W.A. Concert Pleases Crowd

Variety of Talent Presents Musical and Literary Numbers and Marches — Domestic Comedy is Evening's Closing Feature.

A very successful entertainment was given in the Parish Hall on Wednesday evening last under the auspices of Christ Church Woman's Auxiliary. Mrs. L. W. Stephens was responsible for the concert half of the programme, while Mrs. R. Thurston sponsored the second part. and much credit is due both these members of the Auxiliary for their efforts. The programme:

Mrr. Nygaard's recitation, 'Archibald Vere De Vere," was an excellent piece of work and well deserved its enthusiastic encore, and her second number was equally good. The piano duet by Mrs Johnston and Miss Kathleen Bundy was splendidly rendered and received a hearty recall. Mrs. Johnston also gave a very stirring and graphic recitation in finished style. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Langston both sang in their usual delightful manner and responded to well earned encores, as did Miss Naida Barnhardt, who possesses a fine voice for so young a singer.

Mrs. L. W. Stephens sang very pleasingly, and Mr. Stephens' rendering of "The Egg" caused much amusement. The latter also obliged with a fine clarinet solo. Miss Lorraine Olivier was very charming in her recitation. which she rendered perfectly, while Mrs. L. G. Clark was another elecutionist who pleased the audience. her Irish brogue being much appreciated. The choruses and marches by the Canyon girls were gone through with precision and showed careful training, while Misses Grace Bothamly, Ethel Van Ackeran and Holly Bond all pleased their audience with their numbers. The accompaniasts, Mrs. Fred Lister and Miss Frances Knott, assisted greatly in the success of the singers and instrumentalists.

The variety programme was followed by an amusing sketch, "A Borrowed Luncheon," in which "Mrs Bancroft" is shown entertaining her two lady guests in a friend's house which she is trying to pass off as her own, and the difficulties arising from this situation caused much merriment and everything smoothed out in the end, after the appearance on the scene of the rightful owner, 'Mrs. McDougall," with the resulting explanations. The maid of the latter, who is is waiting on "Mrs. Bancroft" and her guests, caused her a great deal of trouble and rmbarassment. This part was taken by Miss Winnie Palfreyman, who both looked and interpreted the part well. "Mrs. Bancroft," taken by Miss Kitty Littlejohn, was realistic. Mrs. Thurston ably took the part of the lady guest, supported by her daughter, Miss Margaret Fraser. Miss Beth Putnam was "Mrs. McDougall," the real owner of the house returning home at the last moment and clearing up the muddle. and though not naving a great deal to do, filled the part nicely. All the ladies took their alloted parts splendidly and were word perfect.

Crestland Fruit Company Confining Local Operations to Erickson This Year—Manager Harrison Tells of Prices Paid

Vernan News.

The prices paid for fruits and vegetables to the growers in the Creston district, will compare very well indeed with prices paid for similar commodities in the Okanagan Valley is the statement by Harvey Harrison, manager of the Crestland Fruit Co., Limitee, Vernon

Mr. Harrison contends that there are many misrepresentations going the rounds about the deal at Creston last year. To begin with, the Crestland Fruit Co. marketed everything the growers produced from black currants, gooseberries, to crabapples, all varieties of apples, and even their tomatoes until the freeze-up cut down the vines.

More than that, returns from small fruits, early apples and crabapples were made within thirty days of the shipping date. The growers even had their money for McIntosh and later apples early in January. On the bulk apple deal, the total deduction made from growers returns was $5 a ton. The prices paid for all commodities compare very favorably with those paid by any hipper in the Okanagan Valley or any other shippers handling 200 cars or more.

McIntosh apple prices net to growers, $20 a ton; Household 26.6c; Cee 46.2c; Fancy and X Fancy. 62.4c.

Winter Banana prices net to growers, $15 a ton; Household, 32c; Cees 45.3c; Fancy, 50.7c; X Fancy, 58c. There were absolutely no deductions beyond these prices

Only one other shipper operated at Creston, said Mr. Harrison, and it is believed that the prices he paid growers were about the same.

The reason for not operating in Creston again in 1932, said Mr. Harrison, is that they have no warehouse space there and they have come to the conclusion that it is not profitable to pay such a high rental as was demanded for the co-operative premises. It has been decided to operate at Erickson and to select sufficient of the most desirable tonnage to keep this house operating.

The Crestland Fruit Co. is opening a a house this season at Oliver. Accommodation is being arranged to suit the tonnage offered and the house will be open in time for the early deal.

BABY FRETFUL, RESTLESS?

Look to this cause

When your baby fusses, tosses and seems unable to sleep restfully, look for one common cause, doctors say. Constipation. To get rid quickly of the accumulated wastes which cause restlessness and discomfort, give a cleansing dose of Castoria. Castoria, you know, is made specially for children's delicate needs. It is a pure vegetable preparation; contains no harsh drugs, no narcotics. It is so mild and gentle you can give it to a young infant to relieve colic. Yet it is as effective for older children. Castoria's regulative help will bring relaxed comfort and restful sleep to your baby. Keep a bottle on hand. Genuine Castoria always has the name:

Chas. H. Fletcher.

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

It was reported Pope Pius probably would inaugurate the Eucharistic Congress at Dublin next June with a broadcast message.

The world's crop of winter wheat is only two per cent. smaller than last year, judging by reports from 15 countries.

Dr. O. T. Avery, New York, who discovered a means of killing the pneumonia germ by dissolving its protective covering has been awarded $1,500 by the American College of Physicians.

The motion of H. C. Nixon, Progressive leader, asking the Federal Government not to appoint a lieutenant-governor for Ontario for one year was voted down by the provincial legislature.

Russia is ranked by the Economic Review of the Soviet Union, published by the Amtorg Trading Corporation, as second only to the United States in volume of industrial output and national income.

Great Britain intends to proceed without deviation with its program for India, Sir Samuel Hoare told the House of Commons, and will not be deflected from it "by threats of force or sudden alarms."

