Steady Demand Mixed Carloads

Crabapples in Poor Demand and Less Call for Vegetables—Demand for Plums—Unable to Supply Car Fancy Wealthy.

Mixed carloads of fruit and vegetables are very active this week, averaging at least two cars a day from Crestland Fruit Company warehouses at Creston and Erickson and Long, Allan & Long warehouse at Erickson, at which point the latter firm is concentrating its shipping. This week also sees distribution widened, the latter placing a car at Swift Current a d the former invading Regina. For the most part, however, Lethbridge and Medicine Hat are taking the bulk of the spipping.

While the supply of tomatoes has improved it is still short of the demand and Manager Harrison of Crestland Fruit Company reports a shortage last week of 2000 crates, which had to be shipped in from the Okanagan. The supply of cucum ers is also better.

Cars now rolling are heavy to Wealthy apples, and the balance of the tonnage made up of Bartlett pears, Bradshaw plums Crabapples, tomatoes, cucumbers and peppers. Some Gravenstein apples are coming in but they are still short of color. Bartlett and Clapp's Favorite pears are about over and Flemish Beautys will be coming in next week

Market advices to hand at the end of the week indicated an over supply of crabapples, and these are backing up heaviiy in the Okanagan. Jobbers are working overtime to clean up Duchess apples and at the price offered there has come a slowing up of demand for Wealthys which is welcomed as it will give the latter variety better chance both to mature and color. Crestland Fruit Company had to refuse an order from Montreal for a carload of Fancy Wealthys due to the prevailing color shortage.

The demand for plums shows improvement, but jobbers are warning that at prairie points local grown vegetables of all sorts, even including tomatoes are coming along in quantities that will materially ease off the demand for the B.C. vegetables.

There is some threat that the We lthys are likely to have to sell in competition with the McIntosh Reds. At main line points there is a threat of Macs moving very early in September, but it will be almost the middle of the month before the local McIntosh will be ready to move Last year the fir t car rolled from Erickson at the 15th.

In anticipation of the Mac movement both Long, Allan & Long and Crestland Fruit Company are putting the graders in shape for the season's work, the latter being busy with the erection of a new four section Cutler grader at their Erickson warehouse.

Barriers To Prosperity

A few short years ago,—less than fifteen, in fact,—all the principal nations in the world were allied in an effort to smash Germany. They had no other alternative and by an almost superhuman effort they succeeded. Today these same nations are engaged in the task, almost as difficult, of trying to rehabilitate Germany and again place it on its feet and re-establish it as one of the great and prosperous nations of the world.

Why this seeming inconsistency? Following the great wars of the past, the victors were not over-anxious to see the vanquished quickly restored. Following the close of the Franco-Prussian war, and the imposition of a huge indemnity upon France, when it was found that France was paying up much more rapidly and easily than Germany anticipated would be the case, there was a strong movement in Germany to again attack France and crush her before she regained her strength.

Today the situation is entirely different, and we find the statesmen, bankers, industrial and financial leaders of all the great nations striving with might and main to help Germany out of the difficulties into which her disastrous war experience has plunged her. Even the United States, notwithstanding its traditional policy of isolation,—and its formerly held belief that it could and should stand aloof from the rest of the world, and that no matter what Europe might do, or how badly it might be afflicted, it was none of Uncle Sam's business and in no wise concerned him,—is now just as keen to assist in the recovery of Germany as are the other nations. And all the nations are ready to make sacrifices to help their former enemy.

Again the question,—Why? Because, and, as one paper says, it's "old stuff" but we are only now coming to believe it, the truth has been driven home that the well-being of our neighbor, no matter whether he lives in the next block or five thousand miles away, is well-night as important to us as our own. The interdependence of all individuals, communities and nations is at last being realized and to some extent understood.

Let us quote the financial editor of a well known Canadian paper: "To destroy or cripple Germany, Austria, China, Chile or any other country or countries is to cripple and impoverish ourselves; when the other members of this world community suffer, we cannot escape suffering ourselves. No fence can be built high enough to keep out this suffering. Ten million would-be workers suffer inside the United States' tariff wall. If foreign trade is essential to our own well-being and prosperity; if we would sell our products to the peoples of other countries we must not make it impossible for them to sell their goods to us. Little Johnny who wants to eat his cake and have it too shows no less sense than the creators of the Hawley-Smoot tariff."

The writer is not going to discuss Canada's tariff policy;—that is, unfortunately, a partizan political issue, and party politics are rigidly excluded from this column,—but the larger issue of international trade, and of all tariffs as they affect the ebb and flow of that trade, is a subject which the peoples of all countries will do well to study, discuss and try to understand.

Barriers between nations, and more especially man-made artificial barriers, are an evil, we care not what their nature. No one nation by itself can remove such evils; it can only be done by agreement, by international co-operation and action. For example, no one nation can afford to wipe its navy or its army out of existenc while other nations remain armed to the teeth, no matter how much it might like to do so. But it can be done by international agreement.

So we have the Washington Conference for the limitation of naval armaments which has already succeeded in reducing to some extent the huge burden of taxation rendered necessary for the creation and maintenance of navies. Very soon a great world conference is to take place with the object of trying to bring about a general reduction in all armaments. The world is beginning to see and appreciate the necessity for these agreements. If they could only agree to wipe out all armaments whether on the land, on the sea, or in the air, all would be the gainers, and all would be on as near an equal footing as they are today.

So, too, in the matter of economic warfare on each other. If frontiers, in so far as Customs houses are concerned, were wiped out, the world would be the gainer all round, and one of the dire causes of international friction and jealousy would be removed, and with such removal would also go one of the chief reasons why so many nations feel they must have large armies and huge naval establishments.

It is the burden imposed by these barriers, naval, military, economic, that is crushing the world today, handicapping the efforts of all, causing world depression in business with all its attendant evils of unemployment, with a surplus of products in one country and lack of the necessities of life in another, and, as an inescapable result, human suffering, loss and discontent leading to economic and political strife, and ultimately, unless checked and the cause removed, to open rebellion and international war.

The British Army

Latest figures on the British Army shows that it is composed of 143,183 Englishmen, 7,638 Welshmen, 14,295 Scotchmen, 8,843 Irishmen, 2,535 Colonials and 167 Britons born in foreign countries. Of this lot 125,000 are members of the Church of England, 22,560 are Catholics, 13,000 Presbyterians, 7,619 Methodists, 6,900 Wesleyans, and 123 Jews.

