THE CRESTON REVIEW

Vol. XVIII. CRESTON, B. C., FRIDAY, AUGUST 13, 1926 No. 26

Wynndel

On Saturday evening at the old schoolhouse, Wynndel, a shower was given Miss Georgina Towson and R. Andestad, whose wedding took place at Creston on August 11th. The place was crowded with friends of the young couple from all parts of the district, and a very enjoyable evening was had. Mrs. Guy Constable, Ron. Smith and E. Andestad supplied the music for the evening. H. F. Packman was asked to say a few words, remarking that it was a great pleasure to see so many turn out on such an occosion, and was surely proof positive that the two young people were popular with all. All were aw re of the interest Miss Towson has taken in the community, in social effort and otherwise; ever since coming to Wynndel she has taken great interest in the young girls, and was responsible for organizing the Wynndel Girls Club, which has been a success, giving enteatainments from time to time that all have enjoyed, and it is sincerely hoped the bride of Wednesday will still find time to carry on the good work she has inaugurated. The groom was also refered to, mention being made of his popularity with all Wynndel folks. The gifts were then preseuted and with them went the wish that whenever they were used the giver be remembered as wishing the newlyweds a happy and prosperous future. The groom-to-be briefly thanked those present for their much appreciated gifts and the good wishes. Refreshments were served, and rounded off one of the most enjoyable social, get-together's in Wynndel's history, and those responsible for the affair are certainly to be congratulated on the splendid way the whole affair went off.

Mrs. Brawn is a Creston visitor this week, where she is visiting Mrs. Jas. Cook and other friends.

The usual third Sunday in the month Church of England service is cancelled for the 15th, Rev. S. Newby being absent on a well earned vacation.

The auto tourist rush is thining out. The forest fires and heavy smoke pall, which obliterates the scenery, no doubt accounting for the easing off of the visitors so early in the year.

Postcards arrying from time to time from Mrs. Martin and Mrs. Loasby indicate that the ladies are having a very fine time, and going so steadily that letter writing is out of the question. They will sail for home on the 26th.

Misses Dorothy Cam and Eileen Heap were hostesses at a corn roast that was staged on the beach on Monday night, and which provided a great evening's fun for the young people, as well as a sprinkling of the grownups. A hot dog spread will likely be the next celebration.

Harry Gale, Liberal candidate iff West Kootenay, with Mrs. Gale, and a trio of Creston Liberls in Messrs. M. J. Boyd, O. F. Hayes and Alf. Palmer, were visitors here on Wednesday afternoon when a hastily arranged meeting was held in the schoolhouse with a most satisfactory attendance. Mr. Gale made a splendid impression in the half hour address that he gave and has certainly got the Liberal campaign off to a good start here. Mrs. Whiteside was named to represent Sirdar on the central executive of the Creston District Liberal ladies organization. At the close of the meeting refreshments were served and everyone given a chance to meet the candidate as well as Mrs. Gale, who is with her husband.

Telephone rates in the Arrow Lakes country have been cut about one third. One can talk from Nakusp from Nelson for 50 cents.

There are so many spectators at the community swimming pool at Fernie that it has been decided to charge an admission to lookers on —except parents accompanying children.

Liberal Candidate Visiting District

The federal Liberal campaign in the Creston district is off to an enthusiastic start with a visit here on Wednesday and Thursday of Harry Gale, the party standard bearer in West Kootenay, accompanied by Mrs. Gale, who had splendid organization meetings at Sirdar, Creston and Kitchener during his stay from Wednesday noon till the departure of the westbound train on Thursday.

Although word of his visit here did not come until Tuesday evening, the executive of the Liberal Association were at work early Wednesday and with the hearty co-operation of the ladies were able to hold a rally at Sirdar that afternoon at which Mr. Gale spoke briefly, mostly on organization, and succeeded in getting the workers interested in a way that augurs well for the success of the candidate on September 14th. Mrs. B. F. Whiteside being chosen as the Sirdar representative on the central ladies' executive. So impressive was Mr. Gale's presentation of the case that an auto load of half a dozen of the Sirdar audience came on to Creston to hear him again in the evening.

Mr. Gale's reception at Creston was an agreeable surprise. Although but eight hours' notice could be given, the basement of Trinity Church contained an audience of almost 100 when proceedings started Wednesday evening, the attendance of ladies being particularly large. C. F. Hayes presided and with him on the platform were J. F. Rose and the candidate.

Mr. Gale in a fighting speech explained just why he had accepted the nomination, and in view of certain rumors that are already afloat as to him being American born, he took the opportunity to point out that he was Canadian born for three generations back.

He sketched the customs scandal in no uncertain terms and very effectively disposed of the whisperings that are going on about the alleged immoral conduct of former Liberal cabinet ministers.

He pointed out that B.C. development was wrapped up with the development of the three prairie provinces, and the best way to assist with the west's advancement was for this province to have more Liberal members who could meet the Liberal and Progressive forces from the prairies at Ottawa as friend with friend.

To save the fruit industry Mr. Gale promises his best efforts to establish cold storage warehouses in B.C., the Old Country and at prairie and eastern points so that B.C. apples could be kept in stock and put on the market just as the demand dictaten and in that way give some chance to the grower of obtaining a fair price.

Mr. Gale speaks with authority on fruit marketing having been personally associated with a Vancouver house that was able for a time to handle weekly carload shipments from the Okanagan in 1919, that got the grower $2 a box f.o.b., and sold in Vancouver at $2.75, and was the means of bringing the price of apples down to that price in that city. Due to the wholesale interests threatening a boycot on growers or selling agencies that supplied the house he was forced out of the business.

Mr. Gale has a businesslike way of talking and is conversant with the subjects he discusses, consequently it is not surprising that he made such a fine impression on all who heard him. He will he back again before polling day to hold meetings at all points in the Valley.

The evening was brought to a fitting close by the Liberal ladies: who served refreshments in generous fashion, and gave the candidate a splendid opportunity to meet the people.

At his meeting at Kitchener on Thursday afternoon the turnout of ladies was good, and Mr. Gale spoke effectively on the Liberal policy as well as on organization, and the ladies are to meet tonight to elect campaign officers.

