards dash Norman Nickel ran a good race, yet not quite fast enough. A little more speed is needed. Put a little better heart and mind into the race; practice deep breathing; see how long you can hold your breath. The winners, all of them, finish in good condition.

Minnie Huscroft did well to come in third place. She was up against speedy action. She will have to practice more often, and in the high jumping learn how to place her feet; learn how to land on all fours, thus lessening the chance of accident. She was plucky ln carrying on after getting hurt, which shows there is good stuff in her.

Our students did their best; but it was not good enough to land them among the prize winners. They must double, treble, their efforts; train more faithfully, pay more attention to diet; plenty of sleep, baths, freedom from colds and coughs. Every time one is sick it lowers resistance, lessens your chances of winning.

Just why they failed to win is hard to say; but like a racehorse with good action and speed, they need a trainer to demonstrate how to handle themselves and how to tackle the jumps.

No trainer can get results unless the pupils co-operate in every way. Parents must back up the trainer. His word is law. No "heads" you may, or "tails" you need not. No do as you please.

If we had a consolidated school in the valley it is quite possible we could get an instructor for those athletically inclined. The teachers we have at present have their hands full drilling the three R's into the heads of the pupils five days a week.

Athletics, manual training, singing, are classes requiring specialists. Let's give the boys and girls the same chance as those in larger centres. Make school so attractive that pupils will not be in any hurry to leave as quickly as possible.

Public school teachers are to earn their salaries this year. It is just announced from Victoria that school will be kept open till the last day of June, instead of closing the last Friday. Opening will be on September 1st, instead of the first Tuesday in September as in other years.

The Wildcats softball team got an even break in the week's playing. On Thursday night last they trimmed the high school by a score of 15 to 8, and on Monday night lost to the same aggregation by a 12-7 margin. The league season will conclude with Monday night's game wi h Canyon.

North and south auto traffic is now via the circuitous route via Canyon-Lister-Huscroft, due to repairs being made on the middle bridge on the K.V. route. The bus from Spokane takes 45 minutes to come from Porthill to Creston on the road now in use, but when using the K.V. the trip can be made in 20 minutes.

Sunday's baseball attraction will be a match between Creston and the Snow flake Clowns of Spokane at Exhibition Park at 3 p.m. For this game Creston is presenting a rearranged infield that looks likely. Ollie Christie is slated to do the backstopping, with Watson working out at third base, a position with which he is quite familiar. Brogan will be at second and Earl Christie at short. The locals have been going strong in practices the past two weeks and will be in shape to give the visitors a great battle.

LOSE FAT THIS WAY

No matter how fat you are or how much you hate to get out and walk a couple of miles—

If you will take half a teaspoon of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water every morning for 30 days—

You will feel so good—so energetic, and the urge for activity will be so great that you will immensely enjoy a daily walk of several miles—and lose fat.

Why will Kruschen Salts make this great change for the better in me—it is natural for you to ask.

Because Kruschen is a blend of the six vitalizing salts Nature says your body must have to keep every organ, gland and nerve in the body buoyantly healthy.

While you are losing fat you will be gaining in energy—in endurance—in ambition. Your skin will grow clearer, and your eyes will sparkle with the good health that Kruschen brings. The old arm chair won't hold you any more—you'll want to be up and doing—you'll enjoy work and active recreation and you'll sleep like a top. You'll lose fat, and probably live years longer.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JUNE 14

THE RESURRECTION AND THE ASCENSION

Golden Text: "It is Christ Jesus that died, yea rather, that was raised from the dead, who is at the right hand of God, who also maketh intercession for us."—Romans 8.34.

Lesson: Luke 24.

Devotional Reading: 1 Corinthians 15.50-58.

Explanations and Comments

The Interview On the Way To Emmaus, verses 13-31.—On the day of Christ's resurrection, two of His disciples (not apostles), were on their way to the village of Emmaus, seven and a half miles from Jerusalem. Disillusioned and disheartened, they were talking over the sad events of the last few days, when Jesus drew near and walked on with them. But "their eyes were holden that they should not know Him." "Holden," is the archaic form of "held." They were absorbed in their sorrow; they were not expecting to see Jesus; and Jesus' appearance was evidently changed, Luke 24.37; Mark 16.12; John 20.14, 15; 21.4. Jesus began to question them and to lead them to unburden their troubled hearts. "What communications are these that ye have one with another?" He asked.