Suffered Severe, Painful Cramps In Her Stomach

Those terrible cramps in the stomach that double you up in pain and make you break out in a cold perspiration, may be stopped by a few doses of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

Mrs. Lloyd Jones, 204 Argyle St., Halifax, N.S., writes:—"I have suffered greatly from severe and painful cramps in my stomach. I tried several remedies without result. One day a friend advised me to take Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, so I bought a bottle and got instant relief."

Inferior In Physique

Physician Claims South Africans May Become Physically Degenerate

A recent statement by Dr. C. Louis Leipoldt, a prominent physician of Cape Town, South Africa, to the effect that South Africans were inferior in physique and stamina to other European races, and citing factors which, in his opinion, might breed a race of degenerates, has aroused a good deal of adverse criticism in the Cape, particularly from leading sporting figures. However, Dr. Leipoldt sticks to his guns. In an interview with the Cape Argus, he says:

"My statement was founded on personal examination of more than 100,000 South African young men and boys and on the published statistics of the examination of more than 200,000 South African school children. I made no statement which has not been perfectly well known to the medical profession, the defence force, and the education departments of the four provinces."

His critics, who pointed to South Africa's eminence in sport, based their conclusions on the prowess of the select few, and in point of fact there were only a few exceptional cases where South Africans were outstanding in the general world of sport, Dr. Leipoldt said. He claimed that his criticism had been constructive. He had dwelt on the effects of malnutrition and the economic conditions of today, factors which were inevitably breeding a race which threatened to become physically degenerate unless they were checked.

Public Building For Ottawa

Construction Of Five Million Dollar Building Is Forecast For Capital

A special despatch from Ottawa, published by the Toronto Globe, forecasts the construction of a $5,000,000 public building in the Dominion capital as one of the undertakings in connection with the federal unemployment relief scheme. The despatch continues:

In Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver there is projected construction of three armories, which will cost about $200,000 each. The armories will be built from money voted in the supplementary estimates this year, but the other buildings will come from the new account given to the minister of finance by parliament.

Many infants are infested by worms which cause great suffering, and if not promptly dealt with may cause constitutional weaknesses difficult to remedy. And not only this, but they will repair the injuries to the organs that worms cause and restore them to soundness.

Marched Across Greenland

Achievements Of Young Britons Matches Those Of Hardiest Explorers

Three young Britons, members of the H. G. Watkins expedition, have marched across Greenland on the inland ice from Angmagsalik in the north to Ivigtut in the south, matching the achievement of the hardiest explorers.

James Scott, Martin Lindsay and Alfred Stephenson, started on July 1 and reached Ivigtut on July 30, travelling on skiis by night, for the sun softened the ice cap to a point where daylight travelling was dangerous.

Find Old Artesian Well

The artesian well which supplied ancient Pompeii with water has been rediscovered among the ancient ruins. Now plans are under way to re-open the well, lay new pipes, and make the garden fountains of old Pompeii flow once more as they did nearly 1,900 years ago, before Vesuvius destroyed the city.

Large Sum Found In Fruit Jars

Three fruit jars were found by Mrs. Ray Cool on her husband's farm near Lake Village, Ind. Opening them, she was surprised to see $17,150 in Government bonds. They were turned over to authorities, who began an investigation. They believed the bonds were stolen by bank robbers.

Tourists Visiting Germany

Hamburg - American Line Reports Tourists In Germany Have No Difficulties

Agents may confidently assure their clients that the financial and political situation in Germany does not in any way affect the status of foreign visitors to that country. A number of inquiries received by the German Tourist Information Office, 665 Fifth Avenue, New York, have shewn that some travel bureaus have been in doubt as to whether American visitors to Germany have to pay the tax of 100 marks ($25) which is levied against Germans leaving the Reich, and whether the closing of banks under the rules of the government is causing difficulty in exchanging foreign money into German.

The foreign diplomatic representatives in Berlin after investigating the situation, are advising their countrymen as follows:

The border tax does, of course, not apply to visitors from abroad. It is a measure intended to prevent Germans in Germany from leaving the country just now, which would entail the exchange of German money into foreign currencies, thereby affecting the stability of the German mark. From this fact it is easy to see that there is no possible reason why foreigners who bring money into Germany instead of taking it out, should be included in the measure. Their holdings of foreign money, which they have brought into Germany are, of course, also entirely unaffected.

Example Not So Good

A new system of memory training was being taught in a village school, and the teacher was becoming enthusiastic.

"For instance," he said, "supposing you want to remember the name of a poet—Bobby Burns. Fix in your mind's eye a picture of a policeman in flames. See—Bobby Burns?"

"Yes, I see," said a bright pupil. "But how is any one to know it does not represent Robert Browning?"

Farmer: Hi, there! What are you doing up my cherry tree?"

Youngster: "There's a notice down there to keep off the grass."

Asking For Trouble

Colorado Releasing Five Hundred Convicts Under New Law

In releasing half the population of its state prison, all in one bunch, Colorado is asking for trouble.

Scene of the bloodiest riot in prison history, the big house at Canon City is to bid farewell—or "au revoir"—to between 400 and 500 convicts, who have suddenly come under the benefits of the new law which makes it possible, after the sixth year, to serve a year's sentence in 29 days. The Attorney-General of the State has ruled that the law is retroactive, thus affecting approximately half the prisoners.

They will now go forth, many of them to live down the past, but how many more to engage again in crime? Modern prisons, with all their frills, do not cure the hard-boiled criminal. And a good percentage of the men in this wholesale exodus must be habitual offenders. Colorado has every right to view the prospect with alarm.

A Corrector Of Pulmonary Troubles.—Many testimonials could be presented showing the great efficacy of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil in correcting disorders of the respiratory processes, but the best testimonial is experience and the Oil is recommended to all who suffer from these disorders with the certainty that they will find relief. Cattle Shipments

Outfitting a number of additional vessels to carry Canadian cattle to the British market, undertaken by various steamship companies, has made possible a greatly increased movement to Great Britain this year. It is expected that from the present time to the close of navigation 18,000 more head will be shipped, bringing the estimated total for the season to over 27,000 head.

DEBT REVISION IS URGED BY BANKING GROUP

Basel, Switzerland.—After startling the world with a declaration advocating the revision of reparations and ing the revision of reparations and war debts, the Wiggin Committee of International Bankers waited expectantly to see what Great Britain, the United States and other great powers are going to do about it.