Haymaking picnics are the order of the day, the men folk of Alderson, Ash and Webster crews getting a surprise when their ladies and friends surprised them with a swell supper on the flats and helped themselves to a hayrack ride home—Thursday last.

Alice Siding will have a male principal again, the trustees having secured a man teacher to replace Mr. Lallamand in charge of the local school.

Canyon City

Miss Neola Clark is a visitor this week at Creston, a guest of Mrs. W. J. Truscott.

The United Church Ladies' Aid had a successful lawn social at Mrs. Knott's on Thursday last, which netted the society about $30.

Mrs. and Miss Harback of Vulcan, Alberta, are visitors here with the former's son, Pastor Harback, and are stopping with Mr. and Mrs. F. Knott.

W. Searle is busy at present putting a verandah on the front and side of his residence, which will decidedly improve the appearance of the property.

W. Ridd is going into the poultry business and is just completing the erection of a 16 x 30 poultry house. C. A. Robinson is adding a third unit for turkey raising, his structure being 16 x 80 feet.

Canyon haymakers are through with operations on the flats and have had the finest kind of weather for the harvest. All report good cuts although some spots on the meadows were certainly very thin.

Mrs. T. Hickey and Miss Edna Hickey, who have been visiting with Claresholm, Alberta, friends for the past few weeks, arrived home a few days ago, and it is pleasing to hear Mrs. Hickey's health shows some improvement.

Erickson

John Hall, jr., who has been working at Vancouver for the past few months, is at home for a short vacation at present.

Warehouseman R. Walters has opened up the Fruit Exchange packing shed for the season, and this week has has been putting up a quantity of pears. The Wealthy apples should be coming along any day now.

Friends of Miss Beth Putnam will be glad to know that latest word from Cranbrook hospital, where she has been a patient for the past ten days, is satisfactory, though not quite as optimistic as desired.

The trustees have been fortunate in securing an experienced male principal for the Erickson school in Mr. Jents, hailing from Vancouver, but was one time in charge of the school at Yahk. His assistant will be Miss Walker of Nelson.

Frank Palmer is at present a patient in the Nelson hospital suffering with a broken leg, which he sustained on Wednesday last while at work installing his sawmill at Six Mile, rear Nelson. The break is a clean one, and a speedy recovery may be looked for.

The Vancouver Daily Province chronicles the marriage at Port Hammond, on August 4th, of Miss Trembath, former principal of Erickson school, who on that date became the bride of Robert Bruce Irving. The bride, charmingly dressed in white Georgette trimmed with pleated satin and Juliet veil held in place by a bandeau of pearls, and carrying a shower bouquet of Ophelib roses and lily of the valley, entered the room with her brother-in-law, Mr. A. E. Powell. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Hazel Trembath, who wore rose Georgette and carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses and gladiolus. The rooms were decorated with evergreens and summer flowers, the ceremony taking place under a floral arch. After a reception, Mr. and Mrs. Irving left for a brief honeymoon, previous to their departure for their future home in Detroit, Mich.

Lister

Miss Ruby Lister of the nursing staff of St. Eugene hospital, Cranbrook, is home for two weeks' vacation with her parents, Col. and Mrs. Lister.

His line will be muskrat, fisher, marten, etc., and in a few days expects to have the needed permit to trap the parent stock required to start the farm. Already he has taken delivery of a pen of Chinchilla rabbits from Eastern Canada.

News that provincial police H. McLaren had caught the burglars who robbed Lister store on July 20th, cleaning it out of flavoring extracts, as well as as taking a quantity of canned meat and fish, is heard with great satisfaction here. The five Indians who did the job appeared in court at Cresson on Saturday, two of them drawing a sentence of two months' imprisonment, Mr. McLaren had to go to the reserve at Bonners Ferry, Idaho, as well as investigate the Creston reserve to track down and bring home for trial those implicated, and that he was able to do it in about two weeks indicates that he is not slow in guesing in what quarter to look for his men, nor in getting them once he gets the clue.

Symbol Of Armed Force

German Military Uniforms Seen At Peace Conference

German military uniforms were the only military uniforms visible at the conference table at Geneva when experts under the auspices of the League of Nations began their official discussions on May 18 at Geneva, Switzerland. The one great nation theoretically already disarmed, Germany was the one nation to appear with the symbol of armed forces. That incident graphically explains the reason why the voluntary disarmament of nations in Europe is extremely difficult.

It is not armament that makes a nation dangerous, but an armed mind. The fact that Germany has been forced to destroy must of her weapons of war and to disband her great military machine does not make her neighbors safe if she thinks in terms of arms and armies. Of all the problems before those experts at Geneva, the chief is that of finding a way to secure moral disarmament.

Cancer Without Operation

Cantassium Treatment Recommended By a Leading British Authority On This Disease

"It is a strange thing that concerning almost every "cure" for cancer which has been advanced by either the medical profession, or by the greatest quack or impostor that ever existed; if that so-called "cure" could be shown in any way to benefit a case of cancer, or in any way to modify the course of the disease favorably, or even be suspected of prolonging life, that on examination, it will be found that, if the drug or nostrum which is lauded be carefully examined and looked into, potassium, in varying quantities and proportions, will be found to unwittingly form one of the main constituents of such drug or nostrum. Take for instance, the so-called "violet-leaf cure," or the "willow-infusion cure" of cancer. These two "cures" are made by procuring violet leaves in large quantities and boiling them down and then drinking the water in which they were boiled. Willow bark and willow leaves have been treated in the same manner, and the water in which they have been boiled has been drunk with the assertion that cases of cancer have been known to benefit. The above claims, put forward for both "cures," have been supported by members of the profession on many occasions."

"Every quack nostrum prepared by the infusion of any herbs can be shown to contain, all of them, one common product of nature present in all vegetable life—potassium salts.

"No method of treatment yet practised by the "ultra-orthodox" among the members of the medical profession but can be shown scientifically to owe its method of action to influencing directly or indirectly the potassium economy, and perhaps, also the economy of the earthy salts of the body."

"There are many in the medical profession who will at once refuse to listen to or attempt any form of treatment other than that recognized and smiled on by the "experts" in cancer, or rather cancer as it has hitherto existed and been treated."