"Would I like my Lord and Master to overhear all my conversations with friends who go beside me on life's way? If He were to break in suddenly on some of my talks, and say 'What manner of communications are these that ye have one with another?' how ashamed before Him I would sometimes feel! Dare I allow myself, in even an intimate conversation, to utter anything—any bitter word, any untruthful slander, any ungenerous remark—which it would cover me with confusion to think He had overheard? Must I not set a watch upon my lips?"—G. H. Knight.

"Dost Thou alone sojourn in Jerusalem and not know the things that are come to pass there in these days?" they returned in astonishment. "They meant that this itinerant stranger must be very much out of it indeed." — Dan Crawford. "What things?" asked Jesus.

"Eight vital facts they told Him: (1) Of a Jesus the Nazarene, which means, word for word, a Saviour of the worst, for 'Nazarene' meant the latter, and 'Jesus' the former. Then (2) they named Him mighty in deed and word, for His walk ever squared with His talk. Also (3) all this because it was before God, first of all, then all the people afterwards. Now comes (4) His being sentenced to die, and He died, but more than Christ died that day; for (5) there died also many a Hebrew hope that it was He who should redeem Israel. Further, sorrowingly, they seem (6) to roll up a second stone to His tomb in the dark down-to-zero words, And besides all this, it is now the third day since these things came to pass. Then (7: it ought to be the perfect number, and it is!) certain women amazed us, saying He was alive! Lastly (8) certain of our own company (we did not go, but they did!) went to the sepulcher and found the facts fitted to the woman's version."—Dan Crawford.

On approaching Emmaus, Jesus "made as though" He would continue on his way. This was not pretence on His part, for had they not by their entreaties constrained Him to stay, He would have gone on. "Abide with us," they begged; "for it is toward evening, and the day is now far spent." At the evening meal Jesus offered the customary grace before partaking of the food, and then He broke the bread and gave it to them. Then their eyes were opened and they knew Him. Perhaps the familiar words spoken by the familiar voice, or a familiar gesture in the breaking of the bread (verse 35) revealed Him to them. At that moment He vanished out of their sight, leaving them with the rapturous knowledge that they had seen the Risen Christ. And they recalled how their hearts had burned within them as He talked with them on the way.

The Interview Reported To the Disciples, verses 33-35.—They hastened that very hour to Jerusalem and found the eleven disciples and others with them, lost in amazement over the good news which they had heard: "The Lord is risen indeed, and hath appeared to Simon."

Then the two in their turn told what had happened on the way to Emmaus and how they had recognized Christ as He supped with them and broke the bread.

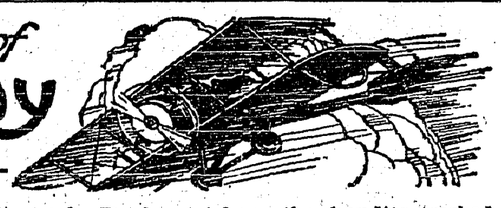
A Civic Auditorium

Winnipeg Proposes To Erect Structure At Cost Of $1,500,000

The plans call for an imposing building of Manitoba limestone, 380 feet by 160, and fronting on Memorial Boulevard between St. Mary's Avenue and the present university buildings.

The ADVENTURES of CAPTAIN JIMMY and his Dog SCOTTIE



WHAT CAME BEFORE: Captain Jimmy and his dog Scottie get lost in the darkness, while flying over the Chinese War Zone. They are captured by bandits and separated. Captain Jimmy makes his escape and plans to search for the faithful Scottie.

Yes, sir. Just as I crowded the old Chinese interpreter into the old freight car to hide from those pursuing bandits, a black object came hurtling in and struck me square in the belt.

"Scottie!"

We untangled ourselves, and there was a grand reunion. But there wasn't any time to waste. The bandits were following closely on our trail. Some place must be found to hide.