The Family Physician.—The good doctor is always worth his fee. But it is not always possible to get a doctor just when you want him. In such cases, common sense suggests the use of reliable home remedies, such as Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, which is wonderfully effective in easing inflammatory pains and healing cuts, scratches, bruises and sprains. The presence of this remedy in the family medicine chest saves many a fee.

A Difficult Test

Candidates for the post of announcer in one American broadcasting company had to pass a test, one phrase of which is "The seething sea ceaseth, and thus the seething sea sufficeth us." Only ten of the 2,500 tested in the last two years received appointments.

Feverish?

"My baby's cheeks and hands were so hot," writes Mrs. Bernard Breen, Enterprise, Ont., "I was frightened. I gave him a Baby's Own Tablet at noon and by after supper he was all better." Effective for colds, colic, teething. Absolutely safe. See certificate in each 25c package. 236

GOOD LOOKING HOME WEAR HELPS IMMENSELY MAKE KITCHEN CHORES EASY

Every woman knows she can't have too many home ensembles that will tub and tub, and always come up smiling.

And today's model is just lovely.

The dress is suitable for the house, garden, porch, marketing, etc. And incidentally, it's decidedly slimming to the heavier build. It has a very becoming slimming neckline. Then there is the diagonal big seaming that reduces bulk. Inverted plaits give a graceful width and flare to the hem.

And isn't the one-piece apron attractive? And it won't slip off the shoulders either, for the suspender straps are useful besides being modish.

Design No. 910 includes the dress and the apron in sizes 10, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 35-inch material with 1½ yards of 35-inch contrasting.

Lost Ugly Fat

Her Husband says she Looks Five Years Younger!

There is a certain weight at which every woman looks her loveliest—not skinny underweight nor pendulous overweight, but normal weight. We find artists, doctors, theatrical producers (and husbands!) all agreed upon this point. Read what this woman of 29 says about it:—

"Having heard from a friend of mine that she had lost considerable weight since taking Kruschen Salts, I started using them in July last, when I weighed 177 lbs. I have lost weight steadily since then, and am now 159 lbs.—my normal weight. Moreover, I feel brighter and more energetic in every way. My age is 29. My husband is a very severe critic. He says I look five years younger. There is no other reason for my loss of weight except Kruschen, as I do not take any particular diet."—Mrs. S. R.

Taken every morning, Kruschen effects a perfectly natural clearance of undigested food substances and all excessive watery waste matter. Unless this wastage is regularly expelled, Nature will eventually store it up out of the way in the form of ugly fat.

Progress In Africa

People Take Quickly To New Ideas For Advancement

Do not let us delude ourselves into thinking that the African will not in time demand his share of self-government as the Indian has done. Those who knew Africa in her old, untouched days are astonished at the rapidity with which new ideas are taking root, and every new school and road and trading store promotes more change. The very fact that the African starts from a lower level of culture than the Indian is capable of accentuating the rapidity and gravity of the change. He has no load of ancient civilization round his neck, no serious religious disputes, no excess of population fixed in the ruts of old habits and ingrained superstitions. The difference between his level and that of the alien whites is so great that he is inclined, once he makes the plunge, to abandon all his own distinctive ideas and to aim directly at a Europeanized culture.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

APRIL 10

HOW SIN BEGINS

Golden Text: "Watch and pray that ye enter not into temptation." —Matthew 26.41.

Lesson: Genesis 2.8 to 3.24.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 1.

Explanation sand Comments

The Garden Of Eden, 2.8-15.— And Jehovah planted a garden eastward, in Eden, we read. With the trees in the garden that were to provide food were two mysterious trees such as never grew in any earthly garden. The fruit of one of these trees would give the partaker knowledge of good and evil; that of the other, immortal life. In this garden Adam and Eve were put to care for it.

The Obedience Required, 2.16, 17.—The fruit of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil they were forbidden to eat. Through it was to come the knowledge of sin and its consequences as well. If that command were disobeyed, then they would surely die.

"In all holy life there must be a forbidden tree. But all limitations ordained of God are appointed to be the ministers of our strength. If we observe them they do not belittle us, they exalt us. The tempter would make us believe that the restriction of our freedom enslaves us, and that the bursting of our barriers is the enlargement of our life. It is fatal delusion. A broken moral law always means a broken and shriveled life: 'The wages of sin is death,' and the wages begin to be paid at once. Every time we sin death is at work." —J. H. Jowett.

The Temptation, 3.1-5.—The serpent here in Genesis is the power of evil personified: it is Milton, not Genesis, that terms the serpent Satan. The tempter is called by the Jews "the old serpent." Temptation to sin comes from without human nature, but the capacity for sin is within.

Now the serpent was more subtle than any beast of the field, "the fittest imp of fraud," as Milton calls him. To the woman he said, "Yea [indeed, truly] hath God said, Ye shall not eat of any tree of the garden?" The interrogative sentence is also exclamatory and is designed to arouse distrust of God. "Ay, and so God has said, etc!" is one translation. "The range of the prohibition is purposely exaggerated in order to provoke inquiry and criticism."

The order of words in Eve's answer brings out the thought that she resents the serpent's subtle meaning: they could eat of the fruit of any tree save of that in the midst of the garden, that tree of knowledge of good and evil. That it was an apple tree is an idea said to have come from the Romans. The word used in the "Vulgate" for fruit, "fructum," was rendered "pomum" by some transcriber, a word which means fruit and also apple. The Greeks understood it to be a fig tree. Death would be the penalty for eating or even touching that special fruit. Eve seems to have expected death would immediately follow its eating.

"Ye shall not surely die," returned the serpent. Not to save you from death, but to prevent your being like him, has God forbidden you to partake of this fruit: "Ye shall be as God, knowing good and evil." The serpent's wily words impute an unworthy motive to Jehovah, and arouse doubt as to His perfect goodness; they appeal to Eve's curiosity and desire for knowledge and power, and are almost a dare.

The Disobedience, 2.6, 7.—Eve looked longingly at the forbidden fruit, dallied with temptation. She saw that it was good for food, a delight to the eyes, and had the power to make one wise; there was an appeal to appetite, to the sense of beauty, and to intellect. The desire to become like God overcame the fear of His displeasure. She yielded to the temptation and partook of the fruit.