"There are those in the profession who will attempt the treatment at the earnest request and pressure of a dying man or woman, and only half-heartedly carry it out."

"There are those in the profession who are of an introspective and pessimistic turn of mind who will start by saying it is no good, will honestly believe it is no good, and will ultimately prove themselves to be quite right."

"There are those in the profession, very few thankfully, who won't be bothered and who don't care."

"There are those who take a delight in proving everyone else but themselves to be quite wrong."

"There are those in the profession who, with the best of intentions and otherwise, spend their time in eagerly misrepresenting affairs and other persons."

"There are others, very many, whose name is legion, who will strive hard, and worry, and fret, and eagerly watch, and become over anxious, and earnestly try and give the method a fair and just application, not trial."

The late Dr. F. W. Forbes Ross, M.D., Edin., F.R.C.S., Eng., D.P.H., Lond., Civil Surgeon His Majesty's Guards' Hospital, London, and for more than 20 years practising in London as a recognized cancer authority, was the discoverer of what is now known as the cantassium treatment of cancer. The above quotations are taken from his book, "Cancer: The Problem of its Genesis and Treatment," and in view of the fact that, out of all the many Canadian and American sufferers to whom I freely sent home treatment directions before the press generously published them, I have yet to hear from the first who has not been benefited, I suggest that all who are stricken with this terrible disease of the blood will do well if they satisfy themselves as to which of the above classes, ably defined by Dr. Forbes Ross, their own doctor belongs. By so doing, many a sufferer may avert the antiquated and unsatisfactory methods of treatment in vogue prior to the doctor's priceless discovery. Men Returning From Journey Only Greet Male Friends

There is not the Canadian thrill of hubby's homecoming for the wife of the unsmiling and inscrutable Arab.

The menfolk return from their sojourns with sober, nearly sad faces, kiss brothers and fathers and male friends on the cheek and with never a look at their women, solemnly stalk out of the station.

There is scarcely a peal of laughter, or expression of joy at reunion, and never a smile on the face of the Arabs one meets along the 300 miles of railway.

Strange, Romantic Love Adventures of the Flapper you know

Joanna

THE STORY THUS FAR

Joanna, a pretty flapper shop girl is given, by an unknown man, a million dollars to spend as she wishes. Graydon, her employer, bears the message, more than this he will not tell her. She is not to know her benefactor nor his motives. She can learn nothing more from the banker, Eggleston, nor his man-about-town nephew who helps her write her first check and tells her that he intends to make love to her. Dazed by the undreamed of wealth, hurt because her friends and acquaintances will not believe in her she does some shopping and returning home, happy because of the afternoon of buying, long wanted things, she finds Brandon, nephew to her banker, and John, her old-fashioned sweetheart, waiting for her.

CHAPTER VII.

A Shattered Dream

For one brief minute Joanna stood at the foot of the stairs, just outside the drawing room door. The eagerness, the exhilaration which had wrapped her face as in an aura, had gone oue of it. She closed her eyes tightly, the gold of their over-plucked brows making thin, straight lines. She steadied herself with her hand against the newel post. All the doubts, the confusions, the mysteries and the stupendous wonders of the day crashed down upon her. A little while before she had revelled in her own beauty, and in the glory of John's surprise, his ecstacies, all the questions he would ask her and she couldn't answer. They would plan; she would be glad with him over every thought of the future either of them could conjure up. There would be no more tempers and insipid quarrels; no more fighting at each other. This time, when he put his arms about her, and kissed her, she wouldn't be restless and wish that he'd take her out into the lights, as other boys did, and romp with her through the narcotic valleys of jazz.

That had been what she had looked forward too. Now, as she faced the door, with John just beyond, waiting for her, and with the other man, whose very manner toward her was like a caress, also waiting for her, a premonition stirred her nerves. She felt, somehow, that her fate, the fate that had been so strangely brewed for her by unknown hands, was in there, in the hands of those two men, and that she was going in, now, to meet it face to face. Foolish, of course! She braced her shoulders, and brought an arrogant dimple into her chin. Smiling, wistfully, she stood in the doorway. She had rehearsed, upstairs, a pose something graceful after the fashion of one of the especially bred mannequins in the exclusive shop where she had found her gowns, but she forgot to use it.

John, and Brandon had been talking; that is, Brandon had been talking to John, easily, lightly. He was very handsome and graceful, in his full evening clothes. He appeared to be as much at home in the humble rooming house parlor as he would have been in a ballroom. Joanna sensed this; John, whom she had never seen in evening clothes, appeared to be ill at ease. She sensed this, too.

Both men gazed at her, silent for a moment, fascinated.

The lithe, slim figured and slim breasted girl, with the deep gold bob and full-shaped Cupid lips, who blushed furiously and wondered what the strange sensation was, was very lovely. It was a full-toned lovelinesn that still was characteristic of Miss Twenty-seven of the silks. But Brandon's appraising sense estimated quickly the effect that restraints would leave—the restraints that would come naturally to the girl—or that wouldn't come, according to the sort of her.

It was Brandon who spoke first. He moved to her and bowed low, with an exaggerated homage. "There is nothing so beautiful," he murmured, "as the bud that is bursting into a blossom!" He lifted her hand and kissed its slender fingers. Joanna could not help laughing. She'd always laughed, at the movies, when men kissed the hands of women. It seemed such a silly thing to do. But it didn't appear to be silly, with this man, who completely dazed her with his always new gallantries. Each move he made seemed to have the thrill of a kiss in it. She laughed because it was so unexpected and so wholly outside the sentimental amenities to which "Miss Twenty-seven" had been accustomed.

Her laughing eyes turned to John. They sobered immediately. John was not coming to her; not coming to take her hand squeeze it, and say: "Some looks you've got on, Jo!" of something eloquent, like that. She took her hand from Brandon, who had held it so that her senseless fingers rested on his, and went up to John. When she reached him she realized that he kept his hands in his pockets; that he did not even go through the slight formality she might have expected in the presence of another—an arm thrown around her, a hug and a peck at the lips. He only looked at her, brooding in his eyes.