Backed by the prestige of the ten strongest banking groups in the world, the Wiggin investigators, in a report made public, declared that to bring full and immediate relief to Germany and other gravely distressed nations it will be essential to make a new deal in the schedules of international payments.

This eventuality, however, was frankly asserted to be bound up with the necessity of clearing up the political disputes of Germany and her neighbors.

After an examination of Germany's financial situation the bankers put the question up to the governments and called on them for action. Only action by the powers along these lines can restore economic prosperity to the troubled world, the financial experts stated.

Two immediate possibilities loom up. Will the governments, taking up the bankers' challenge, immediately summon a diplomatic conference to tackle reparations problems? or will they call on a banking commission — Mr. Wiggin's or a new one—to advise them as to the next practical step?

The eyes of observers here are turned to Washington and to Paris to discover the diplomatic reaction to the bankers' proposal.

Participation by both these governments in any movement for revision is clearly indispensable, it is pointed out, since the United States is the receiver of debt payments and France the chief goal of reparations.

To Check Grasshopper Plague

Measures Must Be Taken Now To Prevent Invasion Next Year

Winnipeg, Man.—Farmers of Canada and the United States are being urged to co-operate to check a threatened grasshopper plague in 1932, using man-made devices to destroy the millions of eggs. A rainy season would keep down the pests to normal numbers, it is asserted, but preventive work is advocated.

Two methods have been suggested. One is to plough the land this autumn so deep that eggs now being laid in the ground will not hatch. The other is to cultivate the surface of the ground late in the fall so as to expose and destroy the eggs.

Eggs are now being laid in millions upon millions, experts state. Almost the entire area today from the Rockies to the Great Lakes and from the North Saskatchewan River to the prairies of the southwest has become fertile breeding ground for hoppers and locusts. In some country districts this year visitation of the insects has been so heavy that they have plugged up radiators of motor cars driving through.

Meeting Of Scientists

Gen. Smuts Will Open Centenary Meeting In London

London, England. — General Jan Christian Smuts is now on his way from South Africa to England to assume the honorable role of president of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, and to open the centenary meeting at the Albert Hall towards the end of September.

Taking Holiday Trip

Ottawa, Ont.—Hon. E. B. Ryckman, Minister of National Revenue, has sailed for Europe on the steamer, "Empress of Britain." Mr. Ryckman is taking a holiday trip which has nothing to do with the business of the department, it is stated.

Nearly 10,000 cheeses from Australia were displayed in London recently.

Duties On Magazines

New Regulations Governing Revised Duties Are Announced

Ottawa, Ont.—Regulations governing the revised duties against foreign newspapers, magazines and periodicals entering Canada are issued by the Department of National Revenue. They will become effective September 1, except the 15 cent duty against week-end newspapers, which will not come into force until regularly proclaimed by the government.

It was set forth in the regulations that the higher duties will not become effective until April 1, 1932, against Canadians who had subscribed to foreign magazines or periodicals before June 2, 1931. This delayed action will mean seven months' grace to bona fide subscribers of the latter date.

The effect of the duties and the regulations was to segregate magazines and periodicals. Daily newspapers will continue to enter this country free of duty. Magazines with an advertising content ranging between 20 and 30 per cent. of the total space will pay a duty of two cents a copy. When the advertising content exceeds 30 per cent. the tariff will be five cents a copy.

Magazines in which the advertising content does not exceed 20 per cent. of the total space or those in the interests of religion, education, science, agricultural, labour or fraternal organizations, will bear no duty.

Will Greet Canadian Party At Churchill

Hobo "King" Appoints Himself Reception Committee Of One

Hudson Bay Junction. — Joseph Leon Cohen Lazarowitz, "King of the Hoboes," is on his way to Churchill to greet the Canadian Chamber of Commerce tour party there next month. He has appointed himself a special reception committee of one.

Lazarowitz passed through here on his way north. With him he is carrying a scrap book containing post office or railway stamps of the thousands of points he has visited in his 11 years on the road. The "King" also makes a point of calling on distinguished men and boasts that Premier R. B. Bennett once gave him a dollar.

Fodder Requirements

Southern Drought Areas Of Saskatchewan To Be Supplied From North

Regina, Sask.—The fodder requirements of the southern drought areas of Saskatchewan probably will be met by the early cutting of grain crops in the north, F. H. Auld, deputy minister of agriculture, stated here.

Already a group of inspectors is in the north inspecting the crops that have been offered to the department for this purpose, Mr. Auld said, and it is believed that the schedule of prices laid down by the department of agriculture for the purchase of feed and fodder will make it possible for northern farmers to cut their crops as hay, instead of harvesting them in the usual way.

Lloyd George Recovering

Is Recuperating On Model Farm In Surrey Hills, England

London, England.—Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George, who recently underwent an operation, has sufficiently recovered to go from his London home at Addison Road to his country house at Churst in the Surrey Hills.

On his model farm, among his cows, sheep, gardens and orchard, the former prime minister will recuperate until he is able to visit his old home in Wales.

Lloyd George is the only British political leader not actively participating in the present negotiations dealing with the British financial crisis. Sir Herbert Samuel is serving for him as chief of the Liberal party.

Provinces Must Choose Route

Calgary, Alberta. — Replying to criticism connected with his interview in which he gave an outline of the trans-Canada highway proposed route Premier Bennett says: "It is entirely up to the various provinces to definitely set the route. The provinces must say 'how, when and where' and we will aid in the building," he concluded.

Rapid City, Man.—Winner of this year's king's prize at Bisley, Sgt. A. G. Fulton is striving to win his spurs as a Canadian prairie farmer at the home of his only brother, four miles east of here. Crack shot of the British Empire, the tall, military appearing Fulton is spending his farm vacation aboard a binder, reaping the west's golden harvest.

It is Sgt. Fulton's second visit to Canada from his home in Bisley, England, where he has three times captured the coveted king's prize. His brother, Harold E. Fulton, will have the famous rifleman as guest for two weeks. Sgt. Fulton arrived from Ottawa on Tuesday, August 18, following the Dominion Rifle Association meeting at Connaught Ranges, where he aided the English team in the competition.