Eve gave the fruit to her husband and he ate also. "Before this temptation the woman fell, and the man was immediately involved in her fall —another fine truth; she holds the key of his destiny."—J. E. McFadyen.

Hardly Worth Speaking About

If you have a good imagination, try and imagine what the newly discovered neutron, a part of an atom and of great importance to science, looks like. Prof. Lachrian Gilchrist of the physics department of the University of Toronto, told the Royal Astronomical Society its weight is represented by the 540th part of a million-million-millionth part of a gramme, and a gramme is about 2,600th part of an ounce.

Detroit Plans To Refund Debts Totalling $31,000,000

Declaring it the only way the life savings and property of many of Detroit's citizens can be saved, Mayor Frank Murphy announced recently that he would seek the co-operation of the city's banker-creditors in a refunding of some $31,000,000 in interest and maturity charges due this year.

If the plan is agreed upon, the mayor said, it will mean a substantial reduction in the city's $76,000,000 tax levy for 1932. If it fails, he said, an increase in the tax rate of nearly $3 for each $1,000 valuation is imminent. The property tax rate for the current fiscal year is $22.63 for $1,000 valuation.

E.M.Ward Finds Wonderful Pick-Me-Up In Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Brings Wonderful Vitality.

"I have had attacks of the 'flu' frequently since 1919, and sometimes very bad attacks, but always when on the road to recovery I take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I find them a wonderful pick-me-up."

So writes E. M. Ward, Saskatoon, Sask., who further states: "I would recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to all sufferers from that rundown, listless feeling. I have taken the Pills on many occasions, and they seem to tone up my blood wonderfully. I have been anaemic for years, and find that, when I get rundown, after taking several boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills the color comes back to my cheeks and I have wonderful vitality."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills rebuild health by creating new blood and increasing the red blood cells which restore the wasted tissues and revitalize the exhausted system. They remove the cause of rundown or nervous conditions. Try them. At your druggist's. 50c a package. 271

THE HOUSE OF DREAMS-COME-TRUE

Her voice wavered uncertainly. The realization of his intent had come upon her so unexpectedly, rousing her from her placid unconsciousness, that she felt stunned—nervously unready to deal with the situation. She struggled a little, instinctively, but he only laughed down at her, a ring of masterful triumph in his voice, holding her effortlessly, with all the ease of his immense strength.

"It's no good, Jean. You've got to hear me out. I've waited long enough." He paused, then drew a deep breath. "I love you!" he said slowly. "My God, how I love you!"

There was an element of wonder in his tones, and she felt the strong hands gripping hers tremble a little. Then their clasp tightened and he drew her towards him.

"Say you love me," he demanded. "Say it!"

It was then Jean found her voice. The imperious demand, infringing on that secret, inner claim of which she alone knew, stung her into quick denial.

"But I don't! I don't love you!" Then, as she saw the blank look in his eyes, she went on hastily: "Oh, Geoffrey, I am so sorry. I never guessed—I never thought of your caring."

"You never guessed! Good God!"—with a harsh laugh—"I should have thought I'd made it plain enough. Why, even that first day, on the river—I wanted you then. What do you suppose has brought me to Staple every day? Affection for Blaise Tormarin?"—cynically.

"I though—I thought——"She cast about in her mind for an answer, then presented him with the simple truth. "I'm afraid I never thought about it at all. I just took your coming over for granted. I knew you and Judith were old friends and neighbors, so it seemed quite natural for you to be here often—just as Claire Latimer is."

Burke searched her face for a moment. He was thinking of the other women he had known—women who would never have remained blind to his meaning, who had, indeed, shown their willingness to come halfway — more than half-way—to meet him.

"I really believe that's true," he said at last, grudgingly. "But if it is, you're the most unselfconscious woman I've ever come across."

"Of course it's true," she replied simply. "I'm—I'm so sorry, Geoffrey. I like you far too much to have wished to hurt you."

"I don't want liking. I want your love. And I mean to have it. You may not have understood before, Jean, but you do now."

She drew herself away from him a little.

"That doesn't make any difference, Geoffrey. I have no love to give you," she said quietly.

He shook his head.

"I won't take no," he said doggedly. "You're the woman I want. And I mean to have you. . . . . Don't you understand? It's no use fighting against me. You may say no, now; you may say no fifty times. But one day you'll say—yes."

Jean's slight frame tautened.

"You are mistaken," she said, in a chill, clear voice calculated to set immeasurable space between them. "I'm not a cave woman to be forced into marriage. Oh!"—the ludicrous side of this imperious kind of wooing striking her suddenly—"don't be so absurd Geoffrey! You can't seize me by the hair and carry me off to your own particular hole in the rocks, you know." She began to laugh a little. "Let's just go on being good friends—and forget that this has ever happened."

She held out her hand, but he took no notice of the little friendly gesture. There was a red gleam in his eyes, a smouldering glow that needed but a breath to fan it into flame.

"You speak as if it were something that was over and done with," he said in a low, tense voice. "But it isn't; it never shall be. I love you and want you, and I shall go on loving you and wanting you as long as I live. Jean—sweetest"—his voice suddenly softened incredibly—"I'll try to be more gentle. But when a man loves as I do, he doesn't stop to choose his words." He stepped closer to her. "Oh! You little, little thing! Why, I could pick you up and carry you off to my cave with two fingers. Jean, when will you marry me?"

His big frame towered beside her. He paid no more attention to her dismissal of him than if she had not spoken, and she was conscious of an odd feeling of impotence.

"You don't seem to have understood me," she said forcing herself to speak composedly. "If I loved you, you'd have no need to 'carry me off' to your cave. I'd come—gladly. But I don't love you, Geoffrey. And I shall never marry a man I don't love."

"You'll marry me," he returned stubbornly. "Do you think I'm going to give you up so easily? If you do, you're mistaken. I love you, and I'll teach you to love me—when you're my wife."

The two pairs of eyes met, a challenging defiance flashing between them. Jean shrugged her shoulders.

"I think you must be mad," she said contemptuously, and turned to leave him.