"They have told you, haven't they John?" she breathed, plaintively. "I wanted to explain it all to you, first. Isn't it wonderful?"

Unconsciously she put her two hands on his breast—the trick that always turned John's thoughts, whatever they were, into fondness. It was a good trick, Joanna perfectly knew. She could never practice it with anyone but John. It invariably had serious effects. But it didn't work this time. John kept his hands in his coat pockets.

"Yes," he said, his tone cold, "Mrs. Adams told me what you told her. I congratulate you."

The girl started as if she had been struck. The carmine lips quivered. She stared into the brooding eyes that met her's so evenly. As if pleading for light, pleading for someone else to tell her why John was not happy, and eager, and excited with her, she looked across at Brandon. He was standing where she had left him, smiling, confident, watching with a barely restrained amusement. Joanna accused him:

"Have you told him anything? Anything that I don't know?"

Brandon was surprised by this sudden attack. "Mr. Wilmore seemed to know when I came. That is all, I assure you. He will say that I but expressed the hope that whatever was behind your unprecedented good fortune it would bring you a great happiness."

John flashed a glance at Brandon, and then spoke to Joanna, his voice still cold. "Whatever there is for me to know, will have to come from you Jo. After awhile, perhaps!"

The arrogant dimples came back into the girl's chin. She thanked Brandon, in her self conscious way, for his flowers. He took possession of her easily, and talked with her as if there were not a third person in the room. Once Joanna, remembering, turned her face, glowing again, to John, who sat, moodily in one of the big red chairs, but he only muttered his reply to Joanna's sally.

Brandon led her to talk about her clothes—the marvelous things she had bought during the afternoon. He understood how to talk about such things, she discovered. He complimented her upon her choice of the frock she had chosen to put on that evening.

"Really, you know, that is why I came this evening," he explained, smiling frankly at her. "I wondered what sort of a change you would make in yourself, in the first few hours of such excitement as must have been your's. It must be very wonderful, to a girl, especially a girl who has had so little, to suddenly feel the possession of money—and such unlimited money. If you've ever had dreams you may now proceed to make them come true. Can't you?"

Joanna considered a moment a frown across her brow.

"I can't escape the feeling that everything is not going to be right," she said. "It is foolish, I know. Perhaps that is because I can't believe things, yet." Unconsciously she glanced at John, and nodded ever so slightly, at him. He acknowledged the look with:

"The world is made up of things that are hard for some people to believe!"

The red came into the girl's cheeks again, red that was deeper than the rouge, and her lips trembled anew. Brandon rose.

Mrs. Parks Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Daughter's Health

Toronto, Ontario,—"My daughter is 16 now and has been an invalid ever since she was six months old and has been compelled to remain out of school the greater part of the time. We have tried different kinds of medicine, but none helped her much. I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound when I was run-down, and it had helped me so much that I thought it might help her at this time. She has gained ever since she began taking it. She attends school every day now and goes skating, and does other out-of-door sports. I recommend this medicine to any one who is run-down and nervous and weak."—Mrs. PARKS, 106 Bond Street, Toronto, Ontario.

Giant Passenger Plane

Now Under Construction and Will Be Used For Transcontinental Service In U. S.

A giant aeroplane, multi-motored, and providing sleeping accommodations for thirty-five to forty passengers, is now under construction from designs of Anthony H. G. Fokker, Dutch aeroplane designer and builder, it was learned on the return of Mr. Fokker to New York recently.

Much secrecy has surrounded the construction of this latest type of aeroplane, but it is known that the preliminary work on it has been carried on at the Fokker factory in Amsterdam, Holland. The machine is designed primarily for flying in America, and may be used to inaugurate a transcontinental passenger service between New York and San Francisco.

The fuselage of the plane, according to the present design, is built in two sections, the upper section being made over into sleeping berths at night, very similar to the berths now used in sleeping cars of the Pullman Company. The lower section will be equipped with seats as in a railroad parlor car. The plane will be comparable in conveniences to any first-class sleeping train. No date has been set for its completion, as several alterations in design have interrupted its building schedule.

No Rest With Asthma. Asthma usually attacks at night, the one time when rest is needed most. Hence the loss of strength, the nervous debility, the loss of flesh and other evils which must be expected unless relief is secured. Fortunately relief is possible. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy has proved its merits through years of service. A trial will surely convince you.

Little Helps For This Week

Pray without ceasing.—I. Thess. v., 17.

More things are wrought by prayer
Than this world dreams of. Wherefore let thy voice
Rise like a fountain for me night and day;
For what are men better than sheep or goats,
That nourish a blind life within the brain,
If knowing God, they lift not hands in prayer,
Both for themselves and those who call them friend?
For so the whole round world is every way
Bound by gold chains about the feet of God.
—Alfred Tennyson.

Prayer is the door forever open between earth and heaven. Sooner than sound can reach a human ear through this lower atmosphere, the longing desire of the spirit rises to the heart of the Eternal Friend. Whether we believe it or not, we are living in an invisible world, where our wishes are understood before our words are spoken.—Lucy Larcom.

CRESTON, B.C., FRIDAY, AUG. 6

The Customs Scandal

In 1925 the tariff was the big issue in the federal fight, but this year Mr. Esling makes it quite apparent that he proposes to make the fight on the customs scandal. The switch will come with con iderable surprise to most people, because the Liberal tariff of last year is still effective, and if it was the outstanding factor of a 1925 campaign what has happened to make it of secondary consideration this year?

In view of the Conservative candidate's anxiety to have chief attention centre on the customs department it will be well to consider the outstanding feature of the report arising out of the customs investigation, and which states in very definite terms "that the administration of custums affairs has been degenerating for a long time."

Note the term "long," which it might be fair to assume refers to a period of, say, ten years, taking us back to 1916—in which year Mr. Meighen and his party were in power. and continued to govern Canada till almost 1922.

The investigation Mr. Esling will discuss will refer to an enquiry at this session of parliament which wen back not more than five years—to about the time the King gov rnment took office.

Up to the present there is no evidence taken as to what the customs department was like from 1916 to 1922, except the statement of the committee that the degeneration was going on during that period. and possibly the Tory officials in the department at that time, and who were very fargely in the employ of the department during Premier King's term of office, saw to it that there was no let up to the 'degeneration'—they would get all that was going while the going was good.