Farm Wages

Offers Made By Saskatchewan Farmers Have Few Takers

Regina, Sask.—Farmers in Saskatchewan are offering from board alone up to board and $15 monthly in wages for help with very few takers, so far, according to a bulletin issued by provincial department of railways, labor and industries. The bulletin states that publicity being given pending relief works is responsible for this condition, unemployed men preferring to wait for the latter before taking farm work.

Ready For Test Shipment

All Facilities At Churchill In Readiness For Grain Boats

The Pas, Man.—Except for the final touches, Churchill today is ready to handle the 600,000 bushel test shipment of grain that will pass through The Pas starting September 4, C. S. Growski, chief engineer of the construction department of the Canadian National Railways, announced Wednesday, August 19, upon his return from an inspection at Churchill. The most modern elevator on the continent will find no difficulty in handling the grain, the C.N.R. executive declared. The 500 cars of grain will be unloaded from the tracks at the rate of one every two minutes. Three special locomotives will be brought in to aid in bringing the grain from here to the new bay port, 512 miles north of here. All the grain is being brought from the pool elevator at Saskatoon.

All grain will be stored in the 2,500,000 bushel elevator by September 15. The two tramp steamers will dock at Churchill between September 15 and September 20. There will be no other boat engaged in shipping the grain from Churchill.

All the docking facilities are not completed and only one boat can be loaded at a time, although the dockage provides for two ships. The bay line is in first class condition for the haul. Welsh coal is the principal cargo being brought into Churchill by the two tramp steamers engaged in the hauling.

Delegates Leave For Geneva

Canadian Representatives On Way To Attend League Meeting

Ottawa, Ont.—Headed by Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice, Canada's delegates to the 12th assembly of the League of Nations, meeting in Geneva, September 7, sailed August 19, from Montreal on the "Empress of Britain." With Mr. Guthrie will be Hon. Martain Burrell, Ottawa, Mrs. H. P. Plumptre, Toronto, and Senator C. P. Beaubien, Montreal.

Arriving at Cherbourg, the four delegates will be joined in Paris by Hon. Philippe Roy, Canadian Minister to France, who with Dr. W. A. Riddell, Canadian advisory officer accredited to the league at Geneva, complete the Canadian representation.

Noted Speed Pilot Drowned

Calshot, England.—Lieutenant G. L. Brinton, British Schneider Cup speed pilot, was drowned here, when his crack S-6 'plane, one of the ships which set records in the Schneider Cup races in 1929, plunged into the sea. Lieutenant Brinton was imprisoned in the cockpit and drowned before he could be released.

GRACEFUL SURRENDER OF COVETED TROPHY

Mrs. George Wightman (left) captain of the U.S. Wightman Cup Team, is shown receiving the congratulations due the victor from Mrs. Shepherd, captain of the defeated English team, after the American tennis stars had recovered the trophy won a year ago by the Britons. The matches were played at Forest Hills, L.I. The cup is shown in the background.

ASK GOVERNMENT TO BEAR LARGER SHARE OF RELIEF

Calgary, Alberta.—Requests for alterations in the payment of costs of unemployment relief projects, as affecting the Dominion, Provincial, and Municipal Governments, were made by Alberta representatives at conferences with Prime Minister R. B. Bennett here. Efforts of Calgary's representatives were aimed at having the Provincial and Federal Governments bear the greater part of the costs.

Mayor Davison, of Calgary, asked that the Provincial and Federal Governments bear 75 per cent. of the costs, with the municipalities paying the balance. He pleaded that should be done for the winter of 1931-32 as last year the municipalities paid 50 per cent. and the Provincial and Federal Governments 25 per cent. each.

He estimated that more work would be required to be carried out this winter because of the increased number of unemployed. Calgary is planning a $50,000 relief program, while Edmonton is considering works costing in excess of $1,000,000.

It was anticipated by delegates attending the sessions that if the Calgary suggestion of pro-rating costs were adopted, the same policy would have to be put into effect for all other provinces in the Dominion.

Attending the sessions, besides the Prime Minister, Premier Brownlee and Mayor Davison, were Hon. George Hoadley, Provincial Minister of Agriculture and Health; Hon. O. L. McPherson, Provincial Minister of Public Works; Hon. R. G. Reid, Provincial Treasurer; Dr. G. D. Stanley, M.P., East Calgary; A. U. G. Bury, M.P., East Edmonton; Mayor J. M. Douglas, Edmonton; Mayor R. Barrowman, Lethbridge, and the mayors of Medicine Hat, Red Deer, Wetaskiwin, Camrose and Drumheller.

Relief Takers Must Work

Unemployed Who Turn Down Jobs Will Receive No Consideration

Ottawa, Ont.—Unemployed men who turn down an offer of work will receive no further consideration from the Provincial or Federal Governments, Senator G. D. Robertson, Minister of Labour, announces.

Senator Robertson said: "If and when men are known definitely to have declined employment, the Provincial and Federal Governments may feel properly their obligations have been discharged. Men who refuse employment, which would provide them with safe surroundings, wholesome food, shelter and a modest compensation will not merit further sympathy or consideration by the state."

'Planes Return To Moncton

Pilots In Air Pageant Give Farewell Festival In Quebec

Quebec.—Having inaugurated the Sea Island Airport in Vancouver, B.C., staged "air shows" in prairie cities and demonstrated flying prowess in Ontario and Quebec, the Trans-Canada Air Pageant made its farewell bow to central Canada with a festival in the old capital on August 19, after which the gallant band of airmen and their machines took off for Moncton, N.B., the starting point of a flight through the maritimes.

Almost 10,000 people viewed the exhibition of stunt flying.

Shows Substantial Balance

Ottawa, Ont.—Canada had a credit balance of $166,000,000 from the tourist industry in 1930. That figure represented the difference between the money spent abroad by travelling Canadians and what was distributed in this country by residents of United States, Great Britain and the other nations of the world who toured Canada. In the previous year, Canada had a credit balance from this industry of approximately $188,000,000.

Depends Upon Survey

Copenhagen, Denmark.—A future Arctic air route between America and Europe depends on a geographical and meteorological survey of Greenland, said members of the British East Greenland Expedition, who arrived from Scoresby Sound after 13 months on the Greenland icecap

HOME BREW

Kaslo council deserves a word of commendation for the practical appreciation it has of the services rendered by a hospital and the financial difficulties that encompass these institutions round about. Next week the town will be without electric light for two or three days while a change over is being made from the old to the new plant, and the council has just voted $75 wherewith to install a Delco plant to supply the hospital while the service is undergoing enforced discontinuance.