In the corner of the car were piled a number of tea chests. These I shoved out so the three of us could hide in behind. Over the top I spread some old straw matting.

If only the train would move along before the bandits caught up, we would be all right, but it seemed to be waiting on the switch until a train coming the other way had passed.

Suddenly the sound of hoofs rang on the rocky railway siding and a score of bandits began running up and down the train peeking into the cars. Things looked pretty serious, especially when a big Chinaman began rummaging around among the tea chests. Luckily he did not notice our hiding place.

Something had to be done quickly, however, or the outlaws would return and find us. Quietly I signalled Fu Hsu and Scottie to follow me. We dropped out of the car and crept softly along the side of the train away from the bandits, and groped our way in the dim early morning light toward the engine.

The engineer and fireman leaned out of their cab anxiously, wondering what was happening down along the track. I slipped in behind them and gave them a good shove. Off they went—end over end into the ditch.

Promptly I threw the reverse lever and opened the throttle. There was a violent spinning of drive wheels. The cars bumped and crashed against one another noisily, and at the same time I pulled the whistle valve wide open. The whistle fairly shrieked. It was a perfect bedlam let loose.

Panic stricken, the bandits rushed to the car doors to escape. Some jumped out, some were pushed out, others simply fell out. But in less time than it takes to tell it, there was not a bandit on board.

Away we roared, gathering speed as we backed down the track for we dared not go forward in the face of the signals. The engine rocked and swayed. I took up the shovel to feed the boiler fire, when suddenly a heavy boot stuck out from under the coal and someone hollered.

What next. Even the coal was alive with Chinese bandits.

"Maybe I'm a bandit, Captain" said the owner of the boot. "But not Chinese anyway!"

Where had I heard that familiar voice before? I shoved him into the light. His face was like a black mask from the coal dust.

"By Golly! Jed Stone" I yelled.

And so it was. My old friend, Jed Stone who I had not seen for many years. Our meeting was one of those odd coincidences that you couldn't make happen in a lifetime if you tried to plan it.

Jed told me a startling story. He had a brother Guy, engaged in Chinese famine relief work. A bandit gang had passed through the country raiding and plundering the pitifully scant food supplies of the people. Guy followed the bandits for days, and tried to reason with the chief. Making no impression he finally lost control of himself, and before anyone could interfere, soundly thrashed the villain.

As might be expected, the bandits overpowered him, and carried him to the mountains. Jed had now set out in search of his brother, but had no very definite idea where he might be found.

Suddenly, I realized that Jed's brother was held captive by the same rascally crew of outlaws that captured me on the day before. We began to lay our plans, and so interested did we become that we did not notice another train rounding the curve from the opposite direction, until the whistle shrieked.

"I couldn't get along without you, Uncle Sim. Here's the letter. You'll call me a goose after you've read it! I'll wash away these tears, and I shan't shed any more, I promise."

Better not make no promises," said Simeon, as he moved toward the stairs. "Nothin' clears the air like a good cry, 'less it's a thunder storm, and that don't always work, neither."

He went down, and out on the porch, the letter in his hand; but at sight of Halliday, still talking with the children, he crossed the driveway and joined them by the sand pile.

"You got a letter from Jamaicy?" he questioned.

"Why, no." Halliday was slightly puzzled at the question. "The fact is, Mr. Bartlett, my wife is the worst correspondent possible. She usually leaves her letters till the last moment, and then misses the mail; so I've learned not to worry when I don't hear. Did Mrs. Hastings get her letter?"

Simeon nodded assent.

"Is her husband coming soon? I thought she wasn't looking well this morning."

"She ain't," said Siemon. "She's goin' to see the doctor this afternoon. I do'no what ails her, but I think she's just plain scared." He lowered his voice, a cautious eye on the children. "She most—went out, when little Nick was born, and—maybe you've noticed there's another comin'? I wish Nick was to home."