From these facts it will be seen that the investigation is far from complete. and while countrymen of the Conservative candidate may be in the habit of lynching folks, or hanging them first and trying them afterwards, people who have been brought up in lands where the Union Jack flies are in the habit of observing the fine old British principle of not bringing in a verdict until all the evidence is heard.

And it is this commendable British tradition that the Liberal party asks be observed at this time. In fact one might go further and point out the wisdom of returning the King government to power to make sure that the degeneration of the customs department during the Meighen administration be fully exposed, because if this precaution is not taken it is practically certain Mr Meighen and his friends will see to it that the investigation ceases at as early a date as he and his partizan supporters can even semi decently terminate it.

Another very fine reason why Mr. Esling's appeal for votes on the customs scandal should be rejected lies in the fact that everywhere in Canada the same appeal is being made. and if every one of the 245 ridings in the Dominion were to send Conservative members to Ottawa we should have a situation everyone admits would be intolerable.

And just between ourselves, what has this customs scandal got to do with West Kootenay. The Liberal candidate in this riding had no connection with it in any shape, manner or form. If MacKenzie King and other Liberals are implicated undoubtedly the electers in the ridings in which they are candidates can be relied upon to remove them from public l.fe, if their conduct justifies such drastic action.

West Kootenay's plain duty in this contest is to elect the best man offering for election. If Mr. Esling's work during the past session is a sample of what we may expect from him in the future, then customs scandal, or no customs scandal, let's have a change to someone who can appreciate good legislation like the Robb budget and have independence enough to break from any party to give it wholehearted support. Representatives who, like W. K. Esling, are for the party first, last and all the time, should have no parliamentary say in western Canada's development policy.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Election Amenities

EDITOR REVIEW:

SIR—Before election campaign gets under way and begins to develop heat and personalities is a good time to consider the desirability and immense advantage all round of strictly observing the amenities of discussion, not only in the press and on the platform, but in individual discussions of the rival claims of parties, policies and candidates.

No difference of opinion, of conviction, of preference—no reasonable difference—call ior or justify the saying or doing of anything that should lead to personal estrangements or even unpleasantness. This is a free country and everyone is entitled to liberty of opinion, of speech. of personal decision, on condition of allowing the same liberty to every other, and of carefully observing the ordinary amenities of personal and social relations in all expressions and in behavior as well. No gentleman or lady would be tolerated in society who indulged in tirades of temper, in denunciation of others, in insinuations, sneers and scoffs. It simply isn't done in decent society. It isn't done in business. It shouldn't be done in politics.. It doesn't get anywhere.

Let us resolve to have a pleasant campaign and to get as much enjoyment as possible out of it. Abuse is not argument. Epithets and caricatures may be very clever, but they don't promote good will. They should not be indulged in if liable to provoke or irritate. Canada has still much to learn from Britain in the line of political tolerance. The Ottawa Citizen, not long ago, called attention to the fact that Asquith had named Lloyd George as one of the five men in Britain who had 'won the war,' though he had been his most formidable rival and had succeeded in supplanting him during the war as the Premier of Britain. They have learned on the cricket field in Britain how to play the game and they play fair even in politics. We cannot do better in Canada than take a leaf out of their book. An election should be a clean game of 'gentlemen's' cricket; not a Donnybrook fair nor a competition in Billingsgate.

Differences and divisions are nevitable. They develop in all democracies. They should be taken for granted and not allowed to disturb friendly personal relations or distract our minds from the careful and deliberate consideration of the important national issues involved in the election. A scrupulous regard for truth, honor and fair play will help. Along with these, self re traint, and tolerance will make the coming election a record one for fair play and goodwill in Canadian political history.

A Wynndel Wedding

The marriage of two well known and popular Wynndel young people was solemnized at Christ Church, Creston, at high noon on Wednesday, when the rector, Rev. S. Newby, united in the bonds of matrimony Georgina May, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Towson, with Reidar Andestad, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Andestad, all of Wynndel. The church was prettily decorated for the occasion, and quite a company of friends witnessed the happy event. The bride was given away by her father, and looked charming in a costume of white silk with grey hat and carrying a boquet of sweet peas. The bridesmaid was her sister, Miss Ethel Towson, whose gown was of mauve silk, and who carried a boquet of mauve sweet peas. After the ceremony the party motored back to the bride's home where a sumptuous wedding dinner was served, Mr. and Mrs. Andestad leaving on the afternoon train for a wedding trip to Nelson and points west, after which they will make their home at Wynndel. The high esteem in which the contracting parties are held was shown in the many handsome wedding presents, and a host of friends join in wishing toem long life and a happy one.

Full information concerning regulations regarding pre-emptions is given in Bulletin No. 1, Land Series, "How to Pre-empt Land," copies of which can be obtained free of charge by addressing the Department of Lands, Victoria, B.C., or to any Government Agent.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes, and which is not timberland, i.e., carrying over 5,000 board feet per acre west of the Coast Range and 8,000 feet per acre east of that Range.

Applications for pre-emptions are to be addressed to the Land Commissioner of the Land Recording Division, in which the land applied for is situated, and are made on printed forms, copies of which can be obtained from the Land Commissioner.

Pre-emptions must be occupied for five years and improvements made to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivating at least five acres, before a Crown Grant can be received.

For more detailed information see the Bulletin "How to Pre-empt Land."

PURCHASE

Applications are received for purchase of vacant and unreserved Crown lands, not being timberland, for agricultural purposes; minimum price of first-class (arable) land is $5 per acre, and second-class (grazing) land $2.50 per acre. Further information regarding purchase or lease of Crown lands is given in Bulletin No. 10, Land Series, "Purchase and Lease of Crown Lands."

Progress Of The C. N. R.

The most encouraging reading matter to be laid before the people of Canada for many years was that setting forth the complete operating results of the Canadian National Railways for the year 1925, supplemented a few weeks later by the statement made to Parliament by Hon. C. A. Dunning, the new Minister of Railways. The Canadian National Railways, and its predecessors in the various separate lines which now constitute the National system, have for so long been a financal burden on the Canadian taxpayer, that it is a distinct relief to read the really splendid showing of the system last year, and the further betterments already reported for 1926.