In the same instant his hands gripped her shoulders and he swung her round facing him again.

"Mad!" he exclaimed hoarsely. "Yes, I am mad—mad for you. You little cold thing! Do you know what love is—man's love?"

She felt his arms close round her like a vice of steel, lifting her off her feet, so that she hung helpless in his embrace. For a moment his eyes burned down into hers—the hot flame of desire that blazed in them seeming almost to scorch her—the next, he had hidden his face against the warm white curve of her throat, where a little affrighted pulse throbbed tempestuously. Then, as though the touch of her snapped the last link of his self-control, his mouth sought hers, and he was kissing her savagely, crushing her soft, wincing lips beneath his own. Her slender body swayed helpless as a reed in his strong grip, while the tide of his passion, like some fierce, untameable flood, swept over her resistlessly.

When at last he released her, she stood back from him, rocking a little Instinctively he stretched out his hand to steady her.

"Don't . . . . touch me!" she panted.

The words came driven between clenched teeth chokingly. Her face was milk-white and her eyes blazed at him out of its pallor. She felt as if her heart were beating in her throat, stifling her, and for a little space sheer physical stress held her silent. But she fought it back, asserting her will against her weakness.

"How dare you?" There was bitter anger in her still tones. "How dare you touch me like that?"

With a swift movement she passed her handkerchief across her lips and then let it fail on the ground as though it were something unclean. He winced at the gesture; for a moment the passion died out of his face and a rueful look, almost of schoolboy shame, took its place.

"Do you—feel like that about it?" he said, nodding towards the handkerchief.

"Just like that," she returned. "Do you think—if I had known—I would ever have risked being alone with you? But I thought we were friends—I never dreamed I couldn't trust you."

"Well, you can't," he said unsteadily. The sight of her slender, defiant figure and lovely, tilted face, with the scornful lips he had just kissed showing like a scarlet stain against its whiteness, sent the blood rioting through his veins once more. "You'll . . . . you'll never be able to trust any man who loves you, Jean."

Her thoughts flew to Blaise. She would trust herself with him—now, at any time, always. But then, perhaps—the afterthought came like a knife-thrust—perhaps he did not care!

"A man who—loved me," she said dully, "would not do what you've just done."

"He would—sooner or later. Unless his veins ran milk and water!" He drew a step nearer and stood staring down at her sombrely. "Do you know what you're like, I wonder? With your great golden eyes and your maddening mouth and that little cleft in your white chin. . . . . You're angry because I kissed you. I wonder I didn't do it before! I've wanted to, dozens of times. But I wanted your love more than a passing kiss. I've waited for that—waited all these weeks. And now you refuse it—you've not even understood that you're all earth and heaven to me. God! How blind you must have been!"

She was silent. Her anger was waning, giving place to a certain distressful comprehension of the mighty force which had suddely broken bondage in the man beside her. Dimly, from her own knowledge of the yearning bred of the loved one's nearness, she envisaged what these last weeks must have meant to a man of Burke's temperament. Was it any wonder, when suddenly made to realize that the woman he loved not only did not love him in return, but had failed even to sense his love for her, that his stormy spirit had rebelled—flung off its shackles? An element of self-reproach tinctured her thoughts. In a measure the fault had been hers; her self-absorption was to blame.

Little Helps For This Week

"Is not this the carpenter, the son of Mary?"—Mark vi. 3.

A lesson, Lord, those eighteen years to me;
Not elsewhere I could so devoutly learn
That humble tasks are best, howe'er I yearn
For higher spheres where I may work more free.
Blest were those patient, toiling years to Thee,
Their secret kept within Thy lonely heart,
While Thou wast trained by daily skill of art
To build new worlds for human destiny.
Thy future was the Now. 'Twas from its height
Thine eye read meanings in the passing day;
If Cross of Death cast shadows on Thy way,
What sun was that so darkened in his light?
O Nazarene, out of these toils there came,
That which we prize most dear,—a Brother's Name!

—A. A. Lipscomb.

Christ did not want higher occasions than the Father gave Him. The grand maxim of His mission was that the humblest spheres give the greatest weight and dignity to principles. He was the good carpenter,—saving the world. Righty viewed, there are no small occasions in this world, as in our haste we too often think. Great principles, principles sacred even to God, are at at stake in every moment of life. God prescribes our duty; and it were wrong not to believe that if wet undertake God's real work, He will furnish us to it, and give us pleasure in it.—Horace Bushnell.

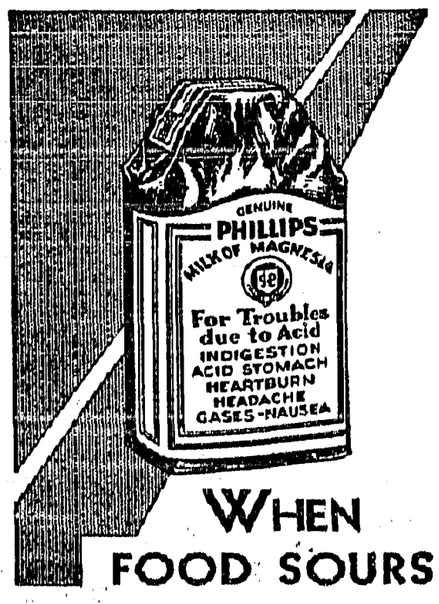
Control Of Nerves

Living Nerves Can Be Switched Like Telegraph Nerves

Zoological proof that living nerves can be switched like telegraph wires was presented to the American Association of Anatomists meeting in New York.

If the nerve naturally controlling a muscle is destroyed, another nerve can be substituted by operation, and will operate the muscle very well.

These switches have been made and their success verified at Yale University in the Osborn Zoological Laboratory. Donald H. Barron, who conducted the experiments, reported them to the anatomists.



WHEN FOOD SOURS

ABOUT two hours after eating many people suffer from sour stomachs. They call it indigestion. It means that the stomach nerves have been over-stimulated. There is excess acid. The way to correct it is with an alkali, which neutralizes many times its volume in acid.