"But surely he'll get back as soon as possible. He wouldn't leave her long at a time like this, or——"

"He don't know a thing about it," broke in the old man quickly. "She didn't want he should know till he come back. He hasn't paid up all the bills for his own sickness, and she thought he'd worry and like as not give up goin' at all if he knew what was loomin' up ahead. That's why she hurried him off; but she needs him now just to give her courage, and——" (Uncle Sim cleared his throat a bit uncomfortably), "Well," he hesitated, "she's got a letter today, and Nick—well, he's gone off a-cruisin' in someone's private yacht, along o' your wife. I thought likely you'd heard about the plan."

"With my wife?"

Halliday was all attention.

"Yep," answered Uncle Sim. His eyes apparently on the gorgeous yellow bow that adorned small Martha's curls. "He'd about made up his mind to come straight home, when Mis' Halliday blew in with an invitation. I take it some friends o' hers was goin' off to some outlandish places—just the sort o' thing that would tempt a tramp like Nick. I ain't read the letter yet, but I gather he thought he'd oughter not lose the chance. He said they'd drop him somewhere along about a month from now, down Cuby way, where he could get back home. Well, all I got to say is, I hope to God he gets here all right. The sooner the better."

His eyes lifted from the yellow ribbon, to Halliday's face; but the younger man had glanced away.

"Did he say whose yacht they were to go on?"

"Gay said it belonged to some folks that was visitin' your wife last summer. She didn't mention the name."

Halliday looked thoughtful.

"Have they started yet — left Jamaica, I mean?"

"She says they must ha' gone yesterday, or the day before."

"If she needs him couldn't we send a wireless?"

"We don't know the name o' the yacht. Gay thinks maybe another letter'll come mailed before they got away. This one was written a week ago.

"Then we must wait. I—I'm sorry that Mrs. Halliday was in any way to blame; but I wish Hastings knew the state of affairs here."

"I wish so too, gol darn it! I'd half a mind to tell the boy myself, before he went; but I ain't one to meddle, Mr. Halliday, and I thought likely Gay knew her own business. She was thinkin' of what was best for Nick, like she always does. Here she comes now. Don't let on I been talkin', or that you see she's been cryin' some. She don't cry very often, but she ain't well, and had sort o' made up her mind he'd be here most any time now."

Gay waved to them cheerfully, but sat down on the porch and took up her sewing. Halliday was silent for a moment, then he said quietly: "When is her baby comnig, Mr. Bartlett?"

"Not till along the first o' September. Oh, Nick'll be back; only she wants him now, and seems like she ought to have him. Still, the month'll go pretty quick now warmer days have come and she can get about more. It's powerful warm for the middle o' April ain't it? Guess spring's tryin' to make up for the fierce weather we got last winter. You let me know if you hear anything, Mr. Halliday? Maybe you'll get more definite word than what Gay has."

James Halliday doubted, even while he promised to tell Simeon at once should anything enlightening come his way. Angela's letter, written the day Nick's was, but, as usual, too late to catch the boat, arrived four days later in the mail that brought another to Gay. Angela wrote:

Just a line to let you know that I'm off with the Myers on their yacht "Sea Bird." We're to cruise for a couple of months, so I can't tell you where to write if you want anything of me, which isn't likely anyway. Might try Havana, and Nassau, if there's anything to say. We'll end at Miami, but goodness knows when. It may interest you to know that Nick Hastings has joined our party. I'll wire when we land—not that it will make much difference to you now that you've found another innamorata.

Halliday's brow drew into a puzzled frown; then cleared at the thought that she was referring to small Martha. The note said little more, and he sighed as he laid it down. For years he had scanned Angela's hasty letters eagerly, seeking a word of tenderness that never came. The thing was a habit now. He had ceased to care for tenderness from her; yet the ghost of their dead past still had the power to hurt him.

Nick wrote:

Dearest, in an hour we're off, I'm as excited as a kid at his first Christmas tree. The yacht, "Sea Bird," is a beauty—eighty feet long—white paint—brass rails—mahogany trimmings, and all the fixings you read about in fiction. The party consists of Mr. and Mrs. Myer whom we met last summer; their little girl; a sporty-looking old cove named Newell (they picked him up at the Titchfield, I believe), Mrs. Halliday and myself. Honestly, Gay, save for Mrs. H. and the kid, it's not a very congenial-looking crowd. But I sha'n't mind. It's places, not people I'm after.