And while we are passing out commendation in connection with municipal effort it is a pleasure to compliment the village council on the good work it has done in putting in the new sidewalk to and grading up and gravelling the front of the new Sinclair hardware on Canyon street east. The new store building and stock and equipment is a most creditable addition to the business section and coming at this time bespeak a well deserved confidence Mr. Sinclair has in the village district.

To-morrow afternoon from 2.30 to 5.30 the staff and ladies' hospital committee are having open house at Creston Valley Public Hospital, and not only the ladies but the men, as well, are urged to take advantage of this auspicious occasion to inspect the hospital, which has now been in successful operation for over a year and for a place of this size is a hospital that everyone can be justly proud of in all its appointments, particularly the staff and equipment. You will be shown over the building and given any information you may wish to glean, and tea will be served. The hospital management is made up of men from all points in the district and is a community undertaking in every respect. The pleasure of YOUR company is specially requested.

Far many years we have had the complaint that it's just too bad that something cannot be done to have the low-price fruit in the orchards of British Columbia shipped out to the thousands who would appreciate it on the prairies. But now the account is squared. Editor White of the Kamloops Sentinel, who is on a visit to friends near Saskatoon, writes his paper: "I was on a farm Sunday where they were greasing the machinary and the wagons with dairy butter because it was cheaper than axle grease. The most they get for the butter is 11c. and the grease costs from 15 to 25 cents." Provided the dairy product was not quite as bad as the use it was being put to might imply, the Review would observe that it's just too bad many hundreds of pounds of this butter could not be made available to local fruit growers.

Believe it or not, there were three days last week when climatic conditions at Cranbrook were just three degrees above the point where people commence to die for lack of moisture content in the air—that is if the editor of the Courier knows his onions, meteorologically speaking. The master mind of the big East Kootenay weekly tells us that on three successive days humidity registered at 12 points, and that had it gone to nine serious consequences might have ensued. In his learned discussion of this humidity problem Editor Sullivan informs that "During the forest fire conflagrations, when the humidity was down to 12, fire fighters reported the ground actually burning." But notwithstanding this latter fact the Courier still insists that many of the fires in East Kootenay were of incendiary origin.

At the time sound equipment was installed at the Grand the Review took occasion to compliment the management on adhering to a policy that the best is none too good. What we had to say at that time as affecting the selectson of the Movietone will stand repeating in respect to the quality of the films that the Grand has been offering almost every week since the change from silent to sound pictures, and particularly this month with such features as "Connecticut Yankee," "Raffles," and "City Lights," the former and the latter bringing such celebrities as Will Rogers and Chaplin. Considering the few opportunities that present themselves to allow the management to get out and get an advance inspection of pictures that are offering, the Grand has been making exceptionally good choices all year, and with no advance in charges for the bigger offerings no one has a legitimate kick on the slightly advanced charge that became effective with the introduction of the talkies. If there be any suggestions to offer it would be that there be more frequent presentations of high-class dramatic offerings, such as "Grumpy."

A subtle and eloquent plea for municipilization was contained in the last issue of the Kimberley Press wherein was published a Victoria despatch setting forth the amounts distributed to the various municipalities as their share of the province's liquor profits for the six months ending March 31st. These profits are based on the school attendance and in places with a school enrollment similar to that at Kimberley as much as $4000 was given the municipality—and this is just for the half-year. Assuming the next installment is as generous Kimberley has passed up $8000, along with an earlier-in-the-year divvy of motor license fees that would amount to $3000, and a prospect of at least another $500 from betting machine revenues. With these handouts grouped with the town's ordinary taxes and trade licenses for the year Kimberley is getting much the worst of it in denying itself local self-government. If it were possible for one's mouth to water while contemplating liquor profits, last week's issue of the Press should have produced enough of the aqua pura in which to write all the virtues (if any) of non-municipal administration in the metallurgical metropolis of East Kootenay.

SHE WORRIED ABOUT HER WEIGHT

"I started taking Kruschen Salts a month ago. I have lost 5 pounds in weight, and I feel as if I have lost 50 lbs. I am full of vigor, whereas before I was worried about my condition, as I was listless and worried over little things. But I am thankful to say that, were my troubles doubled, they would not worry me to-day—thanks to Kruschen."—Miss V. P.

Here's the recipe that banishes fat—take one-half teaspoon of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast.

Be sure and do this every morning, for "It's the daily dose that takes off the fat."—Don't miss a morning. Kruschen daily means that every particle of poisonous waste matter and harmful acids and gases are expelled from the system.

Modify your diet, and take gentle exercise. The stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels are tuned up, and the pure, fresh blood containing these six salts is carried to every part of the body, and this is followed by "that Kruschen feeling" of energetic health and activity that is reflected in bright eyes, clear skin, cheerful vivacity and charming figure.

Cancer Research

Commission Finds That Important Progress Has Been Made

"We found that the best results in cancer treatment were being obtained where surgical, X-ray and radium treatment were being combined, and we also found that remarkable steps have been made in cancer research," said Dr. W. T. Connell, who has just returned from Europe, where he was studying the cancer question with the Ontario cancer commission, appointed by the government of Ontario. A comprehensive survey of the cancer question and the treatments being used was made by the commission in both the United States and Europe.

"What the commission saw is most encouraging," said Dr. Connell. 'We found from our investigations that where an organized movement was made to secure for the patient the three methods of treatment, surgical, X-ray and radium, the best results were secured, and the highest percentage of recoveries was recorded."

Explanations and Comments

The Return To Antioch From Jerusalem, 12.25.—Barnabas and Paul had been to Jerusalem to bring money from the church at Antioch to the brethren there who were suffering from famine, and on their return John Mark was with them, probably as their attendant.

The Leaders At Antioch, 13.1 — In the flourishing church at Antioch there were numerous prophets and teachers, men of special inspiration. Among these was the energetic and lovable Barnabas of Cyprus. Others included Symeon the Black—doubtless African; Lucius of Cyrene (the province in North Africa lying next to Egypt), who perhaps was one of the Cyrenian evangelists who established this church at Antioch (Acts 11.20); Manaen—another form of the Hebrew Menahem (2 Kings 15.14)—who was the "foster-brother" of Herod the Tetrarch (Herod Antipas, son of Herod the Great), and was seemingly a person of some social importance; and, finally, Paul of Tarsus. Apparently the historian meant Paul's place, at the end of the list, to be emphatic, just as was Barnabas' at the beginning of the roll. These five leaders of the Antiochan church were evidently Grecian Jews.