The right way is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia—just a tasteless dose in water. It is pleasant, efficient and harmless. Results come almost instantly. It is the approved method. You will never use another when you know.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for correcting excess acids. 50c a bottle—any drug store.

The ideal dentifrice for clean teeth and healthy gums is Phillips' Dental Magnesia, a superior toothpaste that safeguards against acid-mouth. (Made in Canada.)

No telephone —so he didn't get the job

"I'm awfull sorry, Bill," said the manager of Blank and Co. "If you'd had a telephone yesterday we would have given you a steady job. We had an opening that you might have filled nicely. But we needed a man right away. We couldn't reach you by telephone so we had to call someone else and give the position to him."

Bill was about ready to weep. Just two days ago he had had his telephone taken out because he thought he couldn't afford it. Now he realized that he couldn't afford to be without it. He went straight to the telephone office and told them to put his telephone back in.

HOME BREW

If you happen to be a plot owner, or directly or indirectly interested in any of the burial spaces at the cemetery, and if you haven't been a visitor at the burying ground for the past month, it might be well for you to make a call at the cemetery. The past winter has been a bit unusual. The heavy snowfall came before there was any frost in the ground with the result that in the spring thaw the moisture all went down. Along with this there has been an exceptionally heavy March rainfall, with the result that more than a few of the graves have suffered from cave-in and where headstone have been provided some of these have been sadly tilted forward and are in danger of falling. Of late the cemetery company with some help from the Women's Institute have done a good work in cemetery beautification and if the better appearance the cemetery has assumed is to be maintained it will be necessary for the weather-havoc wrought on the graves to have attention, and for such a good work there is no time like the present.

If there is anything sound about the old axiom "that every little bit helps," the provincial government might supplement its falling revenues, and at the same time do local citizens a good turn, by immediately adopting some plan whereby the deposits of black loam on the flats can be made available for more than a few residents who have been in the habit of using this black earth for a sort of fertilizer. All that is required is a bit of fencing to keep out livestock, and someone to supervise the hauling away of the material. Anyone who has used it would not object to paying even as high as a dollar a load, and as the demand comes in the spring and fall it might be possible to have the forestry officials give the needed supervision without extra cost to the authorities at Victoria. Or, failing this, turn the right to dispose of the loam over to a responsible party on a commission basis. With the government needing the coin and the people wanting the loan it is ridiculous to think that some plan can not be evolved whereby business can be done.

A most emphatic No is the answer of the Penticton Herald, on behalf of the southern Okanagan orchardists, in connection with 1932 marketing. In fact the Herald waxes more and more enthusiastic as Editor McDougall pursues the subject in an editorial in last week's issue, which concludes with the super-optimistic observation that "It would occasion no surprise if a real estate boom arrived in 1933." In setting forth good and sufficient reasons for his optimism the Herald points out that with the unfavorable exchange on Canadian money prevailing there is not likely to be much American fruit enter Canada. And in the same connection the Herald is quite sure the Bennett government will give adequate protection either by an anti-dumping clause or seasonal tariff. Then there is the 10 per cent. preference there if reason to assume the Old Country will extend Empire fruit, while right now the prospects for a prairie crop are excellent.

Truly "Man is never, but always to be blessed." At Grand Forks, Editor Love, in his dual capacity as mayor and pilot of the Gazette, has, since the first of the year, succeeded in getting the ratepayers to authorize the council putting in a municipal power plant and even more successful in getting the people of Grand Forks to part with $45,000 of their cash money to buy the bonds which are issued to effect payment of the hydro development. Now the Gazette is claiming further fame for the old home town by asserting that it is cheaper to live there than anywhere else, and backs up the claim by referring to the recent removal to that town of Sid McCabe of Sirdar, in this fashion: "Mr. McCabe's territory is from Midway to Crowsnest and the fact that he has come to Grand Forks, almost at one end, to make his home is because of the attractivenes of the town and also because he has learned it is cheaper to live here than elsewhere."

Penticton Herald: New grower contracts issued by the Mutual Penticton Limited, the organization established here by the Staples-Lander interests, are somewhat out of the ordinary line of independent contracts.

The usual basis is to charge a flat rate for packing plus a flat rate for selling. Thus the shipper receives a measure of protection no matter how the market fares downwards, although, of course, we assume he does not benefit if it goes upwards.

But this new Mutual contaact, while calling for a flat rate for packing, puts the selling charge on a percentage of the price. Thus the shipper's fortunes apparently accompany those of the grower, whether up or down. It would appear also that there is no provision for charging red ink against the grower so long as the selling price brings the packing charge. If it fails to do more, then the shipper apparently gets nothing for his selling effort, just as the grower would not get anything for his fruit. But there would be no back-charging.

Local growers and shippers are rather interested in watching the new concern in its local operations, in view of the fact that the Sales Service, of which it is a unit, has always been regarded as quite friendly to the Associated in the fruit-marketing business. Will 1932 see a continuation of the previous conditions of harmony between these two selling organizations?

A decided improvement is made at the corner of Canyon street and Hillside Road where S. A. Speers has just erected a tidy looking stone wall on both street fronts of his residence at that location.

At a meeting of the directors held on Wednesday it was definitely decided to re-open the Creston Co-operative Fruit Exchange for business this season as a substantial tonnage has been promised.

The March weather record shows the 9th with 11 above zero as the coldest day, and the warmest was the 29th when the mercury got up to 59. The snowfall was 5½ ounces and there was 1.19 inches of rain.

Mr. and Mrs. Collins of Blairmore, Alberta, spent a few days here at the end of the week, on a visit with the latter's mother, and sister Mrs. Remington and Mrs. P. Bolton. They were returning home after wintering in California.

Receipts of eggs at the Farmers' Institute pool for March ran to a total of almost 4700 dozens. Production is at its peak and for the first three days of this week 36 cases had been shipped. There has been a sharp decline in price due to surplus supplies

The Parish Hall was well filled on Monday night for the presentation of "Deacon Dubbs," by Canyon Dramatic Club, and those who saw the presentation at Canyon two weeks previous declare the company showed considerable improvement despite the handicap of the smaller stage at Creston. The cash intake was about $35.