The net earnings of the Canadian National last year were nearly double those of 1924, being $22,264,414 as compared with $17,244,251. This substantial betterment was brought about in two ways, by an increase of nearly ten million dollars in operating revenues, and a decrease of over five and one-half millions in operating expenses. Net earnings in 1925 were twelve times what they were in 1922.

Supplementing this annual statement for 1925, Mr. Dunning was able to inform Parliament that for the first four months of 1926, net earnings of the Canadian National amounted to $9,689,217, a record for any similar period in the history of the amalgamated system, and the Minister was therefore in the happy position of being able to say that "given a reasonably good harvest and freedom from traffic losses due to labor difficulties it may be possible for the National Railways to pay this year their entire interest charges due the public."

That is to say, if present conditions are maintained, and the promise of the 1926 crop realized, the Canadian people this year will not be called upon to make good any deficit out of taxes.

For the first time, too, the Canadian Government ships, now operated by the Canadian National management, showed an operating profit during the first four months of 1926. The National Railways are carrying cargoes to the ships, and the ships are bringing traffic to the railway.

Sometimes operating betterments are shown by cutting down expenditures in the provision of needed equipment and in maintaining a railway fully up to standard. In the case of the Canadian National, however, it is satisfactory to learn that this is not the case. On the contrary, the physical condition of the system has been steadily improved and better, not less satisfactory, service provided.

As pointed out in a recent article, it was this improvement in Canadian National finances which was an important factor in enabling the Finance Minister in his recent budget to lower the Income Tax, return to two-cent postage, wipe out the receipt tax, and reduce the Customs duties on certain types of automobiles. Thus, not indirectly, but directly and immediately the people of Canada enjoy a measure of tax relief because of the success being achieved by Sir Henry Thornton and his co-workers in the management of the Canadian National.

If the expectations of Sir Henry and Mr. Dunning are realized this year—and present indications are that they will be—then further taxation relief may be looked for, or, as an alternative, a start made in the direction of reducing the enormous war debt which the Dominion now has to carry. Either step, of course, would mean a further reductin in the financial burden and obligations of the Canadian people.

Finally, it is a matter of particular national gratification that this steady and even rapid improvement in the Canadian National has been brought about without doing any injury whatever to Canada's other great national railway, the Canadian Pacific. The C.P.R. also reported a very successful year in 1925, far better than was expected during the earlier months of that year, and thus far in 1926 it continues to further improve and strengthen its position. Much as Canadians desire to see the Canadian National prosper and more than pay its way, they are equally desirous of seeing the C.P.R. grow and prosper. There is no wish to advance the welfare of one system at the expense of the other. Both are national systems in the true meaning of the term, and both can and are rendering services of immense value to the Dominion.

With increasing immigration, a general renewal in all lines of industry and commerce, and given a good crop throughout the country this year, the future of Canada's railways is encouraging.

Why Mr. Marchbank Knows Dodd's Kidney Pills Are Good

New Brunswick man is enthusiastic over the remedy that brought him relief—Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Sussex, N.B. — (Special). — "My trouble first started from a strain and bothered my back so much. I was laid up most of my time. I saw several doctors but they did me no good. I took about six to ten boxes of your Dodd's Kidney Pills and my back has not bothered me for over two years now. You may publish this if you wish."

This statement was sent to us by Mr. H. J. Marchbank, a well-known resident of this place.

Mr. Marchbank's lame back was caused bq sick kidneys. That is why he got such prompt and permanent relief from Dodd's Kidney Pills. They act directly on the kidneys strengthening them and enabling them to do their full work of straining all the impurities out of the blood.

Impurities in the blood are the seeds of disease. Dodd's Kidney Pills make good health by removing the seeds of disease.

Alberta Oil Boom

Nearly Fifty Wells to be Drilled in Turner Valley Field

Oil drilling operations in Southern Alberta continue at a steady pace and a recent survey of the industry shows that nearly fifty wells are drilling or about to be started this year in the Turner Valley field alone. The E. J. Miley Exploration Co., of California, is planning to drill several wells in the Many Island field near Medicine Hat. It is also stated, although unconfirmed, that the Dutch Shell Oil Company, will invade the Alberta field in search of oil.

Muddling Through

A. S. Draper in the New York Herald-Tribune

"I suppose we shall muddle through." That sentence was heard frequently during the first years of the war, and it is being repeated now in Britain's greatest crisis since 1918. The truth is that the English do less "muddling" than most people. It is the sentence of vain people, a people blessed with a tremendous amount of self-confidence, a people who are thoroughly grounded on fundamentals, a people who are profoundly serious, painstaking, keen on details.

The British public gets a pleasant kick out of professing to be a "muddling people." Where other people become hysterical over details, they smilingly say: "Oh, perhaps we shall muddle through." In their hearts they are full of confidence, buoyant, unafraid. Regarded as hesitant, cautious, they are actually adventurers, experimenters, crusaders. Especially is this true in governmental affairs. They are now working out a profoundly important question and they know it, but they prefer to talk about "muddling through."

Growth Of B.C. Industry

Production Has Increased at Rapid Rate as Shown by Figures

Great faith in the future of British Columbia has been shown in the establishment of many new industries and the expansion of those already existing, according to A. A. Milledge, secretary of the B.C. products bureau. In 1910, there were 392 plants in the province having a production valued at $35,000,000 and employing 11,000, with a payroll of approximately $14,000,000. In 1925 the number had grown to 1,500 plants with a production of $190,000,000 and a payroll of $41,000,000 to 38,500 employees.