The First Foreign Missionaries Chosen and Ordained, 13.2, 3.—While the church, under the leadership of these five men, was carrying on its services of worship, prayer and fasting, an advance movement was initiated under the direction of God. It was probable that the prayer of the church was "awaiting upon God for special guidance on a matter already occupying their thought; this matter was surely the question of a forward movement into the Roman Empire." Paul and Barnabas, indeed, may have been thinking of this question, when they had brought with them from Jerusalem John Mark.

"Whenever and wherever men and women are unitedly spiritual, prayerful, self-denying, carefully taught in Christian truth, and waiting upon the Spirit of God for His guidance in a matter of profound importance to His work, then and there the scene is laid for a mighty Christian enterprise to have its auspicious beginning or to advance its success."

The First Foreign Missionary Work In Cyprus, 13.4, 5.—Under orders of their Commander-in-Chief — "being sent forth by the Spirit"—Barnabas and Paul set out on their forward movement into the Gentile world. They went down the River Orontes to Seleucia, the seaport of Antioch, sixteen miles distant, and there sailed for the Island of Cyprus in the Mediterranean Sea.

"Historically this is the precise moment at which the foreign missionary enterprise actually began. The fact that we are Christians ourselves, dates back to that obedience of those men in that little ship. They took the little tree of Christianity and transplanted it from the cramping flower-pot of Judaism into the soil of humanity of the whole world. It is an apparently tiny act which, in simple fact, when looked at down the perspective of the centuries, is seen to have changed the history of the world."—Basil Matthews.

The First Battle-Royal With Paganism, 13.6-12.—At Paphos, on the west coast of the island, Paul and Barnabas met the proconsul, Sergius Paulus, a man of understanding, and with him a sorcerer, a Jew named Bar-Jesus, or Elymas, as he was called in Greek. It is interesting that a Roman inscription has been found in which Sergius Paulus is expressly named as holding the office of proconsul. We know that magicians of all kinds were favourably received in Roman society, and it is in no way remarkable that one of these should have gained an influence with the proconsul.

To Launch Jewish Organization

Formation of a National party is planned by Jewish organizations in Canada. An effort to blend Jewish social and political organizations into a party of national scope and influence will be launched at a mass meeting in Toronto this fall. Delegates from organizations in Montreal, Ottawa, Winnipeg and other Canadian cities are expected to attend.

Educational Films

Talkies Introduced To Students At Summer School

The "canned professor" has been introduced to the students of the summer school of Washington University in St. Louis. In a darkened hall, he appeared on the screen. With him were the charts used in his lecture. He pointed to them as he talked. Here was an educational talkie in literal sense. Given the "canned professor," the syndicated professor may follow. One man may appear simultaneously at 1,000 summer schools. The possibilities are limitless. For example, with the chain grocery store we may yet have the chain college, "canned professors" appearing on the silver sheet as they appeared before the camera at the central lecture room of the chain.—Boston Transcript.

Takes Up Chinese Singing

Chinese opera singing is the latest hobby of China's deposed emperor. The "Son of Heaven" has engaged a voice teacher from Peiping, purchased Chinese musical instruments and stage trappings, and is practising the strange Oriental scales which Mei Lanfang has used with such skill that his fame has become world-wide.

Grower Receives Bounty

Tenant Farmer Will Receive the Full Five Cent Bonus

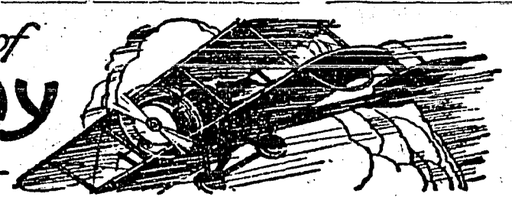
Farmers who grow wheat on land leased on a crop share basis will receive the Federal five-cent-bushel bonus on wheat in exactly the same manner as actual owner producers. Promise of this was contained in a letter received at Saskatoon by Dr. William Allen, of the farm management department at the university, from Hon. Robert Weir, Minister of Agriculture.

The Federal Minister of Agriculture was answering a query as to whether the tenant farmer would receive the full five cents or only a part of the bounty, with a share going towards the owner of the land. He said the government intended to make certain the actual grower received the bounty.

Old Resident Dead

Winnipeg's oldest resident, Mrs. Mary Roberts, 94, is dead. She had lived there for 87 years, going to Old Fort Garry when she said there were "hardly any white people there—just Indians and the Hudson's Bay folks." She was the mother of 13 children, one of whom fought in the Riel Rebellion.

The ADVENTURES of CAPTAIN JIMMY and his Dog SCOTTIE



WHAT CAME BEFORE: Captain Jimmy bargained with General Lu to fly him to Japan in exchange for help in fitting up with his 'plane to rescue Lieut. Stone's brother Guy, from the bandits. He is about to start on his long trip across the Chinese Sea.

General Lu sent for us in haste. He wanted to start at once. He had sold out his position as General for a huge sum of money, which had just arrived, and he was anxious to be off before any of his officers found out and made him divide up his wealth.

The following night we bid Guy and Jed Stone, goodbye, and began our trip under cover of darkness. Six hundred miles or more across the Chinese Sea was no joke. Many bad storms and typhoons sweep the waters and heavy sea fogs make flying dangerous.

Once off the ground I could see we were in for it. The air was just full of bumps, and General Lu and his faithful servant grew nervous. We tried a thousand feet higher up, and it was even worse. The 'plane tossed like a boat riding on a rough sea.

The sky gradually clouded up and the wind grew in volume. The darkness and fog seemed to crowd us down to the water. Long curling waves with sharp white crests made any chance of surviving impossible, should we be forced down.

Hour after hour we flew along, steering by the instruments. A cold wet drizzle blew right through our coats. I wrapped a blanket around Scottie, but the poor little chap still shivered. The past few days had been strenuous, and we were about fagged out. Most likely I dozed, for the next thing I knew I was being vigorously shaken. Scottie was barking furiously.

Right under our wheels the waves lapped hungrily. I nosed the 'plane up. The gasoline swished around in nearly empty tanks. Flying against the wind had exhausted our supply. We might have enough for another fifty miles.

The dawn broke in a cold grey streak. I strained my eyes to see a large black object through the mist. Then a rocky headland emerged from the fog on our left.