FREIGHT FOR NELSON—I have established a freight truck service between Creston and Nelson, leaving here Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at 8.30 a.m. Depot at Creston Motors. Satisfactory service guaranteed. O. Ringheim, Creston.

A congregational meeting of Christ Church, Creston, will be held in the Parish Hall, Thursday, April 14th, at 8 p.m. A crisis has been reached in the history of the parish and it is imperative that all who can should attend. Rev. F. V. Harrison, rural dean, of Cranbrook, is expected to be present.

The regular monthly meeting of the Young Women's Hospital Auxiliary will be held at the home of Miss M. S Smith on Monday evening, 11th, at 8 o'clock. All the young ladies who signed as members are asked to come, and any others who would like to join will be welcome. Suggestions from the members of ways of helping the hospital will be appreciated.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Warren and baby daughter, Carol, of Calgary, Alberta, were visitors here by plane on Tuesday afternoon, and after leaving Carol with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Archibald, the Warrens proceeded on to Spokade, where they plan to spend a couple of days, and will probably make a short visit here on their return. Due to unfavorable flying conditions they were fully an hour behind schedule, on their arrival here.

The first of the month saw a change in the business section when F. LaBelle took over the Auditorium billiard parlor from W. Tillotson, who has been operating it for the past few years, along with a rooming house on the second floor. Mr. and Mrs. Tillotson have moved into the Nickel house on Victoria Avenue, vacated by Mr. and Mrs. Crosby, who have moved to the former Lyne ranch, which they purchased earlier in the year.

There was a fair turnout of shareholders at the annual meeting of Creston Valley Co-Operative Association on Wednesday afternoon last at the United Church hall. In the absence of President L. T. Leveque, the chair was taken by W. H. Kolthammer. Jas. Turner and Percy Boffey are the new directors elected, and along with F. Knott, T. R. Mawson, L. T. Leveque, A. Glasier and W H. Kolthammer comprise the board of management for 1932. A resolution was carried changing the head office from Erickson to Creston.

The Cult Of Bigness

Every time the census of population of the country is taken a number of controversies arise because some towns and cities feel they are actually "bigger" than the work of the census enumerators shows them to be. The citizens of these places feel themselves aggrieved, their newspapers protest and their boards of trade propose the taking of another and independent census to establish the truth or falsity of the official figures. All because the town or city wants to be "big," bigger than some other town or city it regards as a rival.

Yet bigness in population is not, in itself, necessarily a good thing. It is not a mark of excellence. Bigness is not greatness, although it is too frequently confused as such. Bigness may, indeed, be a weakness rather than a source of strength. The big city is not a friendly city; it is not a cheap place in which to live, but an expensive place; its pleasures are not of the soul-satisfying kind, but rather tend to the superficial and hectic; it has certain advantages, it is true, but they are, as a rule, out-weighed by many more and greater disadvantages. Nevertheless, every town and city is disappointed if each succeeding census does not reveal to itself and the world that it is "bigger."

This desire for bigness seems to be ingrained in our human make-up. We want a bigger house, although the smaller one in which we live is cosy and comfortable and fully adequate to our needs, and can be maintained at much less cost. We want a bigger car, although we really do not require it and cannot well afford the extra cost to purchase and meet the heavier bills for its operation and upkeep. Instead of being content with that which actually satisfies our needs, we envy another solely because what he has is "bigger" than what we have.

This far from sensible worship of bigness has led many astray and who find themselves in acute difficulty today because what they have is bigger than they need and therefore ought to have. The farmer with a quarter or half section yearns for a bigger farm and so he bought more land until he had a section or two sections. Today, as he sees many of his neighbors with the smaller holdings getting along while he is in trouble, he is less sure about the value of bigness. Today the city man with a large house and a large car is inclined to wish both were of smaller dimensions. The owner of these big things is coming to realize that they also mean something else on a big scale, that is, big expense, big liabilities, big debts.

A big man physically is not necessarily a strong man nor a healthy one. It is not the biggest flowers that are the most beautiful and the most fragrant, not the biggest apple or peach that is the juiciest or more luscious to the taste. It is not the biggest painting that is the most exquisite and wonderful, nor the biggest book that contains the finest poetry or most entertaining story. Bigness, in itself, is a delusion and a sham.

And, after all, what does mere bigness bring in its train? The bigger a city, the bigger its problems and the bigger its costs of administration. The bigger a man's fortune, the bigger the load of responsibility he has to carry, but not bigger the happiness he enjoys. The German Kaiser wanted a big army and a big navy, and they cost him his throne. It is the bigger ships, the bigger hotels, the bigger office buildings, the bigger businesses that are having the hardest struggle today because they cannot cut their overhead expenses sufficiently to meet present conditions, while those of the smaller class are riding through the storm of this depression.

Why do we all clamor for bigness? The vast majority of us must always fill only a very small place in the world. But is it not infinitely better to fill that place well, to be held in esteem and loved a bit in our small home and home town ,than to be a cipher in a big city? Is it not in the so-called small things of life, in the narrow confines of our own home circle, that we find the real joys and the great satisfactions of life, rather than in those things which so frequently, but incorrectly, are termed big?

Think it out for yourself the next time you are inclined to feel discontented and envious of the other fellow who has something that, on the face of it, appears bigger than what you have. Perhaps, if you only knew the whole story, he would gladly exchange places with you.

Receives Little Help

Bulk Of Great Britain's Payments Raised By Taxation

In a recent issue the Saturday Evening Post made the assertion that —"So far Great Britain's payments to America have been met by collections from other nations. They have not come out of taxation levied at home."

That statement is at variance with the facts. Only a few days ago Premier Ramsay MacDonald stated that Great Britain's total payments to the United States have amounted to £326,800,000, and that Britain's total receipts from debts and reparations have come to £192,465,000. There is thus a gap of some £134,000,000 which has had to be filled from the pockets of the British taxpayers.—Halifax Herald.