WEAK AND NERVOUS

A Condition Always Due to Thin, Watery Blood

Thin blood and weak nerves generally are found together. Red blooded people seldom complain of nervousness. The reason is that the blood feeds the nerves and keeps them toned up to do the work nature intended. When the blood is thin and weak it fails in this important function and nervous troubles follow. The following case will interest those who need a tonic for the blood and nerves. Mrs. D. Veno, Union Square, N.S., says:—"With a feeling of gratitude I write to tell you what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for me. I had become badly run down, and reached the stage when I could not do my housework. I was not only weak, but my nerves seemed completely shattered. The least noise would startle me and I was subject to nervous headaches. Worse still, I could not sleep at night. Perhaps I would get an hour or two sleep, and then lie awake for the rest of the night. I had reached a stage when I actually feared I would lose my mind. Up to the time I decided to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, nothing I had taken seemed to do me any good. I got a few boxes of these and soon there was no doubt they were the medicine to help me. As I continued the use of the pills I gradually grew stronger, ate better and could sleep at night, and now I am as well and strong as a woman could wish to be. I hope some other weak, nervous person will be benefitted by my experience."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

She Could Hardly Do Her Housework Nerves Were So Bad

Mrs. I. M. Parks, Consecon, Ont., writes:—"I had heart and nerve trouble, and became so short of breath I could hardly do my daily housework, and was so nervous I could not think of staying alone, as every little sound I heard felt like a shock to me.

I Saw MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS recommended, so I tried a box, and after taking the second one I am now feeling like a different woman."

This preparation has been on the market for the past 32 years and has achieved a wonderful reputation for the relief of all heart and nerve troubles.

University Of Saskatchewan Is Carrying On Valuable Work In Extending Scientific Knowledge

President Walter Murray, at the recent convocation of the University of Saskatchewan announced that the province had decided to use its share of the surplus of Wheat Pool, operated by the Federal Governmnt during the war, to establish an agricultural research foundation. The income from the fund will be some $13,000 a year, which sum will be administered by a board of trustees for special researches in plant and animal diseases, in marketing, and also for scholarships, says the Manitoba Free Press.

This action of the Saskatchewan Legislature is in line with its record as regards research at the University. For several years now an annual grant of $15,000 has been voted to this end. Acting under this grant, investigations have been carried on in animal diseases and in plant breeding, in house construction, in seeking out types of corn suitable for Southwest Saskatchewan and in chemical and physical researches. Among these latter was an inquiry into the cause of decay in concrete. The work along this line has shown such promise that the Canada Cement Company and the Dominion Research Council have each repeated its grant.

So well has the ceramics department developed that it was announced that a department of geology would be established. Professor Delury, of the University of Manitoba, has accepted the appointment to this department.

Four reports on soil surveys have been issued and two more are in preparation. Evidently these reports have not been allowed to waste their information on the desert air of university files, for the farming interests and the loan companies have petitioned the university authorities that these surveys be accelerated. Perhaps this fact is as significant, as the interest of the Provincial Government in university research, in showing the close accord between the province and the university.

On the university side it will be noted that each of these efforts chronicled has been in direct relationship to Saskatchewan and not concerned with the ravages of the tsetse fly in Africa. True, science should not and cannot know community boundaries, but it may be as true science and yet begin at home.

The criticism might be levelled that all of this is applied science and that if it is playing the game, the university should also devote a portion of its time, talent and income to increase the world stock of knowledge of pure science. Dr. Murray claims that this phase is not neglected and that moreover the feeling for research has quickened the intellectual life of every department of the university, students and faculty alike. From this quickening, can come the ultimate flower of human achievement, creative work.

Trees On the Prairies

Nearly Three and a Half Million Young Trees Shipped This Year From Sutherland

The staff of the Dominion forestry farm at Sutherland, Sask., have been busy shipping baby trees destined to become pleasant groves of shelter in nearly 3,000 places in the Canadian prairie provinces—Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

The demand for this free service afforded by the Canadian Government department of agriculture fluctuates with the years, according to farming conditions and settlers' movements. Up to the fall of 1923 the Sutherland station had shipped since its inception, over 17,000,000 trees. For 1924 the total was over 2,000,500, while in 1925 it was about the same number. This year 3,355,000 were shipped.

Toads, bats and snakes can live longer without food than any other creatures.

Marketing Costs

Farmers' Returns From Canadian and New Zealand Cheese

Investigations by the dairy and cold storage branch of the department of agriculture at Ottawa into the making and marketing costs of Canadian and New Zealand cheese, have brought out the fact that the Canadian dairy farmer fares much better than his antipodean competitor. While the average price received for Canadian cheese was but little more than one-half cent per pound above New Zealand, the Canadian milk producer received about 14½ per cent. more of the selling price in the British market than the New Zealand farmer. In other words, the Canadian farmer who provided the milk for export cheese, received 83.32 cents for every dollar's worth of his cheese sold at the London quotations, while the New Zealand cowman received only 68.73 cents from each dollar his cheese brought in Great Britain. Mr. J. F. Singleton in his report of the investigation points out that the Canadian cheese producer has in the competition between buyers in Montreal and at country cheese boards, an assurance of good prices which sometimes exceed values justified by the state of the Old Country markets.

Seed Testing Laboratories

Over Fifty Thousand Samples Handled During the Past Year

The seed branch of the Dominion department of agriculture renders an important service in the maintenance of seed testing laboratories at Quebec, Ottawa, Toronto, Winnipeg and Calgary. These laboratories are also equipped for the analysis of unground feeding stuffs. The minister of agriculture in his annual report states that in the year ending March 31, 1925, over forty thousand samples of seed, feeding stuffs and fertilizers were handled by the laboratories. The seed samples are tested for purity and germination. The feeding stuffs and fertilizers are analyzed. Cases of misrepresentation of the composition of these commodities and the clever use of adulterants are exposed in this way. Honest and legitimate trade is protected against unsafe and inferior goods. Largely due to this work by the seed branch the quality of commercial feeding stuffs and fertilizers for sale in Canada is steadily improving.

New exhibition buildings are being erected at Ottawa. These will be ready for the World's Poultry Congress in 1927. Floor plans of the buildings are being prepared for distribution to intending exhibitors. Application for these should be made to Ernest Rhoades, Congress Secretary, Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

Some Interesting Facts

Remarkable Progress Made By Canada In Recent Years

In a recent compilation made by R. H. Coats, Canadian Government statistician, the population of Canada is estimated at 9,364,200. In 1901 it was but 5,371,000. Thus, the gain in 25 years has been 75 per cent.