Carefully I banked the 'plane and nosed her down as close to the rocks as I dared. It was a sheer precipice. At its foot the angry waves dashed themselves into white fury. Gradually the cliff descened within fifty feet of the water. Surely there must be a sand beach somewhere.

Imagine my despair when the cliff began to rise again and ended in a steep crag without a single inch of sandy beach. Soon we circled the island, and it was simply a tremendous volcanic rock with straight, high sides.

Suddenly we noticed a line of white breakers a mile or two away. The water followed it—two miles, four miles, six—seemed shallow. As a last chance I our gasoline was almost spent, when right below appeared the nicest sand beach you ever saw, sloping gradually up to a little island.

Like a great many beaches, this one looked much harder and smoother than it really was. With the motor cut out we hit, rolled a few feet in the soft sand, and then the 'plane went over on her nose. During all this time General Lu was splendid. Never a complaint. Never an argument; he sat quietly and calmly, waiting for what might happen.

Soon we kindled a roaring fire from driftwood, and dried ourselves out. To our surprise, General Lu began peeling off one suit after another, until he had taken off about six. Then I remembered that some of the Chinese had a way of putting their suits on in layers. General Lu could afford plenty of suits so why not have them?

Meanwhile, the question of food and water became pressing. We set out to search without delay.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

On the day that Nick arrived in Bakersville, John Maxwell was at the train to meet him; yet the first familiar face Nick saw was that of old Sam Tod, the baggage man, who had known him since childhood, and who gripped his hand with a hearty: "Glad to see you back, boy. Thought for a while you was in a watery grave."

"Not yet," said Nick, and laughed; but, even as he turned to meet John Maxwell's welcoming smile, it struck him as strange that old Tod had not joined in the laugh. Tod was a proverbial joker, but there was something unusual in his eyes today: a look that seemed not wholly glad for Nick, but —sorry; and the same quality was in John Maxwell's smile. It was distinctly a smile with reservations—the sort of smile that sometimes precedes the telling of bad news. It brought a chill to Nick's heart—dimmed the sunshine—filled him with foreboding; yet he did not speak till he was in the Maxwell automobile. Then he went straight to the point.

"What's wrong, Mr. Maxwell?"

John Maxwell started. The question was plainly unexpected.

"Why—nothing, my boy; nothing that isn't going to come out all right —I know it will come right now you've got back. You see——"

"Don't beat about the bush, sir. Has something happened to Gay?"

"No—no! That is—well, you have a little daughter, Nick—born too soon, but Bennett says she's coming along finely. We're not worrying about her; but Gay—she's been under a terrible strain, and when the message came—we don't know how because it wasn't opened—but she got the idea that the news was bad. She fainted. When she came to she was delirious. She's been so ever since."

Nick's face grew slowly white.

"You don't mean—you're not trying to tell me that—that she's lost her mind?"

"No, we don't say that. She knows the children. Dr. Bennett took them in yesterday to test her. But she babbles on continually about you. She evidently kept things to herself too much on the baby's account, and is paying for it now. She's had horrible visions of what was happening to you. They haunt her. When we tell her you're safe she—well, it's pitiful. She thinks we're deceiving her and begs us not to. Bennett was going to meet you and explain it all better than I can; but he was called on an emergency case and had to go. You're our one big hope, Nick. The sight of you may blow away the cobwebs, if—if she knows you."

"You mean—she may not know me?"

John Maxwell's hand closed on Nick's and gripped it hard.

"There's that possibility, of course; but she knew the children. Buck up, boy. I'm sure she'll know you! She loves you so dearly, Nick. How can she help——"

He took out a handkerchief and blew his nose. Nick said, his voice husky: "Where are the kiddies?"

"Mary's got 'em. Had 'em ever since Gay was taken sick. Janey's at your house doing the cooking. That girl Sim Bartlett hired is laid up, just when they need her most. Julie Nipps is helping out, too. Mary's been keeping little Martha daytimes, so she'd be free. We'd have had the boys here to welcome you, but we didn't want them to hear about their mother. You see, Nick, Gay's tried so hard to keep them happy—not to let them guess that you might not be coming back at all, that we felt we mustn't undo her work. They're happy as the day is long, and proud as Punch of their little sister. If they'd an idea you were here today wild horses couldn't have kept them away from the train. Here we are. There's old Bartlett. He's been a wonder."

As Nick walked up the wide, brick path beside John Maxwell, he felt dazed, and unsteady on his feet. It was all so hideously different from what he'd planned. Uncle Sim, an obviously aged Uncle Sim, but with the same kindly light in his blue eyes, gripped his hand, patted his shoulder, and said, knowing it was the one thing Nick would care to hear:

"She's sleepin', boy. Havin' a real good nap. The doctor just called up and said you was to go in and set beside her till she wakes. He thinks maybe the sight o' you after a good sleep, will be just what she needs. The baby's a girl, Nick. Gay'll be real happy when she knows it. Now" (the old man's voice trembled), "now she don't seem rightly to understand."

Nick dropped his suitcase and sat down on the arm of a porch chair. He felt vaguely, that he couldn't stand up. His throat burned.

"Could—could I have a drink of water?"

"I'll get it."

Janey Maxwell had spoken. She returned in a moment with an ice-cold drink, and laid an affectionate hand on Nick's arm.

"Don't worry too much. Nick. She'll be all right now you've got home. I just know it. She's been so wonderfully brave that she couldn't stand it a minute longer; but everything will be all right now."

"You always were an optimist," said Nick. He tried to smile, but the attempt was painful. "May I go up now, Janey?"

She nodded, and led the way. As they reached the threshold of the familiar room, Nick paused, breathing deeply. The shades were lowered and for a moment he could not see, but he knew that a nurse who had been seated by the bed, arose, and with a whispered word to Janey, went downstairs. Dr. Bennett had given her his orders.

Nick felt curiously dazed and numb. Janey saw it, and slipping a kind hand in his, drew him toward a chair beside the bed.

He was alone then—alone with Gay. He leaned closer though his eyes had already become accustomed to the dimness. She lay on her side, facing him, her breast rising and falling gently as she slept. There was a soft little curl lying against her forehead. Nick remembered seeing it the day he went away—that raw, cold day that seemed a century ago.

"Dearest!" he said.