Potsdam Engineer Constructs Queer Boat

Craft Equipped With Powerful Motor and Resembles Whale

Nicholas Bellin, 28-year-old engineer of Potsdam, Germany, has built a boat, resembling a whale with an aeroplane motor atop of the tail, which he says he believes can span the ocean between Liverpool and New York in less than three days.

The craft is equipped with a 276-horse-power motor, which Bellin said would give it a speed of 62 miles an hour. After testing the boat this spring, he said, he would attempt a trip around the world, travelling east. He estimated it would take him 15 days.

New-Fashioned Method

Treatment Nowadays For Colds More Like a Vacation

There's only one nice thing about colds: Nowadays we don't torture ourselves with old fashioned remedies, specifically hot foot-baths, inhalations under a cloth and burial under a ton of bed clothes.

We simply recline in bed, peruse frivolous magazines, doze when we feel like it, and have our meals brought to us in invalid luxury.

In short, two colds a year has come to mean two extra vacations a year. It's an ill wind, etc.

Most people, however, fancy other breathing spells.

ACID STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Sufferers From Indigestion CUT THIS OUT

"Stomach trouble, dyspepsia, indigestion, sourness, gas, heartburn, food fermentation, etc., are caused nine times in ten by chronic acid stomach," says a well known authority.

Burning hydrochloric acid develops in the stomach at an alarming rate. The acid irritates and inflames the delicate stomach lining and often leads to gastritis or stomach ulcers. Don't dose an acid stomach with pepsin or artificial digestants that only give temporary relief from pain by driving the sour, fermenting food out of the stomach into the intestines.

Instead, neutralize or sweeten your acid stomach after meals with a little Bisurated Magnesia and not only will the pain vanish but your meals will digest naturally. There is nothing better than Bisurated Magnesia, to sweeten and settle an acid stomach. Your stomach acts and feels fine in just a few minutes. Bisurated Magnesia can be obtained from any reliable druggist in either powder or tablet form. It is safe, reliable, easy and pleasant to use, is not a laxative and is not at all expensive.

Safe Hours For Motorists

The hour of the week during which you can drive your automobile with the least chance of having a fatal accident is Tuesday between four and five a.m., and the time of greatest risk is on Sunday afternoon, between six and seven, according to statistical study by an insurance company.

With so thorough a preparation at hand as Miller's Worm Powders the mother who allows her children to suffer from the ravages of worms is unwise and culpably careless. A child subjected to the attacks of worms is always unhealthy, and will be stunted in its growth. It is a merciful act to rid it of these destructive parasites, especially when it can be done without difficulty.

Create War Impression

Children In Russia Taught That Clash With Other Nations Is Inevitable

The impression is being created in Russia that war with some other power at some time is inevitable. The children are being taught the strength and resources of the Red Army; and, while it is hoped that war never will occur, if it comes the army is ready.

The above statements were made by Miss Jennie Lee, who was one of the youngest members of the British House of Commons before her defeat at the last election. Miss Lee was the luncheon speaker before the Ottawa Canadian Club. Having visited and toured extensively in Russia, she chose for her subject "The New Generation in Russia." The audience which she addressed included Premier R. B. Bennett and W. L. Mackenzie King, leader of the opposition.

Adepts At Lip-Reading

Workmen In Automobile Plants Talk To Each Other Easily

The ease with which workmen in some departments of the great automobile plants make themselves heard above the incessant and deafening noises of pounding presses and ponderous hammers is always a source of amazement to visitors. Few of them know it is all done by lip-reading and by becoming accustomed to the bedlam. After a comparatively short time, the workmen can talk in ordinary tones without raising their voices and still understand each other.

DRAPERIES MADE NEW

"When we resumed housekeeping a month ago I found my draperies had become creased from packing. I hung them out on the line, hoping to remove the creases. Then I forgot them. The result was they became badly faded and sun-spotted.

"I was heartsick until the happy thought struck me to dye them. I just dyed them a deeper green, and as I used Diamond Dyes they look gorgeous and new. I have never seen easier dyes to use than Diamond Dyes. They give the most beautiful colors—when used either for tinting or dyeing—and never take the life out of cloth as other dyes do."

When You CAN'T QUIT

Fatigue is the signal to rest. Obey it if you can. When you can't, keep cool and carry-on in comfort.

Aspirin was meant for just such times, for it insures your comfort. Freedom from those pains that nag at nerves and wear you down. One tablet will block that threatening headache while it is still just a threat. Take two or three tablets when you've caught a cold, and that's usually the end of it.

Carry Aspirin tablets when you travel. Have some at home and keep some at the office. Like an efficient secretary, they will often "save the day" and spare you many uncomfortable, unproductive hours. Aspirin is harmless, so keep it handy, keep it in mind, and use it. No man of affairs can afford to ignore the score and more of uses explained in the proven directions. From a grumbling tooth to those rheumatic pains which seem almost to bend the bones, Aspirin tablets are ready with quick relief—and always work. Neuralgia. Neuritis. Any nagging, needless pain.

Get the genuine tablets, stamped with the Bayer cross. They are of perfect purity, absolute uniformity, and have the same action every time. Why experiment with imitations costing a few cents less? The saving is too little. There is too much at stake. But there is economy in the purchase of genuine Aspirin tablets in the large bottles.

MANITOBA WILL OFFER A NEW BOND ISSUE SOON

Winnipeg, Man.—As soon as the bill now being rushed through the Manitoba legislature is passed, the province of Manitoba will offer a $5,000,000 bond issue. It is expected the issue will be sold in Canada and will be payable in Canadian funds.

The legislature suspended the rules to give first reading to the bill when it was introduced without notice by Premier John Bracken, Wednesday, March 30. Vigorous objection was voiced by the Labor members of the House to the proposed loan, and this group blocked second reading of the bill by refusing the necessary unanimous consent to a further suspension of the rules.

The money to be raised will be used to pay off debts created for such public services as unemployment relief, trans-Canada Highway and the new tuberculosis sanatorium, Premier Bracken stated. Maturities to be met are: $1,000,000 due in New York, April 15; $1,627,000 due in New York, May 1; $320,000 due in Winnipeg, May 15, and $1,900,000 in treasury bills issued to meet advances by the banks to the provincial savings office.