Talk about "the ends of the earth!" We're to cruise among the Bahama Islands—the outer Bahamas, many of them uninhabited. Send your letter to Nassau, not Havana. They've decided to drop me there instead, where I can catch the Royal Mail for New York. I'll wire on landing, but this is probably the last letter you will have. Think what a whale of a lot we'll have to talk about! And how I wish you were going, too!

Five weeks later, on a morning when Gay was wondering if her telegram would come that day, as indeed, she had been wondering for the last week, Sonny appeared at breakfast and handed her the morning paper. She opened it idly, waiting for Uncle Sim to come in from the garden, before she poured his coffee. Sonny ran out to call him, and baby Nick was busy with his oatmeal.

The room was very still. The rustle of the newspaper as Gay spread it open was the only sound, until the baby set up a sort of sing-song that he and Sonny had been chanting for the last week:

"My daddy tumin soon—my daddy he tumin—my daddy tumin soon—my daddy——"

The baby stopped; Gay had uttered a little moan that frightened him. She was staring at the paper, reading with blurred eyes the words:

Terrible hurricane in the West Indies and Bahamas. Many small boats go down. United Fruiter from Port Antonio makes difficult headway against the storm. No word of the "Sea Bird," a gasoline yacht owned by George B. Myer, of Tulsa and Pasadena, which left Kingston more than a month ago for a cruise among the outer Bahamas. Last wireless from them was picked up at Key West, twenty-four hours before the storm. On board, besides the crew, were Mr. and Mrs. Myer, their ten-year-old daughter, Marjorie, Mrs. James P. Halliday of Boston, Colonel Charles Nowell of Cincinnati, and Nicholas Hastings. . . . .

There was a crash of breaking china, and a howl from little Nick. When a moment later Uncle Sim and Sonny rushed in, the baby was screaming with fright, while Gay lay unconscious across the table.

Canadian Citizenship

Bill Before Commons Sets Forth Qualifications For Canadian Nationality

Second reading was given in the House of Commons to the government bill to define Canadian nationals and to provide for loss or renunciation of Canadian nationality. Sponsored by Hon. C. H. Cahan, secretary of state, the bill sets forth definitely the qualifications for Canadian nationality, and also the process whereby a national of Canada may lose or renounce his nationality. Mr. Cahan intimated that the bill, if passed in the form presented to the House, might necessitate some amendments to the Immigration act. As the law now stood, said Mr. Cahan, a man who left Canada for a trip, and was delayed over a year, had to make his way into this country in just the same manner as an immigrant from Siberia or Turkestan. Missionaries who went abroad to pursue their calling, were away a considerable period, and sometimes brought up families in a foreign country, could not claim Canadian nationality for their children.

German Battleship Slides Down Ways Before Being Christened

Germany's first "pocket battleship," known as the Ersatz Preussen while under construction at Kiel, launched herself, sliding down the ways six minutes ahead of schedule while Chancellor Bruening was still far from the end of his christening address and before President von Hindenburg could hurl a champagne bottle against the warship's bow.

Sixty thousand looked on in astonished silence, forgetting to cheer until just as the bow settled into the water.

"Deutschland be thy name!" President von Hindenburg called after the rapidly receding ship, while the champagne bottle dangled aimlessly in the air before the christening stand for a few seconds and then fell to the to the ground, unsmashed.

Investigation has not yet determined whether one wire of the cables holding the ship fast parted or some one gave the signal to release the last chock too soon. Naturally, much uneasiness exists among Kiel sailor folk over what is technically an unchristened ship.

Little Helps For This Week

"Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye stedfast, unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labour is not in vain in the Lord." — 1 Corinthians xv. 58.

Though scoffers ask where is your gain,
And mocking say your work is vain,
Such scoffers die and are forgot,
Work done for God, it dieth not.

Press on! press on! nor doubt nor fear,
From age to age this voice shall cheer:
Whate'er may die and be forgot,
Work done for God, it dieth not.

—Thomas Knox.

When men do anything for God, the very least thing, they never know where it will end, nor what amount of work it will do for Him. Love's secret therefore is to be always doing things for God, and not to mind because they are very little ones.