Not to save his soul could he have kept back the word. Gay moved, turned her head a little, and threw out a slender arm. She did not waken, but the outstretched hand seemed an unconscious welcome, and Nick took it tenderly in his. She did not stir. He pressed his lips against it, feeling the roughened finger-tips that told a story of homely tasks done lovingly for those she loved.

Love! How unstinting had she been of it, he thought—how generous and understanding when the lure of the road had made him an uneasy housemate. Freedom! It seemed incredible that he had ever chafed for it, having Gay. It came to him dully as he looked down upon her, that unless she knew him when she wakened, there would be no freedom for him, ever again.

But she would know him! Surely he could find some way to prove himself. Of course she would know him! Hope stirred within his heart as he sat there watching her quiet breathing. A clock in the room below chimed faintly. The scent of some blossoming shrub came through the open window. The curtain stirred in the breeze. A paper fluttered to the floor; and at its sound Gay moved.

Slowly her eyes opened, and, meeting them, Nick's heart contracted in sudden fear. They were Gay's eyes of course—Gay's beautiful eyes; and yet—something was gone!

For a moment no words would come; then: "Gay," he said gently, "darling . . . ."

She covered the eyes quickly with her hands.

"Why do you speak?" she pleaded. "You have come before, but you have never spoken. Don't speak. It is only cruel. You see—I mustn't cry until my baby comes; and when I see you —you are so like Nick—I—I can't keep back the tears."

Who did she think he was? It was unbelievable! For a moment the room went black; but Nick came up fighting. She should know him! He would not let her suffer such agony of spirit. There was some way . . . . Surely he would find the way. . . . . He reached for the hands that were covering those strange, unnatural eyes, and held them fast.

"You have been dreaming, dearest," he said quietly, and wondered that his voice should be so steady. "You have been dreaming a long, long time; but now you are waking. It was only a nightmare, Gay. I have come home to you. I am safe. Now do you understand?"

She looked at him, pitifully confused.

"Have I been sick?"

He was stroking her arm gently, the way she loved.

"You have been very sick. Our little girl was born. Don't you remember? But it's all right now, dear. Everything's all right now."

A sob trembled on her lips. Her eyes filled. She seemed to be looking beyond him, out of the window and into the branches of the maple. He was forgotten.

"A little girl! Nick wanted a little girl; but—but she has come—too late."

Despair flooded Nick's heart. She looked so frail—almost unearthly; and those eyes—they were not Gay's eyes. . . . .

"Dear, don't you believe me? — Don't you know me?" he pleaded desperately.

She tried to smile, as if not to hurt him.

No More Asthma. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy sounds the death knell of this trying trouble. It stops the awful choking and painful breathing. It guards against night attacks and gives renewed ability to sleep and rest the whole night long. Much is claimed for this remedy, but nothing but what can be demonstrated by a trial. If you suffer from asthma try it and convince yourself of its great value.

What She Needed

A neighbour called on Mrs. C. only to find Mr. C. warming himself by the kitchen stove while Mrs. C. was out getting in the cows.

"You see," he explained, "we was both sawing wood when I noticed the cows had got away and I let Mary go after them. I thought a brisk walk in the cold air might do her good. She seemed to be getting kinda white and peaked at the wood sawing."

A York, S. C., dairyman says his cows give more milk when milked to a banjo accompaniement. But we understand it requires years of practice to play a banjo while milking a cow.

Age Of Electricity

Predicted That Next Fifty Years Will Witness Great Development

Claiming that the world had not yet properly adjusted itself to the ideals and needs of the new machine age, C. E. Skinner, East Pittsburgh, president of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, and assistant director of engineering of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, spoke before the Saskatchewan branch of the institute. Mr. Skinner is on his first official visit to Canada.

Norman Bubois, vice-president of the Saskatchewan branch, who presided, welcomed Mr. Skinner on behalf of the branch, and Hon. J. A. Merkley, Minister of Labor and Industries, welcomed him on behalf of the provincial government.

The institute, said Mr. Skinner, faced a difficult year. The electrical industry was little more than half a century old, yet in those 50 years it had accomplished more and wrought more changes than any other discovery had in 1,000 years. The coming fifty years would see even more changes in which electricity would play a prominent part.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

IN ABSENCE

As a rosebud dreams of sunlight,
As a lark desires the dawn,
So do my fond thoughts linger
With you, who now are gone.

Each trick of look or laughter
That made the hours gay,
Comes back like drifting perfume
The while you are away.

In days when I went clasping
Your hand within my own
The thought of you was not more near
Than now, that you have flown.

But with the morn returning
The lark will sing anew,
And I will thrill to music on
The day that brings me you!

Women Homesteaders

331 Alberta Women Filed On Homesteads In July

Homestead entries were made by 331 women of Alberta during the month of July with the coming into effect of new legislation allowing women to file on land.

During the month a total of 1,114 homestead entries were filed, a large proportion of which were farmers from southern Alberta drouth areas, re-locating in the south. Nearly one-half of the women who filed on land were unmarried.

Know This Fact

"Children," says the United States Childrens' Bureau, "should not be taught to be little misers. A savings bank into which pennies disappear never to be used has relatively little training value." In other words, there is a time to feed Bunny — and a time to shake him. Little financiers no doubt need adult guidance; but the Children's Bureau is mistaken if it thinks they haven't found out that Bunny Bank works both ways.

Little Helps For This Week

"Perfect love casteth out fear."—1 John iv. 18.

Ah, soul! look upwards trusting, kiss the rod.
And know there is no might have been with God.
From Him, whenever lowly we draw near,
We learn of love that casteth out all fear;
We find a faith that in oblivion's sea,
Whelms every dread and doubt eternally.

To love our neighbour is a great help to that perfect love of God which casteth out all fear. Nothing but the love of God will make you love your neighbours aright; and the Spirit of God, which alone gives weight for any good, will by these loves—which are life—strengthen you at last to believe in the light, even in the midst of darkness.—George MacDonald.

Discover New Islands

Soviet Icebreaker Finds Unrecorded Islands In Far North

Despatches from the Soviet icebreaker "Maligin," reported the discovery August 7 of four hitherto unrecorded islands in the far north region of the Franz Josef Archipelago.

Southwest of Karl Alexander Island the exploring vessel charted three unknown islands at 81.12 north latitude, 30.55 east longitude. The fourth is described as a small, hilly bit of land in the Straits of Baxa. They will be formally claimed in the name of Soviet Russia in the near future by the Arctic Institute, which will name them.