During the summer the government will have to meet the bond debt of the Farm Loans Association amounting to $500,000, Mr. Bracken said. Apart from this there would be no other obligation of consequence until December when an issue of $6,000,000 fell due. He said if the province can get immediate maturities cleared up in a few weeks the way will be paved for taking care of the December issue.

John Queen, Labor leader, and William Ivens, another laborite, contended another bond issue was only adding to the financial difficulty and piling up interest obligations. Instead the government should make a "courageous attempt to change the monetary system."

The choice lay between the province defaulting or paying its debts, said the Premier. Labor members were not dealing with realities. The House had no intention of changing the monetary system and the government had no intention of defaulting.

Ocean Fares Slashed

Reduction Is Announced In Trans-Atlantic Accommodation

London, England.—Trans-Atlantic passenger rates have been slashed 15 per cent. or more by a group of Great Britain's largest marine companies, the White Star and Cunard Line, while most of the shipping firms of Europe, Canada and the United States were conferring on rate cut projects in Brussels.

The White Star was the first to announce a slash. All classes of accommodation on its liners will be affected by the cut which in general eliminates the 15 per cent. surcharge imposed when Great Britain suspended the gold standard.

Within a few hours officials of the Cunard, Anchor and Anchor-Donaldson lines announced fares would be reduced between Europe and Canada. First class, cabin class and tourist class minimum rates will be slashed 20 per cent. and third class ocean rates reduced 10 per cent. by all three lines.

The White Star announcement said that the usual increases in fare just before the summer tourist season opens will not be put into effect this year.

Opposes Prison Term Cuts

B.C. Attorney-General Says Desperadoes Should Serve Full Time

Victoria, B.C.—Strong condemnation of the practice of federal authorities releasing from penitentiary convicted desperadoes before the expiration of their terms, without reference to the province in which prisoners were committed to prison, was voiced by R. H. Pooley, Attorney-General, in the British Columbia legislature.

Referring to recent crimes of William Bagley, bank robber, gunman and fugitive from justice, Mr. Pooley said that of five men convicted and released after serving part of their sentences for the robbery of a bank in Nanaimo several years ago, one had since been hanged, two others were now in police toils in the United States and Bagley was now a fugitive from justice after the Harrison Hot Springs hotel robbery last year and the Okalla jail break in January.

Widen Beauharnois Inquiry

Scope Of Investigation May Be Governed By Necessity

Ottawa, Ont.—"If the committee reports it necessary to a complete inquiry as to any senators affected, or in justice to any public man whose honor is impugned in the course of the evidence," the scope of the investigation committee on Beauharnois will be widened. This was the reply given by Senator Arthur Meighen, government leader in the Upper House, to a question asked by Senator Hardy.

The necessity for broadening the committee's powers in order to hear G. Howard Ferguson, Canadian High Commissioner, was suggested by Senator Hardy.

Criticizes Pension System

Sir Arthur Currie Says Matter Still In Unsatisfactory State

Winnipeg, Man.—"It is a matter of great concern to all of us that, 14 years after the termination of the war, the matter of pensions is still in an unsatisfactory state," writes Sir Arthur Currie, commander of the Canadian corps during the war, in his message to the annual convention of the Manitoba command, Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League, which opened here Wednesday, March 30.

"The principal adjustment necessary lies in the relationship between the appeal board and the pensions tribunals," Sir Arthur writes. By this time there ought to be general agreement on the interpretation of the law, and a method must be found whereby the correct interpretation of the law can be made by all bodies whose responsibility it is to make decisions. The pesent weakness is something which only the government of this country can remove. If the suggestion made by the veterans' organization is not workable, then the government must find something that is."

Regiment Publishes War History

Official History Of 44th Battalion Is Vivid Story Of "Six Thousand Canadian Men"

Winnipeg, Man.—On April 9th (Vimy Night) when the members of the Forty-Fourth Battalion Association fore-gather for their annual reunion in Winnipeg, the official history of the unit will be distributed.

The writing of an official history of the experiences of a Canadian battalion in the Great War is a vast project. For more than three years committees have labored devotedly in the collection of facts, photos and finances to produce a history worthy of the 44th Battalion's war record. The completed work is now available for 44th men, their next of kin, and the general public.

Entitled "Six Thousand Canadian Men" and dedicated to the twelve hundred comrades "who went up the line with us, and did not come back," the 44th history is a book of some 400 pages. It outlines the experience of these men who, tackling a new job, mastered the hard lessons of the grim school of war and built up a unit, rated by no less an authority than Baron Byng as "one of the best in the Canadian Corps."

Checking the historical accuracy of the factual matter, Col. Duguid of the Records Office, Ottawa, pronounced the work "a good history, vivid and interesting throughout."

NO LOSS FROM ALBERTA POOL GUARANTEES

Edmonton, Alberta.—All danger of loss to the province over its wheat pool guarantees totalling $5,536,707 will be removed in three or four years, providing operations of the pool continue as successful as during the present crop season, said Premier J. E. Brownlee in the Alberta legislature.

Referring to operations on the open market this year, the premier said Alberta wheat pool marketings have now passed the 35,000,000 bushel mark and the record handlings in history of the Alberta Co-Operative was 37,000,000 bushels.

After some criticism had been expressed by D. M. Duggan, Conservative leader, and W. R. Howson, Liberal, Edmonton, to which the premier replied, the bills validating agreements between Alberta and the banks and the wheat pool concerning the guarantees were given second reading. The bills ratify settlements authorized at the last session.

All amendments to raise the exemptions under the proposed provincial income tax were defeated during committee, and the exemptions will stand at $750 for single persons and 1,500 for married persons.

Tells Of Plots

Anti-Soviet Conspiracies Outside Of Russian Border

Moscow, Russia.—Moscow newspapers gave prominent place to a despatch from Paris to the Tass News agency, quoting the Communist newspaper "l'Humanite" as saying far-flung activities by Russian "white guards" were underway throughout Europe, including plots against the life of Joseph Stalin and other anti-Soviet conspiracies outside the Russian border.