Other interesting facts given in the compilation are: "The number of Canadian homes is 2,001,512, of which 62 per cent. are owned and 38 per cent. rented; the average Canadian family is 4.62; the proportion of men to women is exceedingly high—103 to 100. One may remark of the low amount of crime (2.77 indictable offences per 1,000 population in 1924). On education Canada spends more than $120,000,000 yearly.

"Next to population among national assets stands natural resources. The basic fact about Canada is that she is half a continent and still a "new" country. In agriculture, the total arable area is at least 300,000,000 acres, of which less than one-half is occupied and less than one quarter "improved."

"Though in population Canada ranks only twenty-fifth among the countries of the world, in import and export trade she ranks sixth. In exports, on a per capita basis, she stands second. Nearly half of the trade of Canada is with the United States."

Arranging Culling Service

Members of Saskatchewan Poultry Pool Can Weed Out Flocks

The Saskatchewan Egg and Poultry Pool is arranging a culling service which will enable its membership to have their flocks weeded out. The pool is also arranging to market the non-profit hens, culled from the flocks, by making live car shipments from country points. It requires some 2,000 hens to make up a carload. It is intended to make a substantial initial cash payment at the car door, when these culls are delivered for shipping. Where a sufficient number in a district desire this service, the culling experts will be available this summer. The cost per flock will be nominal.

Young Leghorn Won Egg-Laying Contest

Pullet Outdistanced All Older Contestants In Production

The younger of the hen species is more prolific than her older sister, according to records of an egg-laying contest just received by the department of commerce from Buenos Aires.

A young White Leghorn pullet won the Argentine contest. During eight months she laid 162 eggs.

The best record achieved by hens was by a White Wyandotte, which laid 131 eggs during the eight months. A team of White Leghorn pullets also laid a total of 810 eggs to the best total of 614 by six White Wyandottes among the hens.

Some Interesting Information Relating To Early Exploration Of The Hudson Bay Area

The Belfast Telegraph contains some interesting information relating to early explorers in the Hudson Bay area. According to this paper, documents relating to the shores of Hudson Bay are the most striking acquisition of the Ulster Record Office. These were found among papers of the Dobbs family at Carrickfergus, the best known of whom was Arthur Dobbs, a sixteenth century author and statesman, who towards the close of his life became Governor of North Carolina. He was dissatisfied with the Hudson Bay Company, which had confined its explorations to the coast, and had not complied with its charter by seeking a northwest passage to the Pacific Ocean. Apparently he obtained copies of reports on Hudson Bay explorations up to that time and these have been preserved for 170 years on the shores of Belfast Lough.

The journal of Henry Kelsey, covering the experiences of an officer of the Hudson Bay Company from 1683 to 1722, is the earliest volume among these documents. The greater part of his life seems to have been spent in the valley of the Hayes River, a tributary of the Nelson. It is evident from his reports that he must have reached the prairie country of Northern Manitoba, and was probably the first white man, certainly the first Englishman, to penetrate so far. Twice, in 1694 and again in 1697, this fort in which he was stationed was obliged to surrender to French vessels of war. Kelsey continued on the coast until 1722, and gradually rose to the position of chief trader at a station. Only scant details are given of his later experiences, but it is clear that he voyaged to the Eskimo country, although he was not able to develop trade with the inhabitants.

It is recorded that Dobbs kept up his campaign against the Hudson Bay Company and induced the British admiralty in 1741 to send the King's Furnace to Churchill River. The master's journal of this voyage is also among the papers recently found. In 1746 two other ships were sent out on exploration work, and the journal of one of them is included in the Dobbs papers.—Regina Leader.

All Farm Animals Need Salt Supply

Plays Important Part As Appetizer and Stimulus to Digestion

Experience and science alike have shown that salt is essential to the good health and thrift of farm livestock. It is not a food nor does it directly increase the digestibility of food, but it nevertheless plays an important part in the work of nutrition, writes F. T. Shutt, Dominion chemist. It is chiefly valuable as an appetizer and a substance which makes the feed more palatable; as a stimulant and tonic, when taken in small amounts, and as a source of hydrochloric acid, a normal constituent of the gastric juice. Its use, therefore, leads to larger consumption of food, and, by stimulating digestion, permits the animals to make a larger and more profitable return in flesh or milk production.

Of all farm animals, cows in milk require the largest amount of salt.

Sheep require salt and there should be no neglect in supplying it, either by trough, barrel salt, or rock salt. It should be available to them at all times.

Horses thrive best when regularly supplied by salt, say, about one ounce daily. When hard at work they require more than at rest, for the reason that salt is excreted in the perspiration.

Pigs and poultry require less salt than other farm animals, but it should be supplied regularly. Brood sows should not be without salt, which may be given in box, trough or self-feeder.

All stock fed liberally with rich, nutritious feed, exhibit a craving for salt, and this should be met if good health and thrift are to be maintained.

The "Guaranize" Process For Eggs Stored In a Cellar

The value of the "Guaranize" process for storing eggs, which consists of dipping the eggs in a boiling solution of wax and oil, as demonstratec in an experiment where the eggs were kept in a cellar. Describing the experiment in his latest report the Dominion poultry husbandman states that the "Guaranized" eggs were in a considerably better condition at the end of fifteen weeks than were the non-processed ones. When tested for flavor there was a marked difference in flavor of the "Guaranized" eggs. The non-processed eggs began to have a musty flavor after the tenth week, while the "Guaranized" new laid eggs were quite palatable, boiled or poached, when taken out at the fifteenth week. It seems, therefore, certain that the process has a decidedly favorable effect on the keeping quality of eggs stored in an ordinary cellar.

The Weed Menace

Vigorous Prosecution of the Fight Against Weeds in Alberta

More than eighty municipalities were represented at the convention of weed supervisors and inspectors, held at Olds, Alberta, recently. Thorough discussion of the weed campaign for the summer took place, and indications are for a vigorous prosecution of the fight against the weeds. Excellent co-operation between the various municipalities and the provincial department of agriculture in the campaign was manifest at the convention and considerable further progress is anticipated this year in clearing the province of the weed menace.

"And how about the lobster," the waiter inquired.

"Oh, he can order whatever he likes," came the startling reply.
